WHEN THEY STAND UP TO PRAY THEY PLACE BEFORE THE ARK [AS READER] AN OLD MAN etc. Our Rabbis have taught: When they stand up to pray, although there may be present an elder and a scholar, they place before the Ark [as Reader] only a man conversant with the prayers. (Who is considered conversant with prayers)?[20] — R. Judah says: One having a large family[21] and has no means of support, and who draws his subsistence from [the produce of] the field,[22] and whose house is empty, whose youth was unblemished, who is meek and is acceptable to the people; who is skilled in chanting, who has a pleasant voice, and possesses a thorough knowledge of the Torah, the Prophets and the Hagiographa, of the Midrash, Halachoth and Aggadoth and of all the Benedictions. Thereupon the Rabbis gazed on R. Isaac b. Ammi.[23]

---

(1) Isa. LXI, 3. The Gemara takes the word פאר, garland, to refer to the phylacteries. So Ber. 11a in interpreting Ezek. XXIV, 17.

(2) This would constitute an ‘exile’ but not a humiliation.

(3) Because sackcloth is woven of the hair of animals (Rashi).

(4) Ps. XCI, 15.

(5) Isa. LXIII, 9. The thought implied is that though God punishes people He yet does not fail to have sympathy with them.

(6) This refers to the sacrifice of Isaac. Cf. Gen. XXII.

(7) For humiliation ordinary dust or earth could be used, but for recalling the sacrifice of Isaac only ashes would do.

(8) In the former case any cemetery would be used but in the latter case only a Jewish cemetery.

(9) The mount on which the Temple was built.

(10) The difference of opinion between R. Levi and R. Hama b. Hanina also in the matter accounts for the inclusion here of this passage.

(11) Taking מוריה from ירה’to teach’. [The Sanhedrin from which proceeded all legislation governing the life of the people had its seat in the Temple Mount.]

(12) II Chron. III, 1. Taking מוריה from ירא, ‘to fear’. [Either (a) fear for Israel (Rashi); or (b) reverence for God.]

(13) Jonah III, 8.

(14) lbid.

(15) Man cannot force God to yield to him. God should, however, in his great loving-kindness yield to the prayer of a man who humiliates himself before him.

(16) Jonah III, 8.

(17) The minimum requirement for ritual immersion.

(18) Prov. XXVIII, 13.

(19) Lam. III, 41.

(20) [The bracketed words appear in brackets also in the original. The statement of’ R. Judah that follows is hardly relevant as a definition of ‘one conversant with prayers’. The words are omitted in MS.M.]

(21) מטופל, lit., burdened’; var. lec. מטפל ‘engages himself in work’, ‘labours away’.]

(22) [And thus depends for his livelihood on rain. This will make him pray with more devotion for the acceptance of his prayers].

(23) As one whom the description befits.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 16b

Is not one having a large family with no means of support the same as one whose house is empty? — R. Hisda replied: The latter refers to a man whose house is free from sin.[1]

Whose youth was unblemished. Abaye said: This is one against whom no evil reputation had gone forth in his youth.

My heritage is become unto to Me as a lion in the forest; she hath uttered her voice against Me; therefore have I hated her.[2] What is the meaning of, ‘She hath uttered her voice against Me’? — Mar Zutra b. Tobiah said in the name of Rab, some say R. Hama said in the name of R. Eleazar: This refers to an unfit person who steps down before the Ark [to act] as Reader.

AND HE RECITES BEFORE THEM TWENTY-FOUR BENEDICTIONS, THE EIGHTEEN RECITED DAILY TO WHICH HE ADDS SIX MORE. Are there only six? Are they not actually seven, as we have learnt: THE SEVENTH [BENEDICTION] HE CONCLUDES WITH BLESSED BE HE WHO HAS MERCY UPON THE EARTH! — R. Nahman b. Isaac replied: [Do you know] which is THE SEVENTH? it is the seventh of the longer benedictions.[3] As it has been taught: [The benediction], ‘Who redeemest Israel,’ is prolonged and at its conclusion [the Reader] adds, He who answered Abraham on Mt. Moriah, He shall answer you and hearken this day unto the voice of your cry. Blessed art Thou who redeemest Israel, and the congregation respond, Amen. The synagogue attendant[4] calls out unto them, ‘Blow a Teru'ah, ye children of Aaron, blow a Teru'ah, and [the Reader] resumes with, ‘He who answered our fathers at the Red Sea, He shall answer you and hearken this day to the cry of your voice. Blessed art Thou O Lord who rememberest forgotten things’; and the congregation responds, Amen. The synagogue attendant calls out, Sound a Teru'ah,O ye children of Aaron, sound a Teru'ah. And likewise [he does] with the other benedictions, at one he calls out, sound a Teki'ah, and another, sound a Teru'ah. The order of service[5] [in which the congregation responds, Amen] holds good for the country generally but not for the Temple, because the response, Amen’ is not made use of in the Temple.[6] And whence can it be adduced that the response, Amen, was not made use of in the Temple? — For it is said, Stand up and bless the Lord your God from everlasting to everlasting; and and let them say: Blessed be Thy glorious Name, that is exalted above all blessing and praise.[7] You might have thought that there shall be only one form, of praise after all Benedictions, therefore the text adds, ‘Exalted above all blessing and praise’; that is to say, Give him ‘praise’ after every blessing. ‘What them was said in the Temple? Blessed be the Lord God, the God of Israel, from everlasting to everlasting. Blessed art Thou who redeemest Israel; and the congregation respond, Blessed be the name of his glorious kingdom for ever and ever.[8] The synagogue attendant calls out unto them, Blow a Teki'ah, O Priests, sons of Aaron, blow a Teki'ah, and [the Reader] resumes with, he who answered Abraham on Mt. Moriah, He will answer you and hearken to the voice of your cry. Blessed art Thou, O Lord God of Israel, who remembers forgotten things; and the congregation respond, Blessed be the name of His glorious kingdom for ever and ever. The synagogue attendant calls out, Sound a Teru'ah, O Priests, children of Aaron, sound a Teru'ah etc. And likewise [he does] with the other benedictions; at one he calls out, Blow a Teki'ah, and at another, Sound a Teru'ah, until he completes them all. R. Halafta made this order of procedure the custom of Sepphoris and R. Hananya b. Tradyon made it the custom of Siknin. When however the matter came to the notice of the Sages they declared that this custom was observed only at the eastern gates and on the Temple mount.

Some report [the passage just cited] in the form taught in the following Baraitha: [The Reader] recites before them twenty-four benedictions; the eighteen recited daily, to which he adds six more. ‘Where are those six included? Between the benedictions for redemption and Healing the Sick,[9] the latter benediction being prolonged and the congregation respond, ‘Amen’, after every benediction. This was the custom in the country generally, but in the Temple they said, Blessed be the Lord, God of Israel from everlasting to everlasting. Blessed art Thou O Lord who redeemest Israel and there was no response, ‘Amen’, after it. And why all this [long response]? Because it was not customary to respond ‘Amen’, in the Temple. And whence can it be adduced that they did not respond, ‘Amen’, in the Temple? For it is said, ‘Stand up and bless the Lord your God from everlasting to everlasting, and let them say: Blessed be Thy glorious name that is exalted above all blessing and praise’; that is to say, Give Him praise after every benediction.

Our Rabbis have taught: When concluding the first benediction he says: Blessed be the Lord, God of Israel from everlasting to everlasting. Blessed art Thou who redeemest Israel. And the congregation respond, Blessed be the name of His glorious kingdom for ever and ever. The synagogue attendant calls out, Sound a Teki'ah, Priests, Sound a Teki'ah, and [the Reader] then resumes, He who answered Abraham on Mt. Moriah, He will answer you and hearken this day to the voice of your cry. And they blow a Teki'uh and sound a Teru'ah, and blow a Teki'ah [again]. When concluding the second benediction he says: Blessed be the Lord God, the God of Israel from everlasting to everlasting. Blessed art Thou who rememberest forgotten things; and the congregation respond, Blessed be the name of His glorious kingdom for ever and ever. The synagogue attendant then calls out, Sound a Teru'ah, children of Aaron, sound a Teru'ah, and the reader resumes, He who answered our fathers at the Red Sea, He will answer you and hearken this day to the voice of your cry. They then sound a Teru'ah and blow a Teki'ah and sound a Teru'ah [again]; and likewise he [does] after every benediction, at one he calls out, Blow a Teki'ah, and at another, Sound a Teru'ah, until all the benedictions are concluded. R. Halafta made this order of procedure the custom of Sepphoris and R. Hananya b. Tradyon made it the custom of Siknin. When, however, the matter was brought to the notice of the Sages, they declared that this custom was observed only at the eastern gate and on the Temple mount.

R. JUDAH SAYS: HE NEED NOT RECITE THE ZIKRONOTH AND SHOFAROTH etc.: Said R. Adda of Joppa; what may be R. Judah's reason? Because Zikronoth and Shofaroth are recited only on New Year

---

(1) He has no stolen goods or any property acquired by dishonest means (Rashi).

(2) Jer. XII, 8.

(3) [לארוכות (so R. Hananel, R. Gershom and MS. M.). The seventh benediction of the daily Tefillah ending in, ‘Who redeemest Israel’ (גואל ישראל) was on rain fasts increased by the addition of the formula, ‘He who answered etc.’ inserted before its conclusion. After this followed the six additional special benedictions as described in the Mishnah thus making a total of seven long benedictions. On the reading לארוכה of cur. edd. render the seventh from the seventh lengthened benediction (of the daily Tefillah)] .

(4) [Hazzan. There is no certainty either in regard to the original function or rank of the Hazzan; v. Sot., Sonc. ed. p. 202, n. 4.]

(5) Lit., ‘in what are these said’.

(6) [No satisfactory reason has so far been given for this regulation. Graetz, MGWJ 1872 pp. 492ff suggests that this does not mean that the response, Amen, was not allowed in the Temple, but that the solemnity of the service, heightened by the pronunciation of the Tetragrammaton as written, demanded a more extensive and impressive formula. V. also Blau, REJ. XXXIX, p. 188.]

(7) Neh. IX, 5.

(8) Cf. ‘and let them say, Blessed be Thy Glorious Name etc..’ cited from Neh. IX, 5.

(9) I.e., between the seventh and the eighth benedictions of the daily Tefillah.

and on the [Day of Atonement of] the Jubilee year and in the time of war.[1] THE FIRST HE CONCLUDES WITH, HE WHO ANSWERED ABRAHAM etc.: A Tanna taught: Some reverse the order of the words and attribute ‘crying’ to Elijah and ‘praying’ to Samuel. True, of Samuel Scripture uses the words ‘praying’ and ‘crying’.[2] but of Elijah Scripture uses only [the word] ‘praying’ but never ‘crying’. [When Elijah says], Hear me, O Lord, hear me;[3] that is an expression of ‘crying’.

THE SIXTH HE CONCLUDES WITH, HE WHO ANSWERED JONAH etc.; THE SEVENTH HE CONCLUDES WITH, HE WHO ANSWERED DAVID etc. Let us see, Did not Jonah live after David and Solomon, why then is he placed first? — Because it was desired to conclude [the prayers] with, Blessed art Thou, O Lord who hast mercy upon the earth.[4] A Tanna taught: It was reported in the name of Symmachos, [that the prayers were concluded] with, Blessed art Thou who humblest the proud.

ON THE FIRST THREE [RAIN] FASTS THE MEN OF THE MISHNAH FAST BUT DO NOT COMPLETE THEIR FAST etc. Our Rabbis have taught: Why have the Sages ruled that the Men of the Mishmar are permitted to drink wine by night and not by day, lest the work weigh too heavily on the men of the Beth-ab and then they will be called upon to help them; why have the Sages ruled that the men of the Beth-ab are forbidden [to drink] both by day and by night because they are continuously at work [in the Temple]. Hence the Sages have declared that any priest who can identify his Mishmar and his particular Beth-ab and who also knows definitely that the members of his Beth-ab were participating in the service of the Temple[5] is forbidden to drink wine on the whole of that day.[6] If, however, he can identify only his Mishmar but not his particular Beth-ab and yet he knows definitely that the members of his Beth-ab were participating in the service of the Temple, he is forbidden to drink wine the whole of that week.[7] If he cannot identify his Mishmar nor his particular Beth-ab, but he knows definitely that the members of his Beth-ab were participating in the service of the Temple, he is forbidden to drink wine all the year round. Rabbi says: I declare [priests] should not at any time drink wine, but what can I do seeing that his misfortune turned out to be an advantage to him.[8] Abaye said: According to whose opinion do priests drink wine? According to that of Rabbi.

BOTH THE MEN OF THE MISHMAR AND THE MEN OF THE MA'AMAD MAY NOT CUT THEIR HAIR NOR WASH THEIR CLOTHES, BUT ON A THURSDAY THEY MAY OUT OF RESPECT FOR THE SABBATH. What is the reason? — Rabbah b. Bar Hana said in the name of R. Johanan: In order that they should not enter on their week of duty in an unkempt state.

Our Rabbis have taught: A king cuts his hair every day, a high priest on the eve of every Sabbath, all ordinary priest once in thirty days. Why has a king to cut his hair every day? — R. Abba b. Zabda said: Scripture says, Thine eyes shall see the king in his beauty.[9] Why has a high priest [to cut his hair] on the eve of every Sabbath? — R. Samuel b. Isaac said: Because the Mishmar changes every week. Whence can it be adduced that an ordinary priest [must cut his hair] once in thirty days? — It is to be adduced from the analogous use of the word pera’ in connection with the Nazirite [and the priests]. Of the priests [it is written], Neither shall they shave their heads, ‘nor suffer their locks [pera’] to grow long;[10] and of the Nazirite it is written, He shall be holy. he shall let the locks of the hair of his head grow long [pera’];[11] as in the case of the Nazirite the period of growing his hair is thirty days so too must it be in the case of the ordinary priest. But whence do we know this to be the requirement of the Nazirite himself? R. Mattena said: A Nazirite's unspecified [term of] vow is thirty days. Whence is this to be adduced? — Scripture uses the word yihyeh the numerical value of which is thirty.[12] R. Papa said to Abaye: Perhaps Scripture means [that the priests] should not let their hair grow at all? — The latter replied: Had Scripture written, ‘nor suffer to grow long their locks’, it might be as you suggest, but since Scripture has written, ‘Nor suffer their locks to grow long,’ this implies, they may grow their hair but they may not suffer their locks to grow long. If that is so, this restriction should be valid even at the present time! — [This restriction is] on the same lines as that of the drinking of wine; just as the restriction of drinking wine applied only to the time when they might enter [the Temple][13] to do service, so too with regard to the restriction of letting the locks grow long. But has it not been taught: Rabbi says, I declare that [a priest] should not at any time drink wine, but what can I do, seeing that his misfortune turned out to be an advantage to him. And on this Abaye commented: At the present time according to whom do priests drink wine? According to Rabbi.

---

(1) .

(2) 1 Sam. VII, 5; VIII, 6: XV, 11.

(3) I Kings XVIII, 37.

(4) Earth, in the first instance refers to the land of Israel. David and Solomon were the founders of the Jewish kingdom and prayed for its welfare.

(5) [There were many of the priestly families who had been disqualified from the priesthood.]

(6) [On the particular day on which his Beth Ab was in service, as the Temple might be rebuilt and they might be called upon to serve.]

(7) [The particular week on which the Mishmar to which he belonged was in service.]

(8) The destruction of the Temple with the consequent cessation of priestly duties enables the priests to drink wine at any time.

(9) Isa. XXXIII, 17.

(10) Ezek. XLIV, 20.

(11) Num. VI, 5.

(12) יהיה taken numerically, 10 + 5 + 10 + 5 + 30.

(13) I.e., so long as the Temple was in being.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 17b

From this may be inferred that the Rabbis forbid [priests to drink wine], why? Perhaps the Temple may speedily be rebuilt and the need will arise for priests to do service therein and there will be none available; and so here too [in the case of letting the hair grow long] the Temple may speedily be rebuilt and the need will arise for priests fit for service and there will be none available]? — [This difficulty cannot arise] here [in this latter case] since it is always possible for a priest to cut his hair and then enter [the Temple]. If that is so, then priests who are intoxicated could first sleep a little and then enter [the Temple],in accordance with the statement of Rami b. Abba who said: A mile walk or a little sleep drives away the effects of drink? — Has it not been stated in connection with this [statement]: This only holds good where a man has drunk a quarter of a log, but where he has drunk more than a quarter of a log walking renders him all the more tired, and sleep all the more drunk. R. Ashi replied: The Rabbis have decreed against those who are drunk because they profane [thereby] the service, but against those who perform the service with their hair long they did not decree because they do not [thereby] profane the service.

An objection was raised against this: The following [priests] incur the penalty of death,those who are intoxicated with wine and those whose hair has grown long. With regard to those who are intoxicated with wine, it is expressly stated, Drink no wine nor strong drink,[1] but whence do we adduce that this also applies to those who grow their hair long? For it is written, Neither shall they shave their heads, nor suffer their locks to grow long,[2] and the next verse states, Neither shall any priest drink wine when they enter into the inner court; thus, those who grow their hair long are likened to those who are drunk with wine, just as those who are drunk with wine incur the penalty of death so too those who grow their locks long. Now can we not carry the comparison even further [and say] that just as those who are drunk with wine profane the service, so too should those who grow their hair long profane the service?[3] — (No; [the two] are likened only with regard to the penalty of death but not with regard to the rendering of the service profane).[4]

Rabina asked R. Ashi:[5] Who taught it[6] before Ezekiel's time? — He replied: And according to your reasoning how will you explain the statement of R. Hisda, who said: The rule forbidding an uncircumcised priest[7] to do service we have learnt not from the Law of Moses but from the prophets [where it is written], No alien uncircumcised in heart and uncircumcised in flesh, shall enter My sanctuary.[8] But who stated it? It must therefore [be assumed] that it was a tradition and then Ezekiel came and gave it a Scriptural basis. Here too [of long hair profaning the service] there was a tradition and then Ezekiel came and gave it a Scriptural basis. (The tradition was with regard to the death penalty only but not with regard to the profaning of the service).[9]

THE RESTRICTION AGAINST MOURNING ON THE DAYS ENUMERATED IN THE SCROLL OF FASTS APPLIES TO THE PRECEDING DAY BUT NOT TO THE DAY FOLLOWING. Our Rabbis have taught:[10] These are the days on which fasting is not permissible, and on some of them mourning also is forbidden. From the New Moon of Nisan until the eighth of the month mourning is not permissible because the Daily offering was established;[11] from the eighth day of the same month until the end of the festival [of Passover] mourning is not permissible since the date of the observance of the Feast of Weeks was then definitely fixed.[12]

The Master said: From the New Moon of Nisan until the eighth of the month mourning is not permissible because the Daily offering was established. Why does it state, ‘from the New Moon’? Let it state from the second of Nisan and as New Moon itself is a festive day mourning is in any case forbidden thereon! — Rab replied: This is necessary in order to extend the restriction to the preceding day. But should not the restriction in any case apply to it seeing that it is the day before New Moon? — New Moon is a biblical ordinance, and a biblical ordinance needs no [additional] strengthening. For it has been taught: Mourning is forbidden before and after the days enumerated in the Megillath Ta'anith; as for Sabbaths and Festivals mourning is forbidden on the day before their incidence but not after their incidence. Why this differentiation between the two? The latter are biblical ordinances and need no [additional] strengthening, but the former are ordinances of the Soferim and ordinances of the Soferim need [additional] strengthening.

The Master said: ‘From the eighth of the same month until the end of the festival [Passover] mourning is not permissible since the date of the observance of the Feast of Weeks was then definitely fixed.’ Why does it state, ‘until the end of the festival’? Let it state ‘until the festival’ and the festival itself being a holiday will ipso facto be a forbidden period for mourning? — R. Papa replied: [The answer is] as Rab who said: This was necessary

---

(1) Lev. X, 9.

(2) Ezek. XLIV, 20.

(3) This is in opposition to R. Ashi who holds that priests with long hair do not profane the service.

(4) [The bracketed words, which appear in brackets also in the original, stand in contradiction to the parallel passage in Sanh. 22b and are omitted in MS.M.; v. Sanh., Sonc., ed., pp. 127-8 and notes.]

(5) [MS.M.: ‘said R. Ashi to Rabina’ on which reading what follows is R. Ashi's reply to the objection cited against him; v. p. 84, n. 1.]

(6) That those who perform service with long hair are punishable by death.

(7) Cf. Zeb. 18b.

(8) Ezek. XLIV, 9.

(9) [These bracketed words, bracketed also in the original, are omitted in MS.M. and are difficult to explain in this context. Accepting, however, the reading of MS.M. cited supra p. 83, n. 5, these words conclude R. Ashi's argument which runs thus: Since Ezekiel merely provides here a basis for laws that are essentially based on tradition, there is no warrant for the suggested analogy between intoxicated priests and those with long hair. While the former do profane the service, there is no tradition for this to apply to the latter.]

(10) V. Megillath Ta'anith.

(11) A dispute lasting from the first to the eighth day of Nisan took place between the Pharisees and the Sadducees with regard to the Daily offering (Num. XXVIII, 3). The Pharisees were of the opinion that it could be brought only out of public funds (i.e., from the Temple treasury) and the Sadducees maintained it might also be defrayed by private funds. The Pharisees gained the day. V. Megillath Ta'anith, ch. 1; Men. 65a.

(12) There was also a dispute between the Pharisees and Sadducees with regard to the fixing of the date of Pentecost. The dispute turned on the interpretation of the words ממחרת השבת (Lev. XXIII, 15). The Pharisees took the view that the ‘Omer had to be brought on the second day of Passover, while the Sadducees maintained that these words meant the morrow of the first Sabbath of the Passover week and from that day forty-nine days had to be counted to Pentecost. V. Megillath Ta'anith, ch. 1; Men. 65a.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 18a

in order to extend the restriction to the preceding day, so here also it was necessary in order to extend the restriction to the following day. With whose view will this agree? Is it with that of R. Jose,[1] who declared that the restriction applies equally to the day before and the day after it? If so, with regard to the twenty-ninth Adar, why need you base your restriction on the ground that it is the day before the Daily offering was established;[2] deduce it rather from the fact that it is the day after the twenty-eighth concerning which it has been taught: On the twenty-eighth of the month [Adar] the good news reached the Jews that they were no longer to be kept back from the study of the Torah.[3] For once it was decreed that the Jews should not occupy themselves with the study of the Torah nor circumcise their children and that they should desecrate the Sabbath. What did Judah b. Shammua’ and his colleagues do? They went and took counsel with a Roman Matron with whom all the prominent Romans were wont to associate. She advised them, ‘Arise and raise an alarm by night’. They went and raised the alarm by night thus, ‘O ye heavens, are we not your brethren? Are we not the children of one Father? Are we not the children of one mother? Wherein are we different from every other nation and tongue that ye make harsh decrees against us?’ Thereupon the decrees were annulled and that day was declared a festive day![4] -Abaye replied: It was necessary to state the restriction in this way in order to cover the case of a full month [where Adar has thirty days].[5] R. Ashi said: The same would be the case even when the month [of Adar] is deficient,[6] because on a day following on a festive day fasting alone is forbidden but mourning is permissible; but as for this day [the twenty-ninth Adar] seeing that it is placed between two festive days it was considered as if it were a festive day itself, and therefore mourning too was forbidden thereon.

The Master said: ‘From the eighth day of the month until the end of the festival mourning is forbidden since then the date of the observance of the Feast of Weeks was definitely fixed.’ Why does he say, ‘from the eighth of the same month’? Let him say, ‘from the ninth of the same month’ and the eighth day would ipso facto be forbidden because it is the day on which the Daily offering was established?[7] — The reason why it is stated ‘the eighth day’ is this, should it ever come to pass that the seven festive days be abolished,[8] even then on the eighth day it would still be forbidden to mourn, because it is the first day on which the date of the Feast of Weeks was definitely fixed. Now that you have arrived at this conclusion the same will apply also to the twenty-ninth Adar because should it ever come to pass that the twenty-eighth Adar be abolished as a festive day, even then the twenty-ninth would be forbidden seeing that it is the day before the Daily offering was established.

It has been taught: R. Hiyya b. Asi said in the name of Rab, the halachah is in accordance with the view of R. Jose.[9] Samuel said, The halachah is in accordance with the view of R. Meir.[10] But did Samuel actually say so? Has it not been taught: R. Simeon b. Gamaliel said: Why does the text [in the Scroll of Fasts] repeat the word ‘behon’ [on them] twice?[11] This is to teach you that the restriction applies to these days but not to the days immediately preceding or following the days enumerated in the Scroll of Fasts. On which Samuel's comment was that the halachah is in accordance with the view of R. Simeon b. Gamaliel! — At first he thought that as there was no other authority who took a lenient view as R. Meir did he decided that the halachah was according to R. Meir, but when he heard that Rabbi Simeon took an even more lenient view he decided that the halachah was according to R. Simeon b. Gamaliel. And so too said Bali in the name of R. Hiyya b. Abba, in the name of R. Johanan: The halachah is according to R. Jose. Thereupon R. Hiyya said to Bali: I will explain to you that when R. Johanan said that the halachah was in accordance with R. Jose, he meant only with regard to the prohibition of fasting.[12] But did R. Johanan actually say so? Did not R. Johanan say that the halachah is in accordance with the anonymous opinion of a Mishnah,[13] and it has been learnt: Although the Rabbis said that [the Megillah of Esther] could be read earlier[14] but not later, yet

---

(1) In our Mishnah.

(2) I.e., the first of Nisan, v. supra.

(3) R.H. 19a; cf. Megillath Ta'anith, ch. 12.

(4) For notes v. R.H., Sonc. ed. 19a. Why then state that the restriction on the twenty-ninth Adar was due to the matter of the Tamid.

(5) In that case the thirtieth Adar would be the last day of the month and it could only be included in the restriction on the ground that it precedes the first Nisan and not that it follows the twenty-ninth Adar, seeing that a day (the twenty-eighth) intervenes.

(6) I.e., it has twenty-nine days.

(7) I.e., one of the eight festive days.

(8) Because of some misfortune that befalls Israel and it would be necessary to fast on these days.

(9) Who holds that the restriction applies both to the day before and the day after the festive days.

(10) Who holds that the restriction applies only to the day following the festive day but not to the day before it. This view is anonymously stated in the Mishnah and in accordance with the accepted tradition that every anonymous statement in the Mishnah goes back to R. Meir. Hence the statement in our Mishnah is taken, to be the view of R. Meir.

(11) In the introductory sentence cited supra p. 84.

(12) But not mourning.

(13) I.e., R. Meir.

(14) Than the fourteenth and fifteenth days of Adar.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 18b

mourning and fasting are permitted.[1] Now to what does this apply? Shall we say that it applies to those [who should read the Megillah] on the fifteenth [Adar] and they read it on the fourteenth? Is then mourning permissible [for them on that day]?[2] Is it not written in the Scroll of Fasts, ‘The fourteenth day and the fifteenth day [of Adar] are the days of Purim and no mourning is permissible thereon,’ and Raba's comment on this was: It was necessary [to mention both these dates] in order to make it clear that what was forbidden on the one day was equally forbidden on the other! Again, should it refer to [those who should read the Megillah] on the fourteenth and they read it on the thirteenth [Adar];[3] [the question arises] that is Nicanor's Day.[4] Or again, if it refers to those [who should read it] on the fourteenth and read it on the twelfth? But then that is Trajan's Day![5] Hence it can only have reference [to those who should read it on] the fourteenth and they read it on the eleventh, and yet it is stated that mourning and fasting are permitted thereon![6] — No; it has reference to those who should read it on the fourteenth and they read it on the twelfth, and as to your objection that it is Trajan's Day, this [festive] day was subsequently abolished because Shemaiah and his brother Ahijah[7] were killed thereon. Thus R. Nahman once ordained a public fast for the twelfth of Adar and the Rabbis objected to this because it was Trajan's Day. Thereupon R. Nahman replied: This [festive] day has been abolished because Shemaiah and his brother Ahijah were killed thereon. Let, however, the restrictions [aforementioned] remain valid for the day seeing that it is the day before Nicanor's Day? — R. Ashi replied: If the festive character of the day had been once abolished [is it then feasible] that fasting should be forbidden thereon because it is the day before Nicanor's

Day?

What is Nicanor's Day? And what is Trajan's Day? It has been taught: Nicanor was one of the Greek generals; every day he waved his hand against Judah and Jerusalem and exclaimed, ‘When shall it fall into my hands that I may trample upon it?’ But when the Hasmonean Rulers proved victorious and triumphed over him they cut off his thumbs and his great toes and suspended them from, the gates of Jerusalem, as if to say of the mouth that spake arrogantly, of the hands that were waved against Jerusalem, May vengeance be exacted.

What is Trajan's [Day]?[8] It was said: When Trajan[9] was about to execute Lulianus and his brother Pappus in Laodicea [Lydia] he said to them, ‘If you are of the people of Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah, let your God come and deliver you from my hands, in the same way as he delivered Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah from the hands of Nebuchadnezzar; and to this they replied: ‘Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah were perfectly righteous men and they merited that a miracle should be wrought for them, and Nebuchadnezzar also was a king worthy for a miracle to be wrought through him, but as for you, you are a common and wicked man and are not worthy that a miracle be wrought through you; and as for us, we have deserved of the Omnipresent that we should die, and if you will not kill us, the Omnipresent has many other agents of death. The Omnipresent has in His world many bears and lions who can attack us and kill us; the only reason why the Holy One, blessed be He, has handed us over into your hand is that at some future time He may exact punishment of you for our blood’. Despite this he killed them. It is reported that hardly had they moved from there when two officials[10] arrived from Rome and split his skull with clubs.

WE DO NOT ORDAIN UPON THE COMMUNITY FASTS TO COMMENCE ON A THURSDAY etc.; WE DO NOT ORDAIN UPON THE COMMUNITY A FAST ON NEW MOON etc. What constitutes a beginning?[11] — R. Aha said: Three fasts. R. Assi said: One. Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: The view [that one should not complete the fast] is in accordance with R. Meir who reported it in the name of R. Simeon b. Gamaliel, but the Sages say: He should complete the fast. Mar Zutra expounded in the name of R. Huna: The halachah is, one should complete the fast.

CHAPTER III

MISHNAH. THE ORDER OF PUBLIC FASTS AFOREMENTIONED IS OBSERVED ONLY IN CONNECTION WITH [THE WITHHOLDING OF] THE FIRST RAIN,[12] BUT IF THE CROPS HAVE UNDERGONE [AN UNUSUAL] CHANGE THE ALARM IS SOUNDED AT ONCE. THE SAME TOO IS DONE IF FORTY DAYS ELAPSED BETWEEN THE FIRST AND THE SECOND RAINFALL[13] BECAUSE IT IS THEN A PLAGUE DUE TO DROUGHT. IF [RAIN] FALLS FOR CROPS BUT NOT FOR THE TREES, FOR THE TREES BUT NOT FOR CROPS, FOR BOTH OF THESE BUT NOT FOR CISTERNS, DITCHES AND CAVES THE ALARM IS SOUNDED AT ONCE. AND SO TOO IF NO RAIN FALLS UPON A PARTICULAR CITY, AS IT IS WRITTEN, AND I CAUSED IT TO RAIN UPON ONE CITY, AND CAUSED IT NOT TO RAIN UPON ANOTHER CITY; ONE PIECE WAS RAINED UPON ETC.[14]

---

(1) On the days on which the Megillah is read earlier, v. Meg. 5a.

(2) On the fourteenth.

(3) Cf. Megillah I, 2.

(4) V. infra, that on which fasting is in any case forbidden.

(5) V. infra.

(6) But it is the day before Trajan's Day and according to R. Jose the restriction is extended to it. How can then mourning and fasting be permissible thereon? How could then R. Johanan declare that the halachah is according to R. Jose?

(7) [Identified with Julianus and Pappus, the martyrs of Lydia mentioned infra v. Aruch s.v. הרג].

(8) [The victory of Judas Maccabeus over Nicanor is mentioned in I Maccabees as the occasion for making the thirteenth of Adar a holiday. This was in 161 B.C.E. V. Zeitlin, Megillat Ta'anit, p. 82.]

(9) [טוריינוס The identification of this name with Trajan is disputed, particularly as Trajan is known to have died a natural death. It is suggested that this reference here is to Trajan's General, Lusius Quietus, who was executed by Trajan (Schurer I, 660 n. 62). Nothing can however as yet be said with certainty. V. HUCA, Lichtenstein Die Fastenrolle, p. 273.]

(10) דיופלי So Rashi. [Aliter: GR.  = GR.  ‘dispatch’].

(11) So that the fasts that have been begun should not be interrupted.

(12) רביעה ראשונה The first of the fructification (רביעה) rain that is expected to begin in the month of Marcheshvan, v. supra p. 20, n. 7 and Gemara.

(13) V. supra 6a.

(14) Amos IV, 7.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 19a

IN SUCH A CASE THAT CITY FASTS AND SOUNDS THE ALARM, BUT THOSE [IN THE PLACES] AROUND IT FAST BUT DO NOT SOUND THE ALARM. R. AKIBA SAYS: THEY SOUND THE ALARM BUT DO NOT FAST. AND SO TOO IF A PLAGUE RAGES IN A CITY OR [ITS BUILDINGS] COLLAPSE[1] THEN THAT CITY FASTS AND SOUNDS THE ALARM, BUT THE PEOPLE [IN THE PLACES] AROUND IT FAST BUT DO NOT SOUND THE ALARM. R. AKIBA SAYS: THEY SOUND THE ALARM BUT DO NOT FAST. WHAT CONSTITUTES A PLAGUE? IF IN A CITY THAT CAN SUPPLY FIVE HUNDRED FOOT-SOLDIERS THREE DEATHS TAKE PLACE ON THREE CONSECUTIVE DAYS, THIS CONSTITUTES A PLAGUE; LESS THAN THIS IS NO PLAGUE.

THE ALARM IS SOUNDED EVERYWHERE ON ACCOUNT OF THE FOLLOWING [VISITATIONS]: BLAST, MILDEW, LOCUST, CRICKET, WILD BEASTS AND THE SWORD, AS THEY ARE ALL PLAGUES LIKELY TO SPREAD. IT HAPPENED THAT ELDERS WENT DOWN FROM JERUSALEM TO THEIR OWN CITIES AND ORDERED A FAST BECAUSE THERE WAS OBSERVED IN ASKELON BLAST WHICH AFFECTED AS MUCH GRAIN AS WOULD FILL AN OVEN [WITH LOAVES MADE THEREOF]. THEY ALSO ORDAINED A FAST BECAUSE WOLVES DEVOURED TWO CHILDREN ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE JORDAN; R. JOSE SAID: NOT BECAUSE THEY DEVOURED [THE CHILDREN] BUT [MERELY] BECAUSE THEY WERE SEEN.

THE ALARM IS SOUNDED ON THE SABBATH ON ACCOUNT OF THE FOLLOWING MISHAPS: IF A CITY IS BESIEGED BY HOSTILE TROOPS OR [INUNDATED BY] THE RIVER, OR IF A SHIP IS FOUNDERING ON THE SEA, R. JOSE SAYS: [THE ALARM IS SOUNDED] FOR HELP BUT NOT FOR A CALL TO PRAYERS. SIMEON THE TEMANITE SAYS: [THE ALARM IS SOUNDED] ON ACCOUNT OF PLAGUE, BUT THE SAGES DID NOT AGREE WITH HIM.

THE ALARM IS SOUNDED ON ACCOUNT OF ANY VISITATION, THAT COMES UPON THE COMMUNITY[2] EXCEPT ON ACCOUNT OF AN OVER-ABUNDANCE OF RAIN. IT HAPPENED THAT THE PEOPLE SAID TO HONI THE CIRCLE DRAWER, PRAY FOR RAIN TO FALL. HE REPLIED: GO AND BRING IN THE OVENS [ON WHICH YOU HAVE ROASTED] THE PASCHAL OFFERINGS SO THAT THEY DO NOT DISSOLVE.[3] HE PRAYED AND NO RAIN FELL...WHAT DID HE DO? HE DREW A CIRCLE AND STOOD WITHIN IT AND EXCLAIMED, MASTER OF THE UNIVERSE, THY CHILDREN HAVE TURNED TO ME BECAUSE THEY BELIEVE ME TO BE AS A MEMBER OF THY HOUSEHOLD; I SWEAR BY THY GREAT NAME THAT I WILL NOT MOVE FROM HERE UNTIL THOU HAST MERCY UPON THY CHILDREN. RAIN THEN BEGAN TO DRIP, AND THEREUPON HE EXCLAIMED: IT IS NOT FOR THIS THAT I HAVE PRAYED BUT FOR RAIN [TO FILL]

CISTERNS, DITCHES AND CAVES. THE RAIN THEN BEGAN TO COME DOWN WITH GREAT FORCE, AND THEREUPON HE EXCLAIMED; IT IS NOT FOR THIS THAT I HAVE PRAYED BUT FOR RAIN OF BENEVOLENCE, BLESSING AND BOUNTY. RAIN THEN FELL IN THE NORMAL WAY UNTIL THE ISRAELITES IN JERUSALEM WERE COMPELLED TO GO UP [FOR SHELTER] TO THE TEMPLE MOUNT BECAUSE OF THE RAIN. THEY CAME AND SAID TO HIM: IN THE SAME WAY AS YOU HAVE PRAYED FOR [THE RAIN] TO FALL PRAY [NOW] FOR THE RAIN TO CEASE. HE REPLIED: GO AND SEE IF THE STONE OF CLAIMANTS[4] HAS BEEN WASHED AWAY. THEREUPON SIMEON B. SHETAH SENT TO HIM [THIS MESSAGE]: WERE IT NOT THAT YOU ARE HONI I WOULD HAVE PLACED YOU UNDER THE BAN, BUT WHAT CAN I DO UNTO YOU WHO IMPORTUNE GOD AND HE ACCEDES TO YOUR REQUEST AS A SON THAT IMPORTUNES HIS FATHER AND HE ACCEDES TO HIS REQUEST; OF YOU SCRIPTURE SAYS, LET THY FATHER AND THY MOTHER BE GLAD, AND LET HER THAT BORE THEE REJOICE.[5]

IF WHILST THEY ARE FASTING RAIN FALLS, IF IT IS BEFORE SUNRISE THEY DO NOT COMPLETE THE FAST,[6] IF AFTER SUNRISE, THEY DO COMPLETE THE FAST. R. ELIEZER SAYS: IF BEFORE NOON THEY DO NOT COMPLETE THE FAST, AFTER NOON THEY DO COMPLETE IT. IT HAPPENED THAT THE RABBIS ORDAINED A FAST IN LYDIA AND RAIN FELL BEFORE NOON. THEREUPON R. TARFON SAID TO THEM: GO, EAT AND DRINK AND OBSERVE THE DAY AS A HOLIDAY. THEY WENT AND ATE AND DRANK AND OBSERVED THE DAY AS A HOLIDAY AND AT EVENING TIME THEY CAME AND RECITED THE GREAT HALLEL.[7]

GEMARA. THE ORDER OF PUBLIC FASTS AFOREMENTIONED IS OBSERVED ONLY IN CONNECTION WITH [THE WITHHOLDING] OF THE FIRST RAIN. A contradiction was raised against this Mishnah: [If rain is withheld at the time of] the first and second rainfalls prayers are offered; if at the third rainfall, fasts are observed![8] Rab Judah replied: The Mishnah means this: The order of fasts aforementioned is observed only when the time for the first, second and third fructification rainfalls has passed and no rain fell, but if rain fell at the time for the first fructification rainfall and they sowed but nothing sprouted forth, or if the [plants] did sprout forth but they had undergone an unusual change the alarm is sounded at once.[9]

R. Nahman said: Only when they had undergone an unusual change, but not if they merely withered away. Is not this self-evident? We clearly learned, HAVE UNDERGONE A CHANGE[R. Nahman's statement] is needed to cover the case of seeds that have already shot up into stalks. You might have thought that this is a sign of recovery, he therefore informs us [that it is not].

THE SAME TOO IS DONE IF FORTY DAYS ELAPSED BETWEEN THE FIRST AND THE SECOND RAINFALLS AND NO RAIN FELL etc. What is the nature of the plague of drought? Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: A plague which leads to scarcity. R. Nahman said: When [grain] has to be transported by river

---

(1) If the collapse is caused by an earth-quake or by some other extraordinary natural phenomena.

(2) [Aliter: ‘that may not come etc.’ a euphemism for ‘that may come etc.’]

(3) These ovens were usually made of clay and were portable.

(4) Lit., ‘a stone of the losers’. A stone in Jerusalem from which announcements of property lost and found were made. (Cf. B.M. 28b where the reading is אבן הטוען ‘stone of claims or claimants’). [The meaning of Honi's statement becomes clear from the parallel passage in Tosef. Ta'an. III, We are confident that God will not bring a flood upon the world according to Gen. IX, 15. It was this assurance which made it impossible for the rain to be so strong as to dissolve the stones and which should allay the fear of the anxious people.]

(5) Prov. XXIII, 25. [With this story cf. Josephus, Ant. XVI, 2,1 and v. Buchler, Types, 198ff for a fine analysis of

Honi's prayer.]

(6) Because strictly speaking the fast had not yet begun.

(7) Ps. CXXXVI. Cf. Ber. 4b.

(8) Here it is stated that fasts are ordained after these three rainfalls had failed, whereas the Mishnah says that the fasts are observed immediately after the first expected rainfalls had failed.

(9) The phrase רביעה ראשונה does not denote, as it was assumed, the first fructification rain but the whole of the former rain season (יורה) which comprises three fructification rains as stated supra 6a.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 19b

[from one city to another] it is drought, but when it has to be brought [overland] from one province to another it is famine. R. Hanina said: If a se'ah of grain costs one sela’ and is obtainable it is drought; but if four se'ahs cost a sela’ but are not easily obtainable, then it is a famine. R. Johanan added: This holds good only when money is cheap and food dear, but if money is dear and food cheap then the alarm is sounded at once. For R. Johanan said: I remember well [the time] when four se'ahs cost one sela’ and yet there were many in Tiberias swollen from hunger because there was not a coin to be had.

IF RAIN FALLS FOR CROPS BUT NOT FOR THE TREES. It is of course possible [for rainfall to be beneficial] for crops and not for the trees when [the rain] falls gently and not heavily; similarly, It can be beneficial for trees and not for crops when it falls heavily and not gently; similarly, it can be beneficial for both of them and yet not for cisterns, ditches and caves if it falls heavily and gently but yet not in great enough volume. But is it possible for rain to fall for cisterns, ditches and caves and yet not be beneficial for both of these [crops and trees] as has been taught in the Baraitha? — When the rain is torrential.

Our Rabbis have taught: The alarm [for rain] for the trees is sounded during the middle of the Passover [season],[1] and for the cisterns, ditches and caves even during[2] the middle of the Tabernacles [season]; and at any time should there be no water to drink the alarm is sounded at once. What is meant by ‘at once’? — On the [following] Monday, Thursday and Monday. The alarm is sounded for all the aforementioned only in the particular province affected. In the case of croup the alarm is sounded only when deaths result from it, but if no deaths result the alarm is not sounded. In the case of locust the alarm is sounded no matter how small in number. R. Simeon b. Eleazar says: [The alarm is sounded] also in the case of grasshoppers.

Our Rabbis have taught: The alarm is sounded for the trees during the working years of the Sabbatical Cycle,[3] but for the cisterns, ditches and caves even on the Sabbatical year. R. Simeon b. Gamaliel says: [The alarm is sounded] also for the trees during the Sabbatical year because the poor derive their livelihood from them.[4]

Another Baraitha taught: The alarm is sounded for trees during the six working years of the Sabbatical Cycle, but for the cisterns, ditches and caves even on the Sabbatical year. R. Simeon b. Gamaliel says: [The alarm is sounded] also for the trees. For what grows of itself the alarm is sounded even on the Sabbatical year because the poor derive their livelihood from them.

It has been taught: R. Eleazar b. Perata said: Ever since the day the Temple was destroyed the rains have become irregular;[5] there are years in which rains are abundant, and there are other years when they are scanty; there are some years when the rains come in season, and there are other years when they do not. To what may be compared the years when the rains come in season? To a servant to whom his master gave his week's food allowance [in advance] on the first day of the week, with the result that the dough is baked well and eatable.[6] To what may be compared the years when the rains do not come in season? To a servant to whom his master gave his week's food allowance on the eve of the Sabbath with the result that his dough is not well baked[7] and uneatable. To what may be compared the years when the rains are abundant? To a servant to whom his master gave his [year's] food allowance in one lot so that the [waste of] the mill in grinding a kor[8] is no more than [the waste] in grinding a kab[9] and likewise the waste in kneading a kor is no more than in kneading a kab. To what may be compared the years when the rains are scanty? To a servant to whom his master gave his [year's] food allowance little by little, so that the waste in grinding a kab is no less than in grinding a kor, and likewise the waste in kneading a kab is no less than in kneading a kor. Another explanation: When the rains are plentiful they may be compared to a man kneading clay; if he has a plentiful supply of water then the clay is well kneaded without all the water being used up, but if the supply is scanty the water will give out and the clay is not well kneaded.

Our Rabbis have taught: Once it happened when all Israel came up on pilgrimage to Jerusalem that there was no water available for drinking. Thereupon Nakdimon b. Gurion approached a certain [heathen] lord and said to him: Loan me twelve wells of water for the Pilgrims and I will repay you twelve wells of water; and if I do not, I will give you instead twelve talents of silver, and he fixed a time limit [for repayment]. When the time came [for repayment] and no rain had yet fallen the lord sent a message to him in the morning: Return to me either the water or the money that you owe me. Nakdimon replied: I have still time, the whole day is mine. At midday he [again] sent to him a message, Return to me either the water or the money that you owe me. Nakdimon replied: I still have time to-day. In the afternoon he [again] sent to him a message, Return to me either the water or the money that you owe me. Nakdimon replied, I still have time to-day. Thereupon the lord sneeringly said to him, Seeing that no rain has fallen throughout the whole year

---

(1) פרום ‘half’. This is explained by J. T. (Sheck. III, 47b) to mean half of the thirty days before the feast, i.e., within fifteen days before the feast.

(2) Though it is still summer season (Rashi). MS.M. omits ‘even’.

(3) At any time within the six years of the seven years’ cycle (Shemittah).

(4) The poor had equal rights with the owners to the produce of the seventh year. Cf. Ex. XXIIl, 11 and Lev. XXV, 6.

(5) צימוקין Rashi explains the word to mean ‘with difficulty’. Jastrow thinks the word to be a corruption of xenium, ‘a host or king's gift, donation indefinite as to time and amount’, hence, irregular.

(6) He has plenty of time to devote to its baking.

(7) It is baked hurriedly.

(8) Thirty se'ahs.

(9) One sixth of a se'ah.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 20a

will it then rain now? Thereupon he repaired in a happy mood to the baths. Meanwhile, whilst the lord had gone gleefully to the baths, Nakdimon entered the Temple depressed. He wrapped himself in his cloak and stood up to pray. He said, ‘Master of the Universe! It is revealed and known before Thee that I have not done this for my honour nor for the honour of my father's house, but for Thine honour have I done this in order that water be available for the Pilgrims’. Immediately the sky became covered with clouds and rain fell until the twelve wells were filled with water and there was much over. As the lord came out of the baths Nakdimon b. Gurion came out from the Temple and the two met, and Nakdimon said to the lord, Give me the money for the extra water that you have received. The latter replied,I know that[1] the Holy One, blessed be He, disturbed the world but for your sake, yet my claim against you for the money still holds good, for the sun had already set and consequently the rain fell in my possession. Nakdimon thereupon again entered the Temple and wrapped himself in his cloak and stood up to pray and said, ‘Master of the Universe! Make it known that Thou hast beloved ones In Thy world’. Immediately the clouds dispersed and the sun broke through. Thereupon the lord said to him, Had not the sun broken through I would still have had a claim against you entitling me to exact my money from you. It has been taught: His name was not Nakdimon but Boni and he was called Nakdimon because the sun had broken through [nikdera] on his behalf.

The Rabbis have taught: For the sake of three the sun broke through, Moses, Joshua and Nakdimon b. Gurion. Now of Nakdimon we know from the above tradition; of Joshua too we know from Scripture where it is written, And the sun stood still, and the moon stayed,[2] etc.; but of Moses whence do we know this?

R. Eleazar said: We deduce it from an inference from the analagous use of the word ahel.[3] Here it is written, I will begin [ahel] to put the dread of thee,[4] and elsewhere it is written, I will begin [ahel] to magnify thee.[5] R. Samuel b. Nahmani said: From an analogous use of the word teth.[6] Here it is written, I will begin to put [teth] the the dread of thee, and elsewhere it is written, In the day when the lord delivered [teth] up the Amorites etc.[7] R. Johanan said: It can be derived from the verse itself, Who, when they hear the report of thee, shall tremble and be in anguish because of thee.[8] When did they tremble and were in anguish before Moses? When the sun broke[9] through for Moses.

AN SO TOO IF NO RAIN FALLS UPON A PARTICULAR CITY etc. Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: Both [cities cited in the verse are under] divine displeasure.[10] Jerusalem is among them as one unclean.[11] Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: [The verse implies] blessing; as an unclean [menstruous] woman becomes permissible [to her husband],[12] so too will Jerusalem be reinstated.

She is become as a widow;[13] Rab Judah said: [The verse implies] blessing; ‘as a widow’; not a real widow, but a woman whose husband has gone to a country beyond the sea [fully] intending to return to her.

Therefore have I also made you contemptable and base before all the people:[14] Rab Judah said: [The verse implies] blessing; of you no overseers of rivers[15] nor officers[16] shall be appointed.

For the Lord will smite Israel as a reed is shaken in the water:[17] Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: [The verse implies] blessing. For R. Samuel b. Nahmani said in the name of R. Johanan: What is the meaning of the verse, Faithful are the wounds of a friend; but the kisses of an enemy are importunate?[18] Better is the curse which Ahijah the Shilonite pronounced on Israel than the blessings with which Balaam the wicked blessed them. Ahijah the Shilonite cursed them by comparing them with the ‘reed’; he said to Israel, For the Lord will smite Israel as a reed is shaken in water. [Israel are as the reed], as the reed grows by the water and its stock grows new shoots[19] and its roots are many, and even though all the winds of the universe come and blow at it they cannot move it from its place for it sways with the winds and as soon as they have dropped the reed resumes its upright position. But Balaam the wicked blessed them by comparing them with the ‘cedar’, as it is said, As cedars beside the waters;[20] the cedar does not grow by the waterside and its stock does not grow new shoots and its roots are not many, and even though all the winds of the universe blow at it they cannot move it from its place;[21] if however the south wind blows at it, it uproots it and turns it upside down. Moreover, [because of its yielding nature] the reed merited that of it should be made a pen for the writing of the Law, the Prophets and Hagiographa.

Our Rabbis have taught: A man should always be gentle as the reed and never unyielding as the cedar. Once R. Eleazar son of R. Simeon was coming from Migdal Gedor,[22] from the house of his teacher, and he was riding leisurely on his ass by the riverside and was feeling happy and elated because he had studied much Torah

---

(1) no.

(2) Josh. X, 13.

(3) אהל

(4) Deut. II, 25.
(5) Josh. III, 7.
(6) תת.
(7) Josh. X, 12.
(8) Deut. 11, 25.
(9) There is in this passage a confusion of the root קדם with the root קדר to break through. Jast. reads שנקדה V. Jast. s.v. נקד.
(10) The one suffers from a want of rain and the other from an excess.
(11) Lam. I, 17.
(12) After her period of separation.
(13) lbid. I.
(14) Mal. 11,9.
(15) I.e., toll collectors.
(16) גזיריפטי Jastrow derives the word from the Persian meaning, a class of oppressive Persian officers.
(17) I Kings XIV, 15.
(18) Prov. XXVII, 6.
(19) If the stock is cut it grows again.
(20) Num. XXIV, 6.
(21) [Read with MS.M.: ‘it does not sway with them’. I.e., it offers resistance to the wind.]
(22) probably in Judah. V. Josh. XV, 36.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 20b

. There chanced to meet him an exceedingly ugly man who greeted him, ‘Peace be upon you, Sir’. He, however, did not return his salutation but instead said to him, ‘Raca,[1] how ugly you are. Are all your fellow citizens as ugly as you are?’ The man replied: ‘I do not know, but go and tell the craftsman who made me, "How Ugly is the vessel which you have made".’ When R. Eleazar realized that he had done wrong he dismounted from the ass and prostrated himself before the man and said to him, ‘I submit myself to you, forgive me’. The man replied: ‘I will not forgive you until you go to the craftsman who made me and say to him,"How ugly is the vessel which you have made".’ He [R. Eleazar] walked behind him until he reached his native city. When his fellow citizens came out to meet him greeting him with the words, ‘Peace be upon you O Teacher, O Master,’ the man asked them, ‘Whom are you addressing thus’? They replied, ‘The man who is walking behind you.’ Thereupon he exclaimed: ‘If this man is a teacher, may there not be any more like him in Israel’! The people then asked him: ‘Why’? He replied: ‘Such and such a thing has he done to me. They said to him: ‘Nevertheless, forgive him, for he is a man greatly learned in the Torah.’ The man replied: ‘For your sakes I will forgive him, but only on the condition that he does not act in the same manner in the future.’ Soon after this R. Eleazar son of R. Simeon entered [the Beth Hamidrash] and expounded thus, A man should always be gentle as the reed and let him never be unyielding as the cedar. And for this reason the reed merited that of it should be made a pen for the writing of the Law, Phylacteries and Mezuzoth.[2]

AND SO TOO, IF A PLAGUE RAGES IN A CITY OR [ITS BUILDINGS] COLLAPSE etc. Our Rabbis have taught: The ‘COLLAPSE spoken of refers only to sound buildings but not to those already dilapidated; only to those which are not likely to fall in but not to those that are likely to fall in. Are not ‘sound buildings’ the same as ‘those that are not likely to fall in’? And are not those already dilapidated’ the same as ‘those likely to fall in’? — It is necessary [to distinguish between them] when for instance they collapsed because of their excessive height, or, when they stood on the bank of a river.[3] In Nehardea there was a dilapidated wall and neither Rab nor Samuel would go past it although it had remained standing in the same position for thirteen years. One day R. Adda b. Ahaba happened to come there and Samuel said to Rab: ‘Come, Sir, let us walk around it’, and the latter replied, ‘This precaution is not necessary now because R. Adda b. Ahaba is with us; his merit is great and therefore I do not fear'.

R. Huna had wine [stored] in a certain dilapidated house and he desired to remove it. He took R. Adda b. Ahaba into that house and kept him occupied with traditional teaching until he had removed it. As soon as he had left the house it fell in. R. Adda b. Ahaba noticed this and was offended, because he agreed with the statement of R. Jannai who said: A man should never stand in a place of danger and declare, 'A miracle will befall me'; perhaps a miracle will not befall him. And if a miracle does befall him he suffers thereby a reduction from his merits. R. Hanan said: This can be inferred from the verse where it is written, I am not worthy of all the mercies, and of all the truth.[4] .[4] What were the merits of R. Adda b. Ahaba?-Thus it has been stated: The disciples of[5] R. Adda b. Ahaba asked him: To what do you attribute your longevity? — He replied: I have never displayed any impatience in my house, and I have never walked in front of any man greater than myself, nor have I ever meditated [over the words of the Torah] in any dirty alleys, nor have I ever walked four cubits without [musing over] the Torah or without [wearing] phylacteries, nor have I ever fallen asleep in the Beth Hamidrash for any length of time or even momentarily, nor have I rejoiced at the disgrace of my friends, nor have I ever called my neighbour by a nickname given to him by myself, or, some say by the nickname given to him by others.[6]

Raba said to Rafram b. Papa: Tell me some of the good deeds which R. Huna had done. He replied: Of his childhood I do not recollect anything, but of his old age I do. On cloudy [stormy] days they used to drive him about in a golden carriage and he would survey every part of the city and he would order the demolition of any wall that was unsafe; if the owner was in a position to do so he had to rebuild it himself, but if not, then [R. Huna] would have it rebuilt at his own expense. On the eve of every Sabbath [Friday] he would send a messenger to the market and any vegetables that the [market] gardeners had left over he bought up and had then, thrown into the river. Should he not rather have had these distributed among the poor? — [He was afraid] lest they would then at times be led to rely upon him and would not trouble to buy any for themselves. Why did he not give the vegetables to the domestic animals? — He was of the opinion that food fit for human consumption may not be given to animals[7] Then why did he purchase them at all? — This would lead [the gardeners] to do wrong in the future [by not providing an adequate supply].[8] Whenever he discovered some [new] medicine he would fill a water jug with it and suspend it above the doorstep and proclaim, Whosoever desires it let him come and take of it . Some say, he knew from tradition a medicine for that disease, Sibetha[9] and he would suspend a jugful of water and proclaim, Whosoever needs it let him come [and wash his hands] so that he may save his life from danger. When he had a meal[10] he would open the door wide and declare, Whosoever is in need let him come and eat. Raba said: All these things I could myself carry out except the last one

---

(1) 'Empty one', 'Good for nothing'.

(2) V. Glos. s.v. mezuzah.

(3) Though they were sound they were liable to fall, because of their height or because of the water washing away the foundations.

(4) Gen. XXXII, 11. R. Hanan renders the verse thus: I have become smaller on account of all the mercies, etc.

(5) Cur. edd. insert in brackets, 'R. Zera and according to some, the disciple of'.

(6) V. Meg., Sonc. ed. p. 170, n. 11.

(7) That would be treating God's food disrespectfully.

(8) It would cause a rise in prices and the poor would suffer thereby.

(9) שיבתא the name of an evil spirit that attacks those who eat food with unwashed hands. Cf. Yoma 77b. Hence R. Huna suspended a jug filled with water in order to warn those whose hands were unwashed to wash them and so save themselves from the power of the evil spirit, v. Rashi ad loc. [R. Hananel takes Sibetha to be the name of a liquid medicine.]

(10) Lit., 'wrapped bread'. It was the custom to begin a meal with herbs and salt placed between two pieces of bread, hence the phrase.

because there are so many in Mahuza.[1]

Ilfa and R. Johanan studied together the Torah and they found themselves in great want and they said one to another, Let us go and engage in commerce so that of us may be fulfilled the verse, Howbeit there shall be no need among you.[2] They went and sat down under a ruinous wall and while they were having their meal two ministering angels came and R. Johanan overheard one saying to the other, Let us throw this wall upon these [people] and kill them, because they forsake life eternal and occupy themselves with life temporal. The other [angel] replied: Leave them alone because one of them has still much to achieve.[3] R. Johanan heard this but Ilfa did not. Whereupon R. Johanan said to Ilfa, Master, have you heard anything? He replied: No. Thereupon R. Johanan said to himself: Seeing that I heard this and Ilfa has not, it is evident that I am the one who still has much to achieve. R. Johanan then said to Ilfa: I will go back, that of me may be fulfilled, For the poor shall never cease out of the land.[4] Thereupon R. Johanan went back but Ilfa did not. When [at last] Ilfa returned, R. Johanan was already presiding over the school, and the scholars said to him: Had you remained here and studied the Torah you might have been presiding.[5] Ilfa then suspended himself from the mast of a ship and exclaimed, If there is any one who will ask me a question from the Baraithas of R. Hiyya and R. Hoshaiah and I fail to elucidate it from the Mishnah then I will throw myself down and be drowned [in the sea]. And an old man came forward and cited the following Baraitha: If a man [in his last will and testament] declares, Give a shekel weekly to my sons, but actually they needed a sela'[6] then they should be given a sela'; but if he declared, Give them a shekel only, then they should be given a shekel. If, however, he declared, On their death others should inherit [their allowance] in their stead, then whether he has declared ‘give’ or ‘give only’ they are given a shekel only.[7] He replied: This is in accordance with the view of R. Meir who said: It is a duty to carry out the will of a dying man.[8]

It is related of Nahum of Gamzu[9] that he was blind in both his eyes, his two hands and legs were amputated — and his whole body was covered with boils and he was lying in a dilapidated house on a bed the feet of which were standing in bowls of water in order to prevent the ants from crawling on to him. On one occasion his disciples desired to remove the bed and then clear the things out of the house, but he said to them, My children, first clear out the things [from the house] and then remove my bed for I am confident that so long as I am in the house it will not collapse. They first cleared out the things and then they removed his bed and the house [immediately] collapsed. Thereupon his disciples said to him, Master, since you are wholly righteous, why has all this befallen you? and he replied, I have brought it all upon myself. Once I was journeying on the road and was making for the house of my father-in-law and I had with me three asses, one laden with food, one with drink and one with all kinds of dainties, when a poor man met me and stopped me on the road and said to me, Master, give me something to eat. I replied to him, Wait until I have unloaded something from the ass; I had hardly managed to unload something from the ass when the man died [from hunger]. I then went and laid myself on him and exclaimed, May my eyes which had no pity upon your eyes become blind, may my hands which had no pity upon your hands be cut off, may my legs which had no pity upon your legs be amputated, and my mind was not at rest until I added, may my whole body be covered with boils. Thereupon his pupils exclaimed, ‘Alas! that we see you in such a sore plight’. To this he replied, ‘Woe would it be to me did you not see me in such a sore plight’. Why was he called Nahum of Gamzu? — Because whatever befell him he would declare, This also is for the best. Once the Jews desired to send to the Emperor a gift and after discussing who should go they decided that Nahum of Gamzu should go because he had experienced many miracles. They sent with him a bag full of precious stones and pearls. He went and spent the night in a certain inn and during the night the people in the inn arose and emptied the bag and filled it up with earth. When he discovered this next morning he exclaimed, This also is for the best. When he arrived at his destination and they undid his bag they found that it was full of earth. The king thereupon desired to put them[10] all to death saying, The Jews are mocking me. Nahum then exclaimed, This also is for the best. Whereupon Elijah appeared in the guise of one of them[11] and remarked, Perhaps this is some of the earth of their father Abraham,[12] for when he threw earth [against the enemy] it turned into swords and when [he threw] stubble it changed into arrows, for it is written, His sword maketh them as dust, his bow as the driven stubble.[13] Now there was one province which [the emperor had hitherto] not been able to conquer but when they tried some of this earth [against it] they were able to conquer it. Then they took him [Nahum] to the royal treasury and filled his bag with precious stones and pearls and sent him back with great honour. When on his return journey he again spent the night in the same inn he was asked, What did you take [to the king] that they showed you such great honour? He replied, I brought thither what I had taken from here. [The innkeepers] thereupon razed the inn to the ground and took of the earth to the king and they said to him, The earth that was brought to you belonged to us. They tested it and it was not found to be [effective] and the innkeepers were thereupon put to death.

WHAT CONSTITUTES PLAGUE? IF IN A CITY THAT CAN SUPPLY FIVE HUNDRED FOOT-SOLDIERS etc. Our Rabbis have taught: If in a city that can supply fifteen hundred foot-soldiers, as for example Kefar Acco,[14] nine deaths take place in three consecutive days, this constitutes plague; if, however, these deaths take place in one day or in four days it is not plague. And if in a city that can supply five hundred foot-soldiers, as for example, Kefar-Amiko,[15] three deaths take place in three consecutive days this constitutes plague; if, however, they take place in one day or in four days it is not plague.

---

(1) A city in Mesopotamia on the river Tigris where Raba lived. [Soldiers would frequently be billeted in Mahuza on account of its proximity to the capital Ktesifon, v. Obermeyer, p. 174.]

(2) Deut. XV, 4.

(3) Lit., ‘time stands for him’ (in his favour).

(4) Ibid. 11.

(5) [Tosaf.: ‘Had you returned . . . he (R. Johanan) would not have been presiding.]

(6) Two common shekalim make a sela’.

(7) V. B.B. 129a. Keth. 69a.

(8) And thus make it possible for others to inherit the residue of the estate on the death of the sons, v. Keth. 69b.

(9) גמזו is mentioned in II Chron. XXVIII, 18 as the name of a place. Here it is not a name of a place but a cognomen and the Gemara explains it to be the combination of גם ‘also’, and זו ‘this’.

(10) The Jews.

(11) Romans.

(12) Cf. Midrash Tanhuma on Genesis XIX (ed. Buber); Gen. Rab. XLIII.

(13) Isa. XLI, 2.

(14) V. supra p. 28, n. 4.

(15) [North of Acco, Klein, NB, p. 9].

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 21b

.

In Derokereth,[1] a city that supplied five hundred foot-soldiers three deaths took place in one day, whereupon R. Nahman b. Hisda ordained a [public] fast. R. Nahman b. Isaac said, This must be in accordance with the authority of R. Meir who declared, If for goring at long intervals [during three days] there is [full] liability, how much more so for goring at short intervals [in one day].[2] Said R. Nahman b. Hisda to R. Nahman b. Isaac: Pray, take a seat nearer us.[3] The latter replied: We have taught, R. Jose says: It is not the place that honours the man but it is the man who honours the place. We find it thus In connection with Mt. Sinai, as long as the Shechinah dwelt thereon the Torah declared, Neither let the flocks nor herds feed before that mount;[4] but once the Shechinah had departed thence the Torah said, When the ram's horn soundeth long, they shall come up to the mount.[5] The same too we find in connection with the Tent of Meeting in the wilderness; so long as it remained pitched the Torah commanded, That they put out of the camp every leper;[6] but once the curtains were rolled up[7] both those with a running issue and the lepers were permitted to enter therein. Thereupon R. Hisda retorted: If so I will come nearer to you; whereupon the latter replied: It is more fitting that a scholar, the son of an ordinary man, should go to one who is a scholar and is the son of a scholar, than the latter should go towards the former.[8]

Once a plague broke out in Sura but it did not affect the locality in which Rab resided. People thought that this was on account of Rab's great merit but in a dream it was made clear to them that this was far too small a matter to need Rab's great merit, but that it was on account of the merit of a certain man who made it a practice to lend shovel and spade for burials.

Once a fire broke out in Derokereth but it did not spread to the locality where R. Huna resided. People thought that it was on account of the great merit of R. Huna, but in a dream it was made clear to them that this was far too small a matter to need R. Huna's great merit, but that it was on account of a certain woman who [on the eve of Sabbaths] would heat her oven and permit her neighbours to make use of it.

Once Rab Judah was informed that locusts had come and he ordained a fast. He was then told that no damage had been done, whereupon he exclaimed: Have they then brought provision with them?[9]

Once Rab Judah was informed that pestilence was raging among the swine and he ordained a fast. Can it then be concluded from this that Rab Judah is of the opinion that a plague scourging one species of animals is likely to attack also other species? No, the case of the swine is exceptional, because their intestines are like unto those of human beings.

Once Samuel was informed that pestilence was raging amongst the inhabitants of Be Hozae,[10] and he ordained a fast. The people said to him: surely [Be Hozae] is a long distance away from here.[11] He replied: Would then a crossing prevent it from spreading?[12]

Once R. Nahman was informed that there was pestilence in Palestine and he ordained a fast, for he said, If the ‘Mistress’ is stricken how much more so the ‘Maidservant’ .[13] [Are we then to assume] that the reason for his ordaining the fast was because it was a case of ‘mistress’ and ‘maidservant’, but if both were maidservants’, he would not have ordained the fast? But did not Samuel ordain a fast [in Nehardea] when he was informed that there was pestilence amongst the inhabitants of Be Hozae?[14] The case there was exceptional since there are caravans which it accompanies and with which it comes along.

Abba was a cupper and daily he would receive greetings from the Heavenly Academy. Abaye received greetings on every Sabbath eve, Raba on the eve of every Day of Atonement. Abaye felt dejected because of [the signal honour shown to] Abba the Cupper. People said to him: This distinction is made because you cannot do what Abba does. What was the special merit of Abba the Cupper? When he performed his operations he would separate men from women, and in addition he had a cloak which held a cup [for receiving the blood][15] and which was slit at the shoulder[16] and whenever a woman patient came to him he would put the garment on her shoulder[17] in order not to see her [exposed body].[18] He also had a place[19] out of public gaze[20] where the patients deposited their fees which he would charge; those that could afford it put their fees there, and thus those who could not pay were not put to shame.[21] Whenever a young scholar happened to consult him not only would he accept no fee from him but on taking leave of him he also would give him some money at the same time adding, Go and regain strength therewith. One day Abaye sent to him two scholars in order to test him. He received them and gave them food and drink and in the evening he prepared woollen mattresses for them [to sleep on].

---

(1) Identified with Daraukat on the Tigris, v. Obermeyer p. 197.

(2) Cf. B.K. 24a. An ox is considered a goring ox (mu'ad) if he gored three times in three days. R. Meir takes the view that he is considered a goring ox if he gored three times in one day (cf. ibid. 23b).

(3) Take a more prominent place worthy of your great learning of which you have just given us proof.

(4) Ex. XXXIV, 3.

(5) Ex. XIX, 13.

(6) Num. V, 2.

(7) For the continuation of their journeyings.

(8) R. Hisda, the father of R. Nahman, was a more eminent scholar than Isaac, the father of R. Hisda, as can be seen from the fact that the former was an ordained rabbi and is referred to as R. Hisda, whereas the latter is termed Isaac without the title ‘Rabbi’. To show his less distinguished ancestry R. Nahman refers to himself as מנה בן פרם (מנה == GR. ,mina and פרם, half of a mina). Lit., ‘a mina the son of half a mina’, while R. Nahman is designated by him as ‘mina the son of a mina’.

(9) That they did not damage the crops.

(10) [The modern Khurzistan, v. Obermeyer p. 204.]

(11) Nehardea, the place of Samuel.

(12) So MS.M. and Rashi. Nothing can prevent disease from spreading. Cur. edd. ‘There is here no crossing to prevent them’.

(13) Palestine is the Mistress and Babylon the Maidservant.

(14) And there the Maidservant alone was concerned.

(15) The caravans carry with them the pestilence to Nehardea.

(16) Lit., ‘between the shoulders, shoulder blade’.

(17) [Var. lec.: a garment which had many slits at the shoulder blade.]

(18) He would insert the cup through the slit on the shoulder to bleed the patient without having to expose her body.

(19) Lit., ‘hidden’.

(20) [Var. lec.: ‘outside (his surgery)’].

(21) [Var. lec.: and those who could not pay could come in and sit down, and were not etc.]

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 22a

In the morning the scholars rolled these together and took them to the market [for sale]. There they met Abba and they said to him, Sir, value these, how much they are worth, and he replied, So-and-so much. They said to him, Perhaps they are worth more? He replied, This is what I paid for them. They then said to him, They are yours, we took them away from you; tell us, pray, of what did you suspect us. He replied: I said to myself, perhaps the Rabbis needed money to redeem captives and they were ashamed to tell me. They replied, Sir, take them back. He answered: From the moment I missed them I dismissed them from my mind and [I devoted them] to charity.

Raba was dejected because of the special honour shown to Abaye and he was therefore told, Be content that [through your merit] the whole city is protected.

R. Beroka Hoza'ah[1] used to frequent the market at Be Lapat[2] where Elijah often appeared to him. Once he asked [the prophet], is there any one in this market who has a share in the world to come? He replied, No. Meanwhile he caught sight of a man wearing black shoes and who had no thread of blue on the corners of his garment[3] and he exclaimed, This man has a share in the world to come. He [R. Beroka] ran after him and asked him, What is your occupation? And the man replied: Go away and come back tomorrow. Next day he asked him again, What is your occupation? And he replied: I am a jailer and I keep the men and women separate and I place my bed between them so that they may not come to sin; when I see a Jewish girl upon whom the Gentiles cast their eyes I risk my life and save her. Once there was amongst us a betrothed girl upon whom the Gentiles cast their eyes. I therefore took lees of [red] wine and put them in her skirt and I told them that she was unclean.[4] [R. Beroka further] asked the man, Why have you no fringes and why do you wear black shoes?[5] He replied: That the Gentiles amongst whom I constantly move may not know that I am a Jew, so that when a harsh decree is made [against Jews] I inform the rabbis and they pray [to God] and the decree is annulled. He further asked him, When I asked you, What is your occupation, why did you say to me, Go away now and come back to-morrow? He answered, They had just issued a harsh decree and I said I would first go and acquaint the rabbis of it so that they might pray to God.

Whilst [they were thus conversing] two [men][6] passed by and [Elijah] remarked, These two have a share in the world to come. R. Beroka then approached and asked them, What is your occupation? They replied, We are jesters, when we see men depressed we cheer them up; furthermore when we see two people quarrelling we strive hard to make peace between them.

THE ALARM IS SOUNDED EVERYWHERE ON ACCOUNT OF THE FOLLOWING [VISITATIONS] etc. Our Rabbis have taught: The alarm is sounded everywhere on account of the following visitations, blast, mildew, locust, crickets and wild beasts. R. Akiba says: For the slightest attack of blast and mildew; and In the case of locust and crickets even if only one winged creature is seen the alarm is sounded [immediately].

FOR WILD BEASTS etc. Our Rabbis have taught: The Alarm is sounded for wild beasts only when they are a [divine] visitation but not otherwise. What constitutes a [divine] visitation and what does not? When they make their appearance in the city that is a [divine] visitation, in the field it is not; by day it is a [divine] visitation, by night it is not; if a beast sees two persons and pursues them it is a [divine] visitation, but if it hides itself on seeing them it is not; if it killed two persons and devoured only one of them that is a [divine] visitation, but if it devoured both of them it is not;[7] if it mounted the roof and carried off an infant out of the cradle that is a divine visitation. Is not this [Baraitha] self-contradictory? [First] you say, ‘If it makes its appearance in the city it is a visitation’ and no distinction is made whether this happens by day or by night, and then you add ‘it is a visitation’, but by night it is not! — There is no contradiction. This is what is meant. If it makes its appearance in the city by day it is a visitation, but in the city by night it is not. Or, in the field even by day it is not a visitation.[8]

[First you say,] ‘If the beast sees two persons and pursues them it is a visitation’ which implies that if it remains still it is no visitation and then you add ‘if it hides itself on seeing then it is not a visitation’; this would imply that if it remains still it is a visitation! — This is no contradiction. In the one case it speaks of [a beast] in a field near reedland,[9] in the other in a field not near reedland.

[You say,] ‘If it kills two men and devours one of them, that is a visitation but if it devours both of them it is not.’ But did you not say that even if it only pursues [two people] that is a visitation? — R. Papa replied: That speaks of a case [where the beast is standing] in reedland.

The [above] text [states] ‘If it mounted the roof and carried off an infant out of the cradle it is a visitation’. Is not this self-evident? R. Papa replied: This statement is meant to refer to [the case of a beast carrying off an infant out of a cradle in] a hunter's cave.[10]

AND THE SWORD etc. Our Rabbis have taught: By ‘SWORD’ is meant not only a hostile attack by an invading army but also the passing en route of a friendly army.[11] For there could be no more friendly army than that of Pharaoh-Necho, and yet through it king Josiah met his fate, as it is said

---

(1) Of Be Hozae (Khuzistan).

(2) [The capital of the province of Khuzistan during the Sasanian period, v. Obermeyer p. 209.]

(3) Cf. Num. XV, 38.

(4) She was menstruating. [As protection of the woman this was singularly effective, as among the Persians the laws of menstruation were of extreme rigour, v. Obermeyer p. 210, n. 1.]

(5) [It was the black latchets which were the distinguishing marks between Jews and Gentiles, v. Sanh. 74b and Krauss TA. I, 628.]

(6) [Var. lec.: ‘two brothers’.]

(7) The animal had already satisfied its hunger by devouring the first person whom it killed; when therefore it kills another person then it can only be a divine visitation.

(8) [The text is doubtful and in disorder. MS.M. omits, or in the field... visitation’. The words ‘in the fields by night it is not a visitation’, which appear in the cur. ed. in brackets are best left out.]

(9) When the animal stands near reedland and it feels itself secure because it has a place of escape and it therefore is not likely to attack a person

(10) Although it is a low building and the animal need not climb up high for its prey, the attack is yet taken as a divine visitation.

(11) Lit., ‘there is no need to speak of a sword that is not of peace but ever a sword of peace’.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 22b

But he sent ambassadors to him, saying[1] : What have I to do with thee, thou king of Judah? I come not against thee this day, but against the house wherewith I have war: and God hath given command to speed me; forbear thee from meddling[1] with God, who is with me, that He destroyeth thee not.[1]

What is meant by ‘God who is with me’? — Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: Idols. Josiah said [to himself], Since he [Pharaoh-Necho] puts his trust in his idols I will prevail over him.

And the archers shot at king Josiah; and the king said to his servants: Have me away, for I am sore wounded.[2] What is meant by, ‘For I am sore wounded’? Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: This teaches that his whole body was perforated like a sieve.[3] R. Samuel b. Nahmani said in the name of R. Jonathan: Josiah was punished because he should have consulted Jeremiah and he did not. On what did Josiah rely? — On the divine promise contained in the words, Neither shall the sword go through your land.[4] What sword? Is it the warring sword? It is already stated [in the same verse], And I will give peace in the land.[4] It must surely refer to the peaceful sword. Josiah, however, did not know that his generation found but little favour [in the eyes of God]. When he was dying Jeremiah observed that his lips were moving and he feared that perhaps, Heaven forfend,[Josiah] was saying something improper because of his great pain; he thereupon bent down and he overheard him justifying [God's] decree against himself saying, The Lord is righteous; for I have rebelled against His word.[5] He [Jeremiah] then cited of him, The breath of our nostrils, the anointed of the Lord.[6]

IT HAPPENED THAT THE ELDERS RETURNED FROM JERUSALEM TO THEIR OWN CITIES etc. The question was asked, [Does the Mishnah mean] as an oven full of grain, or as an oven full of bread?[7] — Come and hear: As much as would fill the opening of an oven. The following question however still remains, Does it mean [as much bread] as would close the opening of an oven, or a row of loaves extending to the opening of the oven? This is left undecided.

THEY ALSO ORDAINED A FAST BECAUSE WOLVES DEVOURED etc. ‘Ulla said in the name of R. Simeon b. Jehozadak: It happened that wolves devoured two children and they passed them out through their secretory canal and the question came up before the Sages and they declared that the flesh [of the children] was clean but that their bones were unclean.[8]

THE ALARM IS SOUNDED ON THE SABBATH etc. Our Rabbis have taught: When a city is surrounded by hostile Gentiles, or threatened with inundation by the river, or when a ship is foundering in the sea, or when an individual is being pursued by Gentiles or robbers or by an evil spirit,[9] the alarm is sounded [even] on the Sabbath; and on account of all these an individual may afflict himself by fasting. R. Jose says: An individual may not afflict himself by fasting lest thereby he come to need the help of his fellow men and it may be that they will not have mercy upon him. Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: R. Jose's reason is because It is written, And became a living soul;[10] Scripture thereby implies, [God says], Keep alive the soul which I gave you.

SIMEON THE TEMANITE SAYS [THE ALARM IS SOUNDED] ALSO EVEN ON ACCOUNT OF PLAGUE etc. The question was asked: Did the Rabbis disagree with him only when it was a question of sounding the alarm on the Sabbath, but on weekdays they agreed with him; or, perhaps they did not agree with him in any circumstances? — Come and hear: The alarm is sounded on account of plague on the Sabbath, and, it goes without saying, on weekdays. R. Hanan b. Pitom,[11] a disciple of R. Akiba, said in the name of R. Akiba: We may not under any circumstances sound the alarm on account of plague.

THE ALARM IS SOUNDED ON ACCOUNT OF ANY VISITATION, THAT COMES UPON THE COMMUNITY! Our Rabbis have taught: The alarm is sounded on account of any visitation that comes upon the community! except on account of an overabundance of rain. Why?- R. Johanan said: Because we may not pray on account of an excess of good. R. Johanan further said: Whence do we derive that we may not pray on account of an excess of good? For it is said, Bring ye the whole tithe into the storehouse . . . that there shall be more than sufficiency.[12] What is the meaning of, ‘More than sufficiency’? — Rami son of R. Yud interpreted: Until your lips grow weary with saying, Sufficient. Rami son of R. Yud said: In the Diaspora the alarm is sounded on account of this.[13] It has been taught likewise: In a year of excessive rain the Men of the Mishmar send [a message] to the Men of the Ma'amad:[14] Think of your brethren in the Diaspora that their houses may not become their graves.[15]

R. Eliezer was asked, How excessive must the rainfall be to warrant prayer for it to cease? He replied: When a man standing on Keren Ofel[16] is able to dabble his feet in water. But has it not been taught ‘his hands’? — I mean, his feet [at the same time] as his hands.[17] Rabah bar b. Hana related: Once as I was standing on Keren Ofel I saw [below] an Arab with a spear in his hand riding on a camel and to me he looked as small as a flax-worm.

The Rabbis have taught: And I will give you rains in their season.[18] [This means that the soil shall be] neither soaked nor parched, but moderately rained upon. For whenever the rain is excessive it scours away the soil so that it yields no fruit.

---

(1) II Chron. XXXV, 21.

(2) Ibid. 23.

(3) Rab Judah infers this from the words ויורו היורים which he renders,’And the archers continued shooting.’[Or, החליתי is connected with חלל to pierce through.]

(4) Lev. XXVI, 6.

(5) Lam. I, 18.

(6) Ibid. IV, 20.

(7) The former is the larger quantity.

(8) Their flesh as mere secretion does not render anyone coming into contact with them unclean, but their bones, still retaining their solid nature, do; cf. Lev. V, 2-3.

(9) [Var. lec.: ‘an evil beast’.]

(10) Gen. II, 7.

(11) [Var. lec.: b. Phinehas.]

(12) Mal. III, 10.

(13) Because of an excess of rain.

(14) The phrase, Men of the Mishmar’ here does not refer to priests but to a division of lay Israelites whose representatives in Jerusalem known as the Men of the Ma'amad (v. Glos.) stood by during the sacrificial ceremonies reciting prayers (v. Malter, a.l. and infra 27a notes).

(15) Diaspora in the first instance denotes Babylon. Babylon being a low lying country would be swamped by an excess of rain.

(16) The name of a high rock on the brook of Kidron E. of Jerusalem. Cf. Tosef. Ta'an. III, I. [The water to reach the Ofel would have to rise five hundred feet. V. Buchler, op. cit. p. 197.]

(17) [MS.M. omits, ‘I mean’, the reference being to the Baraitha. I.e., the Baraitha, in stating ‘hands’ means that the water had risen so high that one can sit on the Keren Ofel and wash his hands whilst his feet dabble in the water.]

(18) Lev. XXVI, 4.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 23a

Another explanation. ‘In their season’: [This means that rain would fall only] on the eve of Wednesdays[1] and Sabbaths. For so it happened in the days of Simeon b. Shetah. [At that time] rain fell on the eve of Wednesdays and Sabbaths so that the grains of wheat came up as large as kidneys and the grains of barley like the stones of olives, and of the lentils like the golden denarii and they stored specimens of them for future generations in order to make known unto them the in effects of sin, as it is said. Your iniquities have turned away these things and your sins have withholden good from you.[2] Likewise we find happened in the days of Herod when the people were occupied with the rebuilding of the Temple. [At that time] rain fell during the night but in the morning the wind blew and the clouds dispersed and the sun shone so that the people were able to go out to their work, and then they knew that they were engaged in sacred work.

IT HAPPENED THAT THE PEOPLE SAID TO HONI, THE CIRCLE DRAWER etc. Once it happened that the greater part of the month of Adar had gone and yet no rain had fallen. The people sent a message to Honi the Circle Drawer, Pray that rain may fall. He prayed and no rain fell. He thereupon drew a circle and stood within it in the same way as the prophet Habakuk had done, as it is said, I will stand upon my watch, and set me upon the tower etc.[3] He exclaimed [before God], Master of the Universe, Thy children have turned to me because [they believe] me to be a member of Thy house. I swear by Thy great name that I will not move from here until Thou hast mercy Upon Thy children! Rain began to drip and his disciples said to him, We look to you to save us from death;[4] we believe that this rain came down merely to release you from your oath. Thereupon he exclaimed: It is not for this that I have prayed, but for rain [to fill] cisterns, ditches and caves. The rain then began to come down with great force, every drop being as big as the opening of a barrel and the Sages estimated that no one drop was less than a log. His disciples then said to him: Master, we look to you to save us from death; we believe that the rain came down to destroy the world. Thereupon he exclaimed before [God], It is not for this that l have prayed, but for rain of benevolence, blessing and bounty. Then rain fell normally until the Israelites [in Jerusalem] were compelled to go up [for shelter] to the Temple Mount because of the rain. [His disciples] then said to him, Master, in the same way as you have prayed for the rain to fall pray for the rain to cease. He replied: I have it as a tradition that we may not pray on account of an excess of good. Despite this bring unto me a bullock for a thanks-giving-offering.] They brought unto him a bullock for a thanks-giving-offering and he laid his two hands upon it and said, Master of the Universe, Thy people Israel whom Thou hast brought out from Egypt cannot endure an excess of good nor an excess of punishment; when Thou wast angry with them, they could not endure it; when Thou didst shower upon them an excess of good they could not endure it; may it be Thy will that the rain may cease and that there be relief for the world. Immediately the wind began to blow and the clouds were dispersed and the sun shone and the people went out into the fields and gathered for themselves mushrooms and truffles. Thereupon Simeon b. Shetah sent this message to him, Were it not that you are Honi I would have placed you under the ban; for were the years like the years [of famine in the time] of Elijah[5] (in whose hands were the keys of Rain) would not the name of Heaven be profaned through you?[6] But what shall I do unto you who actest petulantly before the Omnipresent and He grants your desire, as a son who acts petulantly before his father and he grants his desires; thus he says to him, Father, take me to bathe in warm water, wash me in cold water, give me nuts, almonds, peaches, and pomegranates and he gives them unto him. Of you Scripture says, Let thy father and thy mother be glad, and let her that bore thee rejoice.[7]

Our Rabbis have taught: What was the message that the Sanhedrin[8] sent to Honi the Circle-Drawer? [It was an interpretation of the verse], Thou, shalt also decree a thing, and it shall be established unto thee, and light shall shine upon thy ways etc.[9] 'Thou shalt also decree a thing:' You have decreed [on earth] below and the Holy One, Blessed be He, fulfills your word [in heaven] above. 'And light shall shine upon thy ways:' You have illumined with your prayer a generation in darkness. 'When they cast thee down, thou shalt say: There is lifting up:' You have raised with your prayer a generation that has sunk low. 'For the humble person He saveth:' You have saved by your prayer a generation that is humiliated with sin. 'He delivereth him that is not innocent:' You have delivered by your prayer a generation that is not innocent. 'Yea, He shall be delivered through the cleanliness of thy hands:' You have delivered it[10] through the work of your clean hands.

R. Johanan said: This righteous man [Honi] was throughout the whole of his life troubled about the meaning of the verse, A Song of Ascents, When the Lord brought back those that returned to Zion, we were like unto them that dream.[11] Is it possible for a man to dream continuously for seventy years?[12] One day he was journeying on the road and he saw a man planting a carob tree; he asked him, How long does it take [for this tree] to bear fruit? The man replied: Seventy years. He then further asked him: Are you certain that you will live another seventy years? The man replied: I found [ready grown] carob trees in the world; as my forefathers planted these for me so I too plant these for my children.

Honi sat down to have a meal and sleep overcame him. As he slept a rocky formation enclosed upon him which hid him from sight and he continued to sleep for seventy years. When he awoke he saw a man gathering the fruit of the carob tree and he asked him, Are you the man who planted the tree? The man replied: I am his grandson. Thereupon he exclaimed: It is clear that I slept for seventy years. He then caught sight of his ass who had given birth to several generations of mules;[13] and he returned home. He there enquired, Is the son of Honi the Circle-Drawer still alive? The people answered him, His son is no more, but his grandson is still living. Thereupon he said to them: I am Honi the Circle-Drawer, but no one would believe him. He then repaired to the Beth Hamidrash and there he overheard the scholars say, The law is as clear to us as in the days of Honi the Circle-Drawer, for whenever he came to the Beth Hamidrash he would settle for the scholars any difficulty that they had. Whereupon he called out, I am he; but the scholars would not believe him nor did they give him the honour due to him. This hurt him greatly and he prayed [for death] and he died. Raba said: Hence the saying, Either companionship or death.

Abba Hilkiah was a grandson of Honi the Circle-Drawer, and whenever the world was In need of rain the Rabbis sent a message to him and he prayed and rain fell. Once there was an urgent need for rain and the Rabbis sent to him a couple of scholars [to ask him] to pray for rain. They came to his house but they did not find him there. They then proceeded to the fields and they found him there hoeing. They greeted him

---

(1) People did not venture out on Wednesday evenings as there was a belief that demons were about. Cf. Pes. 112b.

(2) Jer. V, 25.

(3) Hab. II, 1.

(4) The meaning of the Hebrew phrase is doubtful. (3) [Rashi: 'for confession of sins'.]

(5) Cf. I Kings XVII, 1ff.

(6) [Honi would not have hesitated to force, so to speak, the hand of Heaven even in the face of an oath such as Elijah had made in the name of God that there would be no rain for years (1 Kings XVII, 1ff).]

(7) Prov. XXIII, 25.
(8) Lit., ‘the Men of the Hall of Hewn Stone’. The Sanhedrin met in the Hall of Hewn Stone.
(9) Job XXII, 28ff.
(10) The nation.
(11) Ps. CXXVI, 1.
(12) Cf. Jer. XXV, 11; XXIX, 10.
(13) [MS.M. omits the last sentence.]

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 23b

but he took no notice of them. Towards evening he gathered some wood and placed the wood and the rake on one shoulder and his cloak on the other shoulder. Throughout the journey he walked barefoot but when he reached a stream he put his shoes on; when he lighted upon thorns and thistles he lifted up his garments; when he reached the city his wife well bedecked came out to meet him; when he arrived home his wife entered first [the house] and then he and then the scholars. He sat down to eat but he did not say to the scholars, ‘Join me’. He then shared the meal among his children, giving the older son one portion and the younger two. He said to his wife, I know the scholars have come on account of rain, let us go up to the roof and pray, perhaps the Holy One, Blessed be He, will have mercy and rain will fall, without having credit given to us. They went up to the roof; he stood in one corner and she in another; at first the clouds appeared over the corner where his wife stood. When he came down he said to the scholars. Why have you scholars come here? They replied: The Rabbis have sent us to you, Sir, [to ask you] to pray for rain. Thereupon he exclaimed, Blessed be God, who has made you no longer dependent on Abba Hilkiah. They replied: We know that the rain has come on your account, but tell us, Sir, the meaning of these mysterious acts of yours, which are bewildering to us? Why did you not take notice of us when we greeted you? He answered: I was a labourer hired by the day and I said I must not relax [from my work]. And why did you, Sir, carry the wood on one shoulder and the cloak on the other shoulder? He replied: It was a borrowed cloak; I borrowed it for one purpose [to wear] and not for any other Purpose. Why did you, Sir, go barefoot throughout the whole journey but when you came to a stream you put your shoes on? He replied: What was on the road I could see but not what was in the water. Why did you, Sir, lift up your garments whenever you lighted upon thorns and thistles? He replied[1] : This [the body] heals itself, but the other [the clothes] does not. Why did your wife come out well bedecked to meet you, Sir, when you entered the city? He replied: In order that I might not set my eyes on any other woman. Why, Sir, did she enter [the house] first and you after her and then we? He replied: Because I did not know your character.[2] Why, Sir, did you not ask us to join you in the meal? [He replied]: Because there was not sufficient food [for all]. Why did you give, Sir, one portion to the older son and two portions to the younger? He replied: Because the one stays at home and the other is away in the Synagogue[3] [the whole day]. Why, Sir, did the clouds appear first in the corner where your wife stood and then in your corner? [He replied]: Because a wife stays at home and gives bread to the poor which they can at once enjoy whilst I give them money which they cannot at once enjoy.[4] Or perhaps it may have to do with certain robbers In our neighbourhood; I prayed that they might die, but she prayed that they might repent [and they did repent].

Hanan ha-Nehba was the son of the daughter of Honi the Circle-Drawer. When the world was in need of rain the Rabbis would send to him school children and they would take hold of the hem of his garment and say to him, Father, Father, give us rain. Thereupon he would plead with the Holy One, Blessed be He, [thus], Master of the Universe, do it for the sake of these who are unable to distinguish between the Father who gives rain and the father who does not. And why was he called, Hanan ha-Nehba? — Because he was wont to lock [mihabbeh] himself in the privy[5] [out of modesty].

R. Zerika said to R. Safra: Come and see the difference between the [so called] hard men of Palestine and the pious men of Babylonia. When the world was in need of rain the pious men of Babylonia, R. Huna and R. Hisda said: Let us assemble and pray, Perhaps the Holy One, Blessed be He, may be reconciled and send rain. But the great men of Palestine, as for example, R. Jonah the father of R. Mani, would go into his house when the world was in need of rain and say to his [family]: Get my haversack and I shall go and buy grain for a zuz. When he left his house he would go and stand in some low-lying spot, and then standing in this hidden spot, as it is written, Out of the depths have I called thee O Lord,[6] dressed in sackcloth he prayed and rain came. When he returned home [his family] asked him, Have you brought the grain? He replied: Now that rain has come the world will feel relieved.

Again his son, R. Mani, was annoyed by the members of the household of the Patriarch, he went and prostrated himself on the grave of his father and exclaimed: Father, father, these people persecute me. Once as they were passing [the grave] the knees of their horses became stiff [and remained so] until they undertook not to persecute him any longer.

Again, R. Mani used often to attend [the discourses] of R. Isaac b. Eliashab and he complained: The rich members of the family of my father-in-law are annoying me. The latter exclaimed: May they become poor! And they became poor. Later on he [R. Mani] complained: They press me [for support] and R. Isaac exclaimed: Let them become rich! And they became rich. [On another occasion] he complained: My wife is no longer acceptable to me. R. Isaac thereupon asked: What is her name? He replied: Hannah. Whereupon R. Isaac exclaimed: May Hannah become beautiful! And she became beautiful. He then complained: She is too domineering over me. Whereupon R. Isaac exclaimed: If that is so, let Hannah revert to her [former] ugliness! And she became once again ugly.

Two disciples used to attend [the discourses of] R. Isaac b. Eliashab and they said to him, Master, pray that we may become very wise. He replied: Once I had the power to do this, but now I no longer possess this power.[7]

R. Jose b. Abin used to attend [the discourses of] R. Jose of Yokereth.[8] Later he left him and went to those of R. Ashi.

---

(1) no.

(2) Therefore he would not leave his wife unprotected.

(3) [For instruction. The School, in Talmudic days, was attached to the synagogue.]

(4) Immediate relief is best.

(5) [Var. lec. omit: ‘in the privy’. V. Rashi.]

(6) Ps. CXXX, 1.

(7) Lit., ‘it was with me and l dismissed her’.

(8) Probably to be identified with דרוקרת V. supra 21b.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 24a

One day he heard him reciting a tradition that Samuel had said: He that takes out of the sea a fish on the Sabbath, as soon as there is on it a dry spot as large as a sela’, he has committed a breach of the Sabbath laws.[1] Thereupon R. Jose b. Abin asked him: Why does not the Master add, ‘and between the fins’? He replied : Are you not aware that R. Jose b. Abin had [already] stated this? [The former] retorted: I am R. Jose b. Abin. Thereupon R. Ashi enquired: Did you not frequent the discourses of R. Jose of Yokereth? He replied: Yes. R. Ashi then asked him: Why did you leave him, Sir, and come here? He replied: How could the man who showed no mercy to his son and daughter show mercy to me?

What happened to his son? Once R. Jose had day-labourers [working] in the field; night set in and no food was brought to them and they said to his son, ‘We are hungry’. Now they were resting under a fig tree and he exclaimed: Fig tree, fig tree, bring forth thy fruit that my father's labourers may eat. It brought forth fruit and they ate. Meanwhile the father came and said to them, Do not bear a grievance against me; the reason for my delay is because I have been occupied up till now on an errand of charity. The labourers replied, May God satisfy you even as your son has satisfied us. Whereupon he asked: Whence? And they told him what had happened. Thereupon he said to his son: My son, you have troubled your Creator to cause the fig tree to bring forth its fruits before its time, may you too be taken hence before your time!

What happened to his daughter? He had a beautiful daughter. One day he saw a man boring a hole in the fence so that he might catch a glimpse of her. He said to the man, What is [the meaning of] this? And the man answered: Master, if I am not worthy enough to marry her, may I not at least be worthy to catch a glimpse of her? Thereupon he exclaimed: My daughter, you are a source of trouble to mankind; return to the dust so that men may not sin because of you. He also had an ass. When it was hired out for the day [the people who hired it] would place, in the evening, the hire on its back and the ass would make its way home to its master. If, however, the money was too much or too little, it would not go. One day a pair of sandals were left on its back and the ass would not move until they were removed and only then did it proceed.

Whenever the collectors of charity caught sight of R. Eleazar b. Birtai[2] they would hide themselves from him, because he was in the habit of giving away to them all that he had. One day he was going to the market to buy a trousseau for his daughter. When the collectors of charity caught sight of him they hid themselves from him. He ran after them and said to them: I adjure you, [tell me] on what mission are you engaged? And they replied: [The marriage of] an orphaned pair. He said to then: I swear, they must take precedence over my daughter. And he took all that he had and gave to them. He was left with one zuz and with this he bought wheat which he deposited in the granary. When his wife returned house she asked her daughter, What did your father bring home? She replied, He has put in the granary all that he had bought. She thereupon went to open the door of the granary and she found that it was so full of wheat that the wheat protruded through the hinges of the door-socket and the door would not open on account of this. The daughter then went to the Beth-Hamidrash and said to him [her father], Come and see what your Friend has done for you. Whereupon he said to her, l swear,[3] they shall be to you as devoted property, and you shall have no more right to share in them than any poor person in Israel.[4]

R. Judah the Prince[5] ordained a fast and he prayed but no rain fell. He thereupon exclaimed: What a great difference there is between, Samuel the Ramathite[6] and Judah the son of Gamaliel! Woe to the generation that finds itself in such plight! Woe to him in whose days this has happened. He felt very grieved and rain fell. Once the House of the Patriarch ordained a fast and did not inform either R. Johanan or Resh Lakish. In the morning, however, they did notify them. Resh Lakish then said to R. Johanan, But we have not undertaken the fast on the previous evening.[7] The latter replied: We are subject to their ordinances.

Once the House of the Patriarch ordained a fast and no rain fell. Thereupon Oshaiah, the youngest of the college scholars,[8] expounded the verse, Then it shall be, if it be done in error by the congregation.[9] This can be compared to a bride who lives in the house of her father. So long as her eyes[10] are beautiful her body needs no examination; should, however, her eyes be bleared then her body needs examination. Thereupon the servants of the Patriarch came and put a scarf around his neck and tortured him. Whereupon the people of the city cried out, Leave him alone; us also he insults but since we see that whatever he does is for the sake of Heaven, we say nothing to him and we leave him alone, so you too leave him alone.

Once Rabbi ordained a fast and no rain fell. Thereupon ‘Ilfa (some say, R. Ilfi),[stepped down before the ark and] recited [the prayer], ‘He causeth the wind to blow’, and the wind blew. [He continued], ‘He causeth the rain to fall’, and rain fell. Rabbi then asked him, What is your special merit? He replied: I live in a poverty-stricken remote place where wine for Kiddush and Habdalah[11] is unobtainable but I take the trouble to procure for myself wine for Kiddush and Habdalah and thus help also others to fulfil their duty.

Once Rab came to a certain place and decreed a fast but no rain fell. The Reader then stepped down at his request before the ark and recited, ‘He causeth the wind to blow’, and the wind blew; [he continued], ‘He causeth the rain to fall’, and rain fell. Rab thereupon asked him, What is your special merit? The latter replied: I am a teacher of young children and I teach the children of the poor as well as those of the rich; I take no fees from any who cannot afford to pay; further, I have a fishpond and any boy who is reluctant [to learn] I bribe with some of the fishes from it[12] and thereby appease him so that he becomes eager to learn.

Once R. Nahman ordained a fast and he prayed but no rain fell. He thereupon said, ‘Take Nahman and throw him down from the wall to the ground’.[13] He felt greatly dejected and then rain came . Rabbah once decreed a fast . He prayed but no rain came. Thereupon the people remarked to him: When Rab Judah ordained a fast rain did fall. He replied: What can l do? Is it because of studies? We are superior to him, because in the time of R. Judah all studies were concentrated on

---

(1) Cf. Shab. 107b. He desecrates the Sabbath by killing which is one of the thirty-nine primary types of work forbidden on the Sabbath (cf. Shab. 73a).

(2) [Identified by Horowitz (Palestine p. 115) with Beiruth.]

(3) Lit., ‘By the Service of the Temple’, one of the formulas of oaths.

(4) R. Eleazar b. Birtah did not wish his daughter to derive any benefit from the results of a miracle.

(5) V. supra p. 64, n. 1.

(6) Cf. I Sam. XII, 17.

(7) V. supra 11b.

(8) [זעירא דמן הברייא, Aliter: (Oshaia) Ze'ira of Haberya. a village in the Hawran district. V. Horowitz, p. 263.]

(9) Num. XV, 24.

(10) The meaning is that the leaders of the community (‘the eyes’) because of their sins are the cause of the sufferings that have befallen the community.

(11) V. Glos.

(12) [Cur. edd. insert ‘and we arrange them for him,’ ‘clean them for him’.]

(13) Figuratively He is not worthy of his high office.]

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 24b

Nezikin,[1] whereas we study all the six sections. When R. Judah reached the passage in [the Mishnah],[2] ‘If a woman was preserving vegetables in a pot etc. or as some say the passage, ‘If olives are preserved together with their leaves then the leaves are not susceptible to uncleanness’,[3] he exclaimed: I see here disputations of Rab and Samuel,[4] and yet we to-day teach ‘Ukkazin in thirteen different sessions.[5] And yet when Rab Judah removed one shoe [as a sign of humiliation][6] rain fell but when we cry out the whole day no one pays need to us. Is it because of some failing? If so, let any one who knows of it declare it. What, however, can the great men[7] of a generation do when their generation does not [appear good enough to favour in the eyes of God].

Once Rab Judah saw two men using bread wastefully and he exclaimed: It seems that there is plenty in the world. He gave an angry look and a famine arose. Thereupon the Rabbis said to R. Kahana the son of R. Nehunia, his attendant, You who are so constantly with him, endeavour to persuade him to go out by the door near the market place.[8] He prevailed upon him and he went out to the market place and seeing there a large crowd he asked. What is the matter? He was told, They stand around a mass of ground dates which is on sale. Whereupon he exclaimed: It seems that there is famine in the world. He then said to his disciple: Take off my shoes. As soon as he had taken off one shoe rain fell. As he was about to take off the other Elijah appeared and said to him: The Holy One, Blessed be He, said, if you will take off the other shoe I will lay waste the world.[9]

R. Mari the son of the daughter of Samuel related: Once I was standing on the bank of the river Papa[10] and I saw angels in the guise of sailors who brought sand and loaded ships with it and it turned into fine flour. When the people came to purchase [it] I called out to them: Do not buy this because it resulted from a miracle. Next day boatloads of wheat came from Perezina.[11]

Once Raba came to Hagrunia[12] and ordained a fast but no rain fell. Thereupon he said to the people: Continue with your fasting overnight. Next morning he said to them: If there is any one of you who had a dream let him tell it. Thereupon R. Eleazar from Hagrunia replied: To me in my dream the following was said: Good greetings to the good teacher from the good Lord who from His bounty dispenseth good to His people. Raba then exclaimed: It seems that this is a favourable time to pray. He prayed and rain fell.

Once a certain man was sentenced by the Court of Raba to receive corporal punishment because he had intercourse with a Gentile woman. Raba had the man punished and he died. The matter reached the ears of King Shapur and he sought to punish Raba. Whereupon Ifra Hormuz, the mother of King Shapur,[13] said to her son, Do not interfere with the Jews because whatever they ask of their God He grants them. The king asked her, For example? They pray and rain falls [she replied]. He retorted: This must have been because it is the season for rain; let them pray now, in the Tammuz cycle[14] for rain. She sent a message to Raba: Concentrate now your mind and pray for rain. He prayed but no rain fell. He then exclaimed: Master of the Universe, ‘O God, we have heard with our ears, our fathers have told us; a work Thou didst in their days, in the days of old.’[15] But as for us we have not seen [it] with our eyes. Whereupon there followed such a heavy fall of rain that the gutters of Mahuza[16] emptied their waters into the Tigris. Raba's father then appeared unto him in a dream and said to him: Is there anyone who troubles Heaven so much? Change thy [sleeping] place.[17] He changed his place and next morning he discovered that his bed had been cut with knives.

R. Papa ordained a fast and no rain fell. As he felt faint he sipped a plateful of grits and he again prayed, but still no rain fell. Thereupon R. Nahman b. Ushpazarti[18] said to him: If you, Sir, will sip another plateful of grits rain would fall. Raba felt humiliated and faint, and rain fell.

R. Hanina b. Dosa was journeying on the road when it began to rain. He exclaimed: Master of the Universe, the whole world is at ease, but Hanina is in distress; the rain then ceased. When he reached home he exclaimed: Master of the Universe, the whole world is in distress and Hanina is at ease; whereupon rain fell. [With reference to this incident] R. Joseph remarked: Of what avail was the prayer of the High Priest [on the Day of Atonement] against that of R. Hanina b. Dosa? For we have learnt:[19] [The High Priest on the Day of Atonement] prayed a short prayer in the outer room [of the Temple]. What did he pray? Raba son of R. Adda and Rabin son of R. Adda both said in the name of Rab Judah: ‘May it be Thy will, O Lord our God, that this year may be one of rain and of heat’. Is then heat beneficial? Is it not rather something harmful? — Rather [the prayer reads thus], ‘If the year is to be a year of heat, let it also be a year of rain and of dew, and let the prayer of those journeying on the roads gain admission before Thee.

R. Aha the son of Raba in the name of Rab Judah completed the prayer as follows: ‘May a ruler never cease from the house of Judah and may Israel never be in need of sustenance one from another, nor from another people’. Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: Every day a Heavenly Voice is heard declaring, The whole world draws its sustenance because [of the merit] of Hanina my son, and Hanina my son suffices himself with a kab of carobs from one Sabbath eve to another. Every Friday his wife would light the oven and throw twigs[20] into it

---

(1) The fourth order of the Mishnah.

(2) Toh. II, 1. The word עוקצין is here out of place and refers to the passage which follows.

(3) M. Uk. 11,1.

(4) The disputations of Rab and Samuel are proverbial for their complexity. For fuller notes V. Sanh., Sonc. ed. p. 728.

(5) Cf. Ber. 20a and Rashi there a.l.; Ned. 41a. Rashi, on our passage; in the thirteen colleges that were to be found in the place where Rabbah resided.

(6) Cf. 12b; Ta'an. I, 6.

(7) [MSM.: ‘leaders’.]

(8) That he might see for himself how the people suffer because of the famine.

(9) He should not weary God with any further prayers as He had already answered his prayer.

(10) A tributary of the Euphrates. V. Obermeyer, p. 227.

(11) Obermeyer (p. 227, n. 2) identifies with Parazika, Farausag near Bagdad.

(12) A city near Nehardea in Babylonia. V. Obermeyer, p. 265-7.

(13) [Shapur II, King of Persia (310-379 C.E.), son of King Hormuzd.]

(14) Heb. Tekufah, v. Glos.

(15) Ps. XLlv, 2.

(16) [For this reading v. D.S. Mahuza was the place of Raba. Cur. edd. ‘of Sepphoris’.]

(17) Underlying this is the popular belief that a change of place brings with it a change of fortune.

(18) [Aruch reading Ushparti takes it as the name of R. Papa's mother. The phrase is thus to be rendered: ‘O son of Ushparti’.]

(19) Yoma 53b.

(20) Lit., ‘something that produces smoke’.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 25a

so as not to be put to shame. She had a bad neighbour who said,I know that these people have nothing, what then is the meaning of all this [smoke]? She went and knocked at the door. [The wife of R. Hanina] feeling humiliated [at this] retired into a room. A miracle happened and [her neighbour] saw the oven filled with loaves of bread and the kneading trough full of dough; she called out to her: You, you, bring your shovel, for your bread is getting charred; and she replied, I just went to fetch it. A Tanna taught: She actually had gone to fetch the shovel because she was accustomed to miracles.

Once his wife said to him: How long shall we go on suffering so much: He replied: What shall we do?-Pray that something may be given to you, [she replied]. He prayed, and there emerged the figure of a hand reaching out to him a leg of a golden table. Thereupon he saw in a dream that the pious would one day eat at a three-legged golden table but he would eat at a two-legged table. Her husband said to her:[1] Are you content that everybody shall eat at a perfect table and we at an imperfect table? She replied: What then shall we do? — Pray that the leg should be taken away from you, [she replied]. He prayed and it was taken away. A Tanna taught: The latter miracle was greater than the former; for there is a tradition that a thing may be given but once; it is never taken away again.

Once on a Friday eve he noticed that his daughter was sad and he said to her, My daughter, why are you sad? She replied: My oilcan got mixed up with my vinegar can and I kindled of it the Sabbath light. He said to her: My daughter, Why should this trouble you? He who had commanded the oil to burn will also command the vinegar to burn. A Tanna taught: The light continued to burn the whole day until they took of it light for the Habdalah.[2]

R. Hanina b. Dosa had goats. On being told that they were doing damage he exclaimed, If they indeed do damage may bears devour them, but if not may they each of them at evening time bring home a bear on their horns. In the evening each of them brought home a bear on their horns.

Once a woman neighbour of R. Hanina was building a house but the beams would not reach the walls. She thereupon came to him and said: I have built a house but the beams will not reach the walls. He asked her: What is your name? She replied: Aiku. He thereupon exclaimed: Aiku,[3] may your beams reach [the walls]. A Tanna taught: They projected one cubit on either side. Some say, New pieces joined themselves [miraculously] to the beams.[4] It has been taught: Polemo says: I saw that house and its beams projected one cubit on either side, and people told me: This is the house which R. Hanina b. Dosa covered with beams, through his prayer.

Whence did R. Hanina b. Dosa have goats seeing that he was poor? And furthermore, did not the Sages say: We may not rear small cattle in Palestine?[5] — R. Phinehas said: Once it happened that a man passed by his house and left there hens and the wife of R. Hanina b. Dosa found them. Her husband, however, forbade her to eat of their eggs. As the eggs and the chickens increased in number he was very troubled by them and he therefore sold them and with the proceeds he purchased goats. One day the man who lost the hens passed by [the house] again and said to his companions, Here I left my hens. R. Hanina overhearing this asked him: Have you any sign [by which to identify them]? He replied: Yes. He gave him the sign and took away the goats. These were the goats that brought bears on their horns.

R. Eleazar b. Pedath found himself in very great want. Once after being bled he had nothing to eat. He took the skin of garlic and put it into his mouth; he became faint and he fell asleep. The Rabbis coming to see him noticed that he was crying and laughing, and that a ray of light was radiating from his forehead . When he awoke they asked him: Why did you cry and laugh? He replied: Because the Holy One, Blessed be He, was sitting by my side and I asked Him, How long will I suffer in this world? And He replied: Eleazar, my son, would you rather that I should turn back the world to its very beginnings? Perhaps you might then be born at a happier hour?[6] I replied: All this, and then only perhaps?[7] I then asked Him, Which is the greater life, the one that I had already lived, or the one I am still to live. He replied: The one that I have already lived. I then said to Him: If so, I do not want it. He replied: As a reward for refusing it I will grant you in the next world thirteen rivers of balsam oil as clear as the Euphrates and the Tigris, which you will be able to enjoy. I asked, And nothing more? He replied: And what shall I then give to your fellow men? I said: Do I then ask the share of one who has nothing? He thereupon snapped at my forehead and exclaimed: Eleazar, my son, I have shot you with my arrows.[8] R. Hama b. Hanina ordained a fast but no rain fell. People said to him: When R. Joshua b. Levi ordained a fast rain did fall. He replied: I am I, and he is the son of Levi.[9] Go and ask him that he may come [and pray for us] and let us concentrate on our prayer, perhaps the whole community will be contrite in heart and rain will fall.[10] They prayed and no rain fell. He[11] then asked them: Are you content that rain should fall on our account? They replied: Yes. He then exclaimed: heaven, heaven, cover thy face.[12] But it did not cover [its face]. He then added: How brazen is the face of heaven! It then became covered and rain fell.

Levi ordained a fast but no rain fell. He thereupon exclaimed: Master of the Universe, Thou didst go up and take Thy Seat on high and hast no mercy upon Thy children. Rain fell but he became lame. R. Eleazar said: Let a man never address himself in a reproachful manner towards God, seeing that one great man did so and he became lame, and he is Levi. But was this actually the cause [of his lameness]? Was it not rather because he demonstrated to Rabbi a particular form of prostration?[13] — Both were the cause of his lameness.

R. Hiyya b. Luliani overhearing the clouds saying to one another, Come, let us take water to Ammon and Moab, exclaimed: Master of the Universe! When Thou wast about to give the Law to Thy people Israel Thou didst offer it around amongst all the nations of the world but they would not accept it, and now Thou wouldst give them rain; let them [the clouds] empty their waters here; and they emptied their waters on the spot.

R. Hiyya b. Luliani expounded: What is the meaning of the verse, The righteous shall flourish like the palm tree; he shall glow like a cedar in Lebanon?[14] If it is said, ‘Palm-tree’ why is also said ‘Cedar’? And if ‘Cedar’ why also ‘Palm-tree’? Had it been said, ‘Palm-tree’ and not ‘Cedar’ I might have argued that just in the same way [

---

(1) [The text is in disorder. The rendering adopted is based on the reading of MS.M.].

(2) V. Glos.

(3) The name Aiku suggests to him the Greek = Would that sc. the joists may reach the walls (Malter, Ta'an. p. 188).

(4) [Aliter:(a) They (the angels) made (added) new joints to them (R. Gershom). (b) They made of them (the lengthened beams) new joints (Aruch).]

(5) As these usually destroy the crops of the field. Cf. B.K. 79b.

(6) Lit., ‘In an hour of sustenance’.

(7) He would not give God all this trouble for a mere probability.

(8) The text is in disorder and its meaning is doubtful. According to Rashi it is a gesture of God's love for Eleazar.

(9) I.e., I am not as great a man as he is.

(10) [This appears to be the meaning of text of cur. edd. from which MSS.vary.]

(11) [On our text, either R. Hama b. Hanina, or R. Joshua b. Levi, who had come at their request to pray. V. J. Ta'an III, 4.]

(12) With clouds that bring rain.

(13) And so injured himself. V. Suk. 53b.

(14) Ps. XCII, 13.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 25b

as the stem of the Palm-tree does not renew itself[1] so too the stem of the righteous, Heaven forfend, does not renew itself; therefore it is said ‘Cedar’. Had it been said ‘Cedar’ and not ‘Palmtree’, I might have argued that just in the same way as the Cedar does not yield fruit, so too the righteous do not yield fruit; therefore it is said, ‘Palm-tree’ and ‘Cedar’. But does the stem of the cedar renew itself. Surely it has been taught: If one buys a tree from his neighbour for felling he must leave of the trunk one handbreadth from the ground;[2] of the trunk of the sycamore tree two handbreadths; of the virgin sycamore tree three handbreadths; of reeds and of vines from the knot above it;[3] in the case, however, of date palms and cedars he may dig into the ground and uproot them because their stock does not renew itself.[4] Here it speaks of other types of cedar trees in accordance with a statement of Rabbah b. Huna, who said:[5] There are ten types of cedar trees, as it is said, I will plant in the wilderness the cedar, the acacia tree and the myrtle tree etc.[6]

Our Rabbis have taught: It is related of R. Eliezer that he ordained thirteen fasts upon the community and no rain fell. In the end, as the people began to depart [from the synagogue], he exclaimed: Have you prepared graves for yourselves? Thereupon the people sobbed loudly and rain fell.

It is further related of R. Eliezer that once he stepped down before the Ark and recited the twenty-four benedictions[7] [for fast days] and his prayer was not answered. R. Akiba stepped down after him and exclaimed: Our Father, our King, we have no King but Thee; our Father, our King, for Thy sake have mercy upon us; and rain fell. The Rabbis present suspected [R. Eliezer], whereupon a Heavenly Voice was heard proclaiming.[The prayer of] this man [R. Akiba] was answered not because he is greater than the other man, but because he is ever forbearing and the other is not. Our Rabbis have taught: How long should it continue to rain to warrant the community breaking their fast? [Until the rain has penetrated] as far as the knee of the plough enters the soil; this is the opinion of R. Meir. The Sages, however, say: In the case of arid soil one handbreadth,in the case of moderately soft soil two handbreadths, and in the case of cultivated soil three handbreadths.

It has been taught: R. Simeon b. Eliezer says: Not a handbreadth of rain coming down from above but that the deep with three handbreadths comes up from below to meet it.[8] But has it not been taught: Two handbreadths? — There is no contradiction. In the one case it is cultivated soil, and in the other it is not.[9]

R. Eliezer said: When on the Feast of Tabernacles the water libations are carried out, Deep says to Deep, 'Let thy waters spring forth, I hear the voice of two friends',[10] as it is said, Deep calleth unto Deep at the voice of Thy cataracts etc.[11] Rabbah said: I myself have seen Ridya.[12] who resembles a three years' old heifer, with its lips parted; he stands between the lower deep and the upper deep; to the upper deep he says. 'Distil thy waters', and to the lower deep he says. 'Let thy waters spring forth', as it is said, The flowers appear on the earth etc.[13]

IF WHILST THEY ARE FASTING RAIN FALLS, IF IT IS BEFORE SUNRISE etc. Our Rabbis have taught: If whilst they are fasting rain falls, if it is before sunrise they need not complete the fast; if it is after sunrise they must complete it; this is the opinion of R. Meir. R. Judah says: If before midday they need not complete the fast, if after midday they must complete it. R. Jose says: If before the ninth hour they need not complete the fast, if after the ninth hour they must complete it — For thus we find it in the case of Ahab, King of Israel, that he fasted from the ninth hour onwards, as it is said, Seest thou how Ahab humbleth himself before Me etc.[14]

R. Judah the Prince[15] ordained a fast and rain fell after sunrise. He was of the opinion that the people should complete the fast. Said R. Ammi to him: We have learnt: [There is a difference] between before midday and after midday.

Samuel the Little ordained a fast and rain fell before sunrise. The people thought that it was due to the merit of the community, whereupon he said to them: I will quote you a parable. This can be compared to a servant who asked his master for a gratuity and the master exclaimed, Give it to him, and let me not hear his voice.

Another time Samuel the Little ordained a fast and rain fell after sunset. The people thought that it was due to the merit of the community. whereupon Samuel exclaimed: I will quote you a parable. This can be compared to a servant who asked his master for a gratuity and the master exclaimed, Keep him waiting until he is made submissive and is distressed, and then give him his gratuity. According to Samuel the Little, what would be an instance of rain falling on account of the merit of the community? — If they recited [the prayer]. 'He causeth the wind to blow', and the wind blew, and if they recited, 'He causeth the rain to fail, and rain fell.

IT HAPPENED THAT THE RABBIS ORDAINED A FAST IN LYDIA etc. Should they not have recited the Hallel first? — Abaye and Raba explained this to be because the Hallel is recited

---

(1) I.e. , it does not produce new shoots once it is cut down.

(2) So that the trunk above the ground may send forth fresh shoots.

(3) From the point where the plant begins to branch out.

(4) V B.B. 80a.

(5) R.H. 23a.

(6) Isa. XLI, 19.

(7) V. supra 15a.

(8) The waters below the earth rise to meet the water of the rain. Cf. supra 6b, the statement of R. Abbahu.

(9) [In cultivated soil a small quantity of water sufficient to water only one handbreadth penetrates still lower and so attracts the deep with a response of three handbreadths (Rashi). Strashun explains differently.]

(10) The two friends are the two vessels used for the libation of water and wine respectively. V. Suk. 48a.

(11) Ps. XLII, 8.

(12) In Persian mythology the angel who has charge over rain. V. Kohut, Aruch s.v. רידיא and Yoma, Sonc. ed. ,21a note.

(13) Cant. II, 12. The verse is taken to point to the resurrection of nature as the result of the rain. [The verse continues, ‘and the voice of the turtle (תור) is heard in our land’. תור is taken in its Aramaic sense of ‘ox’, thus alluding to Ridya's resemblance to a three years’ old heifer.]

(14) I Kings XXI, 29. According to Pes. 107b kings dine at the ninth hour (i.e.. three o'clock) of the day. Scripture tells us that Ahab fasted and humbled himself on the day that Elijah informed him of his doom. The Gemara construes Ahab's fasting to be that he went without his meal that day. This would prove that the last moment resolution to fast, provided a man had not partaken of any food before that time, is counted as a valid fast. V. 12a, the statement of R. Hisda.

(15) V. supra p. 64, n. 1.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 26a

only when the appetite is satisfied and the stomach is full? Is that so? Did not R. Papa on one occasion when coming to the synagogue at Abi-Cobar[1] ordain a fast and rain fell before midday and yet he first recited the Hallel and only after that the people ate and drank! — It is different with the people of Mahuza, because drunkenness is frequent amongst them.[2]

C H A P T E R I V

MISHNAH. ON THREE OCCASIONS OF THE YEAR, ON FAST-DAYS, ON MA'AMADOTH,[3] AND ON THE DAY OF ATONEMENT DO THE PRIESTS LIFT UP THEIR HANDS TO BLESS [THE PEOPLE] FOUR TIMES DURING THE DAY, NAMELY AT THE SHAHARITH[4] [SERVICE], AT MUSAF,[5] AT MINHAH[6] AND AT THE CLOSING OF THE GATES [NE'ILAH].[7]

THE FOLLOWING ARE [THE DETAILS CONCERNING] THE MA'AMADOTH. BECAUSE[8] IT IS SAID, COMMAND THE CHILDREN OF ISRAEL [AND SAY UNTO THEM]: MY FOOD WHICH IS PRESENTED UNTO ME.[9] NOW HOW CAN A MAN'S OFFERING BE BROUGHT [ON THE ALTAR] AND HE IS NOT PRESENT? [THEREFORE] THE EARLIER PROPHETS[10] INSTITUTED TWENTY-FOUR MISHMAROTH,[11] AND EACH MISHMAR WAS REPRESENTED [AT THE TEMPLE] IN JERUSALEM BY ITS OWN MA'AMAD OF PRIESTS, LEVITES AND ISRAELITES. WHEN THE TIME CAME FOR THE MISHMAR TO GO UP [TO JERUSALEM] THE PRIESTS AND LEVITES WENT UP TO JERUSALEM AND THE ISRAELITES OF THAT MISHMAR ASSEMBLED IN THEIR CITIES AND READ [FROM THE LAW] THE STORY OF CREATION.[12] THE MEN OF THE [ISRAELITE] MA'AMAD FASTED ON FOUR DAYS OF THAT WEEK, FROM MONDAY TO THURSDAY; THEY DID NOT FAST ON FRIDAY OUT OF RESPECT FOR THE SABBATH NOR ON SUNDAY IN ORDER NOT TO CHANGE OVER [WITHOUT A BREAK] FROM THE REST AND DELIGHT [OF THE SABBATH] TO WEARINESS AND FASTING AND SO [PERHAPS] DIE.

ON SUNDAY [THEY READ],[13] IN THE BEGINNING, AND, LET THERE BE A FIRMAMENT; ON MONDAY,[14] LET THERE BE A FIRMAMENT, AND, LET THE WATERS BE GATHERED TOGETHER; ON TUESDAY,[15] LET THE WATERS BE GATHERED TOGETHER, AND, LET THERE BE LIGHTS; ON WEDNESDAY,[16] LET THERE BE LIGHTS, AND, LET THE WATERS SWARM; ON THURSDAY,[17] LET THE WATERS SWARM, AND, LET THE EARTH BRING FORTH; ON FRIDAY,[18] LET THE EARTH BRING FORTH, AND, AND THE HEAVENS [AND THE EARTH] WERE FINISHED.

TWO PERSONS READ BETWEEN THEM A LONG SECTION[19] AND ONE A SHORT SECTION. AT SHAHARITH, MUSAF, AND MINHAH THEY ASSEMBLED AND READ [THE REQUISITE] SECTION BY HEART, IN THE SAME WAY AS PEOPLE RECITE THE SHEMA'. THEY DID NOT ASSEMBLE AT MINHAH ON FRIDAY OUT OF RESPECT FOR THE SABBATH.

ON ANY DAY WHEN HALLEL[20] WAS RECITED THERE WAS NO MA'AMAD [SERVICE][21] AT SHAHARITH;[22] [ON THE DAY WHEN] A MUSAF-OFFERING [WAS BROUGHT] THERE WAS NONE. AT NE'ILAH, [ON THE DAY OBSERVED AS] THE WOOD-FESTIVAL[23] THERE WAS NONE AT MINHAH;[24] THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. AKIBA. BEN 'AZZAI SAID TO HIM: THUS DID R. JOSHUA LEARN: [ON THE DAY WHEN] A MUSAF-OFFERING [WAS BROUGHT] THERE WAS NONE AT MINHAH; [ON THE DAY OBSERVED AS] THE WOOD-FESTIVAL THERE WAS NONE AT THE CLOSING OF THE GATES. THEREUPON R. AKIBA RETRACTED AND LEARNT LIKE BEN 'AZZAI.

NINE TIMES IN THE YEAR [WAS OBSERVED] THE WOOD-FESTIVAL OF THE PRIESTS AND THE PEOPLE; ON THE FIRST OF NISAN THE FAMILY OF ARAH[25] OF THE TRIBE OF JUDAH BROUGHT THE OFFERING OF WOOD; ON THE TWENTIETH OF TAMMUZ THE FAMILY OF DAVID OF THE TRIBE OF JUDAH;[26] ON THE FIFTH OF AB THE FAMILY OF PAROSH[27] OF THE TRIBE OF JUDAH; ON THE SEVENTH OF THE SAME MONTH, THE FAMILY OF JONADAB OF THE RECHABITES;[28] ON THE TENTH OF THE SAME MONTH THE FAMILY OF SENAAH OF THE TRIBE OF BENJAMIN;[29] ON THE FIFTEENTH OF THE SAME MONTH THE FAMILY OF ZATTU[30] OF THE TRIBE OF JUDAH, AND WITH THEM WERE THE PRIESTS AND LEVITES AND ALL THOSE WHO WERE NOT CERTAIN OF THEIR TRIBE AND THE BENE GONBE 'ALI AND THE BENE KOZE KEZI'OTH;[31] ON THE TWENTIETH OF THE SAME MONTH THE FAMILY OF PAHATH MOAB[32] OF THE TRIBE OF JUDAH; ON THE TWENTIETH OF ELUL THE FAMILY OF ADIN[33] OF THE TRIBE OF JUDAH; ON THE FIRST OF TEBETH THE FAMILY OF PAROSH A SECOND TIME; ON THE FIRST OF TEBETH THERE WAS NO MA'AMAD FOR THEREON THERE WAS HALLEL, MUSAF-OFFERING[34] AND THE WOOD-FESTIVAL.

FIVE MISFORTUNES BEFELL OUR FATHERS ON THE SEVENTEENTH OF TAMMUZ AND FIVE ON THE NINTH OF AB. ON THE SEVENTEENTH OF TAMMUZ

---

(1) A place in the vicinity of the city of Mahuza. v. Obermeyer, pp. 177-8.

(2) Hence they cannot be trusted to leave over the Hallel until they had eaten and drunk.

(3) Cf. infra 27a.

(4) Morning Service.

(5) Additional Service.

(6) Afternoon Service.

(7) V. Glos. [I.e. at the service held at the end of the day about the time of the closing of the gates of the Temple. This service is now represented by the Ne'ilah service on the Day of Atonement.]

(8) V. Gemara.

(9) Num. XXVIII, 2.

(10) Samuel and David. Cf. supra 27a.

(11) Twenty-four divisions of lay people as well as of priests and levites, v. supra 27b.

(12) Gen. I.

(13) Gen. I, 1-8. Three were the minimum number of verses each person was permitted to read. As three persons (Priest, Levite and Israelite) read from the Law, there were not sufficient verses in any one section for the reading, and therefore two sections had to be coupled. Even then on some days (e.g., Sunday and Monday) a verse had to be repeated because the two sections did not have the minimum number of nine verses.

(14) Ibid. 6-13.

(15) Ibid. 9-19.
(16) Ibid. 14-23.
(17) Ibid. 20-31.
(18) Ibid. 24-31 and II, 1-3.
(19) Containing at least six verses.
(20) The name for the collection of Psalms, CXIII-CXVIII recited on festivals or semi-festivals like Hanukkah. [Here the reference is to Hanukkah, when Hallel is read but not Musaf.]
(21) I.e., the reading of the section from Genesis.
(22) So as not to take up too much time. The same reason applies for the absence of a Ma'amad on days when there is Musaf and wood-offering.
(23) V. infra 28a and cf. Neh. X, 35; XIII, 31. V. also Rabbinowitz, Mishnah Megillah pp. 44-45.
(24) [Provided the celebrants of the wood-festival were the members of the particular division on service, Me'iri.]
(25) Neh. VII, 10.
(26) [There is no record of this family in Neh. VII].
(27) Neh. VII, 8.
(28) II Kings X, 15.
(29) Neh. VII, 38.
(30) Neh. VII, 13.
(31) V. Gemara.
(32) Neh. VII, 11.
(33) Neh. VII, 20.
(34) Since it was New Moon and Hanukah.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 26b

THE TABLES [OF THE LAW] WERE SHATTERED, THE DAILY OFFERING WAS DISCONTINUED, A BREACH WAS MADE IN THE CITY AND APOSTOMOS[1] BURNED THE SCROLL OF THE LAW AND PLACED AN IDOL IN THE TEMPLE. ON THE NINTH OF AB IT WAS DECREED THAT OUR FATHERS SHOULD NOT ENTER THE [PROMISED] LAND, THE TEMPLE WAS DESTROYED THE FIRST AND SECOND TIME, BETHAR WAS CAPTURED AND THE CITY [JERUSALEM] WAS PLOUGHED UP.

WITH THE BEGINNING OF AB REJOICINGS ARE CURTAILED. DURING THE WEEK IN WHICH THE NINTH OF AB FALLS IT IS FORBIDDEN TO CUT THE HAIR AND TO WASH CLOTHES BUT ON THE THURSDAY IT IS PERMISSIBLE IN HONOUR OF THE SABBATH. ON THE EVE OF THE NINTH OF AB ONE MAY NOT PARTAKE OF A MEAL OF TWO COURSES NOR EAT MEAT NOR DRINK WINE. RABBAN SIMEON B. GAMALIEL SAID: ONE SHOULD MAKE A DIFFERENCE IN HIS DIET. R. JUDAH MAKES IT OBLIGATORY TO TURN THE BED OVER;[2] THE SAGES, HOWEVER, DID NOT AGREE WITH HIM IN THIS.

R. SIMEON B. GAMALIEL SAID: THERE NEVER WERE IN ISRAEL GREATER DAYS OF JOY THAN THE FIFTEENTH OF AB AND THE DAY OF ATONEMENT. ON THESE DAYS THE DAUGHTERS OF JERUSALEM[3] USED TO WALK OUT IN WHITE GARMENTS WHICH THEY BORROWED IN ORDER NOT TO PUT TO SHAME ANY ONE WHO HAD NONE. ALL THESE GARMENTS REQUIRED RITUAL DIPPING.[4] THE DAUGHTERS OF JERUSALEM CAME OUT AND DANCED IN THE VINEYARDS EXCLAIMING AT THE SAME TIME, YOUNG MAN, LIFT UP THINE EYES AND SEE WHAT THOU CHOOSEST FOR THYSELF. DO NOT SET THINE EYES ON BEAUTY BUT SET THINE EYES ON [GOOD] FAMILY. GRACE IS DECEITFUL, AND BEAUTY IS VAIN; BUT A WOMAN THAT FEARETH THE LORD, SHE SHALL BE PRAISED.[5] AND IT FURTHER SAYS,[6] GIVE HER OF THE FRUIT OF HER HANDS; AND LET HER WORKS PRAISE HER IN THE GATES.

LIKEWISE IT SAYS, GO FORTH, O YE DAUGHTERS OF ZION, AND GAZE UPON KING SOLOMON, EVEN UPON THE CROWN WHEREWITH HIS MOTHER HATH CROWNED HIM IN THE DAY OF HIS ESPOUSALS, AND IN THE DAY OF THE GLADNESS OF HIS HEART.[7] ‘ON THE DAY OF HIS ESPOUSALS:’ THIS REFERS TO THE DAY OF THE GIVING OF THE LAW. ‘AND IN THE DAY OF THE GLADNESS OF HIS HEART:’ THIS REFERS TO THE BUILDING OF THE TEMPLE; MAY IT BE REBUILT SPEEDILY IN OUR DAYS.

GEMARA. ON THREE OCCASIONS OF THE YEAR DO THE PRIESTS LIFT UP THEIR HANDS [TO BLESS THE PEOPLE]. Is there then MUSAF ON FAST-DAYS and ON MA'AMADOTH? — There is a clause wanting [in our Mishnah]. It should read thus: ‘on three occasions do the priests lift up their hands [to bless the people] at all services, and on one of these[8] occasions four times during the day, at the Shaharith [service], at Musaf, at Minhah and at the closing of the Gates. The following are the three occasions, Fast-days, Ma'amadoth and the Day of Atonement’. R. Nahman said in the name of Rabbah b. Abbuha: This is the opinion of R. Meir. The Sages, however, say: At Shaharith and at Musaf there is ‘lifting up of hands’ but at Minhah or at Ne'ilah there is no ‘lifting up of hands’. Who are meant by ‘the Sages’? — It is R. Judah. For it has been taught: At all [services, namely] at Shaharith, at Musaf, at Minhah and at Ne'ilah there is ‘lifting up of hands’; this is the opinion of R. Meir. R. Judah says: At Shaharith and at Musaf there is ‘lifting up of hands’ but at Minhah or Ne'ilah there is no ‘lifting up of hands’. R. Jose says: At Ne'ilah there is ‘lifting up of hands’ but at Minhah there is no ‘lifting up of hands’. Wherein do they differ? R. Meir holds the view that the reason why on ordinary days the priests do not ‘lift up their hands’ at Minhah is because of the likelihood of intoxication,[9] but on the days [cited above] the question of Intoxication does not arise.[10] R. Judah takes the view that as drunkenness during [the time of] Shaharith and Musaf on ordinary days is not usual the Rabbis did not prohibit the lifting up of hands [at these services on fast-days also], whereas at [the time of] Minhah and Ne'ilah since on ordinary days drunkenness is quite a likely occurrence the Rabbis prohibited the ‘lifting up of hands’ [at these services even on fast-days]. R. Jose holds the view that the Rabbis confined their restriction to the Minhah only seeing that it is read every day, but they did not to the Ne'ilah which is not read every day.[11]

R. Judah said in the name of Rab: The halachah is in accordance with the view of R. Meir. R. Johanan said: The people followed the view of R. Meir. And Raba said: The established custom is in accordance with the view of R. Meir. On the view that the halachah is according to R. Meir we teach it [explicitly] in the school sessions; but if we say that the established custom is according to R. Meir, then we should not teach it explicitly in the school sessions but we may give our decisions in accordance with it; if, however, we say that the people followed the view of R. Meir then we do not definitely give a decision in accordance with it, but should one have acted on it we do not declare his action null. But R. Nahman said: The halachah is according to R. Jose. And the halachah is [indeed] according to R. Jose. But nowadays why do the priests ‘lift up their hands’ [to bless the people] on fast-days at Minhah? — As they lift up their hands [in blessing] very near sunset[12] it is as if this was the Ne'ilah [service].

It is, however, generally agreed that an intoxicated [priest] may not lift up his hands [in benediction]. Whence is this view adduced? — R. Joshua b. Levi said in the name of Bar Kappara: Why does the section dealing with [the blessing by] the priest follow immediately after the portion of the Nazirite?[13] In order to teach you that, just as the Nazirite is forbidden to drink wine, so too is the priest about to recite the priestly benediction. The father of R. Zera, and some say Oshaiah b. Zabbda, demurred to this: [If that is so], then just as the Nazirite is forbidden to eat the shells[14] [of grapes], so too should the priest about to recite the priestly benediction be forbidden [to eat] the ‘shells of grapes’.-R. Isaac replied: Scripture says, To minister unto Him and to bless in His name;[15] [from this is to be inferred] that just as the officiating priest may eat the shells [of grapes][16] so too may the priest about to recite the priestly benediction.

---

(1) V. J.E. s.v.

(2) And thus sleep and sit on the ground as a sign of mourning, v. infra.

(3) [Var. lec.: ‘the sons of Israel’. That the same, however, applies to the daughters is clear from the Baraitha cited in the Gemara infra 31a.]

(4) In case they had been worn by a woman in a state of uncleanness and so became unclean. Cf. Lev. XV, 19ff.

(5) Prov. XXXI, 30.

(6) [Mishnah ed. Lowe reads: ‘וכך הוא אומר, and thus he said’, the quotation which follows being the answer of the young man, v. Malter.]

(7) Cant. III, 11. The Song of Songs has ever been regarded by the Rabbis as an allegory depicting the love of Israel for God.

(8) On the Day of Atonement.

(9) The priest may likely be intoxicated. A priest in a state of intoxication may not officiate in the Temple. Cf, Lev. X, 9.

(10) I.e., on fast days. On Ma'amadoth and the Day of Atonement. The men of the Ma'amad fasted four fasts. Cf. infra 27b.

(11) It is read only on all fast-days (Rashi). [Others: only on the Day of Atonement, v. R. Hananel and Me'iri.]

(12) [On fast-days Minhah was recited close to sunset; v. supra 12b. R. Gershom refers this only to ‘the Day of Atonement.]

(13) Num. VI, 1-21; the priestly section ibid. 22-27.

(14) Or ‘kernels’.

(15) Deut. X, 8.

(16) Scripture forbids expressly the drinking of wine only. Cf. Lev. X, 9.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 27a

[If so, why not also argue]: Just as an officiating priest may not be blemished so too may a priest reciting the benediction not be blemished. — Surely he is compared to the Nazirite.[1] Why do you choose to make your analogies more lenient [for the priest]? Why not make your analogies more strict [for him]![2] — These analogies are but supports for a Rabbinical law and they must therefore incline towards the side of leniency.

THE FOLLOWING ARE [THE DETAILS CONCERNING] THE MA'AMADOTH. BECAUSE IT IS SAID, COMMAND THE CHILDREN OF ISRAEL etc. What does [this Mishnah] mean to say? — This is what it means to say: THE FOLLOWING ARE [THE DETAILS CONCERNING] THE MA'AMADOTH. AND WHY WERE THE MA'AMADOTH INSTITUTED? BECAUSE IT IS SAID, COMMAND THE CHILDREN OF ISRAEL AND SAY UNTO THEM: MY FOOD WHICH IS PRESENTED UNTO ME. HOW CAN A MAN'S OFFERING BE BROUGHT [ON THE ALTAR] AND HE IS NOT PRESENT? [THEREFORE] THE EARLIER PROPHETS INSTITUTED TWENTY-FOUR MISHMAROTH; EACH MISHMAR WAS REPRESENTED [AT THE TEMPLE] IN JERUSALEM BY ITS OWN MA'AMAD OF PRIESTS, LEVITES AND ISRAELITES. WHEN THE TIME CAME FOR THE MISHMAR TO GO UP, THE PRIESTS AND LEVITES WENT UP TO JERUSALEM.

Our Rabbis have taught: ‘There were twenty-four Mishmaroth in Palestine and twelve in Jericho’. [You say] there were [also] twelve in Jericho, then there were actually far more [than twenty-four]! — It must therefore be understood to mean that twelve of them [of the twenty-four] were in Jericho. When the time came for the Mishmar to go up [to Jerusalem] one half of the Mishmar went up from [their homes] in Palestine to Jerusalem and the other half went up to Jericho in order to provide their brethren in Jerusalem with water and food.

Rab Judah said in the name of Samuel: The absence of the Priests, Levites and Israelites is a bar to [the offering of] the sacrifices. A Tanna taught: R. Simeon b. Eleazar said: The absence of Priests, Levites and musical instruments is a bar to [the offering of] the sacrifices. On what question does their dispute turn? — The one [Rab Judah] holds the view that the principal music of the Temple was vocal,[3] and the other that it was with an instrument.

R. Hama b. Guria said in the name of Rab: Moses instituted for Israel eight Mishmaroth, four from [the family of] Eleazar and four from [the family of] Ithamar; Samuel came and increased them to sixteen; David came and increased them to twenty-four, as it is said, In the fortieth year of the reign of David they were sought for, and there were found among them mighty men of valour at Jazer of Gilead.[4]

An objection was raised against this: Moses instituted for Israel eight Mishmaroth, four from [the family of] Eleazar and four [from the family of] Ithamar; David and Samuel came and increased them to twenty-four, as it is said, Whom David and Samuel the seer did ordain in their set office![5] — This is what the passage means: From their institution by David and Samuel the Ramathite they were increased to twenty-four. Another [Baraitha] taught: Moses instituted for Israel sixteen Mishmaroth, eight from [the family of] Eleazar and eight from [the family of] Ithamar; but when the descendants of Eleazar increased in number above those of Ithamar, [the Mishmaroth] were again divided and they were increased to twenty-four, as it is said, And there were more chief men found of the sons of Eleazar than of the sons of Ithamar; and thus were they divided: of the sons of Eleazar there were sixteen, heads of fathers' houses, and of the sons of Ithamar, according to their fathers' houses, eight.[6] And it says further, One father's house being taken for Eleazar, and proportionately for Ithamar.[7] What is the force of the additional verse cited? Should you say, that just as the descendants of Eleazar increased in number, so also those of Ithamar increased from their original four into eight. Then come and hear: 'One father's house being taken for Eleazar, and proportionately [we-ahuz ahuz] for Ithamar.' This [Baraitha] will then refute the opinion of R. Hama b. Guria[8] — R. Hama b. Guria will answer by saying: Tannaim are divided on the question and I accept the opinion of the Tanna [who says that Moses instituted only] eight Mishmaroth.

Our Rabbis have taught: Four Mishmaroth returned from the [Babylonian] exile, and they were: Jedaiah, Harim, Pashhur and Immer.[9] The prophets amongst them

---

(1) And a blemished person may be a Nazirite.

(2) [By comparing the priest reciting the blessing to a Nazirite in respect of the eating of the shells and to an officiating priest in respect of a blemish.]

(3) Hence so long as there were Levites present to sing, the absence of musical instruments does not invalidate the sacrifices.

(4) I Chron. XXVI, 31.

(5) Ibid. IX, 22.

(6) I Chron. XXIV, 4.

(7) Ibid. XXIV, 6.

(8) Who said that Moses instituted only eight Mishmaroth, four each.

(9) V. Ezra II, 36-39.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 27b

arose and divided them and increased them to twenty-four. [Lots were prepared] and mixed and placed in an urn. First came Jedaiah and took his portion and the portions of his colleagues,[1] six [in all]; then came Harim and took his portion and the portions of his colleagues six [in all]; and likewise Pashhur; and likewise Immer. And the prophets amongst them stipulated that even if Jehoiarib, who was the chief of the Mishmaroth should go up to [Jerusalem][2] Jedaiah should not be ousted from his place, but Jedaiah[3] should have precedence and Jehoiarib should be subordinate [to him].[4]

AND THE ISRAELITES OF THE MISHMAR ASSEMBLED IN THEIR CITIES AND READ [FROM THE LAW] THE STORY OF CREATION, On what is this based? — R. Jacob b. Aha said in the name of R. Assi: Were it not for the Ma'amadoth heaven and earth could not endure, as it is said, And he said: O Lord God, whereby shall I know that I shall inherit it?[5] Abraham said: Master of the Universe, should Israel sin before Thee wilt Thou do unto them [as Thou hast done] to the generation of the Flood[6] and to the generation of the Dispersion?[7] [God] replied to him: No. He then said to him: Master of the Universe, 'Let me know whereby I shall inherit it'. [God] answered: Take Me a heifer of three years old, and a she-goat of three years old etc.[8] Abraham then continued: Master of the Universe! This holds good whilst the Temple remains in being, but when the Temple will no longer be what will become of them? [God] replied: I have already long ago provided for them in the Torah the order of sacrifices and whenever they read it I will deem it as if they had offered them before me and I will grant them pardon for all their iniquities.

Our Rabbis have taught: The men of the Mishmar[9] prayed over the sacrifice of their brethren that it may be favourably accepted, whilst the men of the Ma'amad assembled in their synagogues and observed four fasts, on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of that week. On Monday [they fasted] for those that go down to the sea; on Tuesday for those who travel in the deserts; on Wednesday that croup may not attack children; on Thursday for pregnant women and nursing mothers, that pregnant women should not suffer a miscarriage, and that nursing mothers may be able to nurse their infants; on Friday they did not fast out of respect for the Sabbath; and certainly not on the Sabbath. Why did they not fast on Sunday? — R. Johanan said: Because of the Nazareans.[10] R. Samuel b. Nahmani said: Because it is the third day after the creation of Man.[11] Resh Lakish said: Because of the additional soul. For Resh Lakish said: Man is given an additional soul on Friday, but at the termination of the Sabbath it is taken away from him, as it is said, He ceased from work and rested[12] [shabat wa-yinafash] that is to say, Once the rest had ceased, woe! that soul is gone.

ON SUNDAY [THEY READ], 'IN THE BEGINNING', AND, 'LET THERE BE A FIRMAMENT'. It has been taught: Two persons read [the section] 'In the beginning', and one 'Let there be a firmament'. I can understand one person reading, 'Let there be a firmament', as it contains three verses, but how can two persons read, 'In the beginning', seeing that it contains only five verses? Has it not been taught: He who reads the Law should not read less than three verses? — Rab answered: [The third verse] is repeated. Samuel said: It is divided into two. Rab who says that the third verse is repeated why does he not agree that it is divided? — He is of the opinion that any verse which Moses did not divide, we may not divide. And as for Samuel who says that it is divided, may it then be divided? Did not R. Hanina, the Bible teacher, declare, I endeavoured hard to get permission from R. Hanina the elder to divide a verse into two and he would permit me only in the case of teaching children, because it is merely for teaching practice! — To this Samuel can reply: There [in the case of school children] the reason why [R. Hanina permitted the verse to be divided] was because it is not possible [for them to read the whole verse at one stretch], here too it is not possible. And as for Samuel who said, 'It is divided', why should he not agree that it be repeated? — In order to prevent any misunderstanding on the part of those who may enter or leave [the synagogue].[13]

An objection was raised: [A section of] six verses is read by two, but [a section of] five verses by one; should, however, the first person have read three verses then the second person reads the [remaining] two and one verse from the following section; some say, he reads three verses [from the following section] because we do not read from a [new] section less than three verses. Now in accordance with the view of him who says that it should be repeated,let then [the third verse of the first section] be repeated; and in accordance with the view of him who says that it should be divided, let the verse be divided? — There the position is different

---

(1) I.e., those of his sub-divisions.

(2) In the First Temple, I Chron. XXIV, 7.

(3) [Who in the First Temple was second, v. I Chron. ibid.]

(4) [Because he refused to return at the time with Ezra, v. n. 4.]

(5) Gen. XV, 8.

(6) Cf. Gen. VI, 9ff.

(7) Gen. XI, 1-9.

(8) Gen. XV, 9.

(9) The lay representatives at the Temple sacrifices (Rashi). [They are loosely designated the Men of the Mishmar because they were attached to a priestly division (v. Me'iri and Malter, a.l.).]

(10) I.e., Christians, who may take umbrage at the Jews turning their Sabbath into a fast-day. V. Herford, Christianity in Talmud and Midrash, pp. 171-3.

(11) Man was created on the sixth day (Friday). Cf. Gen. I, 27. The third day after birth, like the third day after circumcision, was considered a critical period; cf. Gen. XXXIV, 25.

(12) Ex. XXXI, 17. The word שבת R. Lakish renders as ‘ceasing’ to observe the Sabbath and the word וינפש he divides into two, וי ‘woe’ and נפש ‘soul’.

(13) Those coming in when the second person reads verse three might conclude that the first person read two verses only; similarly those leaving the synagogue when the first person reads verse three might conclude that the second person will read two verses only.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 28a

because he has plenty of verses at his disposal.[1]

TWO PERSONS READ A LONG SECTION . . . AT SHAHARITH, MUSAF AND MINHAH THEY READ [THE REQUISITE] SECTION BY HEART etc. The question was raised: How is this Mishnah to be understood? [Does it mean] that at Shaharith and Musaf [the section] is read from a Scroll of the Law and at Minhah by heart in the same manner as people recite the Shema’? Or, it means this: At Shaharith it is read from a Scroll of the Law and at Musaf and Minhah by heart in the same manner as people recite the Shema’? — Come and hear: At Shaharith and Musaf they assemble in the synagogue and read [from the Scroll of the Law] in the same way as all the year round, but at Minhah an individual reads it by heart. — R. Jose asked: May then an individual read by heart in public words of the Law? It must surely be that all assemble [in the synagogue] and read it by heart in the same way as the Shema’ is recited.

ON ANY DAY WHEN HALLEL WAS RECITED THERE WAS NO MA'AMAD etc. What is the difference between the one and the other?[2] — The one [Minhah] is a Biblical injunction and the other [Ne'ilah] is a rabbinic institution.[3]

THE WOOD-FESTIVAL OF THE PRIESTS AND OF THE PEOPLE etc. Our Rabbis have taught: Why was it necessary [to fix special days for] the Wood-Festival of the Priests and of the People? It is reported that when the exiles returned [to Palestine] they found no wood in the [Temple wood] chamber and the families here mentioned came forward and offered wood of their own. The prophets amongst them thereupon made it a condition that even should at any time the chamber be full of wood they should still continue their offerings, as it is said, And we cast lots the priests, the Levites and the people, for the wood-offering, to bring it into the house of our God, according to our fathers’ houses at times appointed, year by year, to burn upon the altar of the Lord our God, as it is written in the Law.[4]

AND WITH THEM WERE THE PRIESTS AND THE LEVITES AND ALL THOSE WHO etc. Our Rabbis have taught: What is the incident connected with the Bene Gonbe ‘Ali and the Bene

Koze Kezi'oth? It is reported that once the ruling power made a decree that Israel should not bring wood to the altar, nor bring their first-fruit to Jerusalem, and placed guards on the roads as Jeroboam the son of Nebat had done to prevent Israel from going on pilgrimage. What did the pious and sin-fearing men of that generation do? They took the baskets of the first-fruit and covered them with dried figs and carried them with a pestle on their shoulders, and when they reached the guards they were asked: Whither are you going? They replied: With the pestle on our shoulders we are going to make two cakes of pressed figs in the mortar we have yonder. When they had gone away from the guard they decorated the baskets and brought them to Jerusalem.[5] It has been taught: The family of Salami Netofah acted in a similar way.

Our Rabbis have taught: What is the incident connected with the family of Salami Netofah? It is reported that once the ruling power decreed that Israel should not bring wood to the altar and they placed guards on the roads as Jeroboam the son of Nebat had done to prevent Israel from going on pilgrimage. What did the God-fearing men of that generation do? They took the logs of wood and made them into ladders which they carried on their shoulders and proceeded on their journey; when they reached the guards they were asked: Whither are you going? They replied: [We are going] with the ladders on our shoulders to take down young pigeons from the dovecot at a place further on. When they had gone away from the guards they dismantled [the ladders] and brought them to Jerusalem.[6] And it is of them and of men like them that Scripture says, The memory of the righteous shall be for a blessing;[7] and of Jeroboam and his companions the verse adds, But the name of the wicked shall rot.

ON THE TWENTIETH OF THE SAME MONTH THE FAMILY OF PAHATH MOAB: A Tanna taught: The sons of Pahath Moab b. Judah are identical with the sons of David the son of Judah; this is the opinion of R. Meir. R. Judah says: They are identical with the sons of Joab b. Zeraiah.

ON THE TWENTIETH OF ELUL THE FAMILY OF ADIN THE SON OF JUDAH: Our Rabbis have taught: The sons of Adin the son of Judah are the same as the sons of David the son of Judah; this is the opinion of R. Judah. R. Jose says: They are the same as the sons of Joab the son of Zeraiah.

ON THE FIRST OF TEBETH THE FAMILY OF PAROSH A SECOND TIME etc. With whose view does the Mishnah agree? It is neither with the view of R. Meir nor with that of R. Judah, nor with that of R. Jose. If it were in agreement with the view of R. Meir then [the Mishnah] would read, ‘the sons of David b. Judah a second time’; should it be with that of R. Judah then it should read ‘the sons of David b. Judah a second time’; if with that of R. Jose then it should read ‘the sons of Joab b. Zeraiah a second time’! — [The Mishnah actually] agrees with the view of R. Jose, but there are two Tannaim in dispute as to what R. Jose's view was.[8]

ON THE FIRST OF TEBETH THERE WAS NO MA'AMAD etc. Mar Kashisha the son of R. Hisda asked R. Ashi

---

(1) But here in the case of the Ma'amadoth the Scriptural verses are limited in number. For further notes on this passage v. Meg., Sonc. ed. p. 133f.

(2) Why on the day of the Wood-Festival is no Ma'amad held at Ne'ilah but takes place as usual at Minhah?

(3) Minhah is of Biblical origin its institution being attributed to the Patriarch Isaac (cf. Ber. 26b), hence the Wood-Festival cannot supersede the Ma'amad in connection with it, whereas Ne'ilah is a rabbinic institution and therefore the festive day can supersede it. (So Rashi). V. however, Tosaf. ad loc. for an alternative interpretation of the passage.

(4) Neh. X, 35.

(5) Cf. Bik. III, 3.

(6) To be used as fuel for the altar.
(7) Prov. X, 7.
(8) On one view (represented under Mishnah) R. Jose identifies the family of Adin with that of David; on the other (in the Baraitha) with that of Joab.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 28b

: Why is Hallel different that it suspends its own Ma'amad[1] while Musaf does not supersede its own Ma'amad?[2] — R. Ashi replied: If [Musaf] suspends the Ma'amad of a service of which it is not part, [i.e., Minhah] all the more should it suspend its own Ma'amad? — R. Kashisha then said: This is what I mean to say: Let it [Musaf] suspend its own Ma'amad only![3] — R. Ashi replied: There is R. Jose who holds the same view as you. For it has been taught: R. Jose says: Any day on which there is Musaf there is also a Ma'amad. Now which Ma'amad [is here referred to]? Shall I say the Ma'amad of the Shaharith? [Surely] the first Tanna [of our Mishnah] also says likewise! Is it the Ma'amad of the Musaf? Does not Musaf suspend even its own Ma'amad! Is it the Ma'amad of Minhah? But this is already suspended because of the Wood-Festival![4] It must then surely be the Ma'amad of Ne'ilah. Hence the conclusion therefrom that Musaf suspends its own Ma'amad but it does not suspend the Ma'amad of any other service. Hence it is proved.

Let [the Mishnah] also state that there was no Ma'amad on the first of Nisan, because there was Hallel,[5] and Musaf offering and the wood-offering? — Raba replied: This proves that the recital of Hallel on New Moon is not a Biblical injunction.[6] For R. Johanan said in the name of R. Simeon b. Jehozadak, On eighteen days in the year the individual [worshipper] completes the Hallel[7] and they are, the eight days of the Feast of Tabernacles, the eight days of Hanukkah, the first day of Passover,[8] and the Festival of Pentecost; but in the Diaspora[9] [the Hallel is completed] on twenty-one days, and they are, the nine days of the Feast of Tabernacles, the eight days of Hanukkah, the first two days of Passover and the two days of Pentecost.

Rab once came to Babylonia[10] and he noticed that they recited the Hallel[11] on New Moon; at first he thought of stopping them but when he saw that they omitted parts of it he remarked: It is clearly evident that it is an old ancestral custom with them. A Tanna taught: The individual should not deliberately begin to recite [the Hallel][12] but once he has begun he should complete it.

FIVE MISFORTUNES BEFELL OUR FATHERS ON THE SEVENTEENTH OF TAMMUZ etc. Whence is it known that the Tables [of the Law] were shattered [on the seventeenth of Tammuz]? For it has been taught:[13] On the sixth of the month [of Sivan] the Ten Commandments were given to Israel; R. Jose says: On the seventh of the month. He who says that they were given on the sixth takes the view that on the sixth they were given and on the seventh Moses ascended the mount. And he who says that they were given on the seventh holds that they were given on the seventh and on the seventh Moses ascended the mount. For it is written, And the seventh day he called unto Moses,[14] and it is further written, And Moses entered into the midst of the cloud, and went up into the mount; and Moses was in the mount forty days and forty nights.[15] The [remaining] twenty-four days of Sivan and the sixteen days of Tammuz make altogether forty. On the seventeenth of Tammuz he came down [from the mountain] and shattered the Tables, as it is written, And it came to pass as soon as he came nigh unto the camp, that he saw the calf . . . and he cast the tables out of his hands, and broke them beneath the mount.[16]

[THE DAILY OFFERING] WAS DISCONTINUED. This is a tradition.

A BREACH WAS MADE IN THE CITY. Did this then happen on the seventeenth? Is it not written, In the fourth month, in the ninth day of the month, the famine was sore in the city etc.,[17] and in the following verse it is written, Then a breach was made in the city etc.! — Raba said: This is no contradiction. The one refers to the First Temple and the other to the Second Temple. For it has been taught: In the First Temple the breach was made in the city on the ninth of Tammuz, but in the Second Temple on the seventeenth of Tammuz.

APOSTOMOS BURNED THE SCROLL OF THE LAW. This is a tradition.

AND PLACED AN IDOL IN THE TEMPLE. Whence do we know this? — For it is written, And from the time that the continual burnt-offering shall be taken away and the detestable thing that causeth appalment set up.[18] Was there then only one detestable thing? Is it not written, And upon the wing of detestable things shall be that which causeth appalment?[19] — Raba replied: There were two [idols] and one fell upon the other and broke its hand and upon it was found inscribed

---

(1) On the day when Hallel is recited is the corresponding Ma'amad prayer of the Shaharith eliminated.

(2) On the day when there is Musaf the Ma'amad of the Minhah is eliminated and not the one attached to the Musaf.

(3) And not also that of Minhah, having a similar effect as Hallel.

(4) [This is difficult to explain. Wilna Gaon omits the last two sentences and reads: Hence it must then surely be the Ma'amad of Minhah and Ne'ilah.]

(5) Being New Moon.

(6) As the Mishnah does not state this, it is to be inferred that in spite of the fact that the Hallel was recited on the first of Nisan the Ma'amad prayers were read as usual at the Shaharith. This proves that the recital of the Hallel on New Moon is but a custom that had sprung up and is not a Biblical institution, otherwise the Hallel would eliminate the Ma'amad.

(7) The complete Hallel consisted of Psalms CXIII-CXVIII; on the days when Hallel was not to be completed verses I-XI of Psalms CXV and CXVI were omitted.

(8) The Hallel was also completed on the Eve of Passover at the Passover sacrifices. Cf. Pes. V, 7.

(9) The next day was also observed as a festival.

(10) [Stands here for Sura, v. Meg., Sonc. ed. p. 135, n. 5.]

(11) The recitation of the Hallel on New Moon was one of the points of difference between the ritual of the Jews in Babylonia and Palestine.

(12) On the New Moon.

(13) Cf. Shab. 86a.

(14) Ex. XXIV, 16.

(15) Ibid. 18.

(16) Ex. XXXII, 19. Thus it is proved that Moses broke the Tables on the seventeenth of Tammuz.

(17) Jer. LII, 6-7.

(18) Dan. XII, 11.

(19) Ibid. IX, 27.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 29a

: You desired to destroy the Temple, but I have handed over your hand to Him.[1]

ON THE NINTH OF AB IT WAS DECREED THAT OUR FATHERS SHOULD NOT ENTER THE [PROMISED] LAND. Whence do we know this? For it is written, And it came to pass in the first month in the second year, on the first day of the month, that the tabernacle was reared up.[2] And [regarding this verse] a Master said: In the first year Moses built the Tabernacle, in the second year Moses erected the Tabernacle and sent out spies. Further it is written. And it came to pass in the second year, in the second month, on the twentieth day of the month, that the cloud was taken up from over the tabernacle of testimony.[3] And it is further written, And they set forward from the mount of the Lord three days’ journey,[4] and R. Hama b. Hanina explained this means that on that day they turned aside from after the Lord. And it is further written, And the mixed multitude that was among them fell a-lusting; and the children of Israel also wept on their part etc.[5] And it is further written, But a whole month etc.[6] That brings us up to the twenty-second of Sivan. And it is further written, And Miriam was shut up [without the camp] seven days.[7] That brings us up to the twenty-ninth of Sivan. And it is further written, Send thou men.[8] And it has been taught: Moses sent out spies on the twenty-ninth of Sivan. And it is further written, Add they returned from spying out the land at the end of forty days.[9] But is not this forty days less one?[10] — Abaye replied: Tammuz of that year was a full month [of thirty days],[11] for it is written, He hath called a solemn assembly against me to crush my young men.[12] And it is further written, And all the congregation lifted up their voice, and cried; and the people wept that night.[13] Rabbah said in the name of R. Johanan: That night was the night of the ninth of Ab. The Holy One, blessed be He, said to them: You have wept without cause, therefore I will set [this day] aside for a weeping throughout the generations to come.

[ON THE NINTH OF AB] THE TEMPLE WAS DESTROYED THE FIRST TIME. For it is written, Now in the fifth month, on the seventh day of the month, which was the nineteenth year of King Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, came Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard, a servant of the King of Babylon, unto Jerusalem. And he burnt the house of the Lord etc.[14] And it is further written, Now in the fifth month, in the tenth day of the month, which was the nineteenth year of King Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, came Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard, who stood before the king of Babylon into Jerusalem etc.[15] With reference to this it has been taught: We cannot say that this happened on the seventh, for it has already been stated that it was ‘in the tenth’; and we cannot say that this happened on the tenth, for it has already been stated that it was ‘on the seventh’. How then are these dates to be reconciled? On the seventh the heathens entered the Temple and ate therein and desecrated it throughout the seventh and eighth [of Ab] and towards dusk of the ninth they set fire to it and it continued to burn the whole of that day, as it is said, Woe unto us! for the day declineth, for the shadows of the evening are stretched out.[16] And this is what R. Johanan meant when he said: Had I been alive in that generation I should have fixed [the mourning] for the tenth, because the greater part of the Temple was burnt thereon. How will the Rabbis then [explain the contradiction]? — The beginning of any misfortune is of greater moment.

AND [THE TEMPLE WAS DESTROYED] THE SECOND TIME. Whence do we know this? For it has been taught: Good things come to pass on an auspicious day, and bad things on an unlucky day. It is reported that the day on which the First Temple was destroyed was the eve of the ninth of Ab, a Sunday, and in a year following the Sabbatical year, and the Mishmar of the family of Jehoiarib[17] were on duty and the Levites were chanting the Psalms standing on the Duchan.[18] And what Psalm did they recite? — [The Psalm] containing the verse, And He hath brought upon them their own iniquity; and will cut them off in their own evil.[19] And hardly had they time to say, ‘The Lord our God will cut them off’,[19] when the heathens came and captured them. The same thing too happened in the Second Temple.

BETHAR WAS CAPTURED. This is a tradition.

AND THE CITY WAS PLOUGHED UP. It has been taught: When Turnus Rufus the wicked destroyed[20] the Temple, R. Gamaliel was condemned to death. A high officer came and stood up in the Beth-Hamidrash and called out, ‘The Nose-man[21] is wanted, the Nose-man is wanted’. When R. Gamaliel heard this he hid himself. Thereupon the officer went up secretly to him and said, ‘If I save you will you bring me into the world to come?’ He replied: Yes. He then asked him, ‘Will you swear it unto me?’ And the latter took an oath. The officer then mounted the roof and threw himself down and died. Now there was a tradition [amongst the Romans] that when a decree is made and one of their own [leaders] dies, then that decree is annulled.[22] Thereupon a Voice from Heaven was heard declaring, This high officer is destined to enter into the world to come.

Our Rabbis have taught: When the First Temple was about to be destroyed bands upon bands of young priests with the keys of the Temple in their hands assembled and mounted the roof of the Temple and exclaimed, ‘Master of the Universe, as we did not have the merit to be faithful treasurers these keys are handed back into Thy keeping'. They then threw the keys up towards heaven. And there emerged the figure of a hand and received the keys from them. Whereupon they jumped and fell into the fire. It is in allusion to them that the prophet Isaiah laments: The burden concerning the Valley of Vision. What aileth thee now, that thou art wholly gone up to the house tops, thou that art full of uproar, a tumultuous city, a joyous town? Thy slain are not slain with the sword, nor dead in battle.[23] Of the Holy One, blessed be He, also it is said, Kir shouting, and crying at the mount.[24]

WITH THE BEGINNING OF AB REJOICINGS ARE CURTAILED. Rab Judah the son of R. Samuel b. Shilath said in the name of Rab: Just as with the beginning of Ab rejoicings are curtailed, so with the beginning of Adar rejoicings are increased.

---

(1) V. Tosaf. ad loc. [Aliter: based on MS.M., I desired to destroy Thy Temple but Thy hand cut it (my hand) off.]
(2) Ex. XL, 17.
(3) Num. X, 11.
(4) Ibid. 33.
(5) Ibid. XI, 4.
(6) Ibid. 20.
(7) Ibid. XII, 15.
(8) Ibid. XIII, 2.
(9) Ibid. 25.
(10) 29-30 Sivan; 1-29 Tammuz; 1-8 Ab (2 + 29 + 8 = 39).
(11) The additional day brings the figure up to forty.
(12) Lam. I, 15. The word מועד 'an appointed season', festival, is interpreted homiletically as a season appointed for mourning, as the Talmud goes on explaining.
(13) Num. XIV, 1.
(14) II Kings XXV, 8-9.
(15) Jer. LII, 12.
(16) Jer. VI, 4.
(17) V. supra p. 27b.
(18) The platform in the Temple on which the Levites stood when chanting the Psalms.
(19) Ps. XCIV, 23.
(20) Var lec.: 'ploughed'.
(21) Goldschmidt (a.l.) suggests that the Roman officer confused the Hebrew title Nasi with the Latin word, nasus, nose. Hence he called out, בעל החוטם = vir nasi.
(22) They regard the death as a punishment for the evil decree (Rashi).
(23) Isa. XXII, 1-2.
(24) Ibid. 5. קיר is interpreted as , God (Malter)

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 29b

R. Papa said: Therefore a Jew who has any litigation with Gentiles should avoid him in Ab because his luck is bad and should make himself available in Adar when his luck is good.

To give you a future and a hope:[1] Rab Judah the son of R. Samuel b. Shilath said in the name of Rab: By this is meant [an abundance of] palm trees and flaxen garments.[2]

And he said: See, the smell of my son is as the smell of a field which the Lord hath blessed:[3] Rab Judah the son of R. Samuel b. Shilath said in the name of Rab: As the smell of an apple orchard.

DURING THE WEEK IN WHICH THE NINTH OF AB FALLS IT IS FORBIDDEN TO CUT THE HAIR AND TO WASH CLOTHES. R. Nahman said: This restriction only applies to the washing of clothes for immediate wear but the washing of clothes for storing is permissible. R.

Shesheth said: It is forbidden to wash clothes even for storing. R. Shesheth said: A proof for this is that the fullers in the house of Rab[4] are then idle.

R. Hamnuna raised an objection: ON THURSDAY IT IS PERMISSIBLE IN HONOUR OF THE SABBATH.[5] What is permissible? Shall I say it is to wash clothes for immediate wear?[6] Where does the honour of the Sabbath enter into it? It must surely mean, washing clothes for storing [till Sabbath], and this is permissible only on Thursday but not during other days of the week! — In reality [the Mishnah refers] to the washing of clothes for immediate wear and it speaks of a case where a man has only one shirt. For R. Assi said in the name of R. Johanan: When a man has one shirt only he may wash it in the middle days of the Festival.[7] So too it has been stated: R. Benjamin said in the name of R. Eleazar: The restriction applies only to washing clothes for immediate wear but washing clothes for storing is permissible. An objection was raised against this: It is forbidden to wash clothes before the ninth of Ab even for storing them until after the ninth of Ab. And our [Babylonian] laundry work is like their [Palestinian] plain washing, [in respect of this prohibition],[8] but flaxen garments are not included in this prohibition against laundry work. This is indeed a refutation.

R. Isaac b. Giyuri sent a message in the name of R. Johanan: Although the Rabbis declared that flaxen garments are not included in the prohibition against laundry work, yet it is forbidden to wear them [newly laundered] in the week in which the Ninth of Ab falls. Rab said: This applies to the days before the Ninth of Ab but on the days after it it is permissible to wear them. Samuel said: Even on the days after the Ninth of Ab it is forbidden to wear them. An objection was raised against this: The week in which the Ninth of Ab falls it is not permissible to cut the hair or to wash clothes, but on Thursday it is permissible in honour of the Sabbath. How is this to be understood? Should it fall on Sunday it is permissible to wash clothes the whole of the week, [but should it fall] on Monday or Tuesday or Wednesday or Thursday, before it it is not permissible, but after it, it is permissible; [should it fall] on Friday it is permissible to wash clothes on Thursday in honour of the Sabbath; if however he has not washed them on the Thursday it is permissible to wash them on the Friday from the hour of Minhah onwards. (Abaye, and some say, R. Aha b. Jacob expressed his strongest disapproval[9] of any one who acted so.) Should [the Ninth of Ab] fall on Monday or on Thursday three people read the Law, and [of these the last] one also reads the prophetical lesson; but [should it fall] on Tuesday or Wednesday one reads the Law and he also reads the prophetical lesson. R. Jose says: Invariably three persons read the Law and the last one of these also reads the prophetical lesson. [Will not this Baraitha be] a refutation of Samuel [who holds that it is not permissible to wash clothes, even on the days after the Ninth of Ab]? — Samuel will reply: Tannaim are divided on this point. For it has been taught: Should the Ninth of Ab fall on the Sabbath, and likewise if the eve of the Ninth of Ab falls on the Sabbath, one may eat and drink as much as he needs and he may load his table with as many viands as Solomon in his time did, but it is forbidden to cut the hair and to wash clothes, from the beginning of the month until after the fast; this is the opinion of R. Meir. R. Judah says: It is forbidden the whole month. R. Simeon b. Gamaliel says: It is forbidden only on that particular week. And elsewhere it has been taught: And mourning is observed from the beginning of the month until the fast; this is the opinion of R. Meir. R. Judah says: It is forbidden the whole month. R. Simeon b. Gamaliel says: It is forbidden only on that particular week.[10]

Said R. Johanan: All three authorities adduced their ruling from the same scriptural verse. For it is written, I will also cause all her mirth to cease, her feasts, her new moons, and her sabbaths.[11] The one who says, from the beginning of the month until the fast

---

(1) Jer. XXIX 11.

(2) Rab Judah points out that the blessings for the future promised by the prophet Jeremiah to the exiles in Babylonia are of a material kind.

(3) Gen. XXVII, 27.

(4) [דבי רב Aliter: of the school house.]
(5) Cf. supra 26b.
(6) On the same day — Thursday.
(7) Although washing is forbidden on these days. Cf. M.K. 14a, 18b.
(8) So that plain washing of clothes is permissible in Babylon for storing after the Ninth of Ab.
(9) Lit., ‘cursed’.
(10) Samuel has thus the authority of R. Judah and R. Simeon b. Gamaliel in forbidding the washing of clothes on the days following the Ninth of Ab.
(11) Hosea II, 13.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 30a

adduces his opinion from ‘her feasts’;[1] the one who says, it is forbidden the whole month, from ‘her new moons’;[2] and the one who says, it is forbidden the whole week, from ‘her sabbaths’.[3] Raba said: The halachah is according to R. Simeon b. Gamaliel. And Raba further said: The halachah is according to R. Meir. And both decisions are in favour of the more lenient practice, and both are needed [to be stated]. For had it only been stated that the halachah is according to R. Meir, I might have said that the restriction is in force from the beginning of the month, therefore it is also clearly stated that the halachah is according to R. Simeon b . Gamaliel; and had it only been stated that the halachah is according to R. Simeon b. Gamaliel, I would have said that the restriction continues even on the days after [the Ninth of Ab], therefore it is clearly stated that the halachah is according to R. Meir.[4]

ON THE EVE OF THE NINTH OF AB ONE MAY NOT PARTAKE OF A MEAL OF TWO COURSES etc. Rab Judah said: This restriction applies to any time after midday[5] but not to any time before midday. Rab Judah further said: It applies only to the concluding meal [before the fast] but not to any other meal. And both decisions are in favour of the more lenient practice, and both are needed to be stated. For had it [only] mentioned the concluding meal, I would have said that the restriction held good of a meal partaken even at any time before midday, therefore it is clearly stated, from midday onwards. And had it only mentioned from midday onwards I would have said, that the restriction held good of a meal even though it be not the concluding meal, therefore it is clearly stated that it must be the concluding meal. It has been taught according to the first statement and it has also been taught according to the second statement. It has been taught according to the second statement: One who has a meal on the eve of the Ninth of Ab if it is his intention to have another meal [later] he may eat meat and drink wine; but if not, he may not eat meat nor drink wine. It has also been taught according to the first statement: On the eve of the Ninth of Ab one may not partake of a meal of two courses, nor may he eat meat nor drink wine. R. Simeon b. Gamaliel says: He should make a difference [in his diet]. What constitutes a difference in diet? If one is in the habit of having two courses he should have one only; and if he usually dines in the company of ten persons, he should dine with five; if it is his usual practice to drink ten cups [of wine] he should drink five only.[6] These restrictions apply only to meals partaken from midday onwards, but not to meals partaken at any time before midday.

Another [Baraitha] taught: On the eve of the Ninth of Ab a man may not partake of a meal of two courses, he should not eat meat, nor drink wine; this is the opinion of R. Meir. But the Sages say: He should make a difference [in his diet] and restrict his consumption of meat and wine. How should one restrict? If he was in the habit of eating one pound of meat he should eat one half only, if it is his usual practice to drink one log of wine he should drink one half log only; but if he is not in the habit of partaking any of these things he may not have these at all. R. Simeon b. Gamaliel said: If it was his habit to eat radish or savoury after his meal he may do so if he wishes. Another [Baraitha] taught: At the meal intended to be the concluding one [prior to the fast of] the Ninth of Ab it is forbidden to eat meat or to drink wine or to bathe after the meal; at the meal which is not intended to be a concluding meal prior to the Ninth of Ab[7] it is permissible to eat meat and to drink wine but not to bathe. R. Ishmael b. Jose said in the name of his father: So long as it is permissible to eat[8] meat it is also permissible to bathe.

Our Rabbis have taught: All the restrictions that apply to the mourner hold equally good of the Ninth of Ab. Eating, drinking, bathing, anointing, the wearing of shoes and marital relations are forbidden thereon. It is also forbidden [thereon] to read the Law, the Prophets, and the Hagiographa or to study Mishnah, Talmud, Midrash, Halachoth, or Aggadoth;[9] he may, however, read such parts of Scripture which he does not usually read and study such parts of Mishnah which he usually does not study;[10] and he may also read Lamentations, Job and the sad parts of Jeremiah; and the school children are free from school for it is said, The precepts of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart.[11] R. Judah said: Even such parts of Scripture which he does not usually read he may not read, nor study parts of the Mishnah which he does not usually study, but he may read Job, Lamentations and the sad parts of Jeremiah; and the school children are free [from school] for it is said, ‘The precepts of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart’.

NOR EAT MEAT NOR DRINK WINE. A Tanna taught: But he may eat salted meat[12] and he may drink [new] wine from his vat.[13] For how long must meat remain in salt so as to render it permissible? For the length of time that peace-offering may be eaten.[14] How long is wine considered new? As long as it remains in its first stage of fermentation. A Tanna taught: The law forbidding the use of liquids left uncovered does not apply to new wine in the first stage of fermentation.[15] And how long does it take to ferment? — Three days.

Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: The following was the practice of R. Judah b. Il'ai. On the eve of the Ninth of Ab there was brought to him dry bread with salt and he would take his seat

---

(1) New Moon is also a festive day.

(2) חדש ‘New Moon’ can also mean, month.

(3) שבת ‘Sabbath’ has also the meaning, a whole week.

(4) Who is opposed to the view.

(5) Lit., ‘from the sixth hour onward’.

(6) [MS.M.: ‘. . . out of ten (successive) cups . . . out of five’].

(7) Any other meal during the day or the concluding meal prior to any other fast, e.g.,the Day of Atonement.

(8) [Var lec. omit: ‘meat’.]

(9) The study of all these brings delight to the genuine student.

(10) The study of new subjects needs great application and the pleasure derived from the study is eclipsed by the efforts expended.

(11) Ps. XIX, 9. This last passage occurs again in the statement of R. Judah that follows and is thus rightly omitted in MS.M.

(12) I.e., pickled meat.

(13) As these have not a good taste.

(14) Two days and one night, i.e., sixty hours. Cf. Zeb. V, 7.

(15) There is no danger of contamination by the poison of a snake as the snake would not drink such liquid. Cf. Ter. VIII, 4.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 30b

between the [baking] oven and the [cooking] stove[1] and eat and he would drink with it a pitcher full of water and he would appear as if a near relation were lying dead before him.

Elsewhere we have learnt: Where it is the custom to do work on the Ninth of Ab we may do work, but where it is not the custom we may not; and everywhere the Scholars refrain from work. R.

Simeon b. Gamaliel says: [In this respect] a man should always consider himself a scholar. It has been taught likewise: R. Simeon b. Gamaliel says: [In this respect] let a man always consider himself a scholar that he may feel more strongly the fast.

A [Baraitha] taught: R. Simeon b. Gamaliel says: Any one who eats or drinks on the Ninth of Ab is as if he ate and drank on the Day of Atonement. R. Akiba says: Any one who does work on the Ninth of Ab will never see in his work any sign of blessing. And the Sages say: Any one who does work on the Ninth of Ab and does not mourn for Jerusalem will not share in her joy, as it is said, Rejoice ye with Jerusalem, and be glad with her, all ye that love her; rejoice for joy with her, all ye that mourn for her.[2] From this originates what they [the Rabbis] have said: Everyone who mourns for Jerusalem merits to share in her joy, and any one who does not mourn for her will not share in her joy. It has also been taught likewise: Of him who eats meat and drinks wine on the Ninth of Ab Scripture says: And their iniquities are upon their bones.[3]

R. JUDAH MAKES IT OBLIGATORY TO TURN THE BED OVER, BUT THE WISE DID NOT AGREE WITH HIM IN THIS. It has been taught: [The Sages] said to R. Judah: If your view is followed what will happen to pregnant women and nursing mothers?[4] — He replied to them: I too meant my statement to apply only where it is possible. It has also been taught likewise: R. Judah agrees with the Sages where it is not possible [to overturn the beds]; and the Sages agree with R. Judah where it is possible. What is the real difference between them? The difference between them arises in the case of other beds [not used for sleeping]. As it has been taught: When the Rabbis said that a man should turn over the bed, they meant not only his own bed but also all the beds [in the house]. Raba said: The halachah is according to our Tanna, but the Sages would not accept his [R. Judah's] view at all.

R. SIMEON B. GAMALIEL SAID: THERE NEVER WERE IN ISRAEL GREATER DAYS OF JOY THAN THE FIFTEENTH OF AB AND THE DAY OF ATONEMENT. I can understand the Day of Atonement, because it is a day of forgiveness and pardon and on it the second Tables of the Law were given,[5] but what happened on the fifteenth of Ab? — Rab Judah said in the name of Samuel: It is the day on which permission was granted to the tribes to inter-marry.[6] Whence may this be adduced? — Scripture says, This is the thing which the Lord hath commanded concerning the daughters of Zelophehad etc.,[7] [meaning] ‘this thing’ shall hold good for this generation only. R. Joseph said in the name of R. Nahman: It is the day on which the tribe of Benjamin was permitted to re-enter the congregation [of Israel], as it is said, Now the men of Israel had sworn in Mizpah, saying: There shall not any of us give his daughter unto Benjamin to wife.[8] From what was their exposition?[9] — Rab said: From the phrase ‘any of us’ which was interpreted to mean, ‘but not from any of our children’.

Rabbah b. Bar Hanah said in the name of R. Johanan: It is the day on which the generation of the wilderness ceased to die out. For a Master said: So long as the generation of the wilderness[10] continued to die out there was no divine communication to Moses,[11] as it is said, So it came to pass, when all the men of war were consumed and dead . . . that the Lord spake unto me.[12] [Only then] came the divine communication ‘unto me’.

‘Ulla said: It is the day on which Hosea the son of Elah removed the guards which Jeroboam the son of Nebat had placed on the roads to prevent Israel from going [up to Jerusalem] on pilgrimage,[13] and he proclaimed

---

(1) He took up a humble position.

(2) Isa. LXVI, 10.

(3) Ezek. XXXII, 27.

(4) Who cannot sleep on the ground.

(5) [According to a tradition in Seder Olam 6, Moses spent three periods of forty days and forty nights in the Mount beginning with the seventh of Sivan and ending on the tenth of Tishri when he came down on earth with the Second Tables.]

(6) V. next note.

(7) Cf. Num. XXXVI, 6-7. The Law was later annulled.

(8) Judg. XXI, 1.

(9) I.e., on what did they base their permission.

(10) Those who came out of Egypt.

(11) [In a direct manner as described in Num. XII, 8, ‘With him I speak mouth to mouth, etc. (Rashbam, B.B. 121b).]

(12) Deut. II, 16-17.

(13) Cf. Git. 88a.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 31a

, Let them go up to whichever shrine they desire. R. Mattenah said: It is the day when permission was granted for those killed at Bethar to be buried. R. Mattenah further said: On the day when permission was granted for those killed at Bethar[1] to be buried [the Rabbis] at Jabneh instituted [the recitation of] the benediction,[2] ‘Who art kind and dealest kindly etc.’; ‘Who art kind’: Because their dead bodies did not become putrid;[3] ‘And dealest kindly’: Because permission was granted for their burial. Rabbah and R. Joseph both said: It is the day on which [every year] they discontinued to fell trees for the altar.[4] It has been taught: R. Eliezer the elder says: From the fifteenth of Ab onwards the strength of the sun grows less and they no longer felled trees for the altar, because they would not dry [sufficiently]. R. Menashya said: And they called it the Day of the Breaking of the Axe.[5] From this day onwards,[6] he who increases [his knowledge through study] will have his life prolonged, but he who does not increase [his knowledge] will have his life taken away.[7] What is meant by ‘taken away’? — R. Joseph learnt: Him his mother will bury.[8]

ON THESE DAYS THE DAUGHTERS OF JERUSALEM etc. Our Rabbis have taught: The daughter of the king borrows [the garments] from the daughter of the High Priest, the daughter of the High Priest from the daughter of the deputy High Priest,[9] and the daughter of the deputy High Priest from the daughter of the Anointed for Battle,[10] and the daughter of the Anointed for Battle from the daughter of an ordinary priest, and all Israel borrow from one another, so as not to put to shame any one who may not possess [white garments].

ALL THE GARMENTS REQUIRE RITUAL DIPPING: R. Eleazar said: Even though they lay folded in a box.[11]

THE DAUGHTERS OF ISRAEL CAME OUT AND DANCED IN THE VINEYARDS. A Tanna taught: Whoever was unmarried repaired thither.

THOSE OF THEM WHO CAME OF NOBLE FAMILIES EXCLAIMED, ‘YOUNG MAN etc.’ Our Rabbis have taught: The beautiful amongst them called out, Set your eyes on beauty for the quality most to be prized in woman is beauty; those of them who came of noble families called out, Look for [a good] family for woman has been created to bring up a family; the ugly ones amongst them called out, Carry off your purchase in the name of Heaven, only on one condition that you adorn us with jewels of gold.

Ulla Bira'ah said in the name of R. Eleazar: In the days to come the Holy One, blessed be He, will hold a chorus for the righteous and He will sit in their midst in the Garden of Eden and every one of them will point with his finger towards Him, as it is said, And it shall be said in that day: Lo, this is our God, for whom we waited, that He might save us; this is the Lord for whom we waited, we will be glad and rejoice in His salvation.[12]

---

(1) During the Bar Kochba War. Cf. Git. 57a.

(2) The fourth benediction of the Grace after Meals.

(3) [During the long period in which the slain were left lying in the open field owing to Hadrian's decree forbidding their interment.]

(4) Undried wood harbours woodworms and this makes the wood unfit for the altar. After the fifteenth of Ab the rays of the sun are not sufficiently strong to dry the fresh-cut logs and therefore the felling of trees for the altar was discontinued as from this date. Cf. Mid. II, 5.

(5) The name signified that there was no longer any need for the woodcutter's axe.

(6) The nights grow longer and people have more time for study.

(7) Cf. Aboth. I, 13.

(8) He will die prematurely.

(9) Segan, v. Sanh., Sonc. ed., p. 97, n. 1.

(10) Priest anointed as Chaplain of the Army in time of war, and part of whose duty it was to make the necessary proclamations for the exemptions from military service. Cf. Deut. XX, 2ff.

(11) Which would show that they were new and had never been worn.

(12) Isa. XXV, 9.

CHAPTER I

MISHNAH. THE MEGILLAH[1] IS READ ON THE ELEVENTH, THE TWELFTH, THE THIRTEENTH, THE FOURTEENTH, AND THE FIFTEENTH [OF ADAR], NEVER EARLIER AND NEVER LATER.[2] CITIES[3] WHICH HAVE BEEN WALLED SINCE THE DAYS OF JOSHUA SON OF NUN[4] READ ON THE FIFTEENTH; VILLAGES AND LARGE TOWNS[5] READ ON THE FOURTEENTH. THE VILLAGES, HOWEVER, MAY [SOMETIMES] PUSH THE READING FORWARD TO THE COURT DAY.[6] HOW DOES THIS WORK OUT? IF [THE FOURTEENTH OF ADAR] FALLS ON MONDAY,[7] THE VILLAGES AND LARGE TOWNS READ ON THAT DAY AND THE WALLED PLACES ON THE NEXT DAY: IF IT FALLS ON TUESDAY OR ON WEDNESDAY, THE VILLAGES PUSH THE READING FORWARD TO THE COURT DAY,[8] THE LARGE TOWNS READ ON THE DAY ITSELF, AND THE WALLED PLACES ON THE NEXT DAY. IF [THE FOURTEENTH FALLS] ON THURSDAY, THE VILLAGES AND LARGE TOWNS READ ON THAT DAY AND THE WALLED PLACES ON THE NEXT DAY: IF IT FALLS ON FRIDAY, THE VILLAGES PUSH THE READING FORWARD TO THE COURT DAY[9] AND THE LARGE TOWNS AND WALLED PLACES READ ON THE DAY ITSELF.[10] IF IT FALLS ON SABBATH, THE VILLAGES AND LARGE TOWNS PUSH THE READING FORWARD TO THE COURT DAY.[9] AND THE WALLED PLACES READ ON THE NEXT DAY.[11] IF IT FALLS ON SUNDAY, THE VILLAGES PUSH THE READING FORWARD TO THE COURT DAY,[9] THE LARGE TOWNS READ ON THE SAME DAY, AND THE WALLED CITIES ON THE DAY FOLLOWING.

GEMARA. THE MEGILLAH IS READ ON THE ELEVENTH. Whence is this derived? — [How can you ask,] ‘Whence is this derived’? Surely it is as we state further on,[12] ‘The Sages made a concession to the villages, allowing them to push the reading forward to the Court day, so that [they should have leisure to] supply food and water for their brethren in the large towns’? — What we mean [by our question] is this: Let us see now. All these dates were laid down by the Men of the Great Assembly.[13] For if you should [deny this and affirm] that the Men of the Great Assembly laid down only the fourteenth and fifteenth, [is it possible that] the [later] Rabbis should have come and annulled a regulation made by the Men of the Great Assembly, seeing that we have learnt, ‘One Beth din cannot annul the ordinances of another unless it is superior to it in number[14] and in wisdom’?[15] Obviously, therefore, all these days must have been laid down by the Men of the Great Assembly, [and we ask therefore], where are they hinted [in the Scripture]? — R. Shaman b. Abba replied in the name of R. Johanan: Scripture says, To confirm these days of Purim in their times.[16] [which indicates that] they laid down many ‘times’ for them. But this text is required for its literal meaning?[17] — If that were all, Scripture could say simply ‘at the [appointed] time’. What then is implied by ‘their times’? A large number of ‘times’! But still I may say that [the expression ‘their’ times’] is required to indicate that the time of one is not the same as the time of the other?[18] — In that case, Scripture should say [simply], ‘their time’. Why does it say ‘their times’? So that you may infer from this all of them. But cannot I say that ‘their times’ means ‘numerous times’?[19] — The expression ‘their times’ is to be interpreted in the same way as we should interpret ‘their time’: just as ‘their time’ would indicate two [days], so ‘their times’ indicates two [in addition].[20] But why not make these the twelfth and thirteenth? — For the reason given [elsewhere] by R. Samuel b. Isaac, that the thirteenth is a time of assembly for all,[21] and no special indication is required for it in the text; so we may say here that the thirteenth day is a time of assembly and no special indication is required for it in the text. But why not say that the sixteenth and seventeenth are meant? — It is written, and it shall not pass.[22]

R. Samuel b. Nahmani, however, explained thus. Scripture says. As the days wherein the Jews had rest from their enemies.[23] [The expression] ‘the days’ [would have sufficed] and we have ‘as the days', to include the eleventh and the twelfth. But cannot I say rather the twelfth and thirteenth? — R. Samuel b. Isaac said: The thirteenth is a time of assembly for all, and does not require special indication. But cannot I say the sixteenth and the seventeenth? — It is written, 'and it shall not pass'.

Why did R. Samuel b. Nahmani not derive the rule from the expression 'in their times'? — He does not accept the distinction [made above between] 'time', 'their time' and 'their times'. And why did R. Shaman b. Abba not derive the rule from the expression 'as the days'? — He can say to you: This is meant to make the rule apply to future generations.

Rabbah b. Bar Hanah said in the name of R. Johanan: This [rule stated in the Mishnah] is the ruling of R. Akiba the anonymous authority,[24] who draws the distinction between 'time', 'their time' and 'their times', but according to the Sages the Megillah is to be read only on the proper day.[25] The following was adduced in refutation of this: 'R. Judah said, When does this rule hold good? When the years are properly fixed[26] and Israel reside upon their own soil. But in these days, since people reckon from it,[27] the Megillah is to be read only on the proper day'. Now which authority is R. Judah here following? Shall I say, R. Akiba? This cannot be, because [according to him] the regulation[28] is in force in these days also. It must be then that he follows the Rabbis, and [even according to them] we read [on the other days] at any rate when the years are properly fixed and Israel reside on their own soil! Is not this a refutation of R. Johanan? — It is.

Some report as follows. Rabbah b. Bar Hanah said in the name of R. Johanan: This rule follows the ruling of R. Akiba the anonymous authority, but the Sages held that in these days, since people reckon from it, we read it only on the proper day. It has been taught to the same effect: 'R. Judah said: When does this rule hold good? When the years are properly fixed and Israel reside upon their own soil, but in these days, since people reckon from it, it is read only on the proper day.'[29]

R. Ashi noted a contradiction between two statements of R. Judah

---

(1) Lit., 'scroll'. The scroll of the Book of Esther is meant (v. Introduction).

(2) Lit., 'neither less nor more'.

(3) כרכין (Sing. כרך). This word is generally applied to large centres of population with a more or less metropolitan character. In Mishnah Megillah, (cf. 19a), however, it seems to be used exclusively of walled towns, whatever their size.

(4) The Gemara infra discusses what is meant by this.

(5) כפרים ועיירות גדולות. The expression 'villages and large towns' in the Mishnah here seems to be merely a periphrasis for 'other places', since, as appears from the Gemara, the distinction here is between places which were walled in the days of Joshua and places which were not. The epithet 'large' is added because the word עיר (or עירה) is also often used of a small place, hardly distinguishable from a village.

(6) Lit., 'the day of assembly', i.e. Monday or Thursday, when the Beth din sat in the towns, and the people came in from the villages. They were allowed to read the Megillah then because they were more likely to find someone who could read to them in the town than in their own village (Rashi). Another reason is also given in the Gemara infra.

(7) Lit., 'the second (day of the week)'. In the Talmud the days of the week are distinguished by the ordinal numbers.

(8) I.e., the previous Monday.

(9) I.e., the preceding Thursday.

(10) Reading on the Sabbath was prohibited, for fear the scroll might be carried from place to place. V. infra.

(11) On the Sunday.

(12) V. infra p. 116.

(13) Or 'synagogue'. A name given to Ezra and his Beth din and their successors, up to the time of Simon the Just. V. Aboth, Sonc. ed. p. 1, n. 5. According to the Talmud, the Book of Esther was composed by or under the direction of the Men of the Great Assembly.

(14) Of the members of the Beth din.

(15) Cf. M.K. 3b; Git. 36a.

(16) Esth. IX, 31. E.V. 'their appointed times'. The plural form 'times' is stressed.

(17) Lit., 'for itself'; viz., the 14th and 15th mentioned in the text.
(18) Viz., the time for the villages is not the same as that for the walled towns.
(19) E.g., five or six.
(20) To the fourteenth and fifteenth, viz., the eleventh and twelfth.
(21) Rashi explains this to refer to the statement in the Scripture that on the thirteenth the Jews assembled and defended themselves. Asheri, however, points out that this has nothing to do with the reading of the Megillah, which was instituted to commemorate the resting, and he therefore prefers the explanation of R. Tam, that on the thirteenth the Jews assemble to observe the fast of Esther.
(22) Ibid. 27. These words are interpreted to mean, 'the observance shall not pass beyond the fifteenth day'. E.V., and it shall not fail.
(23) Ibid. 22.
(24) So called because Rabbi in compiling the Mishnah usually followed R Akiba when he mentioned no authority.
(25) Viz., the fourteenth and fifteenth of Adar.
(26) I.e., when there is a Beth din which fixes new moons and leap years as occasion arises.
(27) I.e. count thirty days from Purim to Passover, since the new moon of Nisan will not be promulgated by the Beth din
(28) That the Megillah may be read on the eleventh, twelfth, or thirteenth.
(29) And there is now no contradiction between R. Johanan and Rabbi Judah.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 2b

, and therefore attributed the statement in the Baraitha to R. Jose son of R. Judah. [He said]: Can R. Judah really have said that in these days, since people reckon from it, it is read only on the proper day? To this may be opposed the following:[1] R. Judah said, When [do they push forward the reading]? In places where the villagers go to town[2] on Monday and Thursday; but in places where they do not go to town on Monday and Thursday, it is read only on the proper day. But at any rate in places where they do go to town on Monday and Thursday it is read [on the earlier dates] even in these times'? He accordingly ascribed the statement in the Baraitha[3] to R. Jose son of R. Judah. And because he finds a contradiction between two statements of R. Judah, is he entitled to ascribe the one in the Baraitha to R. Jose son of R. Judah? — R. Ashi had heard some report the statement in the name of R. Judah and some report it in the name of R. Jose son of R. Judah, and to avoid making R. Judah contradict himself he said that the one who ascribed the statement to R. Judah was not [reporting] accurately, while the one who ascribed it to R. Jose son of Judah was [reporting] accurately.

CITIES WHICH HAVE BEEN WALLED SINCE THE DAYS OF JOSHUA SON OF NUN READ ON THE FIFTEENTH. Whence is this ruling derived? — Raba replied: Because Scripture says, Therefore do the Jews of the villages that dwell in the unwalled towns,[4] etc. Since the villages [are to read] on the fourteenth, the walled towns [must read] on the fifteenth. But why not say that the villages [should read] on the fourteenth, and those in walled towns not at all?[5] — But are they not also Israelites? And moreover is it not written, From India into Ethiopia?[6] But why not say that the villages [should read] on the fourteenth and those in walled towns on both the fourteenth and fifteenth, as it is written, that they should keep the fourteenth day of the month of Adar and the fifteenth day of the same yearly?[7] — If the text had said, 'the fourteenth day and [we] the fifteenth', you would have been right. Now, however, that it is written 'the fourteenth day and [we-eth] the fifteenth — the eth[8] comes and makes a distinction, so that the one set is on the fourteenth and the other set on the fifteenth. But why not say that the villages are on the fourteenth, and those surrounded [by a wall] can [celebrate] if they like on the fourteenth or if they like on the fifteenth? — The text says, in their seasons,[9] the season of one is not the same as the season of the other. But why not say that they[10] should celebrate on the thirteenth? — [They must do] as Susa [did].

We have accounted for the celebration [of Purim]; how do we know that the recital[11] [of the Megillah must be on these days]? — The text says, that these days should be remembered and kept;[12] ‘remembering’ is put on the same footing as ‘keeping’.

Our Mishnah does not take the same view as the following Tanna, as it has been taught: ‘R. Joshua b. Korha says: Cities which have been walled since the days of Ahasuerus read on the fifteenth’. What is the reason of R. Joshua b. Korha? — [They must be] like Susa: just as Susa has been walled since the days of Ahasuerus and reads on the fifteenth, so every city that has been walled since the days of Ahasuerus reads on the fifteenth. What then is the reason of our Tanna? — He draws an analogy between the two occurrences of the word perazi [villagers]. It is written here, Therefore the Jews of the villages [ha — perazim],[13] and it is written in another place, beside the unwalled [ha — perazi] towns, a great many;[14] just as there the reference is to towns which were [not] walled in the days of Joshua son of Nun, so here the reference is to towns which were [not] walled in the days of Joshua son of Nun.[15]

I can understand why R. Joshua b. Korha did not adopt the view of our Tanna; he does not accept the analogy of perazi and perazi.[16] But why does not our Tanna accept the view of R.Joshua b. Korha? — [You ask] why does he not? Why, because he draws the analogy of perazi with perazi, of course! What the questioner meant was this: [On the view of our Tanna], whom did Susa follow?[17] It followed neither the villages nor the walled towns![18] — Raba, or, as some say, Kadi,[19] replied: Susa was an exception, because a miracle was performed in it.[20]

We can understand according to the view of our Tanna why the text should say, city and city, town and town;[21] ‘city and city’[22] to make a distinction between those which were walled in the days of Joshua son of Nun and those which were walled in the days of Ahasuerus; ‘town and town’ likewise to distinguish between Susa and other towns.[23] But according to R. Joshua b. Korha, it is true we can account for ‘city and city’, as being intended to distinguish between Susa and other cities,[24] but what is the purpose of ‘town and town’ ? — R.Joshua b. Korha can answer: And can our Tanna explain the words satisfactorily? Since he draws the analogy between perazi and perazi,[25] why do we require the words ‘city and city’? The truth is that the text is inserted for a homiletical purpose, and to teach the rule laid down by R.Joshua b. Levi. For R. Joshua b. Levi said: ‘A city[26] and all that adjoins it and all that is taken in by the eye with it is reckoned as city’.[27] Up to what distance? — R. Jeremiah, or you may also say R. Hiyya b. Abba, said: As far as from Hamthan[28] to Tiberias, which is a mil. Why not say [simply] a mil? — We learn from this what is the extent of a mil, namely, as far as from Hamthan to Tiberias.

R. Jeremiah — or you may also say R. Hiyya b. Abba — also said: The [alternative forms of the] letters M'N'Z'P'K[29] were prescribed[30] by the Watchmen.[31] Do you really think so? Is it not written, These are the commandments,[32] which implies that no prophet is at liberty to introduce anything new[33] henceforward? And further, R.Hisda has said: The Men and the Samek in the tablets

---

(1) Infra n. 4.

(2) Lit., ‘assemble’.

(3) The former of the statements quoted.

(4) Esth. IX, 19.

(5) Since no mention is made of walled towns in the context.

(6) These words occur in Esth. I, 1, arid are used here loosely instead of the words in Esth. IX, 30. and he (Mordecai) sent letters to . . . the hundred and twenty — seven provinces of the kingdom of Ahasuerus.

(7) Ibid. 21.

(8) Eth is a sign of the accusative, and as its use is optional, it is usually interpreted as indicating something not specified in the text. The interpretation placed upon it here is rather unusual.

(9) Ibid. 31.

(10) Those in the walled towns.

(11) Lit., ‘remembrance’.

(12) Ibid. 28.
(13) Ibid. 19.
(14) Deut. III, 5, referring to the territory of Sihon conquered by the Israelites in the time of Moses.
(15) The word ‘not’ is not in the text of the original here, but is necessary for the sense. Rashi greatly simplifies the text by reading: ‘Just as there (the villages were such) from the days of Joshua, so here, (the villages must have been such) from the days of Joshua’.
(16) I.e., he had not learnt this particular gezerah shawah from his teacher, and therefore could not reply upon it.
(17) Since there is no evidence that it was walled in the days of Joshua.
(18) These last words make no satisfactory sense, and seem to be interpolated. [They do not occur in MS.M.]
(19) Aliter: ‘an unknown authority’, v. B.M., Sonc. ed. p. 3, n. 1.]
(20) Since they were allowed to continue slaying their enemies on the fourteenth and did not rest till the fifteenth, they were allowed to celebrate that day (Rashi).
(21) Esth. IX, 28. The word medinah which the Talmud here takes as equivalent to כרך is translated in E.V. by ‘province’.
(22) As much as to say, ‘Some cities one way and some another’.
(23) Susa also having been an unwalled town till the time of Ahasuerus.
(24) Rashi here reads, ‘to distinguish between those which were walled from the days of Ahasuerus and those which were not yet walled in the days of Ahasuerus’, and this seems to be required by the sense.
(25) That the wall must have been in existence since the days of Joshua.
(26) כרך v. supra p. 1, n. 3.
(27) For purposes of reading the Megillah on the fifteenth.
(28) [The Hammath mentioned in Josh. XIX, 35.]
(29) The five letters of the Hebrew alphabet, mem, nun, zadi, pe, and kaf, which have two forms — a middle and final form, the latter being more closed than the former. In the case of mem the final is completely closed ם, with the other the final form is distinguished by the shaft being drawn straight down as distinct from the middle form where it is bent round towards the left ץ(נ)ן ת(צ)ץת(פ)ףת(כ)ך
(30) Lit., said’.
(31) A name applied to the prophets who flourished towards the end of the period of the first Temple. There is a play on the words zophim (watchmen) and Manzepak. [Perhaps to be read Min Zofeka ‘from thy watcher’ v. G.K. (1910) p. 27, n. 1.]
(32) Lev. XXVII, 34.
(33) I.e., to make any alteration in the written Torah, whether in the wording or the writing.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 3a

remained in place by a miracle.[1] — That is so; they were in use, but people did not know which form came in the middle of a word and which one at the end, and the Watchmen came and ordained that the open forms should be in the middle of a word and the closed forms at the end. But when all is said and done, [we have the text] ‘these are the commandments’, which implies that no prophet was destined ever to introduce an innovation hereafter?[2] — What we must say therefore is that they were forgotten[3] and the Watchmen established them again.

R. Jeremiah — or some say R. Hiyya b. Abba — also said: The Targum[4] of the Pentateuch was composed by Onkelos the proselyte under the guidance[5] of R. Eleazar and R. Joshua.[6] The Targum of the Prophets was composed by Jonathan ben Uzziel under the guidance of Haggai, Zechariah and Malachi,[7] and the land of Israel [thereupon] quaked over an area of four hundred parasangs by four hundred parasangs, and a Bath Kol[8] came forth and exclaimed, Who is this that has revealed My secrets to mankind?[9] Jonathan b. Uzziel thereupon arose and said, It is I who have revealed Thy secrets to mankind. It is fully known to Thee that I have not done this for my own honour or for the honour of my father's house, but for Thy honour l have done it, that dissension may not increase in Israel.[10] He further sought to reveal [by] a targum [the inner meaning] of the Hagiographa, but a Bath Kol went forth and said, Enough! What was the reason? — Because the date[11] of the Messiah is foretold in it.[12]

But did Onkelos the proselyte compose the targum to the Pentateuch? Has not R. Ika said in the name of R. Hananel who had it from Rab: What is meant by the text, And they read in the book, in the law of God, with an interpretation. and they gave the sense, and caused them to understand the reading?[13] 'And they read in the book, in the law of God': this indicates the [Hebrew] text; 'with an interpretation': this indicates the targum,[14] 'and they gave the sense': this indicates the verse stops; 'and caused them to understand the reading': this indicates the accentuation,[15] or, according to another version, the massoretic notes?[16] — These had been forgotten, and were now established again.

How was it that the land did not quake because of the [translation of the] Pentateuch, while it did quake because of that of the prophets? — The meaning of the Pentateuch is expressed clearly, but the meaning of the prophets is in some things expressed clearly and in others enigmatically. [For instance,] it is written , In that day shall there be a great mourning in Jerusalem, as the mourning of Hadadrimmon in the valley of Megiddon,[17] and R. Joseph [commenting on this] said: Were it not for the targum of this verse, we should not know what it means.[18] [It runs as follows]: 'On that day shall there be great mourning in Jerusalem like the mourning of Ahab son of Omri who was killed by Hadadrimmon son of Rimmon in Ramoth Gilead[19] and like the mourning of Josiah son of Ammon who was killed by Pharaoh the Lame in the plain of Megiddo'.[20]

And I, Daniel, alone saw the vision; for the men that were with me saw not the vision; but a great quaking fell upon them, and they fled to hide themselves.[21] Who were these 'men' — R. Jeremiah — or some say, R. Hiyya b. Abba — said: These were Haggai, Zechariah, and Malachi. They were superior to him [in one way], and he was superior to them [in another]. They were superior to him, because they were prophets and he was not a prophet.[22] He was superior to them, because he saw [on this occasion] and they did not see. But if they did not see, why were they frightened? — Although they themselves did not see, their star saw.[23] Rabina said: We learn from this that if a man is seized with fright though he sees nothing, [the reason is that] his star sees. What is his remedy? He should recite the shema'.[24] If he is in a place which is foul,[25] he should move away from it four cubits. If he cannot do this, he should say this formula: 'The goat at the butcher's is fatter than I am'.[26]

Now that you have decided that the words 'city and city' have a homiletical purpose, what is the purpose of the words 'family and family' [in the same verse]? — R.Jose b. Hanina replied: This contains a reference to the families of the Priests and Levites, [and indicates] that they should desist from their [Temple] service in order to come and hear the reading of the Megillah. For so said Rab Judah in the name of Rab: The Priests at their [Temple] service, the Levites on their platform,[27] the lay Israelites at their station[28] — all desist from their service in order to hear the reading of the Megillah. It has been taught to the same effect: Priests at their [Temple] service, Levites on their platform, lay Israelites at their station — all desist from their service in order to come and hear the reading of the Megillah. It was in reliance on this dictum that the members of the house of Rabbi[29] were wont to desist from the study of the Torah in order to come and hear the reading of the Megillah. They argued a fortiori from the case of the [Temple] service. If the service, which is so important, may be abandoned, how much more the study of the Torah?

But is the [Temple] service more important than the study of the Torah? Surely it is written, And it came to pass when Joshua was by Jericho, that he lifted up his eyes and looked, and behold there stood a man over against him, . . . (and he fell on his face.[30] Now how could he do such a thing, seeing that R. Joshua b. Levi has said that it is forbidden to a man to greet another by night, for fear that he is a demon? — It was different there, because he said to him, 'I am captain of the host of the Lord'. But perhaps he was lying? — We take it for granted[31] that they do not utter the name of heaven vainly).[32] He said to him: This evening you neglected the regular afternoon sacrifice, and now you have neglected the study of the Torah.[33] Joshua replied: In regard to which of them have you come? He answered, ‘I have come now’.[34] Straightway, Joshua tarried that night in the midst of the valley [ha-emek],[35] and R. Johanan said:

---

(1) According to tradition, the letters on the tablets of Moses were cut completely through the stone, and therefore a letter which was wholly closed could keep in place only by a miracle. Hence the mem to which R. Hisda refers must have been wholly enclosed; which shows that such a mem must have been used already by Moses. This objection against R. Jeremiah is valid only if we suppose him to have been speaking of the closed forms of the letters, which is not necessarily the case. Cf. Shab. 104.

(2) And the determining which letters should go in which place (in the Sefer Torah) was an innovation.

(3) Viz., the correct place of each.

(4) Apparently what is meant is the official Aramaic version of the Pentateuch used in the synagogue.

(5) Lit., ‘from the mouth of’.

(6) We know on good authority that a Greek translation of the Bible was composed under the guidance of R. Eleazar and R. Joshua by a proselyte named Aquilas. The Aramaic Targum probably took shape about the same time, but there is no authority except this passage for connecting it with anyone of the name of Onkelos. We may surmise therefore that we have here some confusion between the two translations. For the discussion and literature on the subject v. J.E. s.v. Targum, and Silverstone, E.A. Aquila and Onkelos.

(7) Jonathan b. Uzziel was a disciple of Hillel, so he can hardly have had any direct contact with the prophets mentioned. He may, however, have had traditions handed down from them (Maharsha).

(8) V. Glos.

(9) The Targum of Jonathan b. Uzziel is very paraphrastic, and applies many of the prophetic verses to the Messianic age.

(10) Through different interpretations being placed on the prophetic allusions.

(11) Lit., ‘end’.

(12) The reference is probably to the Book of Daniel.

(13) Neh. VIII, 8.

(14) Which shows that the targum dates back to the time of Ezra.

(15) פיסוק טעמים. V. Ned., Sonc. ed. p. 113, n. 5.

(16) For notes v. Ned., Sonc. ed. p. 116.

(17) Zech. XII, 11.

(18) Because there is no mourning for Hadadrimmon mentioned in the Scripture.

(19) V. I Kings XXII.

(20) v. II Kings XXIII. It is difficult to see what ‘mystery’ is here revealed that should have caused the land to quake.

(21) Dan. X, 7.

(22) Although he had visions, he did not admonish or exhort the people.

(23) Or ‘guardian angel’ or ‘spirit’. The Hebrew mazzal here seems to mean something corresponding to the Roman genius.

(24) V. Glos.

(25) And where the shema’ may not be recited.

(26) Go to them for a victim.

(27) On which they stood to chant the daily psalm.

(28) A number of lay Israelites were always appointed to be present at the offering of the daily sacrifices, which they accompanied with certain prayers. V. Ta'an. 26a; and Glos. s.v. ma'amad.

(29) R. Judah I, the Prince.

(30) Josh. V, 13f.

(31) Lit., ‘we have learnt by tradition’.

(32) The passage in brackets (from ‘and he fell’) is parenthetical, and has nothing to do with the argument.

(33) It is not clear what indication there is of this in the text. V. Tosaf., s.v. אמש.

(34) I.e., on account of the study of the Torah which you are neglecting now.

(35) This seems to be an alternative reading of Joshua VIII, 13. which in our text reads, And Joshua went that night in the midst of the valley. Cf. Tosaf., s.v.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 3b

This shows that he tarried in the depths [‘umkah] of the halachah.[1] And R. Samuel b. Unia also said: The study of the Torah is greater than the offering of the daily sacrifices, as it says. ‘I have come now’ — There is no contradiction; in the one case[2] [the study] of an individual is meant, in the other[3] that of the whole people.[4] But is that of an individual unimportant? Have we not learnt: Women [when mourning] on a festival make a dirge[5] but do not beat the breast. R. Ishmael says: If they are near the bier,[6] they can beat the breast. On New Moon, Hanukkah and Purim they may make a dirge and beat the breast, but on neither the one nor the other do they wail;[7] and in reference to this, Rabbah b. Huna said: The festival involves no restrictions in the case of a scholar, still less Hanukkah and Purim? — You are speaking of the honour to be paid to the Torah. The honour to be paid to the learning of an individual is important, the study of an individual is [comparatively] unimportant.

Raba said: There is no question in my mind that, as between the Temple service and the reading of the Megillah, the reading of the Megillah takes priority, for the reason given by R. Jose b. Hanina.[8] As between the study of the Torah and the reading of the Megillah, the reading of the Megillah takes priority, since the members of the house of Rabbi based themselves [on the dictum of R. Jose].[8] As between the study of the Torah and attending to a meth mizwah,[9] attending to a meth mizwah takes precedence, since it has been taught: The study of the Torah may be neglected in order to perform the last rites or to bring a bride to the canopy. As between the Temple service and attending to a meth mizwah, attending to a meth mizwah takes precedence, as we learn from the text or for his sister,[10] as it has been taught: ‘Or for his sister. What is the point of these words? Suppose he was on his way to kill his Paschal lamb or to circumcise his son, and he heard that a near relative had died,[11] shall I assume that he should defile himself? You must say, he should not defile himself. Shall I assume then that, just as he does not defile himself for his sister, so he should not deflle himself for a meth mizwah?[12] It says significantly, ‘or for his sister’,’ it is for his sister that he may not defile himself, but he may defile himself for a meth mizwah.[13] Raba propounded the question: As between the reading of the Megillah and [attending to] a meth mizwah, which takes precedence? Shall I say that the reading of the Megillah takes precedence in order to proclaim the miracle, or does perhaps [the burying of] the meth mizwah take precedence because of the respect due to human beings? — After propounding the question, he himself answered it saying, [Burying] the meth mizwah takes precedence, since a Master has said: Great is the [obligation to pay due] respect to human beings, since it overrides a negative precept of the Torah.[14]

The text [above states]: ‘R. Joshua b. Levi said: A city[15] and all that adjoins it and all that is taken in by the eye with it is reckoned as city’. A Tanna commented: Adjoining, even if it is not visible, and visible even if it is not adjoining. Now we understand what is meant by ‘visible even though not adjoining’: this can occur for instance with a city situated on the top of a hill. But how can there be ‘adjoining but not visible’? — R. Jeremiah replied: If it is situated in a valley.

R. Joshua b. Levi further said: A city which was first settled and then walled is reckoned as a village.[16] What is the reason? Because it is written, And if a man sell a dwelling house of a walled city,[17] one, [that is,] which was first walled and then settled, but not first settled and then walled.

R. Joshua b. Levi also said: A city in which there are not ten men of leisure[18] is reckoned as a village. What does he tell us? We have already learnt this: ‘What is a large town? One in which there are ten men of leisure. If there are less than this, it is reckoned as a village’. — He had to point out that the rule applies to a city,[19] even though [leisured] people come there from outside.[20] R. Joshua b. Levi also said: A city which has been laid waste and afterwards settled is reckoned as a city. What is meant by ‘laid waste’? Shall I say, that its walls have been destroyed, in which case if it became settled[21] it is reckoned as a city but otherwise not? [How can this be], seeing that it has been taught: R. Eleazar son of R. Jose says: [The text says], which has a wall;[22] [which implies that it is to be reckoned as a city] even though it has not a wall now, provided it had one previously?[23] What then is meant by 'laid waste'? Laid waste of its ten men of leisure.

R. Joshua b. Levi further said:

---

(1) This shows that the study of the Torah is superior to the Temple service.
(2) That of the household of Rabbi.
(3) That of Joshua.
(4) Lit., 'many'.
(5) Heb. מענות, all raising their voices in unison.
(6) Lit., 'bed'.
(7) Heb. מקוננות one chanting and the others responding.
(8) V. supra P. 11
(9) Heb. מת מצוה strictly speaking, a body which there is no-one else to bury and the burial of which is a religious duty. V. Glos. Meth Mizwah.
(10) Num. VI, 7, in reference to the Nazirite.
(11) Lit., 'that a dead one had died for him'.
(12) Nazir 48b.
(13) Although Scripture says 'If thou seest the ox of thy neighbour falling by the way, thou shalt not hide thyself' (Deut. XXII, 4), the Rabbis said that a man of eminence for whom it would be undignified to help may hide himself.
(14) V. p. 13, n. 7.
(15) כרך. V. supra p. 1, n. 3.
(16) It is not clear whether this means for purposes of reading the Megillah on the fourteenth or the fifteenth, or for purposes of restoring a house to its original owner at the Jubilee. Rashi takes the latter view, Tosaf. the former. V. Tosaf. s.v. כרך.
(17) V. Rashi. E.V. 'in a walled city'. Lev. XXV, 29.
(18) Who always have time to attend synagogue. V. infra 5a.
(19) [A כרך which is distinguished from a עיר גדולה in that it is a marketing centre to which are drawn people from all parts.]
(20) Lit., 'from the world'. These are only a floating population, and we require ten men who are always available.
(21) I.e., its walls were raised anew.
(22) Lev. XXV, 30.
(23) The lesson is derived from the curious spelling of the word in the Hebrew text, which may imply either that it has or has not a wall.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 4a

Lod and Ono and Ge Haharashim[1] were walled in the days of Joshua son of Nun. But did Joshua build these? Was it not Elpaal who built them, as it is written, And the sons of Elpaal Eber and Misham and Shemed, who built Ono and Lod, with the towns there of?[2] — But on your showing[3] Asa built them, as it is written, And he built fenced cities in Judah?[4] — R. Eleazar replied: These places were walled in the days of Joshua son of Nun. They were laid waste in the days of the concubine of Gibea,[5] and Elpaal came and rebuilt them. They again fell, and Asa came and repaired them. There is an indication of this in the text also, as it is written, For he said unto Judah, Let us build these cities.[6] From this we can infer that they had already been towns beforehand; and this may be taken as proved.[7]

R. Joshua b. Levi also said: Women are under obligation to read the Megillah, since they also profited by the miracle then wrought.[8] R. Joshua b. Levi further said: If Purim falls on a Sabbath, discussions and discourses are held on the subject of the day. Why mention Purim? The same rule applies to festivals also,[9] as it has been taught: Moses laid down a rule for the Israelites that they should discuss and discourse on the subject of the day — the laws of Passover on Passover, the laws of Pentecost on Pentecost, and the laws of Tabernacles on Tabernacles! — It was necessary to state the rule [separately] in the case of Purim. For you might suggest that we should forbid this for fear of breaking the rule of Rabbah.[10] We are therefore told that this is not so.

R. Joshua b. Levi further said: It is the duty of a man to read the Megillah in the evening and to repeat it in the day, as it is written, O my God, I cry in the daytime, but thou answerest not, and in the night season and am not silent.[11] The students took this to mean that the [Megillah] should be read at night, and the Mishnah relating to it should be learnt in the morning.[12] R. Jeremiah. however, said to them: It has been explained to me by R. Hiyya b. Abba [that the word 'repeat' here has the same meaning] as when, for instance, men say, I will go through this section and repeat it. It has also been stated: R. Helbo said in the name of 'Ulla of Biri:[13] It is a man's duty to recite the Megillah at night and to repeat it the next day, as it says, To the end that my glory may sing praise to thee [by day]. and not be silent [by night]. O Lord, my God, I will give thanks to thee for ever.[14]

THE VILLAGES, HOWEVER, MAY PUSH THE READING FORWARD TO THE COURT DAY. R. Hanina said: The Sages made a concession to the villages by allowing them to push the reading forward to the Court day, in order that they might furnish food and water to their brethren in the cities.

---

(1) Three towns in the territory of Benjamin.

(2) I Chron. VIII, 12.

(3) I.e., if you appeal to the Book of Chronicles.

(4) II Chron. XIV, 6. 'Judah' is here apparently taken by the Talmud to include Benjamin, which was ruled by the kings of Judah.

(5) When the territory of Benjamin was laid waste. Jud. XX.

(6) II Chron. XIV, 6.

(7) [The text of this paragraph is in disorder. According to a Gaonic responsum (v. B.M.) Lewin אוצר הגאונים a.l. the passages, 'But on your showing. . . in Judah' and 'There is an indication . . . taken as proved' are later interpolations. For other readings v. Aruch s.v. שפין.]

(8) Lit., 'for also these were (included) in that miracle'. Since Haman plotted to destroy the women also. Esth. III, 13.

(9) Although they are discussed for thirty days beforehand, so that the rule should apply all the more to Purim. V. Tosaf. s.v. מאי.

(10) Not to read the Megillah on Sabbath, since this might lead to its being carried from place to place, v. infra p. 19.

(11) Ps XXII, 3. This Psalm is supposed by the Talmud to refer to Esther. V. Yoma 29a.

(12) They took the word לשנותה ('to repeat it') used by R. Joshua b. Levi in the sense of 'learning the Mishnah'.

(13) [Either Bira, S.E. or Kefar Birim, N.W. of Gush Halab, v. Klein N.B. p. 39.]

(14) Ps. XXX, 13. This Psalm was also applied by the Rabbis to Mordecai and Esther.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 4b

This would show [would it not] that the regulation is for the benefit of the cities; but we have learnt: 'If Purim falls on Monday, the villages and large towns read on that day'. Now if it is as you say, they should push the reading forward to the [previous] Court day? — This would bring it to the tenth, and the Sages did not fix the tenth [as a possible day].

Come and hear: 'If it falls on Thursday, the villages and large towns read on that same day'. Now if it is as you say, they should push the reading forward to the [previous] Court day which is the eleventh? — We do not shift it from one Court day to another. Come and hear [again]: 'R. Judah says: When [is the reading pushed forward]? In places where the villagers come into town on Mondays and Thursdays, but in places where they do not come into town on Mondays and Thursdays it is read only on the proper day'. Now if you assume that the regulation is for the benefit of the cities, because they do not come into town on Mondays and Thursdays; are the cities to be deprived of the benefit? — Do not read [in the dictum of R. Hanina] 'in order that they may furnish food and water', but read, 'because they furnish food and water to their brethren in the cities'.[1]

HOW [DOES THIS WORK OUT]? IF IT FALLS ON MONDAY, VILLAGES AND LARGER TOWNS READ ON THAT SAME DAY etc. How is it that in the first clause of the Mishnah[2] the dates of the month are mentioned and in the second[3] the days of the week?[4] — Since (in the second clause] the dates of the month would have to go backwards,[5] the Mishnah prefers to mention the days.[6] IF IT FALLS ON FRIDAY etc. Which authority does our Mishnah follow? — [You may say], either Rabbi or R. Jose. How Rabbi? — As it has been taught: 'If it falls on Friday, villages and large towns push the reading forward to the Court day, and walled cities react on the day itself. Rabbi said: I maintain that towns should not have to shift their date,[7] but both one and the other read on the day itself'. What is the reason of the First Tanna? — Because it is written, every year:[8] just as every year towns read before cities, so in this case towns should read before cities. But why not argue thus: 'Every year': just as every year towns have not to shift their date, so here towns should not have to shift their date? — There is a special reason [for not reasoning thus here] since this is impracticable.[9] What is Rabbi's reason? — [It is written], 'every year': just as in most years the towns have not to shift their date, so here they should not have to shift their date. But why not reason thus: 'every year': just as in most years towns read before walled cities, so here towns should read before walled cities? — There is a special reason [for not arguing thus here], because this is impracticable.[10]

How R. Jose? — As it has been taught: 'If it falls on Friday, walled cities and villages push the reading forward to the Court day, and large towns read on the day itself. R. Jose said: Walled cities do not read before towns, but both read on the day itself'. What is the reason of the First Tanna? — Because it is written, every year': just as in most years towns react on the fourteenth and their time is not the same as the time of the walled cities, so here towns should read on the fourteenth and their time should not be the same as the time of the walled cities. But why not reason thus: 'Every year': just as in most years walled cities do not read before towns, so here walled cities should not read before towns? — Here the case is different, because it cannot be avoided. What is R. Jose's reason? — [It says], 'every year': just as in most years walled cities do not read before towns, so here walled cities should not read before towns. But why not reason thus: 'Every year': just as in most years the time of one is not the same as the time of the other, so here the time of one should not be the same as the time of the other? — Here the case is different, because it cannot be avoided.

But did Rabbi really hold that towns should not shift their time to the Court day? Has it not been taught: 'If it falls on Sabbath, villages push the reading forward to the Court day, and large towns read on Friday and walled cities on Sunday. Rabbi said: My view is that, since the towns have to shift their time, they may as well shift it to the Court day'?[11] — Are the two cases parallel? In this last case, the proper time is Sabbath, and since they must shift they can shift [further]; but in our case the proper time is Friday.

Whose authority is followed in this dictum enunciated by R. Helbo in the name of R. Huna: 'If Purim falls on Sabbath, all shift the reading to the Court day'? 'All shift their reading', do you say? [How can this be] seeing that we have the walled cities which read on the Sunday? — What we should say is, 'All who are shifted are shifted to the Court day'.Which authority, [you ask]? — Rabbi.

But at any rate all agree that the Megillah is not to be read on Sabbath. What is the reason? — Rabbah replied: All are under obligation to read the Megillah, but not all are competent to read it, and there is therefore a danger that one may take the scroll in his hand and go to an expert to be instructed and [in doing so] convey it four cubits in a public domain. This is also the reason for [not blowing] the shofar on Sabbath and [for not carrying] the lulab.[12] R. Joseph said: It is because the poor are anxiously awaiting the reading of the Megillah.[13] It has been taught to the same effect: ‘Although it has been laid down that villages push the reading forward to the Court day, contributions are collected and distributed on the same day’. ‘Although it has been laid down’! On the contrary, it is because it has been laid down![14] — Read therefore: Since it has been laid down that villages push the reading forward to the Court day, contributions are collected and distributed on the same day, because the poor are waiting anxiously for the reading of the Megillah, but

---

(1) The concession was therefore made to them as a reward, but if they do not come into town there would be no concession in allowing them to read earlier.

(2) THE MEGILLAH IS READ ON THE ELEVENTH, THE TWELFTH etc.

(3) IF IT FALL, ON MONDAY etc.

(4) Lit., ‘in the first clause he (the Tanna) takes the order of the months and in the second the order of the days’.

(5) If he specified the dates of the month instead of the days of the week, he would have to begin with the reading on the fourteenth, and then take the thirteenth and so on.

(6) Because as these go in regular order, it is easier to remember, and there is less danger of the Tanna making a mistake.

(7) Lit., ‘towns should not be shifted from their place’.

(8) Esth. IX, 27.

(9) It is impracticable for towns to retain this date and also to read before the walled cities.

(10) It is impracticable for the towns to read before the walled cities and yet not shift their date.

(11) Lit., ‘since they are shifted, let them be shifted to etc.’

(12) V. Glos.

(13) Because they expect to receive gifts immediately afterwards, and on Sabbath these could not be given.

(14) As otherwise they would receive them on the actual day of Purim.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 5a

rejoicing[1] is kept only at the proper season.

Rab said: On the actual day of Purim the Megillah can be read even by an individual, but on the alternative days[2] it should be read only in a company of ten. R. Assi, however, said: Whether on the actual day or on the alternative days, it should be read only in a company of ten. In a case which actually occurred, Rab gave weight to the opinion of R. Assi.[3] But could Rab actually have said this?[4] — Did not Rab Judah the son of R. Samuel b. Shilath say in the name of Rab: ‘If Purim falls on Sabbath, Friday is the proper time’? — Friday the proper time! Surely Sabbath is the proper time! What Rab must have meant therefore is this: The alternative time is like the proper time.[5] Just as at the proper time [the Megillah may be read] by an individual, so at the alternative time [it may be read] by an individual. — No. For the reading of the Megillah[6] Rab requires ten. What then did he mean by saying ‘Friday is the proper time’? His intention was to reject the opinion of Rabbi, who said that since the towns had to shift their time they might as well shift to the Court day. Here, therefore, Rab informs us that Friday is the proper day [to which they should shift].

MISHNAH. WHAT IS RECKONED A LARGE TOWN? ONE WHICH HAS IN IT TEN MEN OF LEIsure.[7] ONE THAT HAS FEWER IS RECKONED A VILLAGE. IN RESPECT OF THESE[8] IT WAS LAID DOWN THAT THEY SHOULD BE PUSHED FORWARD BUT NOT POSTPONED. THE TIME, HOWEVER, OF BRINGING THE WOOD FOR THE PRIESTS,[9] OF KEEPING THE [FAST OF] THE NINTH OF AB,[10] OF OFFERING THE FESTIVAL SACRIFICE,[11] AND OF ASSEMBLING THE PEOPLE[12] IS TO BE POSTPONED[13] [TILL AFTER SABBATH] BUT NOT PUSHED FORWARD. ALTHOUGH IT WAS LAID DOWN THAT THE TIMES [OF READING THE MEGILLAH] ARE TO BE PUSHED FORWARD BUT NOT POSTPONED, IT IS PERMISSIBLE ON THESE [ALTERNATIVE] DAYS[14] TO MOURN, TO FAST, AND TO DISTRIBUTE GIFTS TO THE POOR. R. JUDAH SAID: WHEN IS THIS?[15] IN PLACES WHERE PEOPLE COME TO TOWN ON MONDAYS AND THURSDAYS. IN PLACES, HOWEVER, WHERE THEY DO NOT COME TO TOWN EITHER ON MONDAYS OR THURSDAYS, THE MEGILLAH IS READ ONLY ON ITS PROPER DAY.

GEMARA. [TEN MEN OF LEISURE]: A Tanna taught: The ten unoccupied men who attend synagogue.[16]

IN RESPECT OF THESE IT WAS LAID DOWN THAT THEY SHOULD BE PUSHED FORWARD BUT NOT POSTPONED. What is the reason? — R. Abba said in the name of Samuel: The text says, and he shall not go further.[17] R. Abba further said in the name of Samuel: Whence do we know that years are not to be counted by days?[18] Because it says, [It is the first to you] of the months of the year,[19] [which implies] that you reckon a year by months but not by days. The Rabbis of Caesarea said in the name of R. Abba: How do we know that a month is not reckoned by its hours?[20] Because it says, until a month of days:[21] you reckon a month by days, but you do not reckon a month by hours.[22]

THE TIME, HOWEVER, OF BRINGING THE WOOD FOR THE PRIESTS, OF KEEPING [THE FAST OF] THE NINTH OF AB, OF OFFERING THE FESTIVAL SACRIFICE AND OF ASSEMBLING THE PEOPLE IS POSTPONED BUT NOT PUSHED FORWARD. [The reason for the Fast of] the ninth of Ab is that we do not hasten the approach of trouble. [The reason for] the festival sacrifice and the assembling of the people is that the time for their performance has not yet arrived.[23]

A Tanna taught: ‘The festival sacrifice and all the period of the festival sacrifice is to be postponed’. We understand what is meant by the festival sacrifice, namely, that if its day happens to be Sabbath we postpone it till after the Sabbath. But what is meant by the ‘period of the festival sacrifice’? — R. Oshaia replied: What is meant is this: The festival sacrifice [is postponed if its time] occurs on Sabbath, and the ‘burnt-offering of appearance’[24] is postponed even till after the festival day which is the proper time for a festival sacrifice.[25] Which authority does this follow? Beth Shammai, as we have learnt: ‘Beth Shammai say, Peace-offerings may be brought on the festival, but without laying on of hands; not, however, burnt-offerings; while Beth Hillel say, Both burnt-offerings and peace-offerings may be brought, and hands may be laid on’.[26] Raba said: [The meaning is]: The festival sacrifice may be postponed for the whole period of the festival sacrifice,[27] but not more, as we have learnt: ‘If one did not bring a festival sacrifice on the first day of the festival, he may go on to do so throughout the festival, including the last day. If the festival terminated without his having brought the festival sacrifice, he need not bring another in compensation’.[28] R. Ashi said: [It means that] the festival sacrifice may be postponed for the whole period of the festival sacrifice,[29] and even on Pentecost which is only one day it may be postponed [for seven days], as we have learnt: [Beth Hillel] agree that if Pentecost falls on Sabbath, the day for killing [the sacrifice] is after the Sabbath’.[30]

R. Eleazar said in the name of R. Hanina: Rabbi planted a shoot on Purim,

---

(1) I.e., feasting.

(2) Lit., ‘not in its proper time’.

(3) And put himself out to assemble ten persons.

(4) That on the alternative days it can only be read before ten.

(5) ‘Friday is the proper time’ means, ‘Friday is regarded as the proper time’.

(6) On the alternative days.

(7) Heb. batlanim (idle men), v. supra, p. 14, n. 5.

(8) The times when the Megillah is to be read.

(9) It was usual for certain families to undertake to bring to Jerusalem on a certain day of the year a certain quantity of wood for the fire on the altar. V. Ta'an. 28a.
(10) In commemoration of the destruction of the first and second Temples, v. Glos.
(11) The hagigah, an optional peace-offering brought by individuals in honour of the festival, usually on the first day of the festival.
(12) On the Feast of Tabernacles in the first year of the Septennate, to hear the Law read. V. Deut. XXXI, 10-13.
(13) If it happens to fall on Sabbath.
(14) On which the Megillah is actually read.
(15) That a concession is made to villagers to read on the alternate days.
(16) Lit. , ‘Who are in the synagogue’. I.e., who are always available to attend synagogue if required. Cf. supra. [According to Rashi: These were men specially maintained for the purpose from the communal fund. Aliter: men of ample means who freely devoted their time to the service of the community. V. Aruch s.v. בטל
(17) Esth. IX, 27. V. supra 2a.
(18) Lit., that we do not count days (to make up) years. I.e., ‘a year’ without further specification does not mean three hundred and sixty-five days but twelve (lunar) months.
(19) Ex. XII, 2.
(20) I.e. , if the month is defective, we reckon it as twenty-nine days, and ‘a month’ without further specification means (if it is defective) twenty-nine days and not twenty-nine and a half, which is the real interval between one new moon and the next.
(21) Num. XI, 20. E.V. ‘a full month’.
(22) V. Nazir, Sonc. ed. p. 20 notes.
(23) And so with the wood for the priests, since none of these things can be done on Sabbath. The same, however, cannot be said of the Megillah, the purpose of which is to serve as a reminder.
(24) עולת ראייה A burnt-offering which was brought to fulfil the injunction of ‘they shall not appear before the Lord empty, (Deut. XVI, 16). This was regarded as obligatory.
(25) I.e., even if the first day is not a Sabbath, and a
(26) V. Bez. 19a.
(27) I.e., the whole seven days of Passover or Tabernacles.
(28) Lit., ‘he is not responsible for it’.
(29) [So MS.M.; cur. ed. ‘The festival sacrifice and all the period of the festival sacrifice’.]
(30) Beth Hillel differed from Beth Shammai in the case where Pentecost fell on Friday, but in this case they also agreed that both the festival sacrifice (hagigah) and the ‘burnt-offering of appearance’ could be killed after the festival, since they could not be offered on Sabbath. V. Hag. 17a.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 5b

and bathed in the [bathhouse of the] marketplace[1] of Sepphoris on the seventeenth of Tammuz[2] and sought to abolish the fast of the ninth of Ab, but his colleagues would not consent. R. Abba b. Zabda ventured to remark:[3] Rabbi, this was not the case. What happened was that the fast of Ab [on that year] fell on Sabbath, and they postponed it till after Sabbath, and he said to them, Since it has been postponed, let it be postponed altogether, but the Sages would not agree. He festival peace-sacrifice (hagigah) may be brought, this offering is not brought till the intermediate days. [R. ELeazar] thereupon applied to himself the verse, Better are two than one.[4]

But how could Rabbi have planted a shoot on Purim seeing that R. Joseph has learnt: [We read in connection with Purim] gladness and feasting and a good day;[5] ‘gladness’: this teaches that it is forbidden on these days to mourn; ‘feasting’: this teaches that it is forbidden on them to fast; ‘a good day’: this teaches that it is forbidden on them to do work? — The fact is that Rabbi belonged to a place which kept Purim on the fourteenth, and when he planted, it was on the fifteenth. Is this so?[6] Was not Rabbi in Tiberias, and Tiberias was walled in the days of Joshua son of Nun? — The fact is that Rabbi was in a place which kept on the fifteenth, and when he planted it was the fourteenth. But was he certain that Tiberias was walled in the days of Joshua son of Nun, seeing that Hezekiah read the Megillah in Tiberias both on the fourteenth and on the fifteenth, being uncertain whether it had been walled in the days of Joshua son of Nun or not? Hezekiah was in doubt, but Rabbi was certain. But even supposing he was certain, was he permitted to do this, seeing that it is written in Megillath Ta'anith,[7] ‘The fourteenth day and the fifteenth day are the days of Purim on which there is to be no mourning’, and Raba said, The only purpose of mentioning these days [in Megillath Ta'anith][8] was to make whatever is forbidden on the one forbidden on the other also? — This applies only to mourning and fasting, but for abstention from work one day and no more is prescribed. Is that so? Did not Rab see a man sowing flax on Purim, and curse him, so that the flax did not grow? — There he [the man] was doing it on the day which he ought to have kept. Rabbah the son of Raba said. You may even say [that Rabbi planted] on the day [which he ought to have kept]: [the Jews] bound themselves [in the days of Esther] to abstain from mourning and fasting, but not from work, since first it is written, ‘gladness and feasting and a good day’, but afterwards it is written, that they should make them days of feasting and gladness’,[9] and ‘a good day’ is not mentioned. Why then did Rab curse that man? — It was a case of ‘things which are permitted but others make a practice of abstaining from them’; but in Rabbi's place this[10] was not the practice. Or if you like I can say that they did in fact make a practice of this, and Rabbi planted a festive shoot, as we have learnt:[11] If these days[12] pass and they are still not answered, they abstain to a certain extent from business, from building and from planting, from betrothing and from marrying,[13] and a Tanna taught: ‘Building’ here means festive building; ‘planting’ means festive planting. What is festive building? If one builds a wedding residence for his son [on the occasion of his marriage]. What is a festive planting? If one plants a royal abarnaki.[14]

The text [above state]: ‘Hezekiah read in Tiberias on the fourteenth and on the fifteenth, being doubtful whether it had been walled in the days of Joshua son of Nun or not’. But could he have been in doubt about Tiberias, seeing that it is written, And the fortified cities were Ziddim-zer and Hamath and Rakath and Kinnereth,[15] and it is generally agreed that Rakath is Tiberias? — The reason why he was doubtful was because one side is bounded by the lake.[16] If so, why was he in doubt? It certainly was not walled, as it has been taught : Which has a wall,[17] and not merely a fence of houses.[18] Round about:[19] this excludes Tiberias, the lake forming its wall’![20] In respect of the houses of a walled town he was not in doubt; where he was in doubt was in respect of reading the Megillah. [He asked]: What constitutes the difference between villages and walled towns which are mentioned in connection with the reading of the Megillah? Is it that the former are exposed and the latter are not exposed, [in which case] Tiberias [belongs to the former] being also exposed, or is it that the latter are protected and the former are not protected, [in which case] Tiberias [belongs to the latter], being protected? That was why he was in doubt.

R. Assi read the Megillah in Huzal[21] on the fourteenth and on the fifteenth, being in doubt whether it had been walled in the days of Joshua son of Nun or not. According to another report, R. Assi said: Huzal of the house of Benjamin was walled in the days of Joshua son of Nun.

R. Johanan said: When I was a boy, I made a statement about which I afterwards questioned the old men,

---

(1) Heb. קרונה, a place where wagons were stationed on market.day (Rashi). [Alter: ‘spring’ from Gk. . V. Aruch and Krauss T.A. 1. 212.]

(2) One of the four public fasts. V. R. H. 18.

(3) Lit., ‘said in his (R. Eleazar's) presence’.

(4) Eccl. IV, 9. He was glad to be corrected.

(5) Esth. IX, 19.

(6) This is not so

(7) V. Glos.

(8) We know already from the Scripture that ‘mourning is forbidden on these days.
(9) Esth. IX, 22
(10) To abstain from work.
(11) That there is a planting of a festive kind.
(12) Of fasting for rain.
(13) V. Ta'an 12b.
(14) The correct form according to Levy and Jast. is achvarnaki, a Persian word for a spreading tree in a garden under which banquets could be held.
(15) Josh. XIX, 35.
(16) Of Galilee. Rakath therefore was not fortified on this side, and the question arises whether it should be accounted a ‘walled city’ for religious purposes.
(17) Lev. XXV, 30. In a town with a wall houses could be sold permanently.
(18) Lit., ‘wall of roofs’, though this is also a barricade.
(19) Ibid. 31.
(20) I.e., the lake being where the wall ought to be.
(21) [In Babylonia between Nehardea and Sura. It was called ‘of the House of Benjamin’ (v. infra) probably because its early settlers hailed from Benjamin (v. Obermeyer pp. 299ff). There was also a Huzal in Palestine. V. Keth., Sonc. ed. p. 716, n. 7.]

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 6a

and it was found that I was right: [I said:] Hamath is Tiberias. And why was it called Hamath? On account of the hot springs [hamme] of Tiberias. Rakath is Sepphoris, And why was it called Rakath? Because it slopes down like the bank [raktha] of a river. Kinnereth is Gennesaret. And why was it called Kinnereth? Because its fruits are sweet like the music of a harp [kinnor].[1] Raba said: Is there anyone who can maintain that Rakath is not Tiberias, seeing that when a man dies here [in Babylonia] they mourn for him there [in Tiberias] as follows: ‘Great was he in Sheshach[2] and he has a name in Rakath’,[3] and when the coffin is taken there they mourn for him thus: ‘Ye lovers of the remnants,[4] dwellers in Rakath, go forth and receive the slaughtered of the depths’.[5] When R. Zera departed, a certain mourner opened his dirge thus: ‘The land of Shinar[6] conceived and bore him, the beauteous land[7] brought up her delight. Woe to me, saith Rakath, for her precious instrument is lost’![8] No, said Raba. Hamath is the hot springs of Gerar; Rakath is Tiberias; and Kinnereth is Gennesaret. Why is it called Rakath? Because even the least worthy[9] of its inhabitants are full of religious performances like a pomegranate. R. Jeremiah said: Rakath is its proper name. And why is it called Tiberias? Because it is situated in the very centre[10] of the land of Israel. Rabbah said: Rakath is its name. And why is it called Tiberias? Because its aspect is good.[11]

Zeira said: Kitron is Sepphoris. And why is it called Sepphoris? Because it is perched on the top of a mountain like a bird [zippor]. But is Kitron Sepphoris? Now Kitron was in the territory of Zebulun, as it is written, Zebulun drove not out the inhabitants of Kitron nor the inhabitants of Nahalol.[12] Now Zebulun complained of his portion, as it says, Zebulun was a people which shamed his soul to death.[13] Why? Because Naphtali was on the high places of the field.[14] Zebulun complained to the Holy One, blessed be he, saying: Sovereign of the Universe, to my brethren Thou hast given fields and vineyards and to me Thou hast given hills and mountains; to my brethren Thou hast given lands, and to me Thou hast given lakes and rivers. [God] replied: They will all require thee for the hilazon,[15] as it says, and the hidden treasures of the sand,[16] and R. Joseph learnt: ‘Hidden’ indicates the hilazon; ‘treasures’ indicates the tunny fish;[17] ‘sand’ indicates white glass.[18] Zebulun then said: Sovereign of the Universe, who will inform me?[19] He replied: There they shall offer sacrifices of righteousness.[20] This shall be thy sign: whoever takes of thee without payment will not prosper in his business. Now if you assume that Kitron is Sepphoris, why did Zebulun complain of his portion, seeing that Sepphoris is an excellent spot? Nor can you say that it is not ‘flowing with milk and honey’. For Resh Lakish has said: I have myself seen the trail of milk and honey[21] round Sepphoris, and it is sixteen miles by sixteen miles. Nor can you say that [even so] his is not as good as his brothers, since Rabbah b. Bar Hanah said in the name of R. Johanan: I have myself seen the trail of milk and honey of the whole land of Israel, and it extends [altogether] about as far as from Be Kubi[22] to the Fort of Tulbanke, twenty-two parasangs in length and six parasangs in breadth?[23] Even so, he preferred fields and vineyards. This is also indicated by the language of the text, as it says, 'Naphtali upon the high places of the field'. This is a proof.

R. Abbahu said: [It is written], Ekron shall be rooted up;[24] this is Kisri the daughter of Edom,[25] which is situated among the sands, and which was a thorn in the side of Israel[26] in the days of the Greeks. When the House of the Hasmoneans grew powerful and conquered them, they called it 'the capture of the tower of Shir'.[27]

R. Jose b. Hanina said: What is meant by the text, And I will take away his blood out of his mouth and his detestable things from between his teeth, and he also shall be a remnant for our God?[28] 'And I will take away his blood out of his mouth': this refers to their sacrificial shrines.[29] 'And his detestable things from between his teeth': this refers to their oracles.[30] 'And he also shall be a remnant for our God': these are the synagogues and houses of learning in Edom.[31] And he shall be as a chief in Judah, and Ekron as a Jebusite:[32] these are the theatres and circuses[33] in Edom in which one day the chieftains of Judah shall publicly teach the Torah. R. Isaac said: Leshem is Pamias.[34] Ekron shall be rooted out: this is Caesarea, the daughter of Edom, which was a metropolis[35] of kings. Some say that this means that kings were brought up there, and others that kings were appointed from there. Caesarea[36] and Jerusalem [are rivals]. If one says to you that both are destroyed, do not believe him; if he says that both are flourishing, do not believe him; if he says that Caesarea is waste and Jerusalem is flourishing, or that Jerusalem is waste and Caesarea is flourishing, you may believe him, as it says, I shall be filled, she is laid waste;[37] if this one is filled, that one is laid waste, and if that one is filled, this one is laid waste. R. Nahman b. Isaac derived the same lesson from here: and the one people shall be stronger than the other people.[38] R. Isaac also said: What is the meaning of the verse, Let favour be shown to the wicked, yet will he not learn righteousness?[39] Isaac said in the presence of the Holy One, blessed be He: Sovereign of the Universe, let mercy be shown to Esau. He replied: He is wicked. He said to Him; He has not learnt righteousness.[40] He replied: In the land of uprightness[41] will he deal wrongfully.[42] He said: If so, let him not behold the majesty of the Lord.[42]

R. Isaac also said: What is meant by the verse, Grant not, O Lord, the desires of the wicked, draw not out his bit,[43] so that they exalt themselves, selah?[44] Jacob said before the Holy One, blessed be He: Sovereign of the Universe, grant not to Esau the wicked the desire of his heart, draw not out his bit:

---

(1) A more probable reason is that Kinnereth is shaped like a harp.

(2) A name given to Babylon in Jer. XXV, 26; LI, 41.

(3) Tiberias was for many centuries a great centre of Jewish learning, especially in the field of Biblical study.

(4) שרידים 'left', 'escaped'. A name given to Israel, after Jer. XXXI, 1.

(5) Babylon, so called because it was low-lying.

(6) Babylonia.

(7) The land of Israel, so called after Dan. XI, 16.

(8) Which shows that all are agreed that Rakath is Tiberias.

(9) Heb. rekanin, lit., 'empty ones'.

(10) Heb. tibbur, lit., 'navel'.

(11) Heb. Tobah Re'Iathah.

(12) Jud. I, 30.

(13) Ibid. V, 18. E.V. jeopardised their lives to the death'.

(14) Ibid.

(15) A small shell-fish from which was extracted the purple colour used for the fringes.

(16) Deut. XXXIII, 19.
(17) Much used for salting or pickling and an important article of commerce in ancient Palestine.
(18) Which was made from the sand of Zebulun. [This was a source of wealth owing to the difficulty of the process for producing colourless glass among the ancients. V. Krauss T.A. II, 286.]
(19) If they are cheating me.
(20) Ibid.
(21) Left by the goats after eating dates.
(22) [Near Pumbeditha. The parallel passage (Keth. 112a) has Be Mikse (cf. also בי כסי in MS.M. a.l.). On the geographical names v. Keth., Sonc. ed. p. 724 notes.]
(23) As a parasang was four miles, this would be about eight times the extent of Zebulun's trail.
(24) Zeph. II, 4.
(25) [Caesarea by the Sea is designated ‘the daughter of Edom’ because it was an outpost of the Roman Empire, Edom being in Rabbinic literature the prototype of Imperial Rome.]
(26) Lit. ‘a peg driven into Israel’.
(27) This seems to be a mistake for Zor (Tyre) which is the reading of MS.M. The Aruk reads Shed, lit., ‘demons’. [The reference is probably to the conquest of Caesarea by Alexander Jannaeus, v. Josephus Ant. XIII, 15, n. Cf. also Meg. Ta'an. III. The old name of Caesarea was Strato's Tower, after the Phoenician king Strato, its founder. The reading ‘shed’(demon) contains perhaps at allusion to the worship of Astarte by the original inhabitants. On the other readings v. Hildesheimer, H. Beitrage z. Geographie Palastinas, pp. 4ff]
(28) Zech. IX, 7.
(29) Beth Bamya. Lit., ‘house of high places’.
(30) Beth Galya. Lit., ‘house of revelation’. [These terms are taken by others as names of idolatrous shrines, the former being identified with Dajr al Banat and the latter with Bait Galia, both in the neighbourhood of Bethlehem. V. Horowitz S. Palestine, pp. 126 and 129.]
(31) I.e., the Roman Empire.
(32) Zech. IX, 7.
(33) Where the Roman Games took place.
(34) More correctly Panias, Caesarea Philippi, the modern Banias, a place near the source of the Jordan.
(35) This may mean either that it was a capital of Palestine or that some of its Roman Governors became Emperors.
(36) Probably Rome is meant.
(37) Ezek. XXVI, 2, of Tyre and Jerusalem.
(38) Gen. XXV, 23.
(39) Isa. XXVI,10.
(40) Rashi renders: ‘Can not one find a plea on his behalf’.
(41) I.e., the land of Israel.
(42) Ibid.
(43) E.V., ‘further not his evil device’.
(44) Ps, CXL, 9.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 6b

this refers to Germamia of Edom,[1] for should they but go forth they would destroy the whole world. R. Hama b. Hanina said: There are three hundred crowned heads in Germamia of Edom and three hundred and sixty-five chieftains in Rome,[2] and every day one set go forth to meet the other and one of them is killed, and they have all the trouble of appointing a king again.

R. Isaac also said: If a man says to you, I have laboured and not found, do not believe him. If he says, I have not laboured but still have found, do not believe him. If he says,I have laboured and found, you may believe him. This is true in respect of words of Torah,[3] but in respect of business, all depends on the assistance of heaven. And even for words of Torah this is true only of penetrating to the meaning,[4] but for remembering what one has learnt, all depends on the assistance of heaven.

R. Isaac also said: If you see a wicked man being favoured by fortune,[5] do not contend with him, as it says, Do not contend with evildoers.[6] Nor is this all, but he may even prosper in his undertakings, as it says, His ways prosper at all times.[7] Nor is this all, but he may even be declared right, as it says, Thy judgments are far above out of his sight.[8] Nor is this all, but he may even triumph over his enemies, as it says, As for all his adversaries, he puffeth at them.[8] Is this so? Has not R. Johanan said in the name of R. Simeon b. Yohai: It is permitted to contend with the wicked in this world, as it says, They that forsake the law praise the wicked, but such as keep the law contend with them.[9] Also it has been taught: R. Dosethai b. Mathon says: It is permitted to contend with the wicked in this world. And if one should whisper to you saying, [As for the text] Do not contend with evildoers, neither be thou envious against them that work unrighteousness, one whose conscience smites him speaks thus, and the meaning is, Do not contend with the evildoer to be like evildoers, neither be envious of such as work unrighteousness; and so it says also, Let not thy heart envy sinners?[10] — There is no contradiction; the one [piece of advice] refers to one's own affairs the other to religious matters.[11] Or if you like I may say that both refer to one's own affairs, and still there is no contradiction: the one is addressed to a man who is wholly righteous, and the other to one who is not wholly righteous,[12] as R. Huna said: What is the meaning of the verse, Wherefore lookest thou when they deal treacherously, and holdest thy peace when the wicked swalloweth up the man that is more righteous than he?[13] He can swallow up one that is more righteous than himself, he cannot swallow up one that is completely righteous. Or if you like I can say that when fortune is smiling on him, the case is different.

‘Ulla said: ‘Greek Italy’[14] is the great city of Rome,[15] which covers an area of three hundred parasangs by three hundred. It has three hundred markets corresponding to the number of days of the solar year. The smallest of them is that of the poultry sellers, which is sixteen mil by sixteen. The king dines every day in one of them. Everyone who resides in the city, even if he was not born there, receives a regular portion of food from the king's household,[16] and so does everyone who was born there, even if he does not reside there. There are three thousand baths in it, and five hundred windows the smoke from which goes outside the wall.[17] One side of it is bounded by the sea, one side by hills and mountains, one side by a barrier of iron, and one side by pebbly ground and swamp.[18]

MISHNAH. IF THE MEGILLAH HAS BEEN READ IN THE FIRST ADAR AND THE YEAR HAS SUBSEQUENTLY BEEN PROLONGED,[19] IT IS READ AGAIN IN THE SECOND ADAR. THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE FIRST ADAR AND THE SECOND ADAR SAVE ONLY IN THE READING OF THE MEGILLAH AND THE DISTRIBUTION OF GIFTS TO THE POOR.[20]

GEMARA. This [last statement] implies that in respect of the series of special portions[21] they are on the same footing.[22] Which authority does the Mishnah follow? [It would seem], neither the First Tanna nor R. Eliezer son of R. Jose nor R. Simon b. Gamaliel [in the following Baraitha], as it has been taught: ‘If the Megillah has been read in the first Adar and the year has then been prolonged,it is read in the second Adar, since all the precepts which are to be performed in the second Adar can be performed in the first,[23] except the reading of the Megillah’. R. Eliezer son of R. Jose says that it is not to be read [again] in the second Adar, because all precepts that are to be performed in the second Adar may be performed in the first. R. Simon b. Gamaliel says in the name of R. Jose that it is to be read again in the second, because precepts which are to be performed in the second Adar may not be performed in the first. They all however agree in regard to mourning and fasting, that they are forbidden on [the fourteenth and fifteenth of] both. Does not R. Simon b. Gamaliel here repeat the First Tanna? — R. Papa replied: They differ on the question of the series of special portions — the First Tanna holding that these should in the first instance be read in the second [Adar], but if they have been read in the first, this suffices. [But he also] excludes from this ruling the reading of the Megillah, [holding that], even though it has been read in the first [Adar], it must be read again in the second. R. Eliezer son of R. Jose on the other hand held that even the Megillah may in the first instance be read in the first [Adar], and R. Simon b. Gamaliel held that even the series of special portions, if they have been read in the first [Adar], must be read again in the second. Which authority then [does our Mishnah follow]? If [you say] the First Tanna, there is the difficulty of gifts.[24] If [you say] R. Eliezer son of R. Jose, there is the difficulty of the reading of the Megillah also. If [you say] R. Simon b. Gamaliel, there is the difficulty of the series of special portions! — In fact it is the First Tanna, and when he mentioned the reading of the Megillah, we suppose the same to apply to the gifts of the poor, since one depends on the other. Or if you like, I can say that in fact it is R. Simon b. Gamaliel, and there is an omission[25] in our Mishnah and what it means is this: 'There is no difference between the fourteenth of the first Adar and the fourteenth of the second Adar save in the matter of reading the Megillah and gifts to the poor'. from which we infer that in regard to mourning and fasting they are on the same footing, while in regard to the special portions no ruling is given.[26] R. Hiyya b. Abin said in the name of R. Johanan: The halachah[27] is as laid down by R. Simon b. Gamaliel, who gave it in the name of R. Jose. R. Johanan said: Both of them [R. Simon and R. Eliezer son of R. Jose] based their opinions on the same text, in every year.[28] R. Eliezer son of Jose reasoned: 'In every year'; just as in most years [we think of] Adar as the month which adjoins Shebat, so here [we keep the precepts] in the Adar which adjoins Shebat. R. Simon b. Gamaliel again reasoned: Just as in most years [we think of] Adar as adjoining Nisan, so here [we keep the precepts] in the Adar which adjoins Nisan. Now we understand R. Eliezer son of R. Jose taking the view he did, because it is inherently probable, it being a rule that we do not postpone the performance of religious precepts.[29] But what is the reason of R. Simon b. Gamaliel? — R. Tabi said: The reason of R. Simon b. Gamaliel is that more weight is to be attached to bringing one period of redemption close to another.[30] R. Eleazar said: The reason of R. Simon b. Gamaliel is derived from this verse: to confirm this second letter of Purim.[31] And it was necessary for the text to write

---

(1) There was another Germamia which was probably the land of the Cimmerians. [Rieger, P. (MGWJ. LXXX, p. 455) identifies it with Carminia, the Persian Kerman.]

(2) This word seems to be an interpolation.

(3) I.e., of the effort to gain enlightenment from the Torah.

(4) Lit,, 'sharpening' (the understanding).

(5) Lit., 'on whom the hour smiles'.

(6) Ps. XXXVII, 1. E.V. 'fret not thyself because of evildoers'.

(7) Ps. X, 5.

(8) Ibid.

(9) Prov. XXVIII,4.

(10) Prov. XXIII, 17. R. Johanan and R. Dosethai say that it is not permissive to contend with the wicked, which contradicts R. Isaac.

(11) In regard to which it is permissible to contend with the wicked.

(12) For whom it is not safe to contend with the wicked.

(13) Hab. I, 13.

(14) 'Ulla probably had in mind the saying quoted in the Midrash of Cant. that when Jeroboam made the golden calf (according to another version, when Manasseh brought the image into the Temple), the angel Gabriel stuck a pole in the sea, and a dry place was formed on which subsequently Rome was built.

(15) [home is so designated on account of the great influence of the Greek civilization on the Roman, v. Bacher, REJ, XXXIII, p. 190.]

(16) [Alluding to the regular distribution of corn and money in Rome.]

(17) The windows being higher than the wall of the city. Another reading is: 'Each one of them has five hundred windows, the smoke, etc.' [The allusion is to the famous thermal baths constructed by Diocletian (284-304).]

(18) [The reference is respectively to the Tiber, the wall erected by the Emperor Aurelius (271-276) and to the Ostian Marshes (stagno di ostia). For the other allusions in this hyerbolic description of Rome, v. Bacher, op. cit. pp. 190ff.]

(19) By the intercalation of a second Adar.

(20) This statement is immediately discussed in the Gemara.

(21) The special portions of Shekalim (Ex. XXX, 11-16), Zakor (Deut. XXV, 17-19), Parah (Num. XIX, 1-22) and ha-Hodesh (Ex. XII, 1-20) read in the synagogue between the Sabbath preceding the first of Adar and the first of Nisan. V. infra 29a.

(22) I.e., if they had been read in the first of Adar and the year is then proclaimed a leap year, they need not be read again in the second.

(23) l.e., if they have been performed in the first and the year is then prolonged, they need not be performed again.

(24) Since, as he does not mention gifts, we presume that he allows these to be made in the first Adar.

(25) These words are out of place here and seem not to have been read by Rashi. If we omit them we translate: ‘and the meaning of the Mishnah is as follows’. The omission in fact, as will be seen, is not in the Mishnah but in the Gemara which immediately follows it.

(26) It is this last clause which was omitted from the Gemara above.

(27) [הלכה So MSS.; cur. edd. הקדכתא.]

(28) Esth. IX, 27.

(29) I.e., we perform them at the first opportunity, even though it is also permissible to perform them later.

(30) Viz., Purim to Passover.

(31) Ibid. 29.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 7a

‘the second’ and also to write ‘in every year’. For if I had to base the rule on ‘every year’, I could raise the difficulty stated above: therefore it is written ‘second’.[1] And if I had been told only ‘second’, I might say that the Megillah is properly to be read both in the first and in the second. Therefore it says, in every year.[2] And what does R. Eliezer son of R. Jose make of this second’? — He requires it for the statement enunciated by R. Samuel b. Judah. For R. Samuel b. Judah said: At first they [Mordecai and Esther] decreed the observance of Purim only in Susa, but afterwards[3] throughout the world.

R. Samuel b. Judah said: Esther sent to the Wise Men saying, Commemorate me[4] for future generations. They replied, You will incite the ill will of the nations against us.[5] She sent back reply: I am already recorded in the chronicles of the kings of Media and Persia. Rab and R. Hanina and R. Johanan and R. Habiba record [the above statement in this form]: (in the whole of the Order Mo'ed, wherever this set of Rabbis is mentioned, R. Johanan is replaced by R. Jonathan):[6] Esther sent to the Wise Men saying, Write an account of me for posterity. They sent back answer, Have I not written for thee three times[7] — three times and not four?[8] [And they refused] until they found a verse written in the Torah, Write this a memorial in a book,[9] [which they expounded as follows]: ‘Write this’, namely, what is written here and in Deuteronomy;[10] ‘for a memorial’, namely, what is written in the Prophets;[11] ‘in a book’, namely, what is written in the Megillah. The difference [between the first and second of these opinions] is also found between two Tannaim. ‘Write this’, what is written here.[12] ‘For a memorial’, namely, what is written in Deuteronomy. ‘In a book’, namely, what is written in the Prophets. So R. Joshua.[13] R. Eliezer of Modi'im says: Write this’, namely, what is written here and in Deuteronomy; for a memorial’, namely, what is written in the Prophets; ‘in a book’, namely, what is written in the Megillah.

Rab Judah said in the name of Samuel; [The scroll] of Esther does not make the hands unclean.[14] Are we to infer from this that Samuel was of opinion that Esther was not composed[15] under the inspiration of the holy spirit? How can this be, Seeing that Samuel has said that Esther was composed under the inspiration of the holy spirit? — It was composed to be recited [by heart], but not to be written. The following objection was raised: ‘R. Meir says that [the scroll of] Koheleth[16] does not render the hands unclean, and that about the Song of Songs there is a difference of opinion. R. Jose says that the Song of Songs renders the hands unclean, and about Koheleth there is a difference of opinion. R. Simeon says that Koheleth is one of those matters in regard to which Beth Shammai were more lenient and Beth Hillel more stringent, but Ruth and the Song of Songs and Esther [certainly] make the hands unclean'! — Samuel concurred with R. Joshua.[17]

It has been taught: R. Simeon b. Menasia said: Koheleth does not render the hands unclean because it contains only the wisdom of Solomon.[18] They said to him], Was this then all that he composed? Is it not stated elsewhere, And he spoke three thousand proverbs,[19] and it further says, Add thou not unto his words.?[20] Why this further quotation? — In case you might object that he composed very much, and what it pleased him to write he wrote and what it did not please him he did not write. Therefore it says,[21] Add thou not to his words.[22]

It has been taught: R. Eleazar said: Esther was composed under the inspiration of the holy spirit, as it says, And Haman said in his heart.[23] R. Akiba says: Esther was composed under the inspiration of the holy spirit, as it says, And Esther obtained favour in the eyes of all that looked upon her.[24] R. Meir says: Esther was composed under the inspiration of the holy spirit, as it says, And the thing became known to Mordecai.[25] R.Jose b. Durmaskith said: Esther was composed under the inspiration of the holy spirit, as it says, But on the spoil they laid not their hands,[26] Said Samuel: Had I been there,[27] I would have given a proof superior to all, namely, that it says, They confirmed and took upon them,[28] [which means] they confirmed above[29] what they took upon themselves below. Raba said: All the proofs can be confuted except that of Samuel, which cannot be confuted. [Thus,] against that of R. Eleazar it may be objected that it is reasonable to suppose that Haman would think so, because there was no one who was so high in the esteem of the king as he was, and that when he spoke at length,[30] he was only expressing the thought concerning himself. Against the proof of R. Akiba it may be objected that perhaps the fact is as stated by R. Eleazar, who said that these words show that to every man she appeared to belong to his own nation.[31] Against R. Meir it may be objected that perhaps the fact is as stated by R. Hiyya b. Abba who said that Bigthan and Teresh were two men from Tarsis.[32] Against the proof of R. Jose b. Durmaskith it may be objected that perhaps they[33] sent messengers. Against the proof of Samuel certainly no decisive objection can be brought. Said Rabina: This bears out the popular saying, Better is one grain of sharp pepper than a basket full of pumpkins. R. Joseph said: It[34] can be proved from here: And these days of Purim shall not fail from among the Jews.[35] R. Nahman b. Isaac said, From here: Nor the memorial of them perish from their seed.[36] .

AND GIFTS TO THE POOR. R. Joseph learnt: And sending portions one to another[37] that means two portions[38] for one man. And gifts to the poor[39] that means two gifts to two men.[40] R. Judah Nesi'ah[41] sent to R. Oshaia the leg of a third-born calf[42] and a barrel of wine. He sent him back word saying,

---

(1) To show that it must be the Adar adjoining Nisan.

(2) To show that it is to be read only once even in leap years.

(3) By means of this second letter.

(4) Lit., 'fix me', by means of a book and a festival.

(5) Who will accuse the Jews of rejoicing at their downfall and celebrating it.

(6) This is evidently a gloss made by a later commentator.

(7) Prov. XXII, 20. (E. V. 'have I not written unto thee excellent things'.) The meaning is, Is not the war of Israel against Amalek mentioned three times in Scripture.

(8) The three times are (i) Ex. XVII, 8-16; (ii) Deut. XXV, 17-19; (iii) I Sam. XV.

(9) Ex. XVII, 14, referring to the war against Amalek.

(10) Which, being both in the Pentateuch, are counted as one.

(11) Viz., the Book of Samuel.

(12) In Ex. XVII.

(13) Who thus holds that the Megillah was not meant to be written.

(14) Like the scrolls of other books of the Scripture. V. Shab.14.

(15) Lit., 'said'.

(16) Ecclesiastes.
(17) That the Megillah was not meant to be written.
(18) And not inspired wisdom.
(19) I kings, V, 12. Since these were not written and Ecclesiastes was, we may conclude that the latter was inspired.
(20) Prov. XXX, 6.
(21) Lit., ‘come and hear’.
(22) Which shows that whatever he wrote down was inspired.
(23) Esth. VI, 6. How could the author know this if he was not inspired?
(24) Ibid. II, 15. Cf. previous note.
(25) Ibid. 22. Who revealed it to him if not the holy spirit?
(26) Ibid. IX, 10. Cf. note 8.
(27) among the Tannaim who discussed this matter.
(28) Ibid. 27.
(29) In heaven.
(30) ‘As for the man whom the king deligheth to honour’ etc.
(31) V. infra 13a.
(32) V. infra 13b.
(33) Those in the more distant parts.
(34) That Esther was written under the inspiration of the holy spirit.
(35) Esth. IX, 28.
(36) Ibid. R. Nahman prefers the second half of the verse, because the first half might refer only to that generation.
(37) Ibid. 22.
(38) The minimum number of ‘portions’ being two.
(39) Ibid.
(40) The minimum number of the plural אביונים ‘poor’ being two. Or it may mean that a gift is twice as big as a portion (Maharsha).
(41) R. Judah, the Prince II.
(42) So Rashi. Aliter: ‘a third grown’; ‘in the third year’ — which was supposed to be specially good.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 7b

You have fulfilled in our person, O our teacher, the words, and sending portions one to another.[1] Rabbah sent to Mari b. Mar by Abaye a sackful of dates and a cupful of roasted ears of corn. Said Abaye to him: Mari will now say, ‘If a countryman becomes a king, he does not take his basket off his neck’.[2] The other [Mari] sent him [Rabbah] back a sackful of ginger and a cup full of long-stalked pepper. Said Abaye: Now the Master [Rabbah] will say, I sent him sweet and he sends me bitter. Abaye said: When I went out of the Master's [Rabbah's] house, I was already full, but when I reached the other place[3] they set before me sixty dishes of sixty different preparations, and I had sixty pieces from them. The last preparation was called pot-roast, and [I liked it so much that] I wanted to lick the dish after it. Said Abaye: This bears out the popular saying, The poor man is hungry and does not know it,[4] or the other saying, There is always room for sweet things. Abaye b. Abin and R. Hananiah b. Abin used to exchange their meals with one another.[5]

Raba said: It is the duty of a man to mellow himself [with wine] on Purim until he cannot tell the difference between cursed be Haman’ and ‘blessed be Mordecai’.[6]

Rabbah and R. Zera joined together in a Purim feast. They became mellow, and Rabbah arose and cut R. Zera's throat.[7] On the next day he prayed on his behalf and revived him. Next year he said, Will your honour come and we will have the Purim feast together. He replied: A miracle does not take place on every occasion. Raba said: If one eats his Purim feast on the night [of the fourteenth], he does not thereby fulfil his obligation. What is the reason? It is written, days of feasting and gladness.[8] R. Ashi was sitting before R. Kahana. It grew late, and still the Rabbis did not arrive. He said to him, Why have not the Rabbis come? Perhaps they are busy with the Purim feast. He said to him: Could they not have had it last night? He replied: Is your honour not acquainted with the diction of Raba, 'If one eats his Purim feast on the night [of the fourteenth], he does not thereby fulfil his obligation'? He said to him; Did Raba really say so? (He replied Yes).[9] He then repeated it after him forty times, until he had safely stored it in his mind.[10]

MISHNAH. THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN FESTIVALS AND SABBATH SAVE ONLY IN THE MATTER OF [PREPARING] FOOD.[11]

GEMARA . We can infer from this that in the matter of preliminaries for preparing food[12] they are on the same footing. The Mishnah then does not agree with R. Judah, as it has been taught: 'There is no difference between festivals and Sabbath save in the matter of [preparing] food'. R. Judah, however, permits [on the festivals] the preliminaries for preparing food.[12] What is the reason of the First Tanna? The Scripture says: [Save that which every man must eat], that only [shall be prepared]:[13] that and not its preliminaries. R. Judah, on the other hand, stresses the word for you:[14] for you, which means, for all your requirements. Why then does not the other also admit this, seeing that it is written, 'for you'? — [This, he says, means], 'for you' and not for non-Jews; 'for you' and not for dogs. And [why does not] the other [adopt this view], seeing that it is written, 'that only'? [He replies]: It is written, 'that only', and it is written, 'for you'; we apply the one to preliminaries which can be attended to on the day before the festival, and the other to preliminaries which cannot be attended to on the day before the festival.

MISHNAH. THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN SABBATH AND THE DAY OF ATONEMENT SAVE ONLY THAT THE DELIBERATE VIOLATION OF THE ONE IS PUNISHED BY A HUMAN COURT AND THE DELIBERATE VIOLATION OF THE OTHER BY KARETH.[15]

GEMARA. It is to be inferred from this that in respect of compensation[16] they are on the same footing. Whose view does the Mishnah follow? — That of R. Nehunia b. ha-Kaneh, as it has been taught: R. Nehunia b. ha-Kaneh used to put the Day of Atonement on the same footing as Sabbath in respect of compensation: just as [one who deliberately breaks] Sabbath forfeits his life but is released from the obligation to make compensation,[17] so [one who deliberately breaks] the Day of Atonement forfeits his life but is released from the obligation to make compensation.

We have learnt elsewhere: If any who have incurred the penalty of kareth are flogged — they become quit of their kareth, as it says, Then thy brother should be dishonoured in thine eyes;[18] once he has been flogged, he is like thy brother.[19] So R. Hananiah b. Gamaliel. Said R. Johanan: The colleagues of R. Hananiah b. Gamaliel joined issue with him on this point. Raba said, They said in the school of Rab: We have [also] learnt [this]:[20] There is no difference between the Day of Atonement and Sabbath save that he who breaks the one is punished by a human court, while he who breaks the other is punished with kareth. Now if [R. Hananiah's opinion] is correct, then both are punished by the human court?[21] — R. Nahman replied: Whose view is this?[22] That of R. Isaac, who said that lashes are never inflicted on those who have incurred kareth, as it has been taught: Those who have incurred kareth are included in the general statement.[23] Why then is kareth specially mentioned in the case of [one who lies with] his sister?[24] To show that she is punished with kareth and not with lashes.[25] R. Ashi said: You may even say that it[26] is the view of the Rabbis:[27] in the case of the one [the breaker of Sabbath], the essential [punishment for] his presumption is inflicted by the human court, but in the case of the other, the essential punishment for his presumption consists in 'being cut off'.[28]

---

(1) [Cur. ed. add: and 'gifts to the poor'].

(2) As much as to say, Although you have become head of the Academy (in Pumbeditha), you send very ordinary gifts.

(3) The house of Mari.
(4) Till the food is actually set before him.
(5) According to Rashi, this means that one provided the feast one year and the other the next. More naturally it could mean that they sent their meals to one another and thereby fulfilled the obligation of ‘sending portions to one another’ (Maharsha).
(6) [The two phases have the same numerical value, 502.]
(7) Apparently without actually killing them But cf. Maharsha.
(8) Esth. IX, 22.
(9) These words are bracketed in the text.
(10) Lit., ‘and he was (then) like one who had put it in his purse’.
(11) Lit., ‘food of the person’. I.e., that food for the day may be cooked on festivals but not on Sabbath.
(12) E.g., the sharpening of a knife.
(13) Ex. XII, 16; relating to the Passover.
(14) Ibid.
(15) I.e., by the hand of heaven. V. Lev. XXIII, 30 and Glos.
(16) For damage done by the act of transgression.
(17) The lesser penalty being merged in the larger penalty.
(18) Deut. XXV, 3.
(19) Which shows that he is not ‘cut off’.
(20) That there is a difference of opinion.
(21) And the one who is flogged for breaking Yom Kippur becomes quit of kareth.
(22) That of our Mishnah. (9) And not of the colleagues of R. Hananiah.
(23) Of the punishment for incest. Lev. XVIII, 29.
(24) In Lev. XX, 17.
(25) And the same applies to all other cases punishable by kareth. V. Mak. 13b.
(26) Our Mishnah.
(27) And still there is no difference between them and R. Hananiah.
(28) הכרת cf. Num. XV, 31; though lashes may also be inflicted.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 8a

MISHNAH.THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN ONE WHO IS INTERDICTED BY VOW TO HAVE NO BENEFIT FROM HIS NEIGHBOUR AND ONE WHO IS INTERDICTED BY VOW FROM HIS FOOD, SAVE IN THE MATTER OF SETTING FOOT [ON HIS PROPERTY] AND OF UTENSILS WHICH ARE NOT USED FOR [PREPARING] FOOD.[1]

GEMARA. It is to be inferred from this that in the matter of utensils which are used for preparing food they are on the same footing.

SETTING FOOT. But people are not particular about this?[2] — Raba said: Whose view is this? R. Eleazar's, who said that [even] a thing which is usually excused[3] is forbidden to one who vows to have no benefit.

MISHNAH. THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN VOWS AND FREEWILL-OFFERINGS SAVE THAT VOWED OFFERINGS HAVE TO BE REPLACED[4] BUT FREEWILL-OFFERINGS NEED NOT BE REPLACED.

GEMARA. It is to be inferred from this that in respect of ‘not delaying’[5] they are on the same footing.

We have learnt in another place: What is a vow? Where a man says, I take upon me the obligation to bring a burnt-offering. What is a freewill-offering? Where a man says, Behold this is [to be] a burnt-offering. What then is the [practical] difference between vows and freewill-offerings? — If vowed animals die or are stolen or lost, the one who offered is under obligation to replace them;[6] if freewill-offerings die or are stolen or lost, he is not under obligation to replace them.[7] Whence is this rule derived? — As our Rabbis have taught: And it shall be accepted for him to make atonement upon him:[8] R. Simeon says: That which is ‘upon him’[9] he is under obligation to replace.[10] How is it implied [that this substitute is upon him’]? — R. Isaac b. Abdini replied: Since he has said ‘[I take] upon me’, it is as if he had taken it upon his shoulder.

MISHNAH. THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN ONE SUFFERING FROM AN ISSUE WHO MAKES TWO OBSERVATIONS[11] AND ONE WHO MAKES THREE,[12] SAVE IN THE MATTER OF BRINGING A SACRIFICE.[13]

GEMARA. From this it is to be inferred that in the matter of [defiling] a bed or a seat[14] and counting seven days[15] they are on the same footing. Whence is this rule derived? — As our Rabbis have taught: ‘R. Simai says: The text specified two [observations][16] and designated the man as unclean, and also specified three[17] and designated him as unclean’. How do we explain this? Two bring uncleanness but do not entail a sacrifice, three entail a sacrifice. But cannot I say that two bring uncleanness but do not entail a sacrifice, while three entail a sacrifice but no uncleanness?[18] — To this you may answer that before he has three observations he must have two.[19] Let me say then that two observations entail a sacrifice but not uncleanness,[18] whereas three bring uncleanness also? — Do not imagine such a thing, since it has been taught: And the priest shall make atonement for him before the Lord from his issue;[20] this implies that some persons with an issue bring a sacrifice and some do not.[21] How is this? if he has three observations, he brings a sacrifice, if only two, he does not bring. Or shall we expound differently and say that if he has two he brings the sacrifice, but if three he does not? — You can reply to this that before he has three he must have had two.[22] And both the exposition of R. Simai and the text ‘from his issue’ are necessary [to prove this point]. For if I had only the dictum of R. Simai, I could raise against it the objection mentioned, and therefore l have recourse to ‘from his issue’. And if I had only ‘from his issue’, I should not know how many observations [are necessary for a sacrifice]; therefore I have the dictum of R. Simai.[23]

Now, however, that you have assumed that the words ‘from his issue are to be used for a special exposition,[24] [I may ask], what lesson do you derive front the words and when he that hath an issue is cleansed from his issue?[25] That is required for the following lesson, as it has been taught: ‘And when he that hath an issue is cleansed’: that is to say, when the issue ceases.[26] ‘From his issue’: that is to says from his issue [only], and not from both his issue and his leprosy.[27] ‘Then he shall number’: this teaches us that one with an issue who has had two observations must count seven days [without issue]. But cannot this be deduced logically [as follows]?[28] If he defiles bed and seat, shall he not [all the more] be required to count seven days?

---

(1) The latter may take these liberties, the former may not.

(2) And therefore if one takes this liberty, he cannot be said to be deriving any benefit.

(3) ויתור Aliter: ‘The (retailer's customary) addition (to exact measure)’, and the accenting of which is not counted as receiving a benefit.

(4) Lit., one is responsible for them’. V. infra.

(5) To fulfil the undertaking, in accordance with Deut. XXIII, 22.

(6) Because the vow still stands.

(7) Because the undertaking applied only to that particular animal.

(8) So lit. E.V, ‘for him’. Lev. I, 4.

(9) I.e.,the vow.

(10) Apparently R. Simeon renders: ‘Any animal will be accepted so long as it is "upon him"’.

(11) On a single day or two successive days.

(12) On one day or three successive days or two on one day and one on the next.

(13) V. Lev. XV, 13-15.
(14) Ibid. 4-6.
(15) For his cleansing, after the cessation of the issue. Ibid.13.
(16) Lev. XV, 2: When a man hath an issue out of his flesh, his issue is unclean.
(17) Ibid. 3: And this shall be his uncleanness in his issue: whether his flesh run with his issue, or his flesh be stopped from his issue, it is his uncleanness,
(18) Viz., the stringent uncleanness of one with an issue (cf. nn. 3-4), but only the lighter uncleanness resulting from a discharge of semen. V. Deut. XXIII, 11-12.
(19) And is already unclean as a zab.
(20) Ibid. 15.
(21) The proposition ‘from’ is stressed, as implying only part of these who have an issue.
(22) And so already become liable for the sacrifice.
(23) To show that it is three.
(24) I.e.,for some lesson not contained in the literal meaning of the words.
(25) Ibid. 13.
(26) V. next note.
(27) If the one with an issue was also a leper, he need not wait for his counting till he is healed of his leprosy.
(28) And why therefore is a text required?

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 8b

— This argument can be confuted by the case of the woman who is keeping day for day,[1] for such a one defiles bed and seat[2] but does not count seven days. And thus do not be surprised that this one also, although he defiles bed and seat, should not be obliged to count seven days. Therefore it says, ‘from his issue, and he shall number’, which implies that after part of his issue[3] he shall number; this teache[2] with regard to one with an issue who has had two observations that he is required to count seven days.

R. Papa said to Abaye: Why do we use the one text ‘from his issue’ to include[4] one with an issue who has had two observations, and the other text ‘from his issue’ to exclude[5] one with an issue who has had two observations? — He replied: If you should assume that the former text[6] is for the purpose of excluding, then the text could simply omit the word. And should you say, we could then derive the rule [that he is to count seven days] by a logical deduction, such a deduction could be confuted by the case of the woman who counts day for day. And should you say that this word is required to show that the text refers to one who is cleansed of his issue [only] and not [of his issue and] his leprosy, — in that case the text should say, ‘and when he that hath an issue is cleansed’, and no more. Why do I require, ‘from his issue’? This teaches that one with an issue who has two observations is required to count seven days.

MISHNAH. THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A LEPER WHO IS UNDER ORSERVATION[7] AND ONE DEFINITELY DECLARED SUCH[8] SAVE IN THE MATTER OF LEAVING THE HAIR LOOSE[9] AND RENDING THE GARMENTS.[10] THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A LEPER WHO HAS BEEN DECLARED CLEAN[8] AFTER BEING UNDER OBSERVATION[11] AND ONE WHO HAS BEEN DECLARED CLEAN[8] AFTER HAVING BEEN DEFINITELY DECLARED A LEPER SAVE IN THE MATTER OF SHAVING AND [OFFERING] THE BIRDS.[12]

GEMARA. From this it is to be inferred that in the matter of being sent outside [the camp][13] and uncleanness[14] they are on the same footing. Whence is this rule[15] derived? — As R. Samuel b. Isaac taught before R. Huna: Then the priest shall pronounce him clean; it is a scab; and he shall wash his clothes and be clean;[16] which implies that he shall already have been [in a sense] clean[17] from the first, not having been liable to rending the garments and loosening the hair. Said Raba to him. If that is so, then in regard to one with an issue, of whom it is written, and he shall wash his garments and be clean,[18] how is it possible to say that he shall have been clean from the start? What it means then is, ‘clean now so far as not to defile earthenware vessels by moving them’,[19] so that, even if he observes an issue again, he does not defile them retrospectively. So here, [the meaning is that] the leper is clean now to the extent of not defiling retrospectively by his entrance![20] The fact is, said Raba, that we learn it from here: And the leper in whom the plague is;[21] [that means] one whose leprosy is due to the state of his body, excluding this one[22] whose leprosy is due to days.[23] Said Abaye to him: If that is so, then when it says, All the days wherein the plague is in him he shall be unclean,[24] are we to say that one whose leprosy is due to his state of body is required to be sent out of the camp, but one whose leprosy is not due to his state of body is not to be sent out of the camp? And should you reply that that is so, [how can this be] seeing that it states, THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A LEPER UNDER OBSERVATION AND ONE DEFINITELY DECLARED SUCH SAVE IN THE MATTER OR LOOSENING THE HAIR AND RENDING THE GARMENTS, from which it may be inferred that in the matter of being sent out [of the camp] and defiling by entrance they are on the same footing? — [The text might have said simply] ‘the days’, and it says, ‘all the days’, to bring a leper under observation within the rule of sending out [of the camp]. If that is the case, what is the reason that he is not required to shave and offer birds [which is not the case], as it states: THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A LEPER UNDER OBSERVATION AND ONE DEFINITELY DECLARED SUCH SAVE IN THE MATTER OF SHAVING AND OFFERING BIRDS? — Abaye replied: Scripture says: And the priest shall go forth out of the camp, and behold the plague of leprosy is healed in the leper;[25] this means, one whose leprosy is such because it requires healing,[26] and excludes one whose leprosy is such in virtue not of [requiring] healing but of days [of isolation].

MISHNAH. THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN BOOKS [OF THE SCRIPTURE][27] AND TEFILLIN AND MEZUZAHS[28] SAVE THAT THE BOOKS MAY BE WRITTEN IN ANY LANGUAGE[29] WHEREAS TEFILLIN AND MEZUZAHS MAY BE WRITTEN ONLY IN ASSYRIAN.[30] R. SIMEON B. GAMALIEL SAYS THAT BOOKS [OF THE SCRIPTURE] ALSO WERE PERMITTED [BY THE SAGES] TO BE WRITTEN ONLY IN GREEK.

GEMARA. [From this we infer] that for requiring [the sheets] to be stitched with sinews[31] and for defiling the hands[32] both are on the same footing.

BOOKS MAY BE WRITTEN IN ANY LANGUAGE. The following seems to conflict with this: ‘[A Scriptural scroll containing] a Hebrew text written[33] in Aramaic or an Aramaic text written in Hebrew,[34] or [either] in Hebraic script,[35] does not defile the hands;[36] [it does not do so] until it is written in Assyrian script upon a scroll and in ink’! — Raba replied: There is no contradiction;

---

(1) If a niddah (v. Glos.) who is counting her eleven days between the menses sees blood on one or two of the days, she need not count seven clean days but becomes clean after ablution on the evening of the following day. V. Sanh., Sonc. ed. p. 577, n. 2.

(2) V. Nid. 72b.

(3) Cf. p. 43. n. 10.

(4) Under the obligation to count seven days.

(5) From the obligation to bring a sacrifice.

(6) Lev. XV, 13.

(7) מוסגר Lit., ‘shut up’. V. Lev. XIII, 4.

(8) מוחלט Lit., ‘confirmed’; by the priest. Ibid. v. 11.

(9) Or ‘let his hair grow wild’, v. M.K 15a.

(10) Which is incumbent on the latter but not on the former. Ibid. 45.

(11) I.e., one in whom the suspicious signs did not develop into actual leprosy

(12) Which was incumbent on the latter. Lev. XIV, 2-7.

(13) V. Num. V, 2.

(14) The stringent laws of uncleanness to which lepers are subjected.

(15) That the leper under observation need not loosen his hair and rend his garments.

(16) Lev. XIII, 6, of the suspect in whom the signs do not develop.

(17) The Hebrew word being וטהר in the present tense (as if to say: ‘and he was already clean’), where the future ויטהר might have been used.

(18) Lev. XV, 13. Here again he present tense וטהר is used.

(19) Without touching them. Such a defilement is termed היסט.

(20) The rule was that a leper by entering a room defiled persons and things within it. The question thus remains, Whence is this rule (v. p. 45, n. 9) derived?

(21) Lev. XIII, 45.

(22) The leper under observation.

(23) It is the seven days of his observation that cause him to be designated a leper, for should there be no change in the leper at the end of the seven days he is pronounced clean.

(24) Ibid. 46.

(25) Lev. XIV, 3.

(26) I.e., who has been declared definitely a leper. Only such a one has to shave and bring birds.

(27) This means apparently, scrolls of the Scriptural books.

(28) V. Glos.

(29) Apparently what is meant is that official translations for use in the synagogue may be made in any language. We know actually of two such — the Aramaic translation known as Targum Onkelos, and the Greek translation of Aquilas made under the supervision of R. Eleazar and R. Joshua.

(30) ‘Assyrian is used as the equivalent of Hebrew written in the square characters used for religious writings. This script was called ‘Assyrian’, the reason being that it came into common use after the return of the Jews from the Babylonian exile; v. Sanh. 21b, Sonc. ed. pp. 119ff and notes.

(31) And not merely with flax thread.

(32) V. supra p. 35, n. 11.

(33) I.e., translated into.

(34) E.g., the Chaldaic parts of Daniel and Ezra.

(35) כתב עברי. The ancient Hebrew script (as found e.g., in the Siloam and Moabite inscriptions and old Jewish coins, and in modified form in Samaritan writing) which was in common use before the Exile. V. Sanh. ibid.

(36) Whereas the Mishnah seems to imply that they do.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 9a

the one statement [that of the Mishnah] speaks of [books written in] our script,[1] the other of [books written in] their script.[2] Said Abaye to him: How have you explained the other statement [that of the Baraitha]? As referring to their script. [If so], why should it say, ‘A Hebrew text written in Aramaic or an Aramaic text written in Hebrew’? The same would apply even to a Hebrew text which is written in Hebrew or an Aramaic text which is written in Aramaic, since it goes on to say. ‘till it is written in Assyrian on a scroll in ink’![3] No. [What you must say is], there is no contradiction: the one statement [in the Mishnah] represents the view of the Rabbis, the other that of R. Simeon b. Gamaliel. But if it is the view of R. Simeon b. Gamaliel, what about Greek?[4] — No. What you must say is, there is no contradiction; the one statement [in the Mishnah] refers to scrolls, the other to tefillin and mezuzahs. What is the reason [why] tefillin, and mezuzahs [must be written in Assyrian]? — Because in reference to them it is written, and they shall be,[5] which implies, they shall be as they originally were. What cases are there of Aramaic which can be written in Hebrew? I grant you we find in the Torah yegar sahadutha;[6] but here [in the case of tefillin, and mezuzoth] what Aramaic is there? — No. What you must say is, there is no contradiction; the one statement [in the Baraitha] refers to the Megillah, the other to the other books [of the Scripture]. What is the reason in the case of the Megillah? — Because it is written In regard to it, according to their writing and according to their language.[7] What case of Aramaic being written in Hebrew is possible here? — R.

Papa said: And the king's pithgam[8] shall be published;[9] R. Nahman b. Isaac said: And all the wives shall give yekar[10] to their husbands.[11] R. Ashi said: That statement [in the Baraitha] was made in reference to other books [of the Scripture], and it follows the view of R. Judah, as it has been taught: ‘Tefillin and mezuzahs are to be written only in Assyrian, but our Rabbis allowed them to be written in Greek also’.[12] But is it not written, and they shall be? I must say therefore, ‘Scrolls of the Scripture may be written in any language, and our Rabbis permitted them to be written in Greek’.[13] They permitted! This would imply that the First Tanna forbade it! What I must say therefore is, ‘Our Rabbis permitted them to be written only in Greek’. And it goes on to state, ‘R. Judah said: When our teachers permitted Greek, they permitted it only for a scroll of the Torah’.[14] This was on account of the incident related in connection with King Ptolemy,[15] as it has been taught: ‘It is related of King Ptolemy that he brought together seventy-two elders and placed them in seventy-two [separate] rooms, without telling them why he had brought them together, and he went in to each one of them and said to him, Translate[16] for me the Torah of Moses your master.[17] God then prompted each one of them and they all conceived the same idea and wrote for him, God created in the beginning,[18] I shall make man in image and likeness,[19] And he finished on the sixth day,and rested on the seventh day,[20] Male and female he created him[21] [but they did not write ‘created them’],[22] Come let me descend and confound their tongues,[23] And Sarah laughed among her relatives;[24] For in their anger they slew an ox and in their wrath they digged up a stall;[25] And Moses took his wife and his children, and made them ride on a carrier of men;[26] And the abode of the children of Israel which they stayed in Egypt and in other lands was four hundred years,[27] And he sent the elect of the children of Israel;[28] And against the elect of the children of Israel he put not forth his hand;[29]

---

(1) Even though in another language.

(2) The Scriptural text was transliterated into the characters of a foreign language.

(3) This shows, according to Abaye, that the Baraitha is speaking of the language independently of the script.

(4) According to Abaye the Baraitha, in saying, ‘till it is written in Assyrian’ forbids even Greek, which is allowed by R. Simeon.

(5) Deut. VI, 8.

(6) Gen. XXXI, 47.

(7) Esth. VIII, 9.

(8) Aramaic for the Heb. dabar, ‘decree’.

(9) Ibid. I, 20.

(10) Aramaic for the Heb. kabod, ‘honour’.

(11) Ibid.

(12) The quotation is here interrupted.

(13) The quotation is again interrupted.

(14) Thus R. Judah forbade other books of the Scripture to be written save in the original language.

(15) It seems to be an historical fact that a Greek translation of the Pentateuch was made in the time of King Ptolemy Philadelphus of Egypt (285-247), but many regard this as apocryphal; cf, The Letter of Aristeas.

(16) Lit., ‘write’.

(17) Here follow a number of cases in which the translation of the Elders did not follow the Massoretic text. We do not find all these variants in our texts of the Septuagint.

(18) Instead of ‘In the beginning God created’. The purpose of this change was apparently to prevent the idea of Two Powers being read into the text, i.e., ‘In the beginning’ and ‘God’. V. Rashi and Tosaf. a.I.

(19) Gen. 1, 26, instead of ‘Let us make’, for the same reason.

(20) Ibid. II, 2, instead of ‘and he finished on the seventh day’, which might be taken to imply that some work was done on the seventh day.

(21) Ibid. V, 2.

(22) Which might be taken to mean that they were separate from the first.

(23) Ibid. XI, 7: ‘me’ instead of ‘us’. V. n. 7.

(24) Ibid. XVIII, 12: instead of ‘in herself’, in order to make a distinction between Sarah and Abraham, who also laughed inwardly.

(25) Ibid. XLIX, 6: ‘ox’ instead of ‘man’, to save the name of Jacob's sons.

(26) Ex. IV, 20: carrier of men’ instead of ‘ass’, to save the dignity of Moses.

(27) Ibid. XII, 40. The words ‘and in other lands’ are inserted because, according to the Biblical record, the Israelites were at the utmost 210 years in Egypt.

(28) Ibid. XXIV, 5: ‘elect’ instead of ‘young men’, which is regarded as not suitable to the context.

(29) Ibid. 11 : ‘elect’ instead of ‘nobles’.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 9b

I have taken not one valuable of theirs;[1] Which the Lord thy God distributed to give light to all the peoples;[2] And he went and served other gods which I commanded should not be served.[3] They also wrote for him ‘the beast with small legs’ and they did not write ‘the hare’,[4] because the name of Ptolemy's wife was hare,[5] lest he should say, The Jews have jibed at me and put the name of my wife in the Torah.

R. SIMEON B. GAMALIEL SAYS THAT BOOKS [OF THE SCRIPTURE] ALSO ARE PERMITTED TO BE WRITTEN ONLY IN GREEK. R. Abbahu said in the name of R. Johanan: The halachah follows R. Simeon b. Gamaliel. R. Johanan further said: What is the reason of R. Simeon b. Gamaliel? Scripture says, God enlarge Japheth, and he shall dwell in the tents of Shem;[6] [this means] that the words of Japheth[7] shall be in the tents of Shem. But why not say [the words of] Gomer and Magog?[8] — R. Hiyya b. Abba replied: The real reason is because it is written, Let God enlarge [yaft] Japheth: implying, let the chief beauty [yafyuth] of Japheth[9] be in the tents of Shem.

MISHNAH. THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A PRIEST ANOINTED WITH THE OIL OF ANOINTMENT AND ONE WHO [ONLY] WEARS THE ADDITIONAL GARMENTS[10] SAVE IN THE MATTER OF THE BULLOCK WHICH IS OFFERED FOR THE [UNWITTING BREAKING OF] ANY OF THE COMMANDMENTS.[11] THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A REGULAR[12] [HIGH] PRIEST AND ONE WHO HAS PASSED THROUGH [THE OFFICE][13] SAVE IN RESPECT OF THE BULLOCK OF THE DAY OF ATONEMENT AND THE TENTH OF THE EPHAH.[14]

GEMARA. [BETWEEN THE PRIEST ANOINTED etc.]. From this we infer that in the matter of the bullock of the Day of Atonement and the tenth of the ephah they are on the same footing. The Mishnah, it appears, does not concur with R. Meir; for with regard to the view of R. Meir, it has been taught: ‘One who wears the additional garments [without having been anointed] brings the bullock which is offered [by the High Priest] for the [unwitting breaking of] any of the precepts’. So R. Meir. The Sages, however, say that he does not offer it. What is the reason of R. Meir? — As it has been taught: [If the] anointed [priest shall sin]:[15] this tells me only of one anointed with the oil of anointment. How do I know that it applies also to one who [merely] wears the additional garments? — Because it says, the ‘anointed’.[16] How have you explained [the Mishnah]? As not concurring with R. Meir. Look now at the next clause: THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A REGULAR HIGH PRIEST AND ONE WHO HAS PASSED THROUGH THE OFFICE SAVE IN THE MATTER OF THE BULLOCK OF THE DAY OF ATONEMENT AND THE TENTH OF THE EPHAH. We infer from this that in all other matters they are on the same footing; and so we come round to the view of R. Meir, as it has been taught: ‘If something happened to disqualify him and another priest was appointed to take his place, when the first returns to his service the second is still liable to all the obligations of the high priesthood’.[17] So R. Meir. R. Jose said: The first returns to his service whereas the second is qualified to act neither as a high priest nor as an ordinary priest. R. Jose further said: it happened with R. Jose b. Ulam[18] from Sepphoris that a disqualification occurred to the high priest and they appointed him in his place, and the case eventually came before the Sages and they said: The first returns to his service. The second is qualified to act neither as a high priest nor as an ordinary priest: as a high priest, so as not to create enmity,[19] as an ordinary priest, because we can raise to a higher grade of holiness but we never put down to a lower.[20] Are we then to say that the first clause [of the Mishnah] follows the Sages and the second R. Meir? — Said R. Hisda: Yes; the first clause follows the Sages and the second R. Meir. R. Joseph said: The whole gives the opinion of Rabbi, who combined the views of[21] differing Tannaim.[22]

MISHNAH. THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE[23] BETWEEN A GREAT HIGH PLACE[24] AND A SMALL ONE[25] SAVE IN THE MATTER OF THE PASCHAL LAMB OFFERING.[26] THIS IS THE GENERAL PRINCIPLE: ANY ANIMAL WHICH IS THE OBJECT OF A VOW OR A FREEWILL-OFFERING MAY BE BROUGHT ON A [SMALL] HIGH PLACE, ANY ANIMAL WHICH IS NOT THE OBJECT OF A VOW OR A FREEWILL-OFFERING MAY NOT BE BROUGHT ON A [SMALL] HIGH PLACE.

GEMARA. THE PASCHAL LAMB and nothing else?[27] — We should say, things like the paschal lamb.[28] Whose view is this? — R. Simeon's, as it has been taught: ‘The congregation also did not offer [on the large high place] anything save paschal lambs and obligatory sacrifices for which there is a fixed time; but obligatory sacrifices for which there is no fixed time[29] were not offered either on the one or the other’.

MISHNAH. THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN SHILOH[30] AND JERUSALEM SAVE THAT IN SHILOH SACRIFICES OF LESSER SANCTITY[31] AND SECOND TITHE[32] COULD BE EATEN ANYWHERE WITHIN SIGHT [OF THE TOWN], WHEREAS IN JERUSALEM THEY HAD TO BE CONSUMED WITHIN THE WALLS. IN BOTH PLACES THE MOST HOLY SACRIFICES[33] WERE EATEN WITHIN THE CURTAINS.[34] AFTER THE SANCTIFICATION OF SHILOH

---

(1) Num. XVI, 15: ‘valuable’ for ‘ass’.

(2) Deut. IV, 19. The words ‘to give light’ are inserted, to guard against misunderstanding.

(3) Ibid. XVII, 3. The words ‘should be served’ are inserted, to avoid misunderstanding.

(4) In Lev. XI, 6.

(5) In fact, it was Ptolemy's father who was named ‘hare’ ().

(6) Gen. IX, 27.

(7) Javan (Greece) is reckoned among the sons of Japheth in Gen. X, 2.

(8) Who are also reckoned among the sons of Japheth, loc. cit.

(9) I.e., the Greek language.

(10) I.e., the robe, the breastplate, the mitre and the plate, which were worn by the high priest but not by ordinary priests. High priests, according to tradition, ceased to be anointed from the days of Josiah.

(11) Lev. IV, 3.

(12) Lit., ‘officiating’.

(13) And who retired; i.e., one who was appointed to take the place of a High Priest while the latter is temporarily disqualified. When the disqualification is removed the High Priest returns to his duties while his substitute retires. V. infra.

(14) The daily offering of the High Priest. Lev. VI, 13-15. Only one person could make these two offerings.

(15) Lev. IV, 3.

(16) The definite article is regarded as adding something.

(17) E.g., to minister only in eight garments, not to mourn etc.

(18) [Or Ailim; joseph b. Ellimus mentioned in Josephus. V. Hor., Sonc. ed. p. 89, n. 5.]

(19) Between him and the original High priest.

(20) Hence, having served as a High Priest, he can never revert to the status of an ordinary one.

(21) Lit., ‘who took it according to’.

(22) For further notes on the whole passage v. Hor., Sonc. ed. pp. 88ff.

(23) In the period when the high places (Bamoth, sing. Bamah) were permitted, i.e., when there was no sanctuary at Shiloh or Jerusalem.

(24) Those at Nob and Gibeon, where the altar made by Moses was used for public services.
(25) Erected by any individual for private sacrifices.
(26) Which could be offered only on the large one.
(27) This seems to contradict the next clause, which implies that congregational sacrifices were brought on the large high places.
(28) As explained presently.
(29) E.g..the bullock offered in atonement for a sin committed unwittingly by the whole congregation.
(30) Shiloh was made the religious centre of the people in the time of Joshua (Josh. XVIII, 1), and remained such till the time of Samuel, when it seems to have been laid waste by the Philistines (cf. Jer. XXVI, 6, 9).
(31) Viz., peace-offerings, firstlings and tithe of cattle.
(32) Set aside on the first, second, fourth and fifth years of the seven-year cycle after the dues to the priests and levites had been paid. Their second tithe or redemption money was taken to Jerusalem and there consumed by the owners. V. Deut. XIV, 22ff.
(33) Viz., sin- and guilt-offerings, and congregational peace-offerings.
(34) This expression applies strictly only to the Tabernacle at Shiloh. The corresponding place in the Temple at Jerusalem was the space within the walls of the Temple court.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 10a

THE HIGH PLACES COULD AGAIN BECOME PERMITTED, BUT AFTER THE SANCTIFICATION OF JERUSALEM THERE CAN BE NO SUCH PERMISSION.

GEMARA. R. Isaac said: I have heard that sacrifices may be offered in the Temple of Onias[1] at the present day.[2] He was of opinion that the Temple of Onias is not an idolatrous shrine, and that the first holiness [of Jerusalem] was conferred on it for the time being but not for all time,[3] as it is written, For ye are not as yet come to the rest and to the inheritance.[4] ‘Rest’ here means Shiloh and ‘inheritance’ means Jerusalem, and ‘inheritance’ is put on the same footing as ‘rest’, [to show that] just as after the [destruction of the] ‘rest’ the high places were again permitted, so after the [destruction of the] ‘inheritance’ they will be permitted. They said to him: Do you really say so? He replied, No. Said Raba: By God! he did say it and I learnt it from him. Why then did he retract? On account of the difficulty raised by R. Mari. For R. Mari adduced the following in confutation: AFTER THE SANCTIFICATION OF SHILOH HIGH PLACES CAN AGAIN BE PERMITTED, BUT AFTER THE SANCTIFICATION OF JERUSALEM THERE CAN BE NO SUCH PERMISSION. We have also learnt further: After they [the Israelites] occupied Jerusalem, the high places were forbidden, and they were never permitted again, and it was the ‘inheritance’. — There is a difference of Tannaim on this point, as we have learnt. ‘R. Eliezer said: I have heard that when they were building the hekal[5] [in the second Temple] they made curtains for the hekal and for the courtyard,[5] the difference being that in the hekal they built [the walls] outside [the curtains][6] and in the courtyard they built [the walls] within [the curtains]. And R. Joshua said: I have heard that sacrifices may be brought even though there is no temple; that the most holy foods may be eaten, even though there are no curtains; and that foods of lesser sanctity and second tithe may be eaten even though there is no wall, because the first holiness was conferred on Jerusalem[7] both for the time being and for all time.’[7] We infer from this[8] that R. Eliezer was of opinion that it was not [at first] sanctified for all time.[9] Said Rabina to R. Ashi: How can we draw this inference? Perhaps all agree that the first holiness was conferred upon it for the time being and for all time, and one Master reported what he had heard and the other what he had heard. Should you ask, In that case, why were curtains needed according to R. Eliezer, we can answer that they were merely for privacy. Rather it is the following Tannaim who differ on this point as it has been taught: ‘R. Ishmael son of R. Jose said: Why did the Sages enumerate these?[10] Because when the exiles returned they found these cities [still walled] and sanctified them;[11] the others,[12] however, lost their privilege when the land lost its sanctity’. This shows that he was of opinion that the first holiness was conferred for the time being and not for the future. And a contradiction was pointed out with the following: ‘R. Ishmael son of R.

Jose said: Were these all? Do we not find it said, Sixty cities, all the region of Argob,[13] and it is written, All these were fortified cities with high walls?[14] Why then did the Sages enumerate these? Because when the exiles returned, they found these [still walled] and sanctified them'.[15] They sanctified then,

---

(1) A shrine built at Leontopolis in Egypt by Onias IV, a high priest who fled from Jerusalem. c. 154 B.C.E., v. Josephus, Ant. XIII, iii, 1ff and Men. 109b.

(2) This must refer to the period of the originator of the dictum, as the Temple of Onias did not exist any longer in the time of R. Isaac.

(3) Lit., 'for the future to come'. Hence after its destruction the high places would again be permitted.

(4) Deut. XII, 9.

(5) We assume for the present that the reason for the curtains was to invest the place with holiness enabling sacrifices to be offered and eaten pending the construction of the walls.

(6) [To prevent the builders from either penetrating into the hekal or gazing into it whilst engaged in their work. V. Rashi a.I. and Shebu. 16a.]

(7) V. 'Ed. VIII, 7 and Zeb. 107b.

(8) From the fact that curtains were required to confer holiness.

(9) This shows that Tannaim differ on this point.

(10) Nine cities enumerated in Tractate Arakin 32b as having been walled in the time of Joshua.

(11) I.e gave them the status of 'walled towns'.

(12) Lit., 'the earlier ones, i.e., all the others which had previously been walled.

(13) Deut. III, 4.

(14) Ibid. 4f.

(15) The quotation is here interrupted.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 10b

now, [say you]! Do we not say that they did not require to be sanctified?[1] What [you should say is], they found these and enumerated them. And not only in these alone, but in every one in regard to which you shall find a tradition from your ancestors that it was walled from the days of Joshua son of Nun, all these precepts[2] are to be observed, because the first holiness was conferred for the time being and for all future time. There is thus a contradiction between two statements of R. Ishmael! — Two Tannaim report R. Ishmael son of R. Jose differently.Or if you like, I can say that the latter dictum emanates from R. Eleazar b. Jose, as it has been taught: 'R. Eleazar b. Jose says: That has [no] wall;[3] even though it has not now, but it had in previous times.'

And it came to pass in the days of Ahasuerus.[4] R.Levi, or some say R. Jonathan said: The following remark is a tradition handed down to us from the Men of the Great Assembly:[5] wherever in the Scripture we find the term wa-yehi[and it was, and it came to pass], it indicates [the approach of] trouble.[6] Thus, and it came to pass in the days of Ahasuerus — there was Haman. And it came to pass in the days when the Judges judged[7] — 'there was a famine'. And it came to pass when man began to multiply[8] — then 'God Saw that the wickedness of man was great'. And it came to pass, as they journeyed east[9] — then 'they said, come let us build a city'. And it came to pass in the days of Amrafel[10] — then 'they made war'. And it came to pass when Joshua was in Jericho[11] — then 'his [the angel's] sword was drawn in his hand'.[12] And the Lord was [wa-yehi] with Joshua[13] — then, 'the children of Israel committed a trespass', And there was a certain man of Ramathaim-Zophim[14] — then, for he loved Hannah but the Lord had shut up her womb'. And it came to pass when Samuel was old[15] — then, 'his sons walked not in his ways'. And David had [wa-yehi] great success in all his ways[16] — then, 'And Saul eyed David'.[17] And it came to pass when the king dwelt in his house[18] — then, 'Nevertheless thou shalt not build the house'.[19] But is it not written, — And it came to pass on the eighth day,[20] and it has been taught, 'On that day there was joy before the Holy One, blessed be He, as on the day when heaven and earth were created. For it is written, And it came to pass [wa-yehi] on the eighth day, and it is written in the other place, And there was [wa-yehi] one day'?[21] Nadab and Abihu died on that day. But is it not written, And it came to pass in the four hundred and eightieth year,[22] And it came to pass when Jacob saw Rachel,[23] and it is also written, And there there was evening and there was morning one day, and there is the second day and the third, and there are many other cases? — R. Ashi replied: The fact is that 'wa-yehi' sometimes has this signification and sometimes not, but the expression 'and it came to pass in the days of' always indicated trouble. Five times we find the expression 'and it came to pass in the days of'; viz., 'And it came to pass in the days when the Judges judged', 'and it came to pass in the days of Amrafel', 'and it came to pass in the days of Ahaz',[24] 'and it came to pass in the days of Jehoiakim'.[25]

R. Levi further said: The following is a tradition that we have from our ancestors, that Amoz[26] and Amaziah[27] were brothers. What does this tell us?[28] — It confirms what was said by R. Samuel b. Nahmani in the name of R. Jonathan: Every bride who is modest in the house of her father-in-law is rewarded by having kings and prophets among her descendants. How do we prove this? From Tamar, as it is written, And Judah saw her and thought her to be a harlot; for she had covered her face.[29] Now because she had covered her face did he think her to be a harlot? Rather, what it means is that because she had covered her face in the house of her father-in-law and he did not know her, she was rewarded by having among her descendants kings and prophets; kings from David, and prophets — as R. Levi said, 'It is a tradition handed down to us from our ancestors that Amoz and Amaziah were brothers', and it is written, The vision of Isaiah son of Amoz.[30]

R. Levi further said: We have a tradition from our ancestors that the ark took up no room.[31] It has been taught to the same effect: 'The ark which Moses made had round it an [empty] space of ten cubits on every side'. Now it is written, And in front of the Sanctuary was twenty cubits in length [and twenty cubits in breadth],[32] and it is also written, And the wing of the one cherub was ten cubits and the wing of the other cherub was ten cubits.[33] Where then was the ark itself? We must therefore conclude that it stood by a miracle [without occupying any room].[34]

R. Jonathan prefaced his discourse on this section[35] with the text,[36] And I will rise against them, saith the Lord, and cut off from Babylon name and remnant', and offshoot and offspring, saith the Lord,[37] [which he expounded as follows]: 'Name' means script; 'remnant is language;[38] 'offshoot' is kingdom, and 'offspring' is Vashti.

R. Samuel b. Nahmani introduced his discourse on this section with the following text: Instead of the thorn shall come up the cypress, and instead of the brier shall come up the myrtle:[39] 'Instead of the thorn': instead of the wicked Haman who put himself up as an object of worship, as it is written, and upon all thorns and upon all brambles[40] 'shall come up the cypress': this is Mordecai who was called the chief of all spices, as it is said, And do thou take to thee the chief spices,flowing myrrh,[41] which [last words] we translate [in Aramaic], mar deki.[42] 'Instead of the brier': instead of the wicked Vashti, the daughter of the wicked Nebuchadnezzar who burnt the ceiling of the house of the Lord; as it is written, its top was gold,[43] 'the myrtle shall come up': this is the virtuous Esther who is called Hadassah,[44] as it is said, And he brought up Hadassah.[45] 'And it shall be to the Lord for a name': this is the reading of the Megillah; 'and for an everlasting sign which shall not be cut off': these are the days of Purim.

R. Joshua b. Levi introduced his discourse on this section with the following text: And it shall come to pass that as the Lord rejoiced over you to do you good, so the Lord will rejoice over you to cause you to perish.[46] Now does the Holy One, blessed be He, rejoice in the downfall of the wicked? Is it not written, as they went out before the army, and say, Give thanks unto the Lord, for his mercy endureth for ever',[47] and R. Johanan said, Why are the words 'for he is good' omitted from this thanksgiving? Because the Holy One, blessed be He, does not rejoice in the downfall of the wicked? And R. Johanan further said, What is the meaning of the verse, And one came not near the other all the night?[48] The ministering angels wanted to chant their hymns, but the Holy One, blessed be He, said, The work of my hands is being drowned in the sea, and shall you chant hymns? — R. Eleazar replied: He himself does not rejoice, but he makes others rejoice. This is indicated also by the text, which writes yasis and not yasus;[49] which proves [what we said].

R. Abba b. Kahana introduced his discourse on this section with the following text: For to the man that is good in his sight he giveth wisdom, and knowledge and joy.[50] This, he said, is the righteous Mordecai. But to the sinner He giveth the task, to gather and to heap up;[50] this is Haman. That he may leave it to him, that is good in the sight of God;[50] this refers to Mordecai and Esther, as it is written, And Esther set Mordecai over the house of Haman.[51]

Rabbah b. ‘Ofran introduced his discourse on this section with the following text: And I will set my throne in Elam, and will destroy from thence king and princes.[52] ‘King’ indicates Vashti, and ‘princes’ indicates Haman and his ten sons.

R. Dimi b. Isaac introduced his discourse on this section with the following text:

---

(1) As it says presently, that all which are traditionally known to have been walled are sanctified.

(2) Of sending out a leper and reading the Megillah on the fifteenth and restoring a house to a vendor at the end of a year.

(3) Lev. XXV, 31. The kere means which has a wall’ and the kethib ‘which has no wall’, and R. Eleazar combines both meanings, he being of the opinion that the first holiness is retained for all times, in contradistinction to R. Ishmael. These then are the two Tannaim who differ on this point.

(4) Esth. I, 1.

(5) V. p. 2, n. 5.

(6) Wa-yehi being read as wai, hi (woe and sorrow). V.infra.

(7) Ruth I, I.

(8) Gen. VI, I

(9) Ibid. XI, 2.

(10) Ibid. XIV, I.

(11) Josh. V, 13.

(12) Ibid.

(13) ,Ibid. VI,27.

(14) I Sam.I, 1.

(15) Ibid. VIII, 1.

(16) Ibid. XVIII, 14.

(17) This is in fact mentioned before the other, in v. 9 of the same chapter.

(18) II Sam VII, 1.

(19) This is in fact found in I Kings VIII, 19. In II Sam. VII the expression is, ‘Shalt thou build a house’.

(20) Lev. IX, 1 of the setting up of the Tabernacle.

(21) Gen. I, 5.

(22) I Kings VI, 1 of the building of the Temple.

(23) Gen. XXIX, 10.

(24) Isa. VII, 1.

(25) Jer. I, 3.

(26) The father of Isaiah. V. infra.

(27) The king of Judah.

(28) I.e., what homiletical lesson does it convey.

(29) Gen. XXXVIII, 15.

(30) Isa. I, 1.

(31) Lit., ‘the place of the ark was not included in the measurements’.

(32) 1 Kings VI, 20.

(33) This is the sense but not the exact wording of I Kings VI, 24, 25.
(34) V. Yoma 21a and B.B. 99a.
(35) The Book of Esther.
(36) Lit., ‘from here’.
(37) Isa. XIV, 22.
(38) The connection between ‘name’ and ‘script’ and between ‘remnant’ and ‘language’ is not very clear. But v. Maharsha.
(39) lsa. LV, 13.
(40) Ibid. VII, 19. The proof is not clear. Cf. Maharsha.
(41) Ex. XXX, 23.
(42) ‘Pure myrrh’ a popular etymology of Mordecai.
(43) Cant. III, 10. There is here a play on the words sirpad (brier), and refidah (top).
(44) The Aramaic for myrtle.
(45) Esth. 11, 7,
(46) Deut. XXVIII, 63.
(47) II Chron. XX, 21, of the army of Jehoshaphat marching against the Moabites.
(48) Ex. XIV, 20, of Pharaoh and the Israelites at the Red Sea.
(49) Yasis is a hif'il form, and should properly mean ‘cause to rejoice’, though it is often used as equivalent to the kal, yasus rejoice’.
(50) Eccl. II, 26.
(51) Esth. VIII, 2.
(52) Jer. XLIX, 38.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 11a

For we are bondmen; yet hath God not forsaken us in our bondage, but hath extended mercy unto us in the sight of the kings of Persia.[1] When was this? In the time of Haman. R. Hanina b. Papa introduced his discourse on this section with the following text: Thou hast caused men to ride over our heads, we went through fire and through water:[2] through fire in the days of the wicked Nebuchadnezzar, and through water in the days of Pharaoh. But thou didst bring us out into abundance,[2] in the days of Haman.

R. Johanan introduced his discourse on this section with the following text: He hath remembered his mercy and his faithfulness to the house of Israel, all the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our Lord.[3] When did all the ends of the earth see the salvation of our Lord? In the days of Mordecai and Esther.[4]

Resh Lakish introduced his discourse on this section with the following text: As a roaring lion and a ravenous bear, so is a wicked ruler over a poor people.[5] ‘A roaring lion’: this is the wicked Nebuchadnezzar, of whom it is written, A lion is gone up from his thicket.[6] ‘A ravenous bear’: this is Ahasuerus, of whom it is written, And behold another beast, a second, like to a bear’,[7] and R. Joseph learnt: These are the Persians, who eat and drink like bears, and are coated with flesh like bears, and are hairy like bears, and can never keep still like bears.[8] ‘A wicked ruler’: this is Haman. ‘Over a poor people’: this is Israel, who are poor in [the observance of] precepts.

R. Eleazar introduced his discourse on this with the following text: By slothfulness he that lays beams[9] becomes poor [yimak], and through idleness of the hands the house leaketh.[10] Through the slothfulness in which Israel indulged, not busying themselves with the Torah, the enemy of[11] the Holy One, blessed be He, became poor. The meaning of ‘mak’ is poor, as it says, And if he is too mak for thy valuation,[12] and mekoreh means only the Holy One, blessed be He, as it says, Who layest the beams [ha-mekareh] of thy upper chambers in the waters.[13]

R. Nahman b. Isaac introduced his discourse on this section with the following text: A Song of Ascents: If it had not been for the Lord who was for us, let Israel now say If it had not been the Lord who was for us when a man[14] rose up against us[15] — ‘a man’ and not a king.[16]

Raba introduced his discourse on this section from here: When the righteous are increased the people rejoice, but when the wicked beareth rule the people sigh.[17] ‘When the righteous are increased the people rejoice’ — this is illustrated by Mordecai and Esther, as it is written, and the city of Shushan shouted and was glad.[18] ‘But when the wicked beareth rule the people sigh’ — this is illustrated by Haman, as it is written, but the city of Shushan was perlexed.[19] R. Mattenah made his introduction[20] from this verse: For what great nation is there that hath God so nigh to them.[21] R. Ashi made it from this verse: Or hath God assayed etc.[22]

And it came to pass [wa-yehi] in the days of Ahasuerus[23] etc. Rab said, [The word wa-yehi is equivalent to] ‘wai and hi’ [woe and mourning]. With reference to this it is written, and there ye shall sell yourselves unto your enemies for bondmen and for bondwomen, and no man shall buy you.[24]

Samuel quoted: I did not reject them, neither did I abhor them to destroy them utterly.[25] ‘I did not reject them’ in the days of the Greeks; ‘neither did I abhor them’ — in the days of Nebuchadnezzar;[26] ‘to destroy them utterly’ — in the days of Haman; ‘and to break my covenant with them’ — in the days of the Persians;[27] ‘for I am the Lord their God’ — in the days of Gog and Magog.[28] In a Baraitha It was taught: ‘I have not rejected them’ — in the days of the Chaldeans, when l raised up for them Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah; ‘neither did I abhor them’ — in the days of the Greeks, when I raised up for them Simeon the Righteous and Hasmonai and his sons, and Mattathias the High Priest;[29] ‘to destroy them utterly’ — in the days of Haman, when I raised up for them Mordecai and Esther; ‘to break my covenant with them’ — in the days of the Persians,[30] when I raised up for them the members of the house of Rabbi and the Sages of the various generations. ‘For I am the Lord their God’ — in the time to come, when no nation or people[31] will be able to subject them.

R. Levi introduced [his discourse] from this verse: But if ye will not drive out the inhabitants of the land before you.[32] R. Hiyya introduced [his discourse] from this verse: And it shall come to pass that as I thought to do unto them, so will I do unto you.[33]

Ahasuerus: Rab said: He was [as his name implies], the brother of the head[34] and the counterpart of the head — ‘The brother of the head’: the brother of Nebuchadnezzar the wicked who was called head, as it is written, Thou art the head of gold.[35] ‘The counterpart of the head’: the one slew, the other sought to slay; the one laid waste, the other sought to lay waste, as it is written, And in the reign of Ahasuerus, in the beginning of his reign, wrote they an accusation against the inhabitants of Judah and Jerusalem.[36] Samuel said that [as his name indicates], the face of Israel was blackened[37] in his days like the sides of a pot. R. Johanan said that [his name indicates that] everyone who thought of him said ‘alas for my head’.[38] R. Hanina said, [it indicates that] all became poor[39] in his days, as it says, And the king Ahasuerus laid a tribute.[40]

That [hu] is Ahasuerus. — [this means that] he persisted in his wickedness from beginning to end — [Similarly] this is [hu] Esau:[41] the same in his wickedness from beginning to end. [Similarly], These are that [hu] Dathan and Abiram:[42] the same in their wickedness from the beginning to the end. [Similarly], this same [hu] king Ahaz:[43] the same in his wickedness from the beginning to the end. [Similarly], Abram, the same [hu] is Abraham:[44] the same in his righteousness from the beginning to the end. [Similarly], These are that [hu] Aaron and Moses:[45] the same in their righteousness from the beginning to the end. [Similarly], And David, he was [hu] the smallest;[46] he persisted in his humility[47] from the beginning to the end; just as in his youth he humbled himself before anyone who was his superior in Torah, so in his kingship he humbled himself before anyone who was his superior in wisdom.

Who reigned: Rab said: this indicates that he raised himself to the throne.[48] Some interpret this to his credit, and some to his discredit. Some interpret it to his credit, holding that there was no other man equally fitted for the throne. Others interpret it to his discredit, holding that he was not fitted for the throne, but that he was very wealthy, and by means of lavish distribution of money rose to the throne.

From Hodu to Cush.[49] Rab and Samuel gave different interpretations of this. One said that Hodu is at one end of the world and Cush at the other, and the other said that Hodu and Cush adjoin one another, and that [the meaning is that] as he ruled over Hodu and Cush, so he ruled from one end of the world to the other. A similar difference occurs with reference to the words, For he had dominion over all the region on this side of the River, from Tiphsah even unto Gaza.[50] Here again Rab and Samuel interpreted differently. One said that Tiphsah is at one end of the world and Gaza at the other, and the other said that Tiphsah and Gaza are near one another [and that what is meant is that] as he [Solomon] ruled over Tiphsah and over Gaza, so he ruled over the whole world.[51] Seven and twenty and a hundred provinces. R. Hisda said: At first he ruled over seven, then over twenty [more], and finally over a hundred [more]. But if you interpret thus, what of the verse, And the years of the life of Amram were seven and thirty and a hundred years?[52] What lesson will you derive from that? — There is a difference here, because the whole text is superfluous. See now: it is written, from Hodu to Cush. Why then do I require, seven and twenty and a hundred provinces? You must conclude that it is for a special lesson .

Our Rabbis taught: Three [potentates] ruled over the whole globe,[53] namely, Ahab, Ahasuerus and Nebuchadnezzar.[54] Ahab, as it is written, As the Lord thy God liveth, there is no nation or kingdom whither my lord hath not sent to seek thee etc.[55] Now if he was not king over them, how could he make them take an oath? Nebuchadnezzar, as it is written: And it shall come to pass that the nation and the kingdom which will not serve the same Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and will not put their neck under the yoke of the King of Babylon.[56] Ahasuerus, as we have pointed out above

---

(1) Ezra IX, 9.
(2) Ps. LXVI, 12.
(3) Ps. XCVIII, 3.
(4) Since letters were sent to all the provinces of the Persian Empire.
(5) Prov. XXVIII, 15.
(6) Jer. IV, 7.
(7) Dan. VII, 5.
(8) V. A.Z. 2b.
(9) Heb. המקרה E.V. ‘the rafters sink in’.
(10) Eccl. X, 18.
(11) Euphemism.
(12) Lev. XXVII, 8.
(13) Ps. CIV, 3.
(14) E.V. ‘men’.
(15) Ps. CXXIV, 1, 2.
(16) Referring to Haman.
(17) Prov. XXIX, 2.
(18) Esth. VIII, 15
(19) Ibid. III, 15.
(20) Lit., ‘said’.
(21) Deut. IV, 7.

(22) Ibid. 34.
(23) Esth. I, 1.
(24) Deut. XXVIII, 68.
(25) Lev. XXVI, 44.
(26) [The order followed here differs from that in the parallel passage in the Yalkut a.I. which is the more chronological. V. Maharsha.]
(27) Read with MS.M. ‘Romans’, v. Wilna Gaon Glosses.
(28) I.e., the days of the Messiah. V. Ezek. XXXVIII, XXXIX.
(29) Mattathias is usually identified with Hasmonai. [MS.M. omits ‘Hasmonai and his sons’.]
(30) Here also read with MS.M. ‘Romans’, v. Wilna Gaon Glosses.
(31) Lit., ‘tongue, language’
(32) Num. XXXIII, 55.
(33) Ibid. 56.
(34) Heb. ahiw shel rosh.
(35) Dan. II, 38.
(36) Ezra IV, 6.
(37) Heb. hushharu.
(38) Heb.ah le-rosho.
(39) Heb.rashin.
(40) Esth.X, 1.
(41) Gen.XXXVI,43.
(42) Num. XXVI, 9.
(43) II Chron. XXVIII, 22.
(44) I Chron. I, 27.
(45) Ex. VI, 26.
(46) I Sam. XVII,14. E.V. youngest’.
(47) The Heb. katan means both ‘young’ and ‘humble’.
(48) Because it does not say ‘who was king’.
(49) E.V. ‘from India to Ethiopia’.
(50) I Kings V, 4.
(51) V. Sanh., Sonc. ed. p. 110, nn. 5-6.
(52) Ex. VI, 20.
(53) Heb. כיפה. Lit., ‘arch’, the space beneath the vault of the heaven.
(54) Only those mentioned in Scripture are reckoned (Tosaf.).
(55) I Kings XVIII, 10. The text continues, and when they said, he is not here, he took an oath, etc.
(56) Jer. XXVII, 8.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 11b

.

(Mnemonic: Sh'S'D'K’)[1] But are there no more? Is there not Solomon? — He did not retain his kingdom [till his death]. This is a sufficient answer for the one who holds that he was first a king and then a subject.[2] But for the one who holds that he was first a king, then a subject, and then a king again, what can we reply? — Solomon was in a different category, because he ruled over the denizens of the upper world[3] as well as of the lower, as it says, And Solomon sat upon the throne of the Lord.[4]

But was there not Sennacherib, as it is written, Who are they among all the gods of these countries that have delivered their country out of my hand.[5] — There was Jerusalem which he had not subdued.

But was there not Darius, as it is written, Then king Darius wrote unto all the peoples, nations and languages that dwell in all the earth, Peace be multiplied unto you?[6] — There were the seven over which he did not rule, as it is written, It pleased Darius to set over the kingdom a hundred and twenty satraps.[7] But there was Cyrus, of whom it is written, Thus saith Cyrus king of Persia, All the kingdom of the earth hath the Lord given me?[8] — There he was merely indulging in a boast.

In those days, when the king sat [on his throne].[9] [How can this be] seeing that it says just afterwards, in the third year of his reign? — Raba said: What is meant by 'when he sat'? After he began to feel secure. He reasoned thus: 'Belshazar calculated and made a mistake; l have calculated and made no mistake' — What is the meaning of this? — It is written, After seventy years are accomplished for Babylon I will remember you,[10] and it is written, That He would accomplish for the desolations of Jerusalem seventy years.[11] He reckoned forty-five years of Nebuchadnezzar and twenty-three of Evilmerodach and two of his own, making seventy in all. He then brought out the vessels of the Temple and used them. And how do we know that Nebuchadnezzar reigned forty-five years? — As a Master has said: 'They went into exile in the seventh year and they went into exile in the eighth year; they went into exile in the eighteenth year and they went into exile in the nineteenth year' — [That is to say], in the seventh year after the subjection of Jehoiakim[12] they underwent the exile of Jeconiah, this being the eighth year of Nebuchadnezzar.[13] In the eighteenth year from the subjection of Jehoiakim[14] they underwent the exile of Zedekiah, this being the nineteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar,[15] as a Master has said, In the first year [of his reign] he [Nebuchadnezzar] overthrew Nineveh; in the second year he conquered Jehoiakim[16] and it is written, And it came to pass in the seven and thirtieth year of the captivity of Jehoiachin king of Judah, in the twelfth month in the seven and twentieth day of the month, that Evilmerodach King of Babylon, in the year of his reign, lifted up the head of Jehoiachin king of Judah and brought him forth out of prison.[17] Eight and thirty-seven make forty-five of Nebuchadnezzar. The twenty-three of Evilmerodach we know from tradition. These with two of his own[18] make seventy. He [Belshazar] said to himself, Now of a surety they will not be redeemed. So he brought out the vessels of the Temple and used them. Hence it was that Daniel said to him, but thou hast lifted up thyself against the Lord of heaven, and they have brought the vessels of his house before thee.[19] It is further written, In that night Belshazar the Chaldean king was slain,[20] and it is written, And Darius the Mede received the kingdom, being about threescore and two years old.[21] He [Ahasuerus] said: He calculated and made a mistake,[22] I will calculate and make no mistake. Is it written, 'seventy years for the kingdom of Babylon?'[23] It is written, seventy years for Babylon. What is meant by Babylon? The exile of Babylon — How many years [is this reckoning] less [than the other]? Eight.[24] So in place of them he inserted one of Belshazar,[25] five of Darius and Cyrus,[26] and two of his own, which made seventy — When he saw that seventy had been completed and they were not redeemed, he brought out the vessels of the Temple and used them — Then the Satan came and danced among them and slew Vashti.

But he reckoned correctly? — He also made a mistake, since he ought to have reckoned from the destruction of Jerusalem.[27] Granted all this, how many years are short? Eleven. How long did he reign? Fourteen.[28] Consequently in the fourteenth year of his reign he ought to have rebuilt the Temple. Why then is it written, Then ceased the work of the house of God which is at Jerusalem?[29] — Raba replied: The years were not full ones.[30]

---

(1) Sh=Solomon (Shelomoh);S = Sennacherib; D = Darius; K = Koresh (Cyrus).

(2) Cf. Git. 68b.

(3) The demons.

(4) 1 Chron. XXIX, 23.

(5) Isa. XXXVI, 20.

(6) Dan. VI, 26.

(7) Ibid. 2.

(8) Ezra 1, 2.

(9) Esth. I, 2. Which would naturally mean, immediately after his accession.
(10) Jer. XXIX, 10.
(11) Dan. IX, 2.
(12) By Nebuchadnezzar, as explained infra. V. Jer. LII, 28: This is the people whom Nebuchadnezzar carried away captive: in the seventh year etc.
(13) V. II Kings XXIV, 12: And Jehoiachin (Jeconiah) the king of Judah went out to the king of Babylon . . . and he took him in the eighth year of his reign.
(14) Jer. LII, 29.
(15) V. II Kings XXV, 8.
(16) Jehoiakim served Nebuchadnezzar three years (II Kings XXIV, 1), and according to the Seder Olam, he was in rebellion for three years. (This is based on Daniel I, 1. In the third year of the reign of Jehoiakim, Nebuchadnezzar came to Jerusalem, etc. which is interpreted to mean, the third year of his rebellion. V. Rashi.) In the same year he was deposed and Jeconiah went into exile, and as this was the eighth of Nebuchadnezzar (v. supra), his subjection must have commenced in the second or third year of Nebuchadnezzar.
(17) II Kings XXV, 27.
(18) It was in the third year of his reign that he gave his feast.
(19) Dan. V, 23.
(20) Ibid. 30.
(21) Ibid. VI, 1.
(22) In thinking that the prophecy had already been falsified.
(23) I.e.,from the accession of Nebuchadnezzar.
(24) Because the exile of Jeconiah took place in the eighth year of Nebuchadnezzar. V. supra
(25) I.e., the third year of Belshazar, which he himself did not reckon.
(26) According to the Talmudic chronology, the Darius mentioned in Daniel VI was succeeded by the Cyrus who gave permission for the building of the Temple. On what authority they are supposed to have reigned five years is not clear.
(27) Which took place eleven years after the exile of Jehoiachin.
(28) Haman cast lots in the twelfth year (Esth. III, 7). The deliverance took place in the next year, and the second letter of Esther (v. Esth. IX, 29) is supposed to have been sent out in the next.
(29) Until the second year of Darius who succeeded Ahasuerus. Ezra IV, 24.
(30) I.e., the five years of Darius I and Cyrus were really only four, and a year may also have been added to the reigns of Nebuchadnezzar and Evilmerodach, so that the seventy years were really not completed till the second year of Darius II.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 12a

It has been taught to the same effect: There was yet another year left to Babylon,[1] and Darius arose and completed it.

Raba said: Daniel also made a mistake in this calculation, as it is written, In the first year of his reign, I Daniel meditated in the books [etc.].[2] From his use of the words ‘I meditated’ we can infer that he [at first] made a mistake.

All the same, there is a contradiction between the texts [is there not]? It is written [in one], when there are accomplished for Babylon,[3] and it is written [in the other], for the desolations of Jerusalem? — Raba replied: [The first term] was for visitation [pekidah] only, and this was fulfilled, as it is written, Thus saith Cyrus king of Persia, All the kingdoms of the earth hath the Lord, the God of the heavens, given to me, and he hath charged [pakad] me to build him a house in Jerusalem.[4]

R. Nahman son of R. Hisda gave the following exposition. What is the meaning of the verse, Thus saith the Lord to his anointed to Cyrus, whose right hand I have holden.[5] Now was Cyrus the Messiah? Rather what it means is: The Holy One, blessed be He, said to the Messiah: I have a complaint on thy behalf against Cyrus.[6] I said, He shall build my house and gather my exiles,[7] and he [merely] said, Whosoever there is among you of all his people, let him go up.

The army of Persia and Media, the nobles. And elsewhere it is written, [The chronicles] of the kings of Media and Persia.[8] [How is this]? — Raba replied: They [the Medes and Persians] made a stipulation with one another, saying, if we supply the kings, you will supply the Governors, and if you supply the kings we will supply the Governors.

When he showed the riches of his glorious [tif'ereth] kingdom. R. Jose b. Hanina said: This shows that he arrayed himself in priestly robes. It is written here, ‘the riches of his glorious [tif'ereth] kingdom’, and it is written elsewhere [in connection with the priestly garments], for splendour and for glory, [tif'ereth].[9]

And when these days were fulfilled.[10] Rab and Samuel interpreted this differently. One said he was a clever king, and the other said that he was a foolish king. The one who held he was a clever king said that he did well in entertaining[11] his distant subjects first, because he could win over the inhabitants of his own city any time he wished. The one who held that he was foolish says that he ought to have entertained the inhabitants of his metropolis first, so that if the others rebelled against him, these would have supported him.

R. Simon b. Yohai was asked by his disciples, Why were the enemies of Israel[12] in that generation deserving of extermination? He said to them: Do you answer. They said: Because they partook of the feast of that wicked one.[13] [He said to them]: If so, those in Susa should have been killed, not those in other parts?[14] They then said, Give your answer. He said to them: It was because they bowed down to the image.[15] They said to him, Did God then show them favouritism?[16] He replied: They only pretended to worship,[17] and He also only pretended to exterminate them; and so it is written, For he afflicted not from his heart.[18] In the court of the garden of the king's palace.[19] Rab and Samuel gave different interpretations of this — One said that those who had the entree[20] of the court were [entertained] in the court, and those who had the entree of the garden in the garden, and those who had the entree of the palace in the palace. The other said: He first put them in the court, and it did not hold them — Then he took them into the garden and it did not hold them; and finally he had to take them into the palace, and he found room for them. In a Baraitha it was taught: He took them into the court and opened two doors for them, one into the garden and one into the palace.

White [hur], fine cotton [karpas] and blue.[21] What is hur? — Rab said, fine lace-work. Samuel said: He spread for then, carpets of white silk. Karpas: R. Jose b. Haninah said: [this means] cushions of velvet.[22]

Upon silver rods and pillars of marble; the couches were of gold and silver.[21] It has been taught: R. Judah said: Silver for some and gold for others, according to their degree. Said R. Nehemiah to him: If that were so, there would have been[23] jealousy at the banquet! No; the couches themselves were of silver and their feet of gold.

Green [bahat] and white marble.[21] R. Assi said: [This means] stones that flash back at their owner;[24] and so it says, as the stones of a crown, glittering over his land.[25]

And shell [dar] and onyx marble [sohareth].[21] Rab said: This means rows [dari] upon rows.[26] Samuel says: There is a precious stone in the seaports called darah. He put it in the midst of the guests, and it lit up the place as at midday [Sahara].[27] In the school of R. Ishmael it was taught: It means that he gave a remission of taxes [deror] to all who dealt in merchandise [sehorah].

And they gave them drink in vessels of gold, the vessels being diverse [shonim] one from another.[28] It should have said, in different vessels? — Raba said: A bath kol[29] went forth and said to them, Your predecessors[30] met their end on account of vessels, and yet you use them again [shonim]?[31]

And royal wine in abundance:[28] Rab said: This teaches that each one was given to drink wine older[32] then himself.

And the drinking was according to law.[33] What is meant by ‘according to law’? — R. Hanan said in the name of R. Meir: According to the law of the Torah. Just as according to the law of the Torah the [quantity of] food exceeds the drink,[34] so in the feast of that wicked one there was more food than drink.

None did compel.[33] R. Eleazar said: This teaches that each one was given to drink from the wine of his own country.[35]

That they should do according to every man's [ish, ish] pleasure.[33] Raba said: This means that they should do according to the will of Mordecai and Haman.[36] Mordecai [is called ‘man’] as it is written, A Jewish man;[37] and Haman, [as it is written], a man, an adversary and an enemy.[38]

Also Vashti the queen made a feast for the women in the royal house.[39] It should have said, ‘the women's house’? — Raba said: Both of them [Ahasuerus and Vashti] had an immoral purpose. This bears out the popular saying, He with large pumpkins and his wife

---

(1) I.e. , when Belshazar was killed, according to Seder Olam, only sixty-nine years had passed since Nebuchadnezzar had subdued Jehoiakim, and not seventy as reckoned above.
(2) Dan. IX, 2. Heb. בינותי, which conveys the idea of calculating and revising.
(3) Ibid. I.e., from the rise of Nebuchadnezzar.
(4) Ezra I, 2. But the actual building was commenced some years later.
(5) Isa. XLV, 1.
(6) And we translate: ‘God said to his anointed regarding Cyrus’.
(7) Ibid. 13.
(8) Esth. X, 2. Here ‘kings’ is put next to Media, not next to Persia as in the case of the ‘nobles’ in the earlier passage.
(9) Ex. XXVIII, 2.
(10) Esth. 1,5.
(11) Lit., ‘bringing near’.
(12) Euphemism for ‘Israel’.
(13) Ahasuerus.
(14) As only those in Susa were invited.
(15) Set up by Nebuchadnezzar.
(16) By delivering them, since they really deserved to be exterminated.
(17) Lit., ‘they did only for appearance’.
(18) Lam. III, 33. [מלבו is rendered ‘without heart’, מ being taken as partitive: God does not afflict him who sins without intent (Maharsha).]
(19) Esth. I, 5.
(20) Lit., ‘he who was worthy’.
(21) Esth. I, 6.
(22) These interpretations are based on similarities in sound to the words hur and Karpas.
(23) Lit., ‘you cast’.
(24) מתחוטטות play on בהט (‘green marble’). [Aliter: much sought after by their owners (v. Rashi).]
(25) מתנוססות Zech. IX, 16. [On Rashi's interpretation the verse is to be rendered as ‘stones of a crown obtainable only after many trials (נסיונות)’.]
(26) Possibly mosaics are meant (Jastrow).
(27) V. Rashi.
(28) Esth. I, 7

(29) V. Glos.
(30) Belshazar and his company.
(31) Lit., ‘repeat’.
(32) The word rab (in abundance) being taken in its other sense of ‘older’.
(33) Ibid. 8.
(34) E.g., the meal-offering for a bullock was three tenth deals, and the wine-offering only half a hin.
(35) Which did not easily intoxicate him.
(36) [Both served as butlers at the banquet (Rashi).]
(37) Ibid. II, 5.
(38) Ibid. VII, 6.
(39) Ibid. I, 9.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 12b

with small pumpkins.

On the seventh day, where the king's heart was merry with wine.[1] Was then his heart not merry with wine until then? — Rab said: The seventh day was Sabbath, when Israel eat and drink. They begin with discourse on the Torah and with words of thanksgiving [to God]. But the nations of the world, the idolaters, when they eat and drink only begin with words of frivolity. And so at the feast of that wicked one. Some said, The Median women are the most beautiful, and others said, The Persian women are the most beautiful. Said Ahasuerus to them, The vessel that I use is neither Median nor Persian, but Chaldean. Would you like to see her? They said, Yes, but it must be naked — (For man receives measure for measure.[2] This [remark] teaches you that the wicked Vashti used to take the daughters of Israel and strip them naked and make them work on Sabbath.[3] So it is written, After these things when the wrath of the king Ahasuerus abated, he remembered Vashti and what she had done and what was decided against her.[4] As she had done so it was decreed against her.)

And the queen Vashti refused.[5] Let us see. She was immodest, as the Master said above, that both of them had an immoral purpose. Why then would she not come? — R. Jose b. Hanina said: This teaches that leprosy broke out on her. In a Baraitha it was taught that Gabriel came and fixed a tail on her.[6]

And the king was very angry,[5] Why was he so enraged? — Raba said: She sent him back answer: Thou son of my father's steward,[7] my father drank wine in the presence of a thousand,[8] and did not get drunk, and that man has become senseless with his wine. Straightway, his wrath burnt within him.[5]

And the king said to the wise men.[9] Who are the wise men? — The Rabbis. Who knew the times:[9] that is, who knew how to intercalate years and fix new moons. He said to them: Try her for me. They said [to themselves]: What shall we do? If we tell him to put her to death, to-morrow he will become sober[10] again and he will require her from us. Shall we tell him to let her go? She will lose all her respect for royalty. So they said to him: From the day when the Temple was destroyed and we were exiled from our land, counsel has been taken from us and we do not know how to judge capital cases. Go to Ammon and Moab[11] who have remained in their places like wine that has settled on its lees. They spoke to him thus with good reason, since it is written, Moab hath been at ease from his youth, and he hath settled on his lees, and hath not been emptied from vessel to vessel, neither hath he gone into captivity. Therefore his taste remaineth in him, and his scent is not changed.[12] Straightway [he did so, as we read], and the next unto him was Carshena, Shethar, Admatha, Tarshish [etc.].[13] R. Levi said: Every name in this verse contains a reference to the sacrifices. Thus, Carshena: the ministering angels said to the Holy One, blessed be He: Sovereign of the Universe, did they ever offer before thee lambs of the first year [karim bene shanah] as Israel offered before Thee? Shethar: did they ever offer before Thee two pigeons [shte torim]? Admatha: did they ever build before Thee an altar of earth [adamah]? Tarshish: did they ever minister before Thee in the priestly garments, of which it is written [that they contained] a beryl [tarshish], an onyx and a jasper?[14] Meres: did they ever stir [mersu] the blood [of the sacrifice] before Thee? Marsena: did they ever stir [mersu] the meal-offerings before Thee? Memucan: did they ever prepare [hekinu] a table before Thee?

And Memucan said.[15] A Tanna taught: Memucan is the same as Haman, And why was he called Memucan? Because he was destined [mukan] for punishment. R. Kahana said: From here we see that an ordinary man always pushes[16] himself in front.[17]

That every man should bear rule in his house.[18] Raba said: Had it not been for these first letters, there would have been left no shred or remnant of the enemies of Israel.[19] People said: What does he mean by sending us word that every man should bear rule in his own house? Of course he should! Even a weaver in his own house must be commander![20]

And let the king appoint officers.[21] Rabbi said: What is the meaning of the verse, Even prudent man dealeth with forethought, but a fool unfoldeth folly?[22] 'Every prudent man dealeth with forethought': this applies to David, of whom, it is written, Wherefore his servants said unto him, Let there be sought for my lord the king a young virgin:[23] every one who had a daughter brought her.[24] But a fool unfoldeth folly': this applies to Ahasuerus, of whom it is written, and let the king appoint officers: whoever had a daughter hid her.[25]

There was a certain Jew in Shushan the castle, etc. a Benjamite.[26] What is the point of this verse? If it is to give the pedigree of Mordecai, it should trace it right back to Benjamin![27] [Why then were only these specified?] — A Tanna taught: All of them are designations [of Mordecai]. 'The son of Jair' means, the son who enlightened [he'ir] the eyes of Israel by his prayer. 'The son of Shimei means, the son to whose prayer God hearkened [shama']. 'The son of Kish' indicates that he knocked [hikkish] at the gates of mercy and they were opened to him. He is called 'a Jew' [yehudi] which implies that he came from [the tribe of] Judah, and he is called 'a Benjamite', which implies that he came from Benjamin. [How is this]? — R. Nahman said: He was a man of distinguished character.[28] Rabbah b. Bar Hanah said in the name of R. Joshua b. Levi: His father was from Benjamin and his mother from Judah. The Rabbis, however, said: The tribes competed with one another [for him]. The tribe of Judah said: I am responsible for the birth of Mordecai, because David did not kill Shimei the son of Gera, and the tribe of Benjamin said: He is actually descended from me. Raba said: The community of Israel explained [the two designations] in the opposite[29] sense: 'See what a Judean did to me and how a Benjamite repaid me!' What a Judean did to me

---

(1) Ibid. 10.

(2) Lit., 'for with the measure with which a man measures they measure to him'.

(3) [Add with MS.M.: 'Therefore was it decreed that she should be killed naked on Sabbath'.]

(4) Esth. II, 1.

(5) Ibid. I, 12.

(6) [זנב does not necessarily mean a 'tail' but any projection or growth, v. Aruch s.v. זנב.]

(7) [Var. lec., 'Thou steward of my father'. Ahasuerus was said to have been the steward of Belshazar, the father of Vashti.]

(8) V. Dan. V, 1.

(9) Esth. I, 13.

(10) Lit., 'his wine will pass off'.

(11) According to Tosaf., 'Ammon' here should be omitted, as the Ammonites were carried into exile by Nebuchadnezzar.

(12) Jer. XLVIII, 11.
(13) Esth. I, 14.
(14) Ex. XXVIII, 20.
(15) Esth. I, 16.
(16) Lit., ‘jumps’.
(17) Memucan is mentioned last of the seven princes, and yet it was he who spoke first.
(18) Ibid. 22.
(19) Euphemism for Israel. Had the people not seen from this letter how foolish the king was, when the next letter was sent out for the destruction of the Jews, they would not have waited till the appointed day.
(20) Pardashca: a Persian word meaning ‘policeman’ or ‘officer’.
(21) Esth. II, 3.
(22) Prov. XIII, 16.
(23) I Kings I, 2.
(24) Since only one was to be tried.
(25) Because all were to be tried, though only one was to be closed.
(26) Esth. II, 5.
(27) And not mention three names only.
(28) Lit., ‘crowned with his nimus’. The word nimus means in the Talmud ‘manner’, or ‘way’ (), hence bearing, character. Rashi translates ‘with his names’ (as just explained) as if ‘nimus’ here = Greek . [Var. lec. add ‘as an ornament’, כעדי. V. Aruch who explains: He was adorned with the precepts of the Law as with an ornament. Yehudi as applied to Mordecai then does not denote a tribal name but is an epithet of distinction.]
(29) I.e., derogatory.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 13a

viz., that David did not kill Shimei from whom was descended Mordecai who provoked Haman. ‘And how a Benjamite repaid me’, viz., that Saul did not slay Agag from whom was descended Haman who oppressed Israel. R. Johanan said: He did indeed come from Benjamin. Why then was he called ‘a Jew’? Because he repudiated idolatry. For anyone who repudiates idolatry is called ‘a Jew’, as it is written, There are certain Jews[1] etc.

R. Simon b. Pazzi once introduced an exposition of the Book of Chronicles as follows: ‘All thy words are one,[2] and we know how to find their inner meaning’. [It is written], And his wife the Jewess bore Jered the father of Gedor, and Heber the father of Socho, and Jekuthiel the father of Zanoah, and these are the sons of Bithya the daughter of Pharaoh, whom Mered took.[3] Why was she [the daughter of Pharaoh] called a Jewess? Because she repudiated idolatry, as it is written, And the daughter of Pharaoh went down to bathe in the river,[4] and R. Johanan, [commenting on this,] said that she went down to cleanse herself[5] from the idols of her father's house. ‘Bore’: But she only brought him [Moses] up? — This tells us that if anyone brings up an orphan boy or girl in his house, the Scripture accounts it as if he had begotten him. ‘Jered’: this is Moses. Why was he called Jered? Because manna came down [yarad] for Israel in his days.[6] ‘Gedor": [he was so called] because he fenced in [gadar] the breaches of Israel. ‘Heber’, because he joined [hiber] Israel to their Father in heaven. ‘Socho’, because he was like a sheltering booth [sukkah] for Israel. ‘Jekuthiel’, because Israel trusted in God [kiwu le'el] in his days. ‘Zanoah’, because he made Israel abandon [hizniah] their inquities. ‘Father of’, ‘father of’, ‘father of’: he was a father in Torah, a father in wisdom, a father in prophecy. ‘These are the sons of Bithya whom Mered took’. Was Mered his name? Was not Caleb his name?[7] — The Holy One, blessed be He, said: Let Caleb who rebelled [marad] against the plan of the spies come and take the daughter of Pharaoh who rebelled against the idols of her father's house.

Who had been carried away from Jerusalem.[8] Raba said: [We understand this to mean] that he went into exile of his own accord.[9]

And he brought up Hadassah.[10] She is called Hadassah[11] and she is called Esther. It has been taught: Esther was her proper name. Why then was she called Hadassah? After the designation of the righteous who are called myrtles,[12] for so it says, And he stood among the myrtle trees.[13] R. Judah says: Hadassah was her name — Why then was she called Esther? Because she concealed [mastereth] the facts about herself, as it says, Ester did not make known her people or her kindred.[14] R. Nehemiah says: Hadassah was her name. Why then was she called Esther? All peoples called her so after Istahar.[15] Ben ‘Azzai said: Esther was neither too tall nor too short, but of medium size, like a myrtle. R. Joshua b. Korha said: Esther was sallow,[16] but endowed with great charm.[17]

For she had neither father nor mother. [And it continues] and when her father and mother died.[10] Why these last words?[18] — R. Aha said: When her mother became pregnant with her, her father died; when she was born, her mother died.

And when her father and mother died, Mordecai took her for his own daughter.[19] A Tanna taught in the name of R. Meir: Read not ‘for a daughter’ [le-bath], but ‘for a house’ [le-bayith].[20] Similarly it says: But the poor man had nothing save one little ewe lamb, which he had brought up and reared; and it grew up together with him, and with his children; it did eat of his own morsel, and drank of his own cup, and lay in his bosom, and was unto him as a daughter.[21] Because it lay in his bosom, was it like a daughter to him? Rather what it means is like a wife; so here, it means a wife.

And the seven maidens who were meet to be given to her.[22] Raba said: [They were seven so that] she could count the days of the week by them.

And he changed[23] her and her maidens. Rab said: [This means that] he gave her Jewish food to eat. Samuel, however, said, it means that he gave her chines of pork[24] while R. Johanan said that he gave her pulse, and so it says, So the steward took away their food and gave them pulse.[25]

Six months with the oil of myrrh.[26] What is the oil of myrrh? R. Hiyya b. Abba said, Satchet;[27] R. Huna said, Oil from olives not a third grown. It has been taught: R. Judah says that anpikinun[28] is oil of olives not a third grown. Why is it used for smearing? Because it removes hair and makes the skin soft.

In the evening she went and on the morrow she returned.[29] From the discreditable account of that wicked man we can learn something to his credit, namely, that he did not perform his marital office by day.

And Esther obtained favour.[30] R. Eleazar said: This informs us that every man took her for a member of his own people.

So Esther was taken unto king Ahasuerus into his house royal in the tenth month, which is the month Tebeth:[31] the month when body warms up body.[32] And the king loved Esther above all the women, and she obtained grace and favour in his sight more than all the virgins.[33] Rab said: If he wanted to find in her the taste of a virgin he found it; if the taste of a married woman, he found it.

Then the king made a great feast.[34] He made a feast for her, and she did not tell him [who she was]. He remitted taxes,[35] and she did not tell him. He sent gifts,[36] and she [still] did not tell him.

And when the virgins were gathered together the second time, etc.[37] He went and took counsel of Mordecai who said, The way to rouse a woman is to make her jealous;[38] and even so she did not tell.

R. Eleazar said: What is the meaning of the verse,

---

(1) Dan. III, 12. Though Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah to whom he refers were not of the tribe of Judah. V. Sanh. 93 b (Tosaf.).

(2) I.e., numerous names in the Book of Chronicles refer to the same person.

(3) I Chron. IV, 18.

(4) Ex. II, 5.

(5) By means of the tebillah or ceremonial bath taken by a proselyte.

(6) According to Wilna Gaon the correct reading is, ‘because he brought down the Torah (from Heaven) for Israel’.

(7) As stated in I Chron. IV, 15.

(8) Esth. II, 6.

(9) The ground of this inference is not clear. Possibly Raba is stressing the word עם, as meaning ‘in company with’, ‘on a footing of equality with’, instead of את, which would have meant ‘taken along with as subsidiary’.

(10) Ibid. 7.

(11) Lit. , ‘myrtle’.

(12) V. Sanh. 93a.

(13) Zech. I, 8.

(14) Esth. II, 20.

(15) The planet Venus (Jast.).

(16) Lit., ‘greenish’, like a myrtle leaf.

(17) Lit., ‘a thread of grace was drawn about her’.

(18) Which seem superfluous.

(19) Esth. II, 7.

(20) I.e., a wife.

(21) II Sam. XII,3.

(22) Esth. II, 9.

(23) E.V., ‘advanced’.

(24) קתלי דחזירי. Not that she necessarily ate them (Tosaf.). [Var. lec. קדלי דחיזרי ‘heads of radish’ — a delicatessen, v. Aruch.]

(25) Dan. I, 16; of Daniel and his companions.

(26) Esth. II, 12.

(27) Heb. סטכת=.

(28) , a kind of oil that was not allowed to be used for sacrifices.

(29) Ibid. 14.

(30) Ibid. 15.

(31) Ibid. 16.

(32) The season being midwinter.

(33) Esth. II, 17.

(34) Ibid. 18.

(35) As it says here, ‘and he made a release to the provinces’.

(36) As it says, ‘and gave gifts, according to the bounty of the king’.

(37) Ibid. 19

(38) Lit., ‘a woman is only jealous of the thigh of another’.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 13b

He withdraweth not his eyes from the righteous?[1] In reward for the modesty displayed by Rachel, she was granted to number among her descendants Saul; and in reward for the modesty displayed by Saul, he was granted to number among his descendants Esther.[2] What was the modesty displayed by Rachel? — As it is written: And Jacob told Rachel that he was her father's brother.[3] Now was he her father's brother? Was he not the son of her father's sister? What it means is this: He said to her, Will you marry me? She replied, Yes, but my father is a trickster, and he will outwit you.[4] He replied, I am his brother in trickery. She said to him, Is it permitted to the righteous to indulge in trickery? He replied. Yes: with the pure thou dost show thyself pure and with the crooked thou dost show thyself subtle.[5] He said to her, What is his trickery? She replied : I have a sister older than I am , and he will not let me marry before her. So he gave her certain tokens. When night came, she said to herself, Now my sister will be put to shame. So she handed over the tokens to her. So it is written, And it came to pass in the morning that, behold, it was Leah.[6] Are we to infer from this that up to now she was not Leah? What it means is that on account of the tokens which Rachel gave to Leah he did not know till then. Therefore she was rewarded by having Saul among her descendants — What modesty did Saul display? — As it is written, But concerning the matter of the kingdom whereof Samuel spoke he told him not.[7] He was therefore rewarded by having Esther among his descendants.

R. Eleazar further said: When the Holy One, blessed be He, assigns greatness to a man, he assigns it to his sons and his sons' sons for all generations, as it says, [With kings on the throne;] He setteth them for ever and they are exalted.[8] If, however, he becomes arrogant, God humiliates him, as it says. And if they be bound in fetters etc.[9]

For Esther did the commandment of Mordecai.[10] R. Jeremiah said: [This means] that she used to show the blood of her impurity to the Sages.

Like as when she was brought up with him.[10] Rabbah b. Lema said in the name of Rab: [This means] that she used to rise from the lap of Ahasuerus and bathe and sit in the lap of Mordecai.[11]

In those days, while Mordecai sat in the king's gate, Bigthan and Teresh were wroth.[12] R. Hiyya b. Abba said in the name of R. Johanan: The Holy One, blessed be He, [once] caused a master to be wroth with his servants in order to fulfil the desire of a righteous man, namely Joseph, as it says, And there was with us there a young man, a Hebrew, etc.;[13] and servants with their master in order to perform a miracle for a righteous man, namely, Mordecai, as it is written, 'And the thing was known to Mordecai etc. ' R. Johanan said: Bigthan and Teresh were two Tarseans[14] and conversed in the Tarsean language. They said: From the day this woman came we have been able to get no sleep.[15] Come, let us put poison in the dish so that he will die. They did not know that Mordecai was one of those who had seats in the Chamber of Hewn Stone,[16] and that he understood seventy languages.[17] Said the other to him, But are not my post and your post different?[18] He replied: I will keep guard at my post and at yours. So it is written, And when inquisition was made, he was found,[19] that is to say, they were not [both] found at their posts.

After these things.[20] After what? — Raba said: After God had created a healing for the blow [which was about to fall]. For Resh Lakish has said: The Holy One, blessed be He, does not smite Israel unless He has created for them a healing beforehand, as it says . When I have healed Israel, then is the iniquity of Ephraim uncovered.[21] Not so, however, with the other nations: He smites them first, and then creates for them a healing, as it says: The Lord will smite Egypt, smiting and healing.[22]

But it seemed contemptible in his eyes to lay hands on Mordecai alone.[23] At first he aimed at 'Mordecai alone', then at 'the people of Mordecai' — and who are these? The Rabbis; and finally at 'all the Jews'.

They cast pur, that is the lot.[24] A Tanna taught: When the lot fell on the month of Adar, he rejoiced greatly. saying, The lot has fallen for me on the month in which Moses died. He did not know, however, that Moses died on the seventh of Adar and was born on the sixth of Adar.

There is one people.[25] Raba said: There never was a traducer so skillful as Haman. He said to Ahasuerus, Come, let us destroy them. He replied: I am afraid of their God, lest He do to me as He did to my predecessors. He replied: They are 'negligent'[26] of the precepts. He said, There are Rabbis among them.[27] He replied. They are ‘one people’.[28] Should you say that I will make a void[29] in your kingdom, [I reply], they are ‘scattered abroad among the peoples’. Should you say. There is some profit in them, I reply, ‘they are dispersed’ [nifredu], like an isolated bough [peridah] that does not bear fruit. Should you say that they occupy one province, I reply, ‘they are in all the provinces of thy kingdom’. ‘Their laws are diverse from those of every other people’: they do not eat of our food, nor do they marry our women nor give us theirs in marriage, ‘Neither keep they the king's laws’, since they evade taxes the whole year[30] by their loitering and sauntering.[31] ‘Therefore it profiteth not the king to suffer them’, because they eat and drink and despise the throne. For if a fly falls into the cup of one of them, he throws it out and drinks the wine, but if my lord the king were to touch his cup, he would dash it on the ground and not drink from it. ‘If it please the king, let it be written that they be destroyed, and I will pay ten thousand talents of silver’: Resh Lakish said: It was well known beforehand to Him at whose word the world came into being that Haman would one day pay shekels for the destruction of Israel. Therefore He anticipated his shekels with those of Israel. And so we have learnt: ‘On the first of Adar[32] proclamation is made regarding the shekalim[33] and the mixed seeds’.[34]

And the king said to Haman, The silver is given to thee and the people also, to do with them as it seemeth good to thee.[35] R. Abba said:

---

(1) Job XXXVI, 7.

(2) There seems to be no authority in the Scripture for this statement. V. Rashi

(3) Gen. XXIX, 12.

(4) Lit., ‘you will not be able to deal with him’.

(5) II Sam. XXII, 27.

(6) Gen. XXIX, 25.

(7) I Sam. X, 16.

(8) Job XXXVI, 7.

(9) Ibid. 8. How the text implies this is not clear. V. Maharsha.

(10) Esth. II, 20.

(11) As wife. The word באמנה (brought up) means literally ‘nursing’.

(12) Ibid. 21.

(13) Gen. XLI, 12.

(14) There was a Tarsus in Cilicia and in Cappodocia and it is not certain which is referred to.

(15) Having always to dance attendance on Ahasuerus.

(16) לשכת הגזית. The meeting place of the Sanhedrin in the Temple at Jerusalem.

(17) V. Sanh. 17a.

(18) So that neither of us can do duty for both.

(19) E.V., ‘it was found’.

(20) Esth. III, 1.

(21) Hos. VII, 1. E.V., ‘when I would heal’.

(22) Isa. XIX, 22.

(23) Esth. III, 6.

(24) Ibid. 7.

(25) Ibid. 8. E.V. ‘a certain people’.

(26) ישנים, lit., ‘asleep’ from a play on the word ישנו (there is).

(27) Who keep the precepts.

(28) And all hang together.

(29) Lit., ‘baldness’.

(30) Lit., ‘they bring out the whole year with’.

(31) Heb. שהי פהי, which may also be an abbreviation for שבת היום פסח היום ‘To-day is Sabbath, to-day is Passover’.

(32) I.e. , fourteen days before the date fixed by Haman.

(33) For the repair of the Temple.
(34) Which it is now time to uproot. V. Shek. I, 1.
(35) Esth. III, 11.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 14a

To what can we compare Ahasuerus and Haman at this point? To two men one of whom had a mound in the middle of his field and the other a ditch in the middle of his field. The owner of the ditch said, I wish I could buy that mound, and the owner of the mound said, I wish l could buy that ditch. One day they met, and the owner of the ditch said, Sell me your mound, whereupon the other replied, Take it for nothing, and I shall be only too glad.[1]

And the king removed his ring.[2] R. Abba b. Kahana said: This removal of the ring was more efficacious than forty-eight prophets[3] and seven prophetesses[4] who prophesied to Israel; for all these were not able to turn Israel to better courses, and the removal of the ring did turn them to better courses.[5]

Our Rabbis taught: ‘Forty-eight prophets and seven prophetesses prophesied to Israel, and they neither took away from nor added aught to what is written in the Torah save only the reading of the Megillah’. How did they derive it [from the Torah]? — R. Hiyya b. Abin said in the name of R. Joshua b. Korha: If for being delivered from slavery to freedom we chant a hymn of praise, should we not do so all the more for being delivered from death to life? If that is the reason we should say Hallel[6] also? — [We do not do so] because Hallel is not said for a miracle which occurred outside of the land of Israel. How then do we come to say it for the Exodus from Egypt which was a miracle which occurred outside the land of Israel? — As it has been taught: ‘Until they entered the land of Israel, all lands were counted as proper for chanting a hymn of praise [for miracles done in them] — After they had entered the land, other countries were not counted as proper for chanting a hymn of praise [for miracles done in them]. R. Nahman said: The reading of the Megillah is equivalent to Hallel. Raba said:[7] There is a good reason in that case [of the Exodus from Egypt] because it says [in the Hallel], Praise ye O servants of the Lord, who are no longer servants of Pharaoh — But can we say in this case, Praise ye, servants of the Lord and not servants of Ahasuerus? We are still servants of Ahasuerus! Whether on the view of Raba[8] or on the view of R. Nahman,[9] there is a difficulty in what has been taught [above], that ‘after they had entered the land, other countries were not counted as proper for chanting a hymn of praise [for miracles done in them]’? — When the people went into exile, the other countries became proper as at first.

Were there no more prophets than these [forty-eight]? — Is it not written, How there was a man from Ramathaim-Zophim,[10] [which we interpret], one of two hundred prophets [zophim][11] who prophesied to Israel? — There were actually very many, as it has been taught, ‘Many prophets arose for Israel, double the number of [the Israelites] who came out of Egypt’, only the prophecy which contained a lesson for[12] future generations was written down, and that which did not contain such a lesson was not written.

R. Samuel b. Nahmani said: This [Ramathaim-Zophim] means, a man who came from two heights which faced one another.[13] R. Hanin said: It means, a man who came from ancestors of the most exalted position.[14] And who were they? The sons of Korah, as it says, And the sons of Korah did not die.[15] A Tanna taught in the name of our Teacher:[16] A special place was assigned[17] to them in Gehinnom and they stood on it.

‘Seven prophetesses’. Who were these? — Sarah, Miriam, Deborah, Hannah, Abigail, Hulda and Esther. ‘Sarah’, as it is written, The father of Milkah and the father of Yiscah’,[18] and R. Isaac said [on this]. Yiscah is Sarah; and why was she called Yiscah? Because she discerned [sakethah] by means of the holy spirit, as it is said, In all that Sarah saith unto thee, hearken to her voice.[19] Another explanation is: because all gazed [sakin] at her beauty. ‘Miriam’, as it is written, And Miriam the prophetess the sister of Aaron.[20] Was she only the sister of Aaron and not the sister of Moses? — R. Nahman said in the name of Rab: [She was so called] because she prophesied when she was the sister of Aaron [only][21] and said, My mother is destined to bear a son who will save Israel. When he was born the whole house was filled with light, and her father arose and kissed her on the head, saying, My daughter, thy prophecy has been fulfilled. But when they threw him into the river her father arose and tapped her on the head, saying. Daughter, where is thy prophecy? So it is written, And his sister stood afar off to know;[22] to know, [that is,] what would be with the latter part of her prophecy. ‘Deborah’, as it is written, Now Deborah a prophetess, the wife of Lapidoth.[23] What is meant by a woman of flames[23] ? [She was so called] because she used to make wicks for the Sanctuary. And she sat under a palm tree[24] Why just a palm tree? — R. Simeon b. Abishalom said: [To avoid] privacy.[25] Another explanation is: Just as a palm tree has only one heart, so Israel in that generation had only one heart devoted to their Father in heaven. ‘Hannah’, as it is written, And Hannah prayed and said, My heart exulteth in the Lord, my horn is exalted in the Lord.[26] [She said], my horn is exalted’, and not, my cruse is exalted’, thus implying that the royalty of [the hour of] David and Solomon, who were anointed from a horn,[27] would be prolonged,[28] but the royalty of [the house of] Saul and Jehu,[29] who were anointed with a cruse, would not be prolonged.

There is none holy as the Lord, for there is none beside thee.[30] R. Judah b. Menashia said: Read not bilteka, ‘beside thee’], but read lebalotheka [‘to survive thee’]. For the nature of the Holy One, blessed be He, is not like that of flesh and blood. It is the nature of flesh and blood to be survived by its works, but God survives His works. Neither is there any rock [zur] like our God.[30] There is no artist [zayyar] like our God. A man draws a figure on a wall, but is unable to endow it with breath and spirit, inward parts and intestines. But the Holy One, blessed be He, fashions a form within a form and endows it with breath and spirit, inward parts and intestines.

‘Abigail’, as it is written, And it was so, as she rode on her ass and came down by the covert of the mountain.[31] ‘By the covert [sether] of the mountain’? It should say from the mountain’! — Rabbah b. Samuel said: It means that she came with reference to blood that came from the hidden parts [setharim]. She brought some blood and showed it to him.[32] He said to her: Is blood to be shown by night? She replied: Are capital cases tried at night?[33] He said to her:

---

(1) Lit., ‘would it were so’. So Ahasuerus was as eager to get rid of the Jews as Haman.

(2) Ibid. 10.

(3) These are enumerated in Rashi (s.v. נבואה) and Seder Olam XX-XXI.

(4) V. infra.

(5) As it says, fasting3 and weeping and mourning, many put on sackcloth and ashes. Esth. IV,3.

(6) V. Glos.

(7) The Bah. reads: Raba demurred to this, saying.

(8) Who holds that Hallel would be said were we not servants of Ahasuerus.

(9) Who holds that the Megillah is equivalent to Hallel.

(10) I Sam. I, 1.

(11) Lit., ‘watchers’. V. supra.

(12) Lit., ‘was required for’.

(13) The literal meaning.

(14) Lit., ‘height of the world’.

(15) Num. XXVI, 11.

(16) Rab (?).

(17) Lit., ‘fenced in’.

(18) Gen. XI, 29.

(19) Ibid. XXI. 12.

(20) Ex. XV, 20.
(21) I.e., before the birth of Moses.
(22) Ex. II, 4.
(23) Jud. IV,4. ‘Lapidoth’ means literally ‘flames’.
(24) Ibid. 5.
(25) And the possibility of scandal, a palm tree not being leafy.
(26) I Sam. II, 1.
(27) V. I Sam. XVI, 13 (David); I Kings I, 39 (Solomon).
(28) As symbolized by a horn.
(29) V. I Sam. X, 1 (Saul); II Kings IX. 1 (Jehu).
(30) I Sam. II, 2.
(31) Ibid. XXV, 20.
(32) David was supposed to have been an authority on the Torah, v. Ber. 4a.
(33) And yet you are condemning Nabal to death.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 14b

He [Nabal] is a rebel against the king and no trial is necessary for him.[1] She replied; Saul is still alive, and your fame is not yet spread abroad in the world. Then he said to her: Blessed be thy discretion and blessed be thou, that hast kept me this day from bloodguiltiness.[2] The word damim [bloodguiltiness] is plural, to indicate two kinds of blood.[3] The passage teaches that she bared her thigh[4] and he went three parasangs by the light of it.[5] He said, Listen to me. She replied, Let not this be a stumbling-block to thee.[6] The word ‘this’ implies that something else would be, and what was that? The incident of Bathsheba; and so it was eventually.[7] The soul of thy lord shall be bound up in the bundle of life.[8] When she left him she said to him, and when the Lord shall have done good to my lord . . . then remember thy handmaid.[9] R. Nahman said: This bears out the popular saying, While a woman talks she spins.[10] Some adduce the saying: The goose stoops as it goes along, but its eyes peer afar.

‘Hulda, as it is written, So Hilkiah the priest and Ahikam and Achbor etc.[11] But if Jeremiah was there,[12] how could she prophesy? — It was said in the school of Rab in the name of Rab: Hulda was a near relative of Jeremiah, and he did not object to her doing so. But how could Josiah himself pass over Jeremiah and send to her? — The members of the school of R. Shila replied, Because women are tender-hearted.[13] R. Johanan said: Jeremiah was not there, as he had gone to bring back the ten tribes. Whence do we know that they returned? — Because it is written, For the seller shall not return to that which is sold.[14] Now is it possible that after the Jubilee had ceased[15] the prophet should prophesy that it will cease? The fact is that it teaches that Jeremiah brought them back.[16] Josiah the son of Amon ruled over them, as it says, Then he said, What monument is that which I see? And the men of the city told him, It is the sepulchre of the man of God who came from Judah, and proclaimed these things that thou hast done against the altar in Beth-el.[17] Now what connection is there between Josiah and the altar in Bethel?[18] What it teaches therefore is that Josiah reigned over them. R. Nahman said: We learn it from here: Also, O Judah, there is a harvest appointed for thee, when I would turn the captivity of my people.[19]

‘Esther,’ as it is written, Now it came to pass on the third day that Esther clothed herself in royalty.[20] Surely it should say,’royal apparel’? What it shows is that the holy spirit clothed her. It is written here, ‘and she clothed’, and it is written in another place. Then the spirit clothed Amasai, etc.[21]

R. Nahman said: Haughtiness does not befit women. There were two haughty women, and their names are hateful, one being called a hornet[22] and the other a weasel.[23] Of the hornet it is written, And she sent and called Barak,[24] instead of going to him. Of the weasel it is written, Say to the man,[25] instead of ‘say to the king’.

R. Nahman said: Hulda was a descendant of Joshua. It is written here [in connection with Hulda]. The son of Harhas,[26] and it is written in another place [in connection with Joshua], In Timnath-Heres.[27] R. ‘Ena Saba cited the following in objection to R. Nahman: ‘Eight prophets who were also priests were descended from Rahab the harlot, namely, Neriah, Baruch, Serayah, Mahseyah, Jeremiah, Hilkiah, Hanamel and Shallum.’ R. Judah says: Hulda the prophetess was also one of the descendants of Rahab the harlot. [We know this] because it is written here ‘the son of Tikvah’ and it is written elsewhere [in connection with Rahab]. ‘the line [tikvath] of scarlet thread’![28] — He replied: ‘’Ena Saba’[29] — or, according to another report. ‘Black bowl’,[30] — the truth can be found by combining my statement and yours’.[31] We must suppose that she became a proselyte and Joshua married her. But had Joshua any children? Is it not written, Nun his son, Joshua his son?[32] — He had no sons, but he had daughters.

---

(1) I.e., he can be condemned at night. V. Tosaf.

(2) I Sam. XXV, 33.

(3) Of uncleanness and capital punishment.

(4) Not necessarily in his presence. V. Maharsha.

(5) I.e., through desire for her. V. Tosaf.

(6) Ibid. 31.

(7) This shows that she was a prophetess.

(8) Ibid. 29. This sentence seems to be an interpolation and should be omitted (Maharsha).

(9) Ibid. 30, 31.

(10) Ibid. So Abigail, while speaking about Nabal, put in a word for herself, proposing that David should marry her should Nabal die (Rashi).

(11) II Kings XXII, 14.

(12) Jeremiah began to prophesy in the thirteenth year of Josiah (Jer. I, 2) and this happened in the eighteenth year of Josiah.

(13) And she would pray for them (Maharsha).

(14) Ezek. VII, 13. Ezekiel prophesied in the period between the exiles of Jeconiah and Zedekiah.

(15) The Jubilee was to be kept only when all Israel were in the land, and therefore ceased as soon as the tribes across the Jordan were deported (Rashi).

(16) So that in that year they commenced counting again for the Jubilee.

(17) II Kings XXIII, 17.

(18) Which was in the kingdom of Ephraim.

(19) Hos. VI, 11. ‘Harvest’ here is supposed to have the sense of ‘power’ or ‘greatness’ (Rashi).

(20) Esth. V, 1.

(21) I Chron. XII, 19.

(22) The literal meaning of Deborah.

(23) The literal meaning of Hulda.

(24) Jud. IV, 6.

(25) II Kings XXII, 15.

(26) Ibid. 14.

(27) Jud. II, 9. This is interpreted as ‘Timnath belonging to Heres’, who is identified with Harhas.

(28) Josh. II, 18.

(29) Lit., ‘old eye’.

(30) Alluding perhaps to his ugliness (Maharsha).

(31) Lit., ‘from me and thee is the matter concluded’.

(32) I Chron. VII, 27. The genealogy stops at this point; from which it is inferred that Joshua had no sons.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 15a

We admit that [some of] those [eight] mentioned above are expressly described [as prophets],[1] but how do we know that their fathers[2] [were prophets]? — From the dictum of ‘Ulla; for ‘Ulla said: Wherever a man's name is given along with that of his father as the author of a prophecy[3] we know that he was a prophet son of a prophet. Where his own name is given but not that of his father, we know that he was a prophet but not the son of a prophet. Where his name and the name of his town are specified, we know that he came from that town — Where his name is given but not that of his town, we know that he was from Jerusalem — In a Baraitha it was stated: If nothing is known about the character of a man or of his ancestors,[4] and the Scripture mentions any one of them in connection with a praiseworthy action, as for instance, The word of the Lord which came to Zephaniah son of Cushi son of Gedaliah,[5] we may know that he was a righteous man son of a righteous man; and wherever the Scripture mentions any one of them in connection with a reprehensible action, as for instance, And it came to pass in the seventh month that Ishmael the son....of Elishama came,[6] we may know that he was a wicked man son of a wicked man.

R. Nahman[7] said: Malachi is the same as Mordecai. Why was he called Malachi? Because he was next to the king.[8] The following was cited in objection to this: ‘Baruch the son of Neriah and Serayah the son of Mahseyah and Daniel and Mordecai, Bilshan, Haggai, Zechariah and Malachi all prophesied in the second year of Darius’! — This is a refutation.

It has been taught: R. Joshua b. Korha said: Malachi is the same as Ezra, and the Sages say that Malachi was his proper name. R. Nahman said: There is good ground for accepting the view that Malachi was the same as Ezra. For it is written in the prophecy of Malachi, Judah hath dealt treacherously and an abomination is committed in Israel and in Jerusalem, for Judah hath profaned the holiness of the Lord which he loveth and hath married the daughter of a strange God.[9] And who was it that put away the strange women? Ezra, as it is written, And Shechaniah the son of Jehiel, one of the sons of Elam answered and said unto Ezra: We have broken faith with our God and have married foreign women.[10]

The Rabbis taught: There have been four women of surpassing beauty in the world — Sarah, Rahab, Abigail and Esther. According to the one who says that Esther was sallow,[11] Vashti should be inserted in place of Esther.

Our Rabbis taught: Rahab inspired lust by her name; Jael by her voice; Abigail by her memory; Mical daughter of Saul by her appearance. R. Isaac said: Whoever says. ‘Rahab, Rahab’, at once has an issue. Said R. Nahman to him: I say Rahab, Rahab, and nothing happens to me! He replied: I was speaking of one who knows her and is intimate with her.

Now when Mordecai knew all that was done[12] [etc.]. What [was his cry]? — Rab said: He said, ‘Haman has raised himself above Ahasuerus’; Samuel said, ‘The upper king has prevailed over the lower king’.[13]

And the queen was exceedingly pained [wa-tithhalhal].[14] What is the meaning of wa-tithhalhal?[15] — Rab said: It means that she became menstruous; R. Jeremiah said that her bowels were loosened.

And Esther called Hatach.[16] Rab said: Hatach is the same as Daniel. Why was he called Hatach? Because he was degraded [hataku-hu] from his position.[17] Samuel said, Because all affairs of state were decided [nehtakim] by his voice.

To know what this was and why this was.[16] R. Isaac said: She sent to him saying. Perhaps Israel have transgressed the five books of the Torah, in which is written, On this side and on this they were written.[18]

And they told Mordecai Esther's words.[19] But Hatach did not go to him on this occasion.[20] This shows us that a recalcitrant answer[21] need not be taken back [by the messenger].[22]

Go, gather together all the Jews . . . which is not according to the custom.[23] R. Abba said: It will not be [she said] according to the custom of every other day. Till now [I have associated with Ahasuerus] under compulsion, but now I will do so of my own will.

And if I perish, I perish.[23] As I am lost to my father's house so I shall be lost to thee.[24]

And Mordecai passed [wa-ya'abor].[25] Rab said: This indicates that he made the first day of Passover pass[26] as a fast day. Samuel said: It indicates that he crossed a stream [on that day].[27] Now it came to pass on the third day that Esther put on royalty.[28] Surely it should say, ‘royal apparel’? — R. Eleazar said in the name of R. Hanina: This tells us that the holy spirit clothed her. It is written here, ‘and she put on’, and it is written elsewhere, And a spirit clothed Amasai.[29]

R. Eleazar b. Hanina also said: Let not the blessing of an ordinary man be lightly esteemed in thine eyes, for two men great in their generation received from ordinary men blessings which were fulfilled in them. They were, David and Daniel. David was blessed by Araunah, as it is written, And Araunah said unto the king, The Lord thy God accept thee.[30] Daniel was blessed by Darius, as it is written ‘ Thy God whom thou servest continually, He will deliver thee.[31] R. Eleazar further said in the name of R. Hanina: Let not the curse of an ordinary man be lightly esteemed in thine eyes, because Abimelech cursed Sarah, saying, Behold he is to thee a covering of the eyes,[32] and this was fulfilled in her seed, [as it says], And it came to pass that when Isaac was old his eyes were dim.[33]

R. Eleazar further said in the name of R. Hanina: Come and observe that the way of the Holy One, blessed be He, is not like the way of flesh and blood — The way of flesh and blood is that a man places a pot on the fire and then pours water into it, but God first puts in the water and then fixes the pot, to fulfil what is written, At the sound of his giving a multitude of waters in the heavens.[34]

R. Eleazar further said in the name of R. Hanina: Whoever reports a saying in the name of its originator brings deliverance to the world, as it says, And Esther told the king in the name of Mordecai.[35]

R. Eleazar further said in the name of R. Hanina: When a righteous man dies, he dies only for his own generation.[36] It is with him as with a man who loses a pearl. Wherever it is, it remains a pearl,[37] and is lost only to its owner.

Yet all this availeth me nothing.[38] R. Eleazar said in the name of R. Hanina: Because he saw Mordecai sitting in the king's gate, was this any reason why he should say, ‘All this availeth me nothing’? The explanation is in the dictum of R. Hisda; for R. Hisda said: The one came [to the court] as a counsellor[39] and the other

---

(1) Viz., Jeremiah and Hanamel (Jer. XXXII) and also Baruch and Serayah, who were disciples of Jeremiah and therefore presumably prophets also (Rashi).

(2) Viz., Hilkiah, Shallum, Neriah and Mahseyah.

(3) Lit., ‘in prophecy’.

(4) Lit., ‘where his actions and those of his ancestors are not defined’.

(5) Zeph. I, 1.

(6) Jer. XLI, 1. They came to murder Gedaliah.

(7) According to a better reading, Rab. V infra.

(8) V. Esth. X, 3. ‘And he was looked on as an angel (mal'ak)’. (Maharsha).

(9) Mal. II, 11.

(10) Ezra X, 2.
(11) V. supra p.75.
(12) Esth. IV, 1.
(13) Euphemistically, meaning the opposite. Or it may be taken literally, as a kind of prayer (Maharsha).
(14) Esth. IV 4.
(15) Lit., ‘became full of hollows’.
(16) Ibid. 5.
(17) Which he held in the reigns of Belshazar, Darius and Cyrus.
(18) Ex. XXXII, 15.
(19) Esth. IV, 12.
(20) As, if so, it would say he told.
(21) E.g., Esther's reluctance to petition the king.
(22) And Mordecai must have learnt from some other source.
(23) Ibid. 16.
(24) [By submitting voluntarily to Ahasuerus she would be for ever forbidden to Mordecai who was (v. p. 78, n. 5) her legitimate husband, according to the law which forbids a wife to her husband where she had relations of her own free will with another man.]
(25) Ibid. 17.
(26) A play on the word he'ebir which means, ‘to prolong a month by adding an extra day’,[or in the sense of ‘transgressed’, cf. Targum a.I.: ‘and he transgressed the joy of the feast of Passover’.] The order for the destruction of the Jews was given in Susa on the thirteenth day of Nisan, and the Jews fasted the next three days.
(27) To inform the Jews on the other side. [The Jewish quarter in Susa was separated from the main city by a small tributary of the Tigris. V. Obermeyer, p. 214.]
(28) Esth. V, 1.
(29) I Chron. XII, 19.
(30) II Sam. XXIV, 23.
(31) Dan. VI, 17.
(32) Gen. XX, 16.
(33) Ibid. XXVII, 1. V. supra.
(34) Jer. X, 13. The text continues, when he causeth the vapours to ascend, like steam from a boiling pot.
(35) Esth. II, 22.
(36) And his name, or his soul, survives.
(37) Lit., ‘its name is pearl’.
(38) This verse from the Book of Esther (V. 13) is here commented on out of its place, in order to introduce another dictum of R. Eleazar in the name of R. Hanina.
(39) Heb. פרוזבולי apparently = **.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 15b

as an envoy.[1] R. Papa said: They also called him, The slave that was sold for loaves of bread .[2]

Yet all this availeth me nought. This tells us that all the treasures of that wretch were engraved on his heart, and when he saw Mordecai sitting in the king's gate he said, Yet all this[3] availeth me nought.

R. Eleazar further said in the name of R. Hanina: God will in the time to come be a crown on the head of every righteous man, as it is said, In that day shall the Lord of Hosts be for a crown of glory[4] etc. What is meant by a ‘crown of glory’ [zebi] and a ‘diadem [zefirath] of beauty’? For them that do his will [zibyono] and who await [mezapin] his glory. Shall He be so to all? [Not so]. since it says, ‘unto the residue of [lish'ar] his people’: that is, to whoever makes of himself a mere residue [shirayim]. ‘And for a spirit of judgment’: this indicates one who brings his inclination to trial.[5] ‘To him that sitteth in judgment’: this indicates one who gives a true verdict on true evidence.[6] ‘And for strength': this indicates one who subdues his evil passions.[7] 'That turn back the battle': this indicates those who thrust and parry[8] in the war of the Torah. 'At the gate': these are the disciples of the wise who are early and late in synagogues and houses of study. Said the Attribute of Justice[9] before the Holy One, blessed be He: Why this difference between these and the others? The Holy One, blessed be He, said to him: Israel busy themselves with the Torah, the other nations do not busy themselves with the Torah — He replied to Him, But these also reel through wine, and stagger through strong drink, they totter in judgment[10] [paku peliliyah]; and 'paku' contains a reference to Gehinnom, as it says, that this shall be no stumbling-block [pukah] to thee;[11] and 'peliliyah' contains a reference to the judges, as it says. and he shall pay as the judges determine [bi-felilim].[12]

And stood in the inner court of the king's house.[13] R. Levi said: When she reached the chamber of the idols, the Divine Presence left her. She said, My God, My God, why hast thou forsaken me.[14] Dost thou perchance punish the inadvertent offence[15] like the presumptuous one, or one done under compulsion like one done willingly? Or is it because I called him 'dog', as it says. Deliver my soul from the sword, mine only one from the power of the dog?[16] She straightway retracted and called him lion, as it says. Save me from the lion's mouth.[17]

And it was so when the king saw Esther the queen.[18] R. Johanan said: Three ministering angels were appointed to help her at that moment; one to make her head[19] erect, a second to endow her with charm[20] and a third to stretch the golden sceptre. How much [was it stretched]? — R. Jeremiah said: It was two cubits long and he made it twelve cubits — Some say, sixteen, and some again twenty-four. In a Baraitha it was stated, sixty. So too you find with the arm of the daughter of Pharaoh,[21] and so you find with the teeth of the wicked, as it is written, Thou hast broken [shibarta] the teeth of the wicked,[22] and Resh Lakish said in regard to this, Read not shibarta but shirbabta [Thou hast prolonged]. Rabbah b. 'Ofran said in the name of R. Eleazar who had it from his teacher, who had it from his teacher, [that the sceptre was stretched] two hundred [cubits].

And the king said to her, What wilt thou, queen Esther? For whatever thy request, even to the half of the kingdom, it shall be given thee.[23] 'Half the kingdom', but not the whole kingdom. and not a thing which would divide the kingdom.[24] What could that be? The building of the Temple.

Let the king and Haman come unto the banquet.[25] Our Rabbis taught: What was Esther's reason for inviting Haman? — R. Eleazar said, She set a trap for him, as it says. Let their table before them become a snare.[26] R. Joshua said: She learnt to do so from her father's house, as it says. If thine enemy be hungry give him bread to eat, etc.[27] R. Meir said, So that he should not form a conspiracy[28] and rebel. R. Judah said: So that they should not discover that she was a Jewess.[29] R. Nehemiah said: So that Israel should not say, We have a sister in the palace, and so should neglect[30] [to pray for] mercy. R. Jose said: So that he should always be at hand for her.[31] R. Simeon b. Menassiah said: [She said], Perhaps the Omnipresent will notice[32] and do a miracle for us. R. Joshua b. Korha said: [She said], I will encourage him so that he may be killed, both he and I.[33] Rabban Gamaliel said: [She said]. Ahasuerus is a changeable king.[34] Said R. Gamaliel: We still require the Modean,[35] as it has been taught: R. Eliezer of Modi'im says, She made the king jealous of him and she made the princes jealous of him. Rabbah said: [She said], Pride goeth before destruction.[36] Abaye and Raba gave the same reason, saying: [She said], With their poison I will prepare their feast.[37] Rabbah b. Abbuha came across Elijah and said to him, Which of these reasons prompted Esther to act as she did? He replied: [All] the reasons given by all the Tannaim and all the Amoraim.

And Haman recounted unto them the glory of his riches and the multitude of his children.[38] How many are indicated by 'the multitude of his children'? — Rab said: Thirty. Ten died, ten were hung, and ten were reduced to beggary. The Rabbis, however, said: Those who were reduced to beggary numbered seventy, as it says, They that were full [sebe'im] have hired themselves out for bread.[39] Read not sebe'im, but shib'im [seventy]. Rami b. Abba said: In all they were two hundred and eight, as it says, And the multitude [we-rob] of his sons. But we-rob in gematria[40] is two hundred and fourteen?[41] — R. Nahman b. Isaac said: The word is written defectively.[42]

On that night the sleep of the king was disturbed.[43] R. Tanhun said: The sleep of the King of the Universe was disturbed. The Rabbis, however, say: Those above[44] were disturbed and those below[45] were disturbed. Raba said: It means literally ‘the sleep of king Ahasuerus. A thought occurred to him: What is the meaning of Esther inviting Haman? Perhaps they are conspiring[46] against me to kill me? He thought again: If that is so, is there no man who is my friend and who would tell me? Then he thought again: Perhaps there is some man who has done me a good turn and I have not rewarded him; and therefore men refrain from informing me. Straightway, he commanded to bring the book of records of the chronicles.[43]

And they were read.[43] This [form of expression][47] indicates that they were read of themselves.

And it was found [being] written.[48] It should say, a writing [kethab] was found? — This shows

---

(1) Heb. פרוזבוטי apparently =  There was a tradition that Mordecai once went with a deputation to the king of Persia to ask permission for the Jews to rebuild the Temple, v. Jast. [Rashi: One (Mordecai) came as a rich man, the other (Haman) as a debtor. Haman according to the legend had sold himself during one of the wars as a slave to Mordecai for a loaf of bread.]

(2) V. previous note.

(3) Pointing to it (Maharsha).

(4) Isa. XXVIII, 5f.

(5) And forces himself to repent (Rashi).

(6) Lit., ‘true to its own truth’.

(7) Avoids sin.

(8) Lit., ‘take and give’, i.e., ‘argue’, ‘debate’.

(9) The qualities assigned to God in Ex. XXXIV, 6,7 are called in the Talmud the divine Attributes (middoth, lit., ‘measures’). and those of Justice and Mercy are often personified.

(10) Isa. XXVIII, 7.

(11) I Sam. XXV, 31.

(12) Ex. XXI, 22.

(13) Esth. V, 2.

(14) Ps. XXII, 2.

(15) In associating with Ahasuerus.

(16) Ibid. 21.

(17) Ibid. 22.

(18) Esth. V, 2.

(19) Lit., ‘neck’.

(20) Lit., ‘to draw a thread of grace over her’.

(21) In Ex. II, 5 the words ותשלח את אמתה are translated by the Rabbis ‘and she put forth her arm’ (E.V., ‘she sent her handmaid’)

(22) Ps. III, 8. Cf. Ber.

(23) Esth. V, 3.

(24) By setting up a rival power.

(25) Ibid. 4.

(26) Ps. LXIX, 23.

(27) Prov. XXV, 21. The next verse continues, ‘for thou heapest coals of fire upon his head’.

(28) Lit., ‘take counsel’.

(29) Since she was willing to eat with Haman.

(30) Lit., ‘discuss their mind’.

(31) If she wanted to accuse him.

(32) To what straits I am brought.
(33) Lit., 'she'.
(34) And I may persuade him to alter his mind while Haman is with us, so that he will not have time to change again.
(35) To explain why Haman alone was invited (Maharsha).
(36) Prov. XVI, 18.
(37) Jer. LI, 39.
(38) Esth. V, 11.
(39) I Sam. II, 5.
(40) V. Glos.
(41) Viz., W = 6; R = 200; W = 6; B = 2.
(42) I.e., without the middle waw.
(43) Esth. VI, 1.
(44) The angels.
(45) Israel.
(46) Lit., 'taking counsel'.
(47) Instead of 'and they read them'.
(48) Ibid. 2.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 16a

that Shamshai[1] kept on erasing and Gabriel kept on writing. R. Assi said: R. Shila, a man of Kefar Temarta,[2] drew a lesson from this, saying: If a writing on earth which is for the benefit of Israel cannot be erased, how much less a writing in heaven![3]

There is nothing done for him.[4] Raba said: [They answered him thus] not because they loved Mordecai but because they hated Haman.

He had prepared for him.[5] A Tanna stated: [This means], he had prepared for himself.[6]

And do even so to Mordecai etc.[7] Haman said to him: Who is Mordecai? He said to him: 'The Jew'. He said: There are many Mordecais among the Jews. He replied: 'The one who sits in the king's gate'. Said Haman to him: For him [the tribute] of one village or one river is sufficient! Said Ahasuerus: Give him that too; 'let nothing fail of all that thou hast spoken'.

Then took Haman the apparel and the horse.[8] He went and found [Mordecai with] the Rabbis sitting before him while he showed them the rules of the 'handful'.[9] When Mordecai saw him approaching and leading the horse, he became frightened and said to the Rabbis, This villain is coming to kill me. Get out of his way so that you should not get into trouble with him.[10] Mordecai thereupon drew his robe round him and stood up to pray. Haman came up and sat down before them and waited till Mordecai had finished his prayer. He said to him: What have you been discussing? He replied: When the Temple stood, if a man brought a meal-offering he used to offer a handful of fine flour and make atonement therewith. Said Haman to them: Your handful of fine flour has come and displaced my ten thousand talents of silver. Said Mordecai to him: Wretch, if a slave acquires property, whose is the slave and whose is the property?[11] Haman then said to him: Arise and put on this apparel and ride on this horse, for so the king desires you to do. He replied: I cannot do so until I have gone into the bath and trimmed my hair, for it would not be good manners to use the king's apparel in this state. Now Esther had sent and closed all the baths and all the barbers' shops. So Haman himself took him into the bath and washed him, and then went and brought scissors from his house and trimmed his hair. While he was doing so, he sighed and groaned. Said Mordecai to him: Why do you sigh? He replied: The man who was esteemed by the king above all his nobles is now made a bath attendant and a barber. Said Mordecai to him: Wretch, and were you not once a barber in Kefar Karzum?[12] (For so a Tanna stated: Haman was a barber in Kefar Karzum twenty-two years.) After he had trimmed his hair he put the garments on him, and said to him, Mount and ride. He replied: I am not able, as I am weak from the days of fasting. So Haman stooped down and he mounted [on his back]. When he was up he kicked him. He said to him: Is it not written in your books,[13] Rejoice not when thine enemy faileth?[14] He replied: That refers to an Israelite, but in regard to you [folk] it is written, And thou shalt tread upon their high places.[15]

And proclaimed before him, This shall be done to the man whom the king delighted to honour.[16] As he was leading him through the street where Haman lived, his daughter who was standing on the roof saw him. She thought that the man on the horse was her father and the man walking before him was Mordecai. So she took a chamber pot and emptied it on the head of her father. He looked up at her and when she saw that it was her father, she threw herself from the roof to the ground and killed herself. Hence it is written . . .[17]

And Mordecai returned to the king's gate. R. Shesheth said: This indicates that he returned to his sackcloth and fasting. But Haman hastened to his house, mourning and having his head covered; mourning for his daughter, and with his head covered on account of what had happened to him.

And Haman recounted unto Zeresh his wife and all his friends, etc. They are first called ‘his friends’ and then they are called ‘his wise men’. R. Johanan said: Whoever says a wise thing even if he is a non-Jew[18] is called ‘wise’.

If Mordecai be of the seed of the Jews. They said to him: If he comes from the other tribes, you can prevail over him, but if he is from the tribe of Judah or of Benjamin, Ephraim or Manasseh, you will not prevail over him. ‘Judah’, as it is written, Thy hand shall be on the neck of thine enemies.[19] The others, because it is written of them, Before Ephraim and Benjamin and Manasseh stir up thy might.[20]

But falling thou shalt fall.[21] R. Judah b. Ila'i drew a lesson from this verse, Saying: Why are two fallings mentioned here? Haman's friends said to him: This people is likened to the dust and it is likened to the stars. When they go down, they go down to the dust, and when they rise they rise to the stars. Came the king's chamberlains and hastened [wa-yabhilu] to bring Haman.[22] The use of this word [wa-yabhilu][23] tells us that they brought him all in confusion [behalah].

For we are sold, I and my people etc . . . For the adversary cares[24] not that the king is endamaged.[25] She said to him: This adversary cares not for the damage of the king. He was angry with Vashti and killed her,[26] and he is angry with me and wants to kill me.

Then said the king Ahasuerus, and he said to Esther the queen.[27] Why ‘said’ and again ‘said’? R. Abbahu replied: He first spoke to her through an intermediary.[28] When she told him that she came from the house of Saul,[29] forthwith, ‘he said to Esther the queen’.

And Esther said, An adversary and an enemy, even this wicked Haman.[30] R. Eleazar said: This informs us that she was pointing to Ahasuerus and an angel came and pushed her hand so as to point to Haman.[31]

And the king rose in his wrath...and the king returned out of the palace garden.[32] His returning is put on the same footing as his arising. Just as the arising was in wrath, so the returning was in wrath. For he went and found ministering angels in the form of men who were uprooting trees from the garden. He said to them, What are you doing? They replied: Haman has ordered us. He came into the house, and there ‘Haman was falling[33] upon the couch’. ‘Falling’? It should say. ‘had fallen’? — R. Eleazar said: This informs us that an angel came and made him fall on it. Ahasuerus then exclaimed: Trouble[34] inside, trouble outside!

‘Then said the king, Will he even force the queen before me in the house? Then said Harbonah, etc.’ R. Eleazar said: Harbonah also was a wicked man and implicated in that plot.[35] When he saw that his plan was not succeeding, he at once fled, and so it is written, And he cast upon him and did not pity, from his hand he surely fleeth.[36]

Then the king's wrath was assuaged.[37] Why are there two assuagings here?[38] — One of the [wrath of the] King of the Universe,[39] and the other of Ahasuerus. Others say, one [of the wrath] on account of Esther and the other on account of Vashti.

To all of them he gave to each man changes of raiment but to Benjamin he gave five changes of raiment.[40] Is it possible that that righteous man[41] should fall into the very mistake from which he himself had suffered?

---

(1) A scribe, mentioned in the book of Ezra (IV, 8) as an enemy of the Jews. According to tradition he was a son of Haman.

(2) [Tamara, south of Kabul, v. E.J. s.v.]

(3) Seeing that Gabriel is already there (Maharsha).

(4) Esth. VI, 3.

(5) Ibid. 4.

(6) As otherwise the words ‘for him,’ are superfluous.

(7) Ibid. 10.

(8) Ibid. 11.

(9) V. Lev. II, 2 and infra.

(10) Lit., ‘that you be not burnt with his coal’.

(11) How then can you, being the slave of Ahasuerus, talk of your ten talents of silver. [Aliter: Haman had sold himself to Mordecai as slave. V. supra p. 90. n. 4.]

(12) [MS.M. קרינום, Kefar Karnayim in Transjordania, cf. Josephus, Ant. XII, 8,4; v. however, Romanoff, P. Amer. Acad. for Jewish Research, VII, pp. 58ff].

(13) Lit., ‘for you’.

(14) Prov. XXIV, 17.

(15) Deut. XXXIII, 29.

(16) Esth. VI, 11.

(17) These words connect with the sentence after the next, ‘but Haman hastened’ etc.

(18) Lit., ‘of the nations of the world’.

(19) Gen. XLIX, 8.

(20) Ps. LXXX, 3.

(21) So lit. E.V. Shalt surely fall.

(22) Esth. VI, 14.

(23) Instead of the more usual וימהרו.

(24) E.V., ‘is not worthy’.

(25) Esth. VII, 4.

(26) V. supra 12b.

(27) Ibid. 5.

(28) Heb. turgeman; lit., ‘interpreter’.

(29) I.e., that she was of royal descent.

(30) Ibid. 6.

(31) She meant the words ‘adversary and enemy’ to apply to Ahasuerus himself.

(32) Esth. VII, 7f.

(33) Heb. נפל.

(34) Lit., ‘woe!’.

(35) To hang Mordecai. [Otherwise how would he have known the exact measurements of the gallows.]

(36) Job XXVII, 22.
(37) Esth. VII, 10.
(38) The Hebrew is שככה, where שכה might have been used.
(39) Against Israel for bowing down to the image; supra 12a.
(40) Gen. XLV, 22.
(41) Joseph.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 16b

For Raba b. Mehasia said in the name of R. Hami b. Guria, who said it in the name of Rab: Through two sela's weight of fine silk which Jacob gave to Joseph over what he gave to his brothers, a ball was set rolling and our ancestors eventually went down to Egypt! — R. Benjamin b. Japhet said: He gave him a hint that a descendant would issue from him who would go forth before a king in five royal garments, as it says, And Mordecai went forth from the presence of the king in royal apparel of blue etc.[1]

And he fell upon his brother Benjamin's neck.[2] How many necks[3] had Benjamin? — R. Eleazar said: He wept for the two Temples which were destined to be in the territory of Benjamin[4] and to be destroyed. And Benjamin wept upon his neck:[2] he wept for the tabernacle of Shiloh which was destined to be in the territory of Joseph and to be destroyed.

And behold your eyes see and the eyes of my brother Benjamin.[5] R. Eleazar said: He said to them: Just as I bear no malice against my brother Benjamin who had no part in my selling, so I have no malice against you.

That it is my mouth that speaketh unto you. As my mouth is, so is my heart.

And to his father he sent in like manner ten asses laden with the good things of Egypt.[6] What are ‘the good things of Egypt’? R. Benjamin b. Japhet said in the name of R. Eleazar: He sent him [old] wine which old men find very comforting.[7]

And his brethren also went and fell down before him.[8] R. Benjamin b. Japhet said in the name of R. Eleazar: This bears out the popular saying, A fox in its hour — bow down to it. [You compare Joseph to] a fox! Where was his inferiority to his brothers? Rather if this was said [by R. Eleazar] it was applied as follows: And Israel bowed down upon the bed's head.[9] R. Benjamin b. Japhet said in the name of R. Eleazar; A fox in its hour — bow down to it.[10]

And he comforted them and spoke kindly to them.[11] R. Benjamin b. Japhet said in the name of R. Eleazar: This tells us that he spoke to them words which greatly reassured them,[12] [saying], If ten lights were not able to put out one, how can one light put out ten?

The Jews had light and gladness and joy and honour.[13] Rab Judah said: ‘Light’ means the Torah,[14] and so it says. For the commandment is a lamp and the Torah is a light.[15] ‘Gladness’ means a feast day; and so it says, And thou shalt be glad in thy feast.[16] ‘Joy’ means circumcision; and so it says, I rejoice at thy word.[17] ‘Honour’ means the phylacteries, and so it says, And all the peoples of the earth shall see that the name of the Lord is called upon thee, and they shall be afraid of thee;[18] and it has been taught: R. Eleazar the Great says that this refers to the phylactery of the head.

And Parshandatha . . . the ten sons of Haman.[19] R. Adda from Joppa said: The ten sons of Haman and the word ‘ten’ [which follows] should be said[20] in one breath. What is the reason? Because their souls all departed together. R. Johanan said: The waw of waizatha must be lengthened like a boat-pole of the river Libruth.[21] What is the reason? Because they were all strung on one pole. R.

Shila, a man of Kefar Temarta, drew a lesson from this saying, All the songs [in Scripture] are written in the form of a half brick over a whole brick,[22] and a whole brick[22] over a half brick,[23] with the exception of this one and the list of the kings of Canaan[24] which are written in the form of a half brick over a half brick and a whole brick over a whole brick.[25] What is the reason? So that they should never rise again from their downfall.

And the king said to the queen, In Shushan the castle the Jews have slain . . .[26] The mode of expression informs us that an angel came and slapped him on his mouth.[27]

But when she came before the king, he said along with the letter.[28] 'He said'? It should be, 'she said'! — R. Johanan said: She said, Let there be said by word of mouth what is written in the letter.[29]

Words of peace and truth.[30] R. Tanhum said: [or, according to some, R. Assi]: This shows that the Megillah requires to be written on ruled lines, like the true essence of the Torah.[31] And the ordinance of Esther confirmed.[32] Only the ordinance of Esther and not the words of the fastings? — R. Johanan said: We must read thus: The words of the fastings [and their cry] and the ordinance of Esther confirmed these matters of Purim.[33]

For Mordecai the Jew was next unto king Ahasuerus, and great among the Jews and accepted of the majority of his brethren.[34] Of the majority of his brethren but not of all his brethren; this informs us that some members of the Sanhedrin separated from him.[35]

R. Joseph said: The study of the Torah is superior to the saving of life. For at first Mordecai was reckoned next after four, but afterwards next after five. At first it is written, Who came with Zerubabel, [namely] Jeshua, Nehemiah, Seraiah, Reelaiah, Mordecai, Bilshan,[36] and subsequently it is written, Who came with Zerubabel, Jeshua, Nehemiah, Azariah, Raamiah, Nahamani, Mordecai, Bilshan.[37]

Rab — or, some say. R. Samuel b. Martha — said: The study of the Torah is superior to the building of the Temple, for as long as Baruch b. Neriah was alive Ezra would not leave him to go up to the land of Israel.[38] Rabbah said in the name of R. Isaac b. Samuel b. Martha: The study of the Torah is superior to the honouring of father and mother. For, for the fourteen years that Jacob spent in the house of Eber, he was not punished, since a Master has said:

---

(1) Esth. VIII, 15.

(2) Gen. XLV, 14.

(3) The Heb. צוארי can also be taken as a plural. [Rashi omits this question. He did not regard the exposition that follows as being based upon the supposed difference in the grammatical form. the neck is simply taken as allusion to the Temple.]

(4) On the Temple Mount in Jerusalem.

(5) Gen. XLV, 12.

(6) Ibid. 23.

(7) Lit., 'in which the mind of old will take delight'.

(8) Ibid. L, 18.

(9) Ibid. XLVII, 31.

(10) By comparison with his father there would be no disrespect in referring to Joseph as a fox.

(11) Lit., 'upon their heart.

(12) Lit., 'which were received upon the heart'.

(13) Esth. VIII, 16.

(14) I.e., they resumed the study of the Torah without hindrance; and so with circumcision and phylacteries.

(15) Prov. VI, 23.

(16) Deut. XVI, 14.

(17) Ps. CXIX, 162. The word לאמר (saying) here is taken to refer to circumcision because God said (אמר) to Abraham that he should circumcise his son, Gen. XVII, 9.

(18) Deut. XXVIII, 10.

(19) Esth. IX, 7-10.

(20) By one reading the Megillah.

(21) Not identified, v. B.M., Sonc. ed. p. 503, n. 10.

(22) Al. ‘blank space’.

(23) The words in each line must be spaced in such a way as to present this appearance, the space of the half-brick being occupied in each case by the writing.

(24) In Joshua XII.

(25) אספתא ואת דלפון ואת פרשנדתא ואת etc.

(26) Esth. IX, 12.

(27) Because he commenced as if in anger and then proceeded and what is thy request etc.

(28) Ibid. 25.

(29) Rashi omits here the words, ‘she said’, and explains that R. Johanan is here laying down the rule that the Megillah (which is called ‘letter’) should be read aloud. How he derives this lesson from the text is not clear.

(30) Ibid. 30.

(31) I.e., the Pentateuch, v. Git. 6b.

(32) Ibid. 32.

(33) Ibid. 31.

(34) Ibid. X, 3.

(35) Because when he rose to power he neglected the study of the Torah.

(36) Ezra II, 2.

(37) Neh. VII, 7. The list in Ezra is given in connection with the first return from Babylon, the list in Nehemiah in connection with the dedication of the Temple which is reckoned by the Talmud to have taken place twenty-four years later (v. Rashi); and the incident of Purim is supposed to have taken place in the interval.

(38) I.e., but for Baruch, Ezra would have come back with the first of the returning exiles.

Why are the years of Ishmael mentioned? So as to reckon by them the years of Jacob, as it is written, And these are the years of the life of Ishmael, a hundred and thirty and seven years.[1] How much older was Ishmael than Isaac? Fourteen years, as it is written, And Abram was fourscore and six years old when Hagar bore Ishmael to Abram,[2] and it is also written, And Abraham was a hundred years old when his son Isaac was born to him,[3] and it is written, And Isaac was threescore years old when she bore them.[4] How old then was Ishmael when Jacob was born? Seventy-four. How many years were left of his life? Sixty-three; and it has been taught: Jacob our father at the time when he was blessed by his father was sixty-three years old. It was just at that time that Ishmael died, as it is written, Now Esau saw that Isaac had blessed Jacob...so Esau went unto Ishmael and took Mahlath the daughter of Ishmael Abraham's son the sister of Nebaioth.[5] Now once it has been said, ‘Ishmael's daughter’ do I not know that she was the sister of Nebaioth? This tells us then that Ishmael affianced her and then died, and Nebaioth her brother gave her in marriage.[6] Sixty-three and fourteen till Joseph was born[7] make seventy-seven, and it is written, And Joseph was thirty years old when he stood before Pharaoh.[8] This makes a hundred and seven. Add seven years of plenty and two of famine,[9] and we have a hundred and sixteen, and it is written, And Pharaoh said unto Jacob, How many are the days of the years of thy life? And Jacob said unto Pharaoh, The days of the years of my sojournings are a hundred and thirty years.[10] But [we have just seen that] they were only a hundred and sixteen? We must conclude therefore that he spent fourteen years in the house of Eber,[11] as it has been taught: ‘After Jacob our father had left for Aram Naharaim two years.[12] Eber died’. He then went forth from where he was[13] and came to Aram Naharaim. From this[14] it follows that when he stood by the well he was seventy-seven years old. And how do we know that he was not punished [for these fourteen years]? As it has been taught: ‘We find that Joseph was away from his father twenty-two years.[15] just as Jacob our father was absent from his father’. But Jacob's absence was thirty-six years?[16] It must be then that the fourteen years which he was in the house of Eber are not reckoned. But when all is said and done, the time he spent in the house of Laban was only twenty years?[17] — The fact is that [he was also punished] because he spent two years on the way, as it has been taught: He left Aram Naharaim and came to Succoth and spent there eighteen months, as it says, And Jacob journeyed to Succoth, and built him a house, and made booths for his cattle;[18] and in Bethel he spent six months and brought there sacrifices.

CHAPTER II

MISHNAH. IF ONE READS THE MEGILLAH BACKWARDS,[19] HE HAS NOT PERFORMED HIs OBLIGATION. IF HE READS IT BY HEART, IF HE READS IT IN A TRANSLATION [TARGUM] IN ANY LANGUAGE,[20] HE HAS NOT PERFORMED HIS OBLIGATION. IT MAY, HOWEVER, BE READ TO THOSE WHO DO NOT UNDERSTAND HEBREW[21] IN A LANGUAGE OTHER THAN HEBREW. IF ONE WHO DOES NOT UNDERSTAND HEBREW HEARS IT READ IN HEBREW, HE HAS PERFORMED HIS OBLIGATION. IF ONE READS IT WITH BREAKS,[22] OR WHILE HALF-ASLEEP, HE HAS PERFORMED HIS OBLIGATION. IF HE WAS COPYING IT, CORRECTING IT OR EXPOUNDING IT, THEN IF [IN DOING SO] HE PUT HIS MIND [ALSO TO THE READING] OF IT HE HAS PERFORMED HIS OBLIGATION, BUT OTHERWISE NOT. IF [THE COPY FROM WHICH HE READS] IS WRITTEN WITH SAM, WITH SIKRA, WITH KUMUS, OR WITH KANKANTUM,[23] OR ON NEYAR OR DIFTERA,[23] HE HAS NOT PERFORMED HIS OBLIGATION; IT MUST BE WRITTEN IN HEBREW[24] ON PARCHMENT[25] AND IN INK.

GEMARA. Whence is this rule [not to read backward] derived? — Raba said: The text says, according to the writing thereof and according to the appointed time thereof:[26] just as the appointed time cannot be backward,[27] so the [reading from the] writing must not be backward. But does the text speak here of reading? It speaks of keeping, as it is written, that they would keep these two days? — The truth is that we derive the rule from here, as it is written: And that these days should be remembered and kept.[28] ‘Remembering’ is here put on the same footing as ‘keeping’: just as keeping cannot be in the wrong order, so remembering also.

A Tanna stated: The same rule applies to Hallel,[29] to the recital of the Shema’,[29] and to the ‘Amidah[29] prayer. Whence do we derive the rule as regards Hallel? — Rabbah said: Because it is written, From the rising of the sun unto the going down thereof [the Lord's name is to be praised].[30] R. Joseph said, [from here]: This is the day which the Lord hath made.[31] R. Awia said: Let the name of the Lord be blessed.[32] R. Nahman b. Isaac — or you may also say, R. Aha b Jacob — said, It is from here: From this time forth and for ever.[33]

‘To the recital of the Shema’’, as it has been taught: The Shema’ must be recited as it is written.[34] So Rabbi. The Sages, however, say: It may be recited in any language. What is Rabbi's reason? Scripture says

---

(1) Gen. XXV, 17.
(2) Ibid. XVI, 16.
(3) Ibid. XXI, 5.
(4) Ibid. XXV, 26.
(5) Ibid. XXVIII, 6-9.
(6) Which shows that Ishmael died just about the time that Isaac blessed Jacob.
(7) It is reckoned by the Talmud that Jacob had been with Laban fourteen years when Joseph was born. V. Gen. XXXI, 41.
(8) Ibid. XLI, 46.
(9) V. Ibid. XLV, 6.
(10) Ibid. XLVII, 8,9.
(11) [So Rashi: cur. edd., ‘the fourteen years he spent . . . are not reckoned’.]
(12) [So Rashi: cur. edd. introduce passage with: ‘Jacob lay hidden in the house of Eber for fourteen years’.]
(13) This is the reading here of the Bah. The reading of the text is unintelligible.
(14) [By calculating the years Eber lived, v. Gen. XI, 17.]
(15) He left when he was seventeen, he was thirty when he stood before Pharaoh, and seven years of plenty and two of famine passed before he saw his father.
(16) He left when he was sixty-three and returned when he was ninety-nine.
(17) V. Gen. XXXI, 41.
(18) Gen. XXXIII, 17: a ‘house’ for one summer, and two ‘booths’ for two winters.
(19) [Perhaps as a magical incantation for driving away demons. V. Blau Das altjudische Zauberwesen pp. 146ff.]
(20) [MS.M. If he read it in Targum (Aramaic); if he read it in any other language. The text of cur. edd. can also bear this interpretation, v. Rashi 18a s.v. קראה].
(21) לעוזות people speaking a foreign (לעז) language.
(22) I.e., reads a part and then waits some time before resuming v. Gemara.
(23) Because these materials fade. A similar rule was laid down with regard to the Get. For the meaning of these terms, v. infra in the Gemara.
(24) Lit., ‘Assyrian" characters’; v. supra 8b.
(25) Lit., ‘on the book’. [Var lec. ‘on skin’.]
(26) Esth. IX, 27.
(27) I.e., the fifteenth cannot come before the fourteenth.
(28) Esth. IX, 28. The Hebrew word זכירה means both ‘remembering’ and ‘mentioning’.
(29) V. Glos.
(30) Ps. CXIII, 3. Just as the sun never goes backward from West to East, so the praise of the Lord should not be recited backward.
(31) Ibid. CXVIII, 24. The day also cannot go backward.
(32) Ibid. CXIII, 2.

(33) Ibid.
(34) I.e., in the original language.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 17b

, [And these words] shall be,[1] which implies, they shall be kept as they are. And what is the reason of the Rabbis? — Because Scripture says, Hear,[2] which implies, in any language which you understand. How then can Rabbi [hold otherwise], seeing that it is written, 'hear'? — He requires that word for the injunction, 'Let thine ear hear what thou utterest with thy mouth'. The Rabbis, however, concurred with the authority who said that if one recites the Shema' without making it audible, he has performed his obligation. But the Rabbis too — [how can they hold as they do], seeing that it is written, 'And they shall be'? — They require this for the injunction that it should not be recited backwards. Whence does Rabbi derive the rule that it should not be recited backwards? From [the use of the expression] 'the words', where 'words' [would have been sufficient]. The Rabbis, however, do not accept this distinction between 'the words' and 'words'.

May we say that Rabbi was of opinion that the whole of the Torah has been ordained [to be recited] in any language?[3] For should you assume that it has been ordained [to be recited] only in the holy tongue, why should the words 'and they shall be' be inserted [in reference to the Shema']? — These were necessary. For it might have occurred to me to understand 'hear' in the same sense as the Rabbis:[4] therefore the All-Merciful wrote 'and they shall be'. May we then say that the Rabbis were of opinion that the whole of the Torah was ordained [to be recited] only in the holy tongue, since, should you assume that it was ordained to be recited in any language, [I might ask], why should 'hear' be inserted [in reference to the Shema']? — This word is necessary. For it might occur to me to understand 'and they shall be' in the same sense as Rabbi. Therefore the All-Merciful wrote, 'hear'.

'To the 'Amidah prayer'. Whence is this derived? — As it has been taught: 'Simeon the Pakulite[5] formulated eighteen blessings in the presence of Rabban Gamaliel in the proper[6] order in Jabneh.[7] R. Johanan said (others report, it was stated in a Baraitha): A hundred and twenty elders, among whom were many prophets, drew up eighteen blessings in a fixed order'.

Our Rabbis taught: Whence do we derive that the blessing of the Patriarchs[8] should be said? Because it says, Ascribe unto the Lord, O ye sons of might.[9] And whence that we say the blessing of mighty deeds?[10] Because it says, Ascribe unto the Lord glory and strength.[11] And whence that we say sanctifications?[12] Because it says, Ascribe unto the Lord the glory due unto His name, worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness.[13] What reason had they for mentioning understanding[14] after holiness? Because it says, They shall sanctify the Holy One of Jacob and shall stand in awe of the God of Israel,[15] and next to this, They also that err in spirit shall come to understanding. What reason had they for mentioning repentance[16] after understanding? Because it is written, Lest they, understanding with their heart, return and be healed.[17] If that is the reason, healing should be mentioned next to repentance?[18] — Do not imagine such a thing, since it is written, And let him return unto the Lord and He will have compassion upon him, and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon.[19] But why should you rely upon this verse? Rely rather on the other! — There is written another verse, Who forgiveth all thine iniquity, who healeth all thy diseases, who redeemeth thy life from the pit,[20] which implies that redemption and healing come after forgiveness. But it is written, 'Lest they return and be healed'? That refers not to the healing of sickness but to the healing [power] of forgiveness. What was their reason for mentioning redemption in the seventh blessing?[21] Raba replied: Because they [Israel] are destined to be redeemed in the seventh year [of the coming of the Messiah],[22] therefore the mention of redemption was placed in the seventh blessing. But a Master has said, 'In the sixth year will be thunderings, in the seventh wars, at the end of the seventh the son of David will come'? — War is also the beginning of redemption. What was their reason for mentioning healing in the eighth blessing? — R. Aha said: Because circumcision which requires healing is appointed for the eighth day, therefore it was placed in the eighth blessing. What was their reason for placing the [prayer for the] blessing of the years ninth? R. Alexandri said: This was directed against those who raise the market price [of foodstuffs], as it is written, Break thou the arm of the wicked; and when David said this, he said it in the ninth Psalm.[23]

What was their reason for mentioning the gathering of the exiles after the blessing of the years? — Because it is written, But ye, O mountains of Israel, ye shall shoot forth your branches and yield your fruit to thy people Israel, for they are at hand to come.[24] And when the exiles are assembled, judgment will be visited on the wicked, as it says, And I will turn my hand upon thee and purge away thy dross as with lye,[25] and it is written further, And I will restore thy judges as at the first.[26] And when judgment is visited on the wicked, transgressors cease,[27] and presumptuous sinners[28] are included with them, as it is written, But the destruction of the transgressors and of the sinners shall be together, and they that forsake the Lord shall be consumed.[29] And when the transgressors have disappeared, the horn of the righteous is exalted,[30] as it is written, All the horns of the wicked also will I cut off, but the horns of the righteous shall be lifted up.[31] And 'proselytes of righteousness'[32] are included with the righteous, as it says, thou shalt rise up before the hoary head and honour the face of the old man,[33] and the text goes on, And if a stranger sojourn with thee. And where is the horn of the righteous exalted? In Jerusalem,[34] as it says, Pray for the peace of Jerusalem, may they prosper that love thee.[35] And when Jerusalem is built, David[36] will come, as it says.

---

(1) Deut. VI, 6.

(2) Ibid. 4. The word שמע means both 'hear' and 'understand'.

(3) According to Tosaf., this refers only to those passages of the Scripture which were to be recited on special occasions, e.g., the passage relating to the first-fruit, the declaration of halizah etc.

(4) Viz., in any language.

(5) Possibly this means 'cotton dealer' (Rashi).

(6) I.e. one based on Scriptural texts, as explained infra.

(7) V. Ber. 28b.

(8) The first blessing, containing the words, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob'. For the 'Amidah prayer v. P.B. pp. 44ff.

(9) Ps. XXIX, 1. 'Sons of might' is taken as a description of the Patriarchs. The Talmud renders: 'Mention before the Lord the sons of might', i.e., the Patriarchs.

(10) The second blessing, mentioning the 'mighty deed' of the resurrection.

(11) Ps. XXIX, 1.

(12) The third blessing beginning, 'Thou art holy'.

(13) Ibid. 2.

(14) In the fourth blessing, beginning, 'Thou grantest to man understanding'.

(15) Isa. XXIX, 23f.

(16) In the fifth blessing, commencing, 'Bring us back, O Father'.

(17) Ibid. VI, 10.

(18) Whereas in fact it comes in the next blessing but one, 'redemption' being interposed.

(19) Ibid. LV, 7.

(20) Ps. CIII, 3f.

(21) Concluding, 'Blessed art thou, O Lord, who redeemest Israel'.

(22) V. Sanh. 97a.

(23) In our books it is the tenth (v. 15), but the Talmud apparently reckoned the first and second Psalms as one.

(24) Ezek. XXXVI, 8.

(25) Isa. I, 25.

(26) Ibid. 26. The next blessing proceeds, 'Restore our judges'. etc.

(27) MS. M. minim (plur. of min v. Glos.).

(28) Mentioned in the next blessing. This, however, was not one of the original eighteen, v. Ber. 28b.

(29) Ibid. 28.
(30) The next blessing concludes, ‘the support and trust of the righteous’.
(31) Ps. LXXV, II.
(32) Mentioned in the same blessing. ‘Proselytes of Righteousness’ are converts who completely accept the Jewish creed and life.
(33) Lev. XIX, 32.
(34) Mentioned in the next blessing.
(35) Ps. CXXII, 6.
(36) Mentioned in the next blessing, which commences, ‘Cause to sprout quickly the shoot of David’.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 18a

Afterwards shall the children of Israel return and seek the Lord their God, and David their king.[1] And when David comes, prayer[2] will come, as it says. Even then will I bring to my holy mountain, and make them joyful in my house of prayer.[3] And when prayer has come, the Temple service[4] will come, as it says, Their burnt-offerings and their sacrifices shall be acceptable upon mine altar.[5] And when the service comes, thanksgiving[6] will come, as it says. Whoso offereth the sacrifice of thanksgiving honoureth me.[7] What was their reason for inserting the priestly benediction after thanksgiving? Because it is written, And Aaron lifted up his hands toward the people and he came down from offering the sin-offering and the burnt-offering and the peace-offerings.[8] But cannot I say that he did this before the service? — Do not imagine such a thing. For it is written, ‘and he came down from offering’. Is it written ‘to offer’? It is written, ‘from offering’.[9] Why not then say it [the priestly benediction] after the [blessing of] the Temple service? — Do not imagine such a thing, since it is written, whoso offereth the sacrifice of thankgiving.[10] Why base yourself upon this verse? Why not upon the other? — It is reasonable to regard service and thanksgiving as one. What was their reason for having ‘give peace’ said after the priestly benediction? — Because it is written, So they [the priests] shall put my name upon the children of Israel, and [then] I shall bless them;[11] and the blessing of the Holy One, blessed be He, is peace, as it says, The Lord shall bless his people with peace.[12]

Seeing now that a hundred and twenty elders, among whom were many prophets. drew up the prayers in the proper order, why did Simeon the Pakulite formulate them? — They were forgotten, and he formulated them afresh. Beyond this it is forbidden to declare the praise of the Holy One, blessed be He.[13] For R. Eleazar said: What is the meaning of the verse, Who can express the mighty acts of the Lord, or make all his praise to be heard?[14] For whom is it fitting to express the mighty acts of the Lord? For one who can make all his praise to be heard. Rabbah b. Bar Hanah said in the name of R. Johanan: One who descants upon the praises of the Holy One, blessed be He, to excess is uprooted from the world, as it says, Shall it be told to him that I should speak? Should a man [try to] say, surely he would be swallowed up.[15] R. Judah a man of Kefar Gibboraya,[16] or, as some say, of Kefar Gibbor Hayil,[17] gave the following homily: What is meant by the verse, For thee silence is praise?[18] The best medicine of all is silence. When R. Dimi came, he said: In the West[19] they say: A word is worth a sela’, silence two sela's.

IF ONE READS IT BY HEART, HE HAS NOT PERFORMED HIS OBLIGATION. Whence this rule? — Raba said: We explain the expression zekirah[20] in one passage from its use in another. It is written here, And these days shall be nizkarim[21] [remembered] and it is written elsewhere, Write this le-zikaron [for a memorial] in the book.[22] Just as there it was to be in a book, so here it must be in a book. But how do we know that this ‘nizkarim’ implies ‘uttering’? Perhaps it means mere reading with the eyes? — Do not imagine such a thing, since it his been taught: ‘Remember’ [zakor].[23] Am I to say, this means only with the mind? When the text says, thou shalt not forget, the injunction against mental forgetfulness is already given. What then am I to make of ‘remember’? This must mean, by utterance.[24]

IF ONE READS IT IN A TRANSLATION, HE HAS NOT PERFORMED HIS OBLIGATION. How are we to understand this? Are we to suppose that it is written in Hebrew and he reads it in a translaion? This is the same as reading by heart! — It is required for the case where it is written in a translation and he reads it in a translation.

IT MAY, HOWEVER, BE READ TO THOSE WHO DO NOT SPEAK HEBREW IN A LANGUAGE OTHER THAN HEBREW. But you have just said, IF ONE READS IT IN ANY [OTHER] LANGUAGE HE HAS NOT PERFORMER HIS OBLIGATION? — Rab and Samuel both answered that what is referred to here is the Greek vernacular. How are we to understand this? Shall we say that it is written in Hebrew and he reads it in Greek? This is the same as saying by heart? — R. Aha said in the name of R. Eleazar: What is referred to is where it is written in the Greek vernacular.

(R. Aha also said in the name of R. Eleazar: How do we know that the Holy One, blessed be He, called Jacob El [God][25] Because it says, And the God of Israel called him [Jacob] El.[26] For should you suppose that [what the text means is that] Jacob called the altar El, then it should be written, ‘And Jacob called it’. But [as it is not written so], we must translate, ‘He called Jacob El’. And who called him so? The God of Israel).

An objection was brought [against the dictum of Rab and Samuel] from the following: ‘If one reads it in Coptic,[27] in Hebraic,[28] in Elamean, in Median, in Greek, he has not performed his obligation’! — This [statement][29] means only in the same sense as the following: ‘If one reads it in Coptic to the Copts,[30] in Hebrew to the Hebrews, in Elamean to the Elameans, in Greek to the Greeks, he has performed his obligation’. If that is the case, why do Rab and Samuel explain the Mishnah to refer to the Greek vernacular? Let them make it refer to any vernacular? — The fact is that the Mishnah agrees with the Baraitha,[31] and the statement of Rab and Samuel was meant to be a general one [thus]: Rab and Samuel both say that the Greek vernacular is good for all peoples. But it is stated, ‘[He may read] in Greek for the Greeks’ — for the Greeks, that is, he may, but for others not? — They [Rab and Samuel] concurred with Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel, as we have learnt: ‘Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel says: Scrolls of the Scripture also were allowed to be written only in Greek’.[32] Let them then say, The halachah is as stated by Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel? — Had they said, The halachah is as stated by Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel, I should have understood them to mean that this is the case with other books of the Scriptures but not with the Megillah, of which it is written, according to the writing thereof.[33] Therefore we are told [that this is not so].

IF ONE WHO DOES NOT UNDERSTAND HEBREW HEARD IT READ IN HEBREW, HE HAS PERFORMED HIS OBLIGATION. But he does not know what they are saying? — he is on the same footing as women and ignorant people. Rabina strongly demurred to this saying;[34] And do we know the meaning of ha-ahashteranim bene ha-ramakim?[35] But all the same we perform the precept of reading the Megillah and proclaiming the miracle. So they too perform the precept of reading the Megillah and proclaiming the miracle.[36]

IF ONE READS IT WITH BREAKS [SERUGIN], HE HAS PERFORMED HIS OBLIGATION. The Rabbis did not know what was meant by serugin,[37] until one day they heard the maidservant of Rabbi's household, on seeing the Rabbis enter at intervals, say to them, How long are you going to come in by serugin?

The Rabbis did not know what was meant by haluglugoth, till one day they heard the handmaid of the household of Rabbi, on seeing a man peeling portulaks, say to him, How long will you be peeling your haluglugoth?

The Rabbis did not know what was meant by, salseleah and it shall exalt thee.[38] One day they heard the handmaid of the house of Rabbi say to a man who was curling his hair, How long will you be mesalsel with your hair?[39]

The Rabbis did not know what was meant by, Cast upon the Lord thy yehab and he shall sustain thee.[40] Said Rabbah b. Bar Hanah: One day I was travelling with a certain Arab[41] and was carrying a load, and he said to me, Lift up your yehab and put it on [one of] the camels.

The Rabbis did not know what was meant by, we-tetethia bematate of destruction,[42] till one day they heard the handmaid of the household of Rabbi say to her companion, Take the tatitha [broom] and tati [sweep] the house.

Our Rabbis taught: If one reads it with breaks, he has performed his obligation;

---

(1) Hos. III, 5.

(2) Mentioned in the next blessing, which commences, ‘Hear our voice .

(3) Isa. LVI, 7.

(4) The next blessing contains the words, ‘Restore the service’.

(5) Ibid.

(6) The next blessing commences, ‘We give thanks to Thee’.

(7) Ps. L, 23.

(8) Lev. IX, 22.

(9) [Omit with MS.M.: ‘For it is written . . . to offer’?].

(10) Which shows that sacrifice is followed immediately by thanksgiving.

(11) Num. VI, 27.

(12) Ps. XXIX, 11.

(13) I.e., it is forbidden to add any more blessings.

(14) Ps. CVI, 2.

(15) Job XXXVII, 20. E.V., ‘Or should a man wish that he were swallowed up’.

(16) Lit., ‘village of warriors’.

(17) Lit., ‘village of a mighty warrior’. [MS.M. has ‘Kefar Naburya’ and ‘Kefar Napor Hayil. The former is identified with en-Nebraten in Upper Galilee, v. Keth., Sonc. ed. p. 391,n. 11].

(18) Ps. LXV, 2. E.V., ‘Praise waiteth for thee’.

(19) Palestine.

(20) Which means both ‘remembering’ and ‘mentioning’.

(21) Esth. IX, 28.

(22) Ex. XVII, 14.

(23) Deut. XXV, 17.

(24) Lit., ‘with the mouth’. So here, the days of Purim must be ‘remembered’ by utterance.

(25) Generally rendered ‘God’; literally, ‘Mighty’.

(26) Gen. XXXIII, 20. E.V., and called it El-Elohe-Israel’.

(27) The language of the Egyptians.

(28) Apparently the reference is to a kind of Aramaic spoken by the Bene Eber, or ‘on the other side’ (be'eber) of the Euphrates.

(29) The last clause of our Mishnah.

(30) I.e., the Coptic-speaking Jews.

(31) That it may be read in a vernacular only for those who speak that vernacular.

(32) Supra 8b.

(33) Esth. IX, 27.

(34) [Read with MS.M.: ‘For should you not say thus’ omitting ‘Rabina strongly demurred to this’].

(35) Ibid. VIII, 10. E.V., ‘that were used in the king's service, bred of the stud’. The words are obviously Persian.

(36) Because they enquire and are told.

(37) The whole of this passage, down to 'house' is repeated in R.H. 26b.
(38) Prov. IV, 8. E.V., 'extol her'.
(39) Which shows that salseleah means 'turn it about and about'.
(40) Ps. LV, 23. E.V., 'thy burden'.
(41) [Taya, name of Arab tribe which was applied to all Arabs as a part to a whole].
(42) Isa. XIV, 23. E.V., 'I will sweep it with the besom of destruction'.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 18b

if with omissions,[1] he has not performed it. R. Muna said in the name of R. Judah: Even with breaks, if he stops long enough to finish the whole of it, he must go back to the beginning. R. Joseph said: The halachah is as stated by R. Muna in the name of R. Judah. Abaye inquired of R. Joseph: [When it says] 'long enough to finish the whole of it', does it mean from where he is to the end, or from the beginning to the end? He replied: It means from the beginning to the end, as otherwise there would be no fixed standard.[2] R. Abba said in the name of R. Jeremiah b. Abba who said it in the name of Rab: The halachah is as stated by R. Muna. Samuel, however, said: The halachah is not as stated by R. Muna. This is the version given in Sura. In Pumbeditha the following version is given: R. Kahana said in the name of Rab: The halachah is as stated by R. Muna, but Samuel said that the halachah does not follow R. Muna. R. Bibi reverses the statement, [making] Rab say that the halachah does not follow R. Muna and Samuel that it does follow R. Muna. R. Joseph said: Adopt[3] the version of R. Bibi, since it is Samuel who takes note of the view of an individual authority,[4] as we have learnt: 'If a woman was waiting for the levir [to make his decision], and a [younger] brother of his became affianced to her sister, the rule was laid down in the name of R. Judah b. Bathyra that the Beth din say to him, Wait till your elder brother acts [one way or the other];[5] and Samuel said, The halachah is as stated by R. Judah b. Bathyra'.[6]

Our Rabbis taught: If the scribe had omitted letters or verses and the reader read them like the translator when he is translating,[7] he has performed his obligation. The following was cited in objection to this: 'If letters in it [the scroll] are partially effaced or torn, if they are still legible, it may be used, but otherwise it may not be used'! — There is no contradiction: the one statement[8] refers to the whole of it, the other[9] to part of it.

Our Rabbis taught: If the reader omitted one verse, he must not say, I will finish reading it [the Megillah] and I will then read that verse, but he must read [again] from that verse. If a man enters the synagogue and finds that the congregation has read half, he must not say, I will read half with the congregation and then I will read the other half, but he must read it from the beginning to the end.

IF HE WAS HALF-ASLEEP, HE HAS PERFORMED HIS OBLIGATION. What is meant by 'half-asleep'?[10] — R. Ashi said: He is asleep and not asleep, awake and not awake; if he is called he responds, but he cannot give a rational answer, though if he is reminded [of what has been said] he remembers.

IF ONE WAS WRITING IT, EXPOUNDING IT, OR CORRECTING IT, IF HE PUT HIS MIND TO IT etc. How are we to understand this? If he was conning each verse and then writing it, what does it matter if he did put his mind to it? He is writing by heart! We must suppose therefore that he writes each verse and then recites it. But does he thereby perform his obligation? Has not R. Helbo said in the name of R. Hama b. Guria who said it in the name of Rab, The halachah follows the view of him who says that all of it [must be recited],[11] and even according to the one who says that it is sufficient [to recite] from 'A Jew was', it is necessary that the whole should be [already] written? We must suppose therefore that a Megillah lies before him and he reads from it, verse by verse, and then writes. Shall we then[12] say that this supports Rabbah b. Bar Hanah, for Rabbah b. Bar Hanah said in the name of R. Johanan. It is forbidden to write one letter [of the Megillah], save from a copy?

Perhaps [the Mishnah speaks only of a case] where he just happened [to have a copy before him].[13]

The text [above states]: 'Rabbah b. Bar Hanah said in the name of R. Johanan, It is forbidden to write one letter save from a copy'. The following was cited in opposition to this: 'It happened once that R. Meir went to prolong the year[14] in Assia,[15] and there was no Megillah there and he wrote one out by heart'! — R. Abbahu said: R. Meir is different, because to him could be applied the verse, Thine eyelids shall look straight before thee.[16] Rami b. Hama asked R. Jeremiah from Difti:[17] What is the meaning of 'thine eyelids ['af'apeka] shall look straight before thee'? — He replied: This refers to the words of the Torah, of which it is written, Wilt thou direct [ta'if] thine eyes from it? it is gone.[18] And even so, R. Meir could produce them correctly. R. Hisda found R. Hananel writing scrolls without a copy. He said to him: You are quite qualified to write the whole Torah by heart,[19] but thus have the Sages ruled: It is forbidden to write one letter save from a copy. Seeing that he said, 'You are qualified to write the whole Torah by heart', we may conclude that he could produce them correctly, and we see that R. Meir actually did write?[20] — In case of emergency it is different — Abaye allowed the members of the household of Bar Habu[21] to write tefillin and mezuzoth[22] without a copy. What authority did he follow? — The following Tanna, as it has been taught: R. Jeremiah says in the name of our Teacher:[23] Tefillin and mezuzoth may be written out without a copy, and do not require to be written upon ruled lines. The law, however, is that tefillin do not require lines,[24] but mezuzoth do require lines, and both may be written without a copy. What is the reason? — They are well known by heart.

IF IT WAS WRITTEN WITH SAM[25] etc. SAM: this is paint. SIKRA: this is vermilion. Rabbah b. Bar Hanah said: It is what we call sekarta [vermilion]. KUMUS: this is gum

---

(1) So Asheri. Rashi: 'Backwards'.

(2) Lit., 'you place your rule at the mercy of different measurements', according to the amount that still remains to be read.

(3) Lit., 'take hold of in your hand'.

(4) When he differs from the majority.

(5) I.e., decides either to marry the sister-in-law or to take halizah from her. Otherwise, since the levirate obligation also devolves on the younger brother, he must not marry the sister.

(6) Although the majority of the Rabbis did not agree with him. V. Yeb. 18b.

(7) The Pentateuch into Aramaic in the synagogue, which is done by heart (Rashi). [R. Hananel: Like the translator who paraphrases and adds matter which is not in the text].

(8) That it may not be used.

(9) That it may be read if letters are omitted.

(10) Lit., 'nodding'.

(11) Infra 19a.

(12) Since the Mishnah cannot be explained in any other way.

(13) And would not insist on the rule laid down by Rabbah b. Bar Hanah.

(14) By intercalating a second Adar.

(15) Probably one of the cities of Asia Minor is meant, v. Sanh., Sonc. ed. p. 151, n. 1.

(16) Prov. IV, 25.

(17) Dibtha below the Tigris S.E. of Babylonia.

(18) I.e if one turns his eyes a moment away from the Torah, he forgets it. Prov. XXIII, 5 E.V., 'wilt thou set thine eyes upon it'.

(19) Lit., 'the whole Torah is fitted to be written at thy mouth'.

(20) Then why could not he also?

(21) A vendor of tefillin, v. B.M. 29b.

(22) V. Glos.

(23) Rabbi(?)

(24) V. supra p. 16b.

(25) For this passage. cf. Git., Sonc. ed. p. 70 notes.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 19a

. KANKANTUM: this is bootmakers' blacking. DIFTERA: this is a skin which has been salted and put in flour but not treated with gall nuts. NEYAR: this is paper.[1]

IT MUST BE WRITTEN IN HEBREW. As it is written, according to the writing[2] thereof, and according to the appointed time thereof.[2]

ON PARCHMENT AND IN INK. Whence this rule? — We explain writing' in one place by the use of the term in another. It is written here, And Esther the queen wrote,[3] and it is written in another place, then Baruch answered them, He pronounced all these words unto me with his mouth, and I wrote them with ink in the book.[4]

MISHNAH. A RESIDENT OF A TOWN WHO HAS GONE TO A WALLED CITY[5] OR OF A WALLED CITY WHO HAS GONE TO A TOWN, IF HE IS LIKELY TO RETURN TO HIS OWN PLACE[6] READS ACCORDING TO THE RULE OF HIS OWN PLACE,[7] AND OTHERWISE READS WITH THE REST. FROM WHERE MUST A MAN READ THE MEGILLAH SO AS TO FULFIL HIS OBLIGATION? R. MEIR SAYS, [HE MUST READ] THE WHOLE OF IT; RABBI JUDAH SAYS, [HE MUST READ] FROM 'THERE WAS A JEW';[8] R. JOSE SAYS, FROM 'AFTER THESE THINGS'.[9]

GEMARA. Raba said: This rule applies only if he[10] intends to return on the night of the fourteenth; but if he does not mean to return on the night of the fourteenth, he reads with the rest. Said Raba: Whence do I derive this ruling? Because it is written, Therefore do the Jews of the villages that dwell in the unwalled towns.[11] See now. It is written, 'the Jews of the villages'. Why then should it be further written, 'that dwell in the unwalled towns'? This teaches us that one who is a villager for one day is called[12] a villager. We have proved this for a villager. How do we know that it applies also to inhabitants of walled towns? — It is reasonable to suppose that since a villager of one day is called a villager, a walled-city-dweller of one day is called a walled-city-dweller.

Raba also said: A villager who has gone to a town reads with the rest in any case. What is the reason? By rights he ought to read at the same time as the townspeople — and it is the Rabbis who made a concession to the villagers so that they might supply food and drink to their brethren in the large cities.[13] Now this applies only so long as they are in their own place, but when they are in the town, they must read like the townspeople. Abaye raised an objection to this from the following: 'If a resident of a walled city has gone to a town, in any case he reads according to the custom of his own place'. 'A resident of a walled city', do you say? His rule depends on whether he means to return![14] What you must read, then, is 'a villager'.[15] — But must you not [in any case] explain [the passage]?[16] Read, [then] 'reads with the rest'.

FROM WHERE MUST A MAN READ THE MEGILLAH etc. It has been taught: R. Simeon b. Yohai says, from On that night'.[17] R. Johanan said: All these authorities derived their lesson from the same verse, viz., Then Esther the queen and Mordecai the Jew wrote all the acts of power.[18] He who says that the whole Megillah must be read refers this to the power of Ahasuerus;[19] he who says it must be read from 'there was a Jew', to the power of Mordecai; he who says from 'after these things', to the power of Haman; and he who says, from 'on that night', to the power of the miracle. R. Huna said: They derived it from here: And what did they see? For this reason. And what came upon them?[20] He who says that the whole of it must be read [interprets thus]: What had Ahasuerus seen to make him use the vessels of the Temple? It was for this reason, that he reckoned seventy years and they had not yet been redeemed;[21] And what came upon them? that he put Vashti to death.

He who says that it should be read from ‘there was a Jew’ [interprets thus]: What had Mordecai seen that he picked a quarrel with Haman? It was for this reason, that he made himself an object of worship. ‘And what came upon them’? that a miracle was performed [for him]. He who says that it is to be read from ‘after these things’, [interprets thus]: What did Haman see to make him pick a quarrel with all the Jews? It was for this reason, that Mordecai did not bow down or prostrate himself; ‘and what came upon him’? They hung him and his sons on the tree. He who says that it is to be read from ‘on that night’ interprets thus: What did Ahasuerus see to make him order the book of chronicles to be brought? It was for this reason that Esther invited Haman with him. ‘And what came upon them’? A miracle was performed for them.

R. Helbo said in the name of R. Hama b. Guria, who said it in the name of Rab: The halachah follows the view of him who says that the whole of it must be read; and even according to him who says that it need be read only from ‘There was a Jew’, it must all be written before him.[22]

R. Hama b. Guria said in the name of Rab: The Megillah is called ‘book’[23] and it is also called ‘letter’.[24] It is called ‘book’ to show that if it is stitched with threads of flax,[25] it is not fit for use; and it is called ‘letter’ to show that if it is stitched with three threads of sinew, it may be used. R. Nahman said: This is only on condition that they are evenly spaced.[26]

Rab Judah said in the name of Samuel: If one reads the Megillah from a volume containing the rest of the Scriptures,[27] he has not performed his obligation.[28] Raba said: This is the case only if it is not a little shorter or longer than the rest, but if it is a little shorter or longer than the rest,[29] there is no objection to it. Levi b. Samuel was reading before Rab Judah in a Megillah

---

(1) Made from papyrus stalk.

(2) Esth. IX, 27.

(3) Ibid. 29.

(4) Jer. XXXVI, 18.

(5) רכך. V. supra p. 1 n. 3.

(6) This is explained in the Gemara.

(7) I.e., on the fourteenth if he belongs to a town, on the fifteenth if to a city.

(8) Esth. II, 5.

(9) Ibid. III, 1.

(10) According to Rashi, this applies only to the man from the walled city who went to a town; but according to Asheri, even if a man from a town went to a walled city and stayed there over the night of the fourteenth, even if he returns to his own place on the fourteenth, he reads on the fifteenth and not on the fourteenth.

(11) Ibid. IX, 19.

(12) I.e., comes under the rule of.

(13) V. supra. 2a.

(14) As laid down explicitly in the Mishnah.

(15) And this would contradict the statement of Raba.

(16) By showing that the reading should be changed.

(17) Esth. VI,1

(18) Ibid. IX, 29.

(19) Who is mentioned at the very beginning.

(20) Ibid. 26. I.e., this is the subject-matter of the Megillah, as explained presently. E.V., ‘And of that which they had seen concerning the matter’.

(21) V. supra 11b.

(22) I.e., he must have a complete copy, even if he does not read the whole of it.

(23) Esth. IX, 32.

(24) Ibid. 26.

(25) According to one authority in Mak. 11a a sefer torah must be stitched with sinews.

(26) Lit., 'trebled', i.e., placed at equal distances from one another and from the top and bottom.
(27) Lit., 'written among the writings'.
(28) Because he does not thereby sufficiently proclaim the miracle.
(29) So that it is recognizable as a separate book.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 19b

which was included in a volume of the Scriptures. He said to him: [I must tell you that] they have said: 'If one reads the Megillah from a volume containing the rest of the Scriptures, he has not fulfilled his obligation'.

R. Hiyya b. Abba said in the name of R. Johanan: 'If one reads the Megillah in a volume containing the rest of the Scriptures, he has not fulfilled his obligation'; and he at once qualified this remark[1] by adding, 'in a congregation'.

R. Hiyya b. Abba also said in the name of R. Johanan: It is a rule deriving from Moses at Sinai that a space should be left unstitched [in the sefer torah];[2] and he at once qualified the remark by saying, 'this rule was laid down[3] only so that it should not be torn'.[4]

R. Hiyya b. Abba also said in the name of R. Johanan: Had there been in the cave in which Moses and Elijah stood[5] a chink no bigger than the eye of a fine needle, they would not have been able to endure the light, as it says, for man shall not see me and live.[6]

R. Hiyya b. Abba also said in the name of R. Johanan: What is the meaning of the verse, And on them was written according to all the words which the Lord spoke with you in the mount?[7] It teaches us that the Holy One, blessed be He, showed Moses the minutiae of the Torah,[8] and the minutiae of the Scribes,[9] and the innovations which would be introduced by the Scribes; and what are these? The reading of the Megillah.[10]

MISHNAH. ALL ARE QUALIFIED TO READ THE MEGILLAH EXCEPT A DEAF PERSON,[11] AN IMBECILE AND A MINOR.[12] R. JUDAH DECLARES A MINOR QUALIFIED.

GEMARA. Who is the Tanna that maintains that [even if] the deaf person has read, it does not count?[13] — R. Mattenah said: It is R. Jose, as we have learnt: 'If one reads the Shema' inaudibly, he has performed his obligation. R. Jose, however, says that he has not performed his obligation'. But why should we say that [our Mishnah] follows R. Jose and [lays down that] even if the deaf man has read, it does not count? Perhaps it follows R. Judah, and [what it means is that] the deaf man may not read in the first instance, but if he has read, his reading is accepted? — Do not imagine such a thing. For a deaf man is mentioned in the same category as an imbecile and a minor; just as the reading of an imbecile and a minor is not accepted, so the reading of a deaf man is not accepted. But perhaps there is one rule for the one and another rule for the other? — Since it states in the final clause that R. Judah declares a minor qualified, we may conclude that the first clause does not state the opinion of R. Judah. (But perhaps the whole of the Mishnah states the opinions of R. Judah? — Is it possible that he should disqualify in the first and permit in the second?)[14] But perhaps the whole [of the Mishnah] gives the views of R. Judah, and he speaks of two kinds of minor, and there is an omission in the Mishnah, and it should run this: 'All are qualified to read the Megillah, except a deaf man, an imbecile and a minor. Of what kind of minor are we speaking? Of one who is not old enough to be trained in the performance of religious duties. But a minor who is old enough to be trained in religious duties[15] may read even in the first instance, since R. Judah declares a minor qualified! — How then have you explained [the first clause of the Mishnah]? As following R. Judah and applying to an action already performed. What then of this statement made by Judah the son of R. Simeon b. Pazzi: 'One who can speak but not hear may set aside terumah in the first instance.'[16] Whose view is this? If you say R. Judah's. [this cannot be, because] he would say, his blessing [once made] is a blessing, but he may not say it in the first instance. If you say R. Jose, this also cannot be, since he disallows the action even if already performed! What then will you say? That it follows R. Judah, and that he allows it even in the first instance?[17] What then of this which has been taught: ‘A man should not say the grace after food in his heart,[18] but if he does do so, he has performed his obligation’. Whose opinion is this? It is neither that of R. Judah[19] nor that of R. Jose. For if it were to follow R. Judah, it would allow this even in the first instance, and if R. Jose, it would disallow it even when performed! —

---

(1) Lit., ‘he struck it on the head’.

(2) I.e., the parchment sheets of which the scroll is composed should not be stitched together right to the top and right to the bottom.

(3) Lit., ‘they said’, i.e.,the Sages. It was not derived from Moses at Sinai.

(4) Since if it is pulled violently it will give a little and the sheets will not come asunder.

(5) According to tradition, the cave in which Elijah stood when the Lord passed before him was the same as that in which Moses had stood on a similar occasion.

(6) Ex. XXXIII, 20.

(7) Deut. IX, 10.

(8) Minute indications upon which homiletical lessons are based, e.g.. the words אך and רק.

(9) Inferences drawn by the Scribes from minute indications in the earlier Mishnahs.

(10) The ‘men of the Great Synagogue’ who are supposed to have written the Megillah are also numbered among the ‘Scribes’ (Soferim) by the Talmud.

(11) Because it is necessary for one who reads the Megillah to hear what he is saying.

(12) One under thirteen years of age.

(13) Lit., ‘not even if (the thing) is done’.

(14) The passage in brackets is omitted by Rashi as breaking the connection.

(15) I.e., nine or ten years old, v. Yoma 82a.

(16) Although he has to say a blessing which he cannot hear.

(17) And the Mishnah does not follow R. Judah.

(18) I.e., inaudibly.

(19) According to the latest version of his opinion.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 20a

In fact it follows R. Judah,[1] and he holds that the act may be done even in the first instance, and there is no difficulty: in the first quotation[2] he is giving his own opinion, in the second[3] that of his teacher, as it has been taught: ‘R. Judah says in the name of R. Eleazar b. Azariah: One who recites the Shema’ must do so audibly, as it says, Hear, O Israel, the Lord our God is One,[4] which implies. ‘Let thine ear hear what thy mouth utters’. R. Meir says: [It says], which I command thee this day upon thy heart:[5] according to the concentration of the mind, so is the value of the words. Now that you have come so far as this,[6] you may even say that R. Judah was of the same opinion as his teacher, and the statement made by Judah the son of R. Simeon b. Pazzi follows R. Meir.

R. JUDAH DECLARES A MINOR QUALIFIED. It has been taught: ‘R. Judah said: When I was a boy, I read it [the Megillah] before R. Tarfon and the elders in Lydda. They said to him: A proof cannot be adduced from a recollection of boyhood’.[7] It has been taught: ‘Rabbi said: When a boy, I read it before R. Judah. They said to him: A proof cannot be adduced from the very authority who allows [the act]’.[8] Why did they not say to him, A proof cannot be adduced from recollections of boyhood? They gave him a double answer.[9] For one thing, they said, you were a boy and besides, even had you been grown up, proof cannot be brought from the very authority who allows.

MISHNAH. THE MEGILLAH SHOULD NOT BE READ, NEITHER SHOULD

CIRCUMCISION BE PERFORMED, NOR A RITUAL BATH BE TAKEN,[10] NOR SPRINKLING[11] BE PERFORMED, AND SIMILARLY A WOMAN KEEPING DAY FOR DAY[12] SHOULD NOT TAKE A RITUAL BATH UNTIL THE SUN HAS RISEN. BUT IF ANY OF THESE THINGS IS DONE AFTER DAWN HAS APPEARED,[13] IT COUNTS AS DONE.

GEMARA. Whence this rule [about the Megillah]? — Because the Scripture says, and these days should be remembered [mentioned] and kept,[14] which implies, that they are to be so by day, but not by night. Shall we say that this is a refutation of R. Joshua b. Levi; for R. Joshua b. Levi said: It is a man's duty to read the Megillah by night and a second time by day? — When the Mishnah makes this statement it is referring to the day reading.

NEITHER SHOULD CIRCUMCISION BE PERFORMED. Because it is written, And on the eighth day he shall be circumcised.[15]

NEITHER SHOULD A RITUAL BATH BE TAKEN NOR SPRINKLING BE PERFORMED. Because it is written, And the clean person shall sprinkle on the unclean . . . and on the seventh day:[16] and bathing[17] is put on the same footing as sprinkling.

AND SIMILARLY A WOMAN WHO IS KEEPING DAY FOR DAY SHOULD NOT TAKE A RITUAL BATH TILL THE SUN HAS RISEN. This is obvious! Why should a woman keeping day for day be different from all others who are under obligation to take ritual baths?[18] — Her case had to be mentioned. For you might suppose that she should be on the same footing as the first observation of one with an issue, and the first observation of one with an issue has been put on the same footing as one with a seminal issue, as it is written, This is the law of him that hath an issue and of him from whom the flow of seed goeth out:[19] just as one with a seminal issue takes his bath by day, so this one also should take his bath on the same day. This woman, however, cannot bathe on the day, because it is written, all the days of the issue of her uncleanness she shall be as in the days of her impurity;[20] so [you might say], by night at least she might keep watch for a short time[21] and then bathe; therefore we are told that [she must not do this], because she requires to count [day for day];[22]

---

(1) And our Mishnah in the first clause follows R. Jose.

(2) Referring to the blessing over terumah.

(3) Referring to grace after meals

(4) Deut. VI, 4.

(5) Ibid. 6.

(6) To inform us of the difference between R. Judah and R. Meir.

(7) Lit., ‘from a boy’.

(8) Seeing that the majority disagree with him.

(9) Lit., ‘they answered him (in the form of) one thing and yet another’.

(10) For defilement through a dead body (Num. XIX, 17ff) or through an issue (Lev. XV, 15). So Rashi. Tosaf., however, points out that, according to other passages in the Talmud, it is very doubtful if this is the rule, and therefore renders, ‘the hyssop (for sprinkling) should not be dipped’, v. Num. XIX, 11-12.

(11) Of the waters of purification on one who has touched a dead body.

(12) V. supra p. 44, n. 4.

(13) [Lit.. ‘after the going up of the pillar of the morning’; the first streaks of light visible about 1 1/5 hours before sunrise, v. Maim. Commentary on Ber. I. 1].

(14) Esth. IX, 28.

(15) Lev. XII, 3.

(16) Num. XIX, 19.

(17) V. n. 1.

(18) If we accept the explanation of Tosaf. we must suppose this to refer not to the Mishnah but to mean, ‘why should this one be specified rather than any others who have to take ritual baths and who must bathe by day'.

(19) Lev. XV, 32.

(20) Ibid. 25. This shows that she must wait till the day is over. The verse refers to a woman who is keeping day for day.

(21) To make sure that she has no further issue.

(22) Cf. notes supra 3 and 11.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 20b

and counting must be by day.[1]

IF ANY OF THESE THINGS IS DONE AFTER DAWN HAS APPEARED, IT COUNTS AS DONE. Whence is this rule derived? — Raba said: Because the Scripture says, And God called the light day;[2] that which gradually becomes light He called day.[3] But according to this, [when it says] and the darkness He called night,[4] [are we to explain] that which gradually becomes dark He called night? Is it not generally agreed that till the stars come out it is not night? No, said R. Zera; we derive it from here: So we wrought in the work; and half of them held the spears from the rising of the morning till the stars appeared;[5] and it says further, that in the night they may be a guard to us, and may labour in the day.[6] What is the point of the second quotation?[7] — You might say that from the time of the first rising of the dawn it is not yet day, though from the time the sun begins to set it is already night and they were early and late.[8] Therefore come and hear: that in the night they may be a guard to us, and may labour in the day.[9] MISHNAH. THE WHOLE OF THE DAY IS A PROPER TIME FOR THE READING OF THE MEGILLAH AND FOR THE RECITING OF HALLEL[10] AND FOR THE BLOWING OF THE SHOFAR[10] AND FOR TAKING UP THE LULAB[10] AND FOR THE MUSAF[10] PRAYER AND FOR THE ADDITIONAL SACRIFICES[11] AND FOR CONFESSION OVER THE OXEN[12] AND FOR THE ACKNOWLEDGMENT MADE OVER THE TITHE[13] AND FOR THE CONFESSION OF SINS ON THE DAY OF ATONEMENT,[14] FOR LAYING ON OF HANDS,[15] FOR SLAUGHTERING [THE SACRIFICES], FOR WAVING,[16] FOR BRINGING NEAR [THE VESSEL WITH THE MEAL-OFFERING TO THE ALTAR], FOR TAKING A HANDFUL, AND FOR PLACING IT ON THE FIRE,[17] FOR PINCHING OFF [THE HEAD OF A BIRD-OFFERING][18] AND FOR RECEIVING THE BLOOD,[19] AND FOR SPRINKLING,[20] AND FOR MAKING THE UNFAITHFUL WIFE DRINK[21] AND FOR BREAKING THE NECK OF THE HEIFER[22] AND FOR PURIFYING THE LEPER.[23] THE WHOLE OF THE NIGHT IS PROPER TIME FOR REAPING THE OMER,[24] AND FOR BURNING FAT AND LIMBS [ON THE ALTAR].[25] THIS IS THE GENERAL PRINCIPLE: ANY COMMANDMENT WHICH IS TO BE PERFORMED BY DAY MAY BE PERFORMED DURING THE WHOLE OF THE DAY, AND ANY COMMANDMENT WHICH IS TO BE PERFORMED BY NIGHT MAY BE PERFORMED DURING THE WHOLE OF THE NIGHT.

GEMARA. Whence this rule [about the Megillah]? — Because the Scripture says, And these days shall be mentioned and kept.[26]

FOR READING THE HALLEL: as it is written, From the rising of the sun to its going down.[27] R. Joseph says: Because it is written, this is the day on which the Lord hath wrought.[28]

FOR THE TAKING UP OF THE LULAB: as it is written, And ye shall take you on the first day.[29]

FOR THE BLOWING OF THE SHOFAR, as it is written, it is a day of blowing the horn unto you.[30]

FOR THE ADDITIONAL SACRIFICES, as it is written, each on its own day.[31]

AND FOR THE MUSAF PRAYER: because the Rabbis put this on the same footing as the additional sacrifices.

AND FOR THE CONFESSION MADE OVER THE OXEN, an analogy being drawn between the ‘atonement’ mentioned in this connection and that mentioned in connection with the Day of Atonement, as it has been taught in reference to the Day of Atonement: ‘And he shall make atonement for himself and for his house:[32] the text speaks of atonement made by words. And atonement is by day, as it is written, For on this day shall atonement be made for you.[33]

AND FOR THE ACKNOWLEDGMENT MADE OVER THE TITHE: as it is written, And thou shalt say before the Lord thy God, I have put away the hallowed things out of my house,[34] and in the same context it says, This day the Lord thy God commandeth thee.[35]

FOR LAYING ON OF HANDS AND FOR SLAUGHTERING: as it is written, and he shall lay his hand . . . and he shall kill,[36] and it is written in connection with killing, on the same day that ye sacrifice.[37]

AND FOR WAVING: as it is written, and in the day when ye wave the sheaf.[38]

AND FOR BRINGING NEAR; because this is compared to waving, as it is written, And the priest shall take the meal-offering of jealousy out of the woman's hand, and shall wave the meal-offering . . . and bring it near[39] [to the altar].

AND FOR PINCHING AND FOR TAKING A HANDFUL AND FOR BURNING AND FOR SPRINKLING, as it is written, in the day that he commanded the children of Israel [to present their offerings].[40]

AND FOR MAKING THE UNFAITHFUL WIFE DRINK: The word ‘law’ which occurs in this connection is explained by its use in another.[41] It is written here, and the priest shall execute upon her all this law,[42] and it is written elsewhere, According to the law which they shall teach thee and according to the judgement[43]

---

(1) As it says, And she shall count seven days. Ibid. 28.

(2) Gen. I, 5.

(3) Which shows that from dawn may be called day.

(4) Ibid.

(5) Neh. IV, 15.

(6) Ibid. 16.

(7) Lit., ‘what is "and it says"’.

(8) I.e., started before day and finished after nightfall.

(9) Which shows that all the time during which they laboured was called day.

(10) V. Glos.

(11) On Sabbath or Festivals. V. Num. XXVIII-IX.

(12) Brought as a sin-offering for a sin committed unwittingly by the High Priest or by the congregation. V. Lev. IV.

(13) V. Deut. XXVI, 12-15.

(14) V. Lev. XVI.

(15) V. e.g., Lev. I, 4, III, 2.

(16) E.g., the breast of the peace-offering. V. Lev. VII, 30.

(17) From the meal-offering. V. Lev. II, 2.

(18) V. Lev. I, 15.

(19) Of the slaughtered animal in a vessel.

(20) The blood on the altar.

(21) The bitter waters. V. Num. V, 24.
(22) As atonement for an unpunished murder. V. Deut. XXI, 1-9.
(23) V. Lev. XIV.
(24) Lev. XXIII, 10-11.
(25) V. Lev VI, 2.
(26) Esth. IX, 28.
(27) Ps. CXIII, 3.
(28) Ibid. CXVIII, 24.
(29) Lev. XXIII, 40.
(30) Num. XXIX, 1.
(31) Lev. XXIII, 37.
(32) Ibid. XVI, 6.
(33) Ibid. 30.
(34) Deut. XXVI, 13.
(35) Ibid. 16.
(36) Lev. I, 4, 5.
(37) Ibid. XIX, 6.
(38) Ibid. XXIII, 12.
(39) Num. V, 25.
(40) Lev. VII, 38. and all these ceremonies constitute the presenting of the offering.
(41) Lit., 'There comes along "law", "law"'.
(42) Num. V, 30.
(43) Deut. XVII, 11.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 21a

: just as judgement is by day,[1] so here it must be by day.

AND FOR BREAKING THE NECK OF THE HEIFER. In the school of R. Jannai it was said: [The word] 'atonement' is applied to it[2] as to holy things.

AND FOR THE PURIFICATION OF THE LEPER: as it is written, This shall be the law of the leper in the day of his cleansing.[3]

THE WHOLE NIGHT IS A PROPER TIME FOR REAPING THE 'OMER. Since a Master has said that reaping and counting are to be performed by night and the bringing by day.[4]

AND FOR BURNING FAT AND LIMBS: as it is written, All the night till the morning.[5]

THIS IS THE GENERAL PRINCIPLE: ANY COMMANDMENT THAT IS TO BE PERFORMED BY DAY CAN BE PERFORMED DURING THE WHOLE OF THE DAY. [The words] 'this is the general principle' are inserted to add what? — To add the setting of the cup[6] and the removal of the cups, and in agreement with R. Jose, as it has been taught: 'R. Jose says: If he removed the old [shew-bread] in the morning and set the new one in the evening, there is no harm.[7] What then do I make of the verse, before me continually?[8] [This is to show that] the table of the Lord should not be without bread.[9]

A COMMANDMENT WHICH IS TO BE PERFORMED BY NIGHT MAY BE PERFORMED DURING THE WHOLE OF THE NIGHT. What does this add? — It adds the consumption of the paschal lamb, thus differing from R. Eleazar b. Azariah, as it has been taught: And they shall eat the flesh on that night:[10] R. Eleazar b. Azariah said: It says here, on that night, and it says elsewhere, And I shall pass through the land of Egypt on that night:[11] just as there up to midnight [is meant], so here up to midnight [is meant].

CHAPTER III

MISHNAH. HE WHO READS THE MEGILLAH MAY DO SO EITHER STANDING OR SITTING. WHETHER ONE READS IT OR TWO READ IT [TOGETHER] THEY [THE CONGREGATION] HAVE PERFORMED THEIR OBLIGATION. IN PLACES WHERE IT IS THE CUSTOM TO SAY A BLESSING,[12] IT SHOULD BE SAID, AND WHERE IT IS NOT THE CUSTOM IT NEED NOT BE SAID.

ON MONDAYS AND THURSDAYS AND ON SABBATH AT MINHAH,[13] THREE READ FROM THE TORAH, NEITHER MORE NOR LESS, NOR IS A HAFTARAH[14] HEAD FROM A PROPHET. THE ONE WHO READS[15] FIRST IN THE TORAH[16] AND THE ONE WHO READS LAST[17] MAKE [RESPECTIVELY] A BLESSING BEFORE READING AND AFTER.[18] ON NEW MOONS AND ON THE INTERMEDIATE DAYS OF FESTIVALS FOUR READ, NEITHER MORE NOR LESS, AND THERE IS NO HAFTARAH FROM A PROPHET. THE ONE WHO READS FIRST AND THE ONE WHO READS LAST IN THE TORAH MAKE A BLESSING BEFORE AND AFTER. THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: ON ANY DAY WHICH HAS A MUSAF[16] AND IS NOT A FESTIVAL FOUR READ; ON A FESTIVAL FIVE READ; ON THE DAY OF ATONEMENT SIX READ; ON SABBATH SEVEN READ; THIS NUMBER MAY NOT BE DIMINISHED BUT IT MAY BE ADDED TO, AND A HAFTARAH IS READ FROM A PROPHET. THE ONE WHO READS FIRST AND THE ONE WHO READS LAST IN THE TORAH MAKE A BLESSING BEFORE AND AFTER. GEMARA. A Tanna stated: ‘This [that one may read sitting] is not the case with the Torah’.[19] Whence this rule? — R. Abbahu said: Because Scripture says, But as for thee, stand thou here by me.[20] R. Abbahu also said: Were it not written in the Scripture, it would be impossible for us to say it: as it were, the Holy One, blessed be He, also was standing.[21]

R. Abbahu further said: How do we know that the master should not sit on a couch and teach his disciples while they sit on the ground? Because it says, ‘But as for thee, do thou stand here by me.[22]

Our Rabbis taught: From the days of Moses up to Rabban Gamaliel, the Torah was learnt only standing. When Rabban Gamaliel died, feebleness descended on the world, and they learnt the Torah sitting; and so we have learnt that ‘from the time that Rabban Gamaliel died, [full] honour ceased to be paid to the Torah’.

One verse says, And I sat [wa-esheb] in the mount,[23] and another verse says, And I stood in the mount.[24] — Rab says: He [Moses] stood when he learnt and sat while he went over [what he had learnt]. R. Hanina said: He was neither sitting nor standing, but stooping. R. Johanan said: ‘Sitting’ [yosheb] here means only ‘staying’, as it says, And ye stayed [teshbu] in Kadesh many days.[25] Raba said: The easy things [he learnt] standing and the hard ones sitting.

WHETHER ONE READS IT OR TWO READ IT, THEY HAVE PERFORMED THEIR OBLIGATION.

---

(1) V. Sanh. 34b.

(2) ‘And the blood shall be atoned unto them’. Deut. XXI, 8.

(3) Lev. XIV, 2.

(4) This is deduced from scriptural texts in Men. 66a.

(5) Ibid. VI, 2.

(6) Containing the frankincense for the shewbread.

(7) [Rashi reads, ‘also this is (termed) ‘continually’].

(8) Lev. XXIV, 3.
(9) [Var lec. ‘Should not be overnight without bread’.]
(10) Ex. XII, 8.
(11) Ibid. 12.
(12) After the reading. V. infra.
(13) V. Glos. On these three occasions the first section of the Sedra (portion) of the following Sabbath is read.
(14) V. Glos. [Lit., ‘we do not dismiss (the public) with (a reading from) a prophet’, the haftarah having originally formed the concluding part of the morning service Saturdays and Festivals when the worshippers were dismissed to their homes. V. Buchler JQR VI, p. 7].
(15) Lit., ‘he who opens’, ‘begins’.
(16) V. Glos.
(17) Lit., ‘he who seals’, ‘closes’.
(18) V. infra p. 130.
(19) Referring to the public reading of the Law.
(20) Deut. V, 28.
(21) Because it says, by (lit., ‘with’) me.
(22) And God was to Moses in the relation of master to pupil.
(23) Deut. IX, 9; v. Sot. 49a.
(24) Ibid. X, 10.
(25) Ibid. I, 46.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 21b

A Tanna stated: This is not the case with [the public reading of] the Torah.

Our Rabbis taught: As regards the Torah, one reads and one translates,[1] and in no case must one read and two translate [together]. As regards the Prophets, one reads and two may translate, but in no case may two read and two translate. As regards Hallel and the Megillah,[2] even ten may read [and ten may translate].[3] What is the reason? Since the people like it,[4] they pay attention and hear.[5]

WHERE IT IS THE CUSTOM TO SAY A BLESSING, IT SHOULD BE SAID. Abaye said: This rule applies only to the blessing after the reading, but before the reading it is a religious duty to say a blessing, since Rab Judah said in the name of Samuel: ‘Over the performance of all religious precepts a blessing is said as one passes on [‘ober] to perform them’. How can you prove that this ‘passing on means ‘just in front of’? — R. Nahman b. Isaac said: Scripture says, Then Ahimaaz ran by way of the plain and overran [wa-ya'abor] the Cushite.[6] Abaye said: We prove it from here: And he himself passed over before them.[7] Or, if you prefer, I can prove it from here: And their king is passed on before them and the Lord at the head of them.[8]

What blessing is said before the reading of the Megillah? — R. Shesheth from Kateriza happened [once to read] in the presence of R. Ashi, and he made the blessings M'N'H'.[9] What blessing is said after it? — ‘Blessed art thou, O Lord our God, king of the universe, [the God][10] who espoused our quarrel and vindicated our cause and executed our vengeance and punished our adversaries for us and visited retribution on all the enemies of our soul. Blessed art thou, O Lord, who avenges Israel on all their enemies’. Raba Says: [The concluding words are], ‘The God who saves. R. Papa said: Therefore we should say both: ‘Blessed art thou, O Lord, who avenges Israel on all their enemies, the God who saves’.

ON MONDAYS AND THURSDAYS AND ON SABBATH AT MINHAH THREE READ. What do these three represent? — R. Assi said: The Pentateuch, the Prophets and the Hagiographa. Raba said: Priests, Levites, and lay Israelites. But now, in the statement of R. Shimi, ‘Not less than ten verses [of the Torah] should be read in the synagogue, the verse ‘and [God] spoke to [Moses saying]’ being counted as one',[11] — what do these ten represent? — R.Joshua b. Levi said: The ten men of leisure in the synagogue.[12] R. Joseph said: The ten commandments which were given to Moses on Sinai. (R. Levi said: The ten times hallel [praise] which David uttered in the book of Psalms.)[13] R. Johanan said: The ten utterances with which the world was created.[14] What are these? The expressions 'And [God] said' in the first chapter of Genesis.[15] But there are only nine? — The words 'In the beginning' are also a [creative] utterance, since it is written, By the word of the Lord the heavens were made, and all the host of them by the breath of his mouth.[16]

Raba said: If the first reads four verses[17] he is to be commended; if the second reads four verses[18] he is to be commended; if the third reads four verses he is to be commended. 'If the first reads four verses he is to be commended', as we have learnt: 'There were three bags holding three se'ahs[19] each, in which the priests take up the money-offerings out of the [shekel] chamber,[20] and they were labelled Aleph, Beth, Gimel,[21] so as to show which was taken out first, so that sacrifices could be brought from that one first, since it is a religious duty to offer from the first. 'If the middle one reads four verses, he is to be commended', as it has been taught: '[The seven lamps] shall give light in front of the candlestick;[22] this teaches that they were made to face the western lamp[23] and the western lamp faced the Shechinah; and R. Johanan said: This shows that the middle one is specially prized'. 'If the last reads four verses he is to be commended': because of the principle that 'in dealing with holy things we promote but never degrade'.[24] R. Papa was once in the synagogue of Abe Gobar,[25] when the first one [who was called up] read four verses, and R. Papa commended him.

NEITHER LESS NOR MORE [etc.]. A Tanna stated: The one who reads first makes a blessing before the reading, and the one who reads last makes a blessing after it. Nowadays that all make a blessing both before and after the reading, the reason is that the Rabbis ordained this to avoid error on the part of people entering and leaving synagogue.[26]

ON NEW MOONS AND ON THE INTERMEDIATE DAYS OF THE FESTIVAL FOUR READ. 'Ulla b. Rab enquired of Raba: How is the portion of New Moon[27] to be divided? [The paragraph commencing] 'command the children of Israel and say to them'[28] has eight verses. How are we to deal with them? Shall two persons read three verses each? Then two verses will be left [to the end of the paragraph], and it is not proper to leave over less than three verses to the end of the paragraph.[29] Shall two read four verses each? Then seven verses will be left altogether, [the paragraph beginning] 'and on the sabbath day'[30] being two, and [the paragraph beginning] 'and on your new moons'[31] being five. How are we to do? Shall we read [as one portion] two from one paragraph and one from the next?

---

(1) I.e., reads the Aramaic Targum.

(2) V. Glos.

(3) Rashi omits these words on the ground that there is no Targum to the Hagiographa. Tosaf., however, points out that there is such a Targum, though it is not attributed to Jonathan b. Uzziel; v. supra 3a.

(4) Lit., 'it is beloved'.

(5) Even though many are speaking together.

(6) II Sam. XVIII, 23.

(7) Gen. XXXIII, 3, of Jacob and his family before Esau.

(8) Micah II, 13.

(9) M = Mikra (or Megillah), over the reading of the Megillah; N = Nissim, the blessing for miracles; H = she-heheyanu (or Hayyim, life) 'who has kept us alive to this day'.

(10) This word is omitted by Alfasi and Asheri.

(11) Although it is a recurring introductory formula.

(12) Every community was required to have ten men who had leisure always to attend synagogue when required. V. supra p. 21, n. 9.

(13) This is bracketed in the text, and is omitted by Bah and MS.M. [This number is exceeded many times in the Book of Psalms and applies to Psalm CL by itself (v. R.H. 32a) hence, the omission].

(14) V. Aboth V, 1.

(15) Lit., ‘in "In the beginning"’.

(16) Ps. XXXIII, 6. The creation of ‘Heavens’ and ‘the host of them’ (the earth) is mentioned in the first verse of Genesis.

(17) Out of the obligatory ten read on weekdays.

(18) If the first has read only three, or even if he has read four.

(19) V. Glos.

(20) Shekels brought by the public for purchasing the congregational sacrifices.

(21) V. Shek. 5a.

(22) Num. VIII, 2.

(23) According to one opinion, this was the middle lamp of the candlestick; according to another, the one second from the western end. R. Johanan evidently adopted the first opinion.

(24) Hence the religious service of the last should be at least equal to that of those who preceded him.

(25) [Or, Be Gobar, near Mahuza, v. Obermeyer p. 178. This synagogue is also mentioned in Ber. 50a and Ta'an. 26a].

(26) People who come in after the reading has commenced, on seeing a fresh person commence to read without saying a blessing, might think that no blessing is necessary before the reading. Similarly, those who leave before the reading is concluded might think that no blessing at all is necessary after the reading.

(27) Which consists of three paragraphs of eight, two and five verses. Num. XXVIII, 1-15.

(28) Ibid. 1-8.

(29) V. infra. פרשה A ‘paragraph’ is a section at the end of which a blank space is left in the Scroll.

(30) Ibid. 9, 10.

(31) Ibid. 11-15.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 22a

[This is not right], since we do not read less than three verses together at the beginning of a paragraph.[1] Shall the reader read two from one and three from the other? Then only two verses are left [to the end of the second paragraph]! — He replied: On this point I have not heard [any pronouncement], but I have learnt the rule in a somewhat similar case, as we have learnt: ‘On Sundays, [the ma'amad[2] read the paragraph] "In the beginning" and "let there be a firmament",[3] and to this a gloss was added, "In the beginning" is read by two and "let there be a firmament" by one’, and we were somewhat perplexed by this. For that [the paragraph] ‘let there be a firmament’ can be read by one we understand, since it has three verses, but how can ‘In the beginning, be read by two, seeing that it has only five verses, and it has been taught, ‘He who reads in the Torah should not read less than three verses’? And it was stated [in answer] to this [question] that Rab says he should repeat,[4] and Samuel says he should divide a verse. Rab said he should repeat. Why should he not say ‘divide’? — He was of opinion that any verse which Moses had not divided, we may not divide, whereas Samuel held that we may divide. But surely, R. Hananiah the Bible teacher[5] said, I was in great pain in the house of R. Hanina the great, and he would not allow me to make [additional verse] divisions save for the school children, because they are there to be taught? — Now what was the reason there [why he was allowed to make divisions]? Because it could not be avoided; here[6] too it cannot be avoided. Samuel said that he divides. Why did he not say that he repeats? It is a precaution to prevent error on the part of those coming in and going out.[7]

An objection [against both these views][8] was brought from the following: ‘A section of six verses may be read by two persons, a section of five verses must be read by one. If the first reads three verses, the second reads the remaining two from this section and one from the next; some, however, say that he reads three from the next, because not less than three verses should be read at the beginning of a section’.[9] Now if it is as you said,[10] then according to the one who says he should repeat, let him repeat, and according to the one who says he should divide, let him divide? — It is different here,[11] because this method is open to him.[12]

R. Tanhum, said in the name of R. Joshua b. Levi: The halachah follows the alternative opinion[13] mentioned.

R. Tanhum also said in the name of R. Joshua b. Levi: Just as at the beginning of a section not less than three verses should be read, so at the end of a section not less than three verses should be left. Surely this is obvious! Seeing that in regard to the beginning of a section where the First Tanna is not so strict the alternative opinion is strict, is it not certain that in regard to the verses left [at the end of the section] where the First Tanna is strict the alternative opinion will also be strict? — You might argue that it is usual for people to come in [to synagogue during the reading of the law],[14] but it is not usual for them to go out and leave the scroll of the law while it is being read;[15] therefore we are told [that we do not argue thus]. But now with regard to the First Tanna: Why does he forbid [less than three verses] to be left [at the end of the section]? On account of people going out of synagogue,[16] is it not? Then with regard to the beginning also he should take precautions on account of people coming in? — I can answer that a person coming in enquires [how much has been read].[17]

Rabbah the son of Raba sent to enquire of R. Joseph: What is the law?[18] He sent him back word: The law is that the verse is repeated, and it is a middle reader[19] who repeats.

THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: WHENEVER THERE IS A MUSAF etc. The question was raised: How many read on a public fast day?[20] Shall we say that on New Moon and the intermediate days of the festival when there is an additional sacrifice four read, but here where there is no additional sacrifice this is not the case? Or shall we argue that here also there is an additional prayer?[21] — Come and hear: ON NEW MOONS AND ON THE INTERMEDIATE DAYS OF FESTIVALS FOUR READ', from which we conclude that on public fasts only three read. Look now at the preceding clause: 'ON MONDAYS AND THURSDAYS AND ON SABBATH AT MINHAH THREE READ', from which we may conclude that on a public fast four read! The truth is that we cannot decide from here.

Come then and hear [this]: 'Rab happened to be at Babylon[22] during a public fast. He came forward and read in the scroll of the law. Before commencing he made a blessing but after finishing he made no blessing. The whole congregation [afterwards] fell on their faces,[23] but Rab did not fall on his face'. Let us now see. Rab read as a lay Israelite.[24] Why then did he say no blessing after finishing? Was it not because another was to read after him? — No. Rab read as kohen,[25] for R. Huna also read as kohen.[26] I can understand R. Huna reading as kohen, because even R. Assi and R. Ammi who were distinguished kohanim of Eretz Israel showed deference to R. Huna.[27] But as to Rab there was Samuel [his Babylonian contemporary] who was a kohen and who took precedence of him?[28] — Samuel also showed deference to Rab, and it was Rab[29] who of his own accord paid him special honour[30] and this he did only in his presence, but not when he was not present. It is reasonable also to assume that Rab read as kohen, because if you presume that he read as a layman, why did he say a blessing before reading? — It was after the regulation[31] had been made. If so, he should have said a blessing after reading also? — Where Rab was present there was a difference, because people came in [late]

---

(1) V. infra.

(2) V. Glos.

(3) Gen. I, 1-5, and 6-8; v. Ta'an. 26a.

(4) The last verse read by the predecessor. Lit., 'skip', 'go back'.

(5) Heb. קרא, a Bible teacher who appears to have been also a professional reader of the Scripture, with proper vowels, stops and accents, as the tanna (v. Glos. s.v.) was a professional memorizer of the Mishnah or Baraitha.

(6) In the readings of the ma'amad.

(7) V. supra p. 132, n. 3.

(8) Of Rab and Samuel.
(9) V. Ta'an 27b.
(10) That he either divides or repeats.
(11) Which deals with the Biblical reading on Mondays and Thursdays.
(12) Whereas on New Moon the next paragraph deals with a different subject and therefore cannot be read.
(13) Lit., ‘the "some say"’; viz., that three verses are read from the next paragraph.
(14) And therefore, if they hear only the first verse of a section read, may not know that at least three verses have been read.
(15) And therefore, even if only one verse of a section is left, they will see that three are read.
(16) Who might think that if two verses to the end of a section had been left by a reader at the point when he went out, only those two will have been read by the next reader. Cf. n. 7.
(17) Supposing he finds when he comes in that someone reads three verses beginning from the third verse of a paragraph, he inquires whether the previous reader read only the preceding two verses or more.
(18) With respect to the reading by the ma'amad and on the New Moon readings.
(19) I.e., not the one who reads last.
(20) Other than the day of Atonement.
(21) Inserted in the Amidah — the prayer ענינו, v. P. B. p. 47.
(22) [Babylon stands here, as in other places in the Talmud, for Sura which was in the neighbourhood of the old great city of Babylon, and in contradistinction to Nehardea where Samuel had his seat, v. Obermeyer p. 306].
(23) To say propitiatory prayers — tahanun, v. P.B. p. 62.
(24) I.e., third, being neither kohen nor Levite.
(25) I.e., first.
(26) Although only a lay Israelite.
(27) Cf. Git. 59b.
(28) V. B.K. 80a.
(29) In giving him precedence.
(30) V. Shab. 108a.
(31) That a blessing should be said both before and after each reading. V. supra, p. 132.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 22b

but did not go out [during the reading of the law].[1]

Come and hear: ‘The general principle is that wherever the people would be hindered from their work, as on a public fast and on the month of Ab, three read, and where the people would not be hindered from their work, as on New Moons and the intermediate days of festivals,[2] four read’. This settles the question. Said R. Ashi: But we have learnt differently, viz., THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: WHEREVER THERE IS A MUSAF BUT NOT A FESTIVAL FOUR READ: Now what is added [by the words ‘THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE’]? Is it not a public fast and the month of Ab? But according to R. Ashi,[3] whose view then is recorded in the Mishnah? It is neither that of the First Tanna nor of R. Jose, as it has been taught: ‘If it [the month of Ab] falls on Monday or Thursday, three read and one [of them] says a haftarah. If on Tuesday or Wednesday, one reads and [the same] one says the haftarah. R. Jose, however, says that in all cases three read and one [of them] says the haftarah’. But still[4] the words ‘THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE are difficult! — No. They add New Moon and the intermediate days. But as these are stated explicitly: ON NEW MOONS AND THE INTERMEDIATE DAYS FOUR READ? — [The Mishnah][5] is merely giving an indication that you should not say that the festivals and the intermediate days have the same rule, but you should take this as a general principle, that for every additional distinguishing mark an additional person reads. Hence on New Moon and the intermediate days, when there is an additional sacrifice, four read; on festivals, when [in addition] work is prohibited, five read; on the Day of Atonement when [in addition] there is a penalty of kareth, six read; on Sabbath when there is a penalty of stoning, seven read.

The text [above stated]: ‘Rab happened to be in Babylon on a public fast. He came forward and read in the scroll. He made a blessing before commencing, but made no blessing after finishing. The whole congregation [subsequently] fell on their faces, but Rab did not fall on his face’. Why did not Rab fall on his face? There was a stone pavement there and it has been taught: ‘Neither shall ye place any figured stone in your land to bow down upon it:[6] upon it ye may not bow down in your land, but you may prostrate yourselves on the stones in the Temple’, this teaching is in accord with the opinion of ‘Ulla, who said: The Torah [here] is forbidding only a pavement of stone. If that is the case, why is only Rab mentioned? All the rest should equally have abstained? — It was in front of Rab. But could he not have gone among the congregation and fallen on his face? — He did not want to trouble the congregation.[7] Or if you like I can say that Rab usually spread out his hands and feet [when he fell on his face], and he followed the opinion of ‘Ulla, who said, The Torah forbade only the spreading out of the hands and feet. But could he not have fallen on his face without spreading out his hands and feet? — He did not care to change his custom. Or if you like I can say that for a distinguished man the rule is different, as laid down by R. Eleazar; for R. Eleazar said: A man of eminence is not permitted to fall on his face[8] unless he is [sure of being] answered like Joshua son of Nun, as it is written, Wherefore now art thou fallen upon thy face.[9]

Our Rabbis have taught: Kidah means falling upon the face, as it says, Then Bathsheba bowed [wa-tikod] with her face to the earth.[10] Keri'ah means going down upon the knees, and so it says, [Solomon arose] from kneeling [mi-kroa’] on his knees.[11] Hishtahawa'ah is spreading out of the hands and feet, as it says, Shall I and thy mother and thy brethren come to prostrate ourselves [lehishtahawoth] before thee to the earth.[12]

Levi displayed a kidah[13] in the presence of Rabbi and became lame.[14] But was this the cause of his accident? Did not R. Eleazar Say: ‘A man should never complain against heaven, because a great man complained against heaven and he became lame; and who was he? Levi’?[15] — Both things caused it. R. Hiyya b. Abin said: I saw Abaye

---

(1) Hence the reason for saying a blessing after did not apply.

(2) On the intermediate days only work which could not be left over without serious loss was allowed to be done. On New Moon it was the custom for women to abstain from work. V. Rashi and Tosaf. [In ancient times as long as the Temple stood New Moon was marked by a cessation of work; cf. Pseudo-Jonathan on I Sam. XX, 19; v. Halevy, Doroth, I, p. 330ff].

(3) That the Mishnah means to include a public fast and the month of Ab among the days on which four read.

(4) Viz., if we do not accept R. Ashi's explanation.

(5) In mentioning explicitly new moons and the intermediate days, although these are already implied in THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE.

(6) Lev. XXVI, 1. E.V., ‘to it’.

(7) Who would all have risen.

(8) In public.

(9) Josh. VII, 10. So that Rab never fell on his face for the propitiatory prayer.

(10) I Kings I, 31.

(11) Ibid. VIII, 54.

(12) Gen. XXXVII ,10.

(13) V. Suk. 53a.

(14) In getting up.

(15) V. Ta'an.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 23a

and Raba bend over to one side.[1]

ON FESTIVALS FIVE READ, ON THE DAY OF ATONEMENT SIX etc. Whose view does the Mishnah embody? It is neither that of R. Ishmael nor of R. Akiba, as it has been taught: ‘On festivals five read, on the Day of Atonement six, and on Sabbath seven. This number may neither be increased nor diminished. So R. Ishmael. R. Akiba says: On festivals five read, on the Day of Atonement seven and on Sabbath six. This number may not be diminished but it may be increased’. Whom [does the Mishnah follow]? If R. Ishmael, it conflicts with him over the additional number, if R. Akiba, it conflicts with him over the question of six and seven! — Raba said: The view is that of a Tanna of the school of R. Ishmael, since in the school of R. Ishmael it was stated: ‘On festivals five, on the Day of Atonement six, on Sabbath seven; this number may not be diminished but it may be increased. So R. Ishmael.’ R. Ishmael is now in conflict with himself! — Two Tannaim report R. Ishmael differently.

Who is responsible for the statement which has been taught: ‘On festivals people come late to synagogue and leave early.[2] On the Day of Atonement they come early and leave late. On Sabbath they come early and leave early’?[3] Shall I say it is R. Akiba who makes an extra man [read on the Day of Atonement]? — You may also say it is R. Ishmael, [his reason being that] the order [of the service] of the day is very long.

What do these three, five and seven represent? — Different answers were given by R. Isaac b. Nahmani and one who was with him, namely, R. Simeon b. Pazzi, or, according to others, by R. Simeon b. Pazzi and one who was with him, namely, R. Isaac b. Nahmani, or according to others, R. Samuel b. Nahmani. One said that [these represent] the [respective number of Hebrew words in the three verses of the] Priestly benedictions,[4] while the other said ‘the three keepers of the door’.[5] [The five represent] ‘five of them that saw the king's face’[6] [and the seven] ‘seven men of them that saw the king's face’.[7] R. Joseph learnt: Three, five and seven: ‘three keepers of the door’, five of them that saw the king's face’, and ‘seven that saw the king's face’. Said Abaye to him: Until to-day your honour never explained the reason to us, he replied: I never knew that you wanted to know. Did you ever ask me anything which I did not tell you?

Jacob the Min[8] asked R. Judah: What do the six of the Day of Atonement represent? — He replied: The six who stood at the right of Ezra and the six who stood at his left, as it says, And Ezra the scribe stood upon a pulpit of wood which they had made for the purpose, and beside him stood Mattithiah, Shema and Anaiah and Uriah and Hilkiah and Maaseiah, on his right hand; and on his left hand, Pedaiah, and Mishael and Malchijah and Hashum and Hashbaddanah, Zechariah, Meshullam.[9] But these last are seven? — Zechariah is the same as Meshullam. And why is he called Meshullam? Because he was blameless [mishlam] in his conduct.

Our Rabbis taught: All are qualified to be among the seven [who read], even a minor and a woman, only the Sages said that a woman should not read in the Torah out of respect for the congregation.

The question was raised: Should the Maftir[10] be counted among the seven? — R. Huna and R. Jeremiah b. Abba answered differently. One said that he does count and the other that he does not count. The one who says he does count points to the fact that he actually reads [from the Torah also], while the one who says he does not count relies on the dictum of ‘Ulla, who said: Why is it proper for the one who reads the haftarah from the Prophet to read in the Torah first? To show respect for the Torah.[11] Since then he reads [only] out of respect for the Torah,[12] he should not be counted to make up the seven.

The following was cited in objection to this: ‘He who says the haftarah from the Prophet should read not less than twenty-one verses, corresponding to [those read by] the seven who have read in the Torah'. Now if it is as you say,[13] there are twenty-four? — Since it is only out of respect for the Torah [that he reads],

---

(1) Because as men of eminence they were not permitted to fall right on their faces.

(2) They come late because they have been busy preparing the festival meal, and they leave early to enjoy the festival.

(3) They come early because their food is already prepared, and they leave early to enjoy Sabbath.

(4) Num. VI, 24-26.

(5) Mentioned in II Kings XXV, 18, among those taken captive from Jerusalem by Nebuzaradon.

(6) Mentioned ibid. 19.

(7) Mentioned in the corresponding account in Jer. LII, 25.

(8) V. Glos. Probably a Christian.

(9) Neh. VIII, 4.

(10) The one who reads the haftarah.

(11) I.e., by not putting the Prophet on the same level as the Torah.

(12) And not because an extra one is required to read.

(13) That the Maftir is not one of the seven.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 23b

no corresponding verses [to those read by him] are required [in the prophetical reading]. Raba strongly demurred to this: There is, he said, [the haftarah of] 'Add your burnt-offerings'[1] in which there are not twenty-one verses, and yet we read it! — The case is different there, because the subject is completed [before twenty-one verses]. But where the subject is not completed, do we then not [read less than twenty-one]? Has not R. Samuel b. Abba said: Many times I stood before R. Johanan, and when I had read ten verses he said,[2] 'Stop [both of] you'? — In a place where there is a translator[3] it is different, since R. Tahlifa b. Samuel has taught: This rule was laid down only for a place where there is no translator, but where there is a translator a stop may be made [earlier].

MISHNAH. THE INTRODUCTION TO THE SHEMA IS NOT REPEATED,[4] NOR DOES ONE PASS BEFORE THE ARK,[5] NOR DO [THE PRIESTS] LIFT THEIR HANDS,[6] NOR IS THE TORAH READ [PUBLICLY] NOR THE HAFTARAH READ FROM THE PROPHET,[7] NOR ARE HALTS MADE [AT FUNERALS],[8] NOR IS THE BLESSING FOR MOURNERS SAID,[9] NOR THE COMFORT OF MOURNERS,[10] NOR THE BLESSING OF THE BRIDEGROOMS,[11] NOR IS THE NAME [OF GOD] MENTIONED IN THE INVITATION TO SAY GRACE,[12] SAVE IN THE PRESENCE OF TEN. FOR REDEEMING SANCTIFIED PROPERTIES[13] NINE AND A PRIEST [ARE SUFFICIENT], AND SIMILARLY WITH HUMAN BEINGS.

GEMARA. Whence these rules?[14] — R. Hiyya b. Abba said in the name of R. Johanan: Because Scripture says, But I will be hallowed among the children of Israel:[15] every act of sanctification requires not less than ten. How does the verse denote this? — As R. Hiyya taught: We explain the word 'among' here by reference to its use in another place. It is written here, 'But I will be hallowed among the children of Israel', and it is written elsewhere, Separate yourselves from among this congregation;[16] and we further explain the word 'congregation' here by reference to what is written in another place, How long shall I bear with this evil congregation.[17] Just as there ten are indicated,[18] so here.

NOR ARE HALTS MADE [AT FUNERALS]. Since [the conductor of the funeral] requires to say, 'stand, dear friends, stand; sit, dear friends, sit',[19] it is not proper[20] [to have less than ten].

NOR IS THE BLESSING OF MOURNERS NOR THE BLESSING OF BRIDEGROOMS SAID etc. What is the blessing of mourners? The blessing of the public square,[21] since[22] R. Isaac said in the name of R. Johanan: The blessing of mourners requires the presence of ten, the mourners not being counted; the blessing of bridegrooms requires the presence of ten, the bridegroom being counted.

THE NAME [OF GOD] IS NOT MENTIONED IN THE INVITATION TO SAY GRACE WITH LESS THAN TEN. Since the one who invites has to say, ‘Let us bless our God’,it is not seemly to do so with less than ten.

FOR REDEEMING PROPERTIES NINE AND A PRIEST. Whence is this rule derived? — Samuel said: Ten priests are mentioned in the section [dealing with sanctifications],[23] one for the actual priest required (and [the first] one [after] to limit),[24] and the rest constitute a limitation after a limitation, and a limitation after a limitation has the force of an addition, to include, namely, nine Israelites and one priest.[25] But cannot I [rather] say five priests and five Israelites?[26] — This is indeed a difficulty.

AND SIMILARLY WITH HUMAN BEINGS. But can a human being become sanctified?[27] — R. Abbahu said: It refers to one who says, ‘My money [value] be upon me’, as it has been taught: ‘If a man says, My money [value] be upon me, we estimate his value as we would that of a slave’. And a slave is put on the same footing as landed property, as it is written, And ye may make them an inheritance for your children after you, to hold for a possession.[28]

MISHNAH. ONE WHO READS THE TORAH [IN SYNAGOGUE] SHOULD READ NOT LESS THAN THREE VERSES, AND HE SHOULD NOT READ TO THE TRANSLATOR MORE THAN ONE VERSE [AT A TIME].[29]

---

(1) Jer. VII, 21, the Maftir to section Zaw (Lev. VI, I to VIII, 36).

(2) To him and to the translator.

(3) Who repeats each verse, in the Aramaic Targum.

(4) פורסין על שמע lit., ‘they do not divide over the Shema’’ (v. Glos.). According to Rashi this means that if a number of persons (not less than ten, or seven, or six, or three, according to various opinions, v. Tosaf. and Asheri) come into synagogue after the Shema’ has been said, it is allowable for the congregation to repeat the kaddish and bareku and the first blessing before the Shema’ for their benefit. From the context one would say that it means here more simply ‘say the Shema’ with its attendant blessings’. V. P.B. pp. 37ff. V. Rabbinowitz Mishnah Megillah, ad loc. [Kohler (The Origin of the Synagogue and the Church; p. 58) explains the phrase: ‘The lifting up the hands towards heaven at the recital of the Shema’ — In continuation of the old practice of the Hasidim’. Krauss (Israel-Theol. Lehranstalt, Wien, Bericht, 1933 p. 53): The stepping forward of the reader to recite the Shema’].

(5) To lead the congregation in the Amidah.

(6) To say the priestly blessing, Num. VI, 24-26.

(7) V. supra p. 140.

(8) Lit., ‘they do not make a halting and sitting’. It was the custom on the return from a funeral to have seven pauses during which lamentation was made in honour of the dead. V. infra.

(9) V. infra.

(10) The formal words of consolation addressed to the mourners on passing between the two rows formed by friends after the funeral; v. Keth. 8b and Sanh. 19a. Some texts omit ‘NOR COMFORT OF MOURNERS’.

(11) V. Keth. 7b and 8a and P.B. p. 299.

(12) Said by one of those present at table to the rest of the company.

(13) V. Lev. XXVII, 16-23.

(14) Relating to the synagogue.

(15) Lev. XXII, 32.

(16) Num. XVI, 21.

(17) Ibid. XIV, 27.

(18) The twelve spies without Joshua and Caleb; v. Sanh. 2a.

(19) V. B.B. 100b.

(20) Lit., ‘the way of the world’.
(21) ברכת רחבה A blessing of consolation pronounced in the open air on the mourners return from the burial; v. Keth., Sonc. ed. p. 41, n. 5.
(22) [To be omitted with MS.M. ‘R. Isaac said etc.’ beginning a new sentence v.Tosaf. s.v. ואמר].
(23) In Lev. XXVII, three times in connection with personal valuations v. 8, three in connection with the valuation of animals vv. 11-13, four with sanctification of property vv. 14, 18, 23; v. 21 is not included as the word priest is not mentioned there in connection with the act of ‘valuation’.
(24) These words are bracketed in the text.
(25) V. Sanh., Sonc. ed. p. 71 notes.
(26) The second mention adding an Israelite, the third going back to a priest, the fourth adding an Israelite and so on.
(27) Since all Israelite could not be sold in the market like a slave. (V. Tosaf.).
(28) Lev. XXV, 46.
(29) So that the translator (who had no book) should not become confused.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 24a

IN A PROPHET, HOWEVER, [HE MAY GIVE HIM] THREE AT A TIME.[1] IF THE THREE VERSES CONSTITUTE THREE SEPARATE PARAGRAPHS,[2] HE MUST READ THEM [TO THE TRANSLATOR] ONE BY ONE. THE READER MAY SKIP [FROM PLACE TO PLACE] IN A PROPHET BUT NOT IN THE TORAH. HOW FAR MAY HE SKIP? [ONLY] SO FAR THAT THE TRANSLATOR WILL NOT HAVE STOPPED[3] [BEFORE HE FINDS HIS PLACE].[4]

GEMARA. What do these three verses represent? — R. Assi said: The Pentateuch, the Prophets, and the Hagiographa.

HE SHOULD NOT READ TO THE TRANSLATOR MORE THAN ONE VERSE. IN A PROPHET, HOWEVER, HE MAY READ THREE. IF THE THREE VERSES CONSTITUTE THREE PARAGRAPHS, HE MUST READ THEM ONE BY ONE. For instance, [the three verses], For thus saith the Lord, ye were sold for nought; For thus saith the Lord God, my people went down aforetime to Egypt; Now therefore what do I here, saith the Lord.[5]

THE READER MAY SKIP IN A PROPHET BUT NOT IN THE TORAH. A contradiction was pointed out [between this and the following]: ‘He [the High Priest] reads [on the Day of Atonement] "after the death"[6] and "only on the tenth day".[7] But he is skipping? — Abaye replied: There is no contradiction; in the one case the translator will have come to a stop [before the place is found] in the other case he will not have come to a stop.[8] But it states in connection with this. THE READER MAY SKIP IN THE PROPHET BUT HE MAY NOT SKIP IN THE TORAH. AND HOW FAR MAY HE SKIP? SO FAR THAT THE TRANSLATOR WILL NOT HAVE STOPPED. From this we infer that in the Torah he may not skip at all? — The truth is, said Abaye, that there is no contradiction. In the one case [the reader deals] with one subject, in the other case with two; and in fact it has been taught: ‘The reader may skip in the Torah [provided he keeps] to one subject, and in a Prophet even if he goes on to another subject’; and in both cases only so far that the translator will not have stopped [before he finds the place]. It has been taught in another place: ‘The reader may not skip from one prophet to another. In the Twelve Minor Prophets he may skip,[9] provided only that he does not skip from the end of the book to the beginning.’[10]

MISHNAH. THE ONE WHO SAYS THE HAFTARAH FROM THE PROPHET REPEATS ALSO THE BLESSINGS BEFORE THE SHEMA’[11] AND PASSES BEFORE THE ARK[12] AND LIFTS UP HIS HANDS.[13] IF HE IS A CHILD,[14] HIS FATHER OR HIS TEACHER PASSES BEFORE THE ARK IN HIS PLACE. A CHILD MAY READ IN THE TORAH AND TRANSLATE, BUT HE MAY NOT PASS BEFORE THE ARK NOR LIFT UP HIS HANDS. A PERSON IN RAGS[15] MAY REPEAT THE BLESSINGS BEFORE THE SHEMA AND

TRANSLATE, BUT HE MAY NOT READ IN THE TORAH NOR PASS BEFORE THE ARK NOR LIFT UP HIS HANDS. A BLIND MAN MAY REPEAT THE BLESSINGS BEFORE THE SHEMA AND TRANSLATE. R. JUDAH SAYS: ONE WHO HAS NEVER SEEN THE LIGHT FROM HIS BIRTH MAY NOT RECITE THE BLESSINGS BEFORE THE SHEMA'.[16]

GEMARA. What is the reason [why the one who says the haftarah has this privilege]? — R. Papa said: As a mark of honour;[17] R. Shimi said: Because otherwise quarrels might arise.[18] What difference is there in practice between them? — There is a difference, in the case of one who reads gratis.[19]

We learn: IF HE IS A CHILD, HIS FATHER OR HIS TEACHER PASSES BEFORE THE ARK IN HIS PLACE. If now you say it is to avoid quarrels, will a child pick a quarrel? What then? It is a mark of respect? Does a child receive marks of respect? What you must say is, out of respect for his father and his teacher.

---

(1) Because if he makes a mistake, it does not matter so much.

(2) V. infra.

(3) Lit., 'so that the translator shall not (have to) pause'.

(4) I.e., he must not have much to unroll in the scroll.

(5) Isa. LII, 3, 4 and 5.

(6) Lev. XVI, 1ff.

(7) Ibid. XXIII, 26ff.

(8) Because the passages read by the High Priest are not far apart.

(9) As these were all written in one scroll,

(10) I.e., go backwards.

(11) V. supra. Sof. XIV, 8 refers this to the Shema' recited at the taking out of the law from the Ark; v. P.B. p. 145.

(12) To read the 'Amidah, and especially the kedushah.

(13) To say the priestly blessing. Why the maftir should have these privileges is not at all clear, and the 'lifting up of hands' certainly was the privilege of every priest. V. Rabbinowitz, op. cit. MS.M. omits: 'AND LIFTS UP HIS HANDS.

(14) Under thirteen.

(15) So that most of his body is exposed.

(16) Which include a prayer of thanksgiving for the creation of light.

(17) I.e., as a kind of reward for having consented to read the haftarah.

(18) Between persons eager to act as reader.

(19) In which case there will not be such competition for the honour, and so there is no need to give the one who says the haftarah priority.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 24b

So here too, there is the question of quarrels, involving him or his teacher.

A PERSON IN RAGS MAY REPEAT etc. 'Ulla b. Rab enquired of Abaye: Is a child in rags allowed to read in the Torah?[1] He replied: You might as well ask about a naked one. Why is one without any clothes not allowed? Out of respect for the congregation. So here, [he is not allowed] out of respect for the congregation.

A BLIND MAN MAY REPEAT THE BLESSINGS etc. It has been taught: They said to R. Judah: Many have discerned sufficiently [with their mind's eye] to expound the Chariot,[2] and yet they never saw it? — What says R. Judah to this? — There [he can reply], all depends on the discernment of the heart, and the expounder by concentrating his mind can know, but here one reads for the benefit which he derives therefrom,[3] and this one derives no benefit.[4] The Rabbis, however, hold that he does derive a benefit, for the reason given by R. Jose, as it has been taught: R. Jose said: I was long perplexed by this verse, And thou shalt grope at noonday as the blind gropeth in darkness.[5] Now what difference [I asked] does it make to a blind man whether it is dark or light? [Nor did I find the answer] until the following incident occurred. I was once walking on a pitch black night when I saw a blind man walking in the road with a torch in his hand. I said to him, My son, why do you carry this torch? He replied: As long as I have this torch in my hand, people see me and save me from the holes and the thorns and briars.[6]

MISHNAH. A PRIEST WHOSE HANDS ARE DEFORMED SHOULD NOT LIFT UP HIS HANDS [TO SAY THE PRIESTLY BLESSING]. R. JUDAH SAYS: ALSO ONE WHOSE HANDS ARE DISCOLOURED WITH WOAD[7] SHOULD NOT LIFT UP HIS HANDS, BECAUSE [THIS MAKES] THE CONGREGATION LOOK AT HIM.[8]

GEMARA. A Tanna stated: The deformities which were laid down [as disqualifying] are on the face, the hands and the feet.[9] R. Joshua b. Levi said: If his hands are spotted[10] he should not lift up his hands. It has been taught similarly: ‘If his hands are spotted, he should not lift up his hands. If they are curved inwards or bent sideways, he should not lift up his hands’.

R. Assi said: A priest from Haifa or Beth Shean[11] should not lift up his hands. It has been taught to the same effect: ‘We do not allow to pass before the ark either men from Beth Shean or from Haifa or from Tib'onim,[12] because they pronounce alif as ‘ayin and ‘ayin as alif’.[13]

Said R. Hiyya to R. Simeon b. Rabbi: If you were a Levite, you would not be qualified to chant,[14] because your voice is thick. He went and told his father who said to him: Go and say to him, When you come to the verse, And I will wait [we-hikethi] for the Lord,[15] will you not be a reviler and blasphemer?[16]

R. Huna said: A man whose eyes run should not lift up his hands. But was there not one in the neighbourhood of R. Huna who used to spread forth his hands? — The townspeople had become accustomed to him.[17] It has been taught to the same effect: ‘A man whose eyes run should not lift up his hands, but if the townspeople are accustomed to him, he is permitted’. R. Johanan said: A man blind in one eye should not lift up his hands. But was not there one in the neighbourhood of R. Johanan who used to lift up his hands? — The townspeople were accustomed to him. It has been taught to the same effect: ‘A man blind in one eye should not lift up his hands, but if the townspeople are accustomed to him, he is permitted’.

R. JUDAH SAYS: A MAN WHOSE HANDS ARE DISCOLOURED SHOULD NOT LIFT UP HIS HANDS. A Tanna stated: If most of the men of the town follow the same occupation it is permitted.

MISHNAH. IF ONE SAYS, I WILL NOT PASS BEFORE THE ARK [TO ACT AS READER] IN COLOURED ROBES, HE MUST NOT PASS BEFORE IT IN WHITE ROBES EITHER. [IF HE SAYS], I WILL NOT PASS BEFORE IT IN SHOES, HE MUST NOT PASS BEFORE IT BAREFOOT EITHER. A PHYLACTERY [FOR THE HEAD] WHICH IS MADE ROUND[18] IS DANGEROUS[19] AND HAS NO RELIGIOUS VALUE. TO PUT THEM ON THE FOREHEAD OR ON THE PALM OF THE HAND[20] IN THE MANNER OF THE HERESY,[21] TO OVERLAY THEM WITH GOLD OR PUT [THE ONE FOR THE HAND] ON ONE'S SLEEVE IS THE MANNER OF THE OUTSIDERS.[22]

GEMARA. [IN COLOURED ROBES]. What is the reason [why he must not act as reader]? We are apprehensive that he has a leaning towards minuth.[23]

TO MAKE ONE'S PHYLACTERY ROUND IS DANGEROUS AND HAS NO RELIGIOUS

VALUE. May we say that our Mishnah teaches here the same as our Rabbis taught: ‘That phylacteries should be square is a law set down by Moses at Sinai’, and Raba explained [this to mean] in their seam and in their diagonal?[24] — R. Papa said: The Mishnah is speaking only of those which are made as round as a nut.[25]

MISHNAH. IF ONE SAYS

---

(1) A child not being forbidden to expose himself.

(2) The first chapter of Ezekiel.

(3) Viz., the light.

(4) He does not enjoy the benefit of light.

(5) Deut. XXVIII, 29.

(6) So although blind, he does benefit by the light.

(7) [Var. lec. add: ‘or madder’, a red dye].

(8) And it is forbidden to look at the priests while saying the blessing, v. Hag. 16.

(9) The priest said the blessing barefoot, v. Sot. 40a.

(10) With white pustules. The deformity apparently is the same as that referred to in Lev. XIII, 39.

(11) Towns in Palestine.

(12) More correctly Tibe'on, perhaps the same as modern Tubun, W. of Sephoris.

(13) V. Glos.

(14) Lit., ‘for the platform’, on which the Levites stood while chanting.

(15) Isa. VIII, 17.

(16) Because he could not pronounce a heth and would say we-hikethi, which would mean ‘And I shall smite’.

(17) Lit. ‘he had become familiar to the townspeople’.

(18) Instead of cube-shaped.

(19) [The capsule might penetrate his head during prostration at tahanun (supra p. 135 n. 6). V. Rashi and R. Hananel]. R. Tam takes this to mean that it will not avail him in time of danger. V. Shab. 49a.

(20) According to the literal meaning of the text, and thou shalt bind them for a sign upon thy hand and they shall be phylacteries between thine eyes. Deut. VI, 8.

(21) Minuth (v. Glos. s.v. Min) Maim.: Sadducees. The reading ‘Karaites’ in some texts is a censor's variant.

(22) This term apparently designates persons who followed the Rabbis only partially. According to the Rabbis, the phylacteries had to be made wholly of the skin of a clean animal and to be placed directly on the flesh.

(23) Probably Judeo-Christianity, the Christians being particular about this. For other suggestions v. Rabbinowitz, op. cit. a.l.

(24) Apparently this means ‘both in their base and in their height’.

(25) But the shape of an egg or of a bean might be permitted (Rashi).

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 25a

‘MAY THE GOOD BLESS THEE’, THIS IS A CUSTOM OF HERESY.[1] [IF HE SAYS], ‘MAY THY MERCIES REACH THE NEST OF A BIRD’, ‘MAY THY NAME BE MENTIONED FOR WELL-DOING’, ‘WE GIVE THANKS, WE GIVE THANKS’,[2] HE IS SILENCED. IF HE INTRODUCES EUPHEMISMS INTO THE PORTION DEALING WITH FORBIDDEN MARRIAGES,[3] HE IS SILENCED. IF HE SAYS, [INSTEAD OF] ‘AND THOU SHALT NOT GIVE ANY OF THY SEED TO SET THEM APART TO MOLOCH’, ‘THOU SHALT NOT GIVE TO TRANSFER IT TO A GENTILE WOMAN’,[4] HE IS BOTH SILENCED AND REBUKED.[5]

GEMARA. We understand the prohibition of saying ‘WE GIVE THANKS, WE GIVE THANKS’, because he seems to be addressing two Powers;[6] also of ‘THY NAME BE MENTIONED FOR WELL-DOING’, because this implies, for good, yes, for evil, no, and we have learnt, ‘It is the duty of a man to bless [God] for evil in the same way as he blesses for good’.[7] But what is the reason for prohibiting, ‘MAY THY MERCIES REACH THE NEST OF A BIRD’?[8] —

Different answers were given by two Amoraim in the West [Palestine], R. Jose b. Abin and R. Jose b. Zebida. One said, it is because he creates jealousy in the work of the creation,[9] and the other says it is because he makes the commands[10] of the Holy One, blessed be He, acts of grace, whereas they are only decrees.[11] A certain man went down [before the ark] in the presence of Rabbah and said, ‘Thou hast shown pity to the nest of a bird, do thou have pity and mercy on us’; (Thou hast shown pity to an animal and its young,[12] do thou have pity and mercy on us). Said Rabbah: How well this Rabbi knows how to placate his Master! Said Abaye to him: But we have learnt, HE IS SILENCED? — Rabbah only wanted to sharpen Abaye's wits.

A certain [reader] went down before the ark in the presence of R. Hanina and said, ‘The great, the mighty, the terrible, the majestic, the strong, the powerful God’. He said to him: Have you finished the praises of your Master? Even the first three, had it not been that Moses wrote them in the Law[13] and the Men of the Great Synagogue came and ordained them,[14] we should not recite; and you say all this! It is as if a man had thousands of thousands of denarii of gold and people to praise his wealth would say he had a thousand. Would it not be an insult to him?

R. Hanina said: Everything is in the hands of heaven except the fear of heaven[15] as it says, And now, Israel, what doth the Lord thy God ask of thee but to fear.[16] Are we to infer from this that fear is a small thing? — Yes; for Moses our teacher it was a small thing. In the same way, if a man is asked for a big article and he has it, it seems to him only small, but if he is asked for a small article and he has it not, it seems big to him.

R. Zera said: For one to say, ‘Hear, Hear’,[17] is like saying, ‘We give thanks, we give thanks’. The following was cited in objection to this: ‘He who recites the Shema’ and repeats is reprehensible’. He is only reprehensible, but we do not silence him? — There is no contradiction. In the one case we suppose he repeats each word as he says it,[18] in the other that he repeats a whole sentence.[19] Said R. Papa to him: But perhaps [the reason why he repeats] is because at first he was not thinking of what he said, and now he does think? — He replied: Is he to treat heaven like an ordinary acquaintance?[20] If he does not think of what he is saying, I will hit him with a hammer till he does think.

IF HE INTRODUCES EUPHEMISMS INTO THE PASSAGE DEALING WITH FORBIDDEN MARRIAGES, HE IS SILENCED. R. Joseph learned: [If, for example, he says] ‘the shame of his father, the shame of his mother’.[21]

IF ONE SAYS, AND THOU SHALT NOT GIVE ANY OF THY SEED TO SET THEM APART etc. In the school of R. Ishmael it was stated: The text speaks of an Israelite who has intercourse with a Cuthean woman and begets from her a son for idolatry.[22]

MISHNAH. THE INCIDENT OF REUBEN IS READ IN SYNAGOGUE BUT NOT TRANSLATED.[23] THE STORY OF TAMAR[24] IS READ AND TRANSLATED. THE FIRST ACCOUNT OF THE INCIDENT OF THE GOLDEN CALF[25] IS BOTH READ AND TRANSLATED, THE SECOND[26] IS READ BUT NOT TRANSLATED. THE BLESSING OF THE PRIESTS[27] IS READ BUT NOT TRANSLATED. THE STORIES OF DAVID[28] AND AMNON[29] ARE READ BUT NOT TRANSLATED. THE PORTION OF THE CHARIOT[30] IS NOT READ AS A HAFTARAH, BUT R. JUDAH PERMITS THIS. R. ELEAZAR SAYS: THE PORTION, MAKE KNOWN TO JERUSALEM’,[31] IS NOT READ AS A HAFTARAH.

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: Some portions [of the Scripture] are both read and translated, some are read but not translated, [and some are neither read nor translated].[32] The following are both read and translated: (Mnemonic: B'L'T’ ‘E'K'N’ N'SH'P'H’).[33] The account of the creation[34] is both read and translated. Certainly! — You might think that [through hearing it] people are led to inquire what is above and what is below,

---

(1) Minuth (v. supra note 4); implying that only the good are invited to bless God (Rashi).
(2) In the ‘Amidah prayer.
(3) Lev, ch. XVIII.
(4) I.e., beget children from a Gentile woman. Aliter: ‘To render pregnant a Gentile woman’. Either version is a departure from the text which is an injunction against Moloch worship. [Aruch (s.v. ארם): ‘Thou shalt not give any of thy seed to the Arameans to set them apart to Moloch’, implying that the prohibition applies only to the Moloch worship of a particular nation. Albeck Ch., Bericht Hochschule, Berlin 1930 p. 55 renders it: thou shalt not give thy seed to pass to heathendom, viz., to introduce them to the knowledge of heathen culture and custom.]
(5) All this is explained in the Gemara.
(6) V. Ber. 54a.
(7) [The dualism of the Persians — the god of darkness and of light.]
(8) With reference to the prohibition of taking both a bird and its nestlings. Deut. XXII, 6. 7.
(9) As though God had mercy on birds and not on beasts.
(10) Lit., ‘his attributes’. [Herford sees in this a protest against the Pauline antithesis of Law and Grace, v. Christianity in Talmud and Midrash pp. 202ff.]
(11) Which must be obeyed whether they are merciful or not.
(12) V. Lev. XXII, 28. This sentence is bracketed in the text.
(13) Deut. X, 17.
(14) V. Neh. IX, 32.
(15) It is left to the free choice of man whether to be Godfearing or not.
(16) Deut. X, 12.
(17) In reciting the Shema’.
(18) I.e., he says, ‘Hear, hear, Israel, Israel’ which is only a stupidity.
(19) I.e., he says, ‘We give thanks to thee, we give thanks to thee’, as if he were addressing two Powers.
(20) Lit., ‘Intimacy towards heaven!’
(21) From prudery, instead of ‘the nakedness’; Lev. XVIII, 7. [Maim: instead ‘of thy father’, ‘of thy mother’].
(22) Cf. Pseudo-Jonathan a.l. Apparently this is in flat contradiction with the Mishnah. Possibly R. Ishmael means to explain the words of the Mishnah which are somewhat obscure (Rashi). [According to Aruch's and Albeck's explanations (v. p. 149, n. 3) the Mishnah does not denounce R. Ishmael's version.]
(23) Gen. XXXV, 22.
(24) Ibid. XXXVIII.
(25) Ex. XXXII, 1-20.
(26) Ibid. 21-25. (So Maim).
(27) Num. VI, 24-27.
(28) II Sam. XI, 2-17.
(29) Ibid. XIII, 1-4.
(30) Ezek. I and X.
(31) Ibid. XVI.
(32) Wilna Gaon omits the words in brackets.
(33) B = Bereshith (creation); L = Lot; T = Tamar;E= ‘Egel (Calf); K = Kelaloth (curses); N = ‘Oneshin (penalties); N = Amnon; Sh =Abshalom, P = Pilegesh (concubine); H =hoda’ (make known).
(34) Gen. I.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 25b

and what is before and what is after.[1] Therefore we are told [that this is no objection]. The story of Lot and his two daughters[2] is both read and translated. Certainly! — You might think that [we should forbear] out of respect for Abraham. Therefore we are told [that this is no objection]. The story of Tamar and Judah is both read and translated. Certainly! — We might think that [we should forbear] out of respect for Judah. Therefore we are told [that this is no objection]; [the passage] really redounds to his credit, because [it records that] he confessed.[3] The first account of the making of the Calf is both read and translated. Certainly! — You might think that [we should forbear] out of respect for Israel. Therefore we are told [that this is no objection]; on the contrary, it is agreeable to them,[4] because it was followed by atonement.[5] The curses and blessings[6] are both read and translated. Certainly! — You might think that [we should forbear] lest the congregation should become disheartened; therefore we are told [that this is no objection]. Warnings and penalties are both read and translated. Certainly! — You might think that [we should forbear] for fear that they may come to keep the commandments out of fear;[7] therefore we are told [that this is no objection]. The story of Amnon and Tamar is both read and translated. Certainly! — You might think that [we should forbear] out of respect for David. Therefore we are told [that this is no objection]. The story of the concubine in Gibea[8] is both read and translated. Certainly! — You might think [that we should forbear] out of respect for Benjamin. Therefore we are told [that this is no objection]. The passage commencing 'Make known to Jerusalem her abominations' is both read and translated. Certainly! — This is stated to exclude the view of R. Eleazar, as it has been taught: 'On one occasion a man read in the presence[9] of R. Eleazar 'Make known to Jerusalem her abominations'. He said to him, While you are investigating the abominations of Jerusalem, go and investigate the abominations of your own mother. Inquiries were made into his birth, and he was found to be illegitimate.

Mnemonic: R'E'B'D'N').[10] The incident of Reuben is read but not translated. On one occasion R. Hanina b. Gamaliel went to Kabul,[11] and the reader of the congregation read, 'And it came to pass when Israel abode',[12] and he said to the translator, Translate only the latter part of the verse, and the Sages commended his action. The second account of the Calf is read but not translated. What is the second account of the Calf? — From 'And Moses said' up to 'and Moses saw'.[13] It has been taught: A man should always be careful in wording his answers, because on the ground of the answer which Aaron made to Moses the unbelievers were able to deny [God], as it says, And I cast it into the fire and this calf came forth.[14]

The priestly blessing is read but not translated. What is the reason? — Because it contains the words, May he lift up.[15]

The accounts of David and Amnon are neither read nor translated.[16] But you just said that the story of Amnon and Tamar is both read and translated? — There is no contradiction; the former statement refers to where it says 'Amnon son of David',[17] the latter to where it says 'Amnon' simply.

Our Rabbis taught: Wherever an indelicate expression is written in the text, we substitute a more polite one in reading.[18] [Thus for] yishgalenah[19] [we read] yishkabenah;[20] [for] ba'apolim[21] [we read] ba-tehorim;[22] [for] hiryonim[23] [we read] dibyonim;[24] [for] le-ekol eth horehem we-lishtoth eth meme shinehem[25] [we read] le-ekol eth zo'atham we-lishtoth eth meme raglehem;[26] [for] la-mahara'oth[27] [we read] lemoza'oth.[28] R. Joshua b. Korha, however, says that the actual word la-mahara'oth[27] [is read] because it is a term of opprobrium for idolatry. R. Nahman said: All gibing[29] is forbidden save gibing at idolatry, which is permitted, as it is written, Bel boweth down, Nebo stoopeth[30] and the text goes on, They stoop, they bow down together, they cannot deliver the burden, etc. R. Jannai learns the same lesson from here: The inhabitants of Samaria shall be in dread for the calves of Beth Aven, for the people thereof shall mourn over it and the Priests thereof shall tremble for it, for its glory, because it is departed from it.[31] Read not 'its glory' [kebodo], but 'its burden' [kebedo]. R. Huna b. Manoah said in the name of R. Aha the son of R. Ika: It is permitted to an Israelite to say to a Cuthean, Take your idol and put it in your shin tof.[32] R. Ashi said: It is permissible to abuse a person of ill fame[33] with the term gimel shin.[34] It is permissible to praise a person of good report and if one does praise him, 'blessings shall rest upon his head'.

CHAPTER IV

MISHNAH. IF THE TOWNSPEOPLE[35] SELL THE TOWN SQUARE,[36] THEY MAY BUY WITH THE PROCEEDS A SYNAGOGUE;[37] [IF THEY SELL] A SYNAGOGUE, THEY MAY BUY WITH THE PROCEEDS AN ARK;[38] [IF THEY SELL] AN ARK THEY MAY BUY WRAPPINGS [FOR SCROLLS]; [IF THEY SELL] WRAPPINGS

---

(1) I.e., before the creation and after the end of the world. Cf. Hag. 11b.

(2) Gen. XIX, 31-38.

(3) Ibid. XXXVIII, 26.

(4) To have the story recounted.

(5) [MS.M. so that there may be (by the recounting of the lapse) an atonement unto them].

(6) Lev. XXVI; Deut. XXVII.

(7) Rashi apparently makes this the reason for reading the curses and blessings, and reads ‘out of love and fear’, i.e., desire for the blessings and fear of the curses, while he transfers to this place the clause in the previous sentence, ‘lest the congregation should become disheartened’. But. v. Maharsha.

(8) Jud. XIX, XX.

(9) [Lit., ‘above’, the reader in public occupying a raised position].

(10) R = Reuben; E= ‘Egel (calf); B = berakah (blessing); D = David; N = Amnon.

(11) S.E. of Akko.

(12) Gen. XXXV, 22.

(13) Ex. XXXII, 21-25.

(14) Which seems to be an admission that the calf had divine powers.

(15) Which seems to imply favouritism for Israel.

(16) According to R. Bezalel Ronsburg, the proper reading is ‘The accounts of David and Amnon are read but not translated’.

(17) I.e. the first verse of the chapter.

(18) Lit., ‘wherever the text is written indelicately, we read it delicately’.

(19) ישגלנה ‘ravish’.

(20) ישכבנה. Deut. XXVIII, 30. E.V. ‘shall lie with her’.

(21) בעפולים ‘posteriors’.

(22) בטחורים I Sam. V, 5. E.V. ‘emerods’.

(23) חריונים ‘dove's dungs’. So E.V.

(24) דביונים II Kings VI, 25. E.V. ‘decayed leaves’.

(25) חוריהםץץץמימי שיניהם ‘excrement . . . urine.

(26) צואתםץץץמימי רגליהם Ibid. XVIII, 27. E.V. ‘deposit . . . water of his feet’

(27) למחראות ‘privies’.

(28) למוצאות Ibid. X, 27, ‘retreats’. E.V. ‘draughthouse’.

(29) The reference apparently is to obscenity.

(30) Isa. XLVI, 1.

(31) Hos. X, 5.

(32) שת. Fundament.

(33) I.e., suspected of adultery.

(34) According to Rashi, = gala shaita (adulterer, madman). Another reading is beth gimel = bar girtha (son of a harlot).

(35) Lit., ‘sons of the town’: probably the general assembly of residents of over twelve months’ standing. V. Rabbinowitz, op. cit.

(36) Lit., ‘broad place’. Where at times religious ceremonies were performed.

(37) On the principle that we may use for a more holy purpose but not for a less holy’; and so with the rest.

(38) In which to place the Scrolls of the Law.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 26a

THEY MAY BUY SCROLLS;[1] [IF THEY SELL] SCROLLS THEY MAY BUY A [SEFER] TORAH. BUT IF THEY SELL A [SEFER] TORAH THEY MAY NOT BUY WITH THE

PROCEEDS SCROLLS; IF [THEY SELL] SCROLLS THEY MAY NOT BUY WRAPPINGS; IF [THEY SELL] WRAPPINGS THEY MAY NOT BUY AN ARK; IF [THEY SELL] AN ARK THEY MAY NOT BUY A SYNAGOGUE; IF [THEY SELL] A SYNAGOGUE THEY MAY NOT BUY A TOWN SQUARE. THE SAME APPLIES TO ANY MONEY LEFT OVER.[2]

GEMARA. IF THE TOWNSPEOPLE SELL THE TOWN SQUARE. Rabbah b. Bar Hanah said in the name of R. Johanan: This is the view of R. Menahem b. Jose the anonymous author,[3] but the Sages say that no sanctity attaches to the square. What is the reason of R. Menahem b. Jose? — Because the people pray in it on fast days[4] and at gatherings of the ma'amad.[5] What say the Rabbis to this? — That happens only exceptionally. IF [THEY SELL] THE SYNAGOGUE THEY MAY BUY AN ARK. R. Samuel b. Nahmani said in the name of R. Jonathan: This rule applies only to a synagogue in a village, but a synagogue in a large town, since people from all parts come to it,[6] may not be sold, it being regarded as belonging to a wider public. Said R. Ashi: As for this synagogue in Matha Mehasia,[7] although people come to it from all parts, since they come at my discretion,[8] I can if I like sell it. An objection was raised: ‘R. Judah says: It is recorded of the synagogue of the coppersmiths[9] in Jerusalem that they sold it to R. Eliezer and he used it for his own purposes’. And yet that was one in a large town? — That was a very small synagogue, and they themselves had made it.

The following was further raised in objection: ‘In a house of the land of your possession:[10] your possession is defiled by leprosy, but Jerusalem is not defiled by leprosy’.[11] R. Judah said: I have not heard this laid down save with respect to the area of the Sanctuary alone. We thus see that [according to R. Judah] synagogues and houses of study are defiled; and yet why [according to you] should this be, seeing that they belong to the town?[12] — I would emend [the above statement to read]: ‘R. Judah says: I have not heard this rule laid down save in relation to a sanctified place only’.[13]

On what point do these [two authorities] join issue? — The First Tanna is of opinion that Jerusalem was not apportioned to [any of] the tribes,[14] while R. Judah was of opinion that it was apportioned to [certain of] the tribes; and their difference is the same as that of the following Tannaim, as it has been taught: What [part of Jerusalem] was in the portion of Judah?[15] The Temple mountain,[16] the priestly chambers,[17] and the courts.[18] And what was in the portion of Benjamin? The hall[19] and the sanctuary[20] and the holy of holies.[21] A strip projected from the portion of Judah into the portion of Benjamin, and in it the altar [of sacrifice] was built, and every day the righteous Benjamin fretted over it, desiring to swallow it up, as it says, Crouching over it all the day.[22] Therefore Benjamin was privileged to become the host of the Shechinah’.[23] The following Tanna, however, held that Jerusalem was not apportioned to any of the tribes, as it has been taught: ‘People cannot let out houses[24] in Jerusalem as they do not belong to them. R. Eleazar b. Zadok says: They may not hire out beds either.[25] Therefore householders [who took in guests] would seize the skins of [visitors’] sacrifices forcibly’.[26] Abaye remarked: We may see from this that it is good manners for a man to leave his [empty] wine-flask and his skin-rug at his guest-house.

Raba said: This rule[27] was meant to apply only where the seven ‘good men’ of the town[28] did not sell in the assembly of the townspeople. But if the seven ‘good men’ of the town sold in the assembly of the townspeople, even

---

(1) Of the Scriptural books other than the Pentateuch.

(2) From any of these purchases.

(3) I.e., whose opinions are usually quoted without mention of his name. Cf. supra p. 4, n. 1.

(4) V. Ta'an. 15a. Apparently the square was usually in front of the synagogue.

(5) V. Glos. The ma'amad did not in fact pray in the square but in the synagogue, and this word is omitted by many authorities, v. Rashi.

(6) And are regarded as having contributed to it, or may actually have contributed to it.

(7) A suburb of Sura.

(8) I.e., since they have contributed on condition that I may do as I please with the money (Tosaf.). Cf. B.B. 3b.

(9) טורסיים(Tarsians), or 'filigree workers'. [We find a synagogue of Tarsians also in Tiberias and Lydda, and in Krauss, Synagogale Altertumer, p. 201, they are identical with the synagogue of Alexandrians (cf. the parallel passage in the Jerusalem Talmud Megillah III, 1) who had brought over with them to Palestine the industry in Tarsian carpets — an industry which flourished greatly in Egypt; v. also T.A. II, 625].

(10) Lev. XIV, 34; of leprosy of houses.

(11) V. infra.

(12) And so cannot be called 'your possession'. (V. Tosaf. s.v. ואמאי).

(13) Including also synagogues and houses of study.

(14) But remained the possession of all of them jointly.

(15) Jerusalem was on the border between the territories of Judah and Benjamin.

(16) On the east of the city.

(17) The rooms used by the priests for various purposes.

(18) The Court of Women, the Israelites' Court, and the Priests' Court.

(19) Ulam. Leading to the interior of the Temple.

(20) Containing the candlestick and table and altar of incense.

(21) Containing the Ark.

(22) As if to swallow it. Deut. XXXIII, 12. E. V. 'He covereth him all the day'.

(23) Through the Holy of Holies. V. Yoma 12a.

(24) To the pilgrims who come to Jerusalem for the three Festivals (Rashi).

(25) Because the ground on which they rested did not belong to them (Tosaf).

(26) In lieu of payment for lodging.

(27) That the proceeds of the sale could not be used for purchasing something less holy, and that the thing sold itself retained its holiness.

(28) Seven men who acted as representatives of the town in communal matters — optimates.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 26b

if it was for a drinking place,[1] the transaction holds good. Rabina had the ground of a dismantled synagogue. He applied to R. Ashi to know whether he could plant seeds there. He replied: Go and buy it from the seven 'good men' of the town in the assembly of the townspeople, and you may then sow it.

Rami b. Abba was building a synagogue. There was a certain old synagogue which he wanted to pull down, so as to take bricks and beams from it and use them for the other. He was doubtful, however, how to interpret the dictum of R. Hisda; for R. Hisda[2] said: A man should not pull down a synagogue until he has built another [to take its place]. The reason there, [he knew] was so that there should be no negligence.[3] But what was the rule in such a case as this?[4] He applied to R. Papa, who forbade him; to R. Huna, and he also forbade him.

Raba said: A synagogue may be exchanged or sold [for secular purposes], but may not be hired or pledged. What is the reason?

[In the latter case] its holiness is still adhering to it.[5] Its bricks also, may be exchanged or sold [for secular purposes], but not lent. This rule applies only to old ones,[6] but in the case of new ones there is no objection.[7] And even if we adopt the view that the mere intention [to use a thing for a certain purpose] has a certain force, this would be the case, for instance, with one who weaves a shroud for a dead body,[8] but in this case [the objects in question] are like thread which has still to be woven into cloth, and no authority says [that in such a case there is force in mere intention].

[With regard to a synagogue which has been made] a gift, there is a difference of opinion between

R. Aha and Rabina, one forbidding [it to be used for secular purposes] and one permitting. The one who forbade did so on the ground that there is nothing to which its holiness is transferred,[9] while the one who permitted it argued that if he [the giver] did not derive some benefit from the act[10] he would not give it, so that in the end the gift is equivalent to a sale.

Our Rabbis taught: ‘Accessories of religious observances [when disused] are to be thrown away; accessories of holiness are to be stored away. The following are accessories of religious observances: a sukkah, a lulab, a shofar,[11] fringes. The following are accessories of holiness: large sacks for keeping scrolls of the Scripture in, tefillin and mezuzoth,[11] a mantle for a sefer torah,[11] and a tefillin bag and tefillin straps’. Raba said: At first I used to think that the stand [on which the sefer torah is placed] is an accessory to an accessory and that it is permitted.[12] When, however, I saw that the sefer torah is placed actually on it,[13] I came to the conclusion that it is all accessory of holiness and is forbidden. Raba further said: At first I used to think that the curtain[14] is an accessory of an accessory. When, however, I observed that it is folded over and a scroll is placed on it, I came to the conclusion that it is itself an accessory of holiness, and forbidden.

Raba further said: When an ark is falling asunder, to make it into a smaller ark is permitted, but to make it into a stand[15] is forbidden. Raba further said: When a curtain is worn out, to make it into a mantle for a [whole] scroll of the Law is permitted, but for a single humash[11] is forbidden. Raba further said: These bags for humashim and boxes for scrolls[16] are accessories of holiness and must be stored away [when disused]. Is not this obvious? — You might think that these are used not out of respect [for the scrolls] but merely for protection. Therefore we are told [that this is not so].

There was a synagogue of the Roman Jews[17] which opened out into a room where a dead body was deposited.[18] The kohanim[19] wanted to go in there to pray, and they came and asked Raba [what they should do]. He said: Take the ark and put it down there,[20] since it is a wooden vessel which is meant to be stationary, and every wooden vessel which is meant to be stationary is immune from defilement and forms a partition to prevent the passage of defilement. Said the Rabbis to Raba: But sometimes it is moved while a scroll of the law is resting on it, and thus it becomes a vessel which is moved both when full and when empty? If that is so [he said], there is no remedy.

Mar Zutra said: Wrappings of scrolls which are worn out may be used for making shrouds for a meth mizwah;[21] and this act constitutes their ‘storing away’.

Raba also said: A scroll of the law which is worn out may be buried by the side of a talmid hakam,[19] even though he be one who only repeats halachoth.[22] R. Aha b. Jacob said: It should be put in an earthenware vessel, as it says, And put them in an earthen vessel that they may continue many days.[23]

R. Papi said in the name of Raba: To turn a synagogue into a college[24] is permitted; to turn a college into a synagogue is forbidden. R. Papa, however, also reporting Raba, states the opposite. R. Aha said:

---

(1) Bah. adds: ‘or for spreading out fruit’.

(2) B.B. 3b.

(3) To build the new one after the old one had been pulled down.

(4) Where the object of pulling down the old one was to obtain building material for the new one.

(5) But if it is sold or exchanged, its holiness is transferred to the money or to its equivalent.

(6) I.e., bricks in an old synagogue.

(7) Because they have not yet become holy.

(8) The shroud being ready for use for the purpose for which it is intended.

(9) Lit., ‘(asked) to what is its holiness transferred’, reading במאי with Alfasi; or, ‘why should its holiness be lost’, reading אמאי with Asheri; cur. edd. בהאי ‘with this’.

(10) I.e., receive some return from the recipient, which acquires the sanctity of the synagogue.

(11) V. Glos.

(12) ‘To use it for secular purposes when it is worn out’.

(13) And not on a cloth spread over it.

(14) Hung over the Ark in synagogue.

(15) On which to place the sefer torah when read.

(16) Of the Prophets or Hagiographa.

(17) יהודאי רומאי. Who had settled in Mahuza (Rashi). Probably Syrian Jews are meant, not Roman. [Obermeyer (p. 179): Jews of Rumae, the Persian Rumakan, near Mahuza, the seat of Raba].

(18) Before being taken to the cemetery, and its uncleanness spread from the room to the synagogue. V. B.B. 20a.

(19) V. Glos.

(20) Just between the room and the synagogue.

(21) Lit., ‘an obligatory corpse’: a dead body found by the wayside which it is obligatory on passers-by to bury if the relatives cannot be found; v. Glos.

(22) I.e., he knew only Mishnahs and Baraithas, not the Gemara also (Rashi).

(23) Jer. XXXII, 14.

(24) Lit., ‘House of Rabbis’.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 27a

The statement of R. Papi is the more probable, since R. Joshua b. Levi said: It is permissible to make a synagogue into a beth hamidrash. This seems conclusive.

Bar Kappara gave the following exposition. ‘What is the meaning of the verse, And he burnt the house of the Lord and the king's house and all the houses of Jerusalem even every great man's house burnt he with fire?[1] ‘The house of the Lord’: this is the Temple. ‘The king's house’: this is the royal palace. ‘All the houses of Jerusalem’: literally. ‘Even every great man's house burnt he with fire’:[2] R. Johanan and R. Joshua b. Levi gave different interpretations of this. One said, it means the place where the Torah is magnified; the other, the place where a prayer is magnified. The one who says Torah bases himself on the verse, The Lord was pleased, for his righteousness’ sake to make the torah great and glorious.[3] The one who says prayer bases himself on the verse, Tell me, I pray thee, the great things that Elisha has done;[4] and what Elisha did, he did by means of prayer. It may be presumed that it was R. Joshua b. Levi who said, ‘the place where Torah is magnified’, since R. Joshua b. Levi said that a synagogue may be turned into a beth ha-midrash; which is a clear indication.

BUT IF THEY SELL A [SEFER] TORAH THEY MAY NOT BUY SCROLLS. The question was raised: What is the rule about selling an old sefer torah to buy a new one? Do we say that since we do not thus go to higher grade [in the use of the money] it is forbidden, or are we to say that since there is no higher grade to go to, there is no objection? Come and hear: BUT IF THEY SELL, A [SEFER] TORAH THEY MAY NOT BUY SCROLLS; it is scrolls that they may not buy, but to buy a [sefer] torah with the money of a [sefer] torah is unobjectionable! [No.] But the Mishnah speaks of some thing already done, we ask whether it may be done in the first instance? — Come and hear: A sefer torah may be rolled up in the wrappings of a humash, or a humash in the wrappings of a scroll of prophets and hagiographa, but prophets and hagiographa may not be rolled up in the wrappings of a humash, nor a humash in the wrappings of a sefer torah.[5] Now it states here at any rate that a sefer torah may be rolled up in the wrappings of a humash; [as much as to say], in the wrappings of a humash it may be, but in those of [another] sefer torah it may not be?[6] — Look at the succeeding clause: ‘But a humash may not be rolled up in the wrappings of a sefer torah’, which would imply that there is no objection against wrapping a sefer torah in those of another sefer torah? — The fact is that from this statement no conclusion can be drawn.

Come and hear: 'A [sefer] torah may be laid on another [sefer] torah, and a [sefer] torah on separate humashim, and separate humashim on scrolls of the prophets and hagiographa, but scrolls of the prophets and hagiographa may not be placed on humashim, nor humashim on a [sefer] torah'! — You speak here of laying; laying is different, because it is impossible to avoid it; for if you do not suppose this, [we may ask,] how are we allowed to roll up the scrolls, seeing that in so doing we lay one sheet on another? The fact is that since this cannot be avoided,it is permitted; and so here also, since it cannot be avoided,[7] it is permitted.

Come and hear, since Rabbah b. Bar Hanah said in the name of R. Johanan, who had it from Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel: A man should not sell an old [sefer] torah in order to buy a new one with the proceeds! — There the reason is lest he should [afterwards] neglect to do so; here we speak of a case where the new one is written and waiting to be paid for. What is the rule [in such a case]? — Come and hear, since R. Johanan said in the name of R. Meir: A man should not sell a sefer torah save in order to study the Torah and to marry a wife. From this we may conclude [may we not] that there is no objection against buying one sefer torah with the proceeds of another? — Perhaps study comes under a different rule, since study leads on to practice. Marrying also [is permitted because it says], He created it not a waste, he formed it to be inhabited,'[8] but to buy a sefer torah with the proceeds of another is still not permitted.

Come and hear: 'A man should not sell a sefer torah even though he does not require it. Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel went further and said: Even if a man has no food and he sells a sefer torah or his daughter, he will never have any luck[9] [from that money]'.

THE SAME APPLIES TO ANY MONEY LEFT OVER. Raba said: This is the rule only if they had money left over from a sale; but if they had money left over from a collection, it is permitted [to use it for any purpose]. Abaye cited the following in objection to this: 'When does this rule apply? If they made no stipulation; but if they made a stipulation, they may even give it to the duchsusia'.[10] Now how are we to understand this? Shall we say that they [the seven good men] sold [a holy article] and had money left over [after purchasing a new one]? Then even if they made a stipulation [that they could do what they liked with it], what does it avail?[11] We must say therefore that they collected money and had some left over, and the reason is given that 'they made a stipulation', but if they made no stipulation they cannot? — I still maintain that [what is meant is] that they sold and had something left, and the statement should run thus: 'When does this rule apply? When the seven "good men" of the town did not make any stipulation in the assembly of the townspeople; but if the seven good men of the town made a stipulation in the assembly of the townspeople, it may be used even for paying a duchsusia'.

Abaye said to a Rabbinical student who used to repeat[12] the Mishnah in the presence of R. Shesheth: Have you ever heard from R. Shesheth what is meant by duchsusia? — He replied: This is what R. Shesheth said: The town horseman.[13] Abaye thereupon observed: This shows that a Rabbinical student who has heard something of which he does not know the meaning should ask one who is frequently in the company of the Rabbis, since he is almost certain to have heard the answer from some great man.

R. Johanan said in the name of R. Meir: If the representatives of one town[14] go [on a visit] to another town and they are there rated for a charity contribution, they should pay it and on leaving they should bring the money with them[15] to assist with it the poor of their own town. It has been taught to the same effect: 'If the men of one town go to another town and are there rated for a charity contribution, they should pay it, and when they leave they should bring the money back with them. If an individual, however, goes to another town and is there rated for a charity contribution, it is given to the poor of that town

R. Huna once proclaimed a fast day. R. Hana b. Hanilai and all the [leading] men of his place happened to visit him [on that day], and they were called upon for a charity contribution, and they gave it. When they were about to leave, they said to him [R. Huna], Kindly return it to us so that we may go and assist with it the poor of our own town. He replied to them: We have learnt: 'When does this rule apply? When there is no

---

(1) II Kings XXV, 9.

(2) These words are apparently superfluous and therefore lend themselves to a homiletical exposition.

(3) Isa. XLII, 21.

(4) II Kings VIII, 4.

(5) Because this brings the wrappings to a lower stage of holiness.

(6) And we infer that similarly one sefer torah may not be bought from the proceeds of another.

(7) In point of fact it is now avoided in the synagogue by the device of letting someone hold one sefer torah while another is being read from.

(8) Isa. XLV, 18.

(9) Lit., 'he will never see a sign of blessing'.

(10) V. infra.

(11) Since the Mishnah expressly says that it is on the same footing as purchase money.

(12) Lit., 'arrange'.

(13) Whose function it was to take urgent messages to the authorities on behalf of the town.

(14) Lit., 'Sons of the town, v. supra p. 155, n. 1. [Aliter: 'a group of people of the same town' — not necessarily representatives; v. Maim. Mat. 'Aniyim VII, 14].

(15) I.e., secure repayment.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 27b

town scholar[1] in charge there; but if there is a scholar in control there, it should be given to the town scholar, and all the more so in this case, seeing that both my poor and your poor depend upon me.

MISHNAH. [A SYNAGOGUE][2] BELONGING TO A COMMUNITY[3] SHOULD NOT BE SOLD TO A PRIVATE PERSON BECAUSE ITS SANCTITY IS [THEREBY] LOWERED. SO R. MEIR. THEY SAID TO HIM: IF SO, IT SHOULD NOT BE ALLOWED TO SELL FROM A LARGER TOWN TO A SMALLER ONE.

GEMARA. That was a sound objection raised by the Rabbis against R. Meir, [was it not]? What says R. Meir to this? — [To sell] from a large town to a small one [is unobjectionable], because if it was holy to begin with, it is still holy now. But if it passes from a community to an individual, there is no holiness left.[4] [And what is the reply of] the Rabbis [to this]? — If that raises a scruple [in this case], in the other case also it raised a scruple, because 'in the multitude of people is the king's glory'.[5]

MISHNAH. A SYNAGOGUE MAY NOT BE SOLD SAVE WITH THE STIPULATION THAT IT MAY BE BOUGHT BACK [BY THE SELLERS] WHENEVER THEY DESIRE. SO R. MEIR. THE SAGES, HOWEVER, SAY THAT IT MAY BE SOLD IN PERPETUITY, SAVE FOR FOUR PURPOSES-FOR A BATH, FOR A TANNERY, FOR A RITUAL BATH, OR FOR A LAUNDRY. R. JUDAH SAYS: IT MAY BE SOLD FOR [TURNING INTO] A COURTYARD, AND THE PURCHASER MAY DO WHAT HE LIKES WITH IT.

GEMARA. On R. Meir's ruling, how do people live in it? [The rent they pay] would be interest![6] — R. Johanan replied: R. Meir gave this ruling on the basis of the view of R. Judah, who said that interest which is only contingent[7] is permitted, as it has been taught:[8] 'If a man lent another a maneh and the latter made a [conditional] sale to him of his field,[9] if the vendor takes[10] the produce, this is permitted, but if the purchaser takes the produce, it is forbidden.[11] R. Judah said that even if the purchaser takes the produce it is permitted. Said R. Judah further: It happened once that Boethus b. Zunin made a sale of his field with the permission of R. Eleazar b. Azariah, and the purchaser took the produce. They said to him: Do you cite that as a proof? It was in fact the vendor who took the produce and not the purchaser'. On what point of principle did they differ? — On the question of contingent interest; one authority [R. Judah] held that contingent interest is permitted, and the other held that it is forbidden. Raba said: All authorities agree that contingent interest is forbidden, and the point at issue is the taking of interest on condition of returning it. One authority [R. Judah] held that to take interest on condition of returning it [when the principal is returned] is permitted,[12] while the other held that it is forbidden.

THE SAGES SAY HE MAY SELL IT IN PERPETUITY etc. Rab Judah said in the name of Samuel: It is permitted to a man to make water within four cubits of where prayers have been said. Said R. Joseph: What has he told us? We have already learnt it: R. JUDAH SAYS: IT MAY BE SOLD FOR USE AS A COURTYARD, AND THE PURCHASER MAY DO WHAT HE LIKES IN IT; And even the Rabbis did not forbid save in the synagogue itself, since its sanctity is permanent, but for the four adjoining cubits, the sanctity of which is not permanent,[13] they did not make such a rule.

A tanna recited in the presence of R. Nahman: One who has just said prayers may go a distance of four cubits and make water, and one who has made water may go a distance of four cubits and pray. He said to him: I grant you that one who has made water may go four cubits and pray; this we have learnt:[14] 'How far should he remove from it and from excrement? Four cubits'. But why should one who has prayed remove four cubits before making water? If that is the rule, you have sanctified all the streets of Nehardea![15] Say, 'should wait' [the time it takes to go four cubits]. [Is that so?] I grant you that one who has made water should wait till he can go four cubits, on account of drippings [on his clothes]. But why should one who has just prayed wait long enough to go four cubits? — R. Ashi replied: Because for the time it takes to go four cubits his mouth is still full of his prayer[16] and his lips are still muttering it. (Mnemonic Z'L'P'N').[17] R. Zaccai was asked by his disciples: In virtue of what have you reached such a good old age? He replied: Never in my life have I made water within four cubits of a place where prayers have been said, nor have I given an opprobrious epithet to my fellow, nor have I omitted [to perform] the sanctification of the [Sabbath] day.[18] I had a grandmother who once sold her headdress so as to bring me [wine for] the sanctification of the day. It was taught: When she died she left him three hundred barrels of wine, and when he died he left his sons three thousand barrels.

R. Huna once came before Rab girded with a string. He said to him, What is the meaning of this? He replied: I had no [wine for] sanctification, and I pledged my girdle so as to get some. He said: May it be the will of heaven that you be [one day] smothered in robes of silk. On the day when Rabbah his son was married, R. Huna, who was a short man, was lying on a bed and his daughters and daughters-in-law stripped [clothes] from themselves and threw them on him until he was smothered in silks. When Rab heard he was chagrined and said, Why when I blessed you did you not say, The same to you, Sir?[19]

R. Eleazar b. Shammua' was asked by his disciples: In virtue of what have you reached such a good old age? He replied: Never in my life have I made a short[20] cut through a synagogue, nor have I stepped upon the heads of the holy people,[21] nor have I lifted my hands [to say the priestly blessing] without reciting a blessing.[22]

R. Peridah was asked by his disciples: In virtue of what have you reached such a good old age? He replied: Never in my life have I allowed anyone to be before me at the house of study

---

(1) חבר עיר. A Rabbi who took a leading part in the town affairs. [Others vocalize חבר ‘a group’ denoting either a town council similar to the Roman Collegia (Krauss) or an official communal religious or charity organization, v. Krauss, Synagogale Altertumer pp. 20ff and Weinberg, M. Jeschurun, 1929 pp. 240ff and 1930, 269ff].

(2) V. Rashi s.v. ורבנן.

(3) Lit., ‘to many’.

(4) Since a quorum of at least ten is required for any act of sanctification (v. supra p. 142) — Rashi.

(5) Prov. XIV, 28. The meaning is that the more worshippers, the greater the glory of God.

(6) I.e.,it becomes interest when the place is bought back and the first purchaser recovers his capital.

(7) Lit., ‘one side in interest

(8) B.M. 63a.

(9) I.e., saying, ‘the field is sold from now if I do not repay’.

(10) Lit., ‘consumes’.

(11) Because if the loan is repaid, this will appear like interest on his maneh.

(12) According to R. Judah, when the loan is repaid, any profit that has been made out of the field in the interval is to be given up. The Rabbis, however, forbid even this since the lender does after all enjoy interest for the time being on the loan. V. B.M., Sonc. ed. p. 376, n. 8.

(13) But it lasts only while prayers are actually being said.

(14) Ber. 22.

(15) For there is no space of four cubits in them in which prayers have not been said by somebody.

(16) Lit., ‘his prayer is ordered in his mouth’.

(17) Z = Zaccai; L = Eleazar; P = Peridah; N = Nehunia.

(18) Kiddush, v. P.B. p. 142.

(19) Because that might also have been fulfilled.

(20) V. infra p. 171, n. 2.

(21) I.e., pushed the disciples out of the way in order to get to his place in the beth ha-midrash. It was the custom there to sit on the ground.

(22) ‘Blessed art thou . . . who hast sanctified us with the sanctity of Aaron’, v. Sot. 39a.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 28a

, nor have I said grace before a kohen,[1] nor have I eaten of a beast from which the priestly dues[2] have not been given,[3] as R. Isaac said in the name of R. Johanan: It is forbidden to eat from an animal from which the priestly dues have not been given; and R. Isaac further said: To eat from an animal from which the priestly dues have not been given is like eating tebel.[4] The law, however, is not as stated by him. ‘Nor did I say grace before a kohen’. This implies that this is a meritorious action. But has not R. Johanan said: ‘If a talmid hakam allows even a high priest who is all ignoramus to say grace before him, that talmid hakam commits a mortal offence,[5] as it says, All that hate me [mesanne'ai] love death;[6] read not mesanne'ai [that hate me], but masni'ai [that make me hated]’?[7] — When R. Johanan made this remark, he was thinking of equals.[8]

R. Nehunia b. ha-Kaneh was asked by his disciples: In virtue of what have you reached such a good old age? He replied: Never in my life have I sought respect through the degradation of my fellow, nor has the curse of my fellow gone up with me upon my bed, and I have been generous with my money.[9] ‘I have not sought respect through the degradation of my fellow’, as illustrated by R. Huna who once was carrying a spade on his shoulder when R. Hana b. Hanilai wanted to take it from him, but he said to him, If you are accustomed to carry in your own town, take it, but if not, I do not want to be paid respect through your degradation. ‘Nor did the curse of my fellow go up on my bed with me’. This is illustrated by Mar Zutra, who, when he climbed into his bed said, I forgive all who have vexed me. ‘I have been generous with my money’, as a Master has said, ‘Job was generous with his money; he used to leave with the shopkeeper a perutah[10] of his change’. R. Akiba asked R. Nehunia the great: In virtue of what have you reached such a good old age? His attendants came and beat him,[11] so he went and sat on the top of a date tree, and said to him: Rabbi, seeing that it says ‘a lamb’, why does it also say ‘one’?[12] Thereupon he [R. Nehunia] said, He is a rabbinical student, leave him alone. He then answered his question, saying, ‘One’ means ‘unique in its flock’. Then he said to him: Never in my life have I accepted presents, nor have I insisted on retribution [when wronged],[13] and I have been generous with my money. ‘I have not accepted presents’, as illustrated by R. Eleazar, who, when presents were sent to him from the Prince would not accept them and when he was invited there would not go. He said to them: Do you not want me to live, since it says, He that hateth gifts shall live?[14] R. Zera, when presents were sent to him from the Prince, would not accept them, but when he was invited there he used to go, saying, They derive honour from my presence. ‘Nor did I insist on retribution’, as Raba said: ‘He who waives his right to retribution[15] is forgiven all his sins, as it says, that pardoneth iniquity and passeth by transgression.[16] Whose iniquity is forgiven? The iniquity of him who passes by transgression.

Rabbi asked R. Joshua b. Korha: In virtue of what have you reached such a good old age? He said to him: Do you begrudge me my life?[17] Said Rabbi to him: This is [a point of] Torah, and it is important for me to learn. He replied: Never in my life have I gazed at the countenance[18] of a wicked man; for so R. Johanan said: It is forbidden to a man to gaze at the form of the countenance[19] of a wicked man, as it says, Were it not that I regard the presence of Jehoshaphat the king of Judah, I would not look toward thee nor see thee.[20] R. Eleazar said: His eyes become dim, as it says, And it came to pass that when Isaac was old that his eyes were dim, so that he could not see;[21] because he used to gaze at the wicked Esau. But was that the cause? Has not R. Isaac said: Let not the curse of an ordinary person ever seem of small account to thee, for Abimelech cursed Sarah, and it was fulfilled in her seed, as it says, Behold he is for thee a covering [kesuth] of the eyes.[22] Read not ‘kesuth’ but ‘kesiyath’ [blinding]? — Both caused the affliction. Raba said. We learn it from here, It is not good to respect the person of the wicked.[23] When he was about to depart life, Rabbi said to him, Bless me. He said to him: May it be heaven's will that you attain to half my days. Not to their whole length [he exclaimed]? Shall those who succeed you,[24] [he replied] pasture cattle?[25]

Abbuha b. Ihi and Minyamin b. Ihi [both left sayings on this subject]. One said: May I be rewarded[26] because I have never gazed at a Cuthean, and the other said, May I be rewarded because I have never gone into partnership with a Cuthean.

R. Zera was asked by his disciples: In virtue of what have you reached such a good old age? He replied: Never in my life have I been harsh with my household, nor have I stepped in front of one greater than myself, nor have I meditated on the Torah in filthy alleys,[27] nor have I gone four cubits without Torah[28] and tefillin,[29] nor have I slept in the beth ha-midrash,[29] either a long or a short sleep,[30] nor have I rejoiced in the downfall of my fellow, nor have I called my fellow by his nickname, (or, as some report, ‘family nickname’).[31]

MISHNAH. R. JUDAH SAID FURTHER:[32] IF A SYNAGOGUE HAS FALLEN INTO RUINS, IT IS NOT RIGHT TO DELIVER FUNERAL ORATIONS THEREIN NOR TO WIND ROPES[33] NOR TO SPREAD NETS NOR TO LAY OUT PRODUCE ON THE ROOF [TO DRY] NOR TO USE IT AS A SHORT CUT,[34] AS IT SAYS, AND I WILL BRING YOUR SANCTUARIES UNTO DESOLATION,[35] [WHICH IMPLIES THAT] THEIR HOLINESS REMAINS EVEN WHEN THEY ARE DESOLATE. IF GRASS COMES UP IN THEM, IT SHOULD NOT BE PLUCKED, SO AS TO EXCITE COMPASSION.[36]

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: ‘Synagogues must not be treated disrespectfully. It is not right to eat or to drink in them

---

(1) But invariably gave him precedence, v. Git. 59b.

(2) The shoulder, the two cheeks and the maw. Deut. XVIII, 3.

(3) Bah. reverses the order of the two last clauses.
(4) Produce from which the priestly and levitical dues have not been separated.
(5) [Lit., ‘deserves death’, a recurring rabbinic phrase not to be taken literally but merely as expressing strong indignation].
(6) Prov. VIII, 36. Wisdom is speaking.
(7) The talmid hakam makes wisdom hated by allowing the ignoramus to have precedence.
(8) I.e., where the priest is also a talmid hakam, even though not of equal standing (Tosaf.).
(9) Lit., ‘ready to excuse with my money’.
(10) V. Glos.
(11) For asking such a question, v. infra.
(12) Num. XXVIII, 4, of the daily sacrifice: one lamb in the evening where ‘a lamb’ would have been sufficient.
(13) Lit., ‘insisted on my measures’.
(14) Prov. XV, 27.
(15) Lit., ‘passes by his measures’.
(16) Micah VII, 18.
(17) That you ask me such a question.
(18) Lit., ‘likeness’, with reference to Gen. I, 26.
(19) Lit., ‘image of the likeness V. ibid.
(20) II Kings III, 14. Spoken by Elisha to Jehoram.
(21) Gen. XXVII, 1.
(22) Ibid. XX, 16.
(23) Prov. XVIII, 5.
(24) Your children (Rashi).
(25) They will also be scholars, and if you live too long, they will not enjoy a position of dignity.
(26) Lit., ‘let it come to me’.
(27) V. Ber. 24b.
(28) I.e., without conning words of Torah.
(29) V. Glos.
(30) Lit., ‘a fixed or an accidental sleep’.
(31) So Rashi. According to Maharsha the reading should be ‘my nickname, i.e., a name of reproach which he himself would reject. [According to some edd. there is no difference in the meaning but in the Hebrew word used to express ‘nickname’, in the former version it is hakinah, in the latter hanikah].
(32) The point of the word ‘further’ is not clear, as R. Judah was the most lenient of the authorities quoted in the last Mishnah, and this Mishnah contains restrictions. V. Tosaf.
(33) This is taken as typical of any kind of rough work which needs a great deal of room such as a synagogue would provide (Rashi).
(34) קפנדריא, compendiaria, sc. via.
(35) Lev. XXVI, 31.
(36) In the beholders, and make them pray for the restoration of the holy place.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 28b

, nor to dress up in them, nor to stroll about in them, nor to go into them in summer to escape the heat and in the rainy season to escape the rain, nor to deliver a private funeral address[1] in them. But it is right to read [the Scriptures] in them and to repeat the Mishnah and to deliver public funeral addresses.[2] R. Judah said: When is this? When they are still in use; but when they are abandoned, grass is allowed to grow in them, and it should not be plucked, so as to excite compassion’. Who was speaking about grass? — There is an omission, and the statement should read thus: ‘They should be swept and watered so that grass should not grow in them. R. Judah said: When is this? When they are in use; but when they are abandoned, grass is allowed to grow in them; if grass does grow, it is not plucked, so that it may excite compassion

R. Assi said: The synagogues of Babylon have been built with a stipulation,[3] and even so they must not be treated disrespectfully. What [for instance] is this? — Doing calculations [for business purposes] in them. R. Assi said: A synagogue in which people make calculations is used for keeping a dead body in over night. You actually think it is used for keeping a dead body in? — Is there no way otherwise? But [say] in the end a meth mizwah[4] will be kept there over night.

'Nor to dress up in it'. Raba said: The Sages and their disciples are permitted — since R. Joshua b. Levi has said: What is the meaning of 'Be Rabbanan'?[5] The Rabbis' house.

'Nor to go into them in summer to escape the heat and in the rainy season to escape the rain'. For instance, Rabina and R. Ada b. Mattenah were once standing and asking questions of Raba when a shower of rain came on. They went into the synagogue, saying, Why we have gone into the synagogue is not because of the rain, but because the discussion of a legal point requires clarity, like a clear day.[6]

R. Aha the son of Raba asked R. Ashi: If a man has occasion to call another out of synagogue, what is he to do? He replied: If he is a rabbinical student, let him say some halachah; if he is a tanna,[7] let him repeat a Mishnah; if he is a Kara,[8] let him say a verse of Scripture; if none of these, let him say to a child, 'Repeat me the last verse you have learnt'; or else let him stay a little while and then get up.

'To deliver public funeral addresses[9] in them'. What is meant by a public funeral address? — R. Hisda gave as an example, For instance, a funeral address at which R. Shesheth is present.[10] R. Shesheth mentioned as an example: For instance, a funeral address at which R. Hisda is present.[11] Rafram had a funeral address delivered for his daughter-in-law in the synagogue, saying, To pay honour to me and to the dead[12] all the people will come.[13]

R. Zera delivered a funeral address for a certain rabbinicai student in the synagogue, saying, Whether to pay honour to me or to pay honour to the dead, all the public will come.

Resh Lakish delivered a funeral address for a certain rabbinical student who frequented the Land of Israel and who used to repeat halachoth[14] before twenty-four rows [of disciples]. He said: Alas! The Land of Israel has lost a great man. [On the other hand] there was a certain man who used to repeat halachoth, Sifra and Sifre and Tosefta,[15] and when he died they came and said to R. Nahman, Sir, will you deliver a funeral oration for him, and he said, How are we to deliver over him an address: Alas! A bag full of books has been lost![16] Observe now the difference between the rigorous scholars of the Land of Israel and the saints of Babylon.[17]

We have learnt in another place.[18] 'Whoever makes use of a crown, passeth away [from the world]' and Resh Lakish commented: This applies to one who accepts service from one who can repeat halachoth, and 'Ulla said: A man may accept service from one who can repeat the four [orders of the Mishnah][19] but not from one who can [also] teach[20] them. This is illustrated by the following story of Resh Lakish, he was once traveling along a road when he came to a pool of water, and a man came up and put him on his shoulders and began taking him across. He said to the man: Can you read[20] the Scriptures? He answered, I can. Can you repeat the Mishnah? [He replied], I can repeat four orders of the Mishnah. Resh Lakish thereupon said: You have hewn four rocks, and you carry Resh Lakish on your shoulder? Throw the son of Lakisha into the water! He replied: I would sooner that your honour tell me something.[21] If so, he replied, learn from me this dictum which was enunciated by R. Zera: 'The daughters of Israel imposed spontaneously upon themselves the restriction that if they saw [on their garments] a spot of blood no bigger than a mustard seed, they waited for seven days without issue [before taking a ritual bath].[22]

It was taught in the Tanna debe Eliyyahu:[23] ‘Whoever repeats halachoth may rest assured that he is destined for the future world, as it says, His goings [halikoth] are to eternity.[24] Read not halikoth but halachoth’.

Our Rabbis taught:

---

(1) I.e., one not attended by the general public.

(2) V. infra.

(3) That they may be used for various purposes.

(4) As punishment many will die and there will be no near relatives found to attend to their burial. V. Glos.

(5) Lit., ‘at the Rabbis’, the common name for the College, exactly equivalent to the French chez les Rabbins, be being a contraction of beth (the house of).

(6) Lit., ‘a day of the north wind’. They could not think clearly in the rain.

(7) V. Glos. s.v. (b).

(8) Lit., ‘reader’; one who could recite correctly the Scriptures by heart; v. Supra p. 133, n. 5.

(9) Heb. hesped. This was an address in honour of the dead designed to evoke lamentation and mourning, and often delivered by a professional orator called a safdan.

(10) Lit., ‘a hesped at which R. Shesheth stands’. (V. Maharsha).

(11) R. Shesheth and R. Hisda desired to pay compliments to one another.

(12) Rashi reads: Whether to pay honour to me or to the dead.

(13) This makes it a public funeral address.

(14) Traditional teachings.

(15) Sifra is the halachah midrash on Leviticus; Sifre the halachic midrash on Num. V to the end of Deuteronomy; Tosefta the Baraitha of R. Hiyya; v. Sanh. Sonc. ed., p. 567, n. 1.

(16) As much as to say, that would not redound to his praise: he could only repeat these books parrot-like, but did not know what they meant.

(17) Resh Lakish was from Palestine, R. Nahman from Babylon. On the rigour of the former v. Yoma 9b; on the saintliness of the latter v. Sot. 49b.

(18) Ab. I.

(19) Apparently the Orders of Zera'im and Toharoth were not considered so necessary as no longer having practical application (V. Maharsha).

(20) I.e., explain.

(21) So that he might be indebted to Resh Lakish and be allowed to perform service for him.

(22) Whereas the law demanded this only if an issue was observed three days running, during the eleven days between the menses, v. supra P. 44, n. 4.

(23) I.e., in a Baraitha attributed to Elijah; v. Keth., Sonc. ed. p. 680, n. 2.

(24) Hab. III, 6. E.V. ‘as of old’.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 29a

The study of the Torah may be suspended for escorting a dead body to the burying place and a bride to the canopy. It was recorded of R. Judah b. Ila'i that he used to suspend the study of the Torah for escorting a dead body to the burying place and a bride to the canopy. When does this rule [regarding the dead] apply? When there are not present sufficient numbers [to pay him due honour]; but if sufficient numbers are available, [the study of the Torah] is not suspended. What numbers are sufficient?-R. Samuel b. Inia said in the name of Rab: Twelve thousand and [in addition] six thousand trumpets, or, as according to another version, twelve thousand men of whom six thousand have trumpets. Ulla said: Enough to make a procession extending from the burying ground to the town gate. R. Shesheth said: The withdrawal of the Torah[1] should correspond to its delivery:[2] as its delivery was in the presence of sixty myriads, so its withdrawal should be accompanied by sixty myriads. This applies to one who knew by heart Scripture and Mishnah; but for one who [also] taught the Mishnah there is no limit.[3]

It has been taught: R. Simon b. Yohai said: Come and see how beloved are Israel in the sight of God, in that to every place to which they were exiled the Shechinah went with them. They were exiled to Egypt and the Shechinah was with them, as it says, Did I reveal myself unto the house of thy father when they were in Egypt.[4] They were exiled to Babylon, and the Shechinah was with them, as it says, for your sake I was sent to Babylon.[5] And when they will be redeemed in the future, the Shechinah will be with them, as it says, Then the Lord thy God will return [with] thy captivity.[6] It does not say here we-heshib [and he shall bring back] but we-shab [and he shall return]. This teaches us that the Holy One, blessed be He, will return with them from the places of exile.

Where [is the Shechinah] in Babylon?-Abaye said: In the synagogue of Huzal[7] and in the synagogue of Shaf-weyathib[8] in Nehardea. Do not, however, imagine that it is in both places,[9] but it is sometimes in one and sometimes in the other. Said Abaye: May I be rewarded[10] because whenever I am within a parasang[11] I go in and pray there.

The father of Samuel and Levi were sitting in the synagogue which ‘moved and settled’ in Nehardea. The Shechinah came and they heard a sound of tumult and rose and went out. R. Shesheth was once sitting in the synagogue which ‘moved and settled’ in Nehardea, when the Shechinah came. He did not go out, and the ministering angels came and threatened him. He turned to him and said: Sovereign of the Universe, if one is afflicted[12] and one is not afflicted, who gives way to whom? God thereupon said to them: Leave him.

Yet have I been to them as a little sanctuary.[13] R. Isaac said: This refers to the synagogue and houses of learning in Babylon. R. Eleazar says: This refers to the house of our teacher[14] in Babylon.

Raba gave the following exposition: What is the meaning of the verse, Lord, thou hast been our dwelling [ma'on] place?[15] This refers to synagogues and houses of learning. Abaye said: Formerly I used to study at home and pray in the synagogue, but when I noticed[16] the words of David, O Lord, I love the habitation [me'on] of thy house,[17] I began to study also in the synagogue.

It has been taught: R. Eleazar ha-Kappar says: The synagogues and houses of learning in Babylon will in time to come be planted in Eretz Israel, as it says, For as Tabor among the mountains and as Carmel by the sea came.[18] Now can we not draw an inference here a fortiori: Seeing that Carmel and Tabor which came only on a single occasion to learn the Torah are implanted in Eretz Israel, how much more must this be the case with the synagogues and houses of learning where the Torah is read and expounded![19]

Bar Kappara gave the following exposition: What is the meaning of the verse, Why look ye askance [terazedun], ye mountains of peaks.[20] A bath kol[21] went forth and said to them: Why do ye desire litigation [tirzu din] with Sinai? Ye are all full of blemishes as compared with Sinai. It is written here gabnunim [with peaks], and it is written elsewhere or crookbacked [gibben] or a dwarf.[22] R. Ashi observed: You can learn from this that if a man is arrogant, this is a blemish in him.

IT SHOULD NOT BE USED AS A SHORT CUT [KAPANDRIA]. What is kapandria?[23] Raba said: Kapandria is as its name implies. What does its name imply? As if one were to say, Instead of going round the block [‘makifna adare], I will go through here. R. Abbahu said: If a road passed through there originally,[24] it is permitted. R. Nahman b. Isaac said: If one goes in without any intention of using it as a short cut, he may afterwards use it as a short cut. And R. Helbo said in the name of R. Huna: If one enters a synagogue to pray, he may[25] afterwards use it as a short cut, as it says, But when, the people of the land shall come before the Lord at the appointed seasons, he that entereth by way of the north gate to worship shall go forth by way of the south gate.[26]

IF GRASS HAS GROWN IN IT, IT SHOULD NOT BE PLUCKED, SO AS TO EXCITE COMPASSION. But it has been taught: ‘It should not be plucked and given as food [to cattle], but it may be plucked and left there’? — The statement in our Mishnah also refers to plucking and giving for food.

Our Rabbis taught: ‘Burying grounds must not be treated disrespectfully. Cattle should not be fed in them, nor should a watercourse be turned through them, nor should grass be plucked in them, and if it is plucked, it should be burnt on the spot, out of respect for the dead’. To what do these last words apply? Shall I say, to the last clause? If it is burnt on the spot, what respect does this show for the dead? It must be then to the preceding clauses.

MISHNAH. IF THE NEW MOON OF ADAR FALLS ON SABBATH, THE PORTION OF SHEKALIM[27] IS READ [ON THAT DAY]. IF IT FALLS IN THE MIDDLE OF THE WEEK, IT IS READ ON THE SABBATH BEFORE, AND ON THE NEXT SABBATH THERE IS A BREAK.[28] ON THE SECOND [OF THE SPECIAL SABBATHS] ZAKOR[29] IS READ, ON THE THIRD THE PORTION OF THE RED HEIFER,[30] ON THE FOURTH THIS MONTH SHALL BE TO YOU.’[31] ON THE FIFTH THE REGULAR ORDER[32] IS RESUMED. [THE REGULAR READING][33] IS INTERRUPTED FOR ANY SPECIAL OCCASION: FOR NEW MOONS, FOR HANUKKAH, FOR PURIM, FOR FASTS, FOR MA'AMADOTH,[34] AND FOR THE DAY OF ATONEMENT.[35]

GEMARA. We have learnt in another place: ‘On the first of Adar proclamation is made with regard to the shekels[36]

---

(1) I.e., the burial of a learned man.

(2) At Mount Sinai.

(3) V. Keth. 17a.

(4) I Sam. II, 27. This is taken to mean that God revealed himself to Aaron in Egypt even before Moses came.

(5) Isa. XLIII, 14. E.V. (incorrectly) ‘have sent’.

(6) Deut. XXX, 3.

(7) V. supra p. 26 n. 1. Sherira Gaon, in his Epistle (ed. Lewin p. 73) locates it ‘near the Beth Hamidrash of Ezra the Scribe, below Nehardea’].

(8) שף ויתיב Lit., ‘that moved and settled’. The name for a synagogue in Nehardea which according to tradition was built with materials brought by King Jeconiah and his companions from Jerusalem at the time of the first captivity. [For this tradition v. Sherira Gaon op. cit. p. 72-3, where the passage is also found with variants: Rab said in the synagogue of Huzal, Samuel said in the synagogue of Shaf-weyathib in Nehardea. The name is also spelled שפיתיב and is regarded by some as being a name of a place, v. Krauss, Synagogale Altertumer pp. 214ff and Obermeyer pp. 299ff].

(9) Lit., ‘here and there’. [Sherira Gaon: ‘here and not there’].

(10) Lit., ‘may it come to me’.

(11) Of either of these synagogues.

(12) R. Shesheth was blind.

(13) Ezek. XI, 16.

(14) Rab. [The reference is to the venerable old Synagogue founded by Rab in Sura of which there is frequent mention in the Geonic Responsa; v. Krauss, Synagogale, Altertumer, p. 221 and Ginzberg, Geonica, p. 41].

(15) Ps. XC, 1.

(16) Lit., ‘heard’ or ‘understood’. This means apparently that his attention was called to them by the exposition of Raba.

(17) Ibid. XXVI, 8.

(18) Jer. XLVI, 18. E.V. ‘As Tabor... he shall come’. According to tradition these two mountains (or their angelic guardians) came to Sinai at the giving of the Law.

(19) Lit., ‘spread (learning among many)’.

(20) Ps. LXVIII, 17. According to tradition, all the mountains were jealous of Sinai.

(21) V. Glos.

(22) Lev. XXI, 20.
(23) V. supra p. 171,n. 2.
(24) I.e., before the synagogue was built.
(25) According to Asheri, this is not only permitted but is a duty.
(26) Ezek. XLVI, 9.
(27) The Gemara discusses what this is.
(28) In the series of four special Sabbaths; v. supra p. 32, n. 5.
(29) Deut. XXV, 17-19; on account of Purim.
(30) Num. XIX, calling the people's attention to the need of ritual cleanness for participating in the Paschal lamb soon to be offered.
(31) Ex. XII; on account of the proximity of Passover.
(32) V. Gemara infra.
(33) The Pentateuch is divided into a number of portions (sidra), one to be read on each Sabbath of the year, commencing with the Sabbath after Tabernacles. The opening verses of each weekly portion are also read on Sabbath afternoon, and in the morning service on the Monday and Thursday of that week. It is the weekday reading that is here primarily referred to.
(34) V. Glos.
(35) In the Minhah service, even when it falls on Sabbath (v. Tosaf.).
(36) The so-called terumath halishkah, contributions to the shekel chamber to provide the daily sacrifices for the coming year.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 29b

and with regard to diverse seeds.[1] I can understand it being made for diverse seeds, because it is the time for sowing.[2] But what is the ground for making it for the shekels? — R. Tabi said in the name of R. Josiah: Because Scripture says, This is the burnt-offering of each new moon in its renewal.[3] The Torah herein says to us: As you renew the month, bring an offering from the new contributions. And since it is in Nisan that we have to bring from the new contributions,[4] we read beforehand on the first of Adar so that shekels should be brought [in time] to the Sanctuary. With whose view does this accord? Not with that of R. Simeon b. Gamaliel. For if you take the view of R. Simeon b. Gamaliel, he requires [only] two weeks' [notice], as it has been taught: 'Moot points in the law of Passover are considered[5] from thirty days before Passover; R. Simeon b. Gamaliel, however, says, from two weeks before'. You may even say it accords with the view of R. Simeon b. Gamaliel. For since a Master has said that 'on the fifteenth of this month [Adar] tables[6] are set up in the provinces and on the twenty-fifth in the Sanctuary',[7] On account of the tables we read beforehand [on the first of Adar].[8]

What is the portion of Shekalim? — Rab said, Commanded the children of Israel and say unto them My food which is presented unto me,[9] Samuel said, When thou takest.[10] We call well see how, according to the one who says the portion is 'When thou takest', it is called the portion of Shekalim, because shekalim are mentioned in it. But according to the one who says it is 'My food which is presented to me', — are shekels mentioned there? — Yes; the reason is based on the dictum of R. Tabi.[11] I can well understand [the reason of] the one who says that 'Command the children of Israel' [should be read], because sacrifices are mentioned in it. But according to the one who says that 'When thou takest' should be read, are sacrifices mentioned there? It is the shekels for the sockets that are mentioned there![12] — [The reason is] as R. Joseph learnt: 'There were three contributions;[13] of the altar for the altar,[14] of the sockets for the sockets, and of the repair of the House for the repair of the House'.[15] There is a justification for the one who says that 'When thou takest' should be read, because he thus makes a difference between this New Moon and other New Moons. But the one who says that 'Command the children of Israel' should be read — what difference does he make?[16] — He does make a difference, because on other New Moons[17] six read in the portion of the day[18] and one that of New Moon, whereas on this occasion all read in that of New Moon. This is a good answer for one who says that [when the Mishnah says that the ‘REGULAR ORDER’ IS RESUMED it means] ‘the regular order of portions’; but according to the one who says that [what it means is that] the order of haftarahs[19] is resumed [and the order of Pentateuch portions has not been interrupted], what difference is there [between this New Moon and others]? — There is a difference, because on other New Moons six read in the portion of the day[18] and one the special portion for New Moon, whereas on this occasion three read in the portion of the day and four in that of New Moon.

On objection was raised[20] ‘When the New Moon of Adar falls on Sabbath, the portion of Shekalim is read, and the chapter of Jehoiada the Priest[21] is said as haftarah’. Now according to the one who says that ‘When thou takest’ should be said, there is a good reason for reading Jehoiada the Priest as haftarah because it is similar in subject,[22] as it is written [there], the money of the persons for whom each man is rated.[23] But according to the one who says that ‘My food which is presented to me’ is read, is there any similarity? — There is, on the basis of R. Tabi's dictum.[24]

The following was then cited in objection: ‘If it [the New Moon of Adar] falls on the portion next to it [the portion of Shekalim], whether before or after, they read it and repeat it’. Now this creates no difficulty for one who holds that ‘When thou takest’ is read because [the regular portion containing this passage] falls about that time.[25] But according to the one who says that ‘My food which is presented to ‘me’ is read — does [the portion containing that passage] fall about that time?[26] — Yes, for the people of Palestine, who complete the reading of the Pentateuch in three years.[27]

It has been taught in agreement with Samuel: ‘When the New Moon of Adar falls on Sabbath, the portion ‘When thou takest’ is read, and the haftarah is about ‘Jehoiada the Priest’.

R. Isaac Nappaha said: When the New Moon of Adar falls on Sabbath, three scrolls of the Law are taken out [of the Ark], and read out of — from one the portion of the day, from one the portion of New Moon,[28] and from one ‘When thou takest’. R. Isaac b. Nappaha also said: When the New Moon of Tebeth falls on Sabbath, three scrolls of the Law are brought and read out of; from one the regular portion, from a second the portion of New Moon, and from the third that of Hanukkah.[29] Both statements are required. For if only the latter had been given, [I might think that] in this case R. Isaac required [three scrolls], but in the other case he followed the view of Rab who said that the portion of Shekalim is ‘My food which is presented to me’, and therefore two would be enough. Therefore we are told that this is not so. But why not state the former [only] and the other would not need to be stated? — One was inferred from the other.[30]

It was stated: If the New Moon of Tebeth falls on a weekday, R. Isaac [Nappaha] says that three read the portion of New Moon and one the portion of Hanukkah. R. Dimi from Haifa, however, says that three read the portion of Hanukkah and one that of New Moon. Said R. Mani: The opinion of R. Isaac Nappaha is the more probable, because when it is a question between the regular and the intermittent, the regular takes precedence.[31] R. Abin, however, said: The opinion of R. Dimi is the more probable. For what is it that causes a fourth man to read?[32] The New Moon. Therefore the fourth ought to read the portion of the New Moon. What do we decide? — R. Joseph said: We take no notice of New Moon,[33] while Rabbah said, We take no notice of Hanukkah. The law, however, is that we take no notice of Hanukkah,’ and New Moon is the main consideration.

It was stated: ‘If it [the Sabbath of Shekalim] falls when the portion ‘And thou shalt command’[34] is read, then six persons read from ‘And thou shalt command’ to ‘When thou takest’, and one from ‘When thou takest’ to ‘Thou shalt also make’.[35] Abaye remarked:

---

(1) That it is time to pluck them up, if any have appeared, v. Shek. I, 1.

(2) More precisely, sprouting (v. Tosaf.).

(3) Num. XXVIII, 14.
(4) This is derived in R.H. 7a from the words ‘for the months of the year’ in this text.
(5) Lit., ‘one asks concerning the laws of Passover’.
(6) For changing smaller coins into shekels.
(7) Shek. I, 3.
(8) The two weeks before the tables are set up.
(9) Num. XXVIII, 2. This is the portion always read on New Moon.
(10) Ex. XXX, 12ff
(11) Who said that shekels are to be brought in Adar for the congregational sacrifices.
(12) As we learn from Ex. XXXVIII, 26-28.
(13) The word terumah occurs three times in Ex. XXX, 12ff.
(14) For the purchase of congregational sacrifices for the altar.
(15) So that congregational sacrifices are also referred to in Ex. XXX, 12ff.
(16) Since this is the portion actually read on every other new moon.
(17) That fall on Sabbath.
(18) The Pentateuchal portion of the particular week cf. p. 178, n. 6.
(19) V. Glos. The special feature of the reading is that the one who is called up maftir reads a special portion appropriate for the day instead of the one in the sequence of the weeks.
(20) Against the view that the portion of Shekalim is from Num. XXVIII.
(21) 11 Kings XII.
(22) The prophetical reading (haftarah) must always have some resemblance in subject matter to the Pentateuchal lesson of the day.
(23) Ibid. 5.
(24) V. p. 179, n. 7.
(25) The portion Ki Thisa in which this passage occurs usually falls on a Sabbath about the beginning of Adar.
(26) This passage is in the portion Pinhas, which usually falls about the middle of Tammuz.
(27) This is known as the Triennial Cycle.
(28) Num. XXVIII, 1-15.
(29) In Num. VII. Hanukkah lasts from Kislev 25 to Tebeth 2 or 3.
(30) I.e., the statement about Hanukkah was given not as a tradition but as an inference.
(31) New Moon comes every month, Hanukkah only every twelve months.
(32) On the other days of Hanukkah only three read.
(33) I.e., we do not make it the first consideration.
(34) The portion Tezaweh from Ex. XXVII, 20 to XXX, 10, which is followed by the portion Ki Thissa.
(35) lbid. XXX, 11-16. I.e., six read the portion of Tezaweh and one the portion of Shekalim which immediately follows.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 30a

If that is done, people will say that that is where they stop.[1] No, said Abaye; six read from ‘And thou shalt command’ to ‘Thou shalt also make’, and one repeats and reads from ‘When thou takest’ to ‘Thou shalt also make’.

The following was cited in objection to this: ‘If it [the Sabbath of Shekalim] falls on the Sabbath of the portion adjoining it, whether just before or just after,[2] it is read and repeated’. Now if we accept the view of Abaye, this is quite in harmony with it; but on the view of R. Isaac Nappaha, it does conflict with it,[3] [does it not]? — R. Isaac Nappaha can answer you: And on the view of Abaye does it create no difficulty? We may allow the Sabbath before it, but if it falls on the Sabbath after, where do you find a repetition? What you have to say in fact is that [according to Abaye] this portion [of Shekalim] is read on two successive Sabbaths;[4] so l too can answer that it is read on two successive Sabbaths.

If it falls on the portion of ‘When thou takest’ itself, R. Isaac Nappaha says that six read from ‘Thou shalt also make’ to ‘And Moses assembled’,[5] and one from ‘When thou takest’ to ‘Thou shalt also make’. Abaye strongly demurred to this, saying, Now people will say that we are reading backwards![6] No, said Abaye; Six read to ‘And Moses assembled’, and one repeats from ‘When thou takest’ to ‘Thou shalt also make’. It has been taught in agreement with Abaye: ‘If it falls on [the Sabbath of] ‘When thou takest itself, it is read on the Sabbath before’.

It was stated: ‘If the new moon of Adar falls on Friday, Rab says that [the portion of Shekalim] is read on the Sabbath before, while Samuel says that it is read on the Sabbath after’. Rab says it is read before, because otherwise there will be a shortage in the days of the tables.[7] Samuel says it is read after, because after all the fifteenth day [from the new moon] falls on a Friday, and the tables will not be taken out till the Sunday; therefore we delay the reading [of the portion of Shekalim].

We have learnt: IF IT FALLS IN THE MIDDLE OF THE WEEK, IT IS READ ON THE SABBATH BEFORE, AND ON THE NEXT SABBATH THERE IS A BREAK. Does not this rule apply even where it falls on Friday? — No; only if it falls actually in the middle part of the week.

Come and hear: ‘Which is the first Sabbath [of the series]? That in the week succeeding which the new moon of Adar falls, even if it is on the Friday’. Now do not the words ‘even on Friday’ here [put Friday] on the same footing as the middle of the week, so that just as when it falls in the middle of the week we read before, so when it falls on Friday we read before? — Said Samuel: [The words ‘in the middle’ here mean], ‘on it’ .[8] So too a Tanna of the school of Samuel taught: ‘On it’. The same difference of opinion is found between Tannaim: ‘An interruption can be made [in the series] of Sabbaths. This is the ruling of R. Judah the Prince.[9] R. Simeon b. Eleazar says: No interruption is made. Said R. Simeon b. Eleazar: When do I rule that no interruption may be made? When it [new moon] falls on Friday;[10] but if it falls in the middle of the week, it [the portion of Shekalim] is read on the Sabbath before, even though that is still in Shebat’.[11]

ON THE SECOND ZAKOR etc. It was stated: If Purim falls on Friday, Rab says that the portion of Zakor is read on the Sabbath before, while Samuel says it is read on the Sabbath after. Rab says it is read on the Sabbath before, so that the celebration [of Purim] should not precede the commemoration [of the miracle]. Samuel says on the Sabbath after; he can argue that since there are the walled cities which celebrate on the fifteenth, celebration and commemoration come together.

We learnt: ON THE SECOND ZAKOR. Now when the new moon [of Adar] is on Sabbath, Purim falls on Friday, and he states ON THE SECOND ZAKOR?[12] — R. Papa replied: What is meant by ‘second’ here? The second to the break.[13]

Come and hear: ‘Which is the second Sabbath? That in the week following which Purim falls, even if on Friday’. Now is not the Friday here mentioned meant to be on the same footing as the middle of the week, so that just as when it falls in the middle of the week we read before, so when it falls on Friday we read before? Said Samuel: [The proper reading is] ‘on it’;[14] and so a Tanna of the school of Samuel taught, ‘On it’.

If it falls on Sabbath itself. R. Huna said, All authorities concur that the portion of Zakor is not read on the Sabbath before, whereas R. Nahman said, There is a difference of opinion on this point also. It was also stated: ‘R. Hiyya b. Abba said in the name of R. Abba, who had it from Rab: If Purim falls on Sabbath, Zakor is read on the Sabbath before’.

ON THE THIRD THE PORTION OF THE RED HEIFER etc. Our Rabbis taught: Which is the third Sabbath? The one which follows Purim. It was stated: R. Hama b. Hanina said: The Sabbath next to the new moon of Nisan. There is no conflict [between these two statements]; the one refers to where the new moon of Nisan falls on Sabbath,[15] and the other to where it falls in the middle of the week.[16]

ON THE FOURTH, THIS MONTH SHALL BE TO YOU. Our Rabbis taught: If the new moon of Adar falls on Sabbath, we read Ki Thissa[17] and [the account of] Jehoiada as haftarah. Which is the first Sabbath? The one in the week following which the new moon of Adar falls, even if on Friday. On the second Sabbath Zakor is read, and for haftarah, I have visited.[18] Which is the second Sabbath? The one in the week following which Purim falls, even if on Friday. On the third Sabbath the portion of the Red Heifer is read, and for haftarah, And I shall sprinkle on you.[19] Which is the third Sabbath? The one which follows Purim. On the fourth 'This month'[20] is read, and for haftarah, Thus saith the Lord God, in the first month on the first of the month.[21]

---

(1) I.e.,that the portion of Tezaweh extends to XXX, 16.

(2) I.e., the portion of Tezaweh or that of Wa-yakhel.

(3) Because there is no doubling according to R. Isaac Nappaha.

(4) Lit., 'he doubles it on Sabbaths'. Once qua Shekalim, and once as part of Ki Thissa; and this is the meaning of the word 'repeated' in the Baraitha quoted.

(5) The beginning of the portion next to Ki Thissa — the portion Wa-yakhel. I. e., the whole portion Ki Thissa, commencing from Ex. XXX, 17 up to XXXIV, 35.

(6) Because the first verses of the portion (11-16) are read last.

(7) I.e., two full weeks will not elapse between the proclamation of the Shekalim and the setting of the tables on Adar 15.

(8) Viz., on the Sabbath itself.

(9) I.e., his version of the statement in the Mishnah was, 'Which is the first Sabbath? That on which etc.

(10) In which case even if it is read on the Sabbath after it would not affect the 'tables' as stated supra.

(11) The month preceding Adar.

(12) 'Second' being taken to mean the second Sabbath of the month.

(13) I.e., the Sabbath after the one on which there is no special portion.

(14) V. supra.

(15) In which case the 'portion of the red heifer' is read on the Sabbath preceding it.

(16) In which case the 'portion of the month' is read on the Sabbath preceding it.

(17) I.e., the portion of Shekalim.

(18) 1 Sam. XV.

(19) Ezek. XXXVI, 22ff

(20) Ex. XII, 1-20.

(21) Ezek. XLV, 18.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 30b

Which is the fourth Sabbath? — The one immediately preceding the week in which the new moon of Nisan falls, even if on Friday.

ON THE FIFTH THE REGULAR ORDER IS RESUMED. What order? — R. Ammi said: The order of weekly portions: R. Jeremiah said, The order of haftarahs is resumed. Said Abaye: The opinion of R. Ammi is the more probable, Since we learnt: THE REGULAR READING IS INTERRUPTED FOR ANY SPECIAL OCCASION FOR NEW MOONS, FOR HANUKKAH, FOR PURIM, FOR FASTS, FOR MA'AMADOTH AND FOR THE DAY OF ATONEMENT. This accords well with the opinion of the one who says that the order of weekly portions is resumed,[1] seeing that a portion [of the Law] is read on weekdays.[2] But on the view of him who says that the order of haftarahs is resumed — is there any haftarah on [ordinary] weekdays?[3] [What says] the other to this? — The one rule holds where it applies, and the other where it applies.[4] But on fast days [according to R. Jeremiah], why should there be an interruption [of the regular portion]? Let us read in the morning from the portion of the week and at Minhah on the subject of the fast? — [R.

Jeremiah's ruling] supports R. Huna; for R. Huna said: ‘In the morning of fast days there is a public assembly’.[5] How do we act? Abaye said: From the morning to midday we examine the affairs of the town;[6] from midday to evening, for a quarter of the day we read the portion of the Law and the haftarah, and for a quarter we offer up supplications as it says, And they read in the book of the law of their Lord a fourth part of the day, and another part they confessed and prostrated themselves before the Lord their God.[7] But cannot I interpret this in the reverse way?[8] — Do not imagine such a thing, since it is written, Then were assembled unto me every one that trembled at the words of the God of Israel because of the faithlessness of them of the captivity and I sat appalled unto the evening offering;[9] and it goes on, And at the evening offering I arose up from my fasting.[10]

MISHNAH. ON PASSOVER WE READ FROM THE SECTION OF THE FESTIVALS IN LEVITICUS.[11] ON PENTECOST, ‘SEVEN WEEKS’[12] ON NEW YEAR, ‘ON THE SEVENTH DAY ON THE FIRST OF THE MONTH’;[13] ON THE DAY OF ATONEMENT, ‘AFTER THE DEATH’;[14] ON THE FIRST DAY OF TABERNACLES WE READ FROM THE SECTION OF THE FESTIVALS IN LEVITICUS, AND ON THE OTHER DAYS OF TABERNACLES THE SECTION OF THE OFFERINGS OF THE FESTIVAL.[15] ON HANUKKAH WE READ THE SECTION OF [THE DEDICATION OF THE ALTAR BY] THE PRINCES;[16] ON PURIM, ‘AND AMALEK CAME’;[17] ON NEW MOONS, ‘AND ON YOUR NEW MOONS’;[18] ON MA'AMADOTH,[19] THE ACCOUNT OF THE CREATION;[20] ON FAST DAYS,[21]

---

(1) R. Ammi held that on Sabbaths a special portion was substituted for the regular one on special occasions, cf. supra p. 180.

(2) On which the ma'amadoth met for prayer and a fast could be held.

(3) Though there is on fast days. V. infra.

(4) I.e., the order of haftarahs is resumed on Sabbaths and of portions on other days.

(5) And so there is no time to read the Law; v. Ta'an 12b.

(6) I.e., the conduct of the inhabitants.

(7) Neh. IX, 3.

(8) That the reading of the Law was in the morning.

(9) Ezra IX, 4.

(10) Ibid. 5.

(11) I.e., Lev. XXIII. Heb. Torath Kohanim, (lit., ‘law of the priests’), the name given by the Rabbis to Leviticus.

(12) Deut. XVI, 9ff.

(13) Lev. XXIII, 23ff.

(14) Lev. XVI.

(15) Num. XXIX, 12ff.

(16) Num. VII.

(17) Ex. XVII, 8ff.

(18) Num. XXVIII, 11ff.

(19) V. Glos.

(20) Because the heaven and earth are preserved on account of the sacrifices. V. Ta'an 26a.

(21) [According to Geonic authorities the reference here is to fasts for rain. v. Lewin, Ozar ha-Geonim, Megillah p. 60].

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 31a

THE SECTION OF BLESSINGS AND CURSES.[1] THE SECTION OF CURSES MUST NOT BE BROKEN UP, BUT MUST ALL BE READ BY ONE PERSON. ON MONDAY AND THURSDAY AND ON SABBATH AT MINHAH THE REGULAR PORTION OF THE WEEK IS READ, AND THIS IS NOT RECKONED AS PART OF THE READING [FOR THE SUCCEEDING SABBATH],[2] AS IT SAYS,[3] AND MOSES DECLARED UNTO THE CHILDREN OF ISRAEL. THE APPOINTED SEASONS OF THE LORD;’[4] WHICH IMPLIES THAT IT IS PART OF THEIR ORDINANCE THAT EACH SHOULD BE READ IN ITS SEASON.

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: ‘On Passover we read from the section of the festivals[5] and for haftarah the account of the Passover of Gilgal’.[6] Now[7] that we keep two days Passover, the haftarah of the first day is the account of the Passover in Gilgal and of the second day that of the Passover of Josiah.[8] ‘On the other days of the Passover the various passages in the Torah relating to Passover are read’[9] What are these? — R. Papa said: The mnemonic is M'A'P'U'.[10] ‘On the last day of Passover we read, And it came to pass when God sent,[11] and as haftarah, And David spoke’.[12] On the next day we read, All the firstborn,[13] and for haftarah, This very day.[14] Abaye said: Nowadays the communities are accustomed to read ‘Draw the ox’, ‘Sanctify with money’, ‘Hew in the wilderness’, and ‘Send the firstborn’.[15] ‘On Pentecost, we read Seven weeks,[16] and for haftarah a chapter from Habakuk.[17] According to others, we read In the third month,[18] and for haftarah the account of the Divine Chariot’.[19] Nowadays that we keep two days, we follow both courses, but in the reverse order.[20] On New Year we read On the seventh month,[21] and for haftarah, Is Ephraim a darling son unto me.’[22] According to others, we read And the Lord remembered Sarah[23] and for haftarah the story of Hannah.[24] Nowadays that we keep two days, on the first day we follow the ruling of the other authority, and on the next day we say, And God tried Abraham,[25] with ‘Is Ephraim a darling son to me’ for haftarah. On the Day of Atonement we read After the death[26] and for haftarah,For thus saith the high and lofty one.[27] At minhah we read the section of forbidden marriages[28] and for haftarah the book of Jonah.[29]

R. Johanan said:[30] Wherever you find [mentioned in the Scriptures] the power of the Holy One, blessed be He, you also find his gentleness mentioned. This fact is stated in the Torah, repeated In the Prophets, and stated a third time in the [Sacred] Writings. It is written in the Torah, For the Lord your God, he is the God of gods and Lord of lords,[31] and it says immediately afterwards, He doth execute justice for the fatherless and widow. It is repeated in the Prophets: For thus saith the High and Lofty One, that inhabiteth eternity whose name is holy,[32] and it says immediately afterwards, [I dwell] with him that is of a contrite and humble spirit. It is stated a third time in the [Sacred] Writings, as it is written: Extol him that rideth upon the skies, whose name is the Lord,[33] and immediately afterwards it is written, A father of the fatherless and a judge of the widows.

‘On[34] the first day of Tabernacles we read the section of the festivals in Leviticus, and for haftarah, Behold a day cometh for the Lord’.[35] Nowadays that we keep two days, on the next day we read the same Section from the Torah, but what do we read for haftarah.? — And all the men of Israel assembled unto King Solomon.[36] On the other days of the festival we read the section of the offerings of the festival.[37] On the last festival day we read, ‘All the firstlings’, with the commandments and statutes [which precede it],[38] and for haftarah, ‘And it was so that when Solomon had made an end’.[39] On the next day we read, ‘And this is the blessing’,[40] and for haftarah, ‘And Solomon stood’.[41]

R. Huna said in the name of R. Shesheth: On the Sabbath which falls in the intermediate days of the festival, whether Passover or Tabernacles, the passage we read from the Torah is ‘See, Thou [sayest unto me]’[42] and for haftarah on Passover the passage of the ‘dry bones’,[43] and on Tabernacles, ‘In that day when Gog shall come’.[44] On Hanukkah we read the section of the Princes[45] and for haftarah [on Sabbath] that of the lights in Zechariah.[46] Should there fall two Sabbaths in Hanukkah, on the first we read [for haftarah] the passage of the lights in Zechariah and on the second that of the lights of Solomon.[47] On Purim we read ‘And Amalek came’.[48] On New Moon, ‘On your new moons’.[49] If New Moon falls on a Sabbath, the haftarah is [the passage concluding] ‘And it shall come to pass that from one new moon to another’.[50] If it falls on a Sunday, on the day before the haftarah is, ‘And Jonathan said to him, tomorrow is the new moon’.[51] R. Huna said:

---

(1) Lev. XXVI.

(2) And must be repeated on the Sabbath.

(3) This refers to all the previous part of the Mishnah.
(4) Lev. XXIII, 44.
(5) Lev. XXIII.
(6) Josh. V.
(7) This is an interpolation in the Baraitha inserted by an Amora who lived In Babylon and gives the practice of the Galuth.
(8) II Kings XXIII.
(9) Lit., ‘he collects and reads of the subject of the day’.
(10) M=mishku (Draw and take you lambs, Ex. XII, 21); A=im (If thou lend money to any of my people, Ibid. XXII, 24); P = pesol (Hew thee two tables of stone, Ex. XXXIV, 1); U = wayedaber (And God spoke, Num. IX, 1). All these passages go on to speak of Passover.
(11) Ex. XII, 17 relating to the passage of the Red Sea which is supposed to have taken place on the seventh day.
(12) David's song of deliverance in II Sam. XXII.
(13) Deut. XV, 19.
(14) Isa. X, 32 referring to the overthrow of Sennacherib which is supposed to have taken place on Passover.
(15) A mnemonic of the key words in the passages following the order: Ex. Xli, 21; Lev. XXII, 27; Ex. XIII; Ex. XXII, 24; Ex. XXXIV, 1; Num. IX, I; Ex. XIII, 17; Deut. XV, 19. Cf. Tosaf.
(16) Deut. XVI, 9.
(17) Hab. III, which describes the giving of the Law, commemorated (according to the Rabbis) by Pentecost.
(18) Ex. XIX.
(19) Ezek. I, describing the heavenly hosts who also are supposed to have appeared on Mount Sinai.
(20) I.e., Ex. XIX on the first day.
(21) Num. XXIX, 1.
(22) Jer. XXXI, 20. The text proceeds, ‘For I shall surely remember him’, which is suitable to the day of memorial.
(23) Gen. XXI, in order that the merit of Isaac may be remembered.
(24) l Sam. I, because Hannah was supposed to have been visited on New Year.
(25) Gen. XXII.
(26) Lev. XVI.
(27) Isa. LVII, 15, which goes on to speak of repentance.
(28) Lev. XVIII. Apparently this section is chosen because the temptation to sexual offences is particularly strong (Rashi). Cf. Tosaf.
(29) Which speaks of repentance.
(30) The reference to Isa. LVII leads to the introduction of the passage which follows.
(31) Deut. X, 17.
(32) Isa. LVII, 15.
(33) Ps. LXVIII, 5.
(34) The Baraitha is here resumed.
(35) Zech. XIV, in which the festival of Tabernacles is mentioned.
(36) I Kings VIII, 2. The verse continues, ‘on the festival in the seventh month’.
(37) Num. XXIX, 12-34.
(38) The ‘commandments and statutes’ are those contained in Deut. XIV, 22-XV, 18, after which follows ‘all the firstling,’. A better reading is: ‘We read commandments and statutes and all the firstling.
(39) I Kings, VIII, 54.
(40) Deut. XXXIII; the conclusion of the Torah.
(41) I Kings VIII, 22.
(42) Ex. XXXIII, 12. The festivals are mentioned in the sequel.
(43) Ezek. XXXVII. The ‘dry bones’ are supposed to have been those of the Israelites who tried to break out of Egypt before the time (Rashi).
(44) Ezek. XXXVIII, 18. The subject of this chapter is supposed to be the same as that of the chapter of Zechariah read on the first day of Tabernacles (Rashi).
(45) The dedication of the altar in Num. VII.
(46) Zech. IV. .

(47) 1 Kings VII, 40-50.
(48) Ex. XVII, 8ff.
(49) Num. XXVIII, 11.
(50) Isa. LXVI, 23.
(51) I Sam. XX, 18.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 31b

If the new moon of Ab falls on a Sabbath the haftarah is [the passage with the verse] ‘Your new moons and your appointed seasons my soul hateth, they are a burden unto me’.[1] What is the meaning of ‘they are a burden unto me’? God said: ‘It is not enough for Israel that they sin before Me, but they impose on Me the burden of considering what punishment[2] I shall bring upon them". On the Ninth of Ab itself what is the haftarah? — Rab said: ‘[The passage containing], How is she become a harlot’.[3] What is the section from the Torah? — It has been taught: Others say, ‘But if ye will not hearken unto me’;[4] R. Nathan b. Joseph says, ‘How long will this people despise me’;[5] and some say, ‘How long shall I bear with this evil congregation’.[6] Abaye said: Nowadays the custom has been adopted of reading [from the Torah] ‘When thou shalt beget children’,[7] and for haftarah, ‘I will utterly consume them’.[8]

ON MA'AMADOTH THE ACCOUNT OF THE CREATION. Whence is this rule derived? — Said R.. Ammi: But for the ma'amadoth, the heaven and earth would not be firmly established, as it says, But for My covenant [which continues] day and night, I had not set the statutes of heaven and earth,[9] and it is written, And he said, O Lord God, Whereby shall I know that I shall inherit it.[10] Said Abraham before the Holy One, blessed be He: Sovereign of the Universe, perhaps God forbid, Israel will sin before Thee and Thou wilt do to them as Thou didst to the generation of the Flood and the generation of the Division?[11] He answered, Not so. He then said before Him: Sovereign of the Universe, by what shall I know this? He said: Take me a heifer of three years old[12] etc. He then said before Him: Sovereign of the Universe, This is very well for the time when the Temple will be standing, but in the time when there will be no Temple what will befall them? He replied to him: I have already fixed for them the order of the sacrifices. Whenever they will read the section dealing with them, I will reckon it as if they were bringing me an offering, and forgive all their inquities.

ON FAST DAYS [THE PORTION OF] BLESSINGS AND CURSES IS READ, AND THERE MUST BE NO BREAK IN [THE READING OF] THE CURSES. Whence is this rule derived? — R. Hiyya b. Gamda replied in the name of R. Assi: Because Scripture says, My son, despise not the chastening of the Lord.[13] Resh Lakish said: It is because a blessing[14] should not be said for chastisement. How then is the reader to do? A Tanna taught: He commences his reading with a verse[15] before them and concludes it with a verse after them. Said Abaye: This rule was laid down only for the curses in Leviticus, but in the curses in Deuteronomy a break may be made. What is the reason? — In the former Israel are addressed in the plural number and Moses uttered them on behalf of the Almighty;[16] in the latter Israel are addressed in the singular, and Moses uttered them in his own name.[17] Levi b. Buti was once reading the curses [in Deuteronomy] in the presence of R. Huna hesitatingly. Said R. Huna to him: Do just as you please, the rule [against making a break] applies only to the curses in Leviticus, but in those in Deuteronomy a break may be made.

It has been taught: R. Simeon b. Eleazar says: Ezra made a regulation for Israel that they should read the curses in Leviticus before Pentecost and those in Deuteronomy before New Year. What is the reason? — Abaye — or you may also say Resh Lakish said: So that the year may end along with its curses. I grant you that in regard to the curses in Deuteronomy you can say, ‘so that the year should end along with its curses’. But as regards those In Leviticus — is Pentecost a New Year? — Yes; Pentecost is also a New Year, as we have learnt: ‘On Pentecost is the new year for [fruit of] the tree’.[18]

It has been taught: R. Simeon b. Eleazar says: If old men say to you, throw down', and young men say to you 'build up' throw down and do not build up, because destruction by old men is construction, and construction by boys is destruction; and the example is Rehoboam son of Solomon.[19]

Our Rabbis taught: The place [in the Torah] where they leave off in the morning service on Sabbath is the place where they begin at Minhah; the place where they leave off at Minhah [on Sabbath] is the place where they begin on Monday; the place where they leave off on Monday is the place where they begin on Thursday; the place where they leave off on Thursday is the place where they begin on the next Sabbath. This is the ruling of R. Meir. R. Judah, however, says that the place where they leave off in the morning service on Sabbath is the place where they begin on [Sabbath] Minah, on Monday, on Thursday, and on the next Sabbath. R. Zera said: The halachah is that the place where they leave off in the morning service on Sabbath is the place where they begin at Minhah, on Monday, on Thursday and on the next Sabbath. Why does he not say, 'the halachah follows Rabbi Judah'? —

---

(1) Isa. I, 14.

(2) Lit. 'harsh decree'.

(3) Ibid. 21.

(4) Lev. XXVI, 14ff.

(5) Num. XIV, 11.

(6) Ibid. 27.

(7) Deut. IV, 25.

(8) Jer. VIII, 13.

(9) Jer. XXXIII, 25.

(10) Gen. XV, 8.

(11) The division of tongues at the Tower of Babel.

(12) Indicating that Israel would obtain forgiveness through the sacrifices.

(13) Prov. III, 11. As much as to say, Do not treat the portion of the curses disrespectfully by giving the impression that you do not wish to continue with the reading of it.

(14) The blessing said over the reading of the Torah.

(15) More strictly, a few verses, because the curses commence a new paragraph.

(16) 'If ye shall not hearken unto me etc.'.

(17) 'If thou shalt not hearken unto the voice of the Lord thy God etc.

(18) R.H. 16a.

(19) Who destroyed his power by following the advice of the young men which was intended to strengthen it; v. Ned. 50a.

Talmud - Mas. Megilah 32a

Because [the names] might be reversed.[1]

Our Rabbis taught: [The one who reads] opens the scroll and sees [the place], then rolls it together and says the blessing, then opens it again and reads. So R. Meir. R. Judah says: He opens and looks and says the blessing, and reads. What is R. Meir's reason? — It is similar to that of ‘Ulla [in a parallel case]; for ‘Ulla said: Why did they lay down that he who reads from the Torah should not prompt the translator? So that people should not say that the translation is written in the Torah. So here [R. Meir's reason is], so that they should not say that the blessings are written in the Torah. And [what says] R. Judah [to this]? — With regard to translation a mistake might be made, but no mistake will be made with regard to the blessings.[2] R. Zera said in the name of R. Mattenah: The halachah is that he opens and looks, then says the blessing and reads. Why not say, ‘The halachah follows R. Judah’? Because the names might be reversed.[3]

R. Zera said in the name of R. Mattenah. No sanctity attaches to the boards and to the platforms.[4]

R. Shefatiah said in the name of R. Johanan: When one rolls up a scroll of the Torah, he should make it close at a seam.[5]

R. Shefatiah further said in the name of R. Johanan: One who rolls together a sefer torah should roll it from without and should not roll it from within,[6] and when he fastens it he should fasten it from within and should not fasten it from without.[7]

R. Shefatiah further said in the name of R. Johanan: If ten have had a reading of the Torah, the senior among them rolls up the sefer torah. He who rolls it up receives the reward of all of them, since R. Joshua b. Levi said: If ten have had a reading of the Torah, the one who rolls it up receives the reward of all of them. The reward of all of them, think you? No; say rather, he receives a reward equal to that of all of them.

R. Shefatiah further said in the name of R. Johanan: Whence do we know that we may avail ourselves of a chance utterance[8] [as an omen]?[9] Because it says, And thine ears shall hear a word behind thee saying.[10] This applies, however, only if one hears the voice of a man in town and of a woman in the country,[11] and Only if it says, yes, yes, or no, no.[12]

R. Shefatiah further said in the name of R. Johanan: If one reads the Scripture without a melody[13] or repeats the Mishnah without a tune,[14] of him the Scripture Says, Wherefore I gave them also statutes that were not good etc.[15] Abaye strongly demurred to this, saying, Because he cannot sing agreeably, are you to apply to him the verse, ‘ordinances whereby they shall not live’? No; this verse is to be applied as by R. Mesharshia, who said: If two scholars live in the same town and do not treat one another's halachic pronouncements respectfully, of them the verse says, I gave them also statutes that were not good and ordinances whereby they should not live.

R. Parnak said in the name of R. Johanan: Whoever takes hold of a scroll of the Torah without a covering[16] is buried without a covering. Without a covering, think you? — Say rather, without the covering protection of religious performances. Without religious performances, think you? — No, said Abaye; he is buried without the covering protection of that religious performance.[17]

R. Jannai the son of the old R. Jannai said in the name of the great R. Jannai: It is better that the covering [of the scroll] should be rolled up [with the scroll] and not that the scroll of the Torah should be rolled up [inside the covering].[18]

And Moses declared unto the children of Israel the appointed seasons of the Lord.[19] It is part of their observance that [the section relating to] each one of them should be read in its season.

Our Rabbis taught: Moses laid down a rule for the Israelites that they should enquire and give expositions concerning the subject of the day — the laws of Passover on Passover, the laws of Pentecost on Pentecost, and the laws of Tabernacles on Tabernacles.

---

(1) I. e., the opinion of R. Judah might be assigned to R. Meir and vice versa.

(2) For everyone knows that they are not written in the Torah.

(3) V. p. 192, n. 3.

(4) הלוחות והבימות. Opinions are divided as to what is meant by these two terms. We should naturally suppose ‘boards’ to mean a kind of noticeboard in the synagogue and ‘platforms’ the stand from which the Torah is read. But there is good authority for supposing that both words are technical terms for parts of the scroll of the Torah, ‘boards’ being the side margins and platforms’ the upper margins, and the meaning will be that no sanctity attaches to these if they have been cut away from the scroll (v. Tosaf.) [J. Meg. III, 1 reads בימה ולווחין; this leads Krauss (Synagogale Altertumer, p. 388) to render, ‘the reading desk (made of boards, on which the Torah was read) and the platform (on which it stood)’. In a word, the almemor].

(5) So that if it is accidentally pulled, it should come asunder easily without being torn.

(6) I.e., he should have the written side of the scroll facing him (Asheri).

(7) I.e., the wrapping should be fastened in such a way that he will not need to turn the scroll over when he comes to open it again (Asheri). Rashi explains this passage differently.

(8) בת קול ‘a reverberating sound’, ‘echoing’, — as it were — a thought in one's mind (Rashi).

(9) In spite of the prohibition of divination (Deut. XVIII, 11).

(10) Isa. XXX, 21.

(11) I.e., in an unusual place.

(12) I.e., says the word twice.

(13) As indicated by the singing accents.

(14) To aid the memory (Tosaf.).

(15) Ezek. XX, 25.

(16) Lit., ‘naked’.

(17) I.e., the precept of reading or rolling up the scroll which he performed at that time is not accounted to him as a merit (Tosaf.).

(18) [Aliter: It is better that the covering (of the scroll) should be rolled up (round the scroll) than that the scroll of the Torah (itself) should be rolled up. MS.M. reads, The covering should be rolled (round the scroll) but not the scroll itself (without a covering); v. R. Hananel and D.S. It may however mean: It is better that the covering should be rolled round the scroll than that the scroll should be wrapped up by being rolled along the scroll].

(19) Lev. XXIII, 44.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 2a

C H A P T E R I

MISHNAH. AN IRRIGATED FIELD[1] MAY BE WATERED DURING THE FESTIVAL[2] [WEEK] OR IN THE SABBATICAL YEAR[3] BOTH FROM A NEWLY-EMERGING SPRING AND FROM A SPRING THAT IS NOT JUST EMERGED, BUT NOT WITH WATER FROM STORED RAIN, NOR FROM A SWIPE-WELL;[4] NOR MAY SMALL BASINS[5] BE FORMED ABOUT THE VINES. R. ELEAZAR B. AZARIAH SAYS THAT A [WATER] CHANNEL MAY NOT BE NEWLY MADE DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK], NOR IN THE SABBATICAL YEAR; BUT THE SAGES SAY THAT A CHANNEL MAY BE NEWLY MADE IN THE SABBATICAL YEAR AND ONE THAT HAS GOT OUT OF ORDER MAY BE REPAIRED DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]. AND IMPAIRED WATER WORKS[6] IN THE PUBLIC DOMAIN MAY BE REPAIRED OR CLEANED OUT; AND ROADS, BROADWAYS AND [RITUAL] POOLS[7] MAY BE PUT IN ORDER. AND ALL PUBLIC NEEDS MAY BE PERFORMED,[8] AND GRAVESIDES MAY BE MARKED,[9] AND [PUBLIC COMMISSIONERS] MAY SET OUT ALSO[10] TO INSPECT DIVERSE[11] SEED-CROPS.

GEMARA. Now, one might argue that after [having permitted] watering FROM A NEWLY EMERGING spring — which is apt to come along tearing up [the soil][12] — need further mention be made of [drawing from] A SPRING THAT IS NOT NEWLY EMERGING-which is unlikely to come tearing up [the soil]?[13] — I may answer that it is necessary [to mention the latter]; for if [the Tanna] had mentioned only the newly emerging spring I might have said that only here [where it is] for an irrigation plot it is permitted — but not for a Baal-plot,[14] because it is apt to come tearing up [the soil]; but [on the other hand], from a spring that is not newly emerging, which is unlikely to come tearing up [the soil], I might say that even a Baal-plot [may be watered]; therefore he informs us[15] that there is no difference; be it a spring newly emerging, or a spring not newly emerging, an irrigation plot may be watered therefrom, but a Baal-plot may not be.[16]

And whence [know we] that the term BETH HA-SHELAHIN[17] denotes a ‘thirsty’[18] field? — It is written: When thou wast faint and weary,[19] and we render the word ‘faint’ [in Aramaic] by meshalhi.[20] And whence [know we] that Beth ha-Baal[21] denotes ‘settled’ soil? — It is written: For as a man be the husband [yib'al] of a maiden, so shall thy sons be as husbands unto thee[22] and we render [in Aramaic], ‘Behold as a young man settles down with a maiden, thy sons shall become settled[23] in the midst of thee’.

Who may be the [unnamed] Tanna[24] who maintains that [work[25] to prevent] loss is allowed,[26] but [to augment] profit[27] is not allowed; and that even in [averting] loss we should not do any laborious work?[28] Said R. Huna: It is [the view of] R. Eliezer b. Jacob, as we learned:[29] R. Eliezer b. Jacob says: Water may be trained along from tree to tree, provided that one does not water thus the entire field.[30]

I grant[31] you may understand R. Eliezer [b. Jacob][32] to disallow exertion to enhance profit,[33] but could you also understand him [from here] to disallow exertion [even] where loss is [involved]? Rather, said R. Papa, (whose view is it)?[34] It is R. Judah's, as it is taught: ‘A spring newly emerging may be [used for] watering even (a field that is)[35] a Baal-plot. So R. Meir; R. Judah[36] says, None but (a field that is)[35] a ‘languid plot’ that has dried up may be watered [therefrom]. R. Eleazar b. ‘Azariah says, Neither one nor the other.[37] R. Judah[38] went even further and said, ‘A person may not clean out a water channel[39] and [with the dredging] water his garden of debris — [heap][40] during the festival week’. [Now] what is [meant by a ‘languid plot’] that dried up?[41] If you say, literally dried up’ what is the good of watering it? — Said Abaye, It means that this [old] spring has run dry[42] and another has [just] emerged [instead].[43] ‘R. Eleazar b. Azariah says, Neither one nor the other’. [By this he means to say that] it makes no difference whether the [old] spring has run dry or has not run dry, a newly emerging spring is not to be used.

But how [do you arrive at this conclusion]? Perhaps when R.Judah said that a languid plot may be watered from a newly emerging spring and a Baal-plot may not be,

---

(1) בית השלחין means lit. ‘a house of channels’, i.e., a plot of land which owing to situation or climate or nature of the soil requires to be watered artificially. It is often a laborious process and at times of vital importance to the crop.

(2) I.e., during the middle period of the two longer Feasts, namely, the ‘Feast of Unleavened Bread’ (Passover) and that of Tabernacles, v. Introduction.

(3) Lit., ‘the seventh year’. Every seventh year in the Jubilee cycle was ordained to be a year of remissness, or sabbath for the land, when the regular processes of agriculture for its improvement were to be suspended. V. Ex. XXIII, 10-11; Lev. XXV, 2ff and infra 3a.

(4) קילון the Greek , a mechanical contrivance for raising water by water-wheel or bucket from a deep well, like the shadoof in Egypt and the denkli or paecottah in India. The reason for the objections is stated in the Gemara.

(5) Circular depressions made about the stem of the vine, or a small trench drawn about a group of vines to retain the water. V. infra 4b.

(6) Broken wells, cisterns or aqueducts; pools that have become muddy puddles, or blocked drains. (קילקולי _ Latin cloaculae, Baneth).

(7) For priests and pilgrims to purify themselves ritually or their vessels that have met with defilement. Cf. Lev. XI, 24-40; XXII, 1-7.

(8) E.g., removing rubbish and thorns, levelling the road and footways, mending bridges, etc. Cf. infra 5a.

(9) With whitewash of lime to warn passers-by against defilement. Cf. infra 5a.

(10) [MS.M. omits ‘ALSO’ which is difficult to explain. V. Tosaf. Yom Tob].

(11) Lev. XIX, 19: Thou shall not sow thy field with two (or more kinds of) seeds (promiscuously). They are neither to be sown nor preserved by active process. Infra 2b, 6a and cf. Kil. I, 1, 9; Shek. I, 1, a.

(12) I.e., by erosion, necessitating immediate repair of the damage during the restricted period.

(13) Running on its habitual course.

(14) בית בעל , lit., ‘Baal's area’, or field — an old pagan denomination of a fertile soil, i.e., a soil favoured by ‘Baal Lord of the heavens’, Baal-Shamen, with fertilizing rain and sunshine. V. Cooke's N.S.I. p. 45, n. 1 etc. and Robertson Smith's Religion of the Semites (ed. 1894) pp. 96-97. Cf. Isa. LV, 10 and Ta'an. 6b: ‘Rain is earth's husband’; also Krauss, TA II, p. 546, n. 115.

(15) From here to the end of the sentence is not in DS., being seemingly a gloss from 2b.

(16) From a new or old spring.

(17) Rendered ‘AN IRRIGATED FIELD’.

(18) Or ‘a languid track.’ The term שלחין (channels) is here explained by popular etymology as derived from שלהי (the gutturals ה and ח interchanging), ‘weary’, ‘exhausted’. V. n. 2.

(19) Deut. XXV, 18. Han. and Aruch s.v. שלה (VIII, 80b) quote more appropriately Gen. XXV, 29 referring to Esau's exhaustion and thirst. Cf. Isa. XXIX, 8 and Ps. LXIII, 2.

(20) A participle Shafel from להי meaning ‘exhausted’. This derivation is grammatically unsound. In B.B., Sonc. ed. p. 271 it is more correctly connected with the root in the sense of sending water across the fields in channels. Cf. Ezek. XXXI, 4;. Ps CIV, 10; Job V, 10. It is surmised that the name of the Pool of Siloam (לשח) is derived from the same root. V. Krauss, TA. II, p. 547, n. 117.

(21) V. supra p. 2, n. 7.

(22) Isa. LXII, 5.

(23) Cf. our expressions husbandry and husbandman.

(24) In the first clause of the Mishnah.

(25) During the Festival week.

(26) I.e., watering a languid soil.

(27) E.g., watering a fertile field to make it still more productive.

(28) Lit., ‘excessive trouble’, e.g., to use rainwater or raise water by swipe.

(29) V. infra 6b, Mishnah.

(30) To water the whole field in that manner is all exertion to be avoided during the Festival week.

(31) Lit., ‘say’.

(32) So correctly, R. Han., DS.

(33) As he forbids watering the entire field, presumably thinking it unnecessary to give it an extra watering to increase its fertility.

(34) Omitted in DS.

(35) A doublet occurring also in the texts given in the next note.

(36) J.M.K. I, 1 (81a) and Tosef.,1, I read here, ‘and the Sages say’ instead, showing that it is R. Judah's view that has been adopted in the Mishnah. Obviously, the Babylonian teachers engaged in this critical discussion did not have that reading.

(37) I.e., that a newly emerging spring may not be used either for a generally nourished field (again at R. Meir's view), nor in a ‘languid field’ even where it has replaced a dried-up old spring (against R. Judah's view).

(38) He went further in his restrictions, even in the case of a ‘languid field’. (Tosaf. v. Ritba).

(39) A running brook or ditch which has become muddy and shallow, which he may clean out under certain conditions discussed infra 4b.

(40) Used as a vegetable garden or bed for nurslings. V. Tosaf. Lit., ‘his garden and his ruin’.

(41) I.e., that is waste.

(42) Lit., ‘it is dried up from this spring’.

(43) [All of which shows that R. Judah does not permit any laborious work even in order to avert loss, as in the case of the old spring having dried up, whereas R. Judah permits watering from the new spring that has emerged but not from rain-water or a swipe-well, which is in agreement with our Mishnah].

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 2b

he was referring only to a newly emerging spring since it may come along tearing up [the soil]; but a spring that is not just newly emerging and which is unlikely to come along tearing up [the soil] he might allow even for a Baal-plot?[1] If [you take it] thus, then whom does our Mishnah represent?[2] The fact is that according to R. Judah it makes no difference, whether it be a newly emerging spring, or a spring not just newly emerging; in either case a languid plot may be watered [therefrom], but a Baal-plot may not be. And the reason why it states the ‘newly emerging’ spring[3] is [merely] to show how far R. Meir is prepared to go, [namely], that even a newly emerging spring may be used for watering and even for a Baal-field!

It was stated: ‘If one is [seen] weeding or watering his seedlings on the Sabbath,[4] under what category [of the offence] should he be cautioned?[5] — Rabbah said, [It comes] under the category of ploughing. R. Joseph said, under the category of sowing. Said Rabbah, My view seems the more reasonable, for what is the object of the plougher? To loosen the soil; here too, he loosens the soil. Said R. Joseph, My view seems the more reasonable, for what is the object of the sower? To promote the growth of the produce; here too, he promotes the growth of the produce.

Said Abaye to Rabbah, Your view presents difficulty and R. Joseph's view presents difficulty. Your view presents difficulty, for does the act come [only] under the category of ploughing [and] not under that of sowing [only]? R. Joseph's view presents difficulty, for does it come [only] under the category of sowing [and] not under that of ploughing also? And should you rejoin that where there are two [possible categories], the offender is liable only on one count, [this cannot be] for did not R. Kahana say that if one [incidentally] pruned [his tree] in cutting it for wood[6] he is liable on two counts, one under the category of planting[7] and one again under that of reaping?[8] — This is a difficulty.[9]

R. Joseph, thereupon, put an objection to Rabbah from [the following]: One who weeds or covers [with earth] diverse-seeds[10] receives [judicial] flogging. R. Akiba says, Also one who preserves [them].[11] Now this is in perfect accord with my view, as I say that [he who weeds is to be cautioned] under the category of sowing, which [explains the penalty] because sowing is [explicitly] forbidden in connection with diverse-seeds; but according to your view who say that [he is to be cautioned] under the category of ploughing, is ploughing forbidden in connection with diverse-seeds? — Said he [Rabbah] to him, [He[12] is flogged] under the category of preserving [them]. But surely, since the last clause states ‘R. Akiba says, Also one who preserves [them]’, may we not infer that according to the first Tanna the penalty is not on account of preserving [them]? — The entire statement is [to be taken as] recording R. Akiba's view, and the latter clause is explanatory: ‘On what ground does one who weeds or covers [with earth] diverse-seeds receive a flogging? Because he comes under the category of preserving, for R. Akiba says, Also he who preserves [them]’. What is R. Akiba's reason? — It is taught: — Thou shalt not sow thy field with two kinds of seed’.[13] This tells me about ‘sowing’, whence [the prohibition against] preserving [what is already sown]? — From the instructive wording kil'ayim [diverse-seeds] in thy field not.[14] We learned: An IRRIGATED FIELD MAY BE WATERED DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK] OR IN THE SABBATICAL YEAR. This [permission] is perfectly correct in regard to the festival [week] where [the prohibition is] merely to avoid exertion, but where loss is [threatened][15] the Rabbis have allowed it. But in regard to the sabbatical year, whether on the view that [watering] comes under the category of sowing[16] or on the view that it comes under that of ploughing,[17] is either sowing or ploughing permitted in the sabbatical year?[18] — Said Abaye, Our Mishnah is speaking of the sabbatical year in the present time and it [expresses] the view held by Rabbi;[19] for it is taught: Rabbi says, [It is written] And this is the manner of the release; release [by every creditor of that which he hath lent to his neighbour];[20] the text speaks here of two forms of release, one the release of the soil [from tillage][21] and the other the release of money[22] [the juxtaposition of] which tells us that so long as you must release the soil [from tillage], you must release the money [debt], but when you do not release the soil, you need not release the money![23] Said Raba [not necessarily], you may even say [it voices] the view of the Rabbis[24] and that they[25] are the principal [types of work] that the Divine Law has forbidden [explicitly],

---

(1) Whereas our Mishnah forbids watering a Baal-plot from a newly emerging spring. Consequently it will not represent the view of R. Judah.

(2) Lit., ‘to whom will you throw (trace the view of) our Mishnah’.

(3) In the cited Baraitha: the spring might as well have been left undefined, as either is allowed for a languid plot by R. Judah.

(4) Ritba reads on a festival, which is preferred by R. Moses Sofer. Cf. Mak., Sonc. ed., p. 149.

(5) An offender doing an act which is explicitly forbidden in Holy Writ had to be duly and accurately cautioned by two witnesses against that particular act, and informed of the exact penalty it involved, before he could be judicially punished by a duly constituted tribunal. Ploughing, sowing and mowing are of the thirty-nine main categories of work forbidden (Scripturally) on Sabbath or Festivals. For the list v. Shab. VII, 2 and Shab. 73aff.

(6) Lit., ‘he prunes and requires the wood’. Shab. 73b. Work on the Sabbath is to be purposive, whether intended or not. If one did what he desired to do, without knowing that such a thing was not to be done on the Sabbath, or forgetting for the moment that it was the Sabbath day, he would not be punishable, but would have to bring a sin-offering in Temple times.

(7) Pruning promotes growth and is therefore another form of sowing or planting.

(8) Having a definite purpose for the cuttings.

(9) Var. lec. omit this final admission. [The statement of R. Kahana, being of an Amora, is not deemed sufficiently authoritative to refute the views of Rabbah and R. Joseph. V. Tosaf. s.v. חייב.]

(10) Weeding and covering with earth diverse-seeds are here made punishable as sowing, v. Lev. XIX, 19 (cf. Deut. XXII, 9).

(11) Fencing in the plot to prevent cattle from trampling them out or feeding on the young blades. Cf. A.Z. 64a (Rashi and Tosaf.).

(12) He who weeds diverse-seeds.

(13) Lev. XIX, 19.

(14) Some explain a section of the Hebrew text of Lev. XIX, 19, namely, כלאים שדך לא תזרע כלאים, as it were two interlocked sentences, (i) כלאים שדך לא i.e., ‘Kil'ayim in thy field not’, (which forbids the presence and the preservation of diverse-seed crops in the field); and (ii) שדך לא תזרע כלאים i.e., ‘Thy field thou shalt not sow kil'ayim’ (which forbids sowing). This explanation, however, is very strained, as the variations in the parallel passages show, having puzzled the commentators. The readings ת״ל לא כלאים and ת״ל כלאים לא are both correct and to the same effect. It is the import of the wording rather than the form of the text that R. Akiba stressed. It is the diverse mixing or crossing — ‘kil'ayim’ — that is emphatically forbidden, be it of animal, or field, or raiment (Lev. XIX, 19) and fiercest of all in the (oliveyard or) vineyard (Deut. XXII, 9). Have no share by your action in producing kil'aym!

(15) As shown above.

(16) R. Joseph, above.

(17) Rabbah, above.

(18) Sowing, pruning, gleaning and reaping are directly forbidden in Lev. XXV, 4-5. Ploughing, however, is forbidden only indirectly, by implication from a positive law in Ex. XXIII, 11; XXXIV, 21. Note this point.

(19) R. Judah ha-Nasi, compiler of the Mishnah.

(20) Deut. XV, 2.

(21) I.e., let the soil lie fallow and the crops free and unguarded against the poor, Ex. XXIII, 11.

(22) Let slip the money debts owing to you.

(23) The interpretation is based on the ground that since the Nation, Israel as a whole, is no longer in possession of the Holy Land as his inheritance, the land laws relative to the sabbatical year and Jubilee re-distributions, which are made contingent on Israel's entry and possession (Lev. XXV, 2, 10ff; cf. ibid. XXVI, 34-35, and Deut. XXXI, 10-13) are of necessity in abeyance, for the time being. [This according to Rabbi, since the prohibition of tilling the soil on the sabbatical years nowadays is merely Rabbinical, it is not enforced where a loss is involved; hence the ruling of our Mishnah.]

(24) That the operation of the sabbatical year nowadays is Biblical.

(25) Those that are specified in the text of Holy Writ.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 3a

but derivative[1] operations it has not forbidden, for it is written: But in the seventh year shall be a sabbath of solemn rest for the land..., thou shalt neither sow thy field nor prune thy vineyard. That which groweth of itself of thy harvest thou shalt not reap and the grapes of thy undressed vine thou shalt not gather.[2] Now, since pruning comes within the general process of sowing[3] and grape-gathering within the general process of reaping,[4] what law then did the All-Merciful desire to inculcate by inserting these [secondary processes] into the text? To indicate that only for these secondary processes [specified in the text] is one [to be] held liable[5] and for [any] other [secondary processes] one is not [to be] held liable.[6] Indeed not? Surely it has been taught: Thou shalt neither sow thy field nor prune thy vineyard,[7] that only forbids me sowing or pruning; whence is forbidden weeding or hoeing or the trimming of wilted parts? From the instructive [form of the] text: Thy field thou shalt not... thy vineyard thou shalt not . . . [which means] no manner of work in thy field; no manner of work in thy vineyard. [Likewise] whence [is derived the rule] not to cut back shoots, or thin twigs or put up props for supporting [fruit trees]? From the [same] instructive text: Thy field thou shalt not . . . thy vineyard thou shalt not . . . [which means] no manner of work in thy field, no manner of work in thy vineyard. [Similarly] whence [is derived the rule] not to manure,[8] or remove stones, or dust [with flower of sulphur][9] or fumigate the tree? From the instructive wording of the text: Thy field thou shalt not . . . thy vineyard thou shalt not, that is, no manner of work in the field, no manner of work in the vineyard. Shall I say that one should not [even] stir the soil under the olive trees, nor use the hoe under the vines, nor fill the gaps [under the olive trees][10] with water nor make drills[11] for the vines? There is the Instructive wording of the text: Thy field thou shalt not sow [nor thy vineyard shalt thou prune]. Now, as ‘sowing’ was already embraced in the general terms of the ordinance,[12] why then was it singled out [for mention]? To provide ground for an analogy, namely that just as sowing has the special quality of being a work common to field and orchard,[13] so is every [other] work that is common to field and orchard [forbidden]![14] — [That is only] Rabbinically; and the text is adduced merely as a support.[15] But, is it permitted to stir the soil [under the olive tree] in the sabbatical year? Surely [is it not taught]: It is written, But the seventh year thou shalt let it rest and lie fallow;[16] 'let it rest' — not to hoe; and '[let it] lie fallow — not to remove stones? — Said R. 'Ukba b. Haba, there are two sorts of hoeing, one for strengthening the [olive] tree, and another to close up fissures; that for strengthening the tree is forbidden, whereas that for closing up fissures is allowed.[17]

It has been stated:[18] — If one ploughed in the sabbatical year,[19] R. Johanan and R. Eleazar[20] [took opposite views]. One said that he is flogged[21] and the other said that he is not flogged.[22] Might I suggest that the issue turns on the dictum of R. Ela as reported by R. Abin? For R. Abin reported R. Ela to have stated that wherever a general [proposition] is stated in the form of a positive command and a particular [specification] in the form of a negative injunction,[23] the hermeneutical rule of General-Particular-General[24] does not apply to it.[25] [Accordingly], the one who says the offender is flogged, did not agree with that dictum of R. Abin in the name of R. Ela,[26] while the other who says that the offender is not flogged did agree with the dictum of R. Abin [in the name of R. Ela]?[27] — Not [necessarily]. It can be maintained that nobody agrees with the dictum of R. Ela, as reported by R. Abin. As to the one who says that the offender is flogged[28] it of course is in order, while the other who says the offender is not flogged may tell you thus:[29] Consider: pruning comes within [the general process of] sowing and grape-gathering within [the general process of] reaping, what rule did the All-Merciful intend to inculcate by inserting these [secondary processes] into the text? To indicate that only for these secondary processes [specified in the text] is one [to be] held liable, but for any other secondary process[30] he is not [to be] held liable. But is he not? Surely it is taught: Thou shalt neither sow thy field nor prune thy vineyard, this only forbids me sowing or pruning; whence is forbidden weeding, hoeing, or the trimming of wilted parts? From the instructive [form of] the text: Thy field thou shalt not . . . thy vineyard thou shalt not . . . [which means] no manner of work in thy field; no manner of work in thy vineyard. Whence [is derived the rule] not to cut back shoots, or thin twigs or put up props for [fruit] trees? From the [same] instructive text: thy field thou shalt not ...thy vineyard thou shalt not . . . [which means] no manner of work in thy field, no manner of work in thy vineyard. Whence [is derived the rule] not to manure, or remove stones, [or dust] or fumigate the trees? From the instructive text: Thy field thou shalt not . . . thy vineyard thou shalt not . . . [that is], no manner of work in thy field, no manner of work in thy vineyard. Am I then to say that one may not stir the soil under the olive trees, nor use the hoe under the vines, nor fill the [open] gaps [under the olives] with water, nor make drills for the vines? There is the instructive wording of the text: Thy field thou shalt not sow and thy vineyard thou shalt not prune. Now, sowing was already embraced in the general terms of the ordinance, why then was it singled out [for mention]? For the purpose of providing [ground for] an analogy, that just as sowing has the special quality of being a work common to field and vineyard, so is any other work that is common to field and orchard [forbidden]? — [That is only] rabbinically; and the text is [adduced] as a mere support.[31]

---

(1) Or secondary processes which are not unspecified.

(2) Lev. XXV, 4-5.

(3) Or planting, as explained above by R. Kahana.

(4) V. Shab. 73a.

(5) To a judicial flogging.

(6) I.e., scripturally (even according to the Rabbis) though reprehensible rabbinically.

(7) The order of the Hebrew words in the text is: 'Thy field thou shalt not sow nor thy vineyard shalt thou etc.'

(8) Yalkut reads: 'remove excrescences' or 'warts'.

(9) Thus J. Sheb. II, 2; Aruch explains 'remove dust from the foliage' and Rashi here takes it as covering with dust the exposed roots. The context seems to favour the first explanation here adopted.

(10) After thinning olive trees, by lifting some to give more room for the other young trees, the gap left in the soil would ordinarily be filled with manure and olive trees need much water. Cf. Sheb. IV, 5, and Sifra Behar Rabad's Commentary.

(11) Or small ridges with furrows on top between the vines. V. loc. cit.

(12) Lev. XXV, 4: But the seventh year shall be a sabbath of solemn rest for the land, a sabbath unto the Lord, in direct contrast to verse 3; there was therefore no further need to continue with specific instances of the prohibition, such as sowing the field and pruning the vineyard.
(13) I.e.,common to both, agriculture and horticulture.
(14) [Excluding the last mentioned processes which are not common to both field and vineyard. At all events this teaching shows that a number of processes though of the secondary type are forbidden in the sabbatical year).
(15) I.e., mnemotechnical and Biblically only sowing, pruning, reaping and gleaning are forbidden explicitly. The inclusion of ploughing, digging, hoeing or watering in the prohibition is purely Rabbinic. Thus the ruling of the Mishnah that an irrigated field may be watered . . . in the sabbatical year has now been explained: by Abaye on the basis of Rabbi's view, namely, that the restrictions of the sabbatical year are not operative nowadays; and, on the other hand by Raba, on the view of the other Rabbis (who do not concede Rabbi's interpretation of Deut. XV, 2), by pointing out that ‘watering’ is, strictly speaking, not textually forbidden, it being a ‘derivative’ (secondary) process, and hence allowed by the Rabbis in the sabbatical year where damage (loss of crop) is likely.
(16) Ex. XXIII, 11.
(17) The former is for enhancing profit and the latter is prevention of loss, namely, to save the tree from bleeding or rotting.
(18) The same question is again discussed from a different angle in Palestinian schools.
(19) After having been duly cautioned.
(20) B. Pedath.
(21) As having offended against a Biblical prohibition.
(22) Because ‘ploughing’ is not distinctly forbidden, but is only an implied offence, for which no judicial flogging can be given.
(23) E.g., in Lev. XXV, 2-5. We have first a general ordinance in positive terms: The land shall keep a sabbath unto the Lord. Six years thou shalt sow . . . prune . . . gather in the produce thereof, but the seventh year shall be a sabbath of solemn rest unto the Lord (cf. Ex. XXIII,11); then follow the particulars in negative terms. Thou shalt neither sow thy field, nor prune thy vineyard. That which groweth of itself thou shalt not reap and the grapes of thy undressed vines thou shalt not gather (Lev. XXV, 4-5). Then follows a general rule again in positive form: It shall be a year of solemn rest for the land.
(24) According to this rule, the particulars are in such a case considered typical as illustrations serving to include in the general rule all such items as are similar to the particulars. E.g. in Ex. XXII, 8 the text first states that an oath can be judicially imposed ‘for every matter of trespass’ (General term). This is followed by: ‘for ox, for ass, for sheep, for raiment’ (particulars), which again is followed finally by: ‘for any manner of lost thing’ (General). We infer from this that an oath can be imposed for things like those specified as typical instances, but not in the case of a dispute about land, being immovable property, or in the case of sanctuary-property, as it being not one's neighbour's property, or in the case of dispute about a slave, as being a (human) chattel, or about documents, as not being ‘property’, but merely instruments of evidence. Similarly in the case of the sabbatical year,if the particulars are typical of the general rule, one who does any of these would break the law.
(25) But it is treated merely as a general proposition which is followed only by a particularization, in which case the general proposition does not go beyond what has actually been specified by the particularization that follows it.
(26) I.e., he interprets the Sabbatical Ordinance as a pure instance of a General-Particular-General form and takes sowing, pruning, reaping and gleaning as typical illustrative instances and, accordingly, considers ‘ploughing’ as included in the general terms of the Ordinance and hence as a punishable offence.
(27) I.e., that the Sabbatical Ordinance cannot be treated as a pure form of General-Particular-General, it being negative in the particulars, which amounts to saying, ‘Not a, not b, not c; these, I mean, precisely, and no others’. ‘Ploughing’ therefore is not included among the forbidden processes and hence is not a punishable offence.
(28) For ploughing in the sabbatical year.
(29) In interpreting the import of the wording of the text, to show that there is no penalty for ploughing, although the application of the General-Particular-General rule would indicate to the contrary.
(30) I.e., ploughing.
(31) For notes v. supra p. 9, n. 6.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 3b

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 3b

When R. Dimi came [from Palestine] he said [the discussion went on]: Possibly, you might say that the offender be flogged [even] for the ‘extension’? But the teaching was concluded[1] to prove that he was exempt. But [said he], I know not which was the teaching, nor what was [actually] meant by ‘extension’.

R. Eleazar [b. Pedath] said that the ‘extension’ had reference to [the inclusion of] ‘ploughing’ [as a punishable offence], and the argument proceeded thus: Possibly [you might say] that he should be flogged for ‘ploughing’ [in the sabbatical year], the rule being inferred by [treating the sabbatical ordinance as a case of] General-Particular-General; then the teaching was concluded to prove exemption. For, if it [the flogging] were correct, what is the [legal] import of all those particulars [set out in the text]?

R. Johanan said [that the ‘extension’ had reference to] the extra days [of restriction] which the sages had added prior to New Year; and the argument proceeded thus: Possibly [you might say] that he should be flogged for [ploughing during] the extended extra period prior to New Year which is based on the text: ‘In ploughing time and in reaping time thou shalt rest.[2] Then the teaching was concluded to prove exemption [from a flogging], as we shall seek to explain presently.

What is meant by ‘the days [of restriction] prior to New Year’? — According to what we learned: ‘Up to what date may ploughing be done in a tree field [orchard] in the pre-sabbatical year? Beth Shammai say, As long as it is for the benefit of the fruit; Beth Hillel say, Up to the Feast of Weeks; and the [practical effect of] one ruling is much the same as that of the other.[3] And up to what date may they plough a "white field"[4] in the pre-sabbatical year? Up to when the moisture gives out and as long as people till for planting their cucumber and gourd beds. Said R. Simeon, If that is so, you have handed over the Torah for every individual to determine for himself the right time! No: [I say], a "white field" [they may till] up to Passover and a tree field up to the Feast of Weeks’.[5] (And Beth Hillel say up to Passover.)[6]

And[7] R. Simeon b. Pazzi reported in the name of R. Joshua b. Levi who had it from Bar Kappara that Rabban Gamaliel and his Beth din took a vote on these two [terminal] periods[8] and abrogated them. Said R. Zera to R. Abbahu, some say, Resh Lakish said to R. Johanan: How could Rabban Gamaliel and his Beth din abrogate a measure instituted by Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel? Surely we learned: ‘No Beth din has power to nullify the words [ruling] of another Beth din unless it be superior to it in learning and number’![9] ‘He was astonished for a while’;[10] then he replied: I say, they thus have stipulated among themselves that whoever might thereafter wish to abrogate that [measure] could come and abrogate it.[11] But was it their measure? Was it not an [ancient] halachah of Moses from Sinai?[12] As [in fact] R. Assi reported R. Johanan to have said in the name of R. Nehuniah[13] a man hailing from the valley of Beth Hauran,[14] that the [laws of] ‘Ten Saplings,’[15] the ‘Willow’[16] and the ‘Water Libation’[17] were ‘halachah’ of Moses from Sinai! — Said R. Isaac, When we received on tradition that law [of extra restriction] as [an ancient] halachah, It was only in reference to ‘thirty days prior to the New Year’; thereafter came those [of Beth Shammai and Hillel] and instituted [the cessation] from Passover[18] and the Feast of Weeks,[19] and [at the same time] they stipulated with reference to their [measure] that whoever might [thereafter] wish to abrogate [them] might come and abrogate them.[20]

But were these [termini] merely halachah [-usages]? Were they not [based on Biblical] texts? For is it not taught: [Six days thou shalt work, but on the seventh day thou shalt rest]: in ploughing time and in reaping time thou shalt rest.[21] Says R. Akiba,[22] There is no need to be told [in the second clause] to desist from ploughing or reaping in the seventh year, since it is already stated [elsewhere at length]: thou shalt neither sow thy field nor prune thy vineyard: [that which groweth of itself thou shalt not reap].[23] [It can be taken] only [to debar] ploughing in the pre-sabbatical year

---

(1) Lit., ‘the Talmud took it up’. (3) As explained above. (4) The sabbatical year began with the New Year. It was necessary to stop tillage before that date; when, and where, did it originate? On what authority? These are the points to be discussed now at length.

(2) Ex. XXXIV, 21 The exposition of this follows presently.

(3) Sheb. I, 1.

(4) Preparing for a grain crop, i.e., of cereals or legumina. A white field=a sown field, not planted with trees that cast a shadow.

(5) Ibid. II, 1.

(6) This bracketed part is a meaningless gloss.

(7) [So MS. M. Cur. edd. insert ‘And’].

(8) Passover (Nisan) and the Feast of Weeks (Sivan); after these were abrogated, tillage was again permitted down to New Year (Tishri).

(9) ‘Ed. I, 5.

(10) A phrase from Daniel IV, 16. R. Abbahu or R. Johanan was for the moment puzzled for a reply.

(11) Should the exigencies of the time demand it.

(12) I.e., a rule of immemorial practice, whose origin is unknown. Cf. our expression ‘as old as the hills’. Cf. ‘Ed. VIII, 7; Yad. Malachi No. 663 and W. Bacher's Tradition und Tradenten etc. (1914) p. 33ff.

(13) Also Hunya, Huna or Huna. Bacher ibid. p. 38 sect. 11.

(14) A high plain S.E. of Damascus mentioned by Ezekiel, XLVII, 18, among the boundaries of Palestine (cf. R.H. 22b). Herod established there a protectorate under Zamaris, a Babylonian Jew who offered military safety to the Babylonian pilgrims on their way to Jerusalem. V. Josephus, Antiquities XVII, 11, 1-2.

(15) A young plantation in a field of fifty by fifty cubits in dimension with at least ten saplings may be tilled entirely for their benefit, down to the edge of the sabbatical year which began with New Year's day, the first of Tishri. This implies that with old trees tilling must cease before New Year.

(16) V. infra. Willows were carried in procession once round the altar during the first six days of Tabenacles and then fixed at the side of the altar. On the seventh day the circuit was made seven times. V. Suk. 45a, where Abbahu suggests a Biblical indication, Ps. CXVIII, 27.

(17) On the same occasions the grand celebration of the water libation took place in the Temple, a golden flagon being filled with water from Siloam, was brought amidst trumpet blasts to the Temple and poured on the altar by the High Priest.

(18) For a ‘white field’, growing cereals and legumina.

(19) For a tree field, an orchard.

(20) And it is only these two earlier terms, Passover and Feast of Weeks, up to thirty days before New Year that Rabban Gamaliel and his Beth din abrogated. Cf. J. Sheb. I, 5.

(21) Ex. XXXIV, 21.

(22) As all manner of work is forbidden on the sabbath day, the particular stress on ploughing and reaping suggested a connection between the sabbath-day and the sabbath-year.

(23) Lev. XXV, 4-5.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 4a

[which may have beneficial effects] extending into the seventh year and [likewise] to the reaping of the seventh year's crops which mature in the post-sabbatical year.[1] Says R. Ishmael, [It is purely a Sabbath law]; as the ploughing [here forbidden on Sabbath] is optional ploughing,[2] so is the reaping [here mentioned] optional reaping; outside this [law] is the reaping [of the new barley] for the ‘omer’[3] which is a religious duty [by ordinance]![4] — In fact said R. Nahman b. Isaac, when we received on tradition [that the pre-sabbatic restrictions had their origin in] halachah [-usage], this had reference to the permission [of tilling for the benefit] of saplings;[5] whereas the texts are for the prohibition of old trees.[6] But since ‘halachah [-usage] allowed [tillage down to New Year] for saplings,it is not obvious that old trees were forbidden? — What we must say therefore is, the halachah [-usage] as basis for the prohibition is [necessary] according to R. Ishmael,[7] whereas the texts [serve as basis] according to R. Akiba.

But R. Johanan said that Rabban Gamaliel and his Beth din abrogated those [restrictions] on Biblical authority. What was the reason? He deduced it by equating the term 'Sabbath' common to both[8] the Sabbath-year and the Sabbath of Creation[9] [thus]: Just as in the case of the Sabbath Day [work is forbidden] on the day itself, but on the day before and on the day after it is allowed, so [likewise] in the Sabbath Year [tillage is forbidden] during the year itself, but in the year before and in the year after it is allowed.

To this R. Ashi demurred: On the view that it [the restriction] is a halachah [-usage] can a gezerah shawah [deduction][8] come and eradicate a halachah [-usage]; and [likewise] on the view that it is [based on] a Biblical text, can a gezerah shawah[8] come and eradicate a text! — But no, said R. Ashi, Rabban Gamaliel and his Beth din concurred with R. Ishmael who held that [the presabbatical restrictions] were based on a halachah-usage. And when did the tradition of such halachah-usage [apply]? During the time when the Temple was still standing, like that of the water libation;[10] but in times when the Temple is no longer standing the tradition of this halachah-usage does not apply.[11]

BUT IT MAY NOT BE WATERED FROM [STORED] RAIN NOR BY THAT OF A SWIPE-WELL. It is quite correct [to prohibit water] from a swipe-well, because that is a rather extra trouble; but rain water-what trouble is there [in using it]? — Said R. Ela, reporting R. Johanan: Rain water is prohibited as a precaution on account of the swipe-well.[12] R. Ashi said: Rain water itself may [sometimes] come to be [just as difficult to draw[13] as] the water of a swipe-well. And they differ on [the statement of] R. Zera; for R. Zera said that Rabbah b. Jeremiah, citing Samuel, said that rivers drawing from [adjoining] water pools may be used for watering during the festival week.[14] One Master[15] is in agreement with [the statement of] R. Zera, while the other[16] is not in agreement with [the statement of] R. Zera. The text [above stated]: 'R. Zera said that Rabbah b. Jeremiah, citing Samuel, said that rivers drawing from [adjoining] water pools may be used for watering during the festival week'. R. Jeremiah put all objection to him [R. Zera]: BUT... NOT WATERED FROM [STORED] RAIN NOR BY THAT OF A SWIPE-WELL![17] — Said R. Zera to him: Jeremiah, my son, these Babylonian pools are like water [pools] that do not fail.[18]

Our Rabbis taught: Ditches and pools[19] [even though] filled with water on the day before the festival are debarred from being used for watering during the festival week,[20] but if a canal passes between them they may be used. Said R. Papa: This is only provided that the greater part of that field obtains its supply from that canal.[21] R. Ashi said that [they may be used] even if the greater part of that field does not obtain its supply [from that canal], because since its flow is continuous [the owner] says. if it [the field] does not get enough drink on [this] one day, it will [soon] get its drink in two or three days.'[22] Our Rabbis taught: 'If a pool gets tricklings from[23] an irrigated field [higher up], it may be used for watering another field'.[24] But is it not going [ultimately] to give out? — Said R. Jeremiah: For the present at any rate it is still trickling! Said Abaye: This is [permitted] only so long as the first source has not given out.[25]

It has been taught: R. Simeon b. Menassia says: Where two cultivated beds lie one above the other, one should not[26] draw from the [supply of the] lower to water the upper. R. Eleazar b. Simeon went even further, saying: Even in one bed, if half of it is low and the other half higher one should not draw from the low-lying part to water the upper part.

Our Rabbis taught: 'One may raise [medallin][27] for the vegetables if they are to be eaten; but if it is to improve their appearance it is forbidden'. Rabina and Rabbah of Thospia[28] were [once] walking on the road when they saw a certain man drawing buckets of water during the festival week.[29] Said Rabbah of Thospia to Rabina: Come, Sir, put a ban[30] on him. Said Rabina to him, But is it not taught: 'One may raise[31] for vegetables to be eaten'? — Replied Rabbah, Do you think that this medallin means one may raise water [in buckets]?[32] [No], what medallin means is

---

(1) Accordingly ‘ploughing’ is Biblically forbidden in the pre-sabbatical extension and the offender would be liable to a flogging were it not for the inferences derived from the other text of Lev. XXV, 4-5, as expounded above, 3a. Cf. Tosaf. 3b s.v. שהרי and Han.

(2) I.e., not ordained to be done on any particular day.

(3) ‘The sheaf of the first fruit of your (barley) harvest’. V. Lev. XXIII, 10ff. R. Ishmael holds that this may be reaped even on Sabbath. R. Ishmael's statement is for the moment irrelevant, though it comes in later. R. Akiba's dictum shows that the extension, i.e., the pre-sabbatical bar on tillage, is not merely a pristine halachah-usage, but has textual basis.

(4) Cf. M. Sheb. I, 4 and Mak., Sonc. ed. p. 48.

(5) Down to New Year's eve.

(6) Thirty days before New Year, which prohibition was extended by Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel to Passover and Feast of Weeks, according to the field.

(7) Who, unlike R. Akiba, uses that text for another point, namely, as permitting reaping the barley for the ‘omer even on a Sabbath, if that is the date.

(8) Gezerah shawah (V. Glos.) which some admit and others do not.

(9) I.e., Ex. XXXIV, 21 taken with Lev. XXV, 2 (‘a Sabbath-rest year-unto the Lord’).

(10) Mentioned together with the tradition regarding the ten saplings, supra 3b.

(11) With the fall of the Temple and the Jewish State many of the laws appertaining to the Temple and the Land fell into abeyance owing to the force of circumstances. Recently, I. S. Zuri has attempted to establish that Rabban Gamaliel's abrogation was enacted soon after May 215 C.E. when Caracalla entered Antioch and thence marched his armies through Palestine on his way to Egypt, when the people had to pay ‘annonae’ to feed the armies. V. his שלטון הנשיאות והועד I, Vol. III, 58-59.

(12) If stored rain water is permitted, one will also work a shadoof.

(13) When much of it has been drawn off he will have to go deep down with his bucket, with almost as much exertion as from a shadoof.

(14) [And we do not apprehend the possibility of the pool drying up when he might go and fetch water from another river, with all the extra trouble it involves.]

(15) R. Ashi.

(16) R. Johanan, who prohibits rain water on account of a swipe-well.

(17) [Presumably because we apprehend lest he may go deep down with his bucket should the water be drawn off and the same should apply to the case of R. Zera.]

(18) And there is no likelihood of leading to exertion during the Festival Week.

(19) The former rough-cut and the latter well-made (Commentators on Alfasi). J.M.K. I, 1 reads הפיסקין והבריכה, which points to the Latin piscina, reservoir, swimming bath or fish-tank.

(20) Because their supply comes from a distance and may entail exertion should the supply fail.

(21) I.e., if the supply is plentiful.

(22) Because he will get what he may and if not enough will readily wait for a day or two for another chance, without going to exertion during the festival week.

(23) [So MS.M. Cur. edd. ‘trickles water (which one gets) from’].

(24) Tosef M.K. I, 1; J.M.K. I, 1.

(25) But once the trickling has ceased the pool has lost its supply and becomes like a swipe-well or stored rain water likely to entail exertion.

(26) During the festival week.

(27) [מדלין either (i) ‘medallin’ (from דלה), ‘raise water by means of buckets’, hence irrigate; or (ii) madlin (from דלל) ‘to lift (vegetables)’ for thinning the beds. At present the first rendering is assumed].

(28) The capital of the Armeman district Thospitis.,

(29) To water his vegetables.

(30) שמתא cf. infra 17a.

(31) מדלין or מדלין from דלה to raise, draw water with bucket (דלי).

(32) In the course of the festival week.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 4b

to pull out [vegetables],[1] as we learned:[2] ‘If one is [engaged in] thinning[3] vines, just as he may thin his own, so also he may thin those due to the poor;[4] so R. Judah. R. Meir says: He is permitted [to attend] to his own but not to those of the poor’.[5] Said Rabina: But it is taught [explicitly]: ‘One may raise water for vegetables if they are to be eaten’! — Said Rabbah [of Thospia] to Rabina: If it is thus taught, that settles the matter.[6]

NOR MAY SMALL BASINS [‘UGIOTH] BE FORMED ABOUT THE VINES. What is meant by ‘ugioth?[7] — Said Rab Judah, [What we call] banki.[8] It is also taught thus: These are ‘ugioth; light hoeing done about the roots of olives and at the roots of vines.[9] [But] this is not so, for did not Rab Judah allow the family of Bar-Zittai[10] to make banki in their vineyards? — This is not difficult: The one statement [in the Mishnah] refers to fresh [trenchings], the other [Rab Judah's] refers to re-trenching.[11]

R. ELEAZAR B. AZARIAH SAYS A [WATER] CHANNEL MAY NOT BE NEWLY MADE [DURING THE FESTIVAL WEEK, NOR IN THE SABBATICAL YEAR; BUT THE SAGES SAY].[12] It is perfectly in order in regard to the festival week, because he performs laborious work, but what reason can there be [against making a channel] in the sabbatical year? — R. Zera and R. Abba b. Memel differ in the matter: One says [it is forbidden] because [the digger] seems to be doing spading [in his field]; the other says, because he is [thereby] preparing the banks for sowing. What is the [practical] difference between the two [explanations]? — There is a difference where water comes along forthwith; according to the one who says that [it is] because he is preparing the banks for sowing, there is [still an objection], but according to the one who says that [it is] because he seems to be doing spading, there is none.[13] But, the one who objects on the ground that he seems to be doing spading, should he not likewise object on the ground that he seems to be preparing the bank for sowing? — Rather, the [practical] difference between them is where he takes [the mould] from the trench and throws it outside. According to the one who says that [it is] because he seems to be preparing the banks for sowing, there is no objection, whereas according to the one who says that [it is] because he seems to be spading, there is [still an objection]. But, he who takes the view that he seems to be preparing the banks for sowing, should he not likewise admit the objection that he seems to be doing spading? — [No,] because one who does spading, as soon as he takes up a spadeful he puts it down again in its place.

Amemar taught this [clause of the] Mishnah with the explanation [that R. Eleazar b. ‘Azariah forbids making a channel] ‘because he seems to be doing spading [in his field]’[14] but felt some difficulty about it in view of another statement of R. Eleazar b. ‘Azariah. Could R. Eleazar b. ‘Azariah [said he] have held the view that wherever one seems to be spading [his field],[14] it is forbidden? And he contrasted that with the [statement in the] following [Mishnah]:[15] One may lay up a store of manure [in his field].[14] R. Meir says he may not until he places it either three handbreadths below or three handbreadths above [the surface]. If he had some small quantity [already there] he may go on adding thereto. R. Eleazar b. ‘Azariah says [even then] he may not until he puts it down either three handbreadths below, or raises it three handbreadths above [the surface],[16] or places it on a rock!’ — R. Zera and R. Abba b. Memel [explained this seeming discrepancy], one said: [The latter Mishnah means where], for instance, he has had the place excavated; the other said: [The reason there is because] the manure heap itself attests his intention.[17]

AND [A CHANNEL] THAT HAS GOT OUT OF ORDER MAYBE RE-PAIRED. What is meant by OUT OF ORDER? — Said R. Abba:[18] ‘It means that if it is [now, for instance] but one handbreadth in depth, he may restore it to [a depth of] six handbreadths’. It is obvious that [to restore it] from half a handbreadth to [the original] three, seeing that there was [originally] scarcely any flow of water, it is nothing at all;[19] [to deepen it] front two handbreadths to [the original] twelve[20] which involves extra exertion,[21] is not [allowed]. What about [deepening it] front two [handbreadths] to [the original] seven? [Do we argue that] as in the first instance [it was explained above] he deepens it by five handbreadths, [from one to six], so here he deepens it by five handbreadths [from two to seven];[22] or, maybe that as in this instance he [actually] deepens the channel by an extra handbreadth there is extra exertion, and hence it is forbidden? — It stands undecided.

Abaye allowed the people of Harmek to clear away[23] [the growths obstructing][24] the canal.[25] R. Jeremiah allowed the people of Sacutha to dredge the canal that had become blocked.[26] R. Ashi allowed the people of Matha-Mehasia to clear obstructions from the river Barnis, saying that as the public obtained their drinking water from it it was virtually a [pressing] public need, and we learn: AND ALL PUBLIC NEEDS MAY BE PERFORMED.

---

(1) I.e., one may lift vegetables for thinning and improving the crop. If the vegetables pulled up are to be eaten in the course of the festival week, and it should be vocalized to read madlin.

(2) Pe'ah VII, 5. Cf. IV.

(3) מידל from דלל.

(4) V. Lev. XIX, 10; Deut. XXIV, 21.

(5) Because he has no right to handle them, as if they were his.

(6) It is taught.

(7) Grooves, ditchlets, or circular depressions, or trenching drawn around a group of vines. V. n. 5 on Mishnah.

(8) Little hollows, basins.

(9) Tosef. M.K. I, 2. Cf. Ibid. Sheb. I.

(10) A well-known family referred to in Yeb. 21b.

(11) Lit., ‘old ones’.

(12) V. Mishnah 2a.

(13) The flow of water in the trench shows that he has no intention of spading the field.

(14) In the sabbatical year.

(15) Sheb. III, 3.

(16) Here R. Eleazar b. ‘Azariah permits digging in the field in the sabbatical year to prepare a place for the manure store without seeming concern about giving a wrong impression, that he is said to have had in his mind when he prohibited the making of a water channel.

(17) Lit., ‘is the proof for him’. Cf. J.M.K. I, 2. J. Sheb. III, 2.

(18) D.S. react Abbahu.

(19) It is useless work to be done in the festival week (Rashi).

(20) That is, proportionately double, i.e., from one to six and from two to twelve.

(21) V. supra 2a, pp. 3 and 4.

(22) And it should therefore be permitted.

(23) During the festival week.

(24) Projecting from the banks, or weeds choking the canal.

(25) Or stream.

(26) According to J.M.K. I, 2 it was a public bathing pool that had got into disorder at Sacutha and R. Abbahu allowed the repairing to be done in the festival week.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 5a

AND IMPAIRED WATER-WORKS[1] IN THE PUBLIC DOMAIN MAY BE REPAIRED AND CLEANED OUT. [That is to say only] to repair, but not to be dug [afresh]. Said R. Jacob as reporting R. Johanan: This was taught only where there is no public need; but where there is public need[2] for it even [fresh] digging is allowed.

And where there is a public need is digging allowed? Surely it is taught: ‘Wells,[3] ditches or caverns of a private person may be cleaned out, and needless to say, those of the public; but wells, ditches or caverns of the public may not be dug and still less those of a private person'.[4] Does not that mean that [digging is not allowed] even where the public has need of it? — No, [only] where the public has no need of it. Then similarly the reference to a private person is where the private person has no need of it, but in that case is 'cleaning out' allowed? Surely it is taught: 'Wells, ditches or caverns of a private person may have water run into them, but they may not be cleaned out, nor have their cracks plastered; but those of the public may be cleaned out and their cracks may be plastered'? — But what else [are we to say] but that the private person has need of it; in which case [the references to the public is similarly where the public has need of it? But where the public has need of it, is digging forbidden? Surely it is taught: 'Wells, ditches or caverns of a private person may have water run into them or be cleaned out; but their cracks may not be plastered, nor may the scourings be put into them,[5] nor may they be plastered with cement. But those of the public may be dug and plastered with cement'.[6] But [if so], the first [Baraitha] is difficult. Explain it thus: 'Wells, [ditches or caverns] of a private person [may be cleaned out]' — providing he has need of them, 'and needless to say those of the public' — when the public has need of them, as then, even digging is allowed.[7] 'But wells, ditches or caverns of the public are not to be dug' — when the public has no need of them, 'still less, those of a private person', as when a private person has no need of them, even cleaning out is not allowed. R. Ashi remarked: Our own Mishnah is also precisely worded [to the same effect] as it states AND ALL PUBLIC NEEDS MAY BE PERFORMED. What is the force of ALL? Is it not meant to include digging? — No; it is to include [other instances] such as are taught [in the following]: 'They [Public Commissioners] go forth to clear the roads of thorns, to mend the broadways and [main] highways and to measure the [ritual] pools; and if any [ritual] pools be found short of forty [cubic] se'ahs of water[8] they train a continuous flow into it [to ensure] forty se'ahs'. And whence do we know that if they did not go forth and attend to all these [public needs], then if any blood be shed there [through] this neglect [Scripture] lays [blame] on them, as if they themselves had shed it? From the instructive text, And so blood be upon thee.[9] But surely [the Mishnah does] state these instances expressly: AND ROADS, BROADWAYS AND [RITUAL] WATER POOLS AND ALL PUBLIC NEEDS MAY BE PERFORMED! What else [then] may be included under this word ALL? Is it not digging [afresh if required by the public]? This proves it.

AND GRAVESIDES MAY BE MARKED. R. Simeon b. Pazzi said: Where is an indication in the Torah that gravesides should be marked? In the instructive text: [And when they pass through . . . the land] and one seeth a man's bone then shall he set up a sign by it.[10] Said Rabina to R. Ashi, But who told us that[11] before Ezekiel came? — [Said the other]: Accepting your view, with regard to the statement made by R. Hisda[12] [namely]: This point we do not learn from the law of our Master Moses; we learn it from the words of [prophet] Ezekiel the son of Buzi: No alien, uncircumcised in heart and uncircumcised in flesh, shall enter into My Sanctuary.[13] [We might equally ask], who had told us that before Ezekiel came and stated it? Only, that was first learnt by oral tradition and then Ezekiel came and gave us a textual basis for it; here too, it was first learnt as an oral tradition and then Ezekiel came and gave us a textual basis for it. R. Abbahu suggested that it may be derived from this [text]: And he shall cry, 'Unclean! Unclean!'[14] [That is], impurity cries out [to the passer-by] and tells him, 'Keep off!' And R. 'Uzziel, the grandson of the elder R. 'Uzziel said the same, [that] impurity cries out and tells him, 'Keep off!' But was this [text] intended for this lesson? It is required for what has been taught: And he shall cry 'Unclean! Unclean!'; [this teaches that] one must needs make his distress known to many, that many pray for mercy on his behalf? — If that be so, let the text read 'Unclean' [but once]; why has it 'Unclean', 'Unclean' [twice over]? Infer [from it] the two points. Abaye said [that the rule[15] may be derived] from here: And put not a stumbling-block before the blind.[16] R. Papa said: And he will say, Cast ye up, cast ye up, clear the way.[17] R. Hinena suggested, Take up the stumbling-block out of the way of My people.[17] R. Joshua the son of R. Idi said: And thou shalt show them the way wherein they must walk.[18] Mar Zutra said: And ye shall separate the Children of Israel from their uncleanness.[19] R. Ashi said: And they shall have charge of My charge,[20] [which implies], make safeguards to My charge. Rabina said: And to him who ordereth[21] [we-sam] his way will I show the salvation of God.[22]

Said R. Joshua b. Levi, Whoever appraises [ha-sham] his ways [in this life][23] becomes privileged to behold the salvation of the Holy One, blessed be He, for it is said: ‘[And to him] who ordereth his way’.[22] Read not [we-sam][24] who sets [his way], but [we-sham][25] who appraises the worth [of his way], him will I show the divine salvation. R. Jannai had a certain disciple who daily raised critical points [at his college][26] but refrained from raising any critical points at the periodic lectures of the Festival Sabbaths[27]

---

(1) Damaged wells or cisterns, etc. Cf. Mishnah n. 6.

(2) Lit., ‘where the public needs them.’ Though there be no immediate need for it, yet ‘cleaning out’ may be done in the festival week.

(3) Or ‘cisterns, pits.

(4) Note the absence of the proviso of ‘need’ in this Baraitha, which seemingly contradicts R. Johanan's quoted comment above.

(5) To fill the cracks.

(6) The first Baraitha, which forbids digging public wells even when the public has need of them, contradicts this latter Baraitha which permits.

(7) In agreement with R. Johanan's ruling.

(8) The minimum quantity of natural flowing water, calculated to allow an average person to go in and submerge himself completely. V. Mak., Sonc. ed. p. 13, n. 2.

(9) Deut. XIX, 10 in conjunction with verse 3, and Num. XXXV, 12 and 25, which was a public charge.

(10) Ezek. XXXIX, 15. This is a mere allusion as the verse refers to the future.

(11) In the Pentateuch, the main source of Law.

(12) V. Ta'an 17a and 17b.

(13) Ezek. XLIV, 9.

(14) The leper, in his state of uncleanness, shall warn those who approach him. Lev. XIII, 45.

(15) For marking off graves.

(16) Lev. XIX, 14. A travelling priest or pilgrim might by stepping unawares on a grave become defiled.

(17) Isa. LVII, 14.

(18) Ex. XVIII, 20.

(19) Lev. XV, 31; which with Num. XIX, 13, 20 has a special bearing on this marking for pilgrims on their way to visit the Temple and celebrate the Passover (Num. IX, 6ff).

(20) Lev. XXII, 9 as referring especially to priests and Levites who are charged again and again with repeated warnings. Cf. Num. XVIII, 3,4,5.

(21) In the sense of marking off the unclean paths for the people to avoid.

(22) Ps. L, 23.

(23) Some texts add these words.

(24) From the root שׂם to put, place, set out, e.g., Ex. XXI, 13 and especially Isa. XLIII, 19.

(25) From the later Hebrew שׁם, to estimate, the value or worth of an object or claim.

(26) Often this task was assigned to the most prominent member of the college or the Vice-principal.

(27) When many strangers were gathered to hear the master on the topics of the day. Cf. B.M. 97a.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 5b

. He [R. Jannai] applied to him the text: And to him who ordereth his way will I show the salvation of God.[1]

Our Rabbis taught: ‘No markings are made to indicate [the presence of] a piece of flesh[2] [from a corpse] no larger than an olive, nor of [human] bone no larger than a barley-corn,[3] nor of any [human] remains which do not diffuse defilement under ‘tent’.[4] But markings are made to indicate [the presence of] a [human] spine, a skull or the major members of a skeleton or the major number of lesser bones thereof.[5] And the markings are not made in cases of certainty[6] but [only] in cases of uncertainty. These are [instances of] uncertainty: Leafy bowers,[7] jutting ledges[8] and a Peras-area.[9] And the markings are not placed on the site of the impurity [itself], in order to avoid wasting what is [preserved as] pure;[10] nor is the marking placed far away from the spot, in order to avoid wasting any space[11] of the Land of Israel'.[12] But does not flesh of an olive's size from a human body diffuse defilement under a tent? For we learned: 'The following diffuse defilement by tent [overspreading]: Flesh of an olive's size from a human dead body . . .'! — Said R. Papa, We speak here of an olive's size precisely which after all shrinks [to less]: far better is it that terumah and other meats that are pure[13] should be burnt [unnecessarily] on one occasion[14] than that they should be burnt continuously.[15]

And these are [instances] of uncertainty: Leafy bowers and jutting ledges.[16] 'Leafy bowers' [means] a tree which overspreads the ground[17] and 'jutting ledges' are [stones][18] projecting from wall enclosure.[17] 'And a Peras-area': as we learned: 'One who runs a plough over a grave makes the site a Peras-area'; and how much thereof has he thus affected? The full length of a furrow, one hundred cubits [each way].[19] But does a Peras-area convey defilement by tent? Surely, Rab Judah, citing Samuel, said that one [a pilgrim] may walk across a Peras-area cautiously fanning his way [in front of him]![20] Moreover, R. Judah b. Ammi, in the name of 'Ulla, said that a Peras-area which has been [much] trampled is [considered as] clean?[21] — Said R. Papa: 'This [discrepancy] is not difficult [to explain]. The former statement refers to a field where a grave has become lost;[22] whereas the latter refers to a field where a grave had been run over by the plough'.[23] But is a field where a grave has been lost[24] [correctly] called a Peras-area? — Yes [indeed], for we learned: 'There are three kinds of Peras-areas — [a] a field where a grave has been lost[25] [b] a field where a grave has been run over by the plough[26] and [c] the weepers' field'.[27] What is the weepers' field? — R. Joshua[28] b. Abba explained in the name of 'Ulla that it is a field where they bid final farewell[29] to the dead. And wherefore [is it held as a defiling area]? — Said [R. Hisda, as reporting][30] Abimi, [It is] because there is here a possibility[31] of abandoned ownership.[32] But does not a field where a grave has been run over by the plough require to be marked? Surely it is taught: 'If one came upon a marked field without knowing its character,[33] then if there are trees on it,it is thereby indicated that a grave in it had been run over by the plough;[34] if there are no trees, it is thereby indicated that a grave has been lost in it.[35] R. Judah says: [The presence of trees is no criterion] until there is some elder or disciple [to attest it], for not all are well versed on the subject [of proper markings]'! — Said R. Papa: What is taught in this [latter Baraitha] refers to a field in which a grave had been lost, and which had [consequently] been marked. If there are trees on it, it is thereby indicated that a grave had been run over by the plough [subsequently]; if there are no trees on it, it is indicated that a grave had been lost in it.[36] But is there not a danger that the trees are situate within the field and the grave was outside?[37] — as 'Ulla said [elsewhere that we speak of a case where][38] the trees are situate on the boundaries [of the field] here likewise they were situate on the boundary line.[39]

---

(1) In appreciation of his disciple's thoughtful considerateness towards himself on those special public occasions. Cf. Ta'an. 9b and B.K. 117a.

(2) As flesh soon shrinks to less than its (traditional) minimum size of an olive and is then impotent to cause defilement without direct contact, Num. XIX, 13-16; Ohal. II, 3.

(3) Which is (traditionally) the minimum size for human bone to cause defilement by direct contact. V. references in previous note and Tosaf. s.v. עצם.

(4) Anything extending to one handbreadth over dead human remains represents the 'tent' of Num. XIX, 14, to diffuse defilement without contact, unless it is less than the minimum size.

(5) Any of these enumerated defile under cover without coming into direct contact with the object or grave. Any covering to the extent of one handbreadth, say his coat tail or sleeve spread, or hanging down over the spot, is enough to defile him, even if neither he nor his garment touch the unclean thing or spot.

(6) As people take care of their own accord not to run the risk of personal defilement or the loss of sacred meats.

(7) Lit., 'coverings', arbours, groves, avenues or single trees whose thick branches are full of folliage, constitute a 'tent', to spread the defilement to the walker; cf. Tosaf. s.v. אילן.

(8) E.g., stone copings, boards and ledges projecting from cemetery walls each way within and without, constitute a ‘tent’. These are doubtful, as one is not certain whether there is a corpse near by within.
(9) Defined lower down. On the term v. Pes., Sonc. ed. p. 492, n. 4.
(10) Which may be brought close to the grave and defiled before one is aware. To those pure’ things belong e.g., the priest's due — terumah ‘first-fruits’, ‘second tithe’, etc. Cf. Num. XVIII, 11-13;26-30.
(11) I.e., declaring any of it unclean unnecessarily.
(12) Cf. Sot. 30b.
(13) Reading טהרות (instead of קדשים), as holy sacrificial meat is not carried about.
(14) While the human dead flesh, soon after the burial is still of the size potent to defile.
(15) Through the unnecessary space included in the marking. Holy food or drink (wine, corn, fruit and oil) could not be given away or thrown away, it had to be burnt.
(16) Explaining the above technical terms.
(17) Near a cemetery; Ohal. VIII, 2.
(18) The word ‘stones’ is omitted in the above Baraitha as the fence or wall enclosure may be any of other materials.
(19) Ibid. XVII, 1. (Cf. ‘furlong’ as the length of a furrow).
(20) With bellows or a spade to blow away from his path, without touching any piece of splintered bone cast up by the plough. They used to bury the dead in a very shallow grave, barely three handbreadths under the surface, which were therefore easily exposed. Cf. Tosaf. s.v. מנפה and Ohal. XVIII, 5.
(21) And need not be marked or avoided. (Han.).
(22) And, as it cannot be located, the whole field is considered a place of defilement.
(23) The plough, we assume, crushes the bones rendering them impotent to communicate tent-defilement.
(24) So according to Wilna Gaon. Cur. edd., that was ploughed over.
(25) Ohal. XVIII, 3.
(26) Ibid. 2.
(27) Ibid. 4’
(28) Better D.S.; ‘R. Hoshaia in the name of ‘Ulla’.
(29) The ‘broad place’ or forum provided on the cemetery.
(30) So D.S. and Ritba.
(31) Lit., ‘a touch of’, contingency.
(32) Loose limbs may have been dropped in transit, which the mourners being unable to identify, leave abandoned. On the practice of collecting bones after temporary burial and transferring them to their permanent place of rest v. infra 8a and Ber. 18a.
(33) Whether a grave had been lost in it, and the field cannot then be traversed by ‘fanning’, or whether the grave had the plough run over it in which case it may be traversed by ‘fanning’.
(34) For the sake of the trees, this shows that a field in which a grave had been run over by the plough is marked.
(35) As such a field is not to be planted, Ohal. XVIII, 3; Tosef. Ohal. XVII.
(36) And had not been ploughed over.
(37) I.e., where the soil had not been ploughed, so that it is treated like a field wherein a grave had been lost.
(38) Ned. 42b.
(39) And since dead are not buried on the road, the grave must be among the trees and has been run over by the plough, when the field has been tilled for the good of the trees.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 6a

But perhaps the defilement lies within the field while the trees stand on the outer sides [of it]?[1] — They were planted irregularly.[2] Or, if you like, I may explain by what was said above: Nor is the marking placed far away from the spot, in order to avoid wasting any space of the Land of Israel.[3]

‘R. Judah says [the presence of trees is no criterion] until there be some elder or disciple [to attest that it has been ploughed], for not all are well versed in the subject [of markings]’. Said Abaye: You may infer from here, that when a scholar is resident in a place, all local matters devolve upon him.

Said Rab Judah: If one comes across a [single] stone which is marked [with lime], the space under it is defiled; if two stones [with markings] then if there is lime on the space between them, the space between is defiled, and if there is no lime between them, the intervening space is clean, even though there is no [sign of] tilling [there]. But surely it is taught: 'If one comes upon one stone which is marked, the space under it is defiled, if on two stones, if there is tilling between them, the intervening space is clean, if not, it is defiled'? — Said R. Papa. Here [it is a case where] the lime had been poured on top of the stones and got spread here and there. [Now] if there is any tilling [in the space] between them, [the space] between is clean, because it may be presumed that the [splashed] lime had got peeled off by the tilling; whereas if there is not [any trace of tilling] the lime is intended to mark the space between and it is 'defiled'.

Said R. Assi:[4] If one boundary is marked, that side [alone] is 'defiled', but the rest of the entire field is 'clean'. If two [are marked] those [alone] are 'defiled', but the rest of the entire field is 'clean'; if three [are marked], those are 'defiled', but the rest of the entire field is clean; if the four [boundaries are marked] they are clean and the entire field [within] is 'defiled',for the Master[5] said: 'Nor is the marking place far away from the spot, in order to avoid wasting space of the Land of Israel'.[6]

AND [PUBLIC COMMISSIONERS] SET OUT [ALSO] TO INSPECT DIVERSE SEED-CROPS. But do we set out for inspecting seed-crops during the festival week? This is contradicted by the [following]: On the first of Adar announcements are made about the [contribution of] shekels and about the diverse crops. On the fifteenth thereof the scroll [of Esther] is read in the [ancient] walled cities and [commissioners] go forth to clear the roads of thorns, mend the broadways, measure the [ritual] water-pools and to perform all public needs, and they mark the gravesides and go forth to inspect the diverse seed-crops?[7] — R. Eleazar and R. Jose b. Hanina [gave differing explanations], One said, The latter statement speaks of earlier crops,[8] the other of later[9] crops; the other said, In one case[8] [they go out to attend] to grain crops, in the others to vegetable crops.

R. Assi, reporting R. Johanan said: The rule laid down [in the Mishnah] applies only when the sproutings [of the season are late and] had not become recognizable[10] [before then]; but where the sproutings had become recognizable [before], they went forth about them [even earlier].

Why do we particularly set out during the festival week? R. Jacob reporting R. Johanan explained that it was because the wages given for labour are then low with us.[11]

R. Zebid, or some say, R. Mesharsheya said: From the afore — mentioned [explanation] you may infer that when pay was given,[12] it was given them out of the Terumah of the [Shekel] Chamber;[13] for if you should suppose that they [the owners of the fields] themselves paid, what difference does it make to us? Let them pay whatever they ask.[14]

And how much [constitutes an admixture]?[15] Said R. Samuel b. Isaac, The same as we learned:[16] Every se'ah of seeds that contains one quarter [of a kab][17]

---

(1) And the grave has not been disturbed at all. What is the indication of the trees in such a case?

(2) Not in even rows, but promiscuously and thus the whole site had to be disturbed by the ploughing.

(3) [And since the marking is in proximity to the trees, it is evident that the defilement lay between the trees].

(4) Explaining the precise principle and system of marking, by confining the markings close to the spot of defilement.

(5) In the Baraitha, supra 5b.

(6) [Consequently where the whole field was defiled the whole of the four boundaries had to be marked. As to the cleanliness of the boundaries themselves, v. Tosaf. s.v. אמר.]

(7) Shek. I, 1. Meg. 13b.

(8) In mid Adar.

(9) In our Mishnah again directing it to be done in mid Nisan during the festival week.

(10) Cf. e.g., Ex. IX, 32.

(11) As ordinary work, apart from emergencies, is suspended during the festival week.

(12) For the work.

(13) V. Shek. III, 1.

(14) As this was a punitive campaign against the inobservant, let them be mulcted.

(15) What quantity of diverse seeds necessitate; the pulling up of the (offensive) crop?

(16) In reference to initial sowing, Kil. II, 1.

(17) A se'ah contains six kabs and a quarter of a kab's admixture is therefore one twenty-fourth of the se'ah, or enough seed to be sown in a field of 50 X 50 cubits.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 6b

of another kind must be reduced.[1] But it is taught: They [the authorities] introduced a rule that they should declare ownerless the [crop of the] entire field? — That is not difficult [to explain]. The former [Mishnah] states the practice before the [new] rule, while the latter [of the Baraitha] gives the practice after the [introduction] of the rule, as it is [distinctly] taught: Formerly they [the public commissioners] used to uproot [the diverse-crop], throwing it to the cattle, at which the owners were doubly pleased, for one thing that they weeded their fields for them, and again that they threw [the forbidden crop] to the cattle; thereupon they made a [new] regulation that they should pull up [the forbidden crop] and cast it on the road. And still the owners were greatly pleased, because they weeded their fields. Thereupon they instituted that they should declare ownerless the crop of the entire field.[2]

MISHNAH. R. ELIEZER B. JACOB SAYS: WATER MAY BE DRAWN FROM [ONE] TREE TO [ANOTHER] TREE,[3] PROVIDED THE WHOLE FIELD IS NOT WATERED IN THIS WAY.[4] SEEDS[5] THAT HAVE NOT HAD [ANY] DRINK BEFORE THE FESTIVAL WEEK MAY NOT BE WATERED DURING THE FESTIVAL WEEK.[6] THE SAGES HOWEVER ALLOW IT IN BOTH THE ONE CASE AND THE OTHER.[7]

GEMARA. [NOT...THE ENTIRE FIELD]. Said Rab Judah,[8] If the field has a clayey[9] soil he may [water it].[10] It is likewise taught:[11] When they said[12] that it is forbidden to water them during the festival [week], they referred only to seeds that had not drunk before the festival; but seeds that had drunk before the festival may [again] be watered during the festival [week]; and if the field was a clayey soil, it is allowed [to water it]. And a bare[13] field is not watered during the festival [week]; but the Sages allow it[14] in the one case and in the other. Said Rabina: You may infer from here that a garden plot may be sprinkled[15] in the festival week. For in the case of a bare field, why is it [permitted]?[16] Because it just quickens a tardy soil; here too, it just quickens a tardy soil.

Our Rabbis taught: ‘A white field may be sprinkled[17] in the sabbatical year, but not during the festival [week]’. But it has been taught: It may be sprinkled either in the sabbatical year or during the festival [week]?[18] — Said R. Huna, This [discrepancy] is not difficult [to explain]; the former [quotation] states the view of R. Eliezer b. Jacob[19] and the latter that of the Rabbis.[20]

Another [Baraitha] taught: A white field may be[21] sprinkled in the pre-sabbatical year so that the greens may sprout in the sabbatical year. Nay, more, a white field may be[21] sprinkled in the sabbatical year, so that the greens may sprout [better] in the post-sabbatical year.

MISHNAH. MOLES AND MICE MAY BE TRAPPED IN A TREE-FIELD OR WHITE FIELD IN THE USUAL WAY[22] DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK] AND IN THE SABBATICAL YEAR: BUT THE SAGES[23] SAY, IN THE TREE-FIELD IN THE USUAL WAY AND IN THE WHITE FIELD NOT IN THE USUAL WAY: AND A BREACH MAY BE BLOCKED UP DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK] AND IN THE SABBATICAL YEAR ONE MAY BUILD IN THE USUAL WAY.

GEMARA. What is ESHUTH?[24] — Said Rab Judah: [It is] a creature which has no eyes. Raba b. Ishmael, some say, R. Yemar b. Shelemia, said, What [may be the] text [for this]? — 'Let them [the wicked] be as a snail which melteth and passeth away; like the young mole [esheth][25] which hath not seen the sun.[26]

Our Rabbis taught: Moles and mice may be trapped in a white field and in a tree-field in the usual way and ants' holes may also be destroyed. How are they destroyed? Rabbah Simeon b. Gamaliel says: Earth is fetched from one hole and put into another and they[27] strangle each other. R. Yemar b. Shelemia said in the name of Abaye, That is [effective] only if [the nests are] situate on two sides of the river; and that [again], if there is no bridge; and that [again], if there is not [even] a [crossing] plank; and that [again], if there is not even a rope [to cross by].

---

(1) Or when already sown and sprouting the admixture is to be pulled up.

(2) As a deterrent, s.v. Shek. 1, 3.

(3) If the fruit-trees need it.

(4) I.e., under this pretext.

(5) Grain crops, white and leguminous, in contrast to fruit-trees.

(6) Either because they then require fuller attention, entailing greater exertion, or to discourage leaving the task for this week of leisure.

(7) The Sages disagree in both clauses of the Mishnah, i.e., that they do allow watering the entire orchard by training from tree to tree, and allow watering seeds even if they had not been watered before the festival.

(8) D.S.: R. Huna.

(9) 'Trees, shrubs . . . generally thrive better in heavy soil'. 'Clays are especially of a pourous nature and consequently retentive of water and plant food'. H. J. Webb, Element, Agriculture, 1896, p. 20.

(10) Otherwise the soil goes hard.

(11) Var. lec. insert, R. Eliezer b. Jacob said.

(12) R. Eliezer b. Jacob and those who share his view.

(13) I.e., a plot uncultivated at the moment; cf. Pes. 55a and Lewin Otz. Hag. IV, 3, No. 6, p. 10.

(14) Both in the case of seeds that were not watered before the festival, and in the case of a bare field when an extra chance supply of water occurs, thereby to fit the soil for its turn to be sown or planted.

(15) By hand, jug or watering pot but not by regular irrigation, I.e., running the water into the field by ridges or channels.

(16) According to the Rabbis. So taken in Otz. Hag. l.c. and Tosaf. here s.v. ר,י but Han. explains differently.

(17) Of cereals and legumina. Rashi here takes it as a Baal-field, i.e., one favourably situated as regards rain and sunshine.

(18) This is in agreement with Rashi and Tosaf. according to the reading in our text. Var. lec.: 'May not be sprinkled... neither in the sabbatical year nor during the festival (week)'. V. Han. Alfasi. The reading is discussed by the Tosafist R. Shimshon (b. Abraham) of Sens in his commentary on Sheb. II, 10.

(19) Who disallows (in the Mishnah) watering the whole field in the festival week (and sprinkling marrows with 'white earth' even in the sabbatical year). Sheb. II, 10 q.v.

(20) Both in our Mishnah and in the first cited Baraitha, as regards the tree-field and seeds.

(21) Tosef. Sheb. II, 1 reads 'a field'.

(22) Mishnah texts read here 'not in the usual way'.

(23) Var. lec. R. Judah; v. Gemara infra. Obviously, it is ultimately the view adopted by the Sages. 7a.

(24) The Hebrew word for 'moles' in the Mishnah.

(25) Biblical Hebrew for Eshuth.

(26) Ps. LVIII, 9.

(27) The ants of the two nests not knowing each other.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 7a

How much [apart]? — Up to a parasang.[1]

R. JUDAH[2] SAYS: IN THE TREE-FIELD IN THE USUAL WAY AND IN THE WHITE FIELD NOT IN THE USUAL WAY. Our Rabbis taught: How is the usual way? He digs a hole and suspends a trap in it. How is the unusual way? He drives a stake [into the spot] or strikes it with a pick and flattens out the soil underneath.[3] It is taught: R. Simeon b. Eleazar[4] says, When they[5] said, [‘And in the white field not in the usual way’], they said it only in reference to a white field situate near the city; but in a white field that is situate near a tree-field [they may trap them] even in the usual way, lest these [pests] come away from the white field and destroy the tree-field.

AND A BREACH IS BLOCKED UP DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]. How is it ‘blocked up’? — Said R. Joseph: With [a hurdle made of] twigs and daphne stakes. In a Baraitha it is taught: ‘Loose rubble is piled up without being plastered with clay.[6] Said R. Hisda, This[7] is taught only with regard to a garden wall,[8] but the wall of a court[9] is built in the usual way. Might one suggest that the following supports him: A wall that is bulging out into the public domain may be pulled down and built in the usual way, because it constitutes a danger [to the passers-by]![10] — [Not necessarily]. There the reason is as stated: ‘Because it constitutes a danger’. Some [put the argument] as follows: Come and hear: A wall that is bulging out into the public domain may be pulled down and built in the ordinary way, because it constitutes a danger. That is, where it constitutes a danger he may, but if it is not a danger he may not build. May we see in this a confutation of R. Hisda? — [Not necessarily], as R. Hisda might reply: There[11] he may ‘pull down and build’, whereas here[12] he may build[13] but not pull down. Then let one in that case[11] likewise [merely] pull down[14] and not build![15] — If so, he might refrain even from pulling down.[16] R. Ashi said: Our Mishnah, here, gives an indication to the same effect,[17] for it states: BUT IN THE SABBATICAL YEAR, ONE BUILDS IN THE ORDINARY WAY. Now of what is it [that he may block up the breach]? If it means [the wall of] his courtyard, does this need to be stated?[18] It can only be, therefore [a breach in] his garden [wall] although he might seem to be doing it in order to safeguard his fruits.[19] You can infer it [from this].

MISHNAH.[20] R. MEIR SAYS: AN [INITIAL][21] INSPECTION OF LEPROUS SYMPTOMS MAY BE MADE [DURING THE FESTIVAL ‘WEEK][22] FOR [THE PRIEST TO MAKE] A LENIENT PRONOUNCEMENT[23] [ON THE FINDINGS], BUT NOT TO MAKE A SEVERE[24] PRONOUNCEMENT; BUT THE SAGES SAY: [IT IS TO BE MADE] NEITHER FOR A LENIENT NOR FOR A SEVERE PRONOUNCEMENT.[25]

GEMARA. It is taught: R. Meir says that an inspection is made [during the festival week] to make a lenient pronouncement but not for a severe one. R. Jose says: Neither for making a lenient nor a severe pronouncement;[26] as, if you arrive at the necessity of having to make a lenient pronouncement [on the findings] you are [likewise] bound to make a severe pronouncement. Said Rabbi: R. Meir's statement seems appropriately applied to the case of an [observational] detention[27] and R. Jose's to that of a decided leper.[28]

Said Raba, In the case of one who is [as yet nominally] ‘clean’,[29] all are agreed that he is not examined.[30] In regard to one under preliminary [observational] detention, all agree that he is examined;[31] where a difference of opinion arises is

---

(1) Four Roman miles.

(2) V. Mishnah note.

(3) I.e., rams it down to flatten out the tunnelled cavities.

(4) Sheeltoth reads: R. Eleazar b. Jacob. Our reacting, however, is well attested.
(5) The Sages (adopting R. Judah's view).
(6) Cf. infra 11a.
(7) The ruling that he may merely block it up but not build in the usual way.
(8) Which can wait, as not much damage or loss could be caused by this temporary delay.
(9) As the Talmudic saying goes: ‘The breach invites the thief’ (Suk. 26a, SBH), or the possible loss of cattle or poultry, by straying.
(10) Tosef. I, 4; infra 13a.
(11) The case of a dangerous wall.
(12) Where there is no public danger.
(13) If it had already broken down.
(14) Just remove the danger.
(15) During the festival week, as in the other private case.
(16) It is therefore ultimately a case of public need which may be performed during the festival week. Cf J.M.K. a.l., ‘R. Hananiah in the name of R. Johanan (said), They permitted the last act thereof by reason of the first (the danger)’.
(17) As R. Hisda's interpretation.
(18) That he may build it in the ordinary way (cf. the discussion above).
(19) ‘Yet he may in the usual way in the Sabbatical year, but not in Festival week’.
(20) The technical points involved in the discussion of this Mishnah bearing on the diagnosis of the symptoms of (biblical) leprosy and the treatment of the patient are the following: (a) The diagnosis may be made by any expert, priest or layman, ‘save that the pronouncement of "cleanness" or "uncleanness" is assigned to the priest: if the priest be told that the man is "clean", he pronounces him clean; if he be told the man is "unclean", he pronounces him unclean’. Neg. III, 1. (b) On the findings of the first inspection the priest pronounced the patient either (i) as ‘clean’ and discharged, or as ‘unclean’, to be isolated; and (ii) in some cases of doubt, to be remanded for seven days’ observational detention. Cf. Lev. XIII, 2-4ff; Neg. III, 3-4. (c) After a second inspection in doubtful cases, the priest pronounced the patient either ‘clean’ or ‘unclean’ as before, or if still in doubt a further remand for seven days’ observational detention. Cf. Lev. ibid. 5-8; 13-17; Neg. ibid. 5-6. (d) On the third and final inspection he declared him ‘clean’ and discharged or ‘unclean’ to be isolated, until he recovered from his affection. During these periods the patient was allowed to consort with his wife. (e) On his recovery the patient went through two ritual purifications, (i) a preliminary, outside the town and returned home for seven days, during which, however, he was not to consort with his wife; cf. Lev. XIV, 2-8; Neg. XIV, 1-2. He then went through a second ritual purification which admitted him to the sanctuary for the sacrificial rites. Lev. XIV, 9ff; Neg. ibid. 3 and 7ff.
(21) בתחילה seems best omitted here, as seems apparent from Raba's comment infra, and other ancient texts, e.g., Asheri and commentaries of Alfasi, although our editions of Alfasi as well as the Mishnah texts (Babylonian and Palestian) have it. V. Heller, Tosaf. Yom Tob and particularly Dr E. Baneth's full critical examination in his commentary on the Mishnah, Berlin,, 1925, Pt. II, p. 161, n. 26.
(22) This (bracketed) expression is in the Mishnah text and is essential here.
(23) If the findings warrant it, to pronounce him ‘clean’; and if not, to withhold the adverse pronouncement pending the festival.
(24) If the symptoms are unfavourable, to order an observational detention (first or second), or his isolation as a confirmed ‘unclean’ leper. Cf. supra, n. 11, b, c, and d.
(25) I.e., no inspection is to be made during the festival week.
(26) I.e., the view adopted by the Sages (in the Mishnah).
(27) V. p. 35, n. 3.
(28) After the first or second detention. V. the following discussion by Raba.
(29) I.e., who has not yet submitted to an inspection.
(30) During the festival.
(31) If he is pronounced ‘clean’ he is happy; if he is remanded for a second period he is no worse off.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 7b

in the case of one under a second [observational] detention: one Master [R. Meir] considers that it is left to [the discretion of] the priest, so that if the patient is [found] ‘clean’ he declares him ‘clean’, and if he is [found] ‘unclean’ he holds his peace; while the other Master [R.Jose] considers that, [since] it is written: [This is the law of the plague and leprosy. . .], to pronounce it clean or unclean,[1] [the priest has no choice].[2]

The Master said: Said Rabbi, R. Jose's statement seems appropriately applied to the case of a decided leper[3] and R. Meir's to one under [observational] detention.[4] But the reverse[5] is taught [elsewhere]? — Both versions are [variant] tannaitic interpretations of Rabbi's observation. One [authority][6] is of the opinion that the patient prefers the company of the world at large[7] [during the Festival], while the other [authority][8] holds that he prefers to retain his wife's company.[9]

Is that to say that [according to Rabbi][10] a confirmed leper may have the use of the [conjugal] bed? — [Yes], it is taught: But he shall dwell outside his tent seven days,[11] [that is] he shall be[12] precluded from the use of the [conjugal] bed; for ‘tent’ means nothing but [living with] his wife, as it is said: Go, say unto them, return ye unto your tents.[13] R. Judah says:[14] [It is written,] [And after he is cleansed] they shall reckon for him seven days,[15] [which implies that he is precluded only] while counting his seven days [‘after he is cleansed] but not while he is a confirmed leper’. R. Jose b. Judah says: ‘[I take it to mean he is precluded] while counting seven days [and] all the more so while he is a confirmed leper’. ‘And’ ‘said R. Hiyya: ‘I argued on this point before Rabbi’. Our Master! [said I], You taught that [King] Jotham could not have been born unto Uzziahu[16] save during the time that he was a confirmed leper,[17] [to which] Rabbi replied, ‘and I said so too’.[18]

Wherein do they differ? — R. Jose b. Judah argues that as the All Merciful has plainly indicated[19] that a convalescent leper [‘shall dwell outside his tent’][20] while counting his seven days [of preliminary ritual purification] it is all the more [to be expected that he be apart from his wife] while being in the state of a confirmed leper; and the [other] Master [Rabbi] argues that what has been plainly indicated is [to be kept as] indicated and what has not been indicated is not [to be assumed as] indicated.[21]

[Reverting to Raba's explanation above], do you mean to say that [the postponement of an unfavourable pronouncement or of the time of inspection][22] is [solely] dependent on the discretion of the priest?[23] — Yea, indeed, as it is taught [in the following]: And on a day when [raw flesh] shall be seen in him [he shall be unclean; and the priest shall lood on the raw flesh and pronounce him unclean],[24] which means that there is a day when you do see it in him as well as a day when you do not see it in him. Hence said they [the Sages] that if a groom developed symptoms of leprosy they grant him [delay of inspection to the end of] the seven days of the [marriage] feast,[25] whether it be his person, or his house[26] or his garment[27] [that is affected]; and likewise [if the symptoms developed] during a festival they grant him [the patient] all[28] the seven days of the festival: thus R. Judah. Rabbi says: There is no need [to resort to this text] as it says: And the priest shall command that they empty the house[29] [before the priest goes in to see the plague that all that is in the house be not made unclean].[30] Now if [the inspection is] here delayed for his convenience, which is just an optional [matter],[31] may it not all the more be deferred for his [due observance of a] religious obligation?[32] What is the [actual] issue between them? — Said Abaye: Merely the different expository results obtained by each from his text. And Rab said, it is the delay of inspection in an optional [matter][33] that is the issue between them, R. Judah [holding] that from the [other] text [cited above by Rabbi][34] we cannot learn [this],[35] as it is an anomaly,[36]

---

(1) Lev. XIII, 59.

(2) And he must declare one or the other, according to his findings.

(3) To make no inspection so as to avoid the adverse decision being given in the festival week.

(4) The order of the statements is reversed but not the substance.

(5) Viz., that R. Jose's ruling is appropriate to a case under second observation and R. Meir's to that of a confirmed leper.

(6) The second Baraitha which regards the view of R. Meir as appropriate to a confirmed leper and that of R. Jose to a case under second detention.

(7) Thus: R. Meir, having in mind a confirmed leper, says: ‘Inspect him now to mitigate his plight. If he is still a leper, he loses nothing. If he is found cured, he can at once get back to the town by beginning his first ritual cleansing; and although he has thereupon to part from his wife for seven days, he does not mind it as he prefers to get back to his friends in town’. And R. Jose, thinking of the case of a second detention, says: ‘No inspection! For if you find him a leper you must confirm him as such and send him into complete isolation, right away from everybody (save from his wife)’.

(8) The first Baraitha quoted.

(9) Thus: R. Jose, thinking of a confirmed leper says: ‘No inspection! For if you examine and find him clean" (cured), he must at once begin counting seven days of his ceremonial cleansing (referred to infra) and live apart from his wife. Leave him alone, therefore, just now; he prefers his wife's company to getting back to the town’. And R. Meir, thinking of a case of second observation, says: ‘Examine him to ease his plight. If you find him "clean" (cured) he is happy with the favourable decision; if "unclean", (make no pronouncement just yet, or) even if you declare him a confirmed leper and he had to be strictly isolated, he will not be much worse off, as he still retains his wife's company’.

(10) As implied in the discussion.

(11) ‘And he that is to be cleansed shall wash his clothes . . . and bathe himself in water and he shall be clean; and after that he may come (back) into the camp, but he shall dwell . . ., Lev. XIV, 8.

(12) Var. lec. (v. D.S., Han.) add here: ‘As one under a ban and as a mourner and’; cf. infra 15b.

(13) Deut. V, 27, which is taken to mean the removal of the injunction, ‘Come not near a woman’ before the theophany. Ex. XIX, 14-15 and Bez. 5b.

(14) I.e., Rabbi, as in the texts of Sifra, ad loc. ed. Weiss, 71b and RID (R. Jacob David of Wishogrod) ed. Warsaw 1866, p. 61 and Yalk. ¤ 561.

(15) Ezek. XLIV, 26. Although that passage speaks of the ceremonial cleansing after contact with the dead — cf. Num. XIX, II, 12ff, 19 — it is taken exegetically, as having also a bearing on the leper's ceremonial cleansing. Cf. p. 35, n. 11e.

(16) According to calculation. V. Rashi on II Kings XV, 1; and Tosaf. s.v. יותם.

(17) Cf. II Chron. XXVI, 19ff, and II Kings XV, 5.

(18) That a leper may consort with his wife while a confirmed leper. This proves that Rabbi permits a confirmed leper the use of the conjugal bed.

(19) Lev. XIV, 8 and Ezek. XLIV, 26.

(20) Avoid marital connection.

(21) There is no need or warrant to extend the restriction. V. Tosaf. s.v. מאי.

(22) During the festival week, in a case of a second observational detention, as suggested by Raba.

(23) And not on the condition of the patient, or the ruling of Holy Writ which fixes definite periods for inspection and detention.

(24) Lev. XIII, 14-15. The first part is rendered here according to the needs of the exposition.

(25) Cf. Gen. XXIX, 27-28 with Nahmanides’ commentary a.l. also J. Targum a.l.

(26) Lev. XIV, 35-38.

(27) Ibid. XIII, 47,50ff.

(28) Mishnah, Sifra and Han. read ‘all the days . . ., which is more correct than our text, as Shabu'oth is shorter and Tabernacles is longer than seven days.

(29) Affected by symptoms of leprosy.

(30) Lev. XIV, 36.

(31) To save his effects in the house from becoming involved in defilement by the priest's declaration.

(32) Marriage is ordained in Gen. I, 22 and II, 24; the joyous observance of festivals is ordained in Deut. XIV, 26 and XVI, 11, 14-15.

(33) In the case of body leprosy (Rashi).

(34) Lev. XIV, 36.

(35) That inspection is delayed in an optional matter.

(36) Lit., ‘novel’, something exceptional altogether. You cannot take an exceptional instance as a basis for argument or deductions.

inasmuch as wood and stones elsewhere are not subject to [ceremonial] uncleanness whereas here [in a house affected by leprosy] they are [made] subject to uncleanness. And [on the other hand] Rabbi says [that this text] is also needed.[1] For had the All Merciful prescribed [only], ‘And on a day when [raw flesh] shall be seen in him . . .’ I might have said that postponement [of inspection or pronouncement on the findings] is granted only for the [due observance of a] religious obligation, but not for the sake of an optional [matter]; therefore did the All Merciful prescribe also, ‘And the priest shall command’. Again, had the All Merciful prescribed only ‘And the priest shall command that they empty the house . . ., I might have said that [postponement is granted] in the case of these effects [of the house] because the uncleanness is not that of a person, but where the uncleanness is that of a person I might say that the priest should inspect him, [without delay]: therefore it is necessary [to have both texts].

The Master said: ‘There is a day when you do see it in him and there is a day when you do not see it in him. How is this implied? — Said Abaye, If it is just so,[2] the Divine Law should have written: ‘On a day [when]’; what then is the [import of] ‘And on a day [when]’? From this you infer that there is ‘a day’ when you see in him . . . and there is ‘a day’ when you do not see . . . in him. Raba said: The whole text[3] is redundant altogether for if it be just so,[4] Divine Law might have had ‘And when [raw flesh] is seen [in him]’. What then is the import of the [amplification] ‘And on a day’?[5] From this infer that there is a day when you do see it in him and there is a day when you do not see it in him.[6] And Abaye?[7] He needs that [to teach that the inspection is held] by ‘day’, and not at night.[8] And whence derives Raba this [point] ‘by day and not at night’? — It is derived by him from, ‘According to all the sight of the eyes of the priest’.[9] And Abaye? — He needs that [text] to exclude a person blind in one eye [inspecting a leper]. But does not Raba also require this text for that same point? — Yea, [he does] so also. But then, whence [does he derive the point] ‘by day but not at night’? — He derives it from, ‘Like as a plague was seen by me in the house’,[10] [that is, seen] by me, not by [the aid of] my [candle] light. And Abaye?[11] — If he did learn from there, I might have said that these [restrictions] obtain [only] where the uncleanness is not personal [of one's body]; but where uncleanness is that of the body, [it may be inspected] also by one's [candle] light. [Therefore] the [original] text[12] conveys it to us [best].

MISHNAH. FURTHERMORE R. MEIR SAID, A MAN MAY GATHER[13] HIS FATHER'S AND MOTHER'S BONES,[14] SINCE THIS IS [AN OCCASION] ‘OF JOY’ FOR HIM;[15] R. JOSE SAYS, IT IS AN [OCCASION] ‘OF MOURNING’[16] FOR HIM. A PERSON SHOULD NOT STIR UP WAILING[17] FOR HIS DEAD, NOR HOLD A LAMENTATION[18] FOR HIM THIRTY DAYS BEFORE A FEAST.

GEMARA. AS IT IS A JOY FOR HIM. [The following] was cited in contrast to this: ‘One who gathers his father's or mother's bones holds himself in mourning for them all the day,[19] but in the evening he does not hold himself in mourning for them [any longer].’ And R. Hisda commented thereon, even if he had them by him tied up in a sheet.[20] Said Abaye, I should suggest [it means], ‘because the joyousness of the feast prevails with him’.[21]

A PERSON SHOULD NOT STIR UP A WAILING FOR HIS DEAD: What is the meaning of ‘stirring up a wailing for one's dead’? Rab said: In Palestine [it is customary that] whenever a professional lamenter comes round people say, ‘Let all those who are sore at heart weep with him.

THIRTY DAYS BEFORE A FEAST. Why [just] thirty days? R. Kahana said that Rab Judah as reporting Rab told him that once it happened that a man saved money to ‘go up for the feast’[22] [to Jerusalem] when a [professional] lamenter came and stopped at his door and the wife took her husband's savings and gave them to him, and so he was prevented from going. Then it was that they [the Rabbis] said, One should not stir up a wailing for his dead, nor hold a [funerary] lament for him thirty days before a Feast; but Samuel gave another reason, namely,

---

(1) I.e., although Rabbi holds that delay is afforded in the case of body leprosy even for the sake of an optional matter on the analogy of leprosy of houses etc., yet he requires the verse quoted by R. Judah.

(2) To be read just ordinarily.

(3) The word ‘on a day’.

(4) To be read just ordinarily.

(5) Which suggests, ‘yet another day’.

(6) Cf. Yeb. 72b.

(7) Why does he not explain thus the redundant phrase ‘on a day’?

(8) Cf. Shab. 132a.

(9) Lev. XIII. 12, so lit. This implies that it must be held by day when it can be seen well.

(10) Ibid. XIV, 35.

(11) Why does he not derive it from this latter text.

(12) ‘And on a day etc.’ that there is a time when you see etc.

(13) During the festival (week).

(14) It was an ancient custom to give first a temporary burial, and after the flesh had decayed to transfer the bones to a reserved tomb or mausoleum, where they were kept in cedar or marble coffins. Cf. Sem. XII.

(15) To perform a filial duty while he is free to go and ‘bring them home’ to their assigned resting place. There is another possible meaning, see the discussion later.

(16) And should not be undertaken during the festival week.

(17) The meaning apparently is (as explained by Rab later) to join others in lamenting their dead and resuscitate ones own old grief on the occasion. A funeral in the town or village provided a good occasion for such a renewed lament, when professional funerary orators, ‘lamenters’ and female dirge-singers, were available.

(18) I.e., The ceremonial lament for an individual at the time of his death and funeral.

(19) Contrary to R. Meir who allows it during the festival week and furthermore says, ‘it is a joy for him’.

(20) Even if he had not gathered them himself that day, their presence is mournful enough and it is surprising that R. Meir allowed transference and even said ‘it was a joy for him’.

(21) Not that it is an occasion of joy, but that the joy of the festive season prevails in dispensing with formal mourning. Or, that the performance of his filial duty will afford him a sense of satisfaction throughout the remaining festival days (J.M.K.).

(22) On one of the three pilgrim feasts. V. Deut. XVI, 16. Cf. Ex. XXIII, 14ff. ibid. XXXIV, 23. The festival atmosphere is introduced by the study and discussion of its laws thirty days before. Pes. 6b.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 8b

because the dead cannot be put out of mind and heart for [at least] thirty days. What practical difference is there between the two [explanations]? — There is [a difference] between them, where [say], the [professional] lamenter does it without a charge.[1]

MISHNAH. KUKIN[2] AND BURIAL PLACES[3] MAY NOT BE DUG IN THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]: BUT KUKIN MAY BE ADAPTED[4] DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK] AND A NIBREKETH[5] MAY BE MADE IN THE FESTIVAL [WEEK] AND A BOX, WITH THE DEAD [BODY] CLOSE BY IN THE COURT [YARD]: R. JUDAH FORBIDS, UNLESS THERE ARE SAWN BOARDS AT HAND.

GEMARA. What are KUKIN and what are BURIAL PLACES? — Said Rab Judah, kukin are [recesses made] by excavation and ‘burial-places’ [are structures made by] building. It is [actually] taught thus: ‘These are kukin and these are burial places: Kukin, are [niches made] by excavation and ‘burial places’ are [structures made] by building’.

BUT KUKIN MAY BE ADAPTED. How are they adapted? — Rab Judah said: If [for instance] one is [too] long it may be shortened. A. Tanna taught: ‘He lengthens or shortens [the recess] within[6] [the cave]’.

AND THEY [MAY] MAKE A NIBREKETH[7] . . . What is NIBREKETH?[8] — Rab Judah said: It is [the same as] bekia’.[9] But then, is it not taught: ‘The nibreketh and the bekia’ [etc.]?[10] — Abaye, or as some say R. Kahana, replied [They have the same relation as] a trough and a troughlet.[11]

AND A RON WITH THE DEAD [BODY] CLOSE BY IN THE COURT [YARD]. We learn here what our Rabbis taught [elsewhere]: ‘They [may] do all that the dead requires, they cut his hair and wash a garment for him and make him a box of boards that had been sawn on the day before the Festival. Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel says, they [may] even bring trees and he saws them [into] boards in his house, behind closed doors’.

MISHNAH. ONE MAY NOT TAKE A WIFE DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK], WHETHER A VIRGIN OR A WIDOW, NOR EFFECT A LEVIRATE MARRIAGE,[12] AS IT IS A REJOICING FOR THE GROOM; BUT ONE MAY REMARRY HIS DIVORCED WIFE. AND A WOMAN MAY MAKE HER ADORNMENTS IN THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]. R. JUDAH SAYS, SHE MAY NOT USE LIME,[13] AS THAT IS A [TEMPORARY] DISFIGUREMENT TO HER. AN ORDINARY PERSON SEWS IN THE USUAL WAY; BUT A CRAFTSMAN SEWS A TUCK-STITCH.[14] AND THE CORDS[15] IN BED-FRAMES MAY BE INTERLACED. R. JOSE SAYS, THEY MAY [ONLY] BE TIGHTENED. GEMARA. [A REJOICING FOR THE GROOM]. And if it is a rejoicing for him, what is amiss? — Said Rab Judah, as reporting Samuel, and so said R. Eleazar, as reporting R. Oshaia — and some say, R. Eleazar, as reporting R. Hanina: — It is [barred], because one ‘rejoicing’ may not be merged in another ‘rejoicing’.[16] Rabbah son of R. Huna said: It is [barred] because he abandons the ‘rejoicing’ of the festival and busies himself with that of his wife. Said Abaye to R. Joseph: That explanation of Rabbah son of R. Huna is the same as that given by Rab. For R. Daniel b. Kattina reporting Rab, said, Whence [is the ruling] that ONE MAY NOT TAKE A WIFE DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]? For it is said, And thou shalt rejoice in thy feast,[17] [that is,] in ‘thy feast’, but not with thy [new] wife [instead]. ‘Ulla said, [It is] because of the exertion [it occasions]. R. Isaac b. Nappaha said, Because it may cause a decline in marriage and parenthood.[18]

An objection was raised: ‘All those who have been declared to be forbidden to take wives during the festival [week]

---

(1) According to the former view (of Rab), even if performed gratis it may not be held, as the bitterness and grief are thereby being roused too near the festive time. Cf. Tosaf. s.v. דקא.

(2) כוכין (plural of כוך) are loculi, or recesses, excavated in the sides of a sepulchral cave. V. B.B. 100bff, (Sonc. ed. p. 421ff.)

(3) A sepulchral tomb, mausoleum, built above the ground.

(4) I.e., one of the loculi already excavated may be adapted to receive a particular corpse during the festival week.

(5) נברכת seems to denote a kind of (stone) tank, or trough used by fullers in which they soaked and cleansed soiled woollens. Cf. B.B. 19a. (Sonc. ed. p. 96). From the context however, it is quite obvious as Ritba points out — that here it is not the fuller's trough or tank, but the dead man's sarcophagus, a stone, clay or wooden coffin (box) that is allowed, such as the labella-troughs used as coffins.

(6) Tosef. M.K. I, 9.

(7) V. p. 42, n. 5.

(8) This word (connected with ברכה — the fuller's trench or pool in Isa. VII, 3) is most probably of Assyrian origin as the form with initial N instead of M suggests, cf. מרכבת with narkabtu. V. J.H.

(9) A small hollow creek.

(10) Which shows that they are not identical.

(11) Lit. , ‘son of a trough’.

(12) The marriage of a deceased's brother's widow, if the deceased had died absolutely childless. This was an obligation on the brother to keep his deceased brother's memory alive. Deut. XXV, 5ff.

(13) As a depilatory.

(14) Or with irregular stitches, like a dog's teeth. It means here that a craftsman should not do skilled work, only what is barely needed for the festival week.

(15) Or girths that support the bedding.

(16) I.e., the festival will lose its own significance in the marriage festivities.

(17) Deut. XVI, 14.

(18) Lit., ‘(the precept of) being fruitful and multiplying. If marriages were to be deferred till the festival season when people are free, there would be a likelihood that some might never take place at other times, apart from the congestion that such a practice might cause; and others might come to nothing because of the delay through innumerable other causes. Marriage and parenthood are a primary duty of man and should receive every consideration. Cf. Gen. I, 27-28; II, 18, 24; IX, 1; Isa. XLV, 18.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 9a

are free to marry on the day previous to the festival’, which presents a difficulty to all those authorities. — There is no difficulty: As to one who states [that it is forbidden] because of the ‘rejoicing’, [it may be said that] the main rejoicing [of a marriage celebration] lasts mainly one day.[1] As to the one who states [that it is] because of the exertion [it occasions here too] the main exertion falls on one day.[1] As to the one who says [that it is] because it may lead to a decline in marriage and parenthood, [it may be said] that for the sake of one day[2] a person would not put himself off [indefinitely].[3] Whence do we derive the principle that ‘rejoicing should not be merged in rejoicing’? From the text: So Solomon made the feast at that time and all Israel with him, a great congregation from the entrance of Hamath unto the Brook of Egypt, before the Lord our God seven days and seven days, even fourteen days.[4] Now, if it is the fact that one rejoicing may be merged in another rejoicing, he should have kept back the consecration ceremony [of the Temple] for the time of the feast and then have held it for seven days [concurrently], for both one and the other.[5] Maybe that the rule is [only] that we should not [deliberately keep a marriage] for the time of a festival,[6] but where it so turns out to be [opportune], we might as well hold it then? — [If so], Solomon should have left some small part [unfinished].[7] But perhaps this could not be done because we brook no delay in the building of the Temple![8] — Then he could have left [say], an ell of the Ravens’ Scare Palisade.[9] [But, it may be asked,] The ell of the Ravens’ Scare Palisade was an essential part of the Temple building![10] Rather [it is derived] from [the fact that] the text is redundant. Consider, it is written ‘fourteen days’, wherefore the need of ‘seven days and seven days’? Infer from this that these [first] seven days and those [second] seven days were distinct from each other.

R. Parnak, reporting R. Johanan, said that that year Israel did not observe the Day of Atonement, whereat they were perturbed, saying, that perhaps the enemies of Israel[11] had thereby incurred their doom;[12] whereat a Bath Kol[13] came forth and an nounced to them: ‘All of you are destined for the life of the world to come.[14] What was the basis of their exposition? — They argued a fortiori [thus]: If within the Tabernacle, the sanctity of which was not to be in perpetuity,[15] yet an individual's sacrificial gifts[16] were allowed [at the consecration] to be offered on the Sabbath day,[17] which [ordinarily] is an offence punishable by stoning[18] to death; all the more is it the case [that it is permitted] with the Temple, the sanctification of which is to be for ever, and with public[19] offerings, and that on the Day of Atonement, whose desecration is an offence punished only by kareth! But then, why were they perturbed? — Because there [in the former case] the offerings were brought as dues to the Supreme Being;[20] whereas here, they were brought for their [own] common needs.[21] Then here too, should they not have made their offerings without partaking [on that day] of any meat or drink?[22] — There is no joyous celebration without eating and drinking.[23]

Whence do we know that at [the consecration of] the Tabernacle the Sabbath restrictions were suspended? Shall I say because it is written, ‘On the first day [So-and-so offered] . . . on the seventh[24] day [So-and-so offered], then [say I], maybe it means the seventh day [in the order] of the offerings?[25] Said R. Nahman b. Isaac: The text says, ‘On the day of the eleventh, day’[26] just as a day is continuous, so were the eleven days continuous.[27] But perhaps, it means [continuous] on days appropriate?’ — Then there is yet another such text, On the day of the twelfth day,[28] — just as a day was continuous, so had the whole twelve days been entirely continuous. But that too, maybe means only continuous on days appropriate? — If that be so, why do I require two [peculiarly worded] texts?

Again, whence do we know that during the consecration of the Temple the restrictions of the Day of Atonement were suspended? — Shall I say because it is written, ‘even fourteen days’, maybe it means days appropriate?[29] — That is learnt from the analogy between the repeated word ‘day’ here and in the other place.[30]

‘Whereat a Bath kol came forth and announced to them: "All of you are destined for the life of the world to come".’ And whence know we that pardon was granted them? — For R. Tahlifa taught: [It is written], On the eighth day he sent the people away and they blessed the king and went unto their tents joyful and glad of heart for all the goodness that the Lord had shown unto David His Servant and to Israel His people.[31] ‘To their tents’, that is, they went [home] and found their wives in [a state] of purity[32] [to receive their husbands]; joyful’, that is, that they had enjoyed the radiance of the Shechinah;[33] ‘and glad of heart’, that is, each man's wife conceived and bore him a male child. ‘For all the goodness’ that is, a Bath kol had come forth and announced to them: ‘All of you are destined for the life of the world to come ; That the Lord had shown unto David His servant and to Israel His people’: It is perfectly clear [as to what is referred to] by ‘all the goodness shown to Israel His people’, as indicating that God had granted them pardon for their sin against [the non-observance of] the Day of Atonement; but what is the point of ‘the goodness shown unto David His servant’? — Said Rab Judah, as reporting Rab; At the moment when Solomon wanted to bring the Ark into the Temple, the gates held fast together. Solomon recited [a prayer of] four and twenty [expressions of] intercession[34] but had no response. He began [anew] and said: lift up your heads, O ye gates[35] and again he had no response. As soon as [however] he said: [Now therefore arise, O Lord God . . . Thou and the Ark of Thy strength . . .] O Lord, turn not away the face of Thine anointed, remember the good deeds of David Thy servant,[36] he was answered forthwith.[37] At that moment the faces of David's foes turned [livid] like the [blackened] sides of a pot and all became aware that the Holy One, blessed be He, had pardoned David that misdeed.[38]

R. Jonathan b.’Asmai[39] and R. Judah son of proselyte parents were studying the section of ‘Vows’[40] at the school of R. Simeon b. Yohai. They had taken leave from him in the evening, but in the morning they came and again took leave from him. Said he to them: But did you not take leave of me yesternight? Said they to him: Our Master, You taught us, a disciple who had taken leave from his Master and remained overnight in the city must needs take leave from him once again, for it is said: ‘On the eighth day[41] he [King Solomon] sent the people away and they blessed the King,[42] and [then] it is written: ‘And on the three and twentieth day of the seventh month he sent the people away’.[43] Hence we learn from here that a disciple who had taken leave from his Master and remained overnight in the city must needs take leave from him once again. Said he to his son, ‘These are men of countenance,[44] go along with them, that they may bless you’. He went and found them comparing text with text: It is written: Balance the path of thy feet and let all thy ways be established;[45] and it is written: Lest thou shouldst balance the path of life?[46] It is not difficult [to explain]: the former text applies where an obligation can be discharged through another person:[47]

---

(1) In this case on the eve of the festival.

(2) The eve of the festival.

(3) For fear he might be prevented from marrying on that day.

(4) I Kings VIII, 65, and more particularly, II Chron. VII, 9.

(5) To spare the people loss of time and work, as it could best be celebrated leisurely during the festival week.

(6) Even as we find that Solomon did not keep back the consecration.

(7) To be completed just before the festival so that the consecration be held on the festival. As reported, Solomon's Temple had been completed some time before. V. I Kings, VII, 51 — VIII, 1 and II Chron. V, 1-3,

(8) And thus the Temple of Solomon affords no proof for the principle against merging one joy with another!

(9) A projecting palisade of iron spikes, or according to others a sheet of iron one ell wide, was fixed with sharp edge upward all round the Temple walls. V. Mid. IV, 6 and cf. Josephus, Wars, V, 5, 6.

(10) And likewise brooked no delay.

(11) A euphemistic expression for ‘Israel’.

(12) Lev. XXIII, 29-30, threatens the non-observance of the Day of Atonement. by working and eating with the penalty of kareth.

(13) Lit., ‘the daughter of the voice’. V. Glos. and R. Hirsch Chajes’ study of the subject Immrei Binah, chap. VI.

(14) I.e., they felt reassured of their spiritual existence in the after life.

(15) Temporary, to be replaced by a permanent structure after the settlement in the Land of Promise.

(16) Num. VII, records the gifts which the Princes of the tribes, as individuals, brought day after day, in succession, among them ‘burnt-offerings’ and ‘sin-offerings’ which were not permitted to be eaten by the donors or the people, and the male priests alone were allowed to eat of the sin-offerings as if partaking of ‘the table of the Lord’.

(17) Only the prescribed offerings were permitted on Sabbaths and festivals. Cf. Num. XXVIII.

(18) If the desecration was deliberate. Ex. XXXI, 14; XXXV, 2-3. For the expression מות יומת (as by stoning), v. Lev. XX, 2, 27 and Num. XV, 32-36.

(19) I Kings VIII, 62-64, more than the sacrifices prescribed for the consecration of the Tabernacle (Lev. VIII, IX), which were permitted to the priests alone as sacred meat, whereas here they brought many ‘peace-offerings’ to be partaken of by the whole community. Cf. Lev. VII, 11-16 and I Sam. IX, 19-24.

(20) V. note 3 above.

(21) Making ‘peace-offerings’ for their own enjoyment, mainly, as only a portion was given to the altar and the priests, and the bulk went to the people.

(22) Fasting, v. supra p 45. n. 9.

(23) Cf. I Sam. IX, 19-24 cited above at the end of n. 6.

(24) Num. VII, 12, 18 and 48, the seventh day here being the Sabbath.

(25) I.e., every day, the Sabbath excepted, when no other offerings save those prescribed for the Sabbath day were offered.

(26) Num. VII, 72. The repetition of the word ‘day’ is taken to express the meaning ‘day by day’, daily without interruption. Cf. verse 11 and Solomon's prayer, I Kings VIII, 59; Lev. XXIV, 8.

(27) I.e., gift-offerings were brought consecutively on each of the twelve days.

(28) Num. VII, 78.

(29) For feasting, exclusive of the Day of Atonement.

(30) In connection with the offerings in the Tabernacle and here in the repetition ‘seven days and seven days, even fourteen days’. This method of analogy is the Gezerah Shawah. See Glos.

(31) I Kings, VIII, 66.

(32) On the meaning of tent’ as denoting wife, cf. supra 7b. As regards the state of purity referred to here, v. Lev. XVIII, 19 and XX, 18; XV, 19-24.

(33) The elation of feeling the Divine Presence near.

(34) In I Kings, VIII, 22-53, the expressions for intercession (in their nominal and verbal forms) amount to twenty-four, namely:Five in v. 28; two in 29; two in 30; two in 33; one in 35; two in 38; one in 42; one in 44; two in 45; one in 47; one in 48; two in 49; two in 52, total, twenty-four.

(35) Ps. XXIV, 7ff.

(36) II Chron. VI, 41-42.

(37) The gates yielded an entry.

(38) Against Uriah the Hittite and his wife Bath-sheba, II Sam. XI.

(39) Many texts have b. Akmai. The theme here on taking leave from a master is in continuation of Solomon's farewell to the people.

(40) I.e., they were pursuing the method of Midrashic exposition of Num. XXX, on the law of vows ultimately formulated in the Mishnah.

(41) The eighth day was the twenty-second of Tishri, when they bade the King farewell.

(42) I Kings VIII, 66.

(43) II Chron. VII, 10. Which apparently contradicts the former verse.

(44) Men of importance.

(45) Prov. IV, 26, i.e., carefully pick and choose your actions and duties.

(46) Ibid. V, 5, i.e., do not pick and choose.

(47) Should duty's calls come from several directions some of which may be discharged through some other trusty person, choose the more important and responsible tasks for yourself.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 9b

the latter where the obligation cannot be discharged through another person.[1] Again they were sitting and enquiring [into the following]: It is written: She [Wisdom][2] is more precious than rubies; and all the things thou canst desire are not to be compared unto her',[3] [which implies] that heaven's demands [of you] are comparable to Her,[4] Again it is written: And all things desirable are not to be compared unto Her,[5] [which means] that even things that are of Heaven's desire are not comparable to Her?[6] The former text applies where the duty can be discharged through others, the latter — where the Duty cannot be discharged through others. Then [turning to him] they said: 'What is your business here?[7] He replied: 'Father told me, "Go along with them that they may bless you".[8] Said they to him: 'May it be [Heaven's] pleasure that you sow and mow not; that what you bring in go not out; that what goes out you bring not in; that your house be desolate and your inn be inhabited; that your board be disturbed and you behold not a new year'. 'When he came home to his father, he said to him: 'So far were they from blessing me that they [even] distressed me sorely[7] . His father asked him: 'What did they say to you?' — They said thus and thus. Said the father to him: 'Those are all blessings. That "you sow and mow not [means], that you beget children and they do not die. That "what you bring in go not out" [means], that you bring home daughters-in-law and your sons do not die, so that their wives need not leave again. "What goes out you bring not in" [means], that you give your daughters [in marriage] and their husbands do not die so that your daughters need not come back. "That your house be desolate and your inn be inhabited" [means], that this world is your inn and the other world[7] is a home, as it is written, Their grave is their house for ever;[8] reading not "their inward thought" [Kirbam] but "their grave (Kibram] is their house for ever, and their dwelling places be for generations."[8] "That your board be disturbed" [that is]; by sons and daughters and "that you behold not a new year [means] that your wife do not die and you have not to take you a new wife'.[9]

R. Simeon b. Halafta took his leave from Rabbi.[10] Said Rabbi to his son: 'Go along with him that he may bless you' — Said [the parting Rabbi] to him: 'May it be [Heaven's] pleasure that you be not put to shame nor feel ashamed yourself'.[11] When he came to his father, he asked him: 'What did he say to you?' — He replied: 'He made some commonplace remark[12] to me — Said [Rabbi] to his son: 'He blessed you with the blessing with which the Holy One [blessed be He] blessed Israel twice over; for it is written: And ye shall eat in plenty and be satisfied and shall praise the name of the Lord your God . . . And My people shall never be ashamed. And ye shall know that I am in the midst of Israel, and that I am the Lord your God, and there is none else; and My people shall never be ashamed.[13]

AND A WOMAN MAY MAKE HER TOILET DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]. Our Rabbis taught: These are [permitted in] woman's adornment. She [plaits her hair][14] treats her [eyes] with kohl; fixes a parting,[15] [trims her hair and nails[14] and] puts rouge on her face; some say she may use a razor for her privy parts. R. Hisda's wife made her toilet in front of her daughter-in-law.[16] R. Hina

b. Hinena sat before R. Hisda;[17] as he sat he said that the instances [mentioned in the Mishnah] applied only to a young woman, but not to an elderly woman. Said R. Hisda to him: God! even to your mother, even to your mother's mother, yea even if she be standing at the [brink of the][18] grave, as the saying goes: ‘At sixty as at six; the sound of a timbrel makes her nimble’.[19]

R. JUDAH SAYS SHE SHOULD NOT USE LIME. It is taught: R. Judah says, a woman should not use lime, as it is a disfigurement to her. R. Judah concedes, however, that [if it is] a lime [preparation] that can be peeled off during the festival week she may apply it during the festival week, because, although it is irksome to her at the moment, It is a pleasure to her afterwards. But does R. Judah hold this view? Surely we learned [elsewhere]: ‘R. Judah said, Debts may be recovered [from pagan creditors during their festivals] as it is irksome to them’. They said to him, Although it is irksome [for them] at the moment, they feel pleased afterwards?[20] — Said R. Nahman b. Isaac, Do not cite the rules for the festival week, as they all derive from the principle ‘that though [the task] is irksome for the moment, it gives satisfaction afterwards’.[21] Rabina remarked that [the recovery of debts is allowed because] to a pagan the payment of a debt is always irksome.

Rab Judah [reporting Rab][22] said: The daughters of Israel, who attain puberty before the [normal] age,[23] if they are poor, put on a cosmetic preparation made of lime; richer girls put on fine-flower,[24] and the wealthy[25] girls put on oil of myrrh, as it is said: ‘Six mouths with the oil of myrrh’.[26] What is this ‘oil of myrrh’? — Said R. Huna b. Hiyya, [It is what is called] stacte.[27] R. Jeremiah b. Ammi[28] said, It is oil obtained from olives that have reached but a third of their [normal] growth. It is taught: ‘R. Judah says omphacinon[29] is an oil made of [unripe] olives that have reached but a third of their [normal] growth’ — And why do they put it on? Because it is a depilatory and softens the flesh [skin].[30] R. Bebai had a dark-skinned[31] daughter; he applied to her that unguent one limb at a time and this brought her a husband with four hundred zuzim.[32] There was a pagan neighbour of his who had a daughter, and he applied it all over her at once [and] she died; [whereupon] he said, Bebai killed my daughter. Said R. Nahman: ‘R. Bebai drinks beer, therefore his daughters needed unguents; [but as] we do not drink beer, our daughters need no unguents’.[33]

---

(1) If there be no trusty person at hand or there be but one call, do not delay action to wait for some more important task; be it great or small, do it promptly, as delay may rob you of your chance of doing it, or you may be too late to do anything at all.

(2) The Torah.

(3) Prov. III, 15.

(4) I.e., your own affairs and wishes are not comparable to the study of Torah; but such pursuits as please Heaven, the calls of duty and religion, are comparable to it.

(5) Ibid. VIII, 11.

(6) I.e., nothing else is comparable to the study of Torah, it is absolutely supreme.

(7) The sepulchre; cf. the term בית עלמי and v. Eccl. XII, 5 and Han.

(8) Ps. XLIX, 12. Cf. Targum.

(9) V. Deut. XXIV, 5.

(10) Should be Rabbi instead of Rab.

(11) Reading with MS.M., SBH and Han. לא תיבוש the more difficult text, but supported by Rabbi's observation. Cur. edd., ‘that you shame not (others) nor feel ashamed’ does not accord with the quotation.

(12) So MS. M., cur. edd., ‘mere words’.

(13) Joel II, 26-27. The same assurance repeated twice.

(14) So Hananel.

(15) So Ps. Rashi and SBH. Perhaps it means making the hair frizzy or curled. Cf. Shab. 64b, Keth. 4b and 17a.

(16) To show what may and what may not be done. (SBH not so Ps. Rashi). V. Strashun's Glos. ad loc.

(17) To expound the Mishnah (SBH).

(18) So D.S. and SBH.

(19) Lit., ‘run’, to see a wedding procession. On the custom cf.B.B. 145b (Sonc. ed. p. 625).

(20) V. A.Z. 6b. The idea is to avoid any dealings with pagans
(21) E.g., baking, cooking etc., troublesome at the moment but enjoyed later.
(22) So Han.
(23) Lit., 'years', the statutory age of twelve years and one day.
(24) A cosmetic paste.
(25) Lit., 'daughters of kings'. Cf. The Latin use of rex, reges for rich.
(26) Esth. II, 12.
(27) Latin stacta, oil of myrrh.
(28) So D.S.; SBH and Meg. 13a read 'b. Abba'.
(29) Latin omphacium, oil or juice of unripe olives or grapes.
(30) Cf. Targum Sheni on Esth. II, 12.
(31) So MS.M.
(32) As a gift before marriage. Cf. B.B. 146a (Sonc. ed. p. 628).
(33) Beer produces obesity and growth of hair (Rashi).

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 10a

AN ORDINARY PERSON SEWS IN THE USUAL WAY. How do we define 'an ordinary person'? — At the school of R. Jannai they said, [It means] anyone who cannot draw a needleful during their festivals, as the means afforded them by the Jew may go to enhance the heathen celebrations. The settlement of a debt leaves the debtor with an easy mind. of stitches in one sweep. R. Jose b. Hainna said, [It means] anyone who cannot sew an even seam on the hem of his tunic.

BUT A CRAFTSMAN MAY SEW A TUCK-STITCH. What is meant by sewing a 'tuck-stitch'? — R. Johanan said, [It means] 'overstepping'.[1] Rabbah b. Samuel said, [It means that the stiches resemble] dogs' teeth.[2]

AND THE CORDS MAY BE INTERLACED IN BED-FRAMES. [R. JOSE SAYS THEY MAY ONLY BE TIGHTENED]. What is meant by 'interlacing' and what by 'tightening'? When R. Dimi came [from Palestine] he said that R. Hiyya b. Abba and R. Assi had different views on this, both reporting in the name of Hezekiah and R. Johanan. One said that 'interlacing' meant [interlacing] both the warp and the woof, and that 'tightening' meant putting in the warp without the woof;[3] while the other said that 'interlacing' meant putting in the warp without the woof, and tightening' meant that he may tighten a girth cord if it has become slack.

But this cannot be [correct], for R. Tahlifa[4] b. Saul taught: 'And all agreed that no cords may be let in afresh'. Now this is perfectly in accord with the one who says that the 'interlacing' [permitted in the Mishnah] means interlacing both the warp and the woof, and that the 'tightening' [that R. Jose permitted] means putting in the warp without the woof; hence R. Tahlifa could say: 'And all agreed that no cords may be let in afresh' — But, according to one who says that 'interlacing' means putting in the warp without the woof and that 'tightening' means that he may tighten a cord if it has become slack, [how do you explain R. Tahlifa b. Saul's statement? For,] if you say that interlacing the warp and the woof is forbidden, need one [at all state] that cords are not to be let in afresh? — This is a difficulty. Said R. Nahman b. Isaac to R. Hiyya b. Abin: Is there anybody who applies the term 'Interlacing' to inserting a warp without the woof? For surely we learned:[5] R. Meir says: A bed [frame] is not [subject to ritual defilement] until three warp spaces in it have been crossed? The fact is that when Rabin came [from Palestine] he said that all agree that 'interlacing' means interlacing the warp and woof; but where the difference arose was on the interpretation of 'tightening'; one Master held that the 'tightening' [that was permitted] was inserting the warp without the woof, and the other Master held [that what was allowed was] the tightening of a cord which has become slack. An objection was raised: Bed-frames may be interlaced [during the festival week] and needless to say that they may be tightened: these are the words of R. Meir. R. Jose says: They may be tightened, but not interlaced and ‘Some say’[6] that tightening may not be done at all — Now here [the several views are] perfectly [understandable] according to the one who says that by ‘tightening’ is meant ‘inserting the warp without the woof’, as then, ‘Some’ come and express their dissent [on that kind of mending]. But according to the one who says that by the ‘tightening’ [which is allowed] is meant that when a cord has become slack one may make it taut, then according to the view of ‘Some’ not even this [simple adjustment] is allowed! — Yes, indeed; because, since it is possible [temporarily] to fill [the sag] with bedclothes, we should not go to [further] exertion [during the festival week].

MISHNAH. AN OVEN STOVE[7] OR MILL MAY BE SET UP [IN POSITION] DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]; R. JUDAH SAYS, A PAIR OF MILLSTONES IS NOT TO BE COMPRESSED FOR THE FIRST TIME [IN THE FESTIVAL WEEK].

GEMARA. What is meant by ‘compressing’? — Rab Judah said that [it means] chiselling[8] the millstones; R. Jehiel said, It means [fixing] an eye-hole.[9] An objection was raised: An oven or stove [or mill] may be set up in the festival [week], provided that the work is not entirely completed; these are the words of R. Eliezer; but the Sages say, It may even be finished off. R. Judah, speaking in his[10] name says: A new one may be set up and an old [mill] compressed, and ‘Some’[11] say compressing may not be done at all. Now this accords well with the one who says that ‘compressing’ means scoring the mill [stones], hence this process is applicable in the case of an old mill; but according to the one who says that it means [fixing] an eye-hole, what fixing of an eye-hole does an old mill need?[12] — l may say, for instance, that it needs widening a little more. R. Huna [once] hearing someone scraping his millstones during the festival week said: ‘ Who is that? May he himself suffer desecration that desecrates the festival week!’ He [evidently] held the view of ‘Some say’ [cited above]. R. Hama expounded:[13] ‘One [may] scrape millstones during the festival [week]’. In the name of our Master[14] they said: One [may] trim the hoofs of the horse he rides or the ass he rides during the festival week;

---

(1) Like a baste stitch, hot contiguous but in and out on either side of the material, alternatively.

(2) Irregular in form, or unevenly. Cf. n. 9. on the Mishnah, supra 8b, p. 43.

(3) I.e., putting in a cord or webbing in one direction only.

(4) MS.M.: Halafta.

(5) Kei. XVI, 1: ‘Straight wooden frames, such as are used for litter or cradle, are not subject to ritual contamination until they are rubbed smooth with a fish-skin; R. Meir says, not (even then) until (the cords have been let in) and three spaces have been crossed by the woof cord’.

(6) Representing the view of R. Nathan the Babylonian. V. Hor., Sonc. ed. p. 104.

(7) Probably of clay.

(8) Scoring the grooves or scraping and removing the sediment of flour dust to make the two stones fit closely together.

(9) Of the upper stone, the runner, through which the grain is poured in.

(10) R. Eliezer's: he often cites R. Eliezer's views, which were stricter, as being of the Shammaite school.

(11) R. Nathan the Babylonian. V. p. 54, n. 2.

(12) Surely an old mill has an eye-hole already.

(13) On a Sabbath within a month before the festival.

(14) So Han. MS. M. and many texts, i.e., Rab, which is the correct reading (not R. Meir of cur. edd.).

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 10b

but not those of the ass turning the mill.[1] Rab Judah[2] declared it permissible to trim the hoofs of the ass turning the mill or to set up the mill or build a mill, or to construct a base for the mill or build a horse stable. Rab[3] declared it permissible to curry horses and to construct a bed[4] or make a mattress-box.[5] Raba allowed bleeding of cattle during the festival week. Said Abaye to him: There is a Tanna who supports you: Cattle [may] be bled and no curative means are [to be] withheld from an animal during the festival week'. Raba allowed fulled clothes[6] to be rubbed.[7] On what ground? It is an ordinary unskilled process. Said R. Isaac b. Ammi, as citing R. Hisda: To pleat sleeve-ends[8] is forbidden; on what ground? Because that is a craftsman's process.

Raba said: [With regard to] a man who levels up his ground, if it is to even [the slope of] the threshing floor[9] it is allowed; if merely to level the soil, it is forbidden. How can one tell? If he takes up heaped [soft] soil to heap on [soft] soil, or stiff soil to lay on stiff soil, it shows that [it is done] for [improving] the threshing floor; but if he takes up heaped [soft] soil and casts it on the stiff soil, this shows that it is for [improving] the ground.[10]

Raba said: With regard to one who clears his field [of chips of wood], if it is for gathering [fire] wood, it is allowed; if for clearing the ground, it is forbidden. How can we tell? If he picks up the larger pieces and leaves the smaller, this shows that it is to gather [fire] wood; but if he picks up both large and small, this shows that it is to clear the field. Raba said also: With regard to one who opens [sluices] to let water run off into his field, if it be to get the fish,[11] it is permitted; if it is to water the soil, it is forbidden. How can we tell? If he opens two flood-gates one above[12] and another below,[13] this shows that it is for getting the fish; but if only one gate, it is [obviously] for watering the soil. Raba further said: With regard to one who trims his palm,[14] if it is for the [benefit of his] beasts it is allowed; but if for the [benefit of the] palm it is forbidden. How can we tell? If he trims one side only, this shows that it is for the beasts; if both one side and the other, it is for the [benefit of the] palm, and it is forbidden. And furthermore said Raba: Those [unripe] tauhla[15] dates one may pick, but to press them is not permitted. R. Papa remarked that as [if these are left] the worms get at them, they are on the same footing as a business deal[16] [the postponement of which] would entail loss,[17] and therefore may be [pressed during the festival week]. Raba also said: Any business transaction whatsoever is forbidden. R. Jose b. Abin said: And if there be a risk of loss, it is permitted. Rabina had some deal on hand which would have fetched six thousand zuzim;[18] he deferred the sale till after the festival and sold at twelve thousand. Rabina had advanced some money to the people living at Akra di-Shanutha.[19] He came to consult R. Ashi and said: 'What about going over to them just now [during the festival week]?' — Said R. Ashi to him: 'As they had ready cash just then which they might not have later, it is [practically] like a deal [the postponement of which] would entail loss, and [accordingly] is allowed'. It is also similarly taught with reference to heathens: One may go

---

(1) As not being so urgent.

(2) Of Pumbeditha, Rab's disciple.

(3) Readings vary.

(4) Latin, grabatus, a Macedonian article of furniture, a very low bedframe or couch. V. the references in Tosaf. s.v. Ps. Rashi takes it as meaning a crib.

(5) Stibadium or stibas (Greek) a pallet or mattress, a semicircular low seat for lounging. Cf. Pliny's Letters, V, 6.

(6) קירמי are fulled or carded sheets of cloth (from the Latin carminare) worn as a mantle or used as coverlets and tapestries. Cf. Suk. 10a, also Kel. XXIII, 4.

(7) Han. explains (in Arabic) as 'damping to be rubbed and twisted to make them soft (or pliable)'. V. B.M. Lewin, Otz. Hag. IV, Mashkin, II, no. 173.

(8) Reading קיטורי בי ידי. Lewin, op cit. Yom-tob p. 5, no. 164. Cf. Lat. manicatae tunicae. According to another reading קיטורי בירי; to 'pleat' or 'bleach' (with sulphur fumes or with scented perfume ingredients) mantles, birri (Jast. s.v. ביריא. According to Gaonic explanation (Lewin, Otz. Hag. IV, Yom-tob, p. 55, no. 164) as al-akmis (Arabic), Camisoles, shirt-tunics. Cf. Persian pirahan.

(9) Which was raised in the centre sloping outwards.

(10) Which means that he is simply working the field during the festival week.

(11) When the water is run off.

(12) The water that carries the fish into the next section.

(13) To run off the upper water leaving the fish lower down in the shallows.

(14) Removing the foliage and young shoots.

(15) Syriac, Arabic, from Assyrian tuhallu (Brockelmann 70b) palmulla praematura. Cf. Hag. 15b.

(16) Lit., 'business transaction'.

(17) Risk of a loss may be prevented during the festival week. V. supra, 2a, p. 3.

(18) Same as (silver) denarii.

(19) The foot of Shanwatha. V. Obermeyer L.B. 268. From B.M. 73b, (Sonc. ed. p. 425), we learn it was a deal in wine.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 11a

to a heathen fair and buy cattle, male and female slaves, houses, fields and vineyards, and draw up contracts and have them registered at their Registry Offices,[1] because it is [practically] like rescuing something of which they [the heathens] had got possession. Rab permitted R. Hiyya b. Ashi to mend basket-traps[2] during the festival week. What is the reason? — It is ordinary [unskilled] work; but [to mend] mesh-nets is forbidden. What is the reason? It is work of craftsmanship. Rab Judah allowed Ammi the ovenmaker to put up ovens and Rabbah b. Ashbi he allowed to plait sieves. But this cannot be [correct], as Rabbah b. Samuel learned: And all [authorities] are agreed that an oven may not be set up for the first time [during the festival week]! — There is no difficulty [here]: The former ruling obtains during the 'warm season'[3] while the latter ruling obtains in the 'rainy season'.[4]

MISHNAH. A PARAPET MAY BE PUT ROUND A ROOF OR [A RAILING ROUND] A GALLERY ROUGHLY BUT NOT IN FINISHED STYLE.[5] PLASTER MAY BE SMEARED ON THE CREVICES[6] AND FLATTENED DOWN WITH A ROLLER,[7] WITH HAND OR FOOT, BUT NOT WITH RAMMING TOOLS.[8] PIVOTS AND SOCKETS,[9] LINTELS, LATCHES,[10] BOLT-LOCKS AND DOOR-HANDLES[10] THAT HAVE GIVEN WAY MAY BE REPAIRED DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK], ONLY THEY MUST NOT BE LEFT PURPOSELY FOR THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]; AND ALL PRESERVES THAT MAY BE EATABLE IN THE FESTIVAL [WEEK] ONE MAY PUT IN PICKLE.

GEMARA. What, for instance, is meant by putting up a parapet or railing 'roughly'? — R. Joseph explained: [Something like a fence of] palm-leaves and daphne-stakes.[11] A Tanna taught: One may pile up rubble without daubing with clay. PLASTER MAY BE SMEARED ON THE CREVICES AND FLATTENED DOWN WITH A ROLLER, WITH HAND OR FOOT, BUT NOT WITH RAMMING TOOLS. Now, if you say it is allowed to flatten down with a roller, need one [be told] 'with hand or foot'? — What it means is: One may smear [plaster on] the crevices and flatten down as with a roller, by hand or foot, but not with ramming-tools.

PIVOTS AND SOCKETS, LINTELS, LATCHES, BOLT-LOCKS AND DOOR-HANDLES THAT HAVE GIVEN WAY MAY BE REPAIRED DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]. Some contrasted this with [the following]: 'Up to his days,[12] the hammer was beating in Jerusalem during the festival [week] . . .', [that is], 'up to his days', but not thereafter![13] — [Said R. Huna][14] that is not difficult [to explain]; the reference there is to the smith's [hammer],[15] while here [the tool allowed] is the joiner's [mallet].[16] R. Hisda demurred to this [explanation] as according to this some will say that a loud din is forbidden, [but] a faint sound is allowed. No, said R. Hisda, it is not difficult [to explain]: One [the tool allowed here] is the bill-hook[17] and the other [which is not allowed] is an adze.[18] R. Papa said that in one statement we have the [older view held] before the restriction [had been introduced] and in the other the [later] view held after the restriction [was introduced]. R. Ashi said that one [Mishnah] expresses R. Judah's view[19] and the other R. Jose's; for R. Isaac b. Abdimi said: 'Who may be the [anonymous] Tanna that [holds] that work must be done in a different way from the ordinary[20] [in working] during the festival [week] even where its [postponement would entail] loss? Not R. Jose'.[21] Rabina said, Whose ruling do we follow nowadays when we raise the pivot-cups[22] of the doors during the festival week? — R. Jose's. AND ALL PRESERVES THAT MAY BE EATABLE IN THE FESTIVAL [WEEK] ONE MAY PUT IN PICKLE. On Baditha Luba,[23] everybody engaged in fishing and they brought in fish,[24] and Raba allowed to put them in salt. Said Abaye to him: But [why]? We learned: PRESERVES THAT MAY BE EATABLE IN THE FESTIVAL [WEEK] ONE MAY PUT IN PICKLE? — Said he [Raba] to him, Since they brought them home with the intention of eating them and if they leave them [uneaten] they will be spoilt, it is similar to [a case of] business that might be lost and is therefore permitted.[25] And some say that Raba [actually] allowed them to him, But surely we learned: PRESERVES THAT MAY BE EATABLE go fishing,[26] fetch the fish home and put them in salt. Said Abaye to IN THE FESTIVAL [WEEK] ONE MAY PUT IN PICKLE! — Said he [Raba] to him, These may be eaten [also] by means of ‘pressing’, as was the case with Samuel when they applied pressure [to the fish in salt] sixty times[27] and he ate [thereof]. When Raba [himself] once happened to be at the house of the Exilarch,[28] they prepared for him [a dish of fish] pressed sixty times and he ate it. Rab was [on a festival week] once at Bar-Shappir[29] [Perissabora?] where they put before him some kind of fish [which was] a third boiled, a third salted and a third broiled. Rab said, Adda the fisherman told me that a fish is at its best when it is about to turn putrid. Rab also said this, Adda the fisherman told me: Broil the fish with his brother [salt], plunge it into its father [water], eat it with its son [sauce] and drink after it its father [water]. This too Rab said: Adda the fisherman told me: [After eating] fish, cress and milk occupy your body, don't occupy your couch.[30] And furthermore said Rab, Adda the fisherman told the: [After] fish, cress and milk drink [rather] water, not mead;[31] mead and not wine. [

---

(1) Archives.

(2) For fish or fowl.

(3) Passover time, when the clay very soon dries and the oven may be used forthwith.

(4) At the time of Tabernacles, when the rain delays its use, hence the work is untimely during the festival week.

(5) Lit., ‘the work of an ordinary man but not that of a craftsman’.

(6) On the roof, which was flat and sloping slightly towards the edges to allow the rain to run off’. Cf. Bez. 9a.

(7) A leveller, so called because of its round shape. It was made of a piece of round log with a long handle fixed at right angles, by which it was drawn to and fro, like our broom. Sometimes it was a flat stone with the edges rounded on moved in a circular motion by a long handle. V. Rashi, Mak. 7a, (Sonc. ed. p. 38).

(8) Pressing tools; Roman pavicula.

(9) The doors of the ancients did not hang on hinges, but turned on wedgeshaped pins which fitted into a hollow, or metal ring fixed into the threshold and lintel. V. Krauss, T.A. I, 36ff

(10) All made of wood. Cf. ‘Er. 101a.

(11) Like a hurdle or hedge fixed temporarily. Daphne is a dwarf shrub often used for hedges.

(12) Referring to the High Priest, John Hyrcanus I, one of the Maccabean princes. Cf. Sot. 17a.

(13) Whereas here the Mishnah permits its use!

(14) So MS.M.

(15) Publicly plied in the forge.

(16) Privately, in the house.

(17) A gardener's tool for a piece of joinery.

(18) The regular artisan's tool.

(19) I.e., the stricter view, as he forbids exertion and only allows it where loss is threatened. Cf. supra 2a, p. 3.

(20) E.g., by using an improvised tool, or be satisfied with a temporary adjustment.

(21) V. infra 11a and 12a.

(22) Or the cavity which receives the bolt. Cf. Ar. Compl. s.v. VI, 161b. There are different readings.

(23) בדיתא לבאי i.e., the canal Baditha near Luba on the northern Euphrates, v. Obermeyer, p. 311.]

(24) The time of flood in Mesopotamia is between March and May and there was therefore at Passover-time a plentiful supply of fish in the streams.

(25) Cf. supra 10b for Raba's view in regard to merchandise, as modified by R. Jose b. Abin.

(26) Ab initio, or to purchase fish, i.e., to take advantage of the opportunity.

(27) Sixty is a Babylonian unit, e.g., sixty minutes an hour, a minute sixty seconds etc. and is used often as conventionally as here for ‘ever so many times’.

(28) Resh Galutha. The official head of the Jewish community in Babylon, an office held in succession by descendants of the royal house of David, and recognized by the Government. It was, in this distance, either Mar Huna III or Abba son of Mar ‘Ukban III, to both of whom Raba was official adviser on religious matters. V. W. Bacher's article, Jew. Encycl. V, 289, s.v. Exilarch.

(29) MS.M. Piruz-Shabur = Perisaboras was however rebuilt and so named later by Sapor II. Cf. Obermeyer p. 226.

(30) I.e., move about and do not lie down to sleep.

(31) A fermented beverage made of dates used in Babylon.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 11b

CHAPTER II

MISHNAH. IF ONE HAD [ALREADY] TURNED HIS OLIVES[1] WHEN MOURNING[2] OR SOME HINDRANCE BEFELL HIM, OR WORKMEN DISAPPOINTED HIM, HE MAY [DURING THE FESTIVAL WEEK] PUT ON THE BEAM FOR THE FIRST TIME AND LEAVE IT [THUS] UNTIL AFTER THE FESTIVAL; THESE ARE THE WORDS OF R. JUDAH. R. JOSE SAYS, HE MAY DRAW OFF [THE OIL] AND COMPLETE THE PROCESS[3] AND BUNG[4] [THE JARS] IN HIS USUAL WAY [DURING THE FESTIVAL WEEK].

GEMARA. The Mishnah begins with mourning and finally [only] deals with the festival [week]![5] — Said R. Shisha[6] son of Idi: This implies that things one is permitted [to do] during the festival [week] are forbidden him during [the week of] his mourning.[7] R. Ashi says, [Not so], this wording is cast in the form of, ‘No need to say’ . . .,[8] no need to say [that he may put on the beam for the first time] during [the week of] his mourning when [the restriction on work] is but rabbinical, but even during the festival [week], when [work] is restricted on Scriptural grounds, the Rabbis still permit it where loss is involved.

It was taught[9] in the sense of R. Shisha son of Idi: These are the things they may do for the mourner during his [week of] mourning: If his olives had been turned they may put on for him [the beam for the first time], or if his wine [cask] is to be bunged, or his flax is to be lifted from the retting, or his wool is to be lifted from the dye-bath; and they may besprinkle his field[10] for him when his turn for water-rights arrives. R. Judah says they may even sow for him the ploughed field or the field awaiting a flax-crop. Said they [the Rabbis] to him: [Not so], if the field is not sowed in the early season it could be sowed in the latter season and if It cannot be sowed with flax let it be sowed with some other kind [of crop].[11] Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel says, If his olives had been turned and there is no skilled worker save himself, or his cask is [ready] for bunging and there is no skilled worker save himself, or his flax is [ready] for lifting from the retting or his wool for lifting from the dye-bath and there is no skilled worker save himself, such a one may perform [his task] behind closed doors. Furthermore, said Rabban Gamaliel, if he is a skilled worker engaged in the service of the public, or a hairdresser or a bath-attendant in the service of the public, and the Festival is close at hand and there is no skilled worker save him, such a one may do the work. Farmkeepers,[12] tenant-farmers[13] and contractors of labour may have others doing work for them.[14] Ass-drivers, camel-drivers and bargemen may not work;[15] but if they were [already] engaged on the job or were [just then] in the hire of others, they [themselves] may do their work.[14] A daily worker[16] may not work, even in another town.[17] One who has others’ work in hand,[18] even if it is a contract job,[19] he may not do it. [You say,]’ Even if it is a contract job’, [which implies] and all the less so if it is not a contract job. On the contrary, a contract job is like his own [work]![20] Rather, whether it is a contract job or not a contract job he may not do it. If his work[21] was placed in the hand of others, they may not do it in his own house, but in another house they may do it.

Marion the son of Rabin and Mar the son of R. Aha the son of Raba had a yoke of oxen[22] between them, when a misfortune[23] befell Mar the son of R. Aha the son of Raba; he broke up the team [and did not send his animal to work]. Said R. Ashi, A great man like Mar the son of R. Aha acting in such a manner! Granted that he minds not his own loss [of earning], is he not concerned about the loss [caused] to others? Surely it is taught: ‘But if they were [already] engaged [on the job] or were [just then] in the hire of others, these may do their work’?[24] — He [Mar] however held the view that [the case of] a prominent man is different.[25]

---

(1) For maturing before pressing (or milling).

(2) For the death of a parent, wife, child, brother or sister.

(3) Of a second or third pressing, etc.

(4) Omitted in most texts as rather more applicable to the next case, that of wine.

(5) Without stating how to proceed in the case of mourning.

(6) Var. lec. Shesheth.

(7) Namely, that the permission to do those things now was granted only in connection with the festival week, but not during the week of mourning.

(8) ‘No need to say only this . . . but even that’ may or may not be done.

(9) Cf. Sem. II, 2-5, and J.M.K. II, 1 (81a).

(10) Sem. has ‘besprinkle for him a white field’ and J.M.K. has ‘irrigate for him a languid field’.

(11) Abstention would thus involve no loss.

(12) Gardeners or metayers who receive from the owner of the field or orchard a certain proportion of the produce for their labour.

(13) Who pay a fixed annual rent in money or in kind.

(14) While in mourning, as their abstention means a loss to the workers besides the mourners themselves.

(15) Either drive the animal or let it out on hire just then.

(16) I.e., on a day to day employment.

(17) Where he is not known. [Since according to the law he may withdraw during any part of the day, v. B.K. 116a.]

(18) I.e., he does the work at home.

(19) I.e., he is paid by piece and not by day.

(20) And therefore should be forbidden.

(21) Here the quotation is resumed.

(22) Gemella. A pair of oxen owned in partnership which they let on hire to farmers.

(23) A bereavement.

(24) In the Baraitha cited above, with a slight variation in the order to suit the case.

(25) I.e., he was not unaware of the ruling in the Baraitha, but felt that a man of his status (and maybe, his partner too) should be stricter in the application of the law. Cf. Bez. II, 6; 22b; Shab. 51a.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 12a

Samuel said: ‘[If non-Jews] take work on contract they may not [work for a Jew][1] within the [limits of the Sabbath] boundary;[2] but outside the boundary they may’. Said R. Papa, Even outside the boundary we do not say [they may] save where there is no town in the Vicinity; but where there is a town near by, it is forbidden. Said R. Mesharshaya: And even if there be not a town close by we [still] do not say [they may carry on the work] save on Sabbaths and festivals when there are not frequent [Jewish] passers-by, but during the festival week when people are often passing to and from the place it is forbidden. Mar Zutra son of R. Nahman had a mansion erected for himself by [non Jewish] contractor [builders] outside the boundary.[3] R. Safra and R. Huna b. Hinena happened to come thither and did not enter his house; and some report that he [R. Nahman] himself did not enter the building. But did not Samuel say that con tractors may not carry on their work within the boundary, but outside the boundary they may? — [The case of] a prominent man is different. Some say [his servant][4] had assisted then with straw. R. Hama allowed the Exilarch's table-stewards to do their work[5] during the festival week; he said that as they received no remuneration they only intend to benefit him[6] which concerns us nought.

Our Rabbis taught: Contracts may be made during the festival [week for work] to be executed after the festival [week]; but [to do it] during the festival [week] is forbidden. The general principle on this point is that whatever one may do himself he may tell a non-Jew to do; and what he himself may not do, he may not tell a non-Jew to do. Another [Baraitha] taught: Contracts may be made during the festival [week] to be executed after the festival [week], only that one should not measure, weigh or count [quantities] after the manner in which this is done on an ordinary day.

Our Rabbis taught: One may not bring a sire to mate during the festival week. Similarly, a ‘first-born, sire should not[7] be [used to] mate,[8] nor a votive beast that has become disqualified.[9] Another [Baraitha] taught: They may not bring a sire to mate during the festival week. R. Judah says, Where an ass is hankering [for the male] they may bring her the jackass to mate lest she become chilled. All other beasts are [merely] brought into the stalls.[10]

Our Rabbis taught: Sheep may not be turned out to graze in a hurdled enclosure[11] on Sabbaths, festivals, or in the festival week, but if they come [and do it] of their own accord,[12] it is allowed; and they may not be assisted [to it]. Nor may a watchman be assigned [to the shepherds] to move the sheep about.[13] If [the herdsman was] engaged by the week, month, year or septennate, assistance may be given to these[14] and a watch may be assigned to them to move the sheep about. Rabbi[15] says, [This may be done] on the Sabbath by way of favour, on the festival for meals and during thee festival [week] for payment. R. Joseph stated that the law is according to Rabbi.

MISHNAH. LIKEWISE IF ONE HAD HIS WINE [ALREADY] RUN INTO THE CISTERN THEN MOURNING BEFELL HIM, OR [SOME OTHER] HINDRANCE, OR WORKMEN DISAPPOINTED HIM, HE MAY DRAW OFF [THE WINE], COMPLETE THE PROCESS AND BUNG [THE CASKS] IN HIS USUAL WAY: THESE ARE THE WORDS OF R. JOSE; R. JUDAH SAYS, HE [MERELY] COVERS [THE CISTERN] WITH SHINGLES TO PREVENT IT TURNING SOUR.

GEMARA. [LIKEWISE IF ONE HAD etc.] And this [wine clause] is necessary. Because, if [the Tanna] had told us the first [clause alone], we might have argued that only in that case did R. Jose say [he may complete the process] as the loss on oil is considerable, whereas in the case of wine, where the loss is not much, one might presume that he concurred with the [stricter] view of R. Judah. And if [the Tanna] had told us the latter [clause alone], we might have argued that only in this case [of wine] did R. Judah say [he may not do more], whereas in that [former case of oil], one might presume that he concurred with thee more [lenient] view of R. Jose: [therefore] it was necessary [to enunciate both clauses]. Said R. Isaac b. Abba,[16] Who is the Tanna who requires that work [if done] should be done with a difference during the festival [week] where loss is threatened? It is not R. Jose.[17] R. Joseph said, The halachah is according to R. Jose.

Some [scholars] asked of R. Nahman b. Isaac: Is it permitted to coat a mead-cask [with resin][18] in the festival week? — Said he to them: Sinai[19] stated that the halachah is according to R. Jose. Supposing that R. Jose said [one may] in the case of wine, [does it follow] that he said [that one may] also in the case of mead? — [Indeed,] for what is the reason [that he allows] in the case of wine? [It is] because the loss on it is considerable; it is also considerable In the case of mead, as Abaye said, Mater[20] told me: ‘Better a coated cask of Six se'ahs than an uncoated cask of eight se'ahs’.[21]

R. Hama b. Guria citing Rab said: The halachoth[22] appertaining to the festival [week] are like the halachoth regulating the dealings with Kuthites.[23] What is the legal import [of this dictum]? — Said R. Daniel son of R. Ketina, It is to say that they are ‘sterile’[24] [regulations] and communicate nought[25] to each other, as [for instance] Samuel said that they [may] coat a jug with pitch but may not coat a cask; while R. Dimi of Nehardea said that they [may] coat a cask with pitch but they may not coat a jug; one master being solicitous to avert loss,[26] the other master being solicitous to avoid exertion[27] [during the festival week]. Said Abaye, We have it as tradition[28] that the halachoth appertaining to the festival [week] are like the halachoth appertaining to the Sabbath:

---

(1) People might say that they were given the work on the Sabbath.

(2) On a Sabbath or Festival (Rash). V. however, Asheri.

(3) On a Sabbath or a Festival.

(4) Han. and other texts.

(5) He allowed these non-Jewish servants to mend or improvise extra tables for the guests of the Exilarch. R. Hama is mentioned with Mar zutra in B.B. 7a.

(6) By working for the Exilarch during the festival week.

(7) At any time. Cf Tosef. M.K. II.

(8) 'Firstborn' males of 'clean' animals are from birth dedicated to the altar and as such claimed by the priest (v. Num. XVIII, 15, 17). These may not be worked, nor shorn for fleece, nor milked (v. Deut. XV, 19-20). Cf. Mak. 22a, (Sonc. ed. p. 155) and Bek. 15a.

(9) Having become blemished, it is unfit for the altar and may be redeemed for ordinary slaughter but not for any other use. V. Bek. 15b.

(10) To mate without assistance.

(11) To manure the field.

(12) I.e., if the non.jewish herdsmen drive the cattle into the field without any Instruction or request from the owner of the field.

(13) I.e., to use means whereby to expedite the discharge of excrements of the flock on the spot to be manured. V. Jast. s.v. נער, II.

(14) As these non-jewish herdsmen carry out their own work according to undertaking.

(15) J. Sheb. III, 3 reads here Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel, besides other variations. Also cf. Tosef. Sheb. end of Chapter li and Tosef. Shab. XVIII, 16.

(16) It is Isaac b. Abdimi on 11b.

(17) Since R. Jose holds that he can complete the process in the usual way.

(18) Or pitch, to make it air-tight. V. A.Z. 33a (Sonc. ed. p. 162). Han. takes it as sealing the stopper, by smearing it over with clay or pitch to prevent the wine or mead becoming vapid. The mead made from the syrup of dates was a Babylonian beverage, cf. Pes. 107a and 113b.

(19) A complimentary appellation of R. Joseph as an eminent authority on the body of Baraitha-comments (on the Mishnah), in contrast to Rabbah b. Nahmani, his great contemporary and predecessor as Principal of the Academy at Pumbeditha, who was called 'Uprooter of Mountains', a title descriptive of his method of acute analysis. V. Ber. 64a and Hor. 14a, (Sonc. ed. p. 105).

(20) Abaye was a posthumous child and his mother died in childbirth. He was brought up by a foster mother whose instructive sayings he frequently quotes as here. V. Kid. 31b.

(21) A se'ah is about two and a third gallons.

(22) Traditional rules of practice.

(23) The Samaritans who, when friendly, were treated as observant Jews, and when hostile and making common cause with the heathens in persecuting Jews and jeering at their religious practices, were treated as heathens. The attitude towards them, therefore, varied from time to time, according to circumstances.

(24) Some texts have עקודות 'tethered', i.e., inapplicable as 'rules in practice' owing to their frequent variability.

(25) Serving no purpose as definite instances from which to argue any definite principle.

(26) There is more loss involved in neglecting a cask than a jug, which is much smaller.

(27) The exertion entailed in coating a cask is greater than with a jug.

(28) Abaye often uses that expression.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 12b

some acts involve no penalty, though forbidden,[1] while other acts are allowed ab initio.

R. Huna had his harvest reaped during the festival [week], whereupon Rabbah put an objection to R. Huna [from the following]: They may mill flour during the festival [week] for the requirements of the festival; what is not required for the festival is forbidden. A thing that is perishable in the festival [week] is permitted to be done; a thing that is not perishable in the festival [week] is forbidden. When does this [rule] obtain?[2] In the case of something that is [already] severed from the soil, but where [the crop is still] attached to the soil, even if all of it perish it is forbidden; but if he have not food to eat, he may reap, gather into sheaves, thresh, winnow, clean and mill,[3] only that he shall not thresh with cows?[4] — He replied: That [Baraitha] is but an individual[5] opinion, and is not generally accepted by us, as it has been taught: Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel stated a general rule in the name of R. Jose, Whatever is [already] severed from the soil, even though only part of it might perish, yet may it be worked; while that which is [still] attached to the soil, even though it might all perish, is forbidden. But if [as you say] that [anonymous] Baraitha be R. Jose's opinion, then he should also be allowed to thresh with cows![6] For Surely R. Isaac b. Abba said: ‘Who is the Tanna that demands some variation In the working during the festival [week] where loss is involved? It is not R. Jose![7] — [Said R. Huna],[8] He [R. Jose] might reply:[9] ‘Yea indeed, so; yet as one does not usually[10] thresh with cows, threshing without them [during the festival week] would be no variation now.[11]

Our Rabbis taught: Flour may be ground during the festival [week] for the needs of the festival; but if not for the requirements of the festival [week], it is forbidden. If, however, one ground[12] and had some flour over, he is allowed to use it.[13] Trees may be cut down during the festival [week] for the needs of the festival, but if it is not for the needs of the festival it is forbidden; if one, however, had cut down[12] and had some over, it is permitted.[13] [The ingredients] for brewing mead[14] may be put in during the festival [week] for the needs of the festival; but if it is not needed for the festival it is forbidden; and if one put in [the ingredients][12] and had some [brew] left over, it is permitted,[13] provided only that there is no guile.[15] A contradiction was raised [from the following]: ‘They may put in [ingredients for brewing] mead during the festival [week] for the needs of the festival, but what is not for the needs of the festival is forbidden, be it a brew of dates or a brew of barley, and even though one have some old [brew] he may act with guile and drink of the new’?[16] — There is a difference among Tannaim as was taught: There should be no resort to guile in such matters; R. Jose son of R. Judah says, One may act with guile [sometimes].[17]

Rab [once] had his harvest gathered for him in the festival week. Samuel heard [of it] and was annoyed. Might one suggest that Samuel concurred with the view of the individual authority?[18] — No, it was a crop of wheat which [if left a while] would not have deteriorated. What is the reason that Rab acted thus? — He had not then [enough] to eat; and as for Samuel, he had not been fully informed [of the circumstances]. Or, [maybe he thought that the case of] a prominent person is different.

R. Judah the Prince[19] [once] went out [on the Sabbath] wearing an amethyst[20] signet and [once] drank water which an Aramean [non-Jewish] cook[21] had heated. R. Ammi hearing of it was annoyed. Said R. Joseph: What is the reason he was annoyed? Was it on account of the amethyst signet? Why, it is taught: Chains, earrings and rings are like all articles of dress that may be worn in the courtyard![22] [Again], if because he drank water which an Aramean had made hot? Why, Samuel b. Isaac, citing Rab, stated that whatever can be eaten raw is not [debarred] as in the category of heathen-cooked food! — [The case of] a prominent person is different.[23]

R. Hananel, citing Rab, said that one may lop off branches from a palm tree during the festival [week] even though he needs only the chips.[24] Abaye denounced[25] this [dictum] vehemently. R. Ashi had a wood in Shelania. He went to cut it down during the festival week. Said R. Shela of Shelania to R. Ashi, What is your ground [for acting thus]? Is it because of what R. Hananel, citing Rab, said, that one may lop branches from a palm during the festival [week] even though he needs only thee chips?[24] But surely Abaye denounced it vehemently! — Said he [R. Ashi] to him: ‘I heard it not’, as much as to Say, ‘I do not concur [with Abaye's view]’. The hatchet then slipped threatening to cut off his leg. He then abandoned his task and came again.[26]

Rab Judah permitted pulling up flax, picking hops and pulling up sesame crops. Said Abaye to R. Joseph: It is quite correct to do this in the case of flax, as if may be used for covering [fruits]; in the case of hops, as they may be used for [brewing] beer; but sesame — to what [immediate] use can it be put? — [It may be picked] on account of the seeds[27] it contains. R. Jannai had an orchard[28] that had become ripe for picking during the festival week [and] he picked it. The year [after] all the people kept their orchards waiting for the festival week. R. Jannai [thereupon] renounced his [proprietary rights in the] orchard that year.[29]

MISHNAH. A MAN MAY BRING HIS FRUITS INDOORS FOR FEAR OF THIEVES AND PULL HIS FLAX OUT OF RETTING TO PREVENT IT SPOILING, PROVIDED HE DOES NOT PURPOSELY HOLD THE WORK OVER TILL THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]; AND ALL THOSE WHO HAVE DELIBERATELY HAD THEIR WORK HELD OVER FOR THE FESTIVAL [WEEK] SHALL HAVE IT DESTROYED.[30]

GEMARA. BRING INDOORS. A Tanna taught: Provided only that he bring them into his house privily. R. Joseph had some beams of timber which he brought in during daylight. Said Abaye, But it is taught: ‘Provided only that he bring them into his house privily’! — He replied, The [requisite] privacy for these is [attained best] during daylight, since at night more men would be needed and torchbearers too would be required, making much ado.[31]

AND PULLS HIS FLAX OUT OF RETTING. R. Jeremiah asked of R. Zera: If a man keeps work over for the festival [week] and dies, should his children be penalized after him? Should you cite[32] [the case of],

---

(1) Cf. rules of Ulpian: ‘An in imperfect law is one which forbids something to be done, and yet if it be done, neither rescinds it nor imposes a penalty on him who has acted contrary to the Law’. I, l.

(2) That which is perishable may be attended to in the festival week.

(3) I.e., one may do anything and everything that is necessary.

(4) I.e., he must introduce some variation. This Baraitha forbidding to reap except in the case where he has no food to eat, refutes R. Huna who, it is assumed, was not short of ready food.

(5) R. Jose's view which is given in the citation that follows and which is, however, not generally accepted.

(6) Which, however, is distinctly debarred in the anonymous Baraitha, above.

(7) As may be seen from his attitude in the first and second Mishnah (11b and 12a) in contrast to that of R. Judah in regard to both oil and wine. Whereas, In the anonymous Baraitha ascribed to him he distinctly stipulates not to thresh with cows, insisting on a variation.

(8) To explain that there is really no contradiction in the discrepancy.

(9) SBH reads better: ‘Said he, R. Huna, to him (to Raba)’.

(10) Lit., ‘every day’.

(11) On the contrary to use cows would be in this case an undesirable offensive display of his work (Rashi).

(12) During the festival week for the needs of the festival.

(13) After the festival.

(14) Or beer.

(15) To prepare which under the guise of forgetfulness or mistake for the needs of the festival with the intention of having some left over after the festival.

(16) Indicating thereby that he made the brew for the festival week.

(17) On the principle, v. Bez. 17b, especially Rashi's observation s.v.

(18) Cf. supra R. Huna's reply to Rabbah's question.

(19) R. Judah III, Rabbi's grandson.

(20) מדושא אמדושא representing the Greek form . The amethyst was often worn (as its name implies) as a talisman against drunkenness. Or the phrase may possibly be a talisman ring having a setting of a Medusa head, a popular charm against spells and against the power of enemies; and, although this could not have been the case in our instance, it is not unlikely in the instance cited in ‘Er. 69a, where the wearer on sighting R. Judah the Prince, quickly covered it; he is considered there as a semi-heathen or renegade.

(21) Or tavern keeper.

(22) Cf. ‘Er. 69a and R. Tam's comments, Tosaf, s.v, כיון.

(23) Cf. Shab. 51a.

(24) Or sawdust.

(25) Lit., ‘cursed’.

(26) Another time.

(27) For sesame oil.

(28) J.M.K. II, 2 (81a) reads: R. Simeon, R. Jannai's son.

(29) As a self-imposed penalty for having led others to do wrong.

(30) I.e., they must be deprived of any advantage gained.

(31) Lit., ‘a noisy affair’.

(32) Lit., ‘Find a case to explain (my question) by saying. . .’; or, ‘Extract an answer from the case of. . .’

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 13a

‘One who had [craftily] clipped the ear of his first-born beast’, and whose son is penalized after him,[1] [I can reply that] that is because that is [an offence against] a Scriptural prohibition. Or should you cite [the case of], ‘One who sold his [non-Jewish] slave to a non-Jew’, and whose son was penalized after him, [I can say that] that is because he debarred him daily from the [performance of] religious duties.[2] Here, what do we say? That the Rabbis’ intention was to penalize the man personally and he is no more, or, maybe that it was only to impose a pecuniary penalty [on his estate] and that is to be had? — R. Zera replied, You learned it [in the Mishnah]: ‘A field that has been cleared of thorns[3] during the seventh year may be sowed in the post-sabbatical year; if it had been well improved[4] or manured[5] by hurdling cattle[6] on it, it may not be sowed in the post-sabbatical year’,[7] and [on this Point] R. Jose b. Hanina said: ‘We have it on tradition that if one had well improved his field and died, his son may Sow it’. This shows that our Rabbis did [intend to] penalize him,[8] but his son the Rabbis did not [intend to] penalize; here too, then, it is the man himself that they would penalize, but his son the Rabbis would not have penalized. Said Abaye, We have it on tradition that if a man has defiled his fellow's clean [produce][9] and dies they do not penalize his son after him [to pay for the damage caused]. What is the reason? ‘Imperceptible damage[10] is not in the category of [legal] damage’;[11] the man himself the Rabbis would have penalized, but his son the Rabbis would not have penalized.

MISHNAH. HOUSES, [STONES],[12] SLAVES AND CATTLE MAY NOT BE BROUGHT SAVE FOR THE NEEDS OF THE FESTIVAL, OR THE NEED OF A VEND OR WHO HAS NOT [ENOUGH] TO EAT. GEMARA. Raba asked of R. Nahman: What about [affording] ‘earning-jobs’[13] in aid of one who has not [enough] to eat? — He replied: We learned: OR THE NEED OF A VENDOR WHO HAS NOT [ENOUGH] TO EAT. What is this [relative] clause, ‘Who has not enough to eat’ intended to cover?[14] Is it not to include such [casual] ‘earning-jobs’? — Not [necessarily]; it is an explanatory clause.[15] Thereupon Abaye pointed out to him an objection: ‘One should not write credit-bills during the festival [week]; but if [the creditor] does not trust [the person] or he [the clerk] has not [enough] to eat, one may [then] write’.[16] What is the clause, ‘Or he has not [enough] to eat’ intended to cover here? Is it not to include [casual] ‘earning-jobs’?[13] — [Yes], you may infer that.

R. Shesheth raised an objection: ‘And the Sages say, Three craftsmen [may] do work until midday on the day preceding the [Feast of] Passover,[17] [namely], tailors, hairdressers and fullers; tailors, for the same reason that a private person may do [some] sewing in his usual way during the festival [week]; hairdressers and fullers, for the same reason that persons returning home from abroad,[18] or coming out of prison may crop their hair and wash their clothes during the festival [week]’.[19] Now, if you presume that ‘earning-jobs’ are allowed[20] where one has not [enough] to eat, then also all [other] work should have been allowed here,[21] because ‘earning-jobs’ are permitted[20] where one has not [enough] to eat! R. Papa demurred to this [argument]: Then accordingly, building [work should] be allowed,[22] just as ‘a wall which is bulging outward into the public domain, may be pulled down and rebuilt in the usual way,[23] because it is a [public] danger’![24] Rabina also demurred to this [argument]: Accordingly then, a scrivener[25] should be allowed [to work][22] just as one may ‘write marriage deeds,[26] bills of divorcement[27] and receipts’![28] Said R. Ashi:[29] [How] can you argue thus from regulations governing the festival [week] to those governing the fourteenth of Nisan? Those governing the festival [week] are based on [the avoidance of] exertion and where loss is threatened the Rabbis have allowed [exertion]; whereas the regulations governing the fourteenth of Nisan are based on the exigencies of the Festival; anything which is required for the Festival our Rabbis have permitted and anything that is not required for the Festival our Rabbis have not permitted.

MISHNAH. ONE MAY NOT REMOVE [EFFECTS] FROM HOUSE TO HOUSE,[30] BUT ONE MAY REMOVE THEM TO HIS COURT. WARES[31] MAY NOT BE BROUGHT HOME FROM THE HOUSE OF THE CRAFTSMAN. IF ONE IS ANXIOUS ABOUT THE THINGS,[32] HE MAY REMOVE THEM TO ANOTHER COURT.[33]

GEMARA. [BUT ONE MAY REMOVE THEM TO HIS COURT]. But you said at first that one's effects may not be removed at all? — Said Abaye, The latter part comes to [tell] us that [to another] house in that [same] court he may [remove his effects].[34]

AND WARES MAY NOT BE BROUGHT HOME FROM THE HOUSE OF THE CRAFTSMAN. Said R. Papa: Raba [once] gave us a test: We learned, ‘WARES MAY NOT BE BROUGHT HOME FROM THE HOUSE OF THE CRAFTSMAN’ and this he contrasted [with the following]: ‘Wares may be conveyed [to][35] and brought home from the house of the craftsman, even though they be not needed for the festival’![36] And we replied to him: The latter [Baraitha] refers to the fourteenth of Nisan, while here it refers to the festival week. Or, if you like, I might suggest that both [passages] refer to the festival week, [but that the ruling] here [obtains] where he trusts him[37] [and] the latter [ruling obtains] where he does not trust him.[38]

---

(1) The firstborn male of ‘clean’ animals is from birth ‘dedicated’ or destined for the altar and its flesh is the priests’ due (Num. XVIII, 15-18). It may not be used for work or be shorn, unless it be born blemished or becomes accidentally permanently maimed, when it is no longer fit for sacrifice (Deut. XV, 19-22; cf. Lev. XXII, I8ff). If the owner cunningly contrives to get it injured either to avoid the trouble and expense of keeping it or to have the flesh, he is penalized to have it buried and is mulcted to half its value for the loss he caused to a priest. V. Shul. ‘Ar. Yor. De'ah. 309-310.

(2) Non-Jewish male slaves who (with their consent) had been circumcised (cf. Gen. XVII. 12-13) and (male and female) ritually received into the household, enjoyed the privileges of resting on the Sabbaths (Ex. XX, 10) and Feasts (Deut. XII, 12, 18) and to partake of holy meats (ibid. XVI, 11) even in the priest's household (Lev. XXII, 11) and to perform such Jewish religious observances as they chose. (Cf. Ber. 20a and Suk. 20b). By selling him to a non-Jew he debarred the slave from the religious observances he learned to love and enjoy, and for this heartless act the offending master was penalized by the loss of his monetary gain.

(3) Merely picked up, cleared, lifted from the soil by the first superficial ploughing which did not constitute working the soil, forbidden Scripturally.

(4) By regular harrowing or deeper or cross ploughing. V. Tosaf. s.v. נטייבה and commentary of R. Samson of Sens on M. Sheb. IV, 2.

(5) By bringing cartloads of manure and methodically spreading it over the field.

(6) Methodically, instead of just letting cattle roam about on it.

(7) M. Sheb. IV, 2.

(8) For clearing thorns by harrowing, manuring and hurdling cattle on the field, are not of the processes explicitly forbidden in Scripture (Lev. XXV, 1-5); and though some included even such ‘secondary processes’ under the Scriptural prohibition (cf. supra 3a), the Rabbis did not press the penalty against the dead man's son.

(9) Which had been carefully guarded by the owner from contamination, if the malefactor spitefully threw (for instance) a dead reptile on the heap of washed corn or among the gathered olives or grapes (cf. Lev. XI, 29-34). Priests’ due of these could not be eaten, but might only be burnt as fuel. Pious lay-people would not buy such produce.
(10) As there is no visible change in the produce that has been thus deteriorated, he call say that all is still as it was.
(11) MS. M. and in parallel passages add here: ‘The penalty (imposed) is rabbinical (in origin) ‘.
(12) V. D.S. Other texts add also ‘fields’.
(13) I.e., find a poor man some odd, unnecessary job to do, as a chance of earning something wherewith to buy provisions for the Festival.
(14) It is assumed that the words THE NEED OF A VENDOR imply that he has not enough to eat.
(15) Explaining the phrase THE NEED OF A VENDOR. But there is no indication according to this interpretation of the Mishnah — to have any unnecessary job done in the festival week.
(16) During the festival week, plainly allowing it as a means of helping the borrower or the (professional) scribe.
(17) The fourteenth of Nisan, when from early afternoon the people began the preparation of the Paschal Lambs. Cf. pes. V, 1, 5ff.
(18) Lit., ‘from the maritime province’, generally denoting the Diaspora.
(19) V. Pes. 55b and cf. with the Mishnah 55a on the variations in the text.
(20) During the festival week.
(21) On the fourteenth of Nisan, instead of limiting the permission to three crafts only, because there may be other craftsmen who may be in need of money for food. But, as there is no mention of such a contingency there, it shows that even in such a case, unnecessary odd ‘earning-jobs’ may not be given in the festival week.
(22) On the fourteenth of Nisan.
(23) During the festival week.
(24) V. supra 7a.
(25) Lat. librarius.
(26) The terms of the marriage contract agreed to by the parents, the bride and bridegroom.
(27) To end an unhappy marriage all the sooner, it is allowed even in the festival week.
(28) V. infra 18b.
(29) There is a flaw in K. Shesheth's argument.
(30) Either (i) from one house to another in the same court, or (ii) from another's house into his own, as this is gratifying to him. V. Han., Asheri and Ritba.
(31) כלים ; the term covers articles of household furniture, utensils, clothing and bedding; but obviously not tools, etc.
(32) Fearing they might be stolen.
(33) To ensure their safety.
(34) Cf. p. 75. n. 9 (ii).
(35) So SBH. p. 62. In our text as it stands, both here and pes. 55b מוליכין might possibly refer to the conveyance of larger, unportable objects, while מביאין refers to smaller, portable things. The concluding words of this discussion, however, do not take note of this possibility.
(36) V. pes. 55b.
(37) The craftsman, and may leave his things with him safely to avoid all unnecessary ‘exertion’.
(38) Fearing they might be stolen.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 13b

And [in fact] it is taught [thus]: ‘Wares may be brought [home] from the house of the craftsman, for instance, jugs from the jug maker's and tumblers from the glass maker's, but not wool from the dyer's nor articles from the house of the craftsman; but if he has not [enough] to eat one gives him his pay [in advance] and leaves the object with him, if however he does not trust him he leaves It In a house near him[1] and if he is anxious about the things lest they be stolen he[2] brings them home privily’.[3] You have thus explained[4] [the discrepancy] about ‘bringing home’, [but] the discrepancy about ‘conveying’ still remains a difficulty; for when it states WARES MAY NOT BE BROUGHT HOME, [it follows] much less may one convey [wares to the house of the craftsman]! Hence [obviously] the explanation given at first[5] is the correct one. MISHNAH. FIGS [WHILE DRYING]

MAY BE COVERED WITH STRAW;[6] R. JUDAH SAYS, THEY MAY EVEN BE PILED UP [IN HEAPS].[7] VENDORS OF FRUITS, CLOTHING AND [OTHER] WARES MAY SELL Privily FOR THE REQUIREMENTS OF THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]. FISHERMEN, GROATS-POUNDERS AND GRIST GRINDERS[8] PLY THEIR TRADE PRIVILY FOR THE REQUIREMENTS OF THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]. R. JOSE SAYS, THEY HAVE IMPOSED A RESTRICTION ON THEMSELVES.[9]

GEMARA. R. Hiyya b. Abba and R. Assi differ [in their interpretation] both in the name of Hezekiah and R. Johanan.[10] One says that the [former expression], they MAY BE COVERED, MEHAPPIN, means [covering but] lightly, and [the latter] MAY EVEN BE PILED UP, ME'ABBIN, means [spreading the straw] closely; the other says that MAY BE COVERED, means [spreading the straw] lightly or densely, while [the latter expression], MAY EVEN BE PILED UP, means miaking a sort of pile.[11] It is also taught thus: ‘May be piled up [me'abbin] — making a sort of pile: these are the words of R. Judah’.

VENDORS OF FRUITS, CLOTHING AND [OTHER] WARES MAY SELL PRIVILY. The question was asked: Does THEY HAVE IMPOSED A RESTRICTION ON THEMSELVES, mean that they do not work at all, or perhaps that they do it privily? Come and hear: ‘Vendors of fruits, clothing and [other] wares sell privily for the requirements of the festival [week]; R. Jose says, The Tiberian traders have imposed a restriction on themselves not to sell at all. Deerstalkers, fowlers and fishermen catch privily for the requirements of thee festival [week]; it. Jose says, The catchers of Acra have imposed a restriction on themselves not to catch at all. Groats-pounders make hilka[12] [coarse meal], tragus[13] [pulse-porridge] and tisana[14] [pearl-barley] privily for the requirements of the festival [week]; R. Jose says, The gristpounders of Sepphoris have imposed a restriction on themselves not to pound at all’. Abaye explained:[15] Hilka means [groats of] one [grain broken] in two;[16] tragus, one into three;[17] tisana, one into four.[18] When R. Dimi came [from Palestine] he said: [All these are] kuntha [spelt].

An objection was raised: Hilka, tragus and tisana are [considered as] ‘tainted’[19] everywhere.[20] Now this harmonizes well with the explanation that it is one [grain broken] in two, three or four; they are [considered] ‘tainted’ everywhere, because they have been rendered ‘fit’ [liable to take the taint of impurity]; but according to the explanation that they are all ‘spelt’, why then are they taken as ‘tainted’ everywhere, for these have not [necessarily] been rendered ‘fit’ [by damping]? [Sometimes they are], for instance, where the groats are [made of] peeled [spelt]; because, unless the grain had been soaked in water it would not peel. And why is it called hilka? Because it has had its ‘tunic’[21] [husk] taken off. An objection was raised: ‘One who vowed [to abstain] from dagan[22] is debarred even from [partaking of] the Egyptian bean[23] when dry, but is allowed to eat it when fresh [green];[24] and he is permitted rice,[25] hilka, tragus and tisana.[26] Now, this harmonizes well with the explanation that these [varieties] are so called because one [grain] is broken into two, three or four; it is Proper [to allow him to eat] because these [being now meal] no longer belong to the [category] of dagan [grain]; but according to him who says that hilka is [what we call] ‘spelt’, it is [still] properly [designated as] dagan! — This is a difficulty.

R. Huna[27] permitted vendors of Pot-herbs[28] to go and sell in the festival week in the market Place in the ordinary way. R. Kahana thereupon put an objection to him [from the following]: ‘A shop which opens into a colonnade may be opened and closed in the ordinary way; if it opens into the public domain, [the shopkeeper] may open one door and close one; and on the day preceding the last day of the Feast [of Tabernacles][29] he may bring out fruit and decorate the markets all round the town in honour of the last day of the Feast’. [That is to say], ‘In honour of the last day of the Feast, [he may open]; but if not in honour of the last day of the Feast, he may not [open]! That is not difficult [to explain]: This latter prohibition refers to the sale of fruits, whereas in the former case it is the sale of seasoning [pot-herbs that is allowed].

CHAPTER III

MISHNAH. AND THESE [MAY] CROP[30] [THEIR HAIR] DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]: ONE ARRIVING [HOME] FROM ABROAD,[31] OR FROM A PLACE OF CAPTIVITY OR ONE COMING OUT OF PRISON, OR ONE UNDER A BAN[32] TO WHOM THE SAGES HAVE [JUST] GRANTED ABSOLUTION. AND LIKEWISE ONE WHO APPLIED TO A SAGE[33] AND WAS ABSOLVED [BY HIM], AND A NAZIRITE[34] OR A LEPER ON EMERGING FROM HIS [STATE OF RITUAL] IMPURITY TO [BEGIN] HIS PURIFICATION.[35]

AND THESE [MAY] WASH [THEIR GARMENTS] DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]: ONE ARRIVING [HOME] FROM ABROAD,[31] OR FROM THE PLACE OF [HIS] CAPTIVITY, OR COMING OUT OF PRISON

---

(1) The craftsman.

(2) The owner takes the things into his house.

(3) V. supra n. 3.

(4) Lit., ‘straightened out’.

(5) Namely that the Baraitha ruling (cf. Pes. 55b) refers to the fourteenth of Nisan while our Mishnah refers to the festival week. Cf. R. Ash's reply, above. For further notes on this passage v. pes., Sonc. ed. p. 276.

(6) During the festival week, to protect them from rain. קציעות are split figs, which are sun-dried and pressed into cakes. V. commentaries on Alfasi ‘s text and Krauss, TA II, 246.

(7) The figs, or the covering straw. V. Gemara.

(8) Coarse and fine.

(9) V. Gemara.

(10) All four were Palestinian teachers (Tiberias).

(11) Supra n. 2.

(12) Latin halica, alicia. Cf. Martial, Epigr. XIII, 9: ‘Villio est alicia, carior illa faba’. It is mentioned there with the fine Egyptian lentil (Niliacam . . . lentem).

(13) Lat. tragum, pulse, porridge.

(14) Lat. pitsana, barley crushed and cleansed from the husks.

(15) By popular etymology.

(16) Derived from חלק ‘divide’ (into halves).

(17) From the Greek  in three parts.

(18) Greek  four.

(19) Literally (ritually) defiled, potentially or actually, by the grain being washed before the milling. Fruits, grain and vegetables are not subject to ritual defilement until washed or sprayed or have Purposely been left exposed to get damped by rain or dew. After that deliberate damping these take ritual defilement by contact with defiling objects. Cf. Lev. XI, 34. 37-38 with commentaries of Rashi and Nahmanides and B.M. 22a-b, (Sonc. ed. p. 138-9).

(20) M. Maksh. VI, 2, and cf. Pes 40a.

(21) Another popular derivation from חלוק a shirt or tunic.

(22) Means ‘cereal’ in the (final) form of grain.

(23) V. supra p. 77, n. 7.

(24) When it is not called a ‘cereal’ but a ‘vegetable’ and ‘in vows we follow the (meaning of terms in) popular parlance’, Ned. 49a; cf. 55a (top) commentaries.

(25) Or hirse. V. Pes. 35a.

(26) V. Ned. 55b; Tosef. Ned. IV, 1, ZM. p. 279. 17-l8.

(27) Of Sura, Rab's disciple and successor. Many texts (v. D.S. and SBH) read here Rab Judah at Pumbeditha, also a disciple of Rab, as was also R. Kahana, mentioned next.

(28) And other ingredients for food seasoning or ‘cornchandlers’. V. Tosaf. s.v. בתבלין and כרופייתא (sing. כרופיתא), probably connected with the Greek **

(29) The bracket is omitted in the Tosefta (M.K. II, 13) and other texts and rightly so, as the addition confines the permission only to the last part of Tabernacles, whereas there is no reason to exclude that of Passover.

(30) Lit., ‘shave’.

(31) Lit., ‘From a maritime province’.

(32) Lit., ‘repelled’ for some flagrant breach of discipline, a religious or moral offence. The matter is discussed fully infra 16aff. The ‘repelled’ person was expected to go about in sorry apparel, with disordered hair during the time of disgrace. as if in mourning.

(33) A hakam, an ordained Rabbi, to absolve him of a vow to go unkempt for a period, which is found to have been made rashly and is now extremely inconvenient or impossible of fulfillment. Cf. e.g., Ned. IX, 6; 66a.

(34) V. Num. VI, 1-21. If he became defiled by contact with a corpse he had first to be ritually purified and shaved (ibid 6-9); or, on the completion of his Nazirite period (13, 18).

(35) He had likewise to be shaved and to wash his garments. Lev. XIV, 8-9.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 14a

, OR ONE UNDER A BAN TO WHOM THE SAGES HAVE [JUST] GRANTED ABSOLUTION. AND LIKEWISE ONE WHO APPLIED TO A SAGE AND WAS ABSOLVED [BY HIM]. HAND-TOWELS, BARBERS’ TOWELS AND BATH-TOWELS [MAY BE WASHED]. MEN OR WOMEN [AFFECTED] WITH ‘THE FLUX’[1] OR MENSTRUANTS,[2] OR WOMEN AFTER CHILDBIRTH[3] AND ALL THOSE EMERGING FROM [A STATE OF RITUAL.] IMPURITY[4] TO [BEGIN] THEIR PURIFICATION ARE ALLOWED [TO WASH THEIR GARMENTS]; BUT ALL OTHER MEN ARE FORBIDDEN.

GEMARA. What is the reason that all other men are forbidden? — As we learned: ‘Members of the ward on duty[5] and [communal] Deputies at their Posts[6] are forbidden [during their turn] to crop [their hair] or wash [their garments]. But on Thursday they are allowed, in honour of the Sabbath’. Now Rabbah b. Bar-Hana reporting R. Eleazar [as commenting on this] said: ‘What is the reason [they may on Thursday]? So that they should not enter [on the duty of] their Ward in a state of untidiness’. Here also the reason is that they do not enter upon the festival in a state of untidiness.

R. Zera inquired: Suppose one had lost something on the day before the festival? [Do we say], since he was prevented [from attending to himself before] he may,[7] or perhaps, as the reason is not obvious, he may not? — Said Abaye: [Obviously not], as people would then say: ‘[So] all Syrian [fancy] loaves are forbidden, but the Syrian [fancy] loaves of Boethus are allowed’?[8] But admitting your argument [against], yet what about it. Assi's statement? who citing R. Johanan said: ‘Anybody who has but one tunic[9] is allowed to wash it during the festival week’. Would not people say in that case, too: ‘[So] all Syrian [fancy] loaves are forbidden, but the Syrian [fancy] loaves of Boethus are allowed’? — Surely it has been stated in this connection: ‘Said Mar son of R. Ashi, His girdle[10] proves his plight’.[11] R. Ashi's comments on our Mishnah were [in this form]: R. Zera enquired, What if a craftsman[12] had lost something on the day before the festival? Do we say that since he is a craftsman, the reason [why he is allowed] is obvious, or since the reason is not so obvious as in those other cases [mentioned in the Mishnah], he may not [attend to himself in the festival week]? Let this question stand [adjourned].[13]

[ONE ARRIVING HOME] FROM ABROAD [MAY CROP]. [The anonymous view of] our Mishnah is not that of R. Judah. For it is taught: R. Judah says, One arriving [home] from abroad may not crop himself [during the festival week] because he had set out [on his voyage] without the approval [of the Rabbis].[14] Said Raba: ‘If he merely went on a tour all [authorities] are agreed that he is forbidden;[15] if to seek his bread, all are agreed that he is allowed.[15] Difference of opinion arises only in the case of a voyage for business profits, one master looking upon it as equivalent to [mere] travelling, and the other master looking upon it as equivalent to seeking his bread’.

An objection was raised: ‘Said Rabbi: R. Judah's opinion seems apposite where he had set out without approval and the Sages' opinion seems apposite where he had set out with approval'. Now, what is 'without approval'? If I say for going on a tour, did you not say that all are agreed that he is forbidden?[15] Again [should it mean] for seeking [his] bread; surely did you not say that [if with this object] all are agreed that he is allowed?[16] It is obvious therefore that it means for profit-seeking.[17] Now consider the latter clause: 'And the Sages' opinion seems apposite where he had set out with approval'; what is meant by 'with approval'? If I say [approval to set out] for earning his bread, have you not said that all are agreed that he is allowed?[16] Again, should it [rather] mean for profit [seeking]; but surely then, did you not say that' R. Judah's [adverse] opinion seems apposite in this case [that he is forbidden]?[18] — This is what he [Rabbi] meant to say: The Rabbis accept R. Judah's opinion where he had started out 'without approval', and what means it? For going on a tour; because, even the Sages disagree with him only on [the question of a voyage] for gaining profit, whereas in regard to going on a tour they concur with him.[19] And again, R. Judah accepts the Rabbis' opinion [that he may attend to himself][16] where he had set out 'with approval', and what means it? For seeking his bread; because even R. Judah disagrees with them only on [the question of a voyage] for gaining profit, whereas in regard to going out for seeking his bread he concurs with them.[20]

Samuel said: 'If an infant is born during the festival [week] it is allowed to cut his hair[21] during the festival [week] because there is no imprisonment[22] more real than this'. [That is, only 'if . . . born] during the festival [week]' it may be done, but [if born] before then, it is [presumably] not allowed.[23]

R. Phineas raised all objection: 'Every one of those mentioned [by the Sages] as being permitted to crop his hair during the festival [week] may [likewise] crop his hair during the [thirty][24] days of his mourning';[25] [which means conversely] that every one of those who is forbidden to crop his hair during the festival [week] is [likewise] forbidden to crop his hair during the [thirty][26] days of his mourning.

---

(1) Ibid. XV, 2, 5, 13.

(2) Ibid. 19-27.

(3) Ibid. XII, 2; cf. XV, 25ff.

(4) Ibid. XI, 24-25, 28, 40 and Num. XIX, 19.

(5) Mishmar, v. Glos. The priests and Levites were grouped in twenty-four wards to take their turn in the Temple. V. I Chron. XXIV, 1-19 (Priests) and 20-25 (Levites). Cf. Neh. XII, 44-47 and XIII, 29-31.

(6) Ma'amad, v. Glos. Palestine was divided into twenty-four stations or districts which sent their deputies of priests, Levites and lay Israelites to represent the community at the Temple service and they served for a week. While on duty the Deputies observed a daily fast during the day, from Monday to Thursday and in a side chapel recited Holy Writ. V. Ta'an. IV, 1; Talm. 26a and 27a.

(7) Trim himself and wash his garments during the festival week.

(8) A proverbial expression, protesting against discrimination. The origin of the proverb is found in Pes. 37a where it is objected to fancy-shaped loaves for Passover use, as the shaping of the piece of dough may delay the baking to the point of leavening. R. Boethus b. Zonin suggested that the use of moulds might easily obviate this fear, which evoked the (proverbial) retort.

(9) Or shirt.

(10) Or loin cloth.

(11) While washing his shirt, he is either girded with a loin cloth or wears his outer garment fastened by the belt to avoid exposure of his body.

(12) A barber or bath attendant who is permitted to work on the fourteenth of Nisan, who mislaid or lost one of his tools, and his customers see him worried and hindered in his work.

(13) For a future adequate solution.

(14) Quoted in J.M.K. I, 1: 'For R. Judah said it is forbidden to set out on a voyage on the great sea'. The reason for his disapproval is probably on account of the risk of not arriving home in time for the festival. Cf. Shab. 19a and J. Shab. 1, 3.

(15) To attend to his personal appearance during the festival week.

(16) To attend to his personal appearance during the festival week.

(17) I.e., R. Judah does not approve of a sea voyage for mere gain or profit.

(18) All of which shows that the difference cannot be as stated on the question of a voyage for profit.

(19) That he is to be penalized if his homecoming was delayed, and not allowed to trim himself during the festival week.

(20) The accepted view is that a voyage for profit is an extenuating circumstance. V. Han., Asheri and Codes.

(21) If its hair is abnormally long and, for convenience, would best be shortened. If, however, the shortening is imperative for hygienic reasons there is no question.

(22) In the pre-natal state.

(23) Since it could have been cut before the festival.

(24) So in Tosef. II, 2. I. e., if he suffered a second bereavement before the mourning days of the first expired. V. infra 17b.

(25) V. infra 17b.

(26) V. p. 83, n. 9.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 14b

Now if you say that there is a difference here in the case of the infant,[1] you are this implying that [the observance of] mourning obtains in the case of a minor, whereas it is taught: ‘A minor's garment is rent out of grief of soul’?[2] R. Ashi said [that the negative inference is faulty, for] does it [actually] state ‘but those who are forbidden’?[3] Perhaps [it means to state] that some there are who are forbidden[4] and some others who are permitted.[5]

Amemar, or some say. R. Shisha son of R. Idi, taught thus: ‘Samuel said: "An infant may be cropped in the festival [week]: it makes no difference whether he was born during the festival [week] or was born before".’ Said R. Phineas: We learned this also [indirectly] from [the following]: ‘Every one of those mentioned [by the Sages] as being permitted to crop during the festival [week] may likewise crop his hair during the [thirty] days of his mourning’; which means conversely, but every one of those who is forbidden to crop during the festival [week] is likewise forbidden to crop during the [thirty] days of his mourning. Now if you say that a [newly-born] infant is forbidden [to be cropped] you find yourself [implying] that [the observance of] mourning obtains in the case of a minor; whereas it is taught [distinctly]: ‘The garment of a minor is rent [merely] out of grief of soul’? — Said R. Ashi: [That negative inference is faulty for] does it [actually] state, ‘But he who is forbidden [in the festival week] is also forbidden during his [thirty] days of mourning? Probably it means that some there are who are forbidden and some others who are permitted.

A mourner does not deport himself as one in mourning during a festival, as it is said: And thou shalt rejoice in the feast.[6] [For], if his mourning began before [the festival], a positive precept incumbent on the community[7] overrides one incumbent on him as an individual;[8] and if his mourning began just then [during the festival], an individual's function cannot come and put off that of the public.

Now what about one separated [under a ban]? Should he deport himself as one in ‘separation’ during a festival? — Said R. Joseph: Come and hear: ‘They [the Courts] deal with capital offenses, with [offenses involving judicial] floggings[9] and monetary suits,[10] [during the festival week]’. [This implies that] if one heeds not the [court's] decision, we put him under a ban.[11] Now if you presume that he should not deport himself during the festival like one under ‘separation’, [then] seeing that where one is already fallen under a ban, the festival comes and suspends [the ban],[12] shall we pronounce him banned in the first instance [during the festival]? Abaye replied: Perhaps [the object of the adjudication is] to examine the charge against him.[13] For, should you not say thus, then ‘capital offenses’ therein mentioned would likewise mean indeed that they would have him slain; but surely thereby they [the judges] themselves would be debarred from ‘rejoicing in the feast’ [as is Scripturally ordained], as it is taught:[14] Says R. Akiba: Whence may it be shown that a Sanhedrin [Court] that put a [sinning] soul to death do not taste [food] all that day? From the instructive text ‘Ye shall not eat on the blood’.[15] Therefore [I say] it must be only to examine the charge against him, and likewise here it is only to examine the charge against him. Said R. Joseph to him: If [you explain it] so, the result is that you delay the execution of his sentence [which is forbidden]?[16] But [I take it], they come early in the morning and examine the charges against him; then they go home and eat and drink all that day[17] and, coming back with the setting sun, they do give a final decision and [also] have him put to death.[18]

Said Abaye: Come and hear:[19] OR ONE UNDER A BAN TO WHOM THE SAGES HAVE GRANTED ABSOLUTION.[20] Said Raba: Does it state: ‘Whom the Sages granted absolution’? It says: OR ONE UNDER A BAN TO WHOM THE SAGES HAVE [JUST] GRANTED ABSOLUTION, [that is] where he [the offender] went and appeased the plaintiff and then came before our Rabbis[21] and they then set him free [from restraints].[22]

What about a leprous person; does he deport himself as a leper during the festival?[23] — Said Abaye: ‘Come and hear: AND [ALSO] A NAZIR OR LEPER EMERGING FROM HIS [STATE OF] IMPURITY TO [BEGIN] HIS PURIFICATION [may crop his hair and wash his garments],[24] which implies that during the days of his impurity he does deport himself [as a leper]’! — [No]; the Tanna considered that this goes without saying [and is to be understood thus]: It goes without saying that he does not deport himself [as a leper] during the festival.[25] But when [he is emerging] into his state of cleanness we might [be inclined to] restrict him, in case he might defer[26] making his [preliminary] offerings [of purification].[27] Therefore he informs us [that he may, nevertheless].[28] Said Raba: Come and hear:[29] ‘[It is taught]: And the leper. [in whom the plague is, his clothes shall be rent and the hair of his head shall be loose . . .],[30] that is meant to include a High Priest [in this rule]’. Now [we learned] a High Priest all through the year is on a par with any other person on a festival, as we learned: The High Priest may make sacrifice [on the altar] even when he be onen,[31] without however eating thereof! From this [latter restriction of even a High Priest] you can infer [about the former] that he should deport himself as a leper during the festival. — Infer that.

A mourner is forbidden to cut his hair, because since the Divine Law ordained the sons of Aaron:[32] Let not the hair of your heads go loose,[33] we infer that for everybody else [cutting the hair] is forbidden

---

(1) Whether the infant was born during or before the festival, in which latter case he must not be cropped, and consequently on the principle just enunciated he may not be cropped on his days of mourning.

(2) V. infra 26h. It is done, not as an obligatory observance on the part of the child, but merely to deepen the poignancy of grief among the mourners by including the young, unknowing child in the sorrow.

(3) ‘But those who are forbidden to crop their hair during the festival (week) are (likewise) forbidden to do it during the (thirty) days of mourning’.

(4) In the case of adults.

(5) In the case of minors.

(6) Deut. XVI, 14.

(7) The divine charge, an ‘ordinance’ to the community to observe the joyous celebration of the festival.

(8) The observance of mourning.

(9) Of thirty-nine stripes, for a well-attested breach of a Scriptural prohibition after due warning. V. Deut. XXV, 1-3; Mak., Sonc. ed. p. 90, n. 1.

(10) Claims or fines. So Tosef. M.K. II, 11.

(11) Shammetha, to enforce public discipline.

(12) I.e., his disabilities of seclusion and wearing a mourner's garb as in the case of the mourner.

(13) Without pronouncing judgment.

(14) Sanh., Sonc. ed. p. 430.
(15) Lev. XIX, 26.
(16) Cf. Aboth. V, Il and Shab. 33a.
(17) In fulfillment of the precept of rejoicing on the Festival.
(18) [Since after all a final decision is given on the festival week, it follows that the ban is necessarily imposed on the disobedient and consequently proves that the regulations of the ban are in force on the festival week.]
(19) In support of my view.
(20) The relative clause is at present assumed to mean that one who is banned is automatically released by the Sages on the festival from the disabilities of a ban.
(21) During the festival week.
(22) Otherwise he remains under his disabilities during the festival.
(23) I.e., to remain isolated, let his hair remain long and wear torn or soiled clothes as a leper, during the festival week.
(24) Cf. Mishnah supra 13b.
(25) I.e., it is immaterial either way so long as he is still an unclean leper, as he, in any case, has to resume his disabilities after the festival. V. Ritba.
(26) I.e., after having trimmed himself and changed his clothes during the festival he might postpone the offerings and bring them on the last day of the festival when a private sacrifice may not be offered.
(27) I.e., taking two live birds and spring water for the ritual sprinkling with the hyssop, as prescribed in Lev. XIV, 2-8, after which he washed his clothes and shaved his body and was to return to the camp' (home) and after another seven days to complete his 'purification and atonement by sacrifice at the Temple.
(28) Crop his hair and cleanse or change his torn clothes during the festival week.
(29) That the leper deports himself as a leper in the festival week also.
(30) Sifra on Lev. XIII, 45 where by laying stress on 'And the' together with the descriptive clause 'in whom the plague is' still, the wording is taken to include especially the otherwise exceptional person of the High Priest, who may never grow long hair or wear torn clothes, even when a mourner. Lev. XXI, 10.
(31) I.e., on the day of poignant grief, when the death of his near and dear occurred. This law is based on the sad experience of Aaron who lost two of his soils on the day of his induction as High Priest. He then offered up the sacrifices, but did not partake of the holy meat. V. Lev. X, 16; 16-20. Cf. Hor., Sonc. ed. pp. 90 and 93. Any other priest may not officiate during the state of onen, except on festivals when the law of onen does not apply.
(32) When Nadab and Abihu died.
(33) I.e., keep it in trim. V. Lev. X, 6 and cf, Ezek. XLIV, 20.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 15a

. What about those 'separated' [under a ban], and [segregated] lepers in regard to cutting [their hair] during the festival week? — Come and hear. 'Those "separated" [under a ban] and [segregated] lepers are forbidden to cut [their hair] and wash [their garments]. If one "separated" [under a ban] died,[1] the Beth din stone his coffin; R. Judah says, not that they set up a heap of stones over him like the heap of Achan,[2] but the Beth din send [commissioners][3] and have a large stone[4] placed on his coffin, which teaches you that if anyone is placed under a ban and dies in his "separation", the Beth din stone his coffin'.[5]

A mourner is obliged to muffle his head. Since the All Merciful enjoined Ezekiel: And cover not thine upper lip,[6] we infer that everybody else is obliged [to do so].[7] What about one 'separated' [under a ban] in regard to muffling the head? — Said R. Joseph, Come and hear: 'And they[8] muffle themselves and sit as men "separated" [under a ban] and like mourners until Heaven grants them mercy'. Said Abaye: Perhaps it is different with one who is 'separated' [under a ban] by displeasure of Heaven[9] [as it were]; for that is [more] serious [than being in disfavour with man]!

What about a leper, in regard to muffling the head? — Come and hear: And he shall cover his upper lip;[10] we infer from this that he is obliged to muffle his head. — Infer that.

A mourner is forbidden to put on tefillin.[11] Since the All Merciful ordained Ezekiel: Bind thy headtire upon thee,[12] this implies that everybody else is forbidden [to do so in deep mourning]. What about one ‘separated’ [under a ban], in regard to tefillin? — It stands [adjourned].

What about a leper, in regard to [putting on] tefillin? — Come and hear: [Holy Writ prescribes], ‘And the leper’;[13] this [amplification] is to include [even] a High Priest [in this law];[14] ‘his clothes shall be perumim’,[15] that is, they shall be torn. ‘And [the hair of] his head shall be parua’’.[16] ‘Parua’’ means only letting the hair grow long;[17] these are the words of R. Eliezer. R. Akiba explains [otherwise]: ‘Shall be’ is stated in connection with the leper's head;[18] and ‘shall be’ is stated in connection with the leper's garment.[19] [Therefore] just as ‘shall be’ stated in connection with the garment refers to something external to the body [clothes],[20] so also ‘shall be’ stated in connection with the head refers to something external to the body.[21] What then [is to be discarded]? Is it not the reference to tefillin? — Said R. Papa, [Not necessarily these], it may refer to [not putting on] a cap or sudarium.[22]

A mourner is forbidden to give the usual greeting [of wellbeing],[23] because the All Merciful said to Ezekiel: Sigh in silence.[24] What about one ‘separated’ [under a ban] in regard to [abstaining from] the usual greeting?[23] — R. Joseph said, Come and hear: And in regard to greeting one another ‘with peace’, as man to man, they [that are fasting][25] behave like persons who are ‘separated’ [under a ban] by the Omnipresent.[26] Said Abaye to him, Perhaps [the case of] the ‘separated’ [as under a ban] by displeasure of Heaven is different because it is [more] serious.

What about a leper in regard to [abstaining from] greeting one ‘with peace’? — Come and hear: [It is written]: And he shall cover his upper lip,[27] that is, his lips shall be compressed together, that he should behave like one ‘separated’ [under a ban] and like a mourner, and he is forbidden to greet one ‘with peace Infer that. Then why not solve now[28] [the above question] about one ‘separated’ [under a ban]?[29] — Said R. Aha b. Phineas in the name of R. Joseph: Does it [actually] state that he [the leper] is forbidden [to greet one ‘with peace’ like one ‘separated’]? It only states that he behaves like one ‘separated’ or like a mourner with reference to other things and at the same time that he is also forbidden to greet one ‘with peace’.

A mourner is forbidden [to engage] in the words of the Torah, because the All Merciful said to Ezekiel: ‘Sigh in silence’.[30] What about one ‘separated’ [under a ban engaging in] the words of the Torah? — Said R. Joseph, Come and hear: One ‘separated’ [under a ban] may teach [others] and others may teach him; he may be hired [for work] and others may be hired by him. One under anathema[31] neither teaches others, nor do others recite it to him; he is not hired [for work] nor are others [to be] hired by him; but he recites to himself in order that he does not interrupt his study;[32] and he makes a small stall for himself [as a means] for ‘his livelihood’.[33] Whereat Rab[34] remarked, [As for instance] selling water at the pass of Araboth.[35] Infer from that.[36] What about a leper [engaging] in the words of the Torah? — Come and hear: [It is written], And make them known[37] unto thy children and thy children's children; the day that thou stoodest before the Lord thy God in Horeb. [that they may learn to fear Me all the days . . . and that they may teach their children],[38] that is, just as [they heard God's word] then [at Sinai] with awe, fear, trepidation and perspiration;[39] [so be it now studied with awe, fear, trepidation and perspiration]. Hence sad they [the Sages], that men who are [affected] with flux,[40] lepers, or such as [in error] consorted with their wife while in separation[41] are allowed to read [Scripture] out of the Torah [Pentateuch], the Prophets or the Hagiographa[42] or to recite [orally] Mishnah,[43] Midrash,[44] Gemara,[45] Halachah or Aggadah;[46] while those who have night pollutions are forbidden.[47] You may infer it from that.

A mourner is forbidden to wash his clothes, for it is written, And Joab sent to Tekoa and fetched thence a wise woman and said unto her: ‘I pray thee, feign thyself to be a mourner and put mourner apparel, I Pray thee and anoint not thyself with oil, but be as a woman that had a long time mourned for the dead'.[48] What about the 'separated' [under a ban] and the lepers washing their clothes? — Come and hear: Persons 'separated' [under a ban] and lepers are forbidden to cut [their hair] or wash [their clothes]. You may infer it from here.

A mourner is in duty bound to rend [his garments], because the All Merciful enjoined the sons of Aaron, 'Neither rend [your clothes]'.[49] From here you infer that everyone else is bound to do it. What about one 'separated' [under a ban] rending his garments? It stands [adjourned].

What about the leper rending his garments? — Come and hear: 'His clothes shall be perumim'[50] which means they shall be rent. [Yes], infer it.

A mourner is bound to overturn his couch, because Bar Kappara taught:

---

(1) Sem. V, 11 adds: 'he requires a stoning'.
(2) Josh. VII, 25.
(3) Sem. ibid. has: But a messenger of the Beth din takes a stone and puts it on his coffin to carry out on him the ordinance of a stoning.
(4) Cf. Lev. XXIV. 23.
(5) Cf. 'Ed. V, 6 (Sonc. ed. p. 25) and Ber. 19a.
(6) Ezek. XXIV, 17.
(7) Under similar circumstances of bereavement, as Ezekiel's grief was meant to be excessively poignant.
(8) Some of the leading Rabbis who meet to fast and pray on account of the shortage of rain. V. Ta'an. 14b.
(9) The drought being the sign of Heaven's displeasure.
(10) Lev. Xlll, 45. 'Cover' here is the same term as used in Ezek. XXIV, 17; 22-23.
(11) Phylacteries. Cf. Deut. VI, 4-9; XI, 19 and Prov. III, 3; VI, 20-23.
(12) Ezek. XXIV, 17-23.Cf. Targum ad loc.
(13) Lev. XIII, 45. V. the full text cited by Raba p. 87.
(14) V. supra p 87, n. 5.
(15) Note the phrase, also the specific meaning of the root פרם , to tear, rend clothes, as here. It is used again twice (Lev. X, 6; and XXI, 10) and Lily in connection with Aaron and his sons; (not) to rend their garments for the dead.
(16) Note this phrase as well as the several meanings of the root פרע ; (a) to be, or get free (from restraint or debt), be loose; (b) to grow freely (of hair, foliage or branches), Num. VI, 5; (c) to let go free, without restraint (Ex. XXXII, 25); (d) to uncover, loosen, disarrange (hair etc.), Num. V, 18.
(17) V. 3b. Cf. Pseudo Jonathan on Lev. XIII, 45.
(18) V. supra p. 87, n. 5.
(19) V. supra ibid.
(20) I.e., his clothes are to be rent exposing parts of the body as a sign of distress and mourning.
(21) I.e., his head to be left bare, uncovered, by not putting on any external covering, as a sign of distress and mourning. Cf. Onkelos on Lev. XIII, 45.
(22) A Latin word meaning a napkin; here a cloth used as a kerchief.
(23) Lit., 'ask after peace'. E.g., Gen. XXIX, 6: 'Is it (peace) well with him? 'Is well': ibid. XLIII, 27. To ask such a question would be invidious and a happy reply even painful to the mourner who is in deep sorrow.
(24) Ezek. XXIV, 17; 22-23. Keep your grief to yourself, but outwardly chat and greet people freely, implying that other mourners may not greet, Han.
(25) on account of the prolonged drought.
(26) V. Ta'an. 12b.
(27) Lev. XIII, 45, with reference to a leper.
(28) From the leper's silence.
(29) Left in suspense because of Abaye's query that perhaps the demeanour of the faster is no criterion, as a public calamity such as drought, Hood, or epidemic disease etc. seems a more serious indication of divine displeasure than the sorrow of an individual.
(30) But converse and talk freely, as if nothing is amiss; implying that other mourners are forbidden. The learned discussion on the words of the Torah is deemed as a joy. V. Ps. XIX, 9-11; CXIX, 15-16 etc.

(31) One put under herem. This is the extreme disciplinary measure taken against a refractory offender, who persists in his defiance of the first reprimand' (for seven days); the 'separation' (or exclusion) for another seven days (in Babylon and thirty days in Palestine), refusing to submit. The matter is dealt with fully infra 16a.

(32) MS.M., 'Does not impair his studies'.

(33) Cf. Sem. V, 12-13 (where the text is defective).

(34) MS.M., R. Hisda.

(35) A place proverbially notorious for its lack of water, and highly infested by brigands. Cf. Ber. 54a; Naz. 43b. The best place where a man like him would find ready customers.

(36) That one under a ban is permitted to engage in the words of the Torah.

(37) 'The things which the eyes saw', i.e., the scene at Sinai.

(38) Deut. IV, 9-10.

(39) 'And when people saw it they trembled . . .' Ex. XX, 15.

(40) Lev. XV, 2ff.

(41) I.e., within the forbidden period of menses. V. Lev. XV, 19, 24 and XX, 18.

(42) Because 'The sacred word is not subject to defilement'; besides, it cleanses the mind and heart.

(43) The Mishnah par excellence. Inserted by MS.M.

(44) Lit., 'exposition' of the Biblical text.

(45) Lit., 'oral' or 'complementary' teaching and explanations of the Mishnah received from the mouth of a master. These constitute the study of the Talmud.

(46) Halachah is matter of legal import, and Aggadah is ethical and homiletical exposition.

(47) V. Ber. 22a, where the subject is discussed at length showing the divided opinions of teachers, who ultimately inclined to recognize human weakness along with the value of the study of Torah as a moral aid. Cf. Mak. 10a and 23b (Sonc. ed. pp. 62, 169ff).

(48) II Sam. XIV, 2.

(49) Lev. X, 6. At the death of their brothers Nadab and Abihu, during their installation into their priestly office.

(50) Ibid. XIII, 45. Cf. Supra p. 89, n. 2.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 15b

'[God says], "I have set the likeness of mine image on them and through their sins have I upset it; let your couches be overturned[1] on account thereof".' What about one 'separated' [under a ban] and a leper overturning couches? Let this stand [adjourned].

A mourner is forbidden to engage in work, for it is written: And I shall turn your feasts into mourning;[2] [hence we say] that just as it is forbidden to engage in work during a Feast [festival], so is it forbidden to engage in work during mourning. What about one 'separated' [under a ban] in regard to doing work? — Said R. Joseph: 'Come and hear: "When the Sages said that it is forbidden them[3] to engage in work, [about themselves, bathe, don shoes. . .], they laid this down only for the daytime, but at night it is all permitted and [the same restrictions] you find also in the case of one 'separated' and a mourner."[4] Does not this refer to all those [restrictions]?' — No, it is only to the other things, [but not to work].

Come and hear: 'One "separated" [under a ban] teaches [others] and others teach him; he is hired [for work] and others are hired by him'.[5] You may infer from that. What about a leper engaging in work? — Let this stand [adjourned]. A mourner is forbidden to wash himself, as it is written, And anoint not thyself with oil,[6] and bathing is implied in anointing.[7] What about one 'separated' [under a ban] bathing? — Said R. Joseph, Come and hear: 'When the Sages said that it is forbidden then, to wash [on the fast day] they meant only in regard to washing the whole body, but one is permitted to wash one's face, hands or feet, and [the same restrictions] you find also in the case of one "separated" [under a ban] and a mourner'[8] . Now, does not this refer to all the restrictions? — No, [only] to the others [but not to bathing]. What about the leper washing himself? — Let this stand [adjourned].

A mourner is forbidden to put on sandals [shoes], as the All Merciful ordained Ezekiel, And put thy shoes upon thy feet,[9] which implies that for everyone else it is forbidden [to do so]. What about one ‘separated" [under a ban] putting on sandals? — Said R. Joseph, Come and hear: ‘When the Sages said that it is forbidden then, [on the fast day] to put on sandals, they meant only in town, but on the road it is permitted. When, for instance? When one sets out on the road he puts on [shoes], on entering town, he takes them off: and [the same] you find also in the case of one "separated" [under a ban]’.[8] Now, does not this refer to all those [restrictions]?[10] — No, [only] to the other.[11] What about the leper putting on sandals? — Let this stand [adjourned].

A mourner is forbidden the use of the [conjugal] bed, as it is written: And David comforted Bath-Sheba his wife and went in unto her,[12] which implies that before then[13] it was forbidden [him]. What about one ‘separated’ [under a ban] in regard to the use of the [conjugal] bed? — Said R. Joseph, Come and hear: All those years that Israel spent in the wilderness they were ‘separated’ [under a ban][14] yet they used their [conjugal] beds.[15] Said Abaye: But, maybe, the case of those who are ‘separated’ by [displeasure] of Heaven is different because it is less serious? [You say], ‘less serious’! But you argued [before][16] that it was more serious? — He is uncertain on the point; [if you] go [and argue] this way, he rebuts it, and if you go [and argue] the other way, he [again] rebuts it. What about a leper, in regard to the use of the [conjugal] bed? — Come and hear, for it is taught: ‘[It is written], But [he] shall dwell outside his tent seven days’,[17] that is, he shall be like one ‘separated’ [under a ban] and like a mourner; and he is forbidden the use of the [conjugal] bed, as ‘[outside] his tent’ means only [apart from] his wife, as it is said: Go say to them: Return ye to your tents.[18] You may infer it from that. Then could not one now by this [conclusion] solve the above question [on this point] about one ‘separated’ [under a ban]? — Said R. Huna[19] son of Phineas in R. Joseph's name: Does it state [categorically] that he [the leper] is forbidden [like one ‘separated’]? It only states that he is like one ‘separated’ [under a ban] and like a mourner in respect of other things and that he be [also] forbidden the use of the [conjugal] bed.[20]

A mourner does not send his sacrifices [to the Temple], for it is taught: Says R. Simeon, [It is written, And thou shalt sacrifice] peace-offerings[21] and eat there,[22] and thou shalt rejoice before the Lord thy God,[23] that is, one offers ‘peace-offerings’ [only] at times when one is untroubled,[24] but not at a time when one is onen,[25] What about one ‘separated’ [under a ban], should he [then] send his offerings? — Said R. Joseph, Come and hear: All those years that Israel spent in the wilderness they were ‘separated’ [under a ban][26] and [yet] they sent their offerings [to the Tabernacle]. Said Abaye to him: But perhaps one ‘separated’ by [the displeasure of] Heaven is different, because it is not so serious? [You say], ‘Not so serious’! But you argued [before] that it was more serious! — [Abaye] being uncertain on the point rebutted it [either way]. What about a leper, may he send his [sacrificial] offerings? — Come and hear: And after he [a defied priest] is cleansed[27] — [that is, cleansed][28] after coming away from his dead near of kin — they shall reckon unto him seven days[29] — those are the seven days which he has to count[30] — and in the day that he goeth into the Sanctuary,[31] into the inner court,[32] to minister in the Sanctuary, he shall offer his sin-offering[33]

---

(1) So MS.M.; cur. edd.: ‘overturn their couches’. Cf. Ezek. XXIV, 23 and J. Ber. Ill, 1.

(2) Amos VIII, 10.

(3) Those praying and fasting on account of persistent drought.

(4) Ta'an. 13a; Tosef. Ta'an. 1, 6; J. Ta'an. I, 3 twice, and J.M.K. III, 5.

(5) V. supra 15a.

(6) II Sam. XIV, 2.

(7) V. Ruth III, 3 and Yoma76.

(8) Cf. supra p. 92, nn. 5 and 6.

(9) Ezek. XXIV, 17.

(10) Including that of not wearing sandals.

(11) Exclusive of sandals.
(12) Il Sam. XII, 24 and infra 21a.
(13) During the period of mourning.
(14) Deut. 1, 34-35; 43-44. Cf Mekilta, Bo. Poem, based on Deut. II, 15-16.
(15) Deut. I, 39.
(16) V. supra p. 90.
(17) Lev. XIV, 8.
(18) Deut. V, 27. Cf. supra 7b.
(19) Var. lec. Aha.
(20) V. supra p. 93.
(21) שלמים derived here from שלם , to be whole, hale and at peace.
(22) These ‘peace-offerings’ were usually brought to the Temple by the pilgrims during the festivals (of Passover, Weeks and Tabernacles) and after the altar rites had been performed and the priests given their due portions (Lev. VII, 29-34), the worshippers with their family group ate the remainder of the sacrificial meat in a state of ritual purity as joyous celebrants (Deut. XII, 6-7; 17-19; XXVII, 7).
(23) Deut. XXVII, 7.
(24) Lit., ‘whole’. Cf. n. 1.
(25) V. Supra p. 87, n. 6.
(26) V. n. 2 and Yeb. 72a. (12) Lev. XVII, 5. (Private peace-offerings). V. however Men. 45b.
(27) Ezek. XLIV, 26.
(28) V. verse 25; about the ritual sprinkling after being defiled by the dead (before one may enter the sanctuary), Num. XIX, 11-13; 19-20.
(29) The (above) ritual sprinkling from defilement by contact with the dead was done on the third and seventh days after having separated from the corpse; but the use of the phrase ‘they shall reckon seven days’ instead of ‘they shall sprinkle upon him’ is taken to be reminiscent of the seven days for a leper on his recovery and his preliminary ritual cleansing, before leaving his place of Isolation (Lev. XI V, 1-8), which were followed by another seven days of ritual purification before he may proceed on the eighth day with his final purification and atonement. (Ibid. 8-11). Accordingly, the case of a leprous priest is read into the text of Ezekiel. For obviously it would be useless to cleanse a leprous priest (or layman) from his defilement by the dead while still being unclean as a leper, and as such unfit to enter the camp or sanctuary.
(30) As a leper, 11 the course of his cleansing.
(31) After having been purified from both defilements.
(32) As a priest.
(33) Prescribed for a recovered leper (Lev. Xlv, 19 or 22); or it might be translated, ‘His (offerings for) cleansing’ (cf. Lev. Xlv, 52; Num. VIII, 7; XIX, 9, 12, 19). V. supra n. 3.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 16a

— which is his [own meal-oblation[1] consisting of] one tenth part of an ephah [of fine flour]: These are the words of R. Judah. R. Simeon says, [the wording:] And in the day that he goeth into the sanctuary [into the inner court to minister in the sanctuary], he shall offer his sinoffering[2] [implies that only] when he is fit to go into the sanctuary he is fit to offer up [his own oblation]: and when he is not fit to go into the sanctuary, he is not fit to offer up [his own oblation].[3] Raba said: Whence do we know[4] the regulation that we send a messenger of the Court?[5] — From what is written: And Moses sent to call Dathan and Abiram the sons of Eliab.[6] And whence do we know that we summon[7] him to attend [in person]? — From what is written, And Moses said to Korah, Be thou and all thy congregation before the Lord, thou and Aaron [tomorrow].[8] [Whence, to appear] ‘before a great personage’? — From what is written, Before the lord.[8] [To name both parties], ‘thou and So-and-so’? — From what is written, Thou and they [that are with thee] and Aaron.[8] That we fix a time? — As it is written, To-morrow.[8] Time and again?[9] — As it is written: They called there,[10] Pharaoh the king of Eqypt [the author of] ‘commotion’; he hath let the appointed time pass by. [As I live, saith the King, the Lord of Hosts, surely like Tabor among the mountains and like Carmel by the sea, so shall he come].[11] And whence do we know that if one behaves insolently towards the Court's messenger and the latter comes and reports it, this is not deemed slander [on his part]? — As it is written: [And Moses sent to call Dathan and Abiram the sons of Eliab]; And they said: [We will not come up][6] . . . Wilt thou put out the eyes of these men? [We will not come up].[12] Whence do we derive that we [may] pronounce a shammetha[13] [imprecation]? — From the text: Curse ye Meroz.[14] Whence do we derive that it must be according to the considered opinion of some prominent person? — From the text: [Curse ye Meroz] said the angel of the Lord[14] [to Barak]. And whence do we derive that we pronounce the herem?[15] — Front the [same] text: Curse ye a cursing.[16] Whence do we derive that [it falls on one who] eats and drinks with the offender or stands within four cubits of him? — From the same text: [Curse ye a cursing] the inhabitants thereof.[17] Whence do we derive that we publish the details of his offence? — From the [same] text: Because they [the denizens of Meroz] came not to the help of the Lord. And, said ‘Ulla, Barak pronounced the shammetha[18] against Meroz with [the blast of] four hundred horns. Some say that Meroz was [the name of] a great personage;[19] others say that it was [the name of] a star,[20] as it is written [there]: They fought from Heaven, the stars in their courses fought against Sisera.[21] Whence do we derive that his property may be forfeited?[22] — From the text: And whosoever come not within three days, according to the counsel of the princes and the elders, all his substance should be forfeited and himself separated from the congregation of the captivity.[23] Whence do we derive that we may quarrel [with an offender], curse him, smite him, pluck his hair and put on him an oath?[24] — From the text: And I contended with them, and cursed them, and smote certain of them and plucked off their hair and made them swear by God.[25] Whence do we derive that we may fetter, arrest and prosecute them? — From the text: [Let judgment be executed upon him with all diligence], whether it be unto death, or to uprooting, or to confiscation of goods or to imprisonment.[26] What is meant by ‘uprooting? Said [R.] Adda Mari, reporting Nehemiah b. Baruch, who said in the name of R. Hiyya b. Abin, who had it from Rab Judah, it mean the hardafah.[27] What is denoted by hardafah? — Said Rab Judah son of R. Samuel b. Shelath in the name of Rab: It means, They declare him ‘separated’[28] forthwith; then [if he still persists] they repeat [the same declaration] after thirty days,[29] and finally they pronounce the herem on him after sixty days. Said R. Huna b. Hinena, This is what R. Hisda said: They [first] warn him on Monday, [then] on the Thursday[30] [following] and [again on the] Monday. This rule applies if he disregards a monetary judgment; but in a case of sheer contumacy the ban is imposed forthwith. When a certain butcher had been insolent to R. Tobai b. Mattena, Abaye and Raba were appointed[31] to investigate and they pronounced the shammetha on him. In the end, the fellow went and appeased his litigant.[32] Said Abaye, What is one to do? Should we absolve him now? The shammetha had not lasted [its] thirty days.[33] Shall we not absolve him? The Rabbis want to go in to him![34] Said lie to R. Idi b. Abin: ‘Have you [perchance] heard aught bearing on this?’ He replied: ‘Thus said R. Tahlifa b. Abimi as reporting Samuel: "A toot[35] binds and a toot releases!"’ [Said Abaye] to him, Yea, but this obtains only in the case of disregarding a monetary decision, but in a case of contumacy [it holds] until it has rested on him for thirty days! Anyhow, that shows that Abaye was of opinion that if three people had pronounced the shammetha on a man three others cannot come and release him![36] For the question was raised: If three people had pronounced the shammetha on a man, can three others come and remit it for him? — Come and hear: ‘One who has been "separated" [under a ban] by the master is [deemed as] "separated" from the disciple;[37] but one who has been "separated" by the disciple is not [considered as] "separated" from the master. One who is "separated" by his own town is also "separated" from another town; but one who is "separated" by another town is not [considered] "separated" from his own town. One who is "separated" by the Nasi [Prince] is "separated" in all Israel; but one who is "separated" by all Israel is not [thereby] "separated" from the "Prince". Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel says that if one of the disciples had "separated" someone and died, his part is not nullified’. From this you derive three points: — [a] That if a disciple ‘separated’ someone in [defence of] his personal dignity,[38] the ‘separation’ lies, and you infer [b] that each person revokes his own part, and you infer [c] that if a body of three have pronounced a shammetha on a person, three others may not come and release him.[39]

Amemar said: ‘The rule in practice is, that if a body of three have laid a shammetha on a person, a body of three others [can] come and release him'. Said R. Ashi to Amemar, But it is taught: 'Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel says that if one of the disciples "separated" someone and died, his part is not nullified'! Does not this meal, that it cannot be nullified at all? — No, [it means] not until a body of three others come and release him.

Our Rabbis taught: No 'separation' ban holds less than thirty days and no 'reproof'[40] holds less than seven days; and although there is no direct proof on that point, there is an [indirect] 'indication' of it: If her father had but spit in her face, should she[41] not hide in shame seven days? [Let her be shut up without the camp seven days and after that he shall be brought in again].[42]

R. Hisda remarked, 'Our "separation" [in Babylon] corresponds to their "reproof" [in Palestine]'. But is their 'reproof' of only seven days' duration, not more? Is it not a fact that R. Simeon, Rabbi's son, and Bar Kappara were once sitting rehearsing the lesson together when a difficulty arose about a certain passage[43] and R. Simeon said to Bar Kappara, 'This [matter] needs Rabbi [to explain it]', and Bar Kappara replied: 'And what forsooth can Rabbi [have to] say on this?' He went and repeated it to his father, [at which] the latter was vexed, and [when] Bar Kappara next presented himself before Rabbi, he said: 'Bar Kappara, I have never known you!'[44] He realized that he [Rabbi] had taken the matter to heart and submitted himself to the [disability of a] 'reproof' for thirty days. Again, on one occasion, Rabbi issued an order that they should not teach disciples in the open public market place. (What was his exposition?[45] — How beautiful are thy steps in sandals, O prince's daughter![46] The roundings of thy thighs are like the links of a chain [the work of the hands of a skilled workman].[47] As the thigh is covered

---

(1) If he is a common priest, after full purification and re-admission into the inner court of the priests, he might on that very day officiate and offer up his own free-gift oblation (v. Men. 73-74a). This proves that as long as he is unclean, whether through contact with dead or through leprosy, he cannot bring his offerings.

(2) Ezek. XLIV, 27.

(3) That is, R. Simeon does not allow a leper and common priest or a layman to send his offerings to the Temple until after his purification and atonement by sacrifices. For a leper had to attend in person to be purified by the stated ceremony (Lev. XIV, 11, 14-18, 20).

(4) Scripturally.

(5) So amended by Bah. V. D.S. To invite one to a suit.

(6) Num. XVI, 12.

(7) The defendant.

(8) Ibid. 16.

(9) If he does not obey the first summons.

(10) 'Summoned', so the Targum.

(11) Jer. XLVI, 17-18. V. Rash. Cf. Targum and Rashi ad loc cit.

(12) Num. XVI, 12-l4. V. Rashi.

(13) משמתינן probably a dialectical form for משמדינן from שמד to curse, which occurs in this sense of 'cursing' in a Nabatean El-Hejra inscription (Cooke N. Sem. Inscr. No. 80p. 220 line 8); cf. infra 17a note on etymology.

(14) Judg. V, 23.

(15) V. supra p. 90, n. 5.

(16) I.e., a repeated cursing (of the defiant sinner).

(17) Cf. Judg. V, 23.

(18) Note that shammetha is here used as the equivalent of herem, or its Aramaic form ahramta.

(19) Or hero, who gave his name to the city 'Meroz'. V. Gen. IV, 17, Num. XXXII, 41-42; also cf. Alexandria, Antioch, Caesarea, Constantinople.

(20) A planet, like Mars, Mercury, Jupiter; or a constellation, like Perseus or Orion.

(21) Judg. V, 20.

(22) In the case of disobedience of the court.

(23) Ezra X, 8.

(24) To desist from his malpractices.
(25) Neh. XIII, 25.
(26) Ezra VII, 26.
(27) Active pursuit, ‘prosecution’; cf. Judg. XX, 43 for the term in this sense
(28) Repel or expel him from their midst. Niddui and herem are Mishnaic, Palestinian terms, while shammetha is a popular Babylonian term loosely used for either, and whose legal denotation was the subject of discussion in Talmudic times (e.g., Ned. 7a-b) and later in Geonic responsa; as to its precise meaning, v. B.M. Lewin's Otzar ha-Geonim IV on Mashkin, Responsa 29ff, pp. 17-19.
(29) The ordinary period of niddui, ‘separation’.
(30) The Beth din had their regular sessions on Mondays and Thursdays: a practice said to have been one of the Ten Institutions introduced by Ezra, B.K. 82a (Sonc. ed. p. 466).
(31) With a third person, v. infra.
(32) Apologized to R. Tobai.
(33) The normal period of a ‘separation’. V. R. Han.
(34) They need him to obtain their meat. [Var. lec. ‘The Rabbis wish to depart’ (Han.). The Rabbis, who took part in imposing the ban and who must consequently be present at the absolution, wish to depart and the opportunity of releasing him will thus be lost, v. infra].
(35) The horn blown at banning.
(36) [Rashi! Since he himself was anxious to perform the release. In var. lec. supra n. 6 the question is clear.]
(37) I.e., the ban is effective also as far as the disciple is concerned; and similarly in all the other cases that follow.
(38) [Since we find that a disciple's ban has no force as far as the teacher is concerned, which can apply only to a ban imposed in defence of the disciple's own dignity, and not to one for a general transgression.]
(39) [(b) and (c) are inferred from the statement of R. Simeon b. Gamaliel. The phrase ‘his part is not nullified’ is taken to mean that it can never be nullified.]
(40) Nezfah, a ‘snub’; sometimes ge'arah, a ‘shout’. Cf. Gen. XXXVII, 10 and Zech. II, 2.
(41) Miriam.
(42) Num. XII, 14.
(43) שמעתא ; something ‘heard’ or ‘repeated’, usually a halachic interpretation repeated in the name of a well-known master.
(44) I.e., I don't (want to) know you, stay away, or I have never been able to understand your attitude towards me. B. Kappara clashed with Rabbi on several occasions. The cause, it seems, was not personal, but rather due to the different schools to which they each belonged. B. K. belonged to the ‘Southern Sages’ (Lydda and Caesarea) and was himself the compiler of an often quoted collection of Mishnah (Baraitha).
(45) A question interrupts the quotation.
(46) The Torah, which is allegorically represented by Shulammith, ‘Perfection’ or ‘Pence’, the beloved of Solomon (the divine) King of Perfection or Peace. Cf. Prov. III, 13-18; VIII, 1 ff.
(47) Cant. VII, 2. (Cf. its counterpart V, 15).

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 16b

so the [discussions on the] words of the Torah are also [to be] under cover.)[1] — R. Hiyya went out and taught the sons of his two brothers in the [open] marketplace, Rab and Rabbah son of Kar Hana. Rabbi heard [of this and] was vexed. [When] R. Hiyya [next] presented himself before him, Rabbi said to him, ‘Iyya![2] Who is calling you outside?’ He realized that he [Rabbi] had taken the matter to heart, and sub mitted himself to [the disability of] a ‘reproof’ for thirty days. On the thirtieth day Rabbi sent him a message saying ‘Come!’ Later he sent him a message not to come! (What[3] was his idea in sending the first [message] and what in sending the second? At first he thought ‘part of the day may be deemed equivalent to the whole day’ and in the end he thought, we do not say part of the day may be deemed equivalent to the whole day’.)[4] In the end he came. Said Rabbi to him, Why have you come? R. Hiyya replied: ‘Because you, Sir, sent for me to come’. But then I sent to you not to come! He replied: ‘The one [messenger] I saw and the other I have not seen’. Thereupon he [Rabbi] cited [as appropriate] the text: When a man's ways please the Lord, He maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him.[5] Wherefore, Sir, [asked Rabbi] did you act thus [contrary to order]? — Because, replied R. Hiyya, it is written: Wisdom crieth aloud it, the street: [She uttereth her voice in the broad places; she calleth at the head of the street; at the entrance of the gates, in the city she uttereth her words].[6] Said Rabbi to him: ‘If you read Holy Writ [once], you have not read it a second time; if you have read it a second time, you have not react it a third time; and if you have read it a third time, they [who taught you] have not explained it to you’.[7] [The text] ‘Wisdom crieth aloud in the streets’ is [to be taken] in the sense in which Raba [explained it];[8] for Raba said: ‘If one studies the Torah indoors, the Torah proclaims his merit abroad’. But then is it not written [otherwise]: ‘From the beginning I have not spoken in secret’?[9] — That has [special] reference to the ‘Kallah’ days.[10] And what [use] does R. Hiyya make of the text — ‘The roundings of thy thighs’? — He explained it in reference to the dispensing of charity and acts of lovingkindness.[11] Thus[12] [you see] the disability of their ‘reproof’ [in Palestine] lasts thirty days! — The ‘reproof’ of a Nasi is different. And our ‘reproof’, how long [is its disability]? — One day [only], as in the case of Samuel and Mar ‘Ukba.[13] When they were sitting together [at the College] engaging in the revision of some theme, Mar ‘Ukba sat before him[14] at a distance of four cubits; and when they sat together at a judicial session, Samuel sat before him[14] at a distance of four cubits and a place was dug out[15] for Mar ‘Ukba where he sat on a matting so that what he[16] said should be heard. Every day Mar ‘Uba accompanied Samuel to his house. One day he[16] was [rather] engrossed in a suit, and Samuel walked behind him. When he[16] had reached his house, Samuel said to him: ‘Haven't you been rather a long time at it?[17] Take up now my case!’[18] He[16] then realized that he [Samuel] felt aggrieved and submitted himself to the [disability of a] ‘reproof’ for one day.

There was a certain woman who sat sprawling on the footway fanning the husks out of her barley groats, and when a Collegiate was walking past her she did not make way for him. He said, ‘How impudent is this woman!’ She came before R. Nahman. Said he to her, Did you hear him utter the shammetha?[19] She replied [she had] not. Said he to her, Go and submit yourself to the [disability of a] ‘reproof’ for one day.[19] Zutra b. Tobiah was [once] expounding a Scriptural lesson in the presence of Rab Judah. Coming to the verse: And these are the last words of David,[20] he said to R. Judah. ‘Last words’: this implies that there were former words; which are those former [words]? He [Rab Judah] kept silent, without saying anything. Again said the former: ‘Last words! This implies there were former words; which are those former [words]’? — He [then] replied: What, think you that one who does not know an explanation of that text is not an eminent man? He [Zutra] realized that he [Rab Judah] had taken the matter to heart [and] submitted himself to the [disability of a] ‘reproof’ for one day. Now, however, that we have come upon this question: ‘"Last words", this implies that there were former words’, what were they? — [These:] And David spoke unto the Lord the words of this song in the day that the Lord delivered him out of the hand of all his enemies and out of the hand of Saul.[21] The Holy One, blessed ‘be He, said to David, David do you compose a song on the downfall of Saul? Had you been Saul and he David, I would have annihilated many a David out of regard for him. Hence it is written, ‘Shiggaion[22] of David, which he said unto the Lord, concerning Cush a Benjamite.[23] Was Cush that Benjamite's name? And was not his name Saul? — But, just as a Cushite [Ethiopian][24] is distinguishable by his skin, so was Saul distinguished by his deeds. In like manner you explain: ‘[And Miriam and Aaron spoke against Moses] because of the Cushite woman that he had take;, to wife.[25] Was she a Cushite [woman]? Was not her name Zipporah? But as a Cushite woman is distinguishable by her skin so was also Zipporah distinguished by her deeds. In like manner you explain: Now Ebed-Melek the Cushite . . . heard.[26] Now was his name Cushite? Was not his name Zedekiah?[27] But as the Cushite is distinguishable by his skin so was Zedekiah distinguished by his deeds. In like manner you explain: Are ye not as the children of the Cushites unto me, O children of Israel, saith the Lord?[28] Now is their name [children of] Cushites? Was not their name [children of] Israel? The truth is that as the Cushite is distinguishable by his skin, so are Israel distinguished by their ways[29] from all other nations.[30]

R. Samuel b. Nahmani citing R. Jonathan. explained: [And these tire the last words of David], The saying of David the son of Jesse and the saying of the man raised on high,[31] [means, it is] the saying of David the son of Jesse who established firmly the yoke [discipline] of repentance.[32] [The spirit of the Lord spoke by the and His word was upon ny tongue]. The God of Israel said, The Rock of Israel spoke to me: Ruler over man shall be the righteous, even he that ruleth through the [reverent] fear of God.[33] What does this mean? — Said R. Abbahu, It means this: 'The God of Israel said, to the [David] spake the Rock of Israel; I rule man; who rules Me? [It is] the righteous: for I make a decree and he [may] annul it'.[34]

And these tire the names of the mighty of David: Josheb-basshebeth a Tahchemonite [etc.].[35] What does this mean? — Said R. Abbahu, It means: And these are the mighty deeds of David: 'Josheb-basshebeth' — [which means], sitting at the session;[36] [that is], When David sat at the College Session he was not seated on cushions and coverlets but on the [bare] ground.[37] For all the time that his Master, Ira the Jairite,[38] was alive he taught the Rabbis whilst being himself seated on cushions and coverlets; when his soul found rest David used to teach the Rabbis being himself seated on the ground.[39] Said they [the Rabbis] to him: 'Sit, sit on the cushions and coverlets'; but he would not accede to their request.

'Tahchemoni'.[40] Rab explained: The Holy One, blessed be He, said to him [to David], 'Since you have humbled yourself you shall be like Me [that is], that I make a decree and you [may] annul it'. 'Chief of the Captains',[41] [that is] you be chief next to the three Fathers. He is Adino[42] the Eznite,[43] [that is] when he was sitting engaged in the [study of] Torah he rendered himself pliant as a worm, but when he went marching out to [wage] war he hardened himself like a lance. 'On eight hundred slain at one time', [that is] when he threw a javelin he felled eight hundred slain at one time and moaned for the [shortage of] two hundred, for it is written: How one should chase a thousand.[44] But an echo came forth and said: 'Save only for the matter of Uriah the Hittite'![45]

Said R. Tanhuni son of R. Hiyya a man of Kefar Acco as citing R. Jacob b. Aha who reported R. Simlai; and some say, R. Tanhun, said as reporting R. Huna; and again some say, R. Huna alone said that

---

(1) The motive of this new restriction is not given. It was an old common practice to teach in the open. perhaps it was to avoid misrepresentation on the part of the passing crowds who might mistake the heated discussions for acrimonious disputations. The quotation is now resumed.

(2) Imitating Hiyya's defective pronunciation; he could not correctly pronounce the guttural letters. Cf. Meg. 24b.

(3) The quotation is here again interrupted.

(4) Cf. infra p. 129 and Pes. 4a where R. Hiyya's action determines the former alternative to be the 'rule in practice'.

(5) Prov. XVI, 7.

(6) Ibid. I, 20-21.

(7) Cf. Ber. 18a where R. Hiyya makes the same retort to R. Jonathan.

(8) Much later; Rabbi died about 200 C.E. and Raba lived 299-352 C.E.

(9) Isa. XLVIII, 16, the prophet speaking in the name of God. This is taken to refer to the Revelation when the Torah was given to all Israel assembled at Sinai and heard by all the other nations. Cf. Shab. 88b and Zeb. 116a.

(10) These were half-yearly assemblies held in Adar and Elul, before the great Festivals.

(11) I.e., to 'be practiced privately.

(12) Reverting to the original question.

(13) 'Mar' is a Babylonian title of rank and is sometimes also borne by Samuel, but mostly by the members of the Exilarch's family. Samuel was the principal of the Academy at Nehardea and the Chief justice, while Mar 'Ukba was both a disciple of Samuel and Exilarch, the supreme civil Head of the Jewish community invested with authority by the persian king. This Mar 'Ukba is probably the same as Nathan 'Ukban who succeeded his father 'Anan or Huna as Exilarch shortly before the rise of the Neo-Persian rule of the Sassanids (c. 226 C.E.). V. W. Bacher, Jew. Encyc. Vol. V, 289a s.v. Exilarch.

(14) I.e., in his presence, probably sitting at his right.

(15) Either a kind of recess or alcove in the wall or a marked-off enclosure with a rich matting for the Exilarch. [Aliter: A place was hollowed out in the ground over which the Exilarch's matting was spread for Mar ‘Ukba to sit on, in order that his seat may not be on a higher level than that of Samuel; cf. Maharsha and D.S. a.l. The text is not clear.]
(16) Mar ‘Ukba.
(17) Lit., ‘is it not yet clear to you?’
(18) So MS.M. Cur. edd. ‘his case’. V. Rashi.
(19) Which as a ‘separation ‘would take effect for seven days; v. R. Hisda's observation, supra 16a,
(20) II Sam. XXIII, 1.
(21) Ibid. XXII, 1.
(22) שגיון (from שגה) is here taken to mean an error’. It was an error on his part to celebrate in song the downfall of Saul.
(23) Ps. VII, 1.
(24) Aithiops in Greek means ‘fiery-looking’, ‘flashing’.
(25) Num. XII, 1.
(26) Jer. XXXVIII, 7ff.
(27) Sifre on Num. XII, 1 has it obviously more correctly: Baruch, son of Neriah (Jer. XXXVI, 4ff) his disciple.
(28) Amos IX, 7.
(29) Sifre. ibid. has: ‘By their commandments’.
(30) On this antiphrasis, cf. Juvenal, Sat. VIII, 32-33: ‘Somebody's dwarf we call an Atlas and an Aethiopian a swan’. And L. Friedlander's note ad loc. quotes Isid. Origg. I, 36, 24, ‘antiphrasis — hoc tropo et nani Atlantes — et vulgo Aethiopes appellantur argentei(?)’.
(31) II Sam. XXIII, 1.
(32) He showed the way of repentance for a heinous sin. Cf. p5, LI, 15 and A.Z., Sonc. ed. p. 19.
(33) II Sam. XXIII, 2-3. V. Hananel.
(34) The righteous have power to move God to change his adverse decree by prayer. Cf. Gen. XVIII, 20ff; Ex. XXXII, 7-14.
(35) II Sam. XXIII, 8.
(36) Playing on the meaning of the words: josheb _ sitting; basshebeth _ at the ‘sitting’ or ‘Session’ (of scholars).
(37) Cf. Mar ‘Ukba above.
(38) II Sam. XX, 26.
(39) Cf. ‘Er. 63a and Sit. 59a.
(40) II Sam. XXIII, 8. (From חכם), a session of the sages; but here Rab divides it into תהא כמוני ‘be (thou) like me’.
(41) Explained as Chief of the Trio, the three Patriarchs.
(42) From עדן = ‘gentle’; he was gentle, tender.
(43)  _ wood; the wooden lance. Cf. I Sam. XVIl, 7. Cf. on this section, Seder Elijahu Rabbah Ed. M. Friedmann, III, pp. 15-16.
(44) Deut. XXXII, 30.
(45) I Kings XV, 5.

if a disciple ‘separates’ someone in [defence of] his personal dignity his ‘separation’ is an [effective] . For it is taught: ‘One who has been "separated" [as under a ban] by the Master is [deemed] "separated" from the disciple; but one who has been "separated" by the disciple is not [deemed] "separated" from the Master’.[1] [That means], not ‘separated’ from the Master; but in regard to everybody else he is [‘separated’]. [Now let us see; ‘separated’] for what [offence]? If [it was imposed] for some offence towards Heaven, then there is no wisdom nor understanding nor counsel against the Lord![2] Therefore [presumably] it is only so[3] [where a disciple had pronounced it] in [defence of] his personal dignity. R. Joseph said that a Collegiate[4] may enforce his own rights in a matter where he is perfectly certain [as to the law]. There was once a certain Collegiate whose reputation was objectionable. Said Rab Judah, How is one to act? To put the shammetha on him [we cannot], as the Rabbis have need of him [as an able teacher]. Not to put the shammetha on him [we cannot afford] as the name of Heaven is being profaned. Said he to Rabbah b. Bar Hana, Have you heard alight on that point? He replied: ‘Thus said R. Johanan: What means the text, For the priest's lips should keep knowledge and they should seek the law at his mouth; for he is the messenger of the Lord of Hosts?[5] [It means, that] if the Master is like unto a messenger of the Lord of Hosts, they should seek the law at his mouth; but if [he be] not , they should not seek the law at his mouth’. [Thereupon] Rab Judah pronounced the shammetha on him. In the end Rab Judah became indisposed. The Rabbis came to enquire about him and that man came along with them. When Rab Judah beheld him he laughed. Said the man to him: Not enough for him that he put upon that man [me] the shammetha, but he even laughs at me! Replied he [Rab Judah]: I was not laughing at you: but as I am departing to that World [beyond] I am glad to think that even towards such a personage as you I showed no indulgence. Rab Judah's soul came to rest.[6] The man [then] came to the College [and] said, ‘Absolve me’. Said the Rabbis to him, There is no man here of the standing of Rab Judah who could absolve you; but go to R. Judah Nesi'ah[7] that he may absolve you. He went and presented himself to him. Said he to R. Ammi: ‘Go forth and look into his case; if it be necessary to absolve him, absolve him’. R. Ammi looked into his case and had a mind to absolve him. Then R. Samuel b. Nahmani got up on his feet and said: ‘Why, even a ‘separation" imposed by one of the domestics in Rabbi's house was not lightly treated by the Rabbis for three years; how much more so one imposed by our colleague, Rab Judah!’ Said R. Zera, From the fact that this venerable scholar[8] should just now have turned up at this College after not having come here for many years, you must take it that it is not desirable to absolve that man. He [R. Judah Nesi'ah][9] did not absolve him. He went away weeping. A wasp then came and stung him in the privy member and he died. They brought him into ‘The Grotto of the Pious’, but they admitted him not.[10] They brought him into ‘The Grotto of the Judges’ and they received him.[11] Why was he admitted there? — Because he had acted according to the dictum of R. Il'ai. For R. Il'ai says, If one sees that his [evil] yezer[12] is gaining sway over him, let him go away where he is not known; let him put on sordid[13] clothes, don a sordid wrap and do the sordid deed that his heart desires rather than profane the name of Heaven openly.[14]

What [was the incident] of the domestic in Rabbi's house? It was one of the maidservants in Rabbi's house that had noticed a man beating his grown-up son and said, Let that fellow be under a shammetha! because he sinned against the words [of Holy Writ]: Put not a stumbling-block before the blind.[15] For it is taught: ‘And put not a stumbling-block before the blind’, that text applies[16] to one who beats his grown-up son.[17]

Resh Lakish was once guarding an orchard [when] a fellow came and ate [some] figs; he shouted at him, but the fellow heeded him not, [whereupon] he said: ‘Let that fellow be under a shammetha!’ He replied: ‘Rather be that other fellow [Resh Lakish] under a shammetha! Though I have incurred a pecuniary liability towards you, did I incur a "separation"?’ [Resh Lakish] went to the College [and reported it]; they said to him: ‘His "separation" is a [justified][18] "separation", yours was not a [justified] "separation".’ And what is the remedy for it? — ‘Go to him that he [himself] may absolve you’. [But] I know him not! Said they to him [to Resh Lakish]: ‘Go to the Nasi that he absolve you;’ for it is taught: ‘[If] they "separate" him and he knows not who he was that "separated" him, let him go to the Nasi and let him absolve him from his "separation".’

Said R. Huna, At [one of the Synods at] Usha[19] they made a regulation that if the Ab Beth din[20] committed an offence he was not to be [formally] ‘separated’, but someone was to tell him, Save your dignity and remain at home.[21] Should he again offend they ‘separate’ him, because [otherwise there would be] a profanation of the Name [of God]. And this is at variance with Resh Lakish; for Resh Lakish said: If a scholar-disciple has committed an offensive deed they do not ‘separate’ him publicly, because it is said: Therefore shalt thou stumble’ in the day and the prophet also shall stumble with thee in the night, [that is to say], Keep it dark,[22] like night.

Mar Zutra, the Pious,[23] if ever a Collegiate incurred the shammetha, pronounced the shammetha first on himself[24] and then pronounced it on the culprit; as he entered his house he first absolved himself and then absolved the other.[25] Said R. Giddal, as citing Rab: ‘A scholar-disciple may Pronounce "separation" on himself and absolve himself’. Said R. Papa, ‘May [good] befall me, for I have never put the shammetha on any Collegiate.’[26] But then, when a Collegiate did incur the shammetha, how did he act? — As they do [in the West]; for in the West [Palestine] they appoint a tribunal for chastising a Collegiate but do not appoint a tribunal for pronouncing a shammetha.

What is [the etymology of the word] shammetha? — Said Rab, [It is], sham-mitha, ‘death is there’. Samuel said, [It is], shemamah yihye,[27] ‘he shall be a desolation’; and its effects adhere to one like grease to the oven. And this is in disagreement with [what] Resh Lakish said. For Resh Lakish said that just as when it [the herem] enters, it penetrates the two hundred and forty eight joints [on one's body],[28] so on its withdrawal it departs from the two hundred and forty eight joints. When it enters, as it is written; And the city shall be Herem, [a curse[29] [i.e.,] Herem being in its letter value two hundred and forty eight,[30] So at its withdrawal, as it is written: In wrath remember Rahem [to have compassion][31] the letter value being the same.

R. Joseph said, ‘Cast a shammetha on the dog's tail and it will do its work’. For there was a dog that used to eat the Rabbis’ shoes and they did not know what it was [that did it], so they pronounced a shammetha on the culprit, and the dog's tail caught fire and got burnt. There was a domineering fellow who bullied a certain Collegiate. The latter came before R. Joseph [for advice]. Said he to him: ‘Go and put the shammetha on him’. ‘I am afraid of him’, he replied. Said he to him, ‘Then go and take [out] a Writ[32] against him.’ — ‘I am all the more afraid to do that!’ Said R. Joseph to him: ‘Take that Writ, put it into a jar,

---

(1) Supra p. 98.

(2) Prov. XXI, 30. That is to say, there should be no distinctions: the offender must be debarred from all and everybody.

(3) That the ‘separated’ is not debarred from his Master.

(4) צורבא מרבנן , the Babylonian appellation of an acknowledged scholar, a member of the Academy. The term has not been satisfactorily explained; but it is obviously from an Aramaic form, צרב = Hebrew צרף to be joined, adhere to, the equivalent of the Palestinian term חבר = associate, colleague, Collegiate.

(5) Mal. II, 7.

(6) In 299 C.E. Succeeded after a short interregnum by Rabbah b. Nahmani. V. Sherira's Epistle, ed. B. M. Lewin, p. 86.

(7) R. Judah II, grandson of Rabbi Judah l and son of Rabban Gamaliel III. Nesi'ah is the Aramaic form of Nasi ‘the Prince’; it is conveniently used to indicate the second Judah (and sometimes the third).

(8) R. Samuel b. Nahmani.

(9) Or his Beth din, among whom were prominent R. Ammi and R. Zera.

(10) It is forbidden to bury a bad man next to a good man. V. Sanh. 47a.

(11) He was such himself and had repented.

(12) I.e., the evil (formative) imagining, prompting, ‘urge’. V. Gen. VI, 5; VIII, 21; Deut. XXXI, 21. There is, however, a ‘steady’ (formative) urge for good. V. Isa. XXVI, 3 and P.B. p. 7.

(13) Lit., ‘black clothes’. He had probably in mind the Roman custom for a discredited official to be sordidatus. For an earlier reference v. Mid. V, 4; 37b. Cf however Hag. 16a.

(14) V. kid., Sonc. ed. p. 199 notes.

(15) Lev. XIX, 14.

(16) Lit., ‘speaks of’.

(17) And this caused him to rebel.

(18) An effective ban, because deserved. J.M.K. III, 1 gives another version of this incident.

(19) V. e.g., Keth. 49b-5o. J.M.K. III, 1.

(20) V. Glos.

(21) II Kings XIV, 10.

(22) Do it as quietly as possible for his sake and that of the community.

(23) Seemingly one of the Exilarchs or of their family. Cf. Sanh. 7b.

(24) So hateful was it to him.

(25) To be free himself before he freed another. Cf. Tosaf. s.v. משמית

(26) Some take it as an asseveration, ‘May evil befall me if I ever did that’. Cf. II Sam. III, 35.

(27) Cf. fer. XLII, 18; Han. and Aruch have sham tehi, i.e., ‘be it there’; let it stay there as a curse, citing Zech. V, 3-4.

(28) Cf. Mak. 23b.

(29) Josh. VI, 17, ‘even it and all that; is therein’.

(30) ח =8; ר = 200; ם = 40.

(31) Hab. III, 2.

(32) Lit., the Opening’, preliminary action after a verbal shammetha. It is to write out the shammetha against him.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 17b

take it to a graveyard and hoot into it a thousand shipur [horn-blasts] on forty days’. He went and did so. The jar burst and the domineering bully died.

What is the [significance of using a] shipur’? — That he'll pay, the penalty.[1] What signifies the tabra[2] [tooting]? — Said R. Isaac son of R. Judah: [It suggests] ‘the tumbling of high houses’: for it is taught: Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel said that wherever the Sages set their eye against one, [the result was] either death or poverty.[3]

AND THE NAZIRITE OR LEPER, EMERGING FROM HIS [STATE OF] IMPURITY TO [A STATE OF] PURITY. . . R. Jeremiah enquired of R. Zera whether this [concession][4] was allowed [only] when they had not an [earlier] opportunity.[4] or, maybe, even if they had an [earlier] opportunity? — He replied, We learned it [in a Baraitha]:[5] All those who were mentioned [in the Mishnah][6] as being allowed to crop their hair during the festival [week, are allowed] where they had no [earlier] opportunity, but if they had an [earlier] opportunity [and did not use it] are forbidden.[7] The Nazirite and the leper [however] are allowed,[7] even if they had an opportunity [and did not use it]; the reason being that they should not delay bringing their [prescribed] offerings[8] [on their release from their respective restrictions].

A Tanna taught: A priest and a mourner also[9] are allowed to crop themselves.[7] Now, as to this mourner, under what conditions [may he do so]? Shall I assume that the eighth day of his [mourning] fell on the day before the festival? Then he ought to have trimmed himself then, on the day before[10] the festival! Again, if the eighth day of his [mourning] came on a Sabbath which was the day before the festival; [if so] then he should have trimmed his hair on the Friday. as R. Hisda stated, citing Rabina b. Shila, that ‘the rule in practice’ followed Abba Saul's view and that the Sages concurred with Abba Saul,[11] [namely] that where the eighth day of his [mourning’] came on a Sabbath which was the day before a festival, [in such a case] he was allowed to trim himself on the Friday![12] — No, this [statement in the Baraitha] is required for the case where the seventh day of his [mourning] came on a Sabbath which was also the day before the festival. [In that case] the external Tanna takes the view of Abba Saul who says that part of a day may be deemed as an entire day; and [accordingly] the seventh day of his [mourning] is counted both with the preceding and with the following period[13] and as that happens to be a Sabbath day,[14] the mourner was prevented [from trimming himself on the festival eve].[15] [Whereas], our Tanna[16] takes the view of the Sages who say that part of a day is not deemed as an entire day, and [accordingly] the mourner has not yet completed the seven days of his mourning [before the festival].[17]

Now as to the priest,[18] under what conditions [may he]? Shall I assume that [the turn of] his Ward[19] terminated on the day before the festival?[20] He should have trimmed himself then on the day before the festival! No, it is necessary to assume that [the turn of] his Ward terminated on the festival [day].[21] [In that case], our Tanna[16] then holds in view of what we learned: At three periods of the year, all the Wards have an equal right to [assist in placing] the ‘ordained’ parts[22] of the festival offerings [on the altar] and sharing the ‘shewbread’[23] — that we consider him as one whose Ward had virtually not yet completed [its turn].[24] Whereas the external Tanna holds that although [in a way] he belongs to the other Wards [also], his own Ward had nevertheless [actually] completed [its turn, and therefore he may trim himself].[25] Our Rabbis taught: All those who were mentioned [in the Mishnah] as being allowed to crop their hair during the festival [week] are likewise allowed to crop their hair during the days of their mourning. But surely it is taught that they are forbidden? — Said R. Hisda as citing R. Shela: When it is taught here that they ‘are allowed [to crop their hair during the days of their mourning]’, it refers only to persons who suffered one bereavement immediately after another. If it refers only [as you say] to persons who suffered one bereavement immediately after another, what is the point in wording it ‘all those who were mentioned [in the Mishnah]’ whereas [under such unfortunate circumstances] it is even applicable to anybody, as it is taught: ‘If a person suffered one bereavement immediately after another and his hair has become oppressively [long], he may ease it with a razor and wash his raiment with water’? — But that has already been explained: R. Hisda said [it means], ease it with a razor but not with scissors: wash his raiment with water but not natron or lye.[26] [Furthermore] said R. Hisda: This [Baraitha] indicates that [otherwise] a mourner is barred from washing [his clothes].

Our Rabbis taught: ‘Just as it was said that cropping the hair during the festival [week] is not allowed, so is paring the nails during the festival [week] not allowed. This is R. Judah's opinion; but R. Jose allows it. And just as it was said that a mourner is not allowed to crop his hair within [the period of] his mourning, so is paring the nails not allowed to him within [the period of] his mourning. This is R. Judah's opinion; but R. Jose allows it

‘Ulla stated that the halachah follows the view of R. Judah in the case of a mourner, and that of R. Jose in regard to the festival [week]. Samuel said

---

(1) She-nifra'im; lit., ‘they will exact punishment’.

(2) Lit., ‘broken’. The short broken toots which were sounded at a shammetha.

(3) Cf. Hag. 5b (top).

(4) To trim themselves during the festival week.

(5) V. supra 14a-b and cf. Tosef. M.K. II.

(6) V. supra 13b-14a.

(7) To trim themselves during the festival week.

(8) The Nazirite, Num. VI, 10ff; the leper, Lev. XIV, 9ff.

(9) These are not mentioned in the Mishnah list.

(10) As the seven days of mourning are over, the festival cancels the rest, down to 30 days (in all).

(11) The issues are discussed at length, infra 19b.

(12) Why then should he be allowed to crop himself during the festival week.

(13) Lit., ‘with this way and that way’.

(14) On which he may not trim himself.

(15) I.e., it is not on account of his negligence, but owing to the force of circumstances, and therefore he may have his hair cut in the festival week.

(16) Of the Mishnah who does not include the priest or mourner in his list.

(17) And consequently the rest of the period is not canceled and therefore he id not among those who are allowed to trim in the festival week.

(18) Mentioned above with the mourner by the external Tanna (in the Baraitha) as being allowed to trim in the festival week.

(19) Mishmar, v. Glos.

(20) Priests were not allowed to trim themselves or wash their garments while their Ward was on duty in the Temple, save on the Friday in honour of the Sabbath. Cf. supra 14a.

(21) When he could not trim himself.

(22) V. e.g., Lev. 1, 5-9; 11-13; II, 1-3ff; VII, 1-10 etc.

(23) Ibid. XXIV, 5-9.

(24) Therefore he is not in the list of the Mishnah among those who may.

(25) Cf. n. 1.

(26) [In the case of those mentioned in the Mishnah, where they in addition suffered one bereavement after another, the said restrictions do not apply].

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 18a

that the Halachah follows the opinion of R. Jose [both] in regard to the festival [week] and to mourning. For Samuel said that in [questions appertaining to] mourning, the halachah follows the authority of the more lenient view.

Phineas, Mar Samuel's brother, suffered a bereavement[1] and Samuel called on him to ask him the cause of it.[2] Noticing that his nails were long, he asked him why he had not cut them. He replied: Had this happened to you, would you have been so regardless of it [as to cut them]? This was [inauspicious], ‘like an error which proceedeth from a ruler;[3] and Samuel [later] suffered a bereavement himself. When his brother [Phineas] called on him to ask the cause of it, Samuel took his cut nails and cast them down in front of his brother, saying, ‘Do you not hold that a covenant has been made with the lips?’[4] For R. Johanan said: Whence is derived the notion that the lips are subject to a covenant? From what is said: And Abraham said unto his young men: ‘Abide ye here with the ass, and I and the lad will go yonder; and we will worship and [we will] come back to you’;[5] and the words came true[6] so that they both came back.

Some argued from the above [incident] that [only] the fingernails may [be cut],[7] but not the toe-nails. But R. ‘Anan b. Tahlifa said, ‘I myself had it explained to me by Samuel, that there was no distinction made between the finger-nails and the toe-nails’. R. Hiyya b. Ashi citing Rab said: But with a nail-cutter it is forbidden. Said R. Shaman b. Abba: ‘I was once standing before R. Johanan[8] at the College during the festival week when R. Johanan bit off his nails and threw them away. Learn from this [incident] three points: Learn that it is allowed to take off nails during the festival week; that [doing it with the teeth] was not considered objectionable, and that [nails] may be thrown away’. But this [deduction] is not [correct]? as surely it is taught. ‘Three things were said in reference to nails: One who buries them is righteous;[9] one who burns them is pious[10] and one who throws them away is a villain’! What is the reason? Lest a pregnant woman should step over them and miscarry; [but then], women do not ‘often come to the College. And should you say that sometimes the nails are gathered and thrown away outside, once they have been shifted their spell has been lifted.[11]

Rab Judah. as citing Rab, said: ‘A pair [of scholars] came from Hammathan[12] before Rabbi . . .’, and Mar Zutra taught [the same as a Baraitha]. ‘A pair [of scholars] came from Hammathan before Rabbi, and asked him about [paring] the nails [during mourning]; and he permitted it to them. And if they had asked him about [trimming] the upper lip. he would[13] have permitted it to them likewise'. And Samuel stated that they did ask him also about the upper lip and that he permitted them.

Abitol the hair-dresser[14] said in the name of Rab that [trimming the] upper lip means from corner[15] to corner; [and of the drooping ends[16] too, all that causes inconvenience]. Said R. Ammi, And as regards the upper lip [it also means only] whatever part causes inconvenience. Said R. Nahman b. Isaac, And to me [all of it][17] is like the [end of the] upper lip causing inconvenience.

And Abitol the hair-dresser, citing Rab, said [also this]: Pharaoh[18] the contemporary of Moses, was [a puny fellow] a cubit [in height] with a beard a cubit long and his shock of hair[19] a cubit and a span, justifying what is said: And He setteth up over it [the kingdom of men] the lowest of men.[20] And [furthermore] said Abitol the hair-dresser, as citing Rab, Pharaoh, the contemporary of Moses, was a Magus,[21] because it is said: [Get thee unto Pharaoh in the morning,] lo he goeth out unto the water.[22]

AND THESE [MAY] WASH [THEIR CLOTHES] DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK], ONE ARRIVING FROM ABROAD.[23] R. Assi, as citing R. Johanan said that one who has but one tunic is allowed to wash it during the festival week. Thereupon R. Jeremiah put an objection to him: 'AND THESE [MAY] WASH [THEIR CLOTHES] DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]. ONE ARRIVING FROM ABROAD etc.' [which enumeration implies that only] those here mentioned may [wash] but one who has but one tunic[24] [may] not? — Said R. Jacob to R. Jeremiah [b. Tahlifa],[25] I will explain that to you: Our Mishnah [permits to wash] even if he has two garments if they be soiled.[26] R. Isaac son of R. Jacob b. Giyora sent [a message] in the name of R. Johanan that garments made of flax[27] one may wash during the festival week. Raba raised an objection: HAND-TOWELS, BARBERS'-WRAPS AND BATHTOWELS [MAY BE WASHED].

---

(1) Lit., 'something befell him'.

(2) Rashi: to console him.

(3) Eccl. X, 5.

(4) I.e., the way in which a thing is expressed may contain a prognostication for the future.

(5) Gen. XXII, 5.

(6) Lit., 'the thing was furthered'.

(7) Because they are visible.

(8) Waiting on him.

(9) By justly removing a stumbling block, a believed cause for injury,

(10) By going to greater trouble in disposing of the injurious matter effectively, beyond recovery. Cf. B. K. 30a; 50b.

(11) I.e., they are quite harmless once the nails have been shifted from their first place.

(12) Ancient Emmaus, a famous spa about a mile from Tiberias. Hanimatha(n) means 'Hot Springs'.

(13) Judging by his attitude.

(14) Hardly 'scribe', as his observation shows. He is otherwise unknown; he may have consulted Rab professionally.

(15) Of the mouth.

(16) So Rabad and SBH (p. 92). Cf. Asheri (section 20) and Ritba.

(17) So D.S.

(18) Under Pharoah, Rab alluded veiledly to the new Persian rulers as may be gathered from the following description of the Parthians (or Persians). Two Palestinian Rabbis had visited Nehardea and had there an awkward experience. R. Jose b. Kippar, on his return, explained his timidity, thus: 'Those people are a cubit (in height) with a cap a cubit high, speaking as ventriloquists, bearing formidable names (such as) Arda(shir) and Arta (xerxes) and having a shock of hair on their head. If they say, "Fetter" they put on fetters; if they say "Kill" they kill . . . and they were related to royalty', Git. 14b. 'Surena (a Parthian grandee) had his face painted and his hair parted after the fashion of the Medes, whereas the Parthians (whom he led against Crassus 53 B.C.E.) made a more terrible appearance with their shaggy hair gathered in a mass upon their forehead after the Scythian manner'. Plutarch's Lives, Crassus (Everyman's Library, Vol. II, pp. 292-293). 'But to describe their persons and customs (says Ammianus Marcellus) they are nearly all slight in figure, swarthy... fierce-looking with goat-like eyes, eyebrows arched in semi-circle and joined, handsome beards and long hair'. Amm. Marcell. Chapter XXIII, VI, 75 (Bohn's ed. pp. 343ff expedition of Julian in 363 C.E.).

(19) פרמשתקן Adopting J. Perles' suggested etymology cited in (Ar. Compl. s.v. 430b) as more likely correct,  meaning here not the side whiskers but the other hair, the shock of hair on top of the head.

(20) Dan. IV, 14, in reference to Nebuchadnezzar who turned beast, with hair grown like eagles' feathers (v. 30). Cf. Kid. 72a (and parallel passage, Meg. 11a) where Persians are compared to a restless, corpulent, shaggy bear, with a corresponding reference to the Book of Daniel.

(21) I.e., a priest of the Zoroastrian religion, who adored Ahura-Mazda (Ormuzd) 'the Lord of Light' who would vanquish Angra-Mainyus, (Ahriman) 'the Lord of the Demons, Darkness and Evil'.

(22) Ex. VII, 15. It is the reference to the light of morning which is the emphatic part of this quotation. Rab undoubtedly referred to the then national revival of Zoroastrianism on the defeat of Artaban IV and the overthrow of the Parthian, Arsacid dynasty by Ardashir I — (Artaxerxes) and the establishment of the Sassanid dynasty in 226 C.E. Artaban (who is said to have been friendly disposed towards Rab) was captured, held a prisoner and finally put to death in 233. i.e., at the time when Alexander Severus repelled the Persian attacks on the Roman outposts in Northern Mesopotamia. Ardashir 'was an ardent devotee of the Zoroastrian doctrine and closely connected with the Priesthood and in his royal style assumed the designation Mazdayasman' (i.e., devotee of Ahura-Mazda) and depicted himself on rock-reliefs as King and Ormuzd both on horseback, i.e., King and god as Pharaoh did of old. Shapur I, his son and successor, was more liberal and friendly to Samuel. Hence the discussion between Rab and Samuel (Shab. 75a) as to what is a magus, a sorcerer (a muttering quack-priest) or a blasphemer, reviler of God? On the historical facts cf. Enc. Brit. II (1911) Art. Peria, VIII, p. 219a-b.

(23) Lit., 'from a maritime province'.

(24) Or shirt.

(25) So MS.M.

(26) Bit where he has only one tunic he may in all circumstances wash it.

(27) Linen, in contrast to woollens that require more skill and exertion in cleaning.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 18b

This [detailed enumeration] implies that these only [one may wash], but not [all sorts of] garments made of flax? — Said Abaye to him, [Not necessarily]; Our Mishnah included even those other kinds [of material].[1] Said Bar Hedya: I have myself seen at the lake of Tiberias [people] bringing along basins full of flax garments [and washing them] during the festival week. Abaye [however] strongly contested this [testimony]. Who can vouch to us that they did it with the approval of the Sages? Possibly they did so without the approval of the Sages!

MISHNAH AND THE FOLLOWING DOCUMENTS MAY BE INDITED DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]: INSTRUMENTS OF BETROTHAL,[2] BILLS OF DIVORCE[3] AND RECEIPTS;[4] TESTA MENTS, BEQUESTS[5] AND PROSBOLS;[6] VALUATION CERTIFICATES[7] AND ORDERS FOR ALIMONY:[8] RECORDS OF HALIZAH[9] AND OF REPUDIATION [OF MARRIAGE][10] AND ARBITRATION RECORDS;[11] JUDGMENT ORDERS AND DIPLOMATIC[12] CORRESPONDENCE.

GEMARA. [INSTRUMENTS OF BETROTHAL]. Said Samuel, 'One is allowed to betroth a woman during the festival week, [the reason being] lest another [rival suitor] anticipate him'. Might one suggest that [the wording here] lends support to Samuel's view: AND THE FOLLOWING MAY BE INDITED DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]: INSTRUMENTS OF BETROTHAL. What is [meant by this]? Is it not actually inditing the formula of Kiddushin?[13] — No, [it means, drawing up] the [preliminary] terms, and as R. Giddal, citing Rab, stated: 'How much do you give to your son?' 'So much and so much.' 'How much do you give to your daughter?' 'So much and so much'. [If] they then stood up and pronounced the 'dedication' [espousal formula] they have acquired their legal rights [to the offers]; these are [among] the matters that are [legally] acquired by word of mouth.[14] Might one suggest [then] the following as lending support to him [to Samuel]? 'One may take a wife during the festival [week]. whether a virgin or a widow, but not effect a levirate marriage;[15] as it is a rejoicing for him [the groom]',[16] [which implies] that betrothing is allowed. — Not [quite so]. He stated [the rule in the form] 'Not merely [this is not allowed but even that]: Not merely [it is forbidden] to betroth,[17] by which no scriptural obligation is carried out; but even to take [a wife in wedlock] whereby a scriptural obligation is fulfilled,[18] he is forbidden. Come and hear [a support for this]: For it was learnt in the School of Samuel:[19] [Grooms] may betroth, but not bring [a bride] home: and they may not make a feast of betrothal nor effect a levirate marriage, as this is a rejoicing for him [the groom]'. Infer this.[20]

But [yet], could Samuel have said 'Lest another [rival suitor] anticipate him'? Surely Rab Judah, as citing Samuel, said: ['Forty days before the embryo is formed[21] an echo issues[22] forth [on high] announcing, "The daughter of So-and-so is [to be a wife] to Soand-so".' [Similarly]. 'Such and such a field[23] is [to belong] to Soand-so'. — No; what it means is, 'Lest another [rival suitor] anticipate him' by means of prayer, as is illustrated by what occurred to Raba, who overheard a certain fellow praying for grace saying: 'May that girl be destined to be mine!' Said Raba to the man: 'Pray not for grace thus; if she be meet for you, you will not lose her, and if not , you have challenged Providence'.[24] Later he overheard him praying that either he should die before her or she before him. Said Raba to him: '[Praying Jack],[25] did I not tell you not to pray for grace in this matter?' Thus said Rab in the name of R. Reuben b. Estrobile, from the Torah,[26] from the Prophets and from the Hagiographa it may be shown that a woman is [destined to] a man by God. From the Torah: Then Laban and Bethuel answered and said, The thing proceedeth from the Lord.[27] From the Prophets: But his [Samson's] father and mother knew not that it was of the Lord.[28] And from the Hagiographa: House and riches are the inheritance of fathers, but a prudent wife is from the Lord.[29]

And Rab said [also this] in the name of R. Reuben b. Estrobile: 'A person does not incur suspicion unless he has done the thing [suspected]; and if he has not done it wholly he has done it partly; and if he has not done it partly, he has a mind to do it; and if he has not had a mind to do it, he has seen others doing it and enjoyed [the sight of it]'. [As against this], R. Jacob [of Nehar Pekod][30] raised an objection [from the following text]: 'And the children of Israel did impute things that were not right unto the Lord their God.[31] There they did it [purposely] to provoke [God].

Come [then] and hear [this statement]: And [Moses heard and fell on his face].[32] What tidings had he heard? — Said R. Samuel b. Nahmani, as reporting R. Jonathan: [He heard that] they suspected him of [adultery with] a married woman, as it is said: And they were jealous[33] of Moses in the camp and of Aaron the holy one of the Lord.[34] And, said R. Samuel b. Isaac, this indicates that everyone was jealous of his wife because of Moses. — There [again] it was done out of hatred.[35]

[Then] come and hear [this statement]: Said R. Jose, May my share be with him whom they suspect of something of which he is innocent. Nay further, R. Papa said, They suspected me myself of something of which I was innocent! — It is not difficult [to explain]. One [speaks of a] rumor that dies away, the other of a rumor that persists. And how long would a persistent rumor be? — Said Abaye. 'Nanna' told me, Local gossip lasts a day and a half; and that holds good only if it did not cease in the meantime, but if it had ceased in the meantime, we take no notice of it. If, however, it does cease in the meantime, the rule is [to disregard it] only where it was not [stopped] out of fear, but if it was stopped out of fear, it is not [to be disregarded]; again, the rule is [to disregard it] only where it does not break out again, but where it breaks out again [we do] not [disregard it]; also, the rule is [to disregard it] when he [the maligned] person has no enemies, but if he has enemies, [we say] it is his enemies who have spread the [adverse] rumor.

MISHNAH. BILLS OF CREDIT MAY NOT BE WRITTEN DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]; BUT IF HE [THE CREDITOR] DOES NOT TRUST HIM OR HE[36] HAS NOT [ENOUGH] FOOD TO EAT, HE MAY WRITE. SCROLLS [OF THE LAW] AND THE

[SCRIPTURAL SECTIONS FOR] PHYLACTERIES[37] AND MEZUZOTH[38] MAY NOT BE WRITTEN DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]; NOR MAY A SINGLE LETTER BE CORRECTED, EVEN IN THE [ANCIENT] TEMPLE-SCROLL.[39] R. JUDAH SAYS, A PERSON MAY WRITE THE [SCRIPTURAL SECTIONS FOR] THE PHYLACTERIES OR MEZUZOTH FOR HIMSELF

---

(1) [E.g., woollen which requires more skill in cleaning, yet in the case of hand-towels, washing is permitted. But as to those made of linen, all sorts of garments may be washed].

(2) Either (a) the formula of espousal: ‘Behold thou art dedicated unto me according to the law of Moses and Israel’ (Cf. Kid. 5b and 6a), to be handed by the suitor to his bride (thereby to secure her for himself forthwith in case of another rival suitor) as a ‘marriage’ may not be celebrated during the festival week (Rashi); or, (b) the terms of the marriage settlement (instrumenta dotalia). V. Gemara and SHB ad loc. p. 95; also Lewin, Otz. Hag. Mashk No. 52.

(3) Cf.. Deut. XXIV, 1-4.

(4) Or part-cancellation of a debt. Cf. Keth. 89a ff and B.M. 18a, 19a-b.

(5) During his lifetime. B.M. 19a. palest. Mishnah reads: ‘and bequests’.

(6) A formal written declaration made by a creditor before the Judges assigning to the Court the collection of an outstanding debt, thus preventing its cancellation by the incidence of the Sabbatical year. Cf. Deut. XV, 2, and Sheb. X, 4; Git. 36a. The Prorbol is said to have been instituted by Hillel.

(7) Valuation of a debtor's property by order of Court prior to a public auction to meet the payment of his debt. Cf. B.M. 20a and ‘Arach. 21b.

(8) E.g., to keep a step-daughter for a certain period. V. Keth. 101b.

(9) The ceremony on the refusal of the levirate marriage by the brother of a man who died absolutely childless. V. Deut. XXV, 5-10. For the text see J.M.K. ad loc. and Yeb. 3 9b.

(10) By a girl minor who before attaining puberty had been given in marriage (after her father's death) by her mother or brothers. Her repudiation before a tribunal of three judges was sufficient to nullify the marriage. Cf. Yeb. 107b ff.

(11) ‘Compromissium’, a covenant to abide by the decision of arbitrators, according to J.M.K. III, 3 or copies of the pleadings and award, according to B.M. 20a.

(12) רשות ראשות government ‘letters of credentials’, ‘diplomas’; or רשות voluntary, private, friendly letters, J.M.K., ibid; also Lewin Otz. Hag. IV, Mashk. Nos. 53-55.

(13) The dedication formula, v. n. 6 on Mishnah.

(14) Without formal, symbolical ‘delivery’. Cf. Keth. 102a and b.

(15) Deut. XXV, 5-6. V. p. 117, n. 5.

(16) V. supra 8b.

(17) During the festival week.

(18) The duty of procreation. Gen. I, 27-28; II, 18, 22-24.

(19) [Han.: Menasseh.]

(20) I.e., this is conclusive.

(21) V. D.S. note ad loc and cf. Sot. 2a and Sanh. 22a (Sonc. ed. p. 124).

(22) Cur. edd. have here ‘daily’.

(23) Or house, family, D.S.

(24) You will (in the end) challenge Providence for not having granted your sincere prayer.

(25) חלאי SBH. (Cf. Ex. XXXII, 11).

(26) The Pentateuch.

(27) Gen. XXIV, 50.

(28) Judg. XIV,4.

(29) Prov. XIX, 14.

(30) So MS.M. and parallels.

(31) II Kings, XVII, 9. Surely, God has not been guilty of improper intentions. Yet ill is imputed to Him.

(32) Num. XVI, 4. According to MS.M. Cf. Sanh. 110a.

(33) Connecting this expression with that of Num. V, 14.

(34) Ps. CVI, 16.

(35) It was not suspicion, but sheer spite.

(36) The borrower or the scribe. V. J.M.K. 82a.

(37) Cf. Deut. VI, 8; XI, 18 and supra.

(38) Deut. VI, 9; XI, 20.

(39) According to some, a copy written by Ezra, according to others, the scroll kept in the ‘Court’ of the Temple.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 19a

AND MAY SPIN ON HIS THIGH THE BLUE-WOOL FOR HIS FRINGE.[1]

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: A person [may] write [the scriptural sections for] phylacteries or mezuzoth for his own use [and spin on his thigh the blue threads for his own fringe],[2] and for others [he may do so] as a favour:[3] this is R. Meir s view; R. Judah says, He may artfully dispose of his own and [then] write fresh ones for his own use. R. Jose says, He may write and sell [them] in his usual way enough for his [personal] requirements’,[4] Rab gave a decision to R. Hananel and some say, Rabbah b. Bar-Hanah to R. Hananel[5] — that the halachah is that one [may] write and them in his way to the extent of his requirements.

AND [MAY] SPIN ON His THIGH BLUE-WOOL FOR HIS FRINGE. Our Rabbis taught: A person [may] spin on his thigh the blue [thread] for his fringe, but [may] not do so with a stone [as a spindle-whorl]: that is R. Eliezer's view; but the Sages say [he may] even with a stone. R. Judah says in his [R. Eliezer's] name: [He may] with a stone, but not with a spindle; but the Sages say, [He may] either with stone or with spindle. Said R. Judah as citing Samuel, and similarly R. Hiyya b. Abba said as citing R. Johanan: The halachah is that [one may spin the blue-wool for his fringe] whether with a stone [as whorl] or with a spindle;[6] and it is also the halachah that one [may] write in his usual way and sell sufficient for his requirements.[7]

MISHNAH. IF ONE BURIES HIS DEAD THREE DAYS[8] BEFORE A FESTIVAL, THE RESTRICTIONS[9] APPERTAINING TO HIS SEVEN DAYS’ MOURNING FALL AWAY; [IF HE BURIES HIS DEAD] EIGHT DAYS BEFORE A FESTIVAL, THE RESTRICTIONS OF THE THIRTY [DAYS] FALL AWAY,[10] BECAUSE THEY [THE SAGES] SAID THAT THE SABBATH ENTERS INTO COUNT BUT DOES NOT INTERRUPT,[11] WHILE FESTIVALS INTERRUPT[12] AND DO NOT ENTER INTO COUNT.[13] R. ELIEZER SAYS, SINCE THE SANCTUARY [AT JERUSALEM] WAS LAID IN RUINS, [THE FEAST OF] ‘AZERETH’[14] IS [RECKONED] AS AN [ORDINARY] SABBATH [DAY];[15] RABBAN GAMALIEL SAYS, NEW YEAR AND THE DAY OF ATONEMENT ARE [RECKONED] AS FESTIVALS; WHILE THE SAGES SAY, [THE RULE IS] NEITHER ACCORDING TO THE STATEMENT OF THE ONE NOR ACCORDING TO THE STATEMENT OF THE OTHER, BUT AZERETH IS [RECKONED] LIKE [THE OTHER] FESTIVALS AND NEW YEAR AND THE DAY OF ATONEMENT ARE [RECKONED] AS A SABBATH [DAY].

GEMARA. [THE RESTRICTIONS... FALL AWAY]. Said Rab, [this means only] ‘the restrictions’[16] fall away, but the days [of mourning] do not fall away[17] and so said also R. Huna:[18] The ‘restrictions fall away but the ‘days’ do not fall away; and R. Shesheth[19] said that even the days also fall away.[20] What is the meaning of, ‘But the days [of mourning] do not fall away’? [It means] that if he had not cropped his hair on the day before the festival he is forbidden to crop himself after the festival

---

(1) Num. XV, 38ff.

(2) This bracketed part is omitted in many texts. Cf. D.S.

(3) Without payment for his work.

(4) פרנסה includes ‘food, raiment and home’ for himself, wife and children or his father's widow. Cf. Shab. 118a and Keth. 69a.

(5) V. J.M.K. III, 4.
(6) It being for the performance of a Biblical ordinance which gives him joy.
(7) To help him joyously to keep the festival.
(8) V. infra 20a.
(9) גזרה means generally a restrictive measure. (Cf. Be. 4b, 8b, 36b). Here it refers to the abstention, during the seven days of mourning, from work and bodily comforts — bathing, anointing, footwear and fresh clean clothes, i.e., the maintenance of a neglected disconsolate appearance in honour of the deceased. The public, religious, festive rejoicing suspends, or according to some, cancels the formal observance of sorrow.
(10) I.e., the remaining period of formal mourning down to thirty days lapses on his having duly observed the first seven days plus one day of the remaining period before the festival.
(11) I.e., it neither counts as a blank day, nor does it cancel the rest. The re maining days of mourning continue after the Sabbath.
(12) Cancel the remaining days of mourning.
(13) If the interment took place during the festival. But v. Rashi.
(14) The rabbinic term for the ‘Feast of Weeks’ (Deut. XVI, 10). or the Day of Bikkurim, First Fruits (of wheat; Lev. XXIII, 17). Both terms occur in Num. XXVIII, 26. V. Targums on the last, and Mid. Lekah Tob, ad loc. p. 272; cf. also infra 24b.
(15) It enters into count and does not interrupt.
(16) I.e., only the outer, formal observances of mourning but not the obligation.
(17) I.e., the period of mourning of seven or (down to) thirty days (as the case may be, according to the wording of the Mishnah) is not canceled but only deferred pending the festive time.
(18) Rab's disciple and his successor at the Academy of Sura.
(19) Var. lec., Samuel; v. D.S. a.l.
(20) I.e., they are not to be compensated after the festival to the number of the days during which the mourning formalities were suspended.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 19b

and that is [exactly] what is taught [in a Baraitha]: If one buries his dead three days before a festival his restrictions of the seven fall away;[1] if eight days before a festival his restrictions of the thirty fall away;[1] and he crops [his hair] on the day before the festival.[2] If he had not cropped himself on the day before the festival, he is forbidden to crop himself after the festival.[3] Abba Saul says, He is permitted to crop himself after the festival; for just as the ‘[observed] obligation[4] of three’ [days] quashes the restriction of the seven’[5] so does the ‘[observed] obligation of seven’ quash the ‘restrictions of thirty’.[6] [You Say, ‘The observed obligation of] seven’? But we learned [in our Mishnah] ‘eight’ [days before the festival]! — Abba Saul maintains the view that part of a day is [reckoned] as an entire day and [here] the seventh day [of mourning] enters into the count both this way and that.[7] R. Hisda, as citing Rabina son of Shela, said the halachah follows the opinion of Abba Saul;[8] and the Sages concur with Abba Saul that when his eighth day comes on a Sabbath which is the day before a festival he is permitted to crop himself [even] in the Friday.[9]

Whose opinion is followed in the statement in which R. Amram, citing Rab, said: ‘[As to] the mourner, as soon as the comforters have risen to depart from his house, he is permitted to bathe’? Whose view [is it]? — It is Abba Saul's [view]. Said Abaye, The halachah follows Abba Saul's view in regard to the seventh day [of mourning] and the Sages concur with Abba Saul in regard to the thirtieth day [of mourning] that we say, part of the day is regarded as the whole day. Raba said, The halachah follows Abba Saul's view in regard to the thirtieth day, but in regard to the seventh day the halachah does not follow the view of Abba Saul. And the Nehardeans[10] say the halachah follows Abba Sauls view in both instances, because Samuel stated that in matters appertaining to mourning the halachah is to follow the view of the more lenient authority.

Whence [in Scripture] do we derive the term of thirty days [of mourning]? — It is obtained by an analogy[11] between two texts which have in common the term pera’ used [in connection] with mourning[12] and again used [in connection] with the Nazirite,[13] [namely]: Here [in the law about mourning] it is written, Let not the hair of your heads grow long [tifra'u];[12] an there [in the law of the Nazirite] it is written: He shall let the locks of the hair of his head [pera’] grow long.[13] Just as the period there [for the Nazirite] is thirty days, so also here [for the mourner] it is thirty days. And whence do we derive it there? — Said R. Mattena: An unspecified Nazirite-vow is [binding] for thirty days. What is the reason? The text there reads: He shall be [Yihyeh] holy;[14] the [consonant] letter value of Yihyeh being [ten + five + ten + five] thirty.

Said R. Huna the son of R. Joshua,[15] [Authorities] all accept the view that when the third day [of mourning] occurs on the day before the festival the mourner is forbidden to wash [his whole body][16] till the evening.[17] Said R. Nehemiah the son of R. Joshua: I once found R. Pape and R. Papa sitting together and stating that the halachah is in accordance with the statement of R. Huna the son of Joshua. Some report it thus: R. Nehemiah the son of R. Joseph said, I once found R. Pape, R. Papa and R. Huna the son of R. Joshua sitting together and stating that all are agreed that when the third day occurs on the day before a festival, the mourner is forbidden to bathe till the evening.

Abaye enquired of Rabbah: What if one buried his dead during the festival? Does the festival enter into his counting of the thirty days, or does the festival not enter into his counting of the thirty days?[18] I am not asking about [counting the festival as part of] the seven days, because the ‘due observance of seven [days of mourning] does not obtain during the festival;[19] but what I do ask is about the period of thirty days, because the ‘due observance of thirty days does [partly] obtain during the festival;[20] what [is your view]? — He [Rabbah] replied, The [days of the] festival do not enter into the counting.

[Thereupon] he put to him an objection from [the following]: If one buried his dead two days before the festival, he counts five [supplementary] days after the festival,[21] and his work is done [for him] by others; his men-servants and maid-servants do [their domestic] work quietly indoors, privily; and the public do not [need to] condole formally[22] with him

---

(1) As then his obligation to the dead is already sufficiently fulfilled.

(2) In honour of the festival, although he is still within the thirty days.

(3) I.e., the remaining period of mourning up to thirty is resumed: it having been only suspended but not canceled.

(4) מצוה means a positive order and denotes rather the positive aspect, the active fulfillment of the obligation to the departed, in contrast to the גזירה , the restrictive aspect of mourning.

(5) Not to be resumed again.

(6) I.e., again. if he had not cropped himself before the festival he is permitted to do so immediately after the festival.

(7) I.e., that after part has served for the seventh day, the remainder can count as part of the eighth day with its easier regimen.

(8) [With reference to his latter ruling, cf. D.S. note7 and Han].

(9) Though it is still the seventh.

(10) Represented by R. Han., Sanh. 17b. Also by R. Nahman b. Isaac (according to another source). V. A. Hyman, Toledoth II, p. 919.

(11) This question interrupts the discussion. The method of equalling two texts is gezerah shawah, v. Glos.

(12) V. Lev. X, 6; Aaron and his sons were thus commanded at the death of Nadab and Abihu, not to allow their hair to go loose, i.e., not to grow freely or long.

(13) Num. VI, 5. Cf. supra 15a.

(14) Num. VI, 5: י 10, ה 5 (twice).

(15) The discussion on the former theme is resumed here.

(16) I.e., to bathe in warm water which affords pleasure.

(17) Even Abba Saul will in this case not regard a part of the day as the whole.

(18) Formal mourning alter burial falls into three periods: (i) three days of weeping and (ii) up to the seventh day (part-inclusive) for lamenting with abstention from work and attention to the person; then (iii) down to the thirtieth day (part-inclusive) in slightly mitigated formal mourning.

(19) Therefore it is certain that the mourner begins his observance of the seven after the festival; and as these had not begun, there was as yet no part to be taker, into account.

(20) For on it too, like during the thirty days, washing clothes and cropping hair are forbidden.

(21) To make up the requisite seven days of mourning.

(22) Lit., 'busy themselves'.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 20a

as they have already done that Service towards him during the festival. As a general principle on this matter [it may be stated]: 'Whatever appertains to the mourner [himself],[1] that the festival interrupts,[2] but whatever appertains to the [obligations of] the public,[3] that the festival does not interrupt'. If he buried his dead three days towards the conclusion of the festival,[4] he counts seven days [of mourning] after the festival. During the first four days [alter the festival] the public engage [in condoling] with him, but in the last three days the public do not [need to] condole with him as they have already done [this service] towards him during the [three days within the] festival; and the festival enters into the counting. Now, does not [this last sentence] refer to the latter part [of the statement]?[5] — No, [said Rabbah] it refers to the former part [of the statement].[6] Thereupon he put an objection to him [from the continuation of the Baraitha]: The festival enters into the counting of thirty days: how, for instance? If one buried his dead at the beginning of the festival he counts seven days [of mourning] after the festival and his work is done by others; his men-servants and maid-servants do work quietly indoors, and the public do not [need to] engage [in condoling] with him, as they have already done that service towards him during the festival; and the festival enters in the counting![7] — That Is a confutation [of Rabbah].

When Rabin came [from Palestine] he reported R. Johanan to have said, Even if one buried his dead during the festival;[8] and similarly R. Eleazar gave as his decision to his son R. Pedath, Even if one buried his dead during the festival.

Our Rabbis taught: 'If one carried out the rule of overturning the couch[9] for three days before the festival, he need not overturn it [any more] after the festival; these are the words of R. Eliezer; but the Sages say: [He need not] even if he had [done so] only for one day or even for one hour. Said R. Simeon b. Eleazar, Those were the very words of Beth Shammai and the very words of Beth Hillel: for Beth Shammai say: 'For three days [before the festival]', and the Hillelites Say: Even [if] for one day'. R. Huna said: R. Hiyya b. Abba, as citing R. Johanan. stated[10] — sonic say that R. Johanan told R. Hiyya b. Abba and R. Huna: [He need not], even if he had [overturned the couch] for one day; even for one hour. Raba stated[11] that the halachah is according to our Tanna [of the Mishnah] who said three days.[12]

Rabina once came to Sura-cum-Euphrates.[13] Said R. Habiba to Rabina: What is the law [on this point]? — He replied: 'Even [if he had the couch overturned] one day and even for one hour'. R. Hiyya b. Abba, R. Ammi and R. Isaac were [once] seated in the marquee of R. Isaac b. Eleazar[14] when a discussion was begun between them: Whence is it authentically derived that the observance of mourning is for seven days? From the text, And I shall turn your feasts[15] into mourning . . . [and I will make it as the mourning for an only son];[16] just as the 'Feast' lasts seven days.[15] so [the period of] mourning is also for seven days. But why not [draw an analogy with] the feast of 'Azereth,[17] which lasts but one day? — [No], that [analogy] is needed [for another lesson] as explained by Resh Lakish; for Resh Lakish said in the name of R. Judah Nesi'ah:[18] Whence is it derived that on [the receipt of] belated tidings[19] [formal] mourning obtains for one day only? From the text, And I shall turn your feasts into mourning;[20] and we find 'Azereth as an instance where one day's celebration is designated [a 'Feast'].

Our Rabbis taught: On receiving near tidings [formal] mourning obtains for seven [days] as well as [up to] thirty [days]; on distant tidings, it obtains for one day only. Which are ‘near’ tidings and which ‘distant’ tidings? ‘Near’ tidings are [recent tidings] within, thirty [days] and ‘distant’ tidings are [belated tidings] after thirty [days]: these are the words of R. Akiba; the Sages, however, say, One and the same [practice obtains in both], on [the receipt of] ‘near’ tidings or of ‘distant’ tidings, [formal mourning] obtains for seven as well as [up to] thirty [days]. Said Rabbah b. Bar Hanah, as citing R. Johanan: Wherever you find a single authority expressing a lenient view and a number expressing a strict view, the halachah is in accordance with the strict view, save in this case: that although R. Akiba is lenient and the Sages are strict, the halachah is in accordance with R. Akiba, as Samuel stated, that in matters obtaining to mourning the halachah follows the lenient authority.

R. Hanina[21] received tidings from Be[th]-Hozai about [the death of] his father; he consulted[22] R. Hisda, [who] told him, ‘On [receipt of] distant tidings [formal mourning] obtains for one day only’. R. Nathan b. Ammi received tidings from Be[th]-Hozai about his mother; he consulted[22] Raba, who told him: The authorities have already stated [that] on [receipt of] distant tidings [formal mourning] obtains for one day only. Thereupon he put to him an objection [from the following]: When does this ruling apply? In the case of the [other] five nearest-of-kin [for whom mourning is] obligatory;[23] but for one's father or mother [mourning is for] seven [days] and [up to] thirty [days] — [Raba] replied: That is the ruling of an individual[24] with which we do not concur, as [will be made clear from what] is taught [in the following]: ‘There was the case of the father of R. Zadok who had died at Ginzak,[25] and he was not informed till after three years. He [thereupon] came and asked of Elisha b. Abuyah and the elders that were with him and they told him to observe seven [days] and [up to] thirty, and when R. Ahiyya's son died in the Diaspora,[26] he [too] sat on his account seven and [observed mourning up to] thirty’. But this is not so? For when Rab, R. Hiyya's brother's son — who was also R. Hiyya's sister s son[27] — came up there [to Palestine], he [R. Hiyya] said to his nephew [Rab]: ‘Is father alive’?[28]

---

(1) I.e., the observance of formal mourning by the mourner.

(2) Is deferred till after the festival.

(3) Lit., ‘the business of the public’, i.e., to pay visits of condolence and offer words of comfort.

(4) בסוף הרגל probably a misreading of בתוך הרגל ‘within’, ‘during the festival’, as in MS.M.

(5) ‘If one buried his dead during the festival, three days before towards conclusion . . .’ As the seven days have been dealt with already, the last sentence must refer to the thirty days, namely, that the festival days enter into the counting; i.e., not as Rabbah replied, negatively.

(6) ‘If one buried his dead two days before the festival’, when two days of the seven were also two days of the thirty, as Abaye himself admitted when he put the question to Rabbah.

(7) Of the thirty days, obviously.

(8) That part of the festival enters in the counting of thirty days.

(9) Cf. supra p. 92.

(10) As the Palestinian practice.

(11) As the Babylonian practice.

(12) As the minimum observance of formal mourning before the festival secures remission of the remainder.

(13) The Western part of Sura which lay along the junction of the Sura canal. V. Obermeyer p. 293.

(14) Palestinian authorities.

(15) I.e., Passover and Tabernacles, Lev. XXIII, 7-8 and 34-35.

(16) Amos VIII, 10.

(17) The Feast of Weeks; Deut. XVI, 10, 16 and cf. Num. XXVIII, 26.

(18) Judah II. grandson of R. Judah ha-Nasi (Judah I).

(19) Lit., ‘distant tidings’ (of a death), defined below.

(20) Amos VIII, 10. (10) The Feast of Weeks, Deut. XVI, 1, 16, cf. Num. XXVIII, 26.

(21) Var. lec. R. Hinena of Be(th)-Hozai (Chuzistan).

(22) Lit., 'came before'.
(23) I.e., for brother, sister, wife, son and daughter. Lev. XXI, 2-4. This is again taken up lower down.
(24) The authority is named lower down.
(25) Gazaka, a city in North Media (Atropatene); according to Rawlinson it is Shiz near Lake Urmia. V. Obermeyer p. 10.
(26) Golah, the ancient place of the 'Captivity' when the first Temple fell, Babylon, Nehardea and later, Pumbeditha, were considered the most ancient centres of the Golah.
(27) R. Aha of Kafri married a widow and his eldest son Aybu married her daughter. From these unions Aha had a son R. Hiyya, and Aybu had a son Rab ('R. Abba the Long', later the famous principal of Sura). Rab's mother was R. Hiyya's half-sister (from one mother, i.e., R. Ala's second wife); and Rab's father Aybu was R. Hiyya's eldest half-brother (from the same father, namely, R. Aha of Kafri). R. Hiyya was therefore doubly related to his nephew Rab, being his paternal uncle as well as his maternal uncle, cf. Pes. 4a (Rashi).
(28) I.e., is my father Aha alive?

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 20b

He replied, 'Mother'[1] is alive'. [Again] he asked 'Is mother[2] alive'? He replied: 'Father is alive'.[3] R. Hiyya thereupon said to his attendant: 'Take off my shoes and bring along my things after me to the [public] baths'. Now from this instance we learn three lessons: We learn that a mourner is forbidden to don shoes;[4] that distant tidings [entail formal mourning] but for one day; and that part of the day is [deemed] as all entire day's [mourning]![5] [In fact], R. Hiyya is one person and R. Ahiyya [whose son died in the Diaspora] is another person.[6]

Said R. Jose b. Abin: [If] one received near tidings on a festival and by the [time of its] termination it became distant tidings, [the festival-time] enters into the counting and [accordingly] he observes but one day [of formal mourning]. R. Adda[7] of Caesarea recited in the presence of R. Johanan: If one hears near tidings on a Sabbath day and by the termination of the Sabbath it has become distant tidings, he observes but one day [of formal mourning]. Does one [in such a case] rend his garment, or does he not rend his garment? — R. Mani said: He does not [need to] rend his garment; R. Hanina said, He does rend [his garment]. Said R. Mani to R. Hanina: My view that he does not rend [his garment] is consistent with the fact that there is no [observance of] 'seven'. But according to your view that he [should] rend his garment, tell me, is there a rending of [one's garment] without [the observance of] the seven [days of mourning]? But is there not? Surely, Isi, father of R. Zera — or as sonic say, R. Zera's brother, recited in the presence of R. Johanan: If one had no tunic[8] to rend [at the time] and he obtained one during the seven [days], he should rend it then; [if it became available] after the seven days, he does not rend it! [Thereupon] R. Zera chimed in after him: 'When does this ruling apply? In the case of the [other] five nearest-of-kin [for whom mourning is] obligatory,[9] but in the case of father or mother one always rends one's garment!' — What you cited [in fact] refers to the deference to be shown to one's father or mother.[10]

Our Rabbis taught: For all [nearest-of-kin] mentioned in the Priest's Section[11] for whom a priest is to defile himself, a mourner is to observe [formal] mourning, namely, these: [For] his wife, father or mother, brother or [single] sister, son or daughter. To these they added: His brother or single sister from the same mother,[12] as well as his married sister, be it from the same mother or the same father.[13] And just as he observes [formal] mourning for these, he likewise observes [formal] mourning for their relatives in the second degree:[14] this is R. Akiba's ruling. R. Simeon b. Eleazar says: [Extended, formal] mourning is not observed except for one's son's child and a father's father,[15] and the Sages say [by way of definition]: Whomever he mourns for he should also mourn with.[16] Is not the Sages' view [practically] the same as that of the former Tanna?[17] — Not [quite]; there is a [practical] difference between them, whether [we require him to be, that is to say when he is] with him in the [same] house,[18] as Rab[19] said to his son Hiyya, and as R. Huna likewise said to his son Rabbah:[20] 'In her presence observe mourning; away from her presence do not observe mourning'.

[When] Mar Ukba's father-in-law's son died, he thought of sitting for him[21] seven [days of mourning] and [continuing to] thirty. R. Huna going to his house found him [in formal mourning]. ‘Do you desire’, said he, ‘to eat of mourners’ fare?’[22] They [the Sages] did not say that [one should observe formal mourning] out of deference to his wife only in the case of [the death of] his father-in-law or his mother-in-law,[23] as it is taught: ‘If his father-in-law or mother-in-law died the husband may not compel his [mourning] wife to put on kohl or do her hair[24] [as usual], but he should overturn his [own] couch and observe [formal] mourning with her; and likewise she, when her fatherin-law or mother-in-law dies, may not put on kohl or do her hair [as usual]; but she should overturn her couch and observe [formal] mourning with him’. And another Baraitha taught: ‘Although it was stated [that] he may not compel his wife to put on kohl or do her hair [as usual] it is — said they — indisputably correct[25] that she [may] mix his wine for him, make his bed and wash his face, hands and feet’.[26] [Now the regulations in] the two citations contradict each other.[27] Hence infer from this that the one Baraitha refers to [the death of] a father-in-law or mother-in-law,[28] while the other to [the death of] other near of kin.[29] — This proves it.[30] It is also taught thus [explicitly]: ‘They did not lay down [that one should observe formal mourning] out of deference to his wife, save [at the death of] his father-in-law or his mother-in-law alone’.

Amemar lost his son's son, and he rent [his garment]. Thereupon his son came and he [again] rent [his garment] in his [son's] presence. He then recollected that he had done it while sitting; he rose and relit [his garment again] standing. Said R. Ashi to Amemar: Whence do we derive that the rending [of a garment] is [to be done] standing? From the text: Then Job rose[31] and rent his mantle.[32]

---

(1) To evade a direct doleful reply, Rab said that his own mother was alive, but said nothing about his grandfather, R. Aha of Kafri.

(2) I.e., is my mother alive? I.e., R. Hiyya's mother, Rab's grandmother, R. Aha's wife.

(3) Again to evade the direct and sad answer Rab replied that his own father (i.e., Aybu, R. Hiyya's half-brother) was alive, but nothing about it. Hiyya's mother, Aha's wife. This is according to R. Hananel. Rashi and Tosaf. s.v. אייבו offer different interpretations. V. Pes. 4a (Sonc. ed. p. 11.)

(4) Cf. supra p. 93.

(5) Even in the case of a parent one short while and one simple demonstration of respectful, sorrowful mourning, such as doffing the shoes, are enough; as soon after R. Hiyya went to the baths, which is forbidden to a mourner for a recent bereavement. Cf supra p. 101.

(6) That is, do not confuse Ahiyya of the Baraitha with Hiyya, Rab's uncle as being the same person who had acted differently on two occasions, at receiving belated distant news of the loss of a son and again of the loss of parents. They are two different persons.

(7) Var. lec. Abba.

(8) Of his own, to rend it at the poignant moment of hearing the sad tidings. Cf. infra, 24a and Tosaf. s.v. כי .

(9) Brother, sister, wife, son and daughter. see next citation.

(10) [I.e., though there is no observance of seven days he rends his garments not as an obligation but as a special mark of respect for his parents; v. Nimmuke Yosef.]

(11) Lev. XXI, 1ff.

(12) [Though not of the same father. The text implies only a paternal brother or sister.]

(13) [Although the text speaks only of a single sister (ibid. v. 3).]

(14) I.e., for his grandfather, grandmother or grandchildren; also for brothers and sisters of parents, i.e., uncles and aunts.

(15) I.e., for these only but no others of those included in R Akiba's extended list. Cf. n. 7.

(16) E.g., One mourns (in sympathy) with his father on the death of his father's father; likewise a father mourns (in sympathy) with his son who loses a child.

(17) I.e., R. Simeon b. Eleazar

(18) As implied in the words of the Sages, ‘he should mourn with him’.

(19) When Rab's sister died, v. J.M.K. III, 5.

(20) When Rabbah's wife was in mourning.

(21) Out of deference to his wife.

(22) Food provided by friends. Cf. infra 24b arid 27aff.
(23) Cited in Samuel's name, J.M.K. III, 5.
(24) I.e., to insist that she should keep up her personal appearance, instead of looking neglected and dejected when numerous callers come to condole with her; kohl was used for the eye-brows.
(25) Lit., 'in truth, they said'. V. B.M. 6.
(26) I.e., she may attend to his usual needs. [Washing hands and feet means in warm water which is forbidden to a mourner (Tosaf.).]
(27) In the former it is insisted that the husband must observe formal mourning out of deference to the wife, while in the latter, it implies that the husband need not.
(28) In which case he must mourn with her.
(29) In which case he need not mourn with her.
(30) That the distinction made by R. Huna supra is correct.
(31) I.e., stood up to perform the act of rending.
(32) Job I, 20.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 21a

But if that is so,[1] [the text]: And if he stand and say, I like not to take her,[2] [will be interpreted] similarly? But surely it is taught: [And if she loose the shoe from off the foot of a grownup levir], whether he be standing or sitting or stooping, [the ceremony is valid]?[3] . — He replied: [It is because] there it is not written, 'And he stood and said';[4] whereas here [in our instance] it is written, 'And Job rose and rent his mantle'. Rami b. Hama said: Whence [is it derived] that the rending [of a garment] is to be done standing? From what is said: And Job rose and rent his mantle. But perhaps what he did was something extra? For should we not say so, [what of the next thing Job did], And he shaved his head, [should we] likewise [have to conform with it]? — Rather it is [to be derived] from here: Then the king arose and rent his garments.[5] But here too, perhaps, what he did was something extra? For should you not say so [what of the next thing he did], And he lay on the earth,[5] [should we] likewise [have to conform with it]? Whereas it is taught: 'If a mourner sat on a bed,[6] on a chair[7] or on a stall for urns [and cans],[8] or even goes to the extreme[9] of sleeping on the bare ground, he has not discharged his duty [to the dead]'. And, explained R. Johanan, [It is] because he has not carried out the [custom of] overturning the bed? — He replied: [It means that David lay] as it were on the ground.

Our Rabbis taught: The following things are forbidden to a mourner: He is forbidden to do work, to bathe or anoint himself, to have [marital] intercourse, or don sandals; he is forbidden to read the Pentateuch, Prophets or Hagiograplia, or to recite the Mishnah, or Midrash and halachoth or the Talmud or aggadoth.[10] If, however, the public have need of him, he need not abstain. There was all actual case, when a son of R. Jose of Sepphoris[11] died, he went into the Beth Hamidrash[12] and expounded there all day long; [also[13] when a daughter of Rabbi died at Beth-Shearim, he went into the Beth Hamidrash and expounded there all day long]. Rabbah b. Bar Hanah had a bereavement [and] he thought he ought not to go out to [give] his lecture. Said Rab to him, We learned:[14] 'And if the public have need of him he does not refrain'. He then thought of calling upon his 'expositor' [assistant].[15] When Rab said to him, 'We learned:[14] 'Provided only that he does not place [at his side] an expositor [assistant]'. But then how is he to do? — After the manner taught [in the following]: 'It happen ed, that when a son of R. Judah b. Il'ai died, he went into the Beth Hamidrash and R. Hananiah b. 'Akabia also went in and sat him down at his side: he then whispered to R. Hananiah b. 'Akabia and R. Hananiah b. 'Akabia [whispered] to the Turgeman and the Turgeman spoke aloud to the public'.

Our Rabbis taught: '[During] the first three days a mourner is forbidden to put on phylacteries.[16] From the third day onward, the third day included, he is allowed to put on phylacteries and he does not[17] [have to] take them off at the entry of fresh personages [visitors]:[18] this is R. Eliezer's opinion.

R. Joshua says, A mourner is forbidden to put on phylacteries [during] the first two days. From the second day onward, the second day included, he is allowed to put on phylacteries; but at the entry of fresh personages [visitors] he takes[17] them off.[19] Said R. Mattena: What is the reason for R. Eliezer's view? — Because it is written: And the days of weeping in the mourning of Moses were ended.[20] Said R. Ena: What is the reason for R. Joshua's view? — Because it is written: [And I will turn your feasts into mourning . . . And I will make it as the mourning for an only son] and the end thereof as a bitter day.[21] But as to R. Joshua. surely it is written: [And the days of weeping in the mourning for Moses] were ended? — He may reply. The case of Moses was different; the mourning for him was [more] intense. And what of R. Eliezer too, surely it is written, ‘And the day thereof [I will make] as a bitter day’? — The poignancy of the bitterness is but on one day. Said ‘Ulla: The halachah follows R. Eliezer in regard to taking off [the phylacteries][22] and R. Joshua in regard to putting on [the phylacteries].[23] They enquired: What of the second day [of mourning]. according to ‘Ulla? Does he [at the entrance of fresh personages] have to take them off, or does he not [have to] take them off? — Come and hear: ‘Ulla said: He takes them off and puts them on [the second day] even a hundred times’.[24] Likewise it is taught: Judah b. Tema Says, He takes them off and puts them on even a hundred times. Raba said, Having put them on he does not take them off. But was it not Raba who said [above],[25] The halachah follows our Tanna [of the Mishnah],[26] who says [that the minimum observance of formal mourning is] three [days]?

---

(1) That the brother of the deceased husband must declare his rejection of a levirate marriage standing.

(2) Deut. XXV, 8.

(3) Yeb. 103a.

(4) The distinction is not clear, and texts vary; v. D.S. ad loc.

(5) II Sam. XIII, 31.

(6) Without any bedding.

(7) Var. lec. a bench.

(8) אורייני is the correct form derived from the Latin urnari(um), a low bench or stand for the urnae-cans and water buckets. This derivation fits in with the requirements of all the passages where this obscure word occurs. B.B. 144a and עירניה J.B.B. IX, 4; Tosef. Kel. 587, 22 and Sifra, Mezora II, Weiss 75c. Cf. however, Dictionaries and S. Krauss, T A. I., 273 n. 60 and addenda III, 361.

(9) V. marginal note according to Han. and Alfasi.

(10) The study of the Torah is considered a source of joy. Cf. Ps, XIX and CXIX, e.g. vv. 14, 16, 24, 47 etc.

(11) R. Jose b. Halafta, prominent in the College of Rabbi.

(12) The College.

(13) This bracketed part (which occurs in MS.M.) has accidentally fallen out through the same ending ‘all day long’.

(14) So MS. M.

(15) It was the practice to call upon a competent scholar or scholars at the college to stand at the side of the Principal or lecturer of the day and expound the theme to the listeners in several groups. He was called Amora or Turgeman (Meturgeman) _ expounder, interpreter (dragoman).

(16) Cf. supra 15a.

(17) In Sem. VI, and J.M.K. III, 5, it is the reverse.

(18) [Although they might be led to assume that he had donned the phylacteries also in the first two days.]

(19) Rashi: on the second day; according to J.M.K. (ibid.) in the week of mourning.

(20) Deut. XXXIV, 8. That the main mourning is during the first three days is derived by counting the three expressions. ‘days’, ‘weeping’, ‘mourning’.

(21) Amos VIII, 10, which indicates that the essential mourning is but one day. .

(22) That he need not take them off on the third day at the entry of fresh visitors.

(23) On the second day.

(24) Each time at the entry of new visitors, to show the visitors that he has not been disregarding the law hitherto.

(25) 20a about keeping the bed overturned for at least three days before a festival.

(26) Supra 19a.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 21b

— It is different in the case of a religious precept. [like phylacteries].[1]

Our Rabbis taught: A mourner is forbidden, during the first three days [to do] work, even a poor man who receives maintenance from charity; thereafter he does [his work] privately, in his house: and a woman [in mourning] plies the spindle in her house.

Our Rabbis taught: A mourner should not go during the first three days to a place of mourning;[2] thereafter he may go but not take a place among the comforters, but among those who are [to be] comforted.

Our Rabbis taught: A mourner is forbidden during the first three days to give greeting [of peace];[3] after three and to seven [days], he responds but does not give greeting [of peace]; thereafter he gives greeting [of peace] and responds in his usual manner.

[It is stated above] ‘Forbidden during the first three days to give greeting of peace’. But surely it was taught: It happened, when [two][4] sons of R. Akiba, [bridegrooms],[5] died, all Israel entered[6] and made a great lament for them, and as the people were about to depart, R. Akiba stood on a large bench[7] and addressed them: Our brethren, the House of Israel, hear ye! Even though these two sons were ‘bridegrooms’,[8] I am[9] consoled on account of the honour you have done [them].[10] And even though you have come on account of Akiba, there is many an Akiba![11] But this it is what you said [to yourselves]: The law of God is in his heart, [his footsteps will not falter].[12] All the more then, two-fold be your reward: Go home unto peace!’[13] — Deference towards the public is a different matter.

[It was stated above ‘After three to seven [days]; he responds but does not give greeting [of peace]; thereafter, he gives greeting [of peace] and responds, in his usual manner’. Some contrasted this statement with the following: ‘One who meets his fellow mourner within thirty days, tenders him [words of] consolation but enquires not about his peace; after the thirty days he enquires about his peace, but tenders him not [words of] consolation.[14] If his [friend's] wife had died and he married another [formally],[15] he is not allowed to call at his house to tender him [there,[16] words of] consolation; if he meets him in the street he expresses [his condolence] to him in a low voice and with downcast looks!’[17] — Said R. Idi b. Abin: The mourner enquires about the peace of others [within his period of mourning][18] because others’ are abiding in peace; others enquire not about the peace of the mourner, because he is not abiding in peace [but in sorrow].[19] But then, since it states [in the former Baraitha]: [After three to seven days] ‘he responds. . .’, does this not imply that others may enquire [about the mourner's peace]?[20] — Where they are unaware [of his bereavement]. If so, does not the same apply also to the other earlier period?[21] — [No,] then[21] he is obliged to acquaint them [of his sorrow] and makes no [further] response, whereas here[22] he need not acquaint them [of it].

Thereupon some contrasted [this latter Baraitha] with the following: One who meets another mourner within a twelvemonth tenders him [words of] consolation, but does not enquire about his ‘peace’;[23] after a twelvemonth, he enquires about his ‘peace and does not tender him [words of] consolation, but may refer to his sorrow indirectly.[24] Said R. Meir: If one meets another mourner after a twelvemonth and tenders him [then words of] consolation, to what can he be likened? To [the case of] a man who had his leg broken and healed when a physican met him and said to him, Come to me and let me break it and set it [again], to convince you that my medicaments are good? — This offers no diffculty: This last citation refers to [the death of] father or mother, while the former refers to [the death of] other near of kin. But in that case[25] too, why not tender him [words of] consolation indirectly? — Yes indeed [he may], and what means: [‘After thirty days he may] not tender him [words of] consolation' is, [not] in one's usual manner — but he refers to his sorrow indirectly.

Our Rabbis taught: A mourner who arrives home during the first three days from a place in the near vicinity, counts [his days of mourning] with them.[26] If he came home from a distance, he counts on his own. Thereafter even if he came home from a place in the vicinity he counts on his own. R. Simeon says: Even if he came home on the seventh day from a place in the vicinity, he counts with them.[26]

The Master said: 'During the first three days from a place in the vicinity, he counts with them'. R. Hiyya b. Abba, as citing R. Johanan said that this is done only where the chief person of the household was at home. The following question was then raised:

---

(1) Deut. VI, 8; XI. 18.

(2) Lit., 'House of mourning', i.e., either to a private house or to the cemetery to attend a funeral. Cf. Sem. VI.

(3) Lit., 'enquire about his "peace"' (welfare). E.g., Gen. XXIX, 6 and cf. supra p. 89, n. 10.

(4) Cf. D. note 7: probably during a plague.

(5) So Sem. III, 6. The expression denotes that they died in the prime of life, under thirty years of age.

(6) The cemetery.

(7) An improvised rostrum.

(8) V. p. 135 n. 8.

(9) The text reads, 'He is consoled' by way of euphemism, to avoid an omen for one who reads or recounts this.

(10) By your presence.

(11) I.e., I am not so great a man as to be entitled to it all.

(12) Ps. XXXVII, 31.

(13) Thus R. Akiba tendered 'peace' to his audience on the very first day of mourning. Cf. Sem. VIII, where this incident among others is told at length.

(14) Here ends the part that causes difficulty. The attempted reply follows later after the conclusion of the whole quotation.

(15) That is by betrothal within the thirty days of mourning: this is permitted for the sake of little children, left motherless; often it is the deceased wife's sister. He may thus marry her formally but is not to live with her as man and] wife till after the period of mourning is over. Generally a widower should wait till after the three Festivals — Passover, Weeks and Tabernacles have passed, before he marries again. Cf. infra, 23a.

(16) Not to embarrass the second wife.

(17) Lit., 'with faint lip and heavy head', so as to avoid giving the impression of being cynical. l This Baraitha thus teaches that within the thirty days one may not greet a mourner, which is in opposition to the ruling of the former Baraitha that the mourner himself is permitted to exchange greetings once the seven days are over].

(18) Within the thirty days.

(19) [I.e., the two Baraithas are not contradictory: whereas the former teaches that the mourner may greet others within the thirty days, the latter forbids others to greet him within, that period.]

(20) And thus the two Baraithas are still contradictory.

(21) I.e., during the first three days.

(22) After three days.

(23) Whereas above it was ruled that after thirty days one may tender greetings.

(24) Rashi: He merely utters a word of comfort without mentioning the name of the deceased.

(25) I.e., in the case of other near-of-kin to which the former Baraitha refers.

(26) With the other members of the family.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 22a

What if the chief person[1] of the household had gone to the place of interment?[2] — Come and hear: For R. Hiyya b. Abba as citing R. Johanan. said that even if the chief person of the household went to the place of interment, he [still] counts with them. [You say] 'He counts with them?' Why, it is taught [definitely]: ‘He counts by himself’! — That is not difficult [to explain]: The former [ruling] obtains where he returned within three [days]; the latter [ruling] obtains where he had not returned within three [days]. Similar it is to what Rab told the sons of Hazzalponi:[3] Those that come [home] within three [days] should count with you; those that do not come [home] within three [days] should count by themselves. Raba told the people of Mahoza: You who do not follow the bier,[4] should begin counting [the days of mourning] as soon as you turn your faces from the city gates.

‘R. Simeon says, Even if he came home on the seventh day from a place in the vicinity he counts with them’. Said R. Hiyya b. Gamada that R. Jose b. Saul as reporting Rabbi said: That is [done] only where [on his arrival] he found comforters still present.[5] R. ‘Anan then enquired: What if they [the comforters] had just made ready[6] themselves to get up [and leave] but had not yet left? — This stands over [for a solution]. The fellow-collegiate of R. Abba b. Hiyya had it as a tradition from R. Abba — Who was that [fellow-collegiate]? — R. Zera; and some say that it was the fellow-collegiate of R. Zera who had heard it from R. Zera. — And who was that [fellow-collegiate]? — R. Abba son of R. Hiyya b. Abba — who reported R. Johanan [to have stated]: ‘The halachah is to follow R. Simeon b. Gamaliel's view on the point of terefoth[7] and the halachah is to follow R. Simeon on the point of mourning’. The view of R. Simeon on the point of mourning is this one which we have just cited; and the view of R. Simeon b. Gamaliel on terefoth is that which is taught:[8] ‘If intestines had become perforated and mucilage blocks the perforation, it [the animal's flesh] is kasher’.[9] What is ‘mucilage’? — Said R. Kahana: it is the viscous matter inside the intestines which comes away under pressure. Said someone; May I be granted to go up to [Palestine] and learn the legal dictum from the mouth of the Master himself! When he went up he came upon R. Abba son of R. Hiyya b. Abba. Said he to him: ‘Did you, sir, say that the halachah is to follow R. Simeon b. Gamialiel on the point of terefoth’? — He replied: ‘I said that the halachah is not so’! And what about the point of mourning’, [is the halachah in that case] to follow R. Simeon? — He replied: Opinions are divided on that, as it has been stated: ‘R. Hisda said, [R. Simeon's view is] the halachah, and R. Johanan said likewise; [but] R. Nahman said, [R. Simeon's view is] not the halachah. The [present] halachah however does not follow R. Simeon b. Gamaliel's view in terefoth; but as to the point of mourning. the halachah is like R. Simeon's, because of Samuel's dictum that in matters of mourn ing, the halachah is to follow the [view of the] lenient authority’.

[Our Rabbis taught]:[10] ‘[If] for all [other] dead one expedites [the departure of] the bier,[11] he is praiseworthy; but in the case of one's father or mother, he is blameworthy. If it was the day before the Sabbath or a festival,[12] [or if pouring rain was falling on it], he is praiseworthy, as he expedites [the interment] out of deference to his father or mother. For all [other] dead, if he desires, he minimizes his business[13] or if he does not desire,

---

(1) Not necessarily the senior person of the family, but the person in charge of the affairs of the household.

(2) And was away for three days. Does he count on his return with the folks at home whose period of mourning commenced as soon as the cortege departed. or does he count from the time of interment?

(3) Cf. I Chron. IV, 3. Or were these Jewish converts of the Beni-Solibi clan of bedouin Arabs, hailing from the neighbourhood of Zulfa in N.E. Arabia? V. Enc. Brit. s.v. Bedouins, III, (11th ed.) p. 623h. [Obermeyer, p. 298, identifies it with Zalfiun near Sura, the seat of Rab.]

(4) [The cemetery was far removed from the town so as not to offend the susceptibilities of the Persians who disapproved of the burial of the dead; v. Obermeyer, p. 174].

(5) Lit., ‘at his side’.

(6) Lit., ‘bestirred themselves’.

(7) Plur. of trefa, a defect indicating a disease in animals or birds slaughtered for food. Cf. Hul. III, 1ff.

(8) תניא is more correct than תנן Cf. Hul. 50a.

(9) Fit for Jewish consumption, not rejected on account of some organic defect.

(10) So D.S. and many other texts. Cf. Sem. IX.

(11) I.e., hastens the interment.

(12) When delay involves keeping the body till the day after their termination.

(13) I.e., his business affairs (Rashi) before the funeral. Or, according to Han. quoting Palestinian Talmud, he minimizes the expenses of the funeral and lament. Cf. J.M.k. III, 8.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 22b

he does not minimizes it'; but for his father or mother he should minimize [his business].[1] For all [other] dead, if he desires, he bares [his shoulder] and if he does not desire he does not bare it; for his father or mother he must bare [his shoulder].[2] It happened once with a certain 'great man of the generation' whose father had died, that he desired to bare [his shoulder],[3] and [another] 'great man of the generation' that was with him desired to bare his too, and on that account he [the mourner] refrained and did not bare [his shoulder].[4]

Said Abaye, The 'great man of the generation' referred to was Rabbi, and the [other] 'great man of the generation' that was with him was R. Jacob b. Aha [the elder]. Some say that 'the great man of the generation' was R. Jacob b. Alia and the [other] great man of the generation' that was with him was Rabbi. Now it seems correct if Rabbi was the 'great man of the generation' that was with him [with the mourner], we understand why [R. Jacob b. Aha][5] refrained and did not bare [his shoulder and heart];[6] but according to the [other] report that Rabbi [was the mourner] and that R. Jacob b. Aha was the 'great man of the generation' that was with him, why did not he [Rabbi] bare [his shoulder and both hands] as Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel [Rabbi's father] was the Nasi, and everybody should by rights have bared [their shoulders]![7] — This is difficult [to explain].

'For[8] all dead one has his hair trimmed after thirty days; for one's father or mother [one lets his hair grow long][9] until his companions rebuke him. For all dead one enters a house of rejoicing after thirty days; for his father and mother [not] till after twelve months'. Rabbah b. Bar Hanah[10] said:[11] 'And [one may go] to a joyous entertainment of comrades'.[12] An objection was raised: 'And [one may not go to a joyous [feast] as well as to [an entertainment of] rejoicing and to comrades [for] thirty days'![13] — This [divergence] presents difficulty.

Amemar taught [his comments] on that [same] Baraitha thus: Said Rabbah b. Bar Hanali, 'But [to go] to a joyous entertainment of comrades is allowed forthwith'.[14] But then [in another version] it is taught: '[One may go] to a joyous [feast] after thirty [days] and to an entertainment of comrades [after] thirty days'? — This [discrepancy] is not difficult [to explain]; the latter [version] refers to a first[15] [invitation to an] entertainment [of comrades], while the former [version] refers to a return entertainment[16] [of comrades].

'For all[17] [other] dead one makes a rent [in his tunic] of a handbreadth [in depth]; for one's father or mother [he rends his clothes] till he bares his heart [chest].' Said R. Abbahu, What text is there [which teaches this]? Then David took hold on his clothes and rent them,[18] and there is no taking hold [of anything] by less than a hand's breadth.[19]

'For all [other] dead one rends only the uppermost [garment] even though he be wearing [then] ten; but for one's father or mother one rends them all'. And [the rending of] one's undershirt is not indispensable, be it in man or woman; R. Simeon b. Eleazar says. 'A woman rends her undermost garment and turns it [front to] back and then again rends her uppermost garment,[20] For all [other] dead, if one desire he divides the [upper] selvage-border of his [garment],[21] and if he does not desire he does not divide it; for his father or mother he must divide, R. Judah says, Any rending [of a garment] that divides not the selvage-border thereof is mere make-believe. Said R. Abbahu: What is the reason for R. Judah's [statement]? — The text: [And Elisha saw it, and he cried, My father, my father, the chariots of Israel and the horsemen thereof! And he saw him no more] and he took hold of his own clothes and rent them in two pieces.[22] Once it says 'and he rent them' do I not know that he rent them in two? But [the addition of ‘in two’[23] implies] that [at the rent] the garments appeared as if torn into two [separate] pieces.[24]

‘For all [other] dead, one tacks[25] the rent together after seven [days] and [completely] reunites [the edges] after thirty [days]; for one's father or mother one tacks it together after thirty [days], but never reunites [the edges]; a woman tacks it together forthwith, out of the respect due to her. When R. Abin came [from Palestine] he said as citing R. Johanan: ‘For all [other] dead, if one desires, he rends [his garment] with the hand, or if he desires he rends by an instrument; for one's father or mother one rends with the hand’. And R. Hiyya b. Abba said, as citing R. Johanan: ‘For all [other] dead [one rends] inside;[26] for one's father or mother one rends outside’.[27]

R. Hisda observed: And the same rule obtains[28] on the [death of a] Nasi. An objection was raised: ‘[Those other dignitaries][29] were not deemed equal to one's father or mother save in regard to re-uniting [the edges of the rent] alone’. Does not this [inequality] hold also for the Nasi?[30] — No, the Nasi alone [is an exception].[30] The Nesi'ah[31] died. Said R. Hisda to R. Hanan b. Raba:[32] Turn the mortar[33] , upside down, stand on it and show the rending [of garmentsj to all the people!

For a Hakam [sage][34] one bares [the hand and shoulder] on the right; for the Ab Beth din, on the left, and for a Nasi on both sides’.

Our Rabbis taught: When a Hakam dies, his Beth Hamidrash is in vacation; when the Ab Beth din dies all the Colleges in his city are in vacation and [the people of the synagogue][35] enter the synagogue[s] and change their [usual] places: those that [usually] sit in the north sit in the south and those that [usually] sit in the south sit in the north. When a Nasi dies, all the Colleges are in vacation[36] and the people of the synagogue enter the synagogue[37]

---

(1) I.e., even after the burial, during the thirty days of mourning. Han. and Hay Gaon, quoted Otz. Hag. no. 199.

(2) And also bares his heart (chest). Sem. IX.

(3) For a Hakam (doyen), the (shoulder and) right hand are bared; for the president of the Beth din, the (shoulder and) left hand are bared; for the Nasi both (shoulders and) hands are bared. It happened, when R. Eliezer died, that R. Akiba bared ‘both his hands’ (arms) and beat his breast till it was bleeding and he said: my father, my father, the chariots of Israel, and the horsemen thereof. (II Kings, II, 12). Sem. IX. Cf. infra 22b.

(4) Here the series of citations from Sem. IX is interrupted by an observation of historical interest.

(5) D.S. and many other texts.

(6) Out of deference to Rabbi who was the Nasi, and therefore for him it was infra dignitatem. This was no disrespect to R. Jacob's father, as this is provided for in the rules: ‘And if they (one's father or mother) seem not important (enough) for (the baring), he (the son) does lot bare himself even for his father or mother’. Sem. IX. It should be noted that R. Jacob's father was not a qualified Rabbi, and that if ‘Rabbi’ Judah, the Nasi did out of deference to R. Jacob b. Aha bare himself, it would cause adverse comment among those present at the funeral. On R. Jacob b. Aha's status, v. Shab. 31a and A. Hyman, Toledoth s.v. II, 774a.

(7) V. p. 140, n. 8.

(8) The quotation is resumed.

(9) So D.N. and other texts. V. Tosaf. s.v. עד .

(10) Var. lec. Rabbah b. R. Huna.

(11) [In commenting on the rule that one may enter a house of rejoicing after thirty days].

(12) שמחת מריעות . For the expression, cf. Judg. XIV, 10ff, where it is connected with a betrothal or marriage celebration. It is this taken by SBH p. 110. Generally, however, it is taken to denote an ordinary social repast shared with one's intimate friends. The import of Rabbah's observation is rather ambiguous and, accordingly, taken variously: — (a) A comrade's entertainment may not be attended until before the thirty days are over, as there is conviviality, eating and drinking; much less may one go to a joyous celebration, such as a betrothal, or marriage ceremony with music and singing. (b) That a comrade's entertainment which provides enjoyment for one's own boon companions should not be entered upon before thirty days; but at a religious ceremonious celebration, a marriage ceremony, a circumcision etc. one may attend sooner, especially if one does not join in the feasting. V. Tosaf., Asheri par. 41, Nahmanides (Torath ha-Adam) and Ritba.

(13) [This proves that the two phrases are not identical].

(14) At the termination of the seven days.

(15) There are various readings: D.S. reads — ארשיותא ; SBH: ארישותא — from רשא , ‘to begin with’. Cf Ber. 46a and Ritba:  — a ‘voluntary’ entertainment, which can be fixed for a later date.

(16) I.e., when it is his turn to entertain or to attend and he cannot defer it or absent himself and therefore may hold his entertainment forthwith. So Han.

(17) The quotation is resumed. V. supra p. 141, n. 8.

(18) II Sam. I, 11.

(19) Cf. Suk. 32fr,and Nid. 26a.

(20) Thus avoiding exposure of her chest.

(21) About the neck and shoulders.

(22) II Kings, 11, 12.

(23) Lit., ‘And he rent them in two rent pieces’.

(24) So infra 26a (for parents or one's teachers). V. D.S. p. 76 n. 7.

(25) Roughly, large basting stitches.

(26) Privately, aside, turned away from the bystanders (Rashi); or, rending an interior garment (Giat). V. Ritba.

(27) Coram populo, demonstratively displaying his grief before all present.

(28) As in the case of a parent, to rend publicly.

(29) One's master, the Nasi, and the president of the Beth din. Cf. infra 26a (top).

(30) In regard to rending the garment publicly.

(31) The descendant-successors of R. Judah Ha-nasi were denominated Nesi'ah (Aramaic form of ha-Nasi).

(32) Var. lec. R. Nahman b. Ammi.

(33) The mortar was a large crib or trough (for pounding olives for the press or soaking barley for brewing beer) cf. A.Z. 8b and Keth. 8a.

(34) The official title of the consultative expert of a constituted Beth din, next in rank to the Ab Beth din, Vice President of the Court and the Nasi. V. Hor., Sonc. ed. p. 101, nn. 6 and 8.

(35) So Han; Asheri etc. read: and the people of his town.

(36) Cf. Keth. 103a-b.

(37) On the Sabbath day.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 23a

and seven persons read [the weekly portions of the Torah][1] and thereafter they come away. R. Joshua b. Korhah says, Not that they go and walk about in the street but they sit [at home] in silence.[2] Neither a halachic theme[3] nor an aggadah should be discussed in the house of mourning. It was related of R. Hananiah b. Gamaliel that he used to speak on halachic and aggadic themes in the house of mourning.

Our Rabbis taught: during the first week a mourner does not go out of the door of his house; the second week he goes out but does not sit in his [usual] place [in the synagogue];[4] the third week he sits in his [usual] place but does not speak; the fourth week he is like any other person. Says R. Judah: There was no need to say ‘In the first week he does not go out of the door of his house’, as then everybody comes into his house to comfort him; [what it should] rather [say is that] the second [week] he does not go out of the door of his house; the third [week] he goes out but does not sit in his [usual] place [in the synagogue]; the fourth [week] he sits in his place but does not speak; in the fifth [week] he is like any other person. Our Rabbis taught: For [the whole] thirty days [the mourner is debarred from] taking a wife. If his wife died, he is forbidden to take another until three Festivals have gone by. R. Judah says. [Until] the first festival and the second he is forbidden [to marry]; before the third he is allowed. If he have no children he may take a wife forthwith,[5] lest [otherwise][6] he may fail in [the duty of] procreation.[7] If she left him little children, he is allowed to take a wife forthwith to take care of them. It happened that the wife of Joseph the Priest died and he said on the burial ground to her sister: Go and take care of your sister's children: nevertheless he did not go in to her [as husband] till a long time after. What is [meant by] a ‘long time’? — R. Papa said, Alter thirty days.

Our Rabbis taught: [During the whole] thirty days [the mourner is debarred from donning] pressed[8] clothes: it makes no difference whether they be old or new clothes coming out of the press.[9] Rabbi says, They only forbade new clothes; R. Eleazar son of R. Simeon says, They only forbade new white linen clothes.

Abaye went out[10] in a worn sarbal,[11] in accordance with Rabbi.[12] Raba went out[13] in a new Roman re tunic,[14] in accordance with R. Eleazar son of R. Simeon.[15]

BECAUSE THEY [THE SAGES] SAID[16] THAT THE SABBATH ENTERS [INTO COUNT] BUT DOES NOT INTERRUPT; [WHIle FESTIVALS INTERRUPT, AND DO NOT ENTER INTO COUNT]. The Judeans and the Galileans [differed in regard to this Mishnah], the one party saying

---

(1) But pray individually, not as a congregational service. So Rashi. This however is contradicted by a responsum of Natronai Otz. Hag. (Lewin) n. 91.

(2) Han. Alfasi, MS.M. etc. read: ‘sit in anguish’. Sem. X (end) enlarges: They sit or stand saddened and are like people who have Parnes (leader). When the time of rising arrives they minimize their affairs and rise’.

(3) שמועה — a novel exposition of the legal import of a Mishnah, Baraitha ‘heard’ from some prominent teacher. Aggadah, is a homiletical exposition of ethical import.

(4) Sem. X.

(5) If the date of nuptials had been fixed before the bereavement took place.

(6) Delay might lead to a cancellation of the match and loss of his only opportunity for a suitable spouse.

(7) V. Gen. I, 27-28; II, 24.

(8) I.e., ironed, or pressed smooth out of their creases. S. Krauss, TA I, 156, 581 translates, ‘bleaching’;

(9) After bleaching, the clothes were put in a press; v. Krauss, loc. cit.

(10) During the thirty days of mourning.

(11) גרדא דסרבלא: In Syrian grida means a worn garment, or piece of cloth. Is גרדא perhaps the Aramaic equivalent of the Greek  or ? which means a shabby, rough cloak or cape. Sarbal means a mantle (and sometimes, Persian trousers). V. Kohut Ar. Compl. s.v. סרבל . Jast. renders, in a fresh scraped and smoothed cloak.

(12) [Who permitted freshly pressed or bleached clothes provided they were not new].

(13) During the thirty days of mourning.

(14) Or shirt.

(15) [Who forbade new pressed clothes only if white].

(16) In reference to the efficacy of festivals or the Sabbath to cancel or defer the observances of formal mourning. V. Mishnah, supra 19a.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 23b

that [some] mourning is to be observed[1] on the Sabbath and the others saying that there is no [observance of] mourning on the Sabbath. Those that said that [some] mourning is observed on the Sabbath based themselves on the wording in the Mishnah, [THE SABBATH] ENTERS [INTO COUNT]; the others who said that mourning is not observed on the Sabbath based their view on the wording [AND] DOES NOT INTERRUPT. For, [said they], should you assume that mourning is to be observed on the Sabbath, why need we have [the reservation] AND DOES NOT INTERRUPT? But surely it states [also], [THE SABBATH] ENTERS [INTO COUNT]! — Because he has to teach in the latter part that [FESTIVALS]. . . DO NOT ENTER INTO COUNT, he teaches also [for the sake of symmetry] in the former part [THE SABBATH] ENTERS [INTO COUNT]. And as to the other side who said that [some] mourning is to be observed on the Sabbath, surely it states AND DOES NOT INTERRUPT? — Because he has to state in the latter part that [FESTIVALS] INTERRUPT [the mourning], he teaches also [for the sake of symmetry] in the former part [THE SABBATH. . .] DOES NOT INTERRUPT.

Might not one suggest that their disagreement goes back to the [divergent] views of [older] Tannaim [as set out in the following Baraitha]? For it has been taught: ‘One who has his dead laid out before him eats [his meals] in another house [room]; if he have not another house [room], he eats in his friend's house; if he have not a friend's house [available], he makes him a partition [ten handbreadths high];[2] if he have not the wherewithal to make a partition, he turns away his face as he takes his meals. And he does not recline[3] as he eats [nor does he eat his fill][4] — he eats not meat nor drinks wine, nor does he say the grace. nor does he invite others [partaking in the meal to join in grace with him][5] nor do others invite him;[6] and he is exempt from a recital of Shema’,[7] from Saying the Tefillah[8] or donning phylacteries, and [exempt] from the performance of any religious duties that are commanded in the Torah. [When do these said restrictions obtain? On weekdays];[9] but on Sabbath[10] he takes meals reclining, eats meat and drinks wine, recites grace, invites others [to join him] and others invite him and it is incumbent on him to recite the Shema’ and to say the Tefillah[11] and to perform all the religious duties commanded in the Torah. Rabban Gamaliel[12] says,[13] Since he re-enters into these several obligations [here mentioned] he enters into the obligation of all [religious duties].’ [And commenting on this] R. Johanan said that the actual difference between them is the question of ‘using the [marital] couch’.[14] Now, is not this the issue between them: One Master[15] takes the view that [some] mourning is to be observed on Sabbath and the other Master[16] that there is to be no mourning on Sabbath? Why [do you think so]? Perhaps there[17] the first Tanna might not have gone so far as to forbid,[18] save only because his dead is still laid out in front of him; but here,[19] he might not [forbid].[20] Again, Rabban Gamaliel there[21] would not have gone so far as to allow,[20] save only because there[21] the incidence of mourning has not yet occurred;[22] whereas here,[19] where the incidence of mourning has already occurred, he might also [forbid].[20]

---

(1) privately, at home, e.g., covering the head, sleeping on an overturned couch, not occupying the marital couch, not greeting with ‘peace’. ‘In Judea they greeted mourners with "peace" on entering and leaving his house, to show that mourning did not obtain on Sabbath’. Sem. X (end.).

(2) This is a gloss — not found in the parallel texts — on the technical height of a partition. Cf. Shab. 6a — and Tosa, Suk. 5b s. v. עשרה .

(3) On a couch or seated round the table with others; that is, he does not have his meals in style.

(4) Sem. adds: ‘Nor does he eat all he requires’ — i.e., his fill.

(5) Three or more eating together should join as a group in saying grace. Cf. Ber. 45a.

(6) [Rashi Ber. 17b explains differently: He recites no benediction before meals, nor does he say grace after meals. Nor do others recite the benediction before meals on his behalf, nor does he join in the grace after meals.]

(7) ‘Hear, O Israel. . ., Dent. VI, 4ff Cf. P.B. pp. 30ff

(8) The ‘Amidah, or the ‘Eighteen Benedictions (19) Prayer’ for weekdays. V. P.B. p. 44ff.

(9) So Sem. X.

(10) Sem. ibid. adds, he eats according to his requirements.

(11) The ‘Amidah or Seven Benedictions for the Sabbath. MS. M. omits ‘phylacteries’, as these are never donned on Sabbath.

(12) So also Sem. and other texts. In Ber. 17b Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel.

(13) Sem. inserts: A mourner on Sabbath is as if he were no mourner.

(14) I.e., marital intercourse during the Sabbath, which is otherwise forbidden during the week of mourning. Rabban Gamaliel's statement implies that he is permitted to use the marital couch on the Sabbath of the week of mourning. Conjugal rights are among the Scriptural obligations of a husband to his wife. Ex. XXI, 10 and cf. Keth. 61a.

(15) The first Tanna in the cited Baraitha.

(16) R. Gamaliel.

(17) In the Baraitha which deals with the case before burial.

(18) The conjugal couch on the Sabbath.

(19) In the Mishnah which deals with mourning after the burial.
(20) The conjugal couch on the Sabbath.
(21) In the Baraitha which deals with the case before burial.
(22) The observance of formal mourning does not begin till after the funeral.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 24a

Mar Yohani[1] enquired of Samuel, Was there [some] mourning [to be observed] on Sabbath or was there no mourning on the Sabbath? — He replied, There is no mourning [to be observed] on the Sabbath.

Some Rabbis sitting in the presence of R. Papa reported in the name of Samuel that a mourner who used the conjugal couch during the [seven] days of his mourning is guilty of a mortal offence. Said R. Papa to them, What was reported was that it is ‘forbidden’, not ‘a mortal offence’, and in the name of R. Johanan it was reported [and not in the name of Samuel]; and if you heard aught [condemned] in the name of Samuel [as a mortal offence] it was this: ‘Said R. Tahlifa b. Abimi, as reporting Samuel, A mourner who did not let his hair grow long and did not rend his clothes is guilty of a mortal offence. For it was said [to Aaron and his surviving sons]:[2] Let not the hair of your heads go loose neither rend your clothes, that ye die not. . . ,[3] which [clearly] implies that any [other] mourner if he has not let the hair [of his head] go loose and has not rent his clothes, is guilty of a mortal offence’.

Rafram[4] , b. Papa said, It is taught in the Ebel Rabbathi:[5] ‘A mourner is forbidden to use the [conjugal] couch during his [seven] days of mourning’; and it happened [once] with one who used his [conjugal] couch during the [seven] days of his mourning that swine hauled away his carcass.[6]

Samuel said, Pahaz,[7] are obligatory; Natar,[7] are optional [on the Sabbath] i.e., the unveiling of the head,[8] turning the rent side [of his garment] from front to back and tilting up the couch [into its normal position] are obligatory [on the mourner, in honour of the Sabbath]; donning sandals, the use of the conjugal bed and washing his hands and feet with warm water at [the approach of the] Sabbath even are optional.[9] But Rab says, The unveiling of his head is also optional. Now, what is the difference n the case of the donning of sandals [on the Sabbath] that Samuel treats it as optional? [presumably] because not everyone usually wears shoes;[10] is it not so likewise with the unveiling of the head, as not everybody generally goes about with head unveiled? — Samuel is consistent in this, as Samuel said, ‘Any rending [of clothes] not done in the flush [of grief][11] is not a [proper] rending, and any muffling [of the face] not alter the manner of the Ishmaelites,[12] is not a proper muffling [for a mourner]’. R. Nahman demonstrated it [by covering himself up in his mantle] right up to the sides of the beard.[13]

Said R. Jacob, as reporting R. Johanan: This statement was made [above][14] only in reference to one who has no shoes on his feet, but if he has shoes on his feet [on the Sabbath] his shoes give evidence about him.[15]

‘Any rending [of clothes] not done in the flush [of grief] is not a [proper] rending’. But yet [when] they said to Samuel, ‘Rab's soul has gone to rest’, he rent on account of him thirteen garments [and] said: ‘Gone is the man before whom I trembled’![16] When they told R. Johanan. ‘The soul of R. Hanina has gone to rest’, he rent on account of him thirteen robes[17] of Milesian wool and said: ‘Gone is the man before whom I trembled’![18] — Rabbis are in a different category, since their discussions are always recalled it is [for us] like ‘the first flush [of grief]’.[19]

Said Rabin b. Adda to Raba: Your disciple R. Amram said that it was taught, ‘A mourner [hearing of a fresh bereavement] at any time during the seven [days] rends his [clothes] in the forepart thereof, and if he has [occasion] to change [the garment]. he changes and rends afresh; on the Sabbath he rends [on hearing the news] in the hinder part [of the garment]. and if he has [occasion] to change it, he changes but tears not [afresh]'?[20] — That was taught only where [it was] in honour of one's father or mother, [but not for other near of kin].

Are such rents [to be] sewed up[21] or are they not [to be] sewed up? — On that, [Nahmani][22] father of R. Oshaia and Bar Kappara held different views, one saying that the rents are [to be] sewed up and the other saying that they are not [to be] sewed up. May it be inferred that it was the father of R. Oshaia that said that these were not [to be] sewed up, as R. Oshaia said that they were not [to be] sewed up; from whom had he heard this if not from his father? — Not [necessarily]: he [R. Oshaia] heard it from his master, [who was] Bar Kappara.

Raba said, A mourner may walk about in his [rent] wrap[23] indoors [on the Sabbath]. Abaye found R. Joseph going in and out of his house, his head covered with a sudarium[24] [on the Sabbath]. Said he to him:[25] Do you not, sir, hold the view that there is to be no [observance of] mourning on the Sabbath? — He replied: Thus said R. Johanan: 'Intimate [forms of] mourning may be maintained [on the Sabbath]'.

R. ELIEZER SAYS, SINCE THE SANCTUARY [AT JERUSALEM] WAS LAID IN RUINS [THE FEAST OF] 'AZERETH[26] [IS CONSIDERED] AS AN [ORDINARY] SABBATH, etc. Said R. Giddal b. Menashia as citing Samuel, The halachah follows the opinion of Rabban Gamaliel. And some attach this comment of R. Giddal b. Menashia to [the following Baraitha]: 'Any infant up to thirty days old is carried out in arms[27] and buried by one woman and two men, but not by one man and two women.[28]

---

(1) According to older editions and MS.M. V. D.S. p. 78. n. מ R. Johanan in our text is corrupt. V. Tosaf. s.v. בעא . V. also Hyman, 'Toledoth, 653a who cites A.Z. 16b.

(2) When Nadab and Abihu died on the day of their induction.

(3) Lev. X, 6.

(4) An abbreviated form of R. Ephraim.

(5) אבל רבתי Major (tractate) on Mourning mentioned again infra 26b, identified with Sem. Reference is also made to a 'Minor Tractate on Mourning' — אבל זוטרתי by Salomo beli Hajathom (SBH) in his Commentary on M.K. (ed. H. P. Chajes, 1909, p. 125) who saw both at Rome. V. Strack's Einleitung in Talmud und Midrash (5th ed., 1921, p. 73, c).

(6) A liter: his membrum virile, as per talionem.

(7) Abbreviation used as a word of the rules that follow. P = Pri'ath ha-Rosh (unveiling of the head); H = Hazarath Keran' (turning of rent). Z = Zekifath ha-mittah (tilting up the couch); N = Ne'ilath Ha-sandal (donning sandals); T = Tashmish ha-mittah (Use of conjugal bed); R = Rehizath yadaim etc. (washing hands etc.).

(8) Ct infra n. 5.

(9) Opinion differed considerably on this also in Palestine. V. J.M.K. III, 5. Cf. n. 7 infra.

(10) On the Sabbath, and therefore the variation in honour of the Sabbath is not so marked after all.

(11) At the moment of death, or on first hearing the sad news.

(12) Samuel is speaking of the customs in Babylon where many Arabs had come to settle in constant streams from Arabia.

(13) That is, drawing the mantle together so as to enfold the forehead above and the chin and mouth below, leaving only nose and eyes exposed, as a mourner is to keep silence.

(14) In regard to the differences between Rab and Samuel about uncovering the head.

(15) That he is not observing mourning on the Sabbath.

(16) On account of his great learning.

(17) Stolae.

(18) On account of his great learning.

(19) I.e., each time when their discussions are recalled.

(20) Which shows that rending is not limited to the first flush of grief.
(21) Lit., ‘re-united’, properly mended.
(22) V. Hyman Toledoth I, 116a.
(23) Heb. אונקלי , probably the Latin amiculum, an upper cloak. Cf. Becker's Gallus (E.T. ed. 4) Exctirsus II on dress, p. 436ff.
(24) A square piece of cloth worn as a kerchief.
(25) Abaye was a disciple of R. Joseph.
(26) The Feast of Weeks. V. Mishnah and notes supra 19a.
(27) Lit., ‘bosom’.
(28) For reasons of propriety. Cf. Kid. 80b.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 24b

Abba Saul says, Even by one man with two women. And they [the people] do not stand in line[1] on the [immature] infant's account, nor do they [need] to recite the [usual] mourners’ benediction,[2] nor tender the [usual] condolence to the mourners. An infant thirty days old is taken forth [to burial] in a case.[3] R. Judah says: Not a case that is borne on the shoulder, but one that is borne in the arms; and the people stand in line[1] on its account, and recite the [additional] mourners’ benediction[2] and tender the [usual] condolence to the mourners. One twelve months old is taken forth [to burial] on a bier; R. Akiba says, If the infant is twelve months old and its limbs are like those of one two years old, or two years old and its limbs are like those of one twelve months old, it is carried out on a bier. R. Simeon b. Eleazar says, For any one that is taken out on a bier the public [should] show their distress;[4] for any one that is not taken out on a bier the public do not [need] to show their distress. R. Eleazar says, If he is known to the public at large, the public should participate in the proceedings; if he be not known to many [of the public] they do not [need] to participate. And what is the rule in respect of making lamentation for them? R. Meir in the name of R. Ishmael says: In the case of the poor lamentation is made for a child of three and in the case of the rich for a child of five.[5] R. Judah speaking in his [R. Ishmael's.] name says: With the poor [they make a lament] for children of five; with the rich for children of six. And [as for] the children of ‘elders’, they are [treated] in the same way as the children of the poor.[6] Said R. Giddal b. Menashia, as citing Rab,[7] The halachah is as stated by R. Judah in the name of R. Ishmael.

R. ‘Anani b. Sason[8] gave a discourse at the door of the Prince[9] [and said]: ‘One day [of mourning] before ‘Azereth[10] [the Feast of Weeks] with [one day of] ‘Azereth count as fourteen days [out of the thirty].’ R. Ammi heard of this and was indignant saying. Is that his own view? It is what R. Eleazar [b. Pedath] said as citing R. Oshaia! R. Isaac the smith gave a discourse at the marquee[11] of the Exilarch [and said]: ‘One day [of mourning] before ‘Azereth with the [one day of] ‘Azereth, count as fourteen days [out of the thirty]’. R. Shesheth heard of this and was indignant, saying, Is that his own view? It is what R. Eleazar said, as citing R. Oshaia! For R. Eleazar, citing R. Oshaia, said: Whence is derived the ruling that ‘Azereth [the Feast of Weeks] is allowed a supplementary extension to full seven days?[12] From what is said: Three times in a year shall all thy males appear before the Lord thy God in the place He shall choose: on the Feast of Unleavened Bread and on the Feast of Weeks and on the Feast of Tabernacles; and they shall not appear before the Lord thy God empty.[13] Just as the Feast of Un leavened Bread has a supplementary [period] to full seven days [for the celebration offerings],[14] the Feast of Weeks[15] has likewise a supplementary extension [for festive offerings] of full seven days.[16] R. Papa invited[17] the elder R. Awia [to act as expositor] and he expounded [the theme]: ‘One day [of mourning] before New Year and New Year's Day [together] account for fourteen [out of the thirty days]’. Said Rabina, According to this, then, one day [of mourning] before ‘the Feast’ [of Tabernacles] together with the [seven days of the] festival and ‘the Eighth Day’ [of ‘Solemn Assembly’] account [together] for twenty-one [out of the thirty days of mourning]. Rabina turned up at Sura-on the Euphrates[18] when R. Habiba of Sura-on-the Euphrates put the question to him: Did you, sir, say that one day[19] before New Year and New Year's Day [together] account for fourteen [out of the thirty days]? — He replied, I did say that, arguing on [the basis of] Rabban Gamaliel's view.[20]

MISHNAH. NONE REND [THEIR CLOTHES] NOR BARE [THEIR SHOULDER], NOR PROVIDE A REPAST [FOR THE MOURNERS][21] SAVE THOSE [WHO ARE] NEAR OF KIN TO THE DEAD; NOR DO THEY PROVIDE A REPAST SAVE [SEATED] ON AN UPRIGHT COUCH.[22]

---

(1) To offer condolence to the mourners.

(2) V. Keth. 8b, foot-note.

(3) דלוסקמא (a Doric form of) **.

(4) מעציבין (פנים) מצהיבין (פנים) Cf. e.g., Gen, VI, 6; Neh. VIII, 9-10.

(5) [The grief of the poor at the loss of a child is greater than among the rich, since a child is the poor's only joy (Rashi)].

(6) For variations on the passage v. Sem. III, 2-4.

(7) Han. has, ‘As citing Samuel’.

(8) Identical with עניאל בר ששון and חנינא בר סיסי V. Zuri's שלטון הנשיאות (London, 1934) Voi I, book 3, sec. 2, pp. 36 and 142.

(9) Judah II.

(10) Pentecost, a one-day feast.

(11) Or castle.

(12) For making the prescribed ‘festive’ offering at the Temple. If one had been unable to make it on the festival itself, it may be done up to the seventh day after.

(13) Deut. XVI, 16.

(14) Cf. Hag. 9a.

(15) I.e., Azereth, though essentially a Feast of but one day.

(16) The same argument applies to the analogy with the Feast of Tabernacles which has a range of eight days; but this argument is logically questioned, as thereby the one-day Feast of Weeks would be entitled to a day more than the seven-day Feast of Mazzoth; besides, it is shown that the eighth day of Tabernacles is, by virtue of its special sacrificial tariff a distinct Feast by itself. Cf. Hag. 17a and note discussion that follows.

(17) אדבריה Lit., ‘took him along, brought or led him forward’. R. Papa, as Principal, invited him to act as Amora or Turgeman of the occasion (cf. supra p. 133, n. 10). probably on one of the two or four Sabbaths preceding a festival — שבתא דריגלא — when the theme was seasonal. Cf. Pes. 6a-b and more fully in Tosef. Meg. IV, 5: ‘And they enquire about the laws of Passover at Passover; the laws of Azereth at ‘Azereth; the laws of the Feast (of Tabernacles) at "the Feast" in the House of the Assembly (בבית הועד). And they enquire about the laws of Passover thirty days preceding the Festival’. And on the expression אדבריה v. Bez. 29a (Sonc. ed., p. III, n. 3).

(18) Cf. supra 20a, p. 127.

(19) ‘Even one hour's mourning before the festival’.

(20) V. Mishnah supra 19a.

(21) After the interment at the house of the mourners, and sometimes in the special forum on the burial ground, where the lament was held. Cf. supra 5b and the formal tendering of comfort with the first repast which followed. Cf. infra 27a. Shab. 105a (Rashi), and Keth. 8b.

(22) I.e., a couch in its normal position. J.M.K. and other texts read, ‘upright couches’, i.e., couches for both the comforters and the mourners. ‘Such was the custom; when they provided the mourners’ fare and wished to take the meal, they set up the couches erect, and after the comforters left (the house) they overturned (upset) them (again)’. V. B.M. Lewin, Otz. Ha;. IV, n. 132.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 25a

GEMARA. [NONE REND etc.] even though [the dead be] a recognized scholar.[1] But then, it is taught [otherwise]: If a scholar dies, all are his near of kin?[2] ‘All are his near of kin’, say you? — Rather All are like his near of kin. — All rend their clothes on his account and all bare [their shoulders] on his account and all provide a repast for those that mourn on his account in the broad space?[3] — It[4] is a necessary ruling where the deceased was not a scholar. But then if the deceased was a worthy person, one is [still] in duty bound to rend his clothes, as it is taught: ‘Wherefore do a person's sons and daughters die in infancy? That one should weep and mourn for a worthy person.’ — [You say]. ‘That one should weep and mourn [for a worthy person]’![5] What, levy a distress on one [in advance]?[6] — Say rather, ‘Because one has not wept and mourned for a worthy person’. — ‘For[7] whoever weeps and mourns for a worthy person, all his sins are forgiven him, on account of the honour he rendered to him [the deceased]’? — It is necessary[8] where the deceased is not a [particularly] worthy person. But yet if one stands here, at the time of a person breathing his last, one is [also] in duty bound [to rend his clothes]. as it is taught: R. Simeon b. Eleazar says, One who stands near the dying, at the time when he breathes his last, he is in duty bound to rend [his clothes]: To what is this like? To a scroll of the Law that is burnt,[9] when one is in duty bound to rend [his clothes]. — It is a necessary[10] ruling where one was not standing there at the time when the dying breathed his last.

When the soul of R. Safra[11] went into repose, the Rabbis did not rend [their clothes] on account of him,[12] since, they said, We have not learnt from him [directly].[13] Said Abaye, Is it taught: ‘When a Master died’? The teaching is: ‘When a scholar dies [all are his near-of-kin]’. Besides, we repeat daily the halachic interpretations reported [in his name] at the College! The [Rabbis of the College] then took the view that what was done was done.[14] Said Abaye to them, We learned: ‘If a scholar dies, as long as they are engaged in a lament for him they are in duty bound to rend [their clothes]’. They thought then of rending forthwith [their clothes].[15] Said Abaye to them, [No], it is taught: ‘A scholar is honoured at the lament held [on his account].[16]

When the soul of R. Huna[17] came to repose, they thought of Placing a scroll of the law on his bier.[18] Said it. Hisda to them: Should one do for him now something that he did not countenance in his life-time? For R. Tahlifa[19] said: I myself [once] saw R. Huna when he wanted to sit down on his couch, but there was a scroll of the law lying on it, so he put an inverted jar on the ground and put on it the scroll of the law. Obviously he thought that it was forbidden to sit on a couch when there was a scroll of the law lying thereon. Then the bier could not be got through the doorway[20] and they thought of letting it down from the roof. Said R. Hisda, I have learnt this from himself: ‘The honour of a scholar requires that his bier should pass through the door’. They then thought of transferring him from this bed to another, but said R. Hisda to them, l have learnt thus from himself: ‘The honour of a scholar requires that he should be taken out on the first bier’. For Rab Judah, as citing Rab, said, Whence is derived the lesson that the honour of a scholar requires that he should be borne on his first bier? From what is said: And they set the ark of God on a new cart[21] and brought it out of the house of Abinadab that was on the hill.[22] They then readied the gateway and brought it out.

R. Abba then opened [his funerary address]: ‘Our Master [said he] was worthy that the Shechinah[23] should abide with him, but [the fact of his being in] Babylon prevented it’.[24]

Thereupon R. Nahman, son of R. Hisda — some say it was R. Hanan, son of R. Hisda — referred to [the text]: The word of the Lord came expressly unto Ezekiel the priest, the son of Buzi in the land of the Chaldeans by the river Chebar.[25] His father tapped him with his sandal, saying to him: Have I not told you not to worry everybody [with this point]? What is meant by the [double expression] ‘Hayoh [hayah]’?[26] That it had been [had come] before [he came to Babylon].

When they brought him up thither [to Palestine, for burial] people told R. Ammi and R. Assi[27] that R. Huna had come. They said: ‘When we were there [in Babylon] we had not [a chance] of raising our heads because of him;[28] now that we have come here he is come after us’.[29] They then were told that it was his coffin that had arrived. R. Assi and R. Assi went out [to meet him]; R. Ela[30] and R. Hanina did not go out. Some say, R. Ela went out, R. Hanina did not go out. What was the reason of the one who went out? According to what is taught [in the following]: ‘If a coffin is passing [on its way] from place to place they stand in a row[31] on account of the deceased, and say the mourners' benediction on account of him and also offer condolence to the mourners'. What was the reason of the one who did not go out? — According to what is taught [in the following]: 'If a coffin is passing [on its way] from place to place, they do not stand in a row on account of it, nor say on his account the mourners' benediction, nor [offer] condolence to the mourners'. These citations contradict one another! — This is not difficult [to explain]; the former [ruling obtains] where the body is intact; the latter where the body is not intact, and R. Huna's body was intact. Why did one not go out [to meet it]? Because he had not been fully informed of this. Then they said, Where shall we lay him to rest? [Said some, Let us lay him at the side of R. Hiyya];[32] for R. Huna disseminated Torah in Israel[33] and R. Hiyya had likewise disseminated Torah[34] in Israel. Who will bring him into [the cave of] R. Hiyya? — Said R. Hagga 'I shall bring him in, because I sustained [revised] my studies [before him][35] when I was but eighteen years of age, never having experienced the effects of an unchaste dream[36] and he made me his attendant[37] and therefore I know of his [pious] deeds. For one day the strap of his phylacteries was [accidentally] reversed,[38] whereupon he sat fasting forty days'. He then brought him in [to the cave].[39] Judah was laid there at the right of his father [R. Hiyya] and on his left was his [twin brother][40] Hezekiah. Said Judah to Hezekiah: 'Rise from your place, for it is not good manners that R. Huna be left standing'. As he [Hezekiah] rose a column of fire rose with him[41]. R. Hagga, seeing that, was overcome with fear, set up the coffins and came away. And the reason that he came to no harm[42] [from the pillar of fire] was because he set up the coffin of R. Huna.[43]

When the soul of R. Hisda went to its rest they [the Collegiates] thought of placing a scroll of the law on his bier. Said R. Isaac to them: What he had disapproved of being done for his master, shall we now do to himself? They then thought that they should not stitch the rent in their garments, when R. Isaac b. Ammi said to them, It is taught:[44] In the case of a Scholar, [who died] as soon as they have turned away their faces, at the rear of the bier, they [may] stitch together [the rent]'.

When the soul of Rabbah[45] son of R. Huna went to its rest and [that of] R. Hamnuna, they took them [both] up thither.[46]

---

(1) חכם an ordained Rabbi.

(2) The citation is here interrupted by a question and continues after the explanation.

(3) V. p. 153. n. 8.

(4) I.e., the ruling in our Mishnah, here.

(5) Again the citation is interrupted.

(6) I.e., give one cause to weep in anticipation that some worthy person shall die and not be fittingly mourned by the punished person. Cf. Rashi, Shab. 105b.

(7) Here the citation is resumed.

(8) I.e., the ruling in our Mishnah. So MS.M. and Shab. 105b. I.e., there is no contradiction between this citation and the ruling in our Mishnah.

(9) Cf. infra 26a and Rashi Shab. 105b. The divine Law is the inner Light that guides and at death it is as if the candle has been taken out of the lantern. Cf. Prov. VI, 33; XX, 27; and Sot. 21a.

(10) V. p. 154. n. 9.

(11) A great scholar, saint and merchant who used to go to and fro between Babylon and Palestine. Cf. supra 12a; Mak. 24a.

(12) At the news of his death.

(13) I.e., we are not really of his disciples.

(14) And nothing more is to be done.

(15) Without waiting for the holding of a lament for him.

(16) And it is on that occasion that the rending is proper to take place.

(17) Rab's great disciple and his successor in 247 as Principal of Sura. He died in 297, C.E.

(18) 'They laid a scroll of the law on his (King Hezekiah's) bier and said: This one maintained what is written in this (scroll)".' B.K. 17b.

(19) Cf. Me. 32b, where as here MS.M., SBH and other texts read R. Helbo who often cites R. Huna's dicta.
(20) Lit., ‘the gateway’.
(21) The same that had been provided originally by the Philistines. I Sam. VI, 7ff. Cf. Elijahu Rabbah (ed. Friedmann) XXIX (XXXI) p. 157: ‘All Israel were gathered and David with them, to bring up the ark. And the halachah had been forgotten by them; said (Ahitophel) and all, The ark came from the field of the Philistines in the cart, likewise in the cart let it come (back) to the house of David’.
(22) II Sam. VI, 3.
(23) The ‘Divine Presence’.
(24) Caused it to (be otherwise for) him.
(25) Ezek. I, 3. On this point cf. Mekilta Bo, Proemium s.v. (Ed. Friedmann 1b n. 21).
(26) Taken as pluperfect.
(27) Two Babylonians who had become leading scholars in Palestine. Cf. Keth. 17b.
(28) Being aware of his superiority and seniority. Cf. Meg. 22a(bottom).
(29) They thought we were still alive.
(30) Also a Babylonian who became very famous in Palestine. Cf. supra 3a.
(31) To condole with the mourners.
(32) So MS.M.
(33) Cf. Keth. 106a.
(34) Cf. B.M. 85b. He was accounted as a second Ezra or Hillel; Suk. 20a.
(35) For the expression cf. אוקימתון מסכת פלן Hor. 10b (Sonc. ed. p, 72.) It was customary for students to revise their studies by reciting alone before their master, periodically. Cf. Ber. 11a (R. Hiyya b. Ashi I before Rab). 38b (R. Hiyya b. Abba before R. Johanan), Hul. 86b and Ker. 27a. R. Ash did so every thirty days. (M.K. 28a). Resh Lakish did every forty days. Ta'an. 8a.
(36) A night pollution, cf. Ber. 10b about Elisha as a holy man.
(37) Cf. A.Z. 37a (of R. Simlai) and 58a (of R. Elyakim). Then he (Elisha) arose and went after Elijah and ministered unto him (I Kings XIX, 21). It is not said ‘and he (Elijah) taught him’, but ‘and he (Elisha) ministered unto him’; hence they said: Greater is (practical) ministration in (connection with) Torah than the teaching (or study) thereof. Elijahu Rabbah, V (ed. Friedmann, p. 23).
(38) Cf. Men. 3a-b.
(39) Cf. B.M. 85b. Like a second Ezra or Hillel. Suk. 20a. The family cave of R. Hiyya was probably at Tiberias.
(40) Yeb. 65b.
(41) Tilted it hastily in front of the fiery column. (Rashi); or set the coffin in its place (on stones or trestles).
(42) V. J. Kii. IX, 4, where it is stated that R. Hagga was then eighty years old and his years were doubled.
(43) This R. Huna II was one of the Exilarch's family. Moreover, Rab, Hiyya's nephew, had one of his daughters married into the Exilarch's family (Hul. 92a). Furthermore, the Exilarchs of Babylon were senior and held as superior both in civil authority and descent to the Nasi in Palestine, and admitted by Rabbi himself (J. Keth. XII, 3) by R. Hiyya (and his sons). Hor. 11b (Sonc. ed. p. 81) and Sanh. 5a (Sonc. ed. p. 15.) Cf. Bacher, J.E. s.v. Exilarch V, 289a.
(44) So MS.M.
(45) Son of the above R. Huna II.
(46) To Palestine for burial.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 25b

As they came to a bridge the camels[1] halted. Said a certain Arab[2] to those [who accompanied the cortege], What is that?[3] — They replied that the [deceased] Rabbis were doing honour to one another: one saying [as it were], ‘You, Sir, proceed first’, and the other saying, ‘You, Sir, proceed first’. Said he, [the Arab]: [In my judgment],[4] it is right that [a notable the son of a notable],[4] Rabbah son of R. Huna, should take precedence. The camel bearing Rabbah son of R. Huna then passed along first. The molars and teeth of that Arab fell out.[5] Then a certain child opened [his funerary oration] thus:

‘A scion of ancient stock from Babylon[6] came

With records of prowess in combat[7] and fame;

Twice numerous pelican and bittern[8] from far

Came for the ravage and ruin[9] in Shinear.[10]

When [God] views His world with displeasure,

He seizes [great] souls in exacting measure,

Awaiting their coming as new brides, with delight

And, riding on Araboth[11] in empyrean height,

He welcomes the souls of the pure and right'.[12] When the soul of Rabina went Into repose, a certain orator opened [his funerary oration] thus:

'Ye Palms, sway your heads [and deplore]

A Saint, a noble Palm[13] that is no more

Who days and nights in meditation spent;

For him, day and night, let us lament.'

Said R. Ashi to Bar-Kipok,[14] What would you say on such a day [about me]? He responded thus:

'If a flame among the Cedars fall

What avails the lichen[15] on the wall?[16]

If Leviathan[17] by hook be hauled to land,

What hope have fishes of a shallow strand?

If fish in rushing stream by hook[18] be caught

What death may in marshy ponds be wrought!'

Said Bar Abin[19] to him: '[God] forfend that I should talk of "hook" or "flame" in connection with the righteous'. Then what would you say? — I should say:

'Weep ye for the mourners

Not for what is lost:

He found him rest;

'Tis we are let distressed'.

R. Ashi was' offended[20] with them,[21] and their feet[22] were turned.[23] On that day [of R. Ashi's demise] they did not come to make a lament for him, and that is what R. Ashi had said: ‘Neither shall Bar-Kipok[24] bare [his shoulder] nor shall Bar-Abin[24] bare[25] [his shoulder, for me]’.

When Raba once came to Dagleth [Tekrit],[26] he said to Barabin,[27] Get up and say something. He rose and said [the following]:[28]

When more than a ‘third’[29] wadeth in water deep Remember the covenant[30] and mercy keep.[31] We strayed from Thee as a wayward wife;[32] Leave us not: as at Marah[33] save our life. R. Honin[34] was a son-in-law in the Nasi's family. He had no children but he prayed for mercy and had [his wish granted]. On the day when the child was [born] unto him he himself went to his repose, and the funeral orator on that occasion opened [his lament] thus:

Joy is turned to sorrow and

Gladness linked with sadness.

When the time of joy[35] came nigh

The father heaved a dying sigh:

At [the birth of] his Gracious-little-son[36]

The Gracious-sire's life was done.

They gave the child the name of Hanan after his father.

When the soul of R. Pedath[37] went into repose, R. Isaac b. Eleazar[38] opened [his address] thus: This day is as hard for Israel as the day when the sun set at noon-tide, as it is written: And it shall come to pass in that day . . . that I will cause the sun to go down at noon and I will darken the earth in the clear day. And I will turn your feasts into mourning and all your songs into lamentation. . . as the mourning of an only so,[39] And, said R. Johanan, that was the day of King Josiah's death.[40]

When the soul of R. Johanan went into repose R. Ami observed [on his account] the seven [days of mourning] and the thirty. Said R. Abba son of R. Hiyya b. Abba: What R. Ammi did, he did but on his own initiative;[41] for thus said R. Hiyya b. Abba, as citing R. Johanan: ‘Even for his master who had taught him Wisdom[42] one sits but one day’. When the soul of R. Zera[43] went into repose the orator of that occasion opened [his address] thus:

‘The land of Shinear[44] was his home of birth

The land of Glory[45] reared her Darling[46] to fame;

"Woe is me!" saith Rakath[47] in lament,

For she hath lost her choicest ornament.’

When the soul of R. Abbahu went into repose the columns at Caesarea ran with tears.[48] At [the death of] R. Jose[49] the roof gutters at Sepphoris ran with blood. At that of R. Jacob [b. Aha],[50] Stars were visible in daytime. At that of R. Assi [all cedars][51] were uprooted; [at the death of R. Samuel b. Isaac][51] all trees were uprooted. At that of R. Hiyya [b. Abba][50] fiery stones came down from the sky; at that of R. Menahem [b. Simai][50] all images were effaced[52] and came to be [used] as stone rollers;[53] at that of Tanhum son of R. Hiyya [of Kefar Acco][51] all human statues were torn out of their position; at that of [R. Isaac, son of R.][51] Eliashib seventy houses were broken into [by theives] at Tiberias;[54] at that of R. Haninuna,[55] hail stones came down from the sky; at that of Rabbah and R. Joseph the rocks of the Euphrates kissed each other;[56] at that of Abaye and Raba the rocks of the Tigris kissed each other. When the soul of R. Mesharsheya went into repose the palms were laden with thorns.[57]

Our Rabbis taught:

---

(1) Which were carrying the coffins.

(2) Tayi'a, the name of an Arab tribe which came to be used for Arabs in general.

(3) What does this strange thing indicate?

(4) The bracketed words which form the reading of MS.M. are here combined with the text of cur. edtl. to bring out the import of the Arab's remarks more fully.

(5) A proverbial expression. He received the meed for his irreverence.

(6) The Babylonian Exilarchs to which Rabbah b. R. Huna belonged traced their descent to Jehoiachim, King of Judah. V. JEV, 288ff.

(7) Referring to his prowess and triumphs at the Collegiates’ discussions.

(8) An echo of Isa. XXXIV, 11; Zeph. II, 14.

(9) Cf. Isa. LI, 19 and Jer. XLVIII, 3.

(10) I.e., Babylon. Cf. Gen. XIV, 1.

(11) Ps. LXVIII, 5 is taken as ‘High-Heavens’; cf. v. 34 and Deut. XXXIII. Hoffin. Mid. Tann. ad loc. p. 221 and Hag. 12b.

(12) With this thought, cf. Midr. Tehil. on Ps. CXVI, 15: Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints, a parable of a king who sent an eparchos (prefect) to a place which he directed well. Having completed his term, the king gave him another eparchia (province). In the place which he was leaving they praised him that he had directed them well, and in the place that he was entering they (also) praised him, that he was going to rule them well. Likewise, when the Holy One, blessed be He, sent a righteous man into the world to direct the age and he directed it well, on his departure from the world, people are distressed about him (leaving): for so long as the righteous man is among them he prevents tribulation from coming into the world while the Ministering Angels rejoice about his coming to abide among them. (Edition Buber, p. 478)

(13) Cf. Ps. XCII, 13.

(14) A noted orator.

(15) The hyssop is frequently associated with the cedar, the high and low in contrast. Cf. Lev. XIV, 51, 52 and I Kings V, 13. Cf. ‘And he (Solomon) spake of trees, from the cedar that is in Lebanon even unto the hyssop that springeth out of the wall’.

(16) V. Elijahu Rabbah (ed. Fried.) XIV (XIII) p. 65.

(17) The monster fish. ‘Canst thou draw out Leviathan with a fish hook, or press down his tongue with a cord?’ Job XL, 25. Cf. Isa. XXVII, 1; Ps. CIV, 25-26.

(18) נפלה הכה Var. lec. (v. D.S. p. 86) נפלה הרבה: ‘If rushing stream run dry What water may marshy ponds supply?’ — Cf. Jer. XIV, 3: Ezek. XLVII, 11.

(19) A noted orator.

(20) Lit., ‘his mind weakened’, felt discouraged, disappointed.

(21) At their ill-chosen metaphors, such as a flame among the cedars (cf. Judg. IX, 15); hooking the Leviathan (cf. n. 5), or marshy shallows, or ‘what is lost’, implying as it were that all his life's best work, the encouragement of scholarship and the careful redaction of the Talmud, are of no lasting value.

(22) Lit., ‘knees’.

(23) I.e., they turned about and fled in confusion, ashamed of their indiscreet and almost impudent poetic effusion. For the idiomatic use of this expression, cf. R. Johanan's similar utterance in a sharp disputation with Resh Lakish who was his junior: ‘We cut off the legs of the youngster’. Me'ila 7b and also Bez. 25b. The traditional interpretation takes it literally, that they both became crippled. V. next notes.

(24) Yeb. 103a has בר קיפוף and בר אובא

(25) I.e., shall not attend my funeral nor bare their shoulder as is done at the lament of a Principal of an Academy. Cf.

supra p. 140, n. 7. The traditional explanation takes the above observation as referring to their ‘lameness’ in connection with a discussion between R. Ashi and Amemar on the possibility of effecting the rite of halizah, i.e., taking off the shoe, by the levir or brother of a deceased childless husband, if he is a cripple where the malformation of his foot is such as to render it impossible to walk or don or take off a shoe, as required by Scriptural law. Deut. XXV, 5-10. According to this interpretation the translation of the sentence is: ‘Neither Bar-Kipok nor Bar-Abin are fit to submit to the rite of halizah. V. Yeb., Sonc. ed. ‘ p. 709.

(26) דגלת . Tagrit, Tekrit or Tikrit (cf. Obermeyer p. 142). It could not be here the Tigris, as Mahoza itself lay on the Tigris. Tagrit or Tekrit lies higher up on the Tigris between Mosul and Baghdad and is often mentioned in Syrian literature.

(27) It seems doubtful whether it is the same Bar-Abin as above.

(28) The following poem seems to be part of a סליחה which had been composed by Bar-Abin on the occasion of a bad flooding of the Tigris in spring time, April-May, cf. Ta'an. 14a (bottom).

(29) A third of the country is flooded. Perhaps שלישית here refers to Israel, the Jewish quarter in the town. Cf. Isa. XIX, 24 and Shab. 88a.

(30) That a flood come not again. Cf. Gen. IX, 15, 16.

(31) Cf. Hab. III, 2 and P.B. P. 65.

(32) A faithless wife was tried by water, Num. V, 22. The flooding has made the waters undrinkable and caused many deaths.

(33) Var. lec. בזכות מי מרה by virtue of the old favour at Marah's water’, or, as our text: באות מי מרה . Deliver us now miraculously as when the bitter water was healed and sweetened for our forefathers at Marah, Ex. XV, 23-25.

(34) probably pronounced Honein. He may be identical with ‘Anani b. Sason mentioned supra 24b. R. Honein is cited infra 28a.

(35) The joyous birth of the child.

(36) הנינתו (from הנינה Grace) a diminutive form (fu'ailah) i.e., ‘Little Honein’ — a play on his father's name, from הנין (graced, favoured).

(37) So MS.M. and other texts; but cur. edd. R. Johanan, which seems however incorrect.

(38) Lived and taught at Caesarea.

(39) Amos VIII, 9-10.

(40) At Megiddo. V. Ii Chron. XXXV, 23-25; Rashi on v. 25; Targum on Lam. IV, 20; infra p. 188 and Ta'an. 22b.

(41) I.e., as his personal tribute to R. Johanan; but it is not to be taken as a rule to be followed generally.

(42) I.e., Torah.

(43) A great Babylonian sage highly esteemed for his learning, piety and noble character. Cf. supra 17a; Meg. 28a (twice) and Sanah. 14a (Sonc. ed., p. 65).

(44) Babylon.

(45) Palestine. Cf. Dan. XI, 16, 41.

(46) Cf. Jer. XXXI, 19.

(47) An ancient name identified with Sepphoris or Tiberias, both the seat of the Nasi. V. Meg. 6a (top).

(48) דמעתא (instead of מיא water, sweat). So MS. M., J.A.Z. III, 1 and other texts.

(49) Jose b. Halafta. J.A.Z. ibid. names Laodicea as the place.

(50) So MS.M.

(51) MS.M. and other texts, v. J.A.Z. ibid.

(52) As he refused to look even at the image of coins. Cf. J.A.Z. ibid. ‘At the death of R. Nahum b. Simai they covered all the images, saying that as he never looked at them in his lifetime he should not see them after he fell asleep’.

(53) Cf. supra 11a.

(54) So MS.M. CC. more correctly than Nehardea of cur. edd., as J.A.Z. ibid. states it happened in Galilee and Ta'an. 23b shows this R. Isaac b. El. to have been with R. Mani of Tiberias. Besides, Nehardea had been in ruins since 259 C.E.

(55) Mentioned supra p. 158.

(56) I.e., they were thrown together, probably referring to the tier rocks which carried the bridges of the river. Cf. B.M. 86a where it is related that at Rabbah's death there arose so violent a storm that an Arab with his camel were bodily carried across the Nehar Papa canal. Cf. Obermeyer pp. 166 and 238.

(57) [According to the Meiri (Jerusalem 1937), these were figures of speech introduced by orators as the funerary orations respectively on the deaths of the above-named scholars, describing the gravity of the loss.]

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 26a

And these are rents that are not [to be] sewed up: One who rends [his clothes] for his father or mother; or his master who taught him Wisdom,[1] for a Nasi, or Ab Beth din;[2] or on hearing evil tidings or [hearing] God's name blasphemed, or when a scroll of the law has been burnt; or at the [sight of the ruined] cities of Judea, the Holy Temple or Jerusalem. And one rends [first] for the Temple and then enlarges [the rent] for Jerusalem.

‘For his father or mother or for his master who taught him Wisdom’. Whence derive we [these rulings]? — From what is written: And Elisha saw it and he cried: My father. my father, the chariots of Israel and the horsemen thereof.[3] ‘My father, my father’, that is, [to rend on the loss of] one's father or mother. ‘The chariots of Israel and the horsemen thereof’, that is [for] a Master who taught one Torah. How exactly does it convey this [meaning]? — As R. Joseph rendered it [in Aramaic]: ‘My master, my master, who was better [protection] to Israel with his prayer than chariots and horsemen’.

And whence that these rents are not [to be] reunited? — From what is written [in the same passage]: And he [Elisha] took hold of his own clothes and rent them in two pieces.[3] Once it says ‘and he rent then;’, do I not know that he rent them in two [asunder]? It must be meant to teach that the severed parts ever remain rent [apart] in two.[4] Said Resh Lakish to R. Johanan: Elijah [however] is alive![5] — He replied, Since it is written there ‘And he saw ‘him no more,’ he was as dead to him [to Elisha].

‘For a Nasi or Ab Beth din or on hearing evil tidings’. Whence do we derive [these rulings]? — From what is written: Then David took hold of his clothes and rent them,’ and likewise all the men that were with him. And they wailed and wept and fasted until even, for Saul and for Jonathan his son and for the people of the Lord and for the house of Israel, because they were fallen by the sword.[6] Now ‘Saul’, that is the Nasi [Prince]; ‘Jonathan’, that is the Ab Beth din. ‘And for the people of the Lord and for the house of Israel’, that refers to ‘evil tidings’ [that reached them].

Said Rab b. Shabba to R. Kahana: Might not one explain that [they did] not [rend their clothes] until [after hearing] all those misfortunes [that had then happened]?[7] He replied, The repetition of ‘for’ this ‘and for’ that ‘and for’ separate the items [from one another]. Yet do we [have to] rend [clothes] on hearing evil tidings? For when they informed Samuel that King Shapur had slain twelve thousand Jews at Caesarea-Mazaca,[8] he did not [then] rend his clothes? — They [the Sages] did not say [it should be done] save where the misfortune involves the larger part of the Community resembling the typical instance.[9] And is it a fact that King Shapur slew Jews? For [it is reported] that King Shapur said to Samuel,[10] ‘May [ill] befall me if I have ever slain a Jew!’ — For there, it was they [the Jews] that had brought it on themselves, as R. Ammi said, that the noise of the harp-strings[11] about Caesarea-Mazaca burst the wall of Laodicea.[12]

‘[Rents] on [hearing] God's name blasphemed’.[13] Whence do we derive this? — From what is written: Then came Eliakim the son of Hilkiah who was over the household and Shebna the scribe and Joah the son; of Asaph the recorder to Hezekiah with their clothes rent and told him the [blasphemous] words of Rabshakeh.[14]

Our Rabbis taught: ‘It makes no difference whether one hears it [himself] or hears it from another who had heard it, he is in duty bound to rend [his clothes], but the witnesses arc not in duty bound to rend [again on reporting] as they have already rent at the time they heard [the blasphemy]’. [You say], ‘as they have already rent at the time they heard [the blasphemy]’, what matters it, since they do hear it now [again in reporting]? — Do not imagine such a thing. For it is written, And it came to pass, when the King heard it, that he rent his clothes:'[15] the King [we are told], rent [his clothes], but they [who reported it] did not rend [again]. And whence [do we know] that these rents are not [to be] mended? — That is learnt from a comparison[16] between the 'rending' [here] by King Hezekiah and 'rending' [elsewhere].[17]

'[Rents] when a scroll of the law has been burnt'. What is the source for this? — What is written: And it came to pass when Jehudi had read three or four columns that he cut it with a penknife and cast it into the fire that was in the brazier.[18] What is the point of saying '[had read] three or four columns'? — They told [King] Jehoiakim that Jeremiah had written a book of Lamentations, [and] he said to them: What is written there? [They quoted] 'How doth the city sit solitary'.[19] — [The King] replied: I am the King.[20] They then cited to him [the second verse]: She weepeth sore in the night. He replied [again]: I am the King. [They then cited the third verse]: Judah is gone into exile because of affliction. [Again he replied]: I am the King. [They continued with verse four]: The ways of Zion do mourn. I am the King [he replied]. [They continued with the fifth verse]: Her adversaries are become the head. He asked: Who said that? — [They continued with that same verse]: For the Lord hath afflicted her for the multitude of her transgressions. Forthwith he [began to] cut out all the names of God mentioned therein and burnt them in the fire; hence it is written [in the report there]: Yet they were not afraid, nor rent their garments, neither the King, nor any of his servants that heard all these words,[21] which implies that the [bystanders] should have rent [their clothes]. Said Abaye to R. Papa: Might it not be suggested that the reason [why they should have rent was] for hearing evil tidings?[22] — He replied: [Hardly, for] were there at that time any evil tidings as yet?

Said R. Helbo, as citing R. Huna: One who witnesses a scroll of the law being torn[23] is in duty bound to make two rents: one on account of the [injury to the] parchment[24] and one for [the injury to] the writing, as [may be gathered] from what is said: Then the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah after that the King had burned the roll and the words which Baruch wrote at the mouth of Jeremiah.[25] 'The roll,' that is, the parchment and 'and the words', that is, the writing.[26]

R. Abba and R. Huna b. Hiyya were once sitting together. R. Abba got up to [go and] relieve himself. He took off his head phylactery and put it down on a pillow, when a young ostrich came and wanted to swallow it.[27] Said he [R. Abba]: [If that had been swallowed] I should now have had to make two rents.[28] Said the other:[29] Whence do you derive this? A similar thing happened to me and I came to R. Mattenah [asking for guidance] and he had none to give me. I then came to Rab Judah and he told me: Thus said Samuel: 'The [Rabbis] taught [that one should rend] only where [a sacred text is torn or burnt] by force majeure[30] and as in the example cited'.[31] 'Or at the [sight of the ruined] cities of Judea: the Holy Temple or Jerusalem'. Whence do we learn this? — From what is written: And it came to pass the second day after he[32] had slain Gedaliah and no man knew it that there come certain men from Shechem, front Shiloh and from Samaria, even fourscore men, having their beards shaven and their clothes rent and having cut themselves, with meal-offerings and frankincense in their hand to bring them in the house of the Lord.[33] Said R. Helbo. as citing 'Ulla of Berai who reported R. Eleazar: One who sees the cities of Judah in their [state of] ruin, recites the verse: Thy holy cities are become a wilderness,[34] and rends his garment. [On seeing] Jerusalem in its [state of] ruin, one recites: Our holy and our beautiful house, where our fathers praised Thee, is burned with fire and all our pleasant things are laid waste,[35] and rends his garment.

'He [first] makes a rent for the Holy Temple and then enlarges [the rent] for Jerusalem'. [In contrast to this] some cited [the following Baraitha]: 'It is all the same whether one hears [that Jerusalem is fallen into ruin][36] or sees [Jerusalem in ruin he is] in duty bound to rend [his garment].[36] As soon as he reaches the Scopus he rends; and he rends for the holy Temple separately and for Jerusalem separately'? — This [seeming discrepancy] is not difficult [to explain]. The former ruling obtains where he first [of all] encounters the site of the [ruined] Sanctuary[37] and the latter, where he encounters Jerusalem [ruins] first [and afterwards the Sanctuary].

Our Rabbis taught: ‘And all these [rents] they may tack together,[38] baste or pick up [the frayed edges][39] or with a ladderstitch, but may not reunite the edges [by a sewn seam]’.[40] Said R. Hisda:

---

(1) I.e., Torah.
(2) V. Glos.
(3) II Kings II, 12.
(4) I.e., the two edges of the torn part remain as they are, apart. Cf supra 22b.
(5) He constantly reappears, from time to time, communing with saintly persons. Cf. B.M. 85b and Ta'an. 22a. How can this be the guiding instance for a ruling on a loss by death?
(6) II Sam. I, 11-12.
(7) The case of Saul and Jonathan.
(8) Shapur I (241-272) is said to have destroyed Caesarea-Mazaca, the capital of Cappadocia, a vital military post on the main roads leading to the East, in 260 C.E. after he defeated the Emperor Valerian. It is said that there were then four hundred thousand inhabitants. Cf. Enc. Brit. (11th ed.) IV, 943a. The date 260 however makes this statement rather difficult, as Samuel died in 252 and Papa bar Nasr of Palmyra (Odenath) destroyed Nehardea 259. The occasion must therefore have been earlier, after the murder of Gordian III at Zaitha in 244 when Philip the Arab (of Hauran) made the best terms he could with Shapur [V. Graetz MGWJ 1852, p. 512 and Hoffmann D. Mar Samuel, p. 48.]
(9) Of Saul and Jonathan.
(10) They were on very friendly terms.
(11) Played by the Jews rebelling against the Persians (Rashi).
(12) I.e., brought about the destruction of Laodicea. Laodicea Combusta lay further West.
(13) Resuming the discussion of the points quoted in the Baraitha.
(14) II Kings XVIII, 37.
(15) Ibid. XIX, 1.
(16) Gezerah shawah, v. Glos.
(17) In the case of Elisha as explained above from ‘and he rent them in two pieces’. II Kings II, 12.
(18) Jer. XXXVI, 23ff.
(19) Lam. I, 1ff.
(20) There is nothing in that verse about the King himself, but only lamentations about the city of Jerusalem.
(21) Jer. XXXVI, 24.
(22) And not for blasphemy.
(23) MS.M., Asheri and other texts read here burnt.
(24) Which is especially prepared as dedicated for a sacred text.
(25) Ibid. v. 27.
(26) So MS.M. and J.M.K.
(27) ‘R. Huna seized the bird and held it by the throat’. J.M.K. III, 7.
(28) If the ostrich had swallowed or destroyed it. for the parchment and also for the text.
(29) R. Huna b. Hiyya. In J.M.K. the names are reversed.
(30) An irresistible attack, lit., ‘by arm’.
(31) Blasphemously, as did Jehoiakim and his friends; but not when happening casually, as in this instance.
(32) Ishmael the son of Nethaniah.
(33) Jer. XLI. 4.5.
(34) Isa. LXIV, 9.
(35) Ibid. 10.
(36) Enlarged according to the version in J.M.K. III, which is merely condensed in our texts.
(37) Without somehow having caught sight of the ruins of Jerusalem on entering the city, travelling in a covered van, for instance or entering at dusk. He then rends first for the ruined Sanctuary and enlarges the rent on beholding the ruins of Jerusalem.
(38) Soon after, the next day.
(39) With a herringbone or cross stitch.

(40) Sew up permanently.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 26b

Nor may the Alexandrian[1] mending [be used]. Our Rabbis taught: One who rends [his garment] in a part that had been tacked together, basted, or [the edges] picked up by cross or ladderstitch, has not discharged his duty; if in a part which had been rejoined [in a seam], he has discharged his duty. Said R. Hisda: Also [if he rent] in a part [which had been done up] with the Alexandrian mending.

Our Rabbis taught: One is allowed to turn [a garment] upside down[2] and [then] completely mend the rent. R. Simeon b. Eleazar forbids complete mending of the rent. And just as the vendor [of the garment] is forbidden to reunite the rent [completely] the buyer too is forbidden to reunite it [completely] and accordingly the vendor is bound to inform the buyer of [the nature of the rent].

Our Rabbis taught: The initial rending is [to the extent of] a handbreadth,[3] and any extension thereof[4] is to be to the depth of three fingers: these are the words of R. Meir. R. Judah says: The initial rending is [to the extent of] three fingers and the extension may be as small as he cares.[5] Said ‘Ulla, The halachah; follows R. Meir in regard to the [initial] rending and in regard to the extension, the halachah follows R. Judah. It is likewise taught: R. Jose Says. The initial rending is [to the extent of] one handbreadth and the extension may be as little as one cares.[5]

Our Rabbis taught: If one was informed that his father died and he rent [his garment], [then] that his son died and he added thereto, the lower [inner portion] may be reunited; the upper parts is not to be reunited; that his son died and he rent his garment, [then] that his father died and he added thereto, the upper part may be reunited [and] the lower part[6] is not to be reunited. [If one was informed] that his father died, that his mother died, that his brother died, that his sister died,[7] he makes one rent for all. R. Judah b. Bathyra[8] says: For all [near of kin he makes] one rent; for his father and/or mother[9] [he makes] another rent: because a rent made for one's father or mother is not to be added to.[10] What is the reason [for this differentiation]? — Said R. Nahman b. Isaac, it is because there is no extension [of a rent] in their case.[11] Samuel said: The halachah follows the view of R. Judah b. Bathyra. But did Samuel say that? Inasmuch Samuel stated that the halachah in matters of mourning is to follow the view of the [more] lenient authority![12] — The [observance[13] of] mourning comes under one category and the [act of] rending[14] under another [category],

To what extent does one rend [his garment]? — To [exposing his breast down to] the [region of the] navel; some say, [only] down to the [region of the] heart — Although there is no [authentic] proof on this point, there is some [Scriptural] allusion to it, as it is said: And rend your hearts and not your garments.[15] Having reached to the navel, [on hearing another evil report] he moves away a space of three fingers [from the former rent] and rends [afresh]. If the forepart of his garment is become full [of rents], he turns the garment front to back and then rends [again]; if it become full [of rents] in the upper parts. he turns the garment [upside] down; but one who rends the lower part or on the sides [of the garment] has not discharged his duty, save the High Priest, who rends [his garment] below.

[On the extension rending] R. Mattenah and Mar ‘Ukba held different views and both advanced them in the names of [Abba] Samuel's father and R. Levi [b. Sisi]. One said: ‘Anytime during the seven days. one rends [anew for another bereavement] and after the seven he [merely] adds [to the first rent]’. The other said: ‘Anytime during the thirty. one rends [anew for another bereavement] and after the thirty he [merely] adds thereto’. To these statements R. Zera demurred. Now [said R. Zera], in regard to the one who says: ‘Anytime during the seven days one rends [anew for another bereavement]’,[16] why [rend anew]? Because the rent may not be tacked together;[17] then [in the case of a woman] in view of the Master's statement: ‘A woman [mourner] tacks the rent together forthwith' [may she not] just as well [add even to the first rent]?[17] — [No, because] there[18] it is [a concession merely] out of the respect due to a woman.[19] Again [said R. Zera], in regard to the one who says: ' Anytime during the thirty, one rends [anew for another],[16] why is that? Because the rent is not to be reunited;[20] then [in the case of] a rent made for a father or mother that is never to be reunited, [may he not] just as well [add to the rent]?[21] — [No, because] there [also the restriction is merely] out of the deference[22] due to one's father and mother.

Our Rabbis taught: One who goes forth before the dead with a garment already rent, robs the dead and the living [relatives of their due]. Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel says: If a man says to his friend, 'Lend me your cloak and I shall go and visit my father who is ill', and he went and found him already dead, he rends it and then mends the rent. After returning home he returns the cloak and compensates him for the damage done by the rent; but if he had not informed him [of his intention to visit his sick father], he must not touch it.

Our Rabbis taught: If one who is ill sustains bereavement, they should not inform him thereof, lest he thereby become distracted in mind; nor do they direct to have any garments rent in his presence and they direct the women to keep silent [from lamenting] in his presence. Children may be made to rend their clothes in order to stir up sadness and garments are also rent for a father-in-law or mother-in-law, out of deference to one's wife. R. Papa said: It is taught in the Ebel Rabbathi:[23] 'A mourner should not set an infant on his knee, because the child may amuse him and he may thereby incur censure from his fellow men'.

NOR DO THEY PROVIDE A REPAST SAVE[24] [SEATED] ON UPRIGHT COUCHES.[25] Our Rabbis taught: 'One who goes to the house of a mourner, if he be on familiar terms with him, may provide the repast for him [to be taken][26] on overturned couches, but if not, he provides the repast for him [to be taken] on couches in erect position'.[27]

Raba suffered a misfortune and Abba b. Martha, who is the same as Abba b. Manyomi, went to the house [to provide the mourner's repast for him]. Raba sat on all upright couch while Abba b. Martha sat on an overturned one. Said Raba: How lacking in [good] sense[28] is that Associate of the Rabbis!

Our Rabbis taught: One who goes from place to place [and mourning befell him while being on the road],[29]

---

(1) Neatly sewed together on the surface with the joined ends on the wrong side of the material, or darned invisibly, or a piece neatly let in. V. Tosaf. s.v. איחוי .

(2) I.e. , adapting the bottom part for the neck.

(3) Four fingers, the width of the palm.

(4) on the intermediate occurrence of another bereavement.

(5) Lit., 'whatever it be'.

(6) Of the rent made for a parent.

(7) I.e. , the news of their several deaths reached him simultaneously. J.M.K. III, 7 reads thus: 'Even if he heard of the death of his father and mother and of his Master who had taught him wisdom, he makes one rent for all'.

(8) J.M.K. III, 7 reads: 'R. Judah b. Tema says. 'He makes a rent for this one separately and for that one separately: only that he does not make that for his father and that for his mother as an extension". But is not this (latter part) to the same effect as the former part? Only, what he means is, that one shall make no extension on a rent made for a father or a mother'.

(9) Note the ambiguity indicated here by 'and/or', that is, either (a) a separate rent for father and mother jointly, quite apart from the rent made for the other near-of-kin on that occasion; or (b) a separate rent for each, even if the news of their deaths was communicated to him at the same moment. The former interpretation (with some reservations) is accepted by Ritba. V. infra n. 1.

(10) Cf. n. 1 suf'ra. Sem. IX reads as follows: One whose father and mother died (together) makes one rent for both; R. Judah b. Tema says: He makes a rent for this one separately and a rent for this one separately.

(11) Tosaf. s.v. אמר fails to see the purport of this remark of R. Nahman b. Isaac and favours the view that the last clause (‘because a rent made. . .’) is probably a gloss (and is in fact not found in Sem. I.e.). Rabad, however, cited by Asheri, n. 71, explains the comment thus: Since a rent for a parent extends to the region of the heart (or even to the navel), any extension of it (for another sorrow) would fail to be any indication thereof, as his friends would take the enlarged rent as the sign of the mourners excessive grief for his parent.

(12) Whereas R. Judah's view is in fact stricter than the first.

(13) I.e. , the period of seven or thirty days. which begins after the interment.

(14) Which is effected at the most poignant moment of grief, at witnessing the death of a beloved (even before the interment) or at the first intelligence of it. It is a tribute to the dead.

(15) Joel II, 13.

(16) It is the last part of the quotation on which the argument turns.

(17) Within the seven days.

(18) V. supra 22b, p. 142.

(19) V. ibid. Not the law, whereas rending the garment is a duty according to the law for all, it is a tribute she owes to the dead, and like everybody else she should act in the regular way for all, i.e., rend anew.

(20) During the thirty days. V. supra p. 143.

(21) Even during the thirty days; as, even after the thirty days he would, according to the view expressed above, act like any other person according to the law and merely add to the rent a little, in tribute of the fresh loss; otherwise there is no concession in the case of a son mourning for a parent until the end of the year.

(22) Not the law; hence after thirty days he merely adds to the rent.

(23) Cf. supra p. 148, n. 10.

(24) [MS.M. omits ‘save’, v. n. 6.]

(25) For the reading. v. supra p. 154, n. I.

(26) The one who provided the mourner's would also join him at the meal.

(27) [Our Mishnah accordingly speaks of one who is not on familiar terms with the mourner. Raabad and others (v. Asheri) explain the Mishnah as referring to festival week, when in no case is the meal provided on overturned couches. As, however, no couches are overturned on festival week, the word ‘SAVE’ is redundant and on this interpretation is to be omitted, v. n. 3.]

(28) As Raba and his visitor were not on intimate terms, it was presumptuous on the part of the visitor to sit low, while Raba out of deference to the visitor sat on the couch in its normal position.

(29) So MS.M. Asheri and other texts.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 27a

if he can reduce his business affairs, he should do so, and if not, let him carry on with them [as best he may].

Our Rabbis taught: When do mourners overturn the beds? From the moment [the corpse] is taken from the house: these are the words of R. Eliezer; R. Joshua Says, From the moment that the rolling slab[1] closes the tomb. It happened [when] Rabban Gamaliel the Elder[2] died, as soon as he was taken out of the door of his house, R. Eliezer said to them,[3] Overturn your beds. And after the ‘rolling slab’ had been placed [to close the tomb] R. Joshua said to them:[3] ‘Overturn your beds’. Said they to him, ‘We have already overturned them by order of the Elder’ [R. Eliezer].

Our Rabbis taught: When do they place the beds in erect position on the [approaching] eve of the Sabbath? From the time of the evening offering[4] onwards’. Said Rabbah son of Huna,[5] Nevertheless he [the mourner] does not sit down on it until it gets dark, and on the termination of the Sabbath, although he may have but one day [more] to sit [in mourning] he overturns it again.[6]

Our Rabbis taught: One who [has to] overturn his bed, over turns not his own bed alone, but all the beds he has in the house;[7] even though he has ten beds in ten places, he overturns them all.[8] And even if there be five brothers one of whom died, they all overturn [their beds].[9] If, however, it be a bed specially set apart for vestments,[10] that one need not be overturned. A dargesh[11] [couch] need not be overturned, but should be tilted up;[12] Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel says, [In the case of] a dargesh [it is enough if] he loosens the bolster-frame and lets it drop [down] of its own accord. What is a dargesh? — Said ‘Ulla, It is a Couch of Fortune.[13] Said Rabbah to him: But then [how does that] meaning fit the ruling in reference to a king, for we learned:[14] ‘[And when they provide for him the mourner's repast] all the people recline [at the repast] on the ground while the king sits on the dargesh’.[15] Is there any reason why he should now be seated on [a special couch] which he had hitherto not been able to sit on?[16] To this question R. Ashi demurred, [saying]: What is this difficulty? It may be just as exceptional as eating and drinking [with the king], because heretofore they [the people] did not provide for him food and drink, whereas now [in his mourning] they do provide for him food and drink! But, if difficulty there be [in the offered explanation] it arises from what is taught: ‘There is no need to overturn a dargesh, but he [merely] tilts it up’. Now if dargesh be a ‘Couch of Fortune’ why is there no need to overturn it, surely it is taught: ‘One who [has to] overturn his bed overturns not his own bed alone but all the beds he has in his house! And what is this difficulty? Why, a dargesh is similar to a bed specially set apart for vestments,[17] as it is taught [there]: ‘If it be a bed specially set apart for vestments, that need not be overturned’. But if difficulty there be [in the explanation] it is this [from what is taught there]: ‘Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel says, [In the case of] a dargesh [it is enough if] he unfastens the inner bolster-frame and lets it drop [down]’. Now if you suppose that dargesh means a ‘Couch of Fortune’ , what bolster-frame is there [at all]?

When Rabin came [home from Palestine] he said, One of the Rabbis whose name is R. Tahlifa the Palestinian, who used to frequent the leather-mart, told me: What is a dargesh? It is [said he] a couch covered with a hide.[18] It has also been stated: ‘R. Jeremiah said,[19] In a dargesh the interlacing[20] [of the girths] is on the inside; in a bed [couch] the interlacing [of the girths] is on the outside’. Said R. Jacob b. Aha as reporting R. Joshua b. Levi: The halachah follows the opinion of R. Simeon b. Gamaliel.[21] Also this, R. Jacob b. Ala is to have said as reporting R. Assi that where a couch has projecting lean-backs,[22] it is enough if he merely tilts it up.[23]

Our Rabbis taught: If he slept [during the seven days] on a chair, or on a large bench for water-jugs[24] or [even] on the ground. he has not discharged his duty.[25] Said R. Johanan: [He has not discharged his duty] because he has not conformed to [the practice of] overturning the bed.[26]

Our Rabbis taught: We may sweep or strew[27] [the floors] in a house of mourning and wash dishes, cups, jugs and wine-goblets[28] in a house of mourning; but do not bring perfumes[29] or spices into a house of mourning. But this is not [correct]? For Bar Kappara taught: One should not say a benediction for [enjoying the scent of] perfumery or spices in a house of mourning, which implies that while we do not say a benediction, they may yet be taken into the house? — That presents no difficulty: the former ruling is for the house of mourning,[30] while the latter ruling is for the house of comforters.[31]

MISHNAH. [PROVISIONS][32] SHOULD NOT BE CONVEYED TO THE HOUSE OF MOURNING ON AN [ORNAMENTAL] TRAY,[33] SALVER,[34] OR FRUIT-BASKET,[35] BUT IN [PLAIN] BASKETS. AND THE MOURNERS BENEDICTION [IN GRACE AFTER MEALS] IS NOT SAID DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK]. BUT COMFORTERS MAY STAND IN A ROW AND COMFORT [THEM].[36] AND THE MOURNERS GIVE LEAVE OF DEPARTURE TO THE MANY [COMFORTERS]. THE BIER IS NOT SET DOWN IN THE BROADWAY [DURING THE FESTIVAL WEEK] SO AS NOT TO ENCOURAGE THE [FUNERARY] LAMENT; AND THE BIER OF WOMEN IS NEVER [SET DOWN IN THE BROAD WAY] FOR THE SAKE OF PROPRIETY.

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: Formerly they were wont to convey [victuals] to the house of mourning, the rich in silver and gold baskets and the poor in osier baskets of peeled willow twigs, and the poor felt shamed: they therefore instituted that all should convey [victuals] in osier baskets of peeled willow twigs out of deference to the poor.

Our Rabbis taught: Formerly, they were wont to serve drinks in a house of mourning, the rich in white glass vessels and the poor in coloured glass, and the poor felt shamed: they instituted therefore that all should serve drinks in coloured glass,[37] out of deference to the poor.[38] Formerly they were wont to uncover the face of the rich and cover the face of the poor, because their faces turned livid in years of drought and the poor felt shamed; they therefore instituted that everybody's face should be covered, out of deference for the poor.[38] Formerly. they were wont to bring out the rich [for burial] on a dargesh[39] aid the poor

---

(1) גולל , a stone rolling in a groove to close a tomb.

(2) Rightly omitted in J. Ber. and J.M.K. (loc. cit.), as this could be only Rabban Gamaliel II (of Jabne). R. Eliezer's brother-in-law. Cf. B.M. 59b (Sonc. ed., p. 354, nn. 3 and 4.)

(3) To his wife Imma Shalom, Rabban Gamaliel's sister and others in the house. J. Ber. and J.M.K.: ‘To his disciples’.

(4) I.e., 3.30 p.m. The Minhah was a meal-offering which accompanied the ‘daily offerings’, morning and afternoon. Num. XXVIII, 5, 8.

(5) Asheri read, ‘Rabba b. ‘Ulla’.

(6) To remind him that he is still a mourner within the seven days. J.M.K. III, 5.

(7) ‘His own as well as those of his wife and children, who observe mourning in the house out of deference to him, but not those of strangers staying in the house’. Raabad, cited in Asheri.

(8) If he occupies any of those, even away from the place where the death had taken place (Asheri). Cf. Sem. XI.

(9) If they sleep in their own homes.

(10) A kind of sofa or couch like our ottomans, for clothes or coverlets; i.e., one not used for sleeping.

(11) An elaborate couch, explained and discussed below at length.

(12) To make it uncomfortable for sleeping or sitting on it.

(13) Among non-Jews. Among the Romans the lectus genialis was a symbolical, ornamental marriage-bed placed on the day of marriage in the front hall, the atrium, (as the bride's domain). ‘Genialis lectus, qui nuptiis sternitur in honorem genii’ quoted by Becker, Gallus, Excursus I (on Woman and Roman Marriage) p. 166. Cf. ibid. p. 154.

(14) Sanh. 20a.

(15) So that the king does not go down to the level of the people and sit with them.

(16) I.e., how call dargesh possibly mean a ‘Couch of Fortune’? It can only mean a couch other than the ordinary, for the king.

(17) Not for sleeping.

(18) I.e., a bedstead with a hide thrown on girths or stretched on the frame which serves as a mattress or bolster. So Han., v. Becker's Charicles, Scene VIII, n. 8 (Eng. Trans. p. 136).

(19) In J.M.K. III, 5 we have: ‘Where the interlacing (girths) are attached to the body (i.e., the frame of the bedstead itself) it is a bed; where the interlacing is not attached to the body (i.e., that the mattress-frame is a separate piece, the grabatus) it is a dargesh. Cf. further the notes on the discussion of the Mishnah.

(20) Horace's tenta cubilia.

(21) That it is enough, in the case of a dargesh, if he unfastens the inner bolsterframe and lets it drop down.

(22) נקליטי = , lit. , ‘something to lean back on’; here are meant head-rests and the back of a couch to support the cushions as well as the poles, at the head and the foot of a bed, to support a curtain or net. Cf. Suk. 10b.

(23) To show that it is not in use and does not need to be overturned.

(24) The Roman urnariun, a low oblong bench or kitchen-table, used for keeping near to hand urns, water vessels and other earthenware utensils and out of the way of being broker. אורייני for אורנריי is the correct rendering and this meaning of the word fits all the parallel passages.

(25) J.M.K. III, 5 explains the context: ‘If he said, I am not going to up turn the bed, for behold, I shall sleep on a bench, they do not listen to him, because he said, "I am not going to upturn the bed"; but if he said, lo, I am going to upturn the bed . . . they do listen to him’.

(26) Cf. Sem. XI, (end). ‘But they say to him, There is the Mizwah (duty) of upturning’.

(27) With sawdust or said.

(28) and  a Lacoman earthen drinking vessel or goblet.

(29) Spices to be burnt on ‘coals’ in fumigation pans.

(30) While the corpse is still in the house; it suggests that the dead is objectionable. Cf. Baraitha on the next Mishnah.

(31) I.e., after the burial, when comforters come in to visit and condole with the mourner.

(32) ‘The mourners fare’.

(33) Tabella or tabula.

(34) Scutella.

(35) Calathus.

(36) On the cemetery after the burial, during the festival week.

(37) Tosef. Nd. IX, 17 has: ‘Then they reverted to bringing (drink) in coloured or white (glass vessels)’.

(38) MS.M. inserts: Our Rabbis taught.

(39) דרגש a tall state bed, ornamented and covered with rich coverlets. V. Targum and Kimhi on Ezek. XXIII, 41 מטה כבודה . In Lewin, Otz. Hag. No. 208 it is explained by מטה משובחת and SBH explains it by מטה חשובה. Cf. Persius, Sat. III, 103, ‘tandemque beatulus alto Compositus lecto...,’ and at last our blessed (dead) little friend being laid out on a tall bier’. Cf. also Jos., Ant. XVII, 8, 3 (197) and War, XXXIII, 9 (671) about Herod's gorgeous bier.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 27b

on a plain bier,[1] and the poor felt shamed: they instituted therefore that all should be brought out on a plain bier, out of deference for the poor. Formerly they were wont to set a perfuming-pan under [the bed of] those that died of intestinal disorders, and the living suffering from intestinal disorders felt shamed: they instituted therefore that it should be set under all [alike], out of deference to the living that suffer from intestinal disorders. Formerly they were wont to subject to [ritual] ablution all utensils that had been used by [dying] menstruants,[2] and the living menstruant women felt thereby shamed: they instituted therefore that they should subject utensils used by all [dying] women alike, out of deference to the living menstruants. Formerly they were wont to subject to [ritual] ablution all utensils used by those suffering from a flux.[3] while dying, and the living suffering from a flux felt shamed: they therefore instituted that they should subject to ablution utensils used by all, out of deference to the living suffering from flux.[4] Formerly the [expense of] taking the dead out [to his burial] fell harder on his near-of-kin than his death so that the dead man's near-of-kin abandoned him and fled, until at last Rabban Gamaliel came [forward] and, disregarding his own dignity, came out [to his burial] in flaxen[5] vestments and thereafter the people followed his lead to come out [to burial] in flaxen vestments. Said R. Papa. And nowadays all the world follow the practice of [coming out] even in a paltry[6] [shroud] that costs but a zuz.

THEY SET NOT DOWN THE BIER IN THE BROADWAY. Said R. Papa,[7] in the case of a scholar [who died] no regard is paid to the festival [week].[8] and much less so during Hanukkah[9] or Purim,[10] and this ruling obtains only in his presence, but away from his presence no [lament is allowed]. But that is not [correct]? For R. Kahana did make a lament for R. Zebid of Nehardea at Pum-Nahara? — Said R. Papi,[11] it was on the day of [receiving] the tidings [of his death] and that is deemed the same as in his presence.

Said ‘Ulla: [The technical meaning of] a hesped[12] is [lamenting with striking] upon the breast, as it is written: [Tremble ye... strip you... and gird sackcloth upon your loins]. striking upon the breast.[13] [The technical meaning of] tippuah[14] is clapping one's hands [in grief], and that of killus[15] is [tapping] with the foot [in mourning].

Our Rabbis taught: One who does the tapping with the foot. should not do so when wearing either sandal or boot, because of the danger.[16]

Said R. Johanan, As soon as the mourner nods his head,[17] the comforters are no longer allowed to remain seated by him. R. Johanan said also, All are in duty bound to rise at the Presence of the Nasi,[18] save a mourner, or one who feels ill. And furthermore, said R. Johanan, To all we may say[19] ‘be seated’ save to a mourner or one who feels ill.[20]

Said Rab Judah, as citing Rab: A mourner is forbidden to eat of his own bread on the first day [of mourning].[21] as the AIl-Merciful said to Ezekiel: And eat thou not the bread of men.[22] Rabbah and R. Joseph alternately provided the repast to each other.

This also said Rab Judah as reporting Rab: When a person dies in town, all the townspeople are forbidden from doing work. R. Hamnuna once came to Daru-matha;[23] he heard the sound of the funerary-bugle[24] [and] seeing some people carrying on their work, he said: Let the people be under the shammetha [ban]! Is there not a person dead in town? They told him that there was an Association[25] in the town. If so, said he to them, it is allowed you [to work]. And furthermore, Rab Judah said, as citing Rab, Whoever indulges in grief to excess over his dead will weep for another. There was a certain woman that lived in the neighbourhood of R. Huna; she had seven sons one of whom died [and] she wept for him rather excessively. R. Huna sent [word] to her: ‘Act not thus’. She heeded him not [and] he sent to her: If you need my word it is well; but if not, are you anxious to make provision[26] for yet another? He [the next son] died and they all died. In the end he said to her, Are you fumbling with provision for yourself? And she died.

[Our Rabbis taught]:[27] ‘Weep ye not for the dead, neither bemoan him[28] [that is], ‘Weep not for the dead’ [that is] in excess, ‘neither bemoan him’ — beyond measure. How is that [applied]? — Three days for weeping and seven for lamenting and thirty [to refrain] from cutting the hair and [donning] pressed clothes; hereafter, the Holy One, blessed be He, says, ‘Ye are not more compassionate towards him [the departed] than I’.

Weep sore for him that goeth away.[28] Said Rab Judah [as reporting Rab],[29] that means, Weep for him who goes [to his long home] childless.[30] R. Joshua b. Levi would not go to [visit] a house of mourning save to that of one who had gone childless, for it is written [said he]: Weep sore for him that goeth away,[31] for he shall return no more nor see his native country.[28] R. Huna said this [verse refers to] one who committed a sinful act and repeated it again. R. Huna is here adhering to his own view, as he said: ‘As soon as a person has continued a sinful act and has repeated it, it has become unto him permissible’. [You say]. ‘Become unto him permissible’? Can you conceive such a thing? — Say rather that it has become unto him as though it were something permissible.

Said R. Levi: A mourner [during] the first three days should look upon himself as if a sword is resting between his shoulders;[32] from the third to the seventh, as if it stands in the corner facing him; thereafter as if it is moving alongside him in the [broad] market place.

AND THE BIER OF WOMEN IS NEVER [SET DOWN IN THE BROADWAY] FOR THE SAKE OF PROPRIETY. Said the Nehardeans:[33] This [Mishnah] was taught only

---

(1) Or box.

(2) A menstruant's touch defiled persons, her bed, clothes and utensils. Cf. Lev. XV, 19-24.

(3) Lev. XV, 4-12.

(4) MS.M. inserts: Our Rabbis taught.

(5) That is, dressed in linen instead of woollen expensive vestments, as had been the custom heretofore.

(6) צרדא : This is the correct reading for צרדדא a popular pronunciation of the Latin word sordida which means cheap, poorly, mean, ragged. Cf. sordidn amictus and the Latin proverb: ‘Saepe est etiam sub palliolo sordido sapientia’

(Wisdom is often hidden under a ragged cloak). Also Juv. III, 149: Si toga sordidula est etc. (If the toga is somewhat threadbare...). This meaning fits also R. Papa's statement in B.M. 51b as cheap, slightly soiled (second-hand?) clothes dealers. Cf. also Hul. 105b רוח צרדא with רוח זוהמא Shab. 82a.

(7) MS.M. and other texts read: Rabbah b. R. Huna.

(8) I.e., lament may be made for a scholar even on festival week.

(9) The Maccabean Feast of Lights beginning on the 25th of Kislev. V. I Macc. IV; II Macc. X, 1ff.

(10) V. Esth. IX, 19ff.

(11) MS.M., R. Papa.

(12) הספד .

(13) Isa. XXXII, 11-12.

(14) טפוח , v. Tosaf.

(15) קלום , cf. Ezek. VI, 11.

(16) Of twisting the ankle or hurting another's foot.

(17) Thereby indicating to the comforters that they may retire, whatever his reason may be, whether his wish or necessity; he may not bid them farewell with the word ‘Peace’ — שלום .

(18) At his entry.

(19) E.g., to distinguished visitors or elderly persons.

(20) As this might be taken ill, as an ominous expression wishing one to ‘be seated’ as a mourner.

(21) I.e., after the funeral.

(22) Ezek. XXIV, 17. to be taken there as having been contrary to all regular practice, and done by the prophet to convey to his hearers the magnitude of the threatening calamities.

(23) Obermeyer, p. 197 suggests that this place is identical with Darukart, in the neighbourhood of Wasit. SBH reads: Dara (N. of Nisibis).

(24) Cf. Meg. 29a (top).

(25) A collegium that attended to burials.

(26) Provision for the long way, shrouds, etc.

(27) So Han. and SBH.

(28) Jer. XXII, 10.

(29) So MS.M. and Yalkut.

(30) Cf. B.B. 116a (Sonc. ed. p. 477.)

(31) ‘Goeth away’ also means ‘to die childless’. Cf. Gen. XV, 2.

(32) Close by and ready to slay him.

(33) R. Hama, R. Nahman and Samuel. V. Sanh. 17b and A. Hyman Toledoth III, 919b.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 28a

with reference to a woman who died in childbirth,[1] but [that of] other women may be set down [in the broadway]. R. Eleazar says: [The rule applies] even to other women, as it is written: And there Miriam died and was buried there,[2] which shows that her death was close to her [place of] burial. R. Eleazar also said that Miriam also died by the Divine kiss [like Moses]: We interpret the expression ‘there’ [used at Miriam's death] in the same sense as that of the expression ‘there’ used of Moses.[3] Wherefore then is it not said about her [that she died] by the mouth of the Lord?[3] Because it would be unbecoming to say so.

Said R. Ammi, Wherefore is the account of Miriam's death[4] placed next to the [laws of the] red heifer?[5] To inform you that even as the red heifer afforded atonement [by the ritual use of its ashes], so does the death of tie righteous afford atonement [for the living they have left behind].

R. Eleazar said, Wherefore is [the account of] Aaron's death closely followed by [the account of the disposal of] the priestly vestments?[6] [To inform you] that just as the priest's vestments were [means] to effect atonement,[7] so is the death of the righteous [conducive to procuring] atonement.

Our Rabbis taught: If one die suddenly, this is [reckoned] as being ‘snatched away’; if one is ill one day and dies, that is reckoned as being hustled away; R. Hanania b. Gamaliel says, That is death by a stroke, for it is said: Son of Man, behold I take away from thee the desire of thine eyes with a pestilential stroke,[8] and it is written [there. after], So I spoke unto the people in the morning and at even my wife died.[9] After two days’ [illness], it is a rather precipitous death.[10] [After] three — it is one of reproof; [after] four — it is one of rebuff [snubbing]; [after] five is the ordinary death of all men.[11] (Said R. Honin: What is the text [for this]? Behold thy days are approached that thou must die.[12] ‘Behold’ [accounts for] one;[13] ‘thy days’ accounts for two [more]; ‘are approached’ [gives us] two [more], which makes five. ‘Behold’ makes one because the word for ‘one’ in Greek is hen.)[13]

‘If one dies [under][14] fifty years [old] — that is death by kareth;[15] at fifty-two years — that is the death of Samuel of Ramah; at sixty — that is by the hand of Heaven’.[11] (Said Mar Zutra: What is the text [for this]? Thou shalt come to thy grave in ripe age,[16] as the [numerical value of the] word for ‘in ripe age’ yields sixty.) ‘At seventy, it is the death of the hoary head; at eighty it is the death of a vigorous [old man]. for it is written, The days of our years are three score and ten, or even by reason of strength four score years.[17] Said Rabbah,[18] From fifty to sixty years [of age]. that is death by kareth, and the reason why this has not been mentioned was out of deference to [the prophet] Samuel of Ramah. R. Joseph, on his attaining the age of sixty, made a festival day for the Rabbis [of the Academy] saying. ‘I have just passed beyond [the limit of] kareth’. Said Abaye to him: ‘Granted, Sir, that you have passed the [limit of] kareth as to years. but as to the [limit of sickening] days[19] have you escaped that’? He replied: ‘Nevertheless, hold on to the half’.[20] R. Huna's soul went into repose suddenly[21] and the Rabbis [of the academy] were perturbed [thereat] when Zoga[22] who hailed from Adiabene taught them:[23] ‘What we learned applies only when one has not attained the "age of strength" [eighty] but if one has attained the "age of strength" [eighty] a sudden death is dying by the kiss’.

Raba said: [Length of] life, children and sustenance depend not on merit but [rather on] mazzal.[24] For [take] Rabbah and R. Hisda. Both were saintly Rabbis; one master prayed for rain and it came, the other master prayed for rain and it came. R. Hisda lived to the age of ninety-two,[25] Rabbah[26] [only] lived to the age of forty. In R. Hisda's house there were held sixty marriage feasts, at Rabbah's house there were sixty[27] bereavements. At R. Hisda's house there was the purest wheaten bread for dogs, and it went to waste;[28] at Rabbah's house there was barley bread for human beings and that not to be had. This too, Raba said: These three requests I made of Heaven; two were granted me and one was not. [I prayed for] the scholarship of R. Huna and the wealth of R. Hisda which were granted me; but the modest disposition of Rabbah son of R. Huna,[29] that was not granted me.

R. Se'orim, Raba's brother, while sitting at Raba's bedside[30] saw him [Raba] going into sleep [dying],[31] when he [the invalid] said to his brother: ‘Do tell him,[32] Sir, not to torment me’. R. Se'orim replied: ‘Are you, Sir, not his intimate friend?’[33] Said Raba: ‘Since [my] mazzal[34] has been delivered [to him], he takes no heed of me’. R. Se'orim then said to the dying: ‘Do, Sir, show yourself to me [in a dream]’. He did show himself and when asked: ‘Did you, Sir, suffer [pain]?’ He replied: ‘As from the prick of the cupping instrument’.

Raba, while seated at the bedside[30] of R. Nahman, saw him sinking into slumber [death].[35] Said he to Raba: ‘Tell him,[36] Sir, not to torment me’. Said Raba: ‘Are you, Sir, not a man esteemed?’[37] Said [R. Nahman] to him, ‘Who is esteemed, who is regarded, who is distinguished [before the Angel of Death]?’ Said [Raba] to him: ‘Do, Sir, show yourself to me [in a dream]’. He did show himself. [Raba] asked him: ‘Did you suffer pain, Sir’? He replied: ‘As [little as] the taking of a hair from the milk; and were the Holy One, blessed be He, to say to me, Go back to that world as you were, I wish it not, for the dread thereof [of death] is great’.

R. Eleazar was eating some terumah [priest's holy food] when he[36] showed himself to him. Said he, Am I not [in the pious act of] eating terumah and is not that designated ‘holy [meat]’?[38] The [fatal] moment [thus] was past! R. Shesheth caught sight of him[36] in the market place. Quoth he: ‘Do you [seize me] in the market place like a beast? Come to [the] house’! R. Ashi[39] caught sight of him[36] in the market place. Quoth he: ‘Grant me thirty days’ respite and I shall revise my studies, inasmuch as you say [in Heaven above]: "Happy he that cometh hither [to Heaven] bringing his learning ready with him".’[40] he came [again] on the thirtieth day; quoth he, ‘What is the urgency?’ He replied: R. Huna[41] b. Nathan is close on your heels[42] and, ‘No sovereignty encroaches upon the sphere of another even to a hair's breadth’.

As for R. Hisda, he[36] could never overcome him as his mouth was never silent from [repeating] his learning by rote. So he went and settled on the cedar tree of the Schoolhouse. The tree cracked; R. Hisda stopped [and] he overcame him.

As for R. Hiyya. he[36] could not gain access to him. So one day he adopted the guise of a poor man and came and rapped at the gate, saying, ‘Bring me out some bread’. They [others] brought out some bread to him. Said he then to R. Hiyya: ‘Don't you, Sir, treat the poor kindly? Why not, Sir, [also] treat kindly this man [standing outside]?’[43] He [R. Hiyya] opened the door to him,[44] whereupon, showing him a fiery rod, he made him yield his soul.

---

(1) For obvious reasons of delicacy; they might stain their clothing and bier.

(2) Num. XX, 1, ‘There’ being repeated twice.

(3) Deut. XXXIV, 5: So Moses the servant of the Lord died there in the land of Moab by the mouth of the Lord. In the is passage ‘there’ could have been omitted, and in the above passage we have also a superfluous ‘there’, which suggests the Gezerah shawah, v. Glos.

(4) Num. XX, I.

(5) Ibid. XIX. It is called a ‘sin-offering’ and the ritual use of its ashes afforded the means of purification as well as the desire to sanctification.

(6) Ibid. XX, 26, 28.

(7) Lev. XVI, 4, 24, 32, 33. Cf. Zeb. 88b.

(8) Ezek. XXIV, 16.

(9) Ibid. verse 18.

(10) Cf. P5. CXVIII, 13 ,דחה דחיתני and XXXVI, 13.

(11) Here the quotation is interrupted.

(12) Deut. XXXI. 14.

(13) The word הן , — hen — similar in sound to  — hen — the Greek neuter for one. The quotation is now resumed.

(14) So Sem. III, 8.

(15) ‘Cut off’ for certain sins. E.g., Lev. XVIII. V. Mak. Chapter III, 13aff. (Sonc. ed., p. 90. n. 2). Cf. Tosaf. here, s.v.

(16) Job V, 26. בכלה = 2 + 20 + 30 + 8, in letter value.

(17) Ps. XC, 10.

(18) Raba is probably more correct, as Rabbah himself died at forty.

(19) I.e., there is yet the danger of dying suddenly without any warning as cited above.

(20) Take what you get, a proverbial phrase.

(21) 297 C.E. Cf. supra 25a.

(22) Or Zawa.

(23) I.e., cited to them a Baraitha on the point.

(24) ‘Destiny’. Cf. however, Shab. 156a.

(25) Died 309 C.E.

(26) 13. Nahmani, died 330 C.E.

(27) A proverbial number. The number sixty is a Babylonian unit, e.g., the hour and minute are divided into sixty.

(28) Lit., ‘was not wanted’.

(29) Died 322 C.E.

(30) Lit., ‘in front of R.’

(31) 252 C.E.

(32) The Angel of Death.

(33) Lit., ‘a bosom friend’, cf. Sanh. III, 5. As a teacher of Torah, he is God's messenger himself. V. Mal. II, 6-7.

(34) The guardian Angel.

(35) 320 C.E.

(36) The Angel of Death.

(37) To make your appeal direct to the Angel of Death; He would surely grant your request.

(38) Cf. Num. XVIII, 11-12. If he were to die just then the terumah would be defiled which is not a correct thing to do. Besides, ‘a pious deed acts as a shield against tribulation’. Cf. Aboth. IV, 11, P.B. p. 107 (top).

(39) Var. lec. Assi.

(40) Lit., ‘in his hand’. Cf. Pes. 50a.

(41) So MS.M. V. Git. 59a and Zeb. 19a. Var. lec. R. Huna b. Hisda,

(42) I.e., waiting to succeed you.

(43) Why not yourself befriend me, this poor man, and give me the bread with your own hand?

(44) Cf. A.Z. 58a (Sonc. ed., 11. 289). Here probably to be one word גליליה ‘he pushed the door aside’; cf. גילל for a slab used for closing the entrance to a tomb.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 28b

MISHNAH. WOMEN MAY RAISE A WAIL DURING THE FESTIVAL [WEEK], BUT NOT CLAP [THEIR HANDS IN GRIEF]; R. ISHMAEL SAYS, THOSE THAT ARE CLOSE TO THE BIER CLAP [THEIR HANDS IN GRIEF]. ON THE DAYS OF NEW MOON, OF HANUKKAH AND OF PURIM[1] THEY MAY RAISE A WAIL AND CLAP [THEIR HANDS IN GRIEF]. NEITHER ON THE FORMER[2] NOR ON THE LATTER OCCASIONS DO THEY CHANT A DIRGE. AFTER [THE DEAD] HAS BEEN INTERRED THEY NEITHER RAISE A WAIL NOR CAP [THEIR HANDS IN GRIEF]. WHAT IS MEANT BY RAISING A WAIL’ [‘INNUY]?[3] WHEN ALL SING IN UNISON. WHAT IS MEANT BY A DIRGE [KINAH]?[4] WHEN ONE SPEAKS[5] AND ALL RESPOND AFTER HER, AS IT IS SAID: AND TEACH YOUR DAUGHTERS WAILING AND ONE ANOTHER [EACH] LAMENTATION [KINAH].[6] BUT AS TO THE FUTURE [DAYS] TO COME, [THE PROPHET] SAYS: HE WILL DESTROY DEATH FOR EVER AND THE LORD GOD WILL WIPE AWAY TEARS FROM OFF ALL FACES.[7]

GEMARA. What say the women [in lament]? — Said Rab.[8] ‘Cry woe o'er him that is now departing! Cry woe o'er his wounds[9] [and smarting]!’ Raba[10] said, The women of Shoken-Zeb[11] speak thus:

‘Cry woe o'er him that is departing!

Cry woe o'er his wounds and smarting!’

Raba also said, The women of Shoken-Zeb speak thus:

‘Withdraw the bone from out the pot[12]

And the kettles[12] fill with water [hot]’.

Raba said this also: The women of Shoken-Zeb speak thus:

‘Be muffled,[13] ye high mountains,

[Clouds] covering your head;

Of high lineage and grand ancestry

Came he that is dead’.

Also this said Raba: The women of Shoken-Zeb speak thus:

‘Borrow [and buy] a Milesian[14] robe

To dress a free-born son;

[Give it free of charge] for

Provision left he none’.[15]

And furthermore said Raba: The women of Shoken-Zeb speak thus:

‘Comes hurrying and scurrying[16] Tumbling aboard the ferry

And having to borrow his fare’.

Again this said Raba: The women of Shoken-Zeb speak thus:

‘Our brothers are merchants who

At the custom houses[17] are searched’.

And again said Raba: The women of Shoken-Zeb speak thus:

‘This death or that death [is the end of the quest];

Our bruises are the rate of interest’.

It is taught: R. Meir was wont to say: ‘[It is written], It is better to go to the house of mourning than to go to the house of feasting; for that is the end of all men and the living will lay it to heart.[18] ["And the living will lay it to heart"], what is that? Things about death; if one makes lament, others will lament for him; if one assists at burial, others will bury him; if one bears the bier, others will bear him; if one raises [his voice][19] others will raise [their voice] for him’. Others read [the last]: ‘And he that raises not [himself with pride], others will raise him, as it is written: Glorify not thyself in the presence of the King and stand not in the place of great men; for better is it that it be said unto thee, Come up hither, than that thou shouldest be put lower in the presence of the prince.[20]

Our Rabbis taught: When the sons of R. Ishmael died, four Elders went into his house to comfort him. R. Tarfon, R. Jose the Galilean, R. Eleazar b. ‘Azaria and R. Akiba. Said R. Tarfon to them: ‘Know ye, he is a great sage and erudite in homiletic exposition, let none of you break in while another is speaking’. Said R. Akiba: ‘And I be last!’ R. Ishmael opened[21] [the conversation] and said: ‘His[22] sins were many, his sorrowful bereavements came in close succession; he[22] troubled his Masters once and a second time!’ R. Tarfon responded and said: ‘But your brethren, the whole house of Israel bewail the burning which the Lord hath kindled.[23] Is not this universal sorrow more due[24] now [even than there]? Why, if Nadab and Abihu who had performed but one office — as it is written: And the sons of Aaron presented the blood unto him[25] . . . were thus [universally mourned] — how much more clue to the sons of R. Ishmael’! R. Jose the Galilean then responded and said: It is written: And all Israel shall make lamentation for him and bury him.[26] Is not more due now? Why, if Abijah Jeroboam's son who had done but one good thing — as it is written: Because in him there is found some good thing towards the Lord God of Israel,[26] — was mourned in such universal manner, how much more is clue to the sons of Ishmael!

What was that ‘good thing’? R. Zeira and R. Hanina b. Papa [gave different explanations]: one Saying that he left his charge [post] and went on a festive pilgrimage [to Jerusalem]; the other saying that he removed the military guards[27] that his father had posted on the roads to prevent the Israelites from going on a pilgrimage [to Jerusalem].[28]

R. Eleazar b. ‘Azaria then responded and said: ‘Thou shalt die in peace and with the burning of thy fathers, the formaer kings that were before thee, so shall they make a burning for thee.[29] Is not more clue now? Why, if Zeclekiah King of Judah who had performed but one office in having had Jeremiah lifted from the mire,[30] was to be mourned thus, how much more is due to the sons of Ishmael’!

R. Akiba then responded and said: ‘In that day there shall be a great mourning in Jerusalem, as the mourning of Hadadrimmon in the valley of Megiddon’.[31] [On this] R. Joseph said, Had we not the [Aramaic Targum] rendering of that text, I would not have known what it said there: ‘In that time the mourning at Jerusalem will be as great as the lament over Ahab son of Omri whom Hadadrimmon son of Tabrimmon had slain[32] and as the lament over Josiah son of Amon whom Pharaoh the Lame[33] [Necho] had slain in the valley of Megiddon.[34] Is not more due now? Why, if Ahab King of Israel who had done but one good thing — as t is written: And the king was stayed up in his chariot against the Arameans [and died at even][35] — was lamented thus how much more is due to the sons of Ishmael’!

Said Raba to Rabbah b. Mari, It is written about Zedekiah: Thou shalt die in peace;[36] yet it is written [thereafter]: Moreover he [Nebuchadnezzar] put out Zedekiah's eyes?[37] — He replied that R. Johanan had explained it thus, [namely] that Nebuchadnezzar died in Zedekiah's lifetime.[38] Again said Raba to Rabbah b. Mari, it is written: Therefore, behold I will gather thee to thy fathers, and thou shalt be gathered to thy grave in peace;[39] yet it is written [about him elsewhere]: And the archers shot at King Josiah,’ [and the King said to his servants, Have me away for I am sore wounded;[40] And [on this last part] R. Judah citing Rab, commented: They riddled[41] his body like a sieve! — This, too he replied, R. Johanan explained that the Temple had not been destroyed [as threatened] in his lifetime.

Said R. Johanan:[42] Comforters are not permitted to say a word until the mourner opens [conversation], as it is said: So they sat down with him on the ground. . . and none spake a word unto him; for they saw that his grief was very great.[43] After this opened Job his mouth[44] . . . Then answered Eliphaz the Temanite.[45]

Said R. Abbahu: Whence [derive we the practice] that the mourner reclines in the foremost place[46] [at the mourners’ repast]? From what is said [by Job]: I chose out their way, and sat chief, and dwelt as a king it, the army, as one comforteth the mourners.[47] ‘As one comforteth the mourners’? Does not that convey [rather] that he was [at the head in] comforting others? — Said R. Nahman b. Isaac: [Not necessarily as] it is written Yenahem, it may be rendered, ‘as when one comforteth mourners’.[48]

Mar Zutra said: The rule might be [derived] from here:[49] And prince[50] be he who is embittered — distraught[51] among those stretched [on couches].[52] Said R. Hama b. Hanina, Whence [is derived the practice] that a bridegroom reclines in the foremost place [at the marriage feast]? From what is said: I will rejoice in the Lord . . . for He hath clothed me with the garments of salvation . . . as a bridegroom that ministers in his diadem as a priest.[53] Which means that just as a priest [with whom he is compared] is at the head, so is the bridegroom [placed] at the head. And whence have we this ruling about the priest himself? — From what is taught in [a Baraitha of] the School of R. Ishmael: And thou shalt sanctify him [the priest] for he offereth the bread of thy God,[54] which means, [sanctify him] in every matter appertaining to hallowed things, to be first to begin,[55] first to say grace, first to take a fair portion.

R. Hanina said: The dying gasps severely agitate the body

---

(1) For these cf. supra p. 178, nn. 7 and 8.

(2) The festival week.

(3) I.e.. what is the technical meaning of the word used in the Mishnah, which literally means chanting, singing the lamenting words.

(4) The term for chanting a dirge used in the Mishnah.

(5) Or, leads.

(6) Jer. IX, 19.

(7) Isa. XXV, 8 cited here as a comforting conclusion to the lugubrious subject of the tractate.

(8) Died 247 C.E.

(9) Cf. P5. XVIII, 5-6; CXVI, 3; Micah II, 10. Aliter: ‘loss’.

(10) Died 309 C.E. half a century after Rab, who reported the same dirge.

(11) Identified by Obermeyer. 190ff as Askun — Zefia, two places in close proximity on the eastern bank of the Tigris, a parasanq (mile) from Sikara and, higher up. Mahoza, Raba's place.

(12) Reading מככבא instead of מככא as in our text (or D.S. מבבא) which means, ‘Withdraw the bone from the molar tooth’ which gives no sense, as the dying do not suck or gnaw a bone. It has hitherto defied all explanation. It is probably a misreading of ככבא from  or Latin cacabus a three-legged cooking pot synonymous with cucuma — קומקום — associated here with אנטיכי =  (V. Shab. 41a) meaning: He's dead, he needs no broth; fill now the pots and kettles with hot water to wash the dead instead.

(13) Cf. supra 24a about the mourner muffling himself in his cloak and covering his head. Han. and other commentators give other various interpretations.

(14) A robe of Milesian wool was the finest. V. Classical Dictionaries.

(15) Lit., ‘has come to an end’, has run out. Give him a decent funeral.

(16) Han. has different readings to the same effect — ‘Running and tumbling comes one with a wallet...’ Cf ‘a purse of denars’. B.M. 28b (Sonc. ed., p. 176) and v. Jast. 22a.

(17) Reading אזבזגי. Cf. Kohut, Ar. Compl. III, 264 s.v. זבזגי . His correction is confirmed by SBH p. 235. Kohut appropriately refers to Shab. 32a q.v. Han. gives another reading cited in Ar. Compl. l.c.: ‘Our brothers are merchants who are tested by the goods they sell’.

(18) Eccl. VII, 2.

(19) I.e., will cry aloud in his lament. Cf. Ber. 6b.

(20) Prov. XXV, 6-7.

(21) Comforters are not to speak until the mourner has acknowledged their presence by some word addressed to them. Cf. Job II, 11-13; III, 1ff

(22) Euphemistically altered by the Scribe, instead of saying. ‘My sins etc.’ ‘I troubled...’.

(23) Lev. X, 6.

(24) Lit., ‘is not this a fortiori?’

(25) Ibid. IX, 9, while assisting their father at the ceremony of their induction into the priestly office.

(26) I Kings XIV, 13.

(27) פרסדאות or פרזדאות = praesidia. V. Ar. Compl. VI, p. 418a. Var. lec. פריסתקאות cf. **

(28) Cf. B. B., Sonc. ed. p. 499.

(29) Jer. XXXIV, 5.

(30) Cf. Ibid. XXXVIII, 6.

(31) Zech. XII, 11. The quotation is interrupted by a comment.

(32) I Kings XXII, 34f.

(33) Translation of נכה — Necho. Cf. II Sam. IV, 4; IX, 3.

(34) II Kings XXIII, 29-20; II Chron. XXXV, 20ff.

(35) I Kings XXII, 35. The good deed consisted in the wounded king being propped up so as not to discourage the fighting men and not to give the enemy an advantage.
(36) Jer. XXXIV, 5.
(37) Ibid. XXXIX, 7.
(38) I.e., Zedekiah had the satisfaction to outlive his captor.
(39) II Kings XXII, 20 addressed to King Josiah.
(40) Il Chron. XXXV, 23.
(41) Taking the word החליתי (I have been made ill) as if it were from חלל (I am pierced, holed). Cf Num. XIX, 16. J. Kid. I, 7 adds: ‘They riddled him with three hundred arrows’,
(42) D.S., Han., Asheri and others have: Said Rab Judah, as citing Rab.
(43) Job. II, 13.
(44) Ibid. III, 1.
(45) Ibid. IV, 1.
(46) On the table etiquette of the ancients, both in Palestine and in Babylon, v. Ber. 46b, where both R. Naliman b. Isaac and Mar Zutra mentioned here are among the persons taking part in the discussion on this point.
(47) Job XXIX, 25. Possibly R. Abbahu and Mar Zutra (mentioned next) read into the terms ‘chief’ and ‘king’ the popular, familiar usage of these terms in Latin and Greek, by which they designated the person presiding over the toasts at the end of a feast, the rex convivii, basileus, or symposiarch. The following citation from Sem. XIV, (end), will make it clear: ‘Ten cups (toasts) they drink in the house of mourning; two before the meal, five during the meal and three after the meal (namely) one for the benediction of the mourners, one for comforting the mourners and one (in reference) to acts of loving-kindness (the merits of the deceased; the bearers of the biers and the orators at the funeral; cf. Sot. 14a). Then they added more cups — one (toast) for the "chief of the synagogue", one for the "administrator of the synagogue" and one to (the memory of) Rabban Gamaliel. But when the Beth din saw that some were coming away drunk they issued an inhibition (on the innovation) and made them go back to the old practice’. For considerable divergencies v. Keth. 8b. Cf. Ber. 46b. In J. Ber. III, 1 it is stated that the cup for Rabban Gamaliel had been introduced after his death. Seemingly it was introduced to commemorate his great social reform in directing the simplification of funerals. Cf. supra 27b, p. 177.
(48) Which is the equivalent of the passive ‘as when mourners are being comforted’. For other instances of this use of the third person singular in the passive sense v. Gen. XLVIII, 1-2 (someone told Joseph, one told Jacob). Cf. Gesenius, Hebrew Grammar, 144, 3a. Or, it may be pointed ינחם = as when ‘it being comforted’, i.e., when comfort is being tendered to mourners.
(49) Amos VI, 7. The rendering is here adapted to the requirements of the exposition. The prophet there threatens: Therefore now shall they (the callous revellers) go captive at the head of captives and the revelry (מרזח) of them that lay (סרוחים) stretching (on banqueting couches) shall pass away (סר). It is the three words, וסר מרזח סרוחים , in the second half of the sentence that are being strained to yield the sense required by Mar Zutra.
(50) וסר (and shall pass away) = ושר (and prince be).
(51) מרזח is divided into מר (bitter) and זח (moved, perturbed, distraught). Cf. Rashi on the parallel passage Keth. 69b. The term מרזח denotes solemn feasting, particularly a funerary repast, as seems clear from Jer. XVI, 5-8. Cf. Ar. Compl., a.v. Also, Kimhi on Jer. l.c. and on Amos, l.c.
(52) Cf. Amos VI, 4.
(53) Isa. LXI, 10.
(54) Lev. XXI, 8.
(55) The reading of the Law in the synagogue.

Talmud - Mas. Mo'ed Katan 29a

like the rigging[1] at the edge of the mast.[2] R. Johanan said, like the top-sail[3] at the edge of the mast.

R. Levi b. Hitha said: One bidding farewell to the dead should not say unto him ‘Go unto peace’, but ‘Go in peace’; one bidding farewell to the living [friend] should not say to him ‘Go in peace’. but ‘Go unto peace’. One bidding farewell to the dead should not say to him, ‘Go unto peace’, because it is said [unto Abraham]: But thou shalt go to thy fathers in Peace,’ thou shalt be buried.[4] One bidding farewell to the living [friend][5] should not say to him, ‘Go in peace’, but ‘Go unto peace’, because there was David [who] said to Absalom, ‘Go in peace,[6] and he went and was hanged.[7] Whereas, Jethro said to Moses, ‘Go unto peace,[8] [and] he went and succeeded.

And, said R. Levi:[9] Whoever comes out of the Synagogue and goes into the Beth Hamidrash, or from the Beth Hamidrash to the synagogue shall gain the privilege of being admitted into the Presence of the Shechinah,[10] as it is said: They go from strength to strength, every one of them appeareth before God in Zion.[11] R. Hiyya b. Ashi as citing Rab, said: The disciples of the Sages have no rest even in the world to come, as it is said: They go from strength to strength, every one of them appeareth before God in Zion.

---

(1) So Rashi here (which is not of Rashi's authorship) and on Ber. 8b. In this naval simile we need not be surprised to find the terms used to be of Greek origin, just as we have many naval terms in English of Dutch origin. צפורי in the sense of ‘rigging’ is seemingly the Greek  = cord, rope, especially a ship's cable. The term may mean the ‘top-sail’,  Latin, siparum and supparum, which is defined by Festus as, Velum Minus in navi ut acation (acatium) majus; (v. Lewis and Short, Lat. Dict. s.v.).

(2) וושט, connected by Rashi with תורן (a mast) is the Greek **.

(3) פטורי is the Greek  which means, anything suspended aloft or fluttering in mid-air, a top-mast or pennant.

(4) Gen. XV, 15.

(5) So Asheri and other texts.

(6) II Sam. XV, 9.

(7) Ibid. XVIII, 9ff.

(8) Ex. IV, 18.

(9) Ber. 64a has R. Levi b. Hiyya.

(10) The Divine Presence.

(11) Ps. LXXXIV, 8.

C H A P T E R I

MISHNAH. ALL ARE BOUND To APPEAR [AT THE TEMPLE],[1] EXCEPT A DEAF MAN [HERESH],[2] AN IMBECILE AND A MINOR,[3] A PERSON OF UNKNOWN SEX [TUMTUM],[4] A HERMAPHRODITE,[5] WOMEN, UNFREED SLAVES,[6] THE LAME, THE BLIND, THE SICK, THE AGED, AND ONE WHO IS UNABLE TO GO UP ON FOOT.[7] WHO IS [IN THIS RESPECT DEEMED] A MINOR?[8] WHOEVER IS UNABLE[9] TO RIDE ON HIS FATHER'S SHOULDERS AND GO UP FROM JERUSALEM TO THE TEMPLE MOUNT. [THIS IS] THE VIEW OF BETH SHAMMAI.

BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: WHOEVER IS UNABLE TO HOLD HIS FATHER'S HAND AND GO UP FROM JERUSALEM TO THE TEMPLE MOUNT, FOR IT IS SAID:[10] THREE REGALIM.[11]

BETH SHAMMAI SAY: THE PILGRIMAGE-OFFERING[12] MUST BE WORTH [AT LEAST] TWO PIECES OF SILVER[13] AND THE FESTAL OFFERING[14] ONE MA'AH OF SILVER.[15] BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: THE PILGRIMAGE-OFFERING MUST BE WORTH [AT LEAST] ONE MA'AH OF SIlver AND THE FESTAL SACRIFICE TWO PIECES OF SILVER.

GEMARA. What does [the word] ALL come to include?[16] — It comes to include one who is half a slave and half a freedman.[17] But according to Rabina, who says: One who is half a slave and half a freedman is exempt from appearing [at the Temple], what does [the word] ALL come to include? — It comes to include one who was lame on the first day [of the festival] and became well[18] on the second.

This will be right according to the one who says: All of them[19] can make good [the sacrifices] for one another;[20] but according to the one who says: All of them can make good [the sacrifices] of the first day [only],[21] what does ALL, come to include? — It comes to include a man who is blind in one eye; and it is contrary to the opinion of the following Tanna. For it is taught: Johanan b. Dahabai[22] said in the name of R. Judah: A man who is blind in one eye is exempt from appearing [at the Temple][23] as it is said:[24] Yir'eh [He will see], Yera'eh [He will be seen].[25]

As He comes to see, so he comes to be seen: just as [He comes] to see with both eyes, so also to be seen with both eyes. Alternatively, I could answer: Actually, it is as I said at first;[26] and as for your objection [arising] from the statement of Rabina, it is not a [valid] objection: the one [teaching][27] is according to the earlier Mishnah,[28] and the other[29] is according to the later Mishnah.[30] For we have learnt: One who is half a slave and half a freedman serves his master one day and himself the other day: this is the view of Beth Hillel. Said Beth Shammai to them:

---

(1) I.e., at the Temple Court (עזרה), on the three Pilgrim Festivals of Passover, Pentecost and Tabernacles; cf. Ex. XXIII, 14, 17; Deut. XVI, 16. The word ראייה (rendered in our text, ‘to appear’) is understood by Rashi, Maimonides, Jastrow, Danby etc. in the sense of ראיית פנים, the personal appearance of the pilgrim in the Temple. But R. Tam (in Tosaf. a. l.) regards it as referring to the burnt-offering (v. Lev. I, 3f) brought by the pilgrim on his visit to the Temple i.e. it stands for עולת ראייה; cf. end of Mishnah, 4b, 6b et seq.

(2) Explained infra 2b as a ‘deaf-mute’.

(3) The deaf man, imbecile and minor are exempted from the observance of this and other positive precepts on account of lack of intelligence. The reason for the exemption of others is explained in the Gemara.

(4) טומטום from טמם ‘to fill up stop’: one whose genitals are concealed or undeveloped.

(5) אנדרוגינוס Grk. **.

(6) Explained infra 4a as ‘half free’; v. p. 2, n. 6.

(7) I.e., from Jerusalem to the Temple Mount.

(8) Ordinarily, a boy up to the age of thirteen years and a day is considered a minor

(9) I.e., is too young; but as soon as he is old enough he must visit the Temple, because, although exempt by the Law of the Torah till he reaches his majority (v. n. 8), the Rabbis imposed on the father the duty of training him in the observance of the precepts.

(10) Ex. XXIII, 14.

(11) רגלים (pl. of רגל) rendered in E.V. by ‘times’, occurs in this sense again only in Num. XXII, 28, 32, 33. On the basis of Ex. XXIII, 14, the Mishnah often uses רגלים of the three Pilgrim Festivals. But the usual meaning of רגל is ‘foot’, hence the quotation is understood in our Mishnah as ‘three times on foot’ i.e., the precept to appear at the Temple applies only to those who can walk.

(12) ראייה, the word translated above ‘to appear’ (v. p. 1, n. 1). Here it stands for עולת ראייה, the burnt-offering, which, it was inferred from Ex. XXIII,15 (end), the pilgrim had to bring on visiting the Temple.

(13) I.e., two ma'ahs, v. n. 4.

(14) חגיגה, whence our tractate derives its name. It was a peace-offering (cf. Lev. III,15) and was inferred from Lev. XXIII, 41; v. infra 9a.

(15) A sixth of a denar, v. Glos.

(16) The word ‘ALL’ is emphatic’; it implies that persons who might be thought exempt are subject to the commandment; hence the question.

(17) E.g., he belonged to two masters, and was freed by one of them.

(18) Lit., ‘became straight’ (in limb).

(19) I.e.,the seven individual days of the festival.

(20) I.e., if a man was unfit to bring his sacrifices on the first day of the festival (e.g.,if he was exempt on account of lameness) and during the festival he became fit (i.e., regained the use of his leg), it is his duty to make good his sacrificial dues on the day of the festival that he becomes fit.

(21) I.e., if he was unfit on the first day, he is completely exempt, though he becomes fit in the course of the festival.

(22) Probably the name means, ‘Goldsmith’.

(23) Or, according to Tosaf. (v. p. 1, n. 1), ‘exempt from bringing the pilgrimage- offering’; and so wherever the translation has ‘appearing’.

(24) Ex. XXIII, 17.

(25) יראה may be vocalised יראה (Kal, ‘He will see’) or following the Massorah, יראה (Nif'al, ‘He will be seen, appear); cf. Gen. XXII, 14. By combining both readings, it is deduced that the ‘seeing’ and ‘being seen’ must be alike in regard to fulness of vision i.e., in regard to the use of both eyes: just as God comes to see the pilgrim with both eyes (an anthropomorphism for full vision necessitated by the desired parallel in respect to man), so when the pilgrim comes to appear before God, he must be able to see with both eyes. So Rashi: but R. Tam (in Tosaf. a.l.) prefers to make man the subject, and construes thus; יראהתיראה just as the pilgrim is seen by God, Who has two eyes (i.e., full vision), so he must see Him (i.e., appear in the Divine presence) with both eyes.

(26) I.e., that the word all comes to include a half-slave.

(27) I.e., the statement that unfreed slaves are exempt from visiting the Temple, which Rabina interprets as inferring such as are half free.

(28) I.e., the Mishnah as it was formulated before the School of Hillel (whose ruling was authoritative against that of the Shammaite School cf. Ber. 36b and Gratz, vol. IV, p. 424, n. 4; Heb. edn. vol. II, p. 172, n. 1) came over to the view of the School of Shammai.משנה ראשונה (rendered, ‘the earlier Mishnah’) may refer either (a) to a single previous ruling later revised, or (b) to an entire compilation of the Mishnah, in which case it may be rendered, ‘the first Mishnah’; cf. J.E. vol. VIII, P. 610f, and refs.

(29) V. note 4.

(30) I.e., representing the later opinion of the School of Hillel. Though this second opinion contradicts the first, the earlier ruling was not erased from the Mishnah, on the principle that a Mishnah (ruling) which had once been taught was not to be removed from its place; cf. Yeb. 30a et passim.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 2b

You have made it right for his master,[1] but you have not made it right for himself[2] He may not marry a bondwoman, nor may he marry a freewoman.[3] Should he abstain [from marriage]? But then was not the world created only for propagation?[4] as it is said:[5] 'He created it not a waste, He formed it to be inhabited'. For the sake of the social order,[6] therefore, his master must be compelled to set him free, and the latter must give him a bond for the half of his value. Thereupon Beth Hillel retracted and gave their ruling in accordance with the view of Beth Shammai.

EXCEPT A DEAF MAN [HERESH], AN IMBECILE AND A MINOR etc. [Our Mishnah] speaks of HERESH similarly as of the IMBECILE and MINOR: just as the IMBECILE and MINOR lack understanding, so HERESH [means] one that lacks understanding. This teaches us in accordance with that which we have learnt:[7] 'Wherever the Sages speak of HERESH,[8] [it means] one who can neither hear nor speak.[9] This [would imply] that he who can speak but not hear,[10] hear but not speak is obligated.[11] We have [thus] learnt that which our Rabbis taught.[12] One who can speak but not hear is termed HERESH: one who can hear but not speak is termed Illem [dumb]; both of these are deemed sensible in all that relates to them. And whence [is it deduced] that one who can speak but not hear is termed Heresh, and one who can hear but not speak is termed 'Illem? — For it is written: But I am as Heresh [a deaf man], I hear not,' and I am as Illem [a dumb man] that openeth not his mouth.[13] Alternatively, I could explain: As people say,[14] His words have been taken away.[15]

'One that can speak but not hear, hear but not speak is obligated'. But surely it is taught: One that can speak but not hear, hear but not speak is exempt![16] — Said Rabina, and according to others, Raba: [Our Mishnah] is defective and should read thus: All are bound to appear [at the Temple] and to rejoice,[17] except a Heresh that can speak but not hear, [or] hear but not speak, who is exempt from appearing [at the Temple];[18] but though he is exempt from appearing, he is bound to rejoice. One, however, that can neither hear nor speak,[19] an imbecile and a minor are exempt even from rejoicing, since they are exempt from all the precepts stated in the Torah,[20] Likewise it is also taught: All are bound to appear [at the Temple] and to rejoice, except a Heresh that can speak but not hear, [or] hear but not speak, who is exempt from appearing; but though he is exempt from appearing

---

(1) I.e., he gets the full benefit of his half-ownership.

(2) R. Meshullam (in Tosaf.) prefers the opposite reading. 'You have made it right for himself, but you have not made it right at all for his master'; because the latter loses any possible share of the offspring.

(3) Being partly a freedman he may not marry a slave; being partly a slave he may not marry a freewoman; v. Deut. XXIII, 18 and Targum Onkelos a.l.

(4) Lit., 'for fruitfulness and multiplication', cf. Gen. I, 28.

(5) Isa. XLV, 18.

(6) Lit., 'for the sake of the establishment (or improvement) of the world'; cf Git. IV, 2, 3, where Danby renders; 'as a precaution for the general good'.

(7) Ter. I, 2.

(8) I.e., together with the Imbecile and Minor.

(9) Tosaf. quotes and explains exceptions to this rule: cf. Meg. 19b and Hul. 2a.

(10) E.g., he was able to hear when born and learnt to speak, but later became deaf.

(11) I.e., to fulfil the precept of appearing at the Temple.

(12) I.e., our Mishnah supports and thus gives validity to the following Baraitha. (11) This statement agrees, by implication, with our Mishnah, which puts only a deaf-mute in the same category as an imbecile.

(13) Ps. XXXVIII, 14.

(14) I.e., a popular proverb; v. J.E vol X, p. 226f.

(15) I.e., אלם ('dumb') is an abbreviation of אשתקיל מלןליה ('his words have been taken away').

(16) I.e., from visiting the Temple; thus the Baraitha contradicts our Mishnah.

(17) V. Deut. XVI, 14. Ritually the rejoicing took the form of a sacrificial meal of peace-offerings; cf. infra 8b and Pes. 109a.

(18) And from bringing the accompanying burnt-offering.

(19) I.e.,the Heresh of our Mishnah. Thus the fully worded Mishnah would refer to two kinds of Heresh: (a) the partial Heresh that can either speak or hear, who must ‘rejoice’, though he is exempt from visiting the Temple; (b) the complete Heresh, who is exempt from both.

(20) Torah primarily refers to the Pentateuch, but also has a wider meaning, which includes the whole Bible and even the entire range of Jewish teaching, both study and practice.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 3a

he is bound to rejoice. One, however, that can neither hear nor speak, an imbecile and a minor are exempt even from rejoicing, since they are exempt from all the precepts stated in the Torah. Why is it that in regard to appearing they are exempt, and in regard to rejoicing they are obligated? With regard to appearing, it is deduced by forming an analogy between the expressions for appearing[1] from [the section] ‘Assemble’,[2] for it is written: Assemble the people, the men and the women and the little ones;[3] and it is [further] written: When all Israel is come to appear.[4] But whence is it deduced for the latter?[5] — For it is written: That they may hear and that they may learn.[3] And it is taught: ‘That they may hear’, [this] excludes one that can speak but not hear; ‘and that they may learn’, [this] excludes one that can hear but not speak. Does this then mean to say that one that cannot talk cannot learn? But behold there were two dumb men in the neighbourhood of Rabbi, sons of the daughter of R. Johanan b. Gudgada, and according to others, sons of the sister of R. Johanan, who, whenever Rabbi entered the College, went in and sat down [before him], and nodded their heads and moved their lips. And Rabbi prayed for them[6] and they were cured,[7] and it was found that they were versed in Halachah,[8] Sifra,[9] Sifre[10] and the whole Talmud![11] Said Mar Zutra, Read, That they may teach.[12] R. Ashi said: Assuredly it is [to be read]: That they may teach.[13] For if you suppose [that it should be read]: That they may learn, and [argue that] if one cannot talk one cannot learn (and [obviously] if one cannot hear one cannot learn),[14] that follows from [the expression]: That they may hear.[15] Therefore, it must certainly be [read]: That they may teach.[16]

R. Tanhum said: One that is deaf in one ear is exempt from appearing [at the Temple], for it is said: In their ears.[17] But [this expression], ‘in their ears’,is required [to teach that it[18] must be] in the ears of all Israel![19] — That can be deduced from [the expression],[20] ‘before all Israel’. But if [it were deduced] from [the expression] ‘before all Israel’, I might say: Even though they did not hear;[21] therefore it is written in the Divine Law:[22] in their ears,’ they must be able to hear![23] — That call be deduced from [the expression], in order that they may hear.[24]

R. Tanhum said: One that is lame in one foot is exempt from appearing [at the Temple], as it is said: Regalim [on foot].[25] But this [word] Regalim is required to exclude people with wooden legs! — That follows from [the word] Pe'amim [steps].[26] For it is taught: ‘Pe'amim’; ‘Pe'amim’ means only feet;[27] and thus it is said: The foot shall tread it down, even the feet of the poor, and the steps of [pa'ame][28] the needy.[29] And it further says: How beautiful are thy steps [pe'amayik] in sandals, O prince's daughter.[30]

Raba expounded: What is the meaning of the verse: ‘How beautiful are thy steps in sandals, O prince's daughter’. [It means:] How comely are the feet of Israel when they go up on the festival pilgrimage. ‘Prince's daughter’: [means] daughter of Abraham our father, who is called prince, as it is said: The princes of the peoples are gathered together, the people of the God of Abraham.[31] ‘The God of Abraham’, and not the God of Isaac and Jacob? [It must mean], therefore, the God of Abraham, who was the first of the Proselytes.[32]

R. Kahana said: R. Nathan b. Minyomi expounded in the name of R. Tanhum:[33] What is the meaning of the verse: And the pit was empty, there was no water in it?[34] Since it says that the pit was empty, would I not know that there was no water in it? [It must mean] therefore, there was no water in it, but there were in it snakes and scorpions.

Our Rabbis taught: Once R. Johanan b. Beroka and R. Eleazar Hisma[35] went to pay their respects to R. Joshua at Peki'in.[36] Said he to them: What new teaching was there at the College to-day? They replied: We are thy disciples and thy waters do we drink.[37] Said he to them: Even so, it is impossible for a college session to pass without some novel teaching. Whose Sabbath[38] was it? — It was the Sabbath of R. Eleazar b. ‘Azariah, [they replied].-And what was the theme of his Haggadic[39] discourse to-day? They answered: The section ‘Assemble’.[40] And what exposition did he give thereon? ‘Assemble the people the men and the women and the little ones’. If the men came to learn, the women came to hear,[41] but wherefore have the little ones to come? In order to grant reward[42] to those that bring them. Said he to them: There was a fair Jewel in your hand, and you sought to deprive me of it.

He further expounded: Thou hast avouched the Lord this day . . . and the Lord has avouched thee this day.[43] The Holy One, blessed be He, said to Israel: You have made me a unique object of your love[44] in the world, and I shall make you a unique object of My love in the world.[45] You have made me a unique object of your love, as it is written: Hear, O Israel, the Lord our God, the Lord is One.[46] And I shall make you a unique object of My love, as it is said:

---

(1) I.e., יראה (‘shall appear’) in Ex. XXIII, 17 and לראות (‘to appear’) in Deut. XXXI, 11.

(2) Deut. XXXI, 10-13. The name is derived from the introductory word in the verse that follows.

(3) Deut. XXXI, v. 12.

(4) Ibid. v.11

(5) I.e., how do we know that a Heresh that can hear or speak is exempt from the precept referred to in Deut. XXXI, 10-13.

(6) Lit., ‘he besought (God's) mercy on this behalf’.

(7) On the efficacy of prayer, v. J.E. vol. X, pp. 168-169.

(8) הלכה from הלך ‘to go, follow’, means literally ‘going’, ‘walking’ then figuratively: ‘the teaching which one follows, the rule or state by which one is guided,the categorical religious law’, (H. L. Strack, Intro. to the Talmud, p. 6 ¤ 7: v. whole section and refs.). The last meaning applies here. Cf. also the refs. to Halachah in R. T. Herford's The Pharisees, esp. Ch. III. V. Glos.

(9) ‘The Book’, also called Torath Kohanim (‘Law of the Priests’) is a halachic Midrash on Leviticus.

(10) ספרי or more fully, ספרי דבי רב (‘the Books of the School of Rab’) is a halachic Midrash on Numbers (commencing with Ch. 5) and on Deut. V. Glos.

(11) ש״ס Lit., ‘six orders’ into which the Mishnah, and consequently the Talmud, which is the commentary on it, is divided. [MS.M. reads, ‘Talmud’].

(12) I.e., ילמדו (Pi'el) for ילמדו (Kal). Such textual changes are not to be regarded as serious Biblical emendations, but as part of the exegetical method of the Rabbis for the purpose of halachic and Haggadic deduction.

(13) I.e., quite apart from the instance of the two dumb scholars, it can be proved that teach is the right reading.

(14) [MS.M. omits bracketed words which, in fact, are superfluous].

(15) The underlying reason for excluding the deaf is their inability to learn. If now you suppose that the dumb cannot learn, their exclusion can be inferred from the expression, ‘that they may hear’, which excludes the deaf, and similarly the dumb, and the words ‘that they may learn’ are superfluous.

(16) And the inference that a dumb person cannot learn falls away.

(17) Deut. XXXI, 11. The plural indicates that those present must be able to hear with both ears; and by analogy (v. supra p. 5, n. 9) we apply this rule also to the law of Ex. XXIII, 17.

(18) The public reading referred to in the section ‘Assemble’ (v. p. 5, n. 10); cf. Sot. 41a.

(19) I.e., in their hearing.

(20) Deut. ibid.

(21) I.e., were too far away; not that they were deaf.

(22) Lit., ‘The Merciful One wrote’, i.e., God revealed through Scripture. V. Bacher, Exeg. Term. II, 207f.

(23) This expression, therefore, cannot be used for the inference that a person deaf in one ear is exempt.

(24) Ibid. v. 12. Thus ‘in their ears’ is available for R. Tanhum's teaching.

(25) Ex. XXIII, 14. V. supra p. 5, n. 10. The word is probably read here רגלים (dual): the pilgrim must have use of both feet.

(26) Ex. XXIII, 17. פעמים E.V. ‘times’ (cf. supra p. 1, n. 11) is here understood in its root meaning of ‘steps’, i.e., only those having their own legs must visit the Temple.

(27) I.e., natural as opposed to artificial feet.

(28) פעמי (steps) being parallel to רגלי (feet) must mean the same as the latter.

(29) Isa. XXVI, 6.

(30) Cant. VII, 2. The word sandals is additional evidence that פעמים refers to natural feet.

(31) Ps. XLVII, 10.

(32) ‘Prince’ (נדיב) means lit., ‘one who offers himself willingly’ i.e., for God's service. Abraham was the first to confess and worship the Lord, and the reference to the ‘princes, the peoples’ is to the proselytes who, like Abraham, offer themselves to the service of God.

(33) The name of R. Tanhum is the link between the preceding and the following exposition.

(34) Gen. XXXVII, 24.

(35) In Tr. Soferim the reading is Eleazar b. Hisma. For the cognomen which is not adjectival (i.e., ‘muzzled’) but locative (prob. a native of Hismeh’) v. J.E. Vol. V, p. 99.

(36) Also Beki'in, modern Fukin, in S. Palestine between Lydda and Jabneh (Jast.). It was customary for pupils to visit their teacher on holy days; cf. R.H. 16b.

(37) I.e., disciples may not speak before their teacher (Rashi); or we cannot possibly have anything to teach you.

(38) R. Gamaliel used to lecture on two (or three) Sabbaths and R. Eleazar b. ‘Azariah on the third (or fourth) v. Ber. 28a.

(39) Haggadah (הגדה), a nomen actionis of הגיד (to tell), denotes all scriptural interpretation which is non-halachic (i.e., non-legal) in character (H. L. Strack). V. Glos.

(40) V. supra p. 5, n. 10.

(41) But not to study it fully; cf. J.T., Sot. III, 4. For the status of the woman in Judaism v. J.E. vol. XII, p. 556.

(42) For the Rabbinic conception of reward v. R. T. Herford, op. cit. pp. 123-24, 127-120.

(43) Deut. XXVI, 17-18.

(44) חטיבה אחת Jast. ‘the only object of your love’ (from root meaning ‘to fall in love, woo’); Levy, ‘Herrscher’ (ruler) comparing it, according to Bacher, with Pers. ‘Khedive’; Goldschmidt, ‘Verherrlichung’ (glorification); Rashi, ‘sole or unique object of praise’; Aruch, in the name of R. Hai Gaon, ‘Unique concept’ (ציור אחת); Maharsha (quoting Rashi to Deut. XXVI, 17) ‘separation. (from root meaning ‘to hew’).

(45) Aruch reads: ‘in this world . . . in the world to come’.

(46) Deut. VI, 4. For different renderings of this verse v. I. Abrahams, A companion to the Auth. Daily Prayer Book, p. LI.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 3b

And who is like unto Thy people Israel, a nation one in the earth.[1] And he[2] also took up the text and expounded: The words of the wise are as goads, and as nails well planted are the words of masters of Assemblies, which are given from one Shepherd.[3]

Why are the words of the Torah[4] likened to a goad? To teach you that just as the goad directs the heifer along its furrow in order to bring forth life to the world, so the words of the Torah direct those who study them from the paths of death to the paths of life. But [should you think] that just as the goad is movable so the words of the Torah are movable;[5] therefore the text says: ‘nails’.

But [should you think] that just as the nail diminishes[6] and does not increase, so too the words of the Torah diminish and do not increase; therefore the text says: ‘well planted’; just as a plant grows and increases, so the words of the Torah grow and increase.

‘The masters of assemblies’: these are the disciples of the wise, who sit in manifold assemblies and occupy themselves with the Torah, some pronouncing unclean and others pronouncing clean, some prohibiting and others permitting, some disqualifying[7] and others declaring fit.

Should a man say: How in these circumstances shall I learn Torah?[8] Therefore the text says: ‘All of them are given from one Shepherd’. One God gave them;[9] one leader[10] uttered them from the mouth of the Lord of all creation, blessed be He; for it is written: ‘And God spoke all these words’.[11] Also do thou make thine ear like the hopper[12] and get thee a perceptive heart to understand the words of those who pronounce unclean and the words of those who pronounce clean, the words of those who prohibit and the words of those who permit, the words of those who disqualify and the words of those who declare fit. He [then] spoke to them[13] in the following words: It is not an orphan generation in which R. Eleazar b. ‘Azariah lives. But they could have told him directly![14] — It was on account of a certain occurrence. For it is taught: Once R. Jose b. Durmaskith[15] went to pay his respects to R. Eliezer at Lod.[16] Said the latter to him: What new thing was taught in College today? He replied: They decided by vote that in Ammon and Moab[17] the tithe of the poor should be given in the seventh year.[18] Said [R. Eliezer] to him: Jose, stretch forth thine hands and lose thy sight.[19] He stretched forth his hands and lost his sight. R. Eliezer [then] wept and said: The counsel of the Lord is with them that fear Him,’ and His covenant, to make them know it.[20] He [then] said to him: Go, say to them: Be not concerned about your voting,[21] thus have I received a tradition from Rabban[22] Johanan b. Zakkai, who heard [it] from his teacher, and his teacher from his teacher, that it is a halachah of Moses from Sinai[23] that in Ammon and Moab the tithe of the poor is to be given in the seventh year. What is the reason? — Many cities were conquered by those who came up from Egypt, which were not conquered by those who came up from Babylon; since the first consecration[24] held [only] for the time,[25] but did not hold for the future [permanently],[26] therefore they were left[27] in order that the poor might be sustained upon them in the seventh year. It is taught: When his mind was calmed, he said: May it be granted that Jose's sight be restored.[28] And it was restored.

Our Rabbis taught: Who is [deemed] an imbecile? He that goes out alone at night[29] and he that spends the night in a cemetery, and he that tears his garments. It was taught: R. Huna said: They must all be [done] together.[30] R. Johanan said: Even if [he does only] one of them. What is the case? If he does them in an insane manner, even one is also [proof]. If he does not do them in an insane manner, even all of them [prove] nothing? — Actually [it is a case where] he does them in an insane manner. But if he spent the night in a cemetery, I might say: He did [it] in order that the spirit of impurity might rest upon him.[31] If he went out alone at night, I might say: He was seized by lycanthropy.[32] If he tore his garment, I might say: He was lost in thought. But as soon as he does them all,

---

(1) I Chron. XVII, 21; for thought, cf. Midrash quoted in Tosaf. a.l.

(2) I.e., according to Rashi, R. Eleazar b. ‘Azariah; but according to Maharsha and Goldschmidt, R. Joshua.

(3) Eccl. XII, 11.

(4) The ‘words of the wise’ are identified with ‘the words of the Torah’.

(5) I.e., unstable and of impermanent authority.

(6) The nail driven into the wall makes a hole.

(7) To act as witness, or as priest.

(8) I.e., in view of the contradictory opinions held by the scholars.

(9) I.e., the various opinions do not emanate from different ‘Revelations’, but have their origin in the One Torah, given by the One God. Cf. Tanhuma to Num. XIX, 2, section 8; and ref. to Moses and Akiba Men. 29b.

(10) I.e., Moses. The term ‘Shepherd’ (רעה) is applied in the Bible both to God (e.g., Gen. XLVIII, 15; Ps. LXXX, 2) and to Moses (e.g., Isa. LXIII, 11). Maharsha.

(11) Ex. XX, 1.

(12) אפרכסת According to Jast. from root פרכס (to rub, grind), itself an extension of root פרך (to break). According to Levy, from the Greek. The hopper, being funnel-shaped, more enters it than issues from it, i.e., hear all views, and then sift them and accept the true.

(13) I.e., R. Joshua to his two disciples.

(14) I.e., why did they at first evade R. Joshua's request by saying: We are thy disciples etc.?

(15) I.e., woman of Damascus.

(16) Cf. I Chron. VIII, 12; afterwards Lydda and later Diospolis, near Joppa.

(17) According to Rashi, that part of Ammon and Moab which was subjugated by Sihon and Og, and later was captured from them by the Israelites (v. Num. XXI, 21-35. and Hul. 60b). But according to R. Tam (in Tosaf.), it refers to the rest of Ammon and Moab, not conquered by Sihon and Og.

(18) In Transjordania, which did not possess the sanctity of Palestine proper, the land did not have to be fallow in the seventh year (cf. Lev. XXV, 2f). Accordingly, the Rabbis ordained that the tithe of the poor, although given the preceding year, should again be given in the seventh year. V. Deut. XIV, 28-29 and Sifre a.l.; cf. also Lev. XXIII, 22 and Deut. XXIV, 19.

(19) Lit., ‘receive thine eyes’, a euphemism. He was vexed because R. Jose ascribed an old traditional law to the particular session in his college.

(20) Ps. XXV, 14.

(21) I.e., have no scruples concerning it.

(22) Lit., ‘our teacher’, the honorific title of several descendants of Hillel, and of R. Johanan b. Zakkai.

(23) A statute in immemorial usage. V. Strack, op. cit., p. 9 and nn. 17-21.

(24) I.e., under Joshua: the territory conquered by Israel became holy.

(25) I.e., till the first exile.

(26) But the territory occupied by those who returned from Babylon was consecrated for ever.

(27) I.e., Ammon and Moab were left unconsecrated after the Babylonian captivity.

(28) Lit., ‘that Jose's eyes may return to their place’.

(29) Cf. Aboth III, 4.

(30) I.e., a person is not considered legally an imbecile till he performs all the above mentioned acts together. [Var. lec. rightly omit together’].

(31) I.e., he did it with full understanding for the purpose of conjuring up evil spirits for magical purposes (Rash); or to receive communications from them, cf. LXX in Isa. LXV, 4 (A. W. Streane).

(32) גנדריפום corruption of the Grk.  or  sub : German, Wolfsmuth.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 4a

he becomes like [an ox] who gored an ox, an ass and a camel, and becomes [thereby] a mu'ad [forewarned gorer][1] in regard to all [animals]. R. Papa said: If R. Huna had heard of that which is taught: Who is [deemed] an imbecile? ‘One that destroys all that is given to him’; he would have retracted.[2] The question was raised: When he would have retracted, would he have retracted only with regard to the [case of the] man who tore his garment, because it resembles this [case];[3] or would he have retracted with regard to all of them?[4] — It remains [undecided].

A PERSON OF UNKNOWN SEX [TUMTUM], A HERMAPHRODITE etc.: Our Rabbis taught: [The word] ‘males’[5] [by itself] comes to exclude women;[6] [the expression]. ‘thy males’, comes to exclude the tumtum and hermaphrodite; ‘all thy males’ comes to include minors.

The Master said: [The word] ‘males’ comes to exclude women. But why do I need a verse for this? Consider: it is a positive precept dependent on a fixed time, and women are exempt from every positive precept dependent on a fixed time![7] — It is needed. You might say: We can make a deduction by forming an analogy between the expressions for appearing, from [the section] ‘Assemble’:[8] just as there women are obligated. so here women are obligated; it therefore teaches us [that it is not so].

The Master said: [The expression]. ‘thy males’, comes to exclude a tumtum and a hermaphrodite. Granted that with regard to the hermaphrodite it is necessary [for Scripture to exclude him]. You might say that since he has a male aspect, he is obligated; it therefore teaches us that he is sui generis.[9] But the tumtum is a dubious case;[10] is a Biblical text required to exclude a dubious case?[11] — Said Abaye: [It is required for the case] where his testicles are outside.[12]

The Master said: [The expression], ‘all thy males’, comes to include minors. But we have learnt: EXCEPT AN IMBECILE AND A MINOR! — Said Abaye: There is no contradiction. The one case [speaks] of a minor who is old enough to be initiated,[13] the other of a minor who is not old enough to be initiated. But a minor who is old enough to be initiated is obligated only by Rabbinic enactment![14] — Yes, it is so; and the Biblical text is merely a support.[15] What then is the purpose of the Biblical text?[16] — To intimate the teaching of ‘Others’.[17] For it is taught: Others say: The scraper.[18] the copper-smith[19] and the tanner are exempt from appearing [at the Temple], for it is said: ‘All thy males’: he that is able to go up [on the pilgrimage] with all thy males. These, therefore, are excluded, because they are not fit[20] to go up with all thy males.

WOMEN AND UNFREED SLAVES etc.: Granted as regards women, as we have said;[21] but as regards slaves, whence do we deduce [their exemption]? — Said R. Huna: Scripture says: before the Lord, God:[22] [this means] one that has one Lord; this one,[23] therefore, is excluded because he has another lord.[24] But why do I need a Biblical intimation for this? Consider: every precept which is obligatory on a woman is obligatory on a slave; every precept which is not obligatory on a woman is not obligatory on a slave; for this is deduced by analogy from [the case of] the woman, through the double occurrence of [the expression] unto her.[25] Said Rabina: It[26] is needed only for [the exemption of] one that is half a slave and half a freedman![27] This can also be proven; for [the Mishnah] speaks of WOMEN AND UNFREED SLAVES. What is meant by unfreed? Should I say that it means entirely unfreed, then it should simply say, ‘Slaves’! Surely, therefore [it must mean] slaves that have not been completely freed. And who are such? Those that are half slaves and half freedmen. Proven.

THE LAME, THE BLIND, THE SICK, THE AGED: Our Rabbis taught: ‘Regalim’ [on foot]:[28] this excludes people with wooden legs. Another interpretation:[29] Regalim: this excludes the lame, the sick, the blind, the aged, and one that cannot go up on foot. ‘And one that cannot go up on foot’: What does this come to include? — Said Raba: It comes to include

---

(1) Lit., ‘forewarned’; an animal whose owner stands forewarned and consequently liable to full indemnity on account of three successive injuries (V. Ex. XXI, 36).

(2) I.e., he would have considered this action by itself as proof of imbecility.

(3) I.e., the case of the man who destroys whatever is given to him.

(4) I.e., he would have agreed entirely with R. Johanan's view.

(5) In the phrase ‘all thy males’. Ex. XXIII, 17.

(6) I.e., from obligation to visit the Temple; v. Mishnah, p. 1.

(7) The exemption of women from the performance of these precepts is not due to any inferiority of status, but to delicate consideration for their physical nature; cf. also Kid. 29a and 34af.

(8) V. supra p. 5, n. 10. This law likewise is dependent on a fixed time.

(9) And to be excluded.

(10) Even more dubious than that of the hermaphrodite, because the sexual organs of the former are concealed. Thus the tumtum may be a female and quite exempt from appearing at the Temple.

(11) It would in any case be exempt because obligation could not be proven. For another explanation and reading v. Tosaf. a.l., and Maharsha.

(12) And only the membrum is hidden: being certain of the sex, we might think that he is bound to appear; Scripture therefore prevents this conclusion.

(13) V. Mishnah p. 1, n. 9.

(14) And not by Biblical injunction; therefore the verse cannot refer to this case.

(15) I.e., a confirmation; or perhaps a mnemotechnical aid.

(16) I.e., the word ‘all’; for there are no superfluous expressions in the Bible.

(17) I.e., R. Meir, who is quoted under this term subsequent to the unsuccessful conspiracy by R. Nathan and himself against Rabban Simon b. Gamaliel; v. Hor. 13b.

[18] V. Keth. 77a, where this word (מקמץ) is explained as (a) one that collects dog's excrements (used, according to Rashi ibid., for steeping clothes prior to laundering, and according to Rashi here, for preparing cordwain); (b) a tanner on a small scale, in contr. to בורסי a tanner on a large scale.

[19] Explained ibid. as (a) a kettle-smith; (b) one that digs copper in the shaft.

[20] On account of the malodour resulting from these occupations.

[21] V. supra p. 13.

[22] Ex. XXIII, 17.

[23] I.e., the slave.

[24] I.e.,a human master in addition to his Divine Master.

[25] V. Deut. XXIV, 3 (of the woman), and Lev. XIX, 20 (of the bondwoman).

[26] I.e., the Biblical intimation.

[27] This is in accordance with ‘the earlier Mishnah’ (v. supra p. 3, nn. 6, 8), but according to ‘the later Mishnah’, the master is compelled to free the half slave, who is then bound to appear at the Temple.

[28] V. p. 7, n. 11.

[29] The first interpretation is not quite satisfactory, because the exclusion of people with wooden legs can be deduced from פעמים in Ex. XXIII, 17; cf. p. 7. n. 12.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 4b

a delicate person.[1] For it is written: When ye come to appear before Me, who hath required this at your hand, to trample[2] My courts?[3]

A Tanna taught: The uncircumcised[4] and the unclean[5] are exempt from [bringing] the pilgrimage-offering.[6] Granted as regards the unclean, for it is written: And thither thou shalt come,’ and thither ye shall bring.[7] To whomever ‘coming’ applies, ‘bringing’ applies; to whomever ‘coming’ does not apply, ‘bringing’ does not apply. But whence do we derive [the exemption of] the uncircumcised? — This will be according to R. Akiba, who includes the uncircumcised like the unclean. For it is taught: R. Akiba said: [the expression], what man soever,[8] comes to include uncircumcised.[9]

Our Rabbis taught: An unclean person is exempt from [bringing] the pilgrimage-offering, for it is written: ‘And thither thou shalt come; and thither ye shall bring’. To whomever ‘coming’ applies ‘bringing’ applies; to whomever ‘coming’ does not apply ‘bringing’ does not apply. R. Johanan b. Dahabai said in the name of R. Judah: A person who is blind in one eye is exempt from appearing [at the Temple]. for it is said: Yir'eh[10] [He shall see], Yera'eh [He shall be seen]; just as He comes to see, so He comes to be seen; as He comes to see with both eyes. so also to be seen with both eyes.

R. Huna, when he came to this verse, Yir'eh, Yera'eh,[11] wept. He said: The slave whom his Master longs to see should become estranged from him! For it is written: When ye come to appear[12] before Me, who hath required this at your hand, to trample My courts?[13]

R. Huna, when he came to the [following] verse, wept: And thou shalt sacrifice peace-offerings, and shalt eat there.[14] The slave at whose table his Master longs to eat should become estranged from him! For it is written: To what purpose is the abundance of your sacrifices unto Me? saith the Lord.[15]

R. Eleazar, when he came to the [following] verse, wept: And his brethren could not answer him, for they were affrighted at his presence.[16] Now if the rebuke of flesh and blood be such, how much more so the rebuke of the Holy One, blessed be He!

R. Eleazar, when he came to the [following] verse, wept: And Samuel said to Saul: Why hast thou disquieted me, to bring[14] me up?[17] Now if Samuel, the righteous, was afraid of the Judgment, how much more so should we be! How do we know this about Samuel?[18] — For it is written: And the woman said unto Saul: I see godlike beings coming up out of the earth.[19] ‘Coming up’[20] implies two: one was Samuel, but [who was] the other? Samuel went and brought Moses with him, Saying to him: Perhaps, Heaven forfend,[21] I am summoned to Judgment: arise with me,[22] for there is nothing that thou hast written in the Torah, which I did not fulfil.

R. Ami, when he came to the [following] verse, wept: Let him put his mouth in the dust, perhaps there may be hope.[23] He said: All this, and [only] perhaps![24]

R. Ami, when he came to the [following] verse, wept: Seek righteousness, seek humility, perhaps ye shall be hid in the day of the Lord's anger.[25] He said: All this, and [only] perhaps!

R. Assi, when he came to the [following] verse, wept: Hate the evil, and love the good, and establish justice in the gate, perhaps the Lord, the God of hosts, will be gracious.[26] All this, and [only] perhaps!

R. Joseph, when he came to the [following] verse, wept: But there is that is swept away without judgment.[27] [He said]:[28] Is there anyone who passes away before one's [allotted] time?[29] — Yes, as in the story [heard] by R. Bibi b. Abaye,[30] who was frequently visited by the Angel of death. [Once] the latter said to his messenger: Go, bring me Miriam, the women's hairdresser![31] He went and brought him Miriam, the children's nurse. Said he to him:[32] I told thee Miriam, the women's hairdresser. He answered: If so, I will take her back. Said he to him: Since thou hast brought her, let her be added.[33] But how were you able to get her?[34] She was holding a shovel in her hand and was heating

---

(1) I.e., one that cannot walk barefoot; and it is forbidden to walk on the sacred Temple Mount with covered feet.

(2) I.e., with shod feet.

(3) Isa. I, 12.

(4) I.e., a Jew that was not circumcised because two of his brothers had died as a result of their circumcision; cf. Shab. 134a and Yeb. 64b.

(5) Cf. Num. XIX, 20.

(6) They are exempt even from sending the offering by a messenger; cf. also p. 1, n. 1.

(7) Deut. XII, 5,6. The verse continues: Your burnt-offerings etc.

(8) Lev. XXII, 4.

(9) I.e., if he is a priest, he is prohibited from eating Terumah (i.e., the priest's share of crop or dough) like a priest who has become unclean.

(10) Ex. XXIII, 17; v. p. 3, n. 3.

(11) Which implies (v. n. 1) that the Divine Master reciprocally comes to meet the human pilgrim.

(12) Lit., ‘to be seen’, as above.

(13) Isa. I, 12.

(14) Deut. XXVII, 7.

(15) Isa. I, 11.

(16) Gen. XLV, 3.

(17) I Sam. XXVIII, 15.

(18) I.e., that it was the Divine Judgment that he feared.

(19) Ibid. v. 13.

(20) Heb. עלים which is plural. The deduction cannot be made from אלהים (godlike beings) which is also plural in form, because its meaning is generally singular, viz. God.

(21) Lit., ‘forbearance and peace.’

(22) I.e., to testify on my behalf.

(23) Lam. III, 29.

(24) I.e., after so much suffering, hope of salvation is only problematical.

(25) Zeph. 11,3.
(26) Amos V, 15.
(27) Prov. XIII, 23.
(28) Rashi and Tosaf. delete the words: the question is then asked by the Gemara.
(29) I.e., although the person has committed no sin to merit shortening of life.
(30) An occultist; cf. Ber. 6a where he performed an experiment with the object of seeing demons.
(31) Supposed by Tosaf. to be the Mother of Jesus; cf. Shab. 104b in the earlier uncensored editions. [Her description megaddela (hairdresser) is connected by some with the name of Mary Magdalene whose name was confused with that of Mary, the mother of Jesus, v. Herford R.T. Christianity in Talmud and Midrash, pp. 40f].
(32) I.e., the Angel of death to his messenger.
(33) I.e., to the dead.
(34) Since it was not yet her time to die.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 5a

and raking[1] the oven. She took it and put it on her foot and burnt herself; thus her luck was impaired and I brought her. Said R. Bibi b. Abaye to him[2] : Have ye[3] permission to act thus? He answered him: Is it not written: 'There is that is swept away without judgment'? He countered: But behold it is written: One generation passeth away, and another generation cometh![4] He replied: I have charge of them[5] till they have completed the generation,[6] and then I hand them over to Dumah![7] He [then] asked him: But after all, what do you do with her years?[8] He replied: If there be a Rabbinic scholar who overlooks his hurt, I shall give them to him in her stead.[9]

R. Johanan, when he came to the [following] verse, wept: And thou didst incite Me against him, to destroy him without cause.[10] A slave whose Master, when they incite him yields,[11] is there any help for him?

R. Johanan, when he came to the [following] verse, wept: Behold, He putteth no trust in His holy ones.[12] If He does not put His trust in His holy ones, in whom will He put his trust? One day he was going on a journey and saw a man gathering figs; he was leaving those that were ripe and was taking those that were unripe. So he said to him: Are not those[13] better? He replied: I need those for a journey: these will keep, but the others will not keep. Said [R. Johanan] this is the meaning of the verse: Behold He putteth no trust in His holy ones.[14] But is it so? For behold there was a disciple In the neighbourhood of R. Alexandri, who died in his youth, and [R. Alexandri] said: Had this scholar wished, he could have lived![15] If now it be [as R. Johanan said] perhaps he was one of those of whom it is said: 'Behold He putteth no trust in His holy ones'! — That [scholar] was one who had rebelled against his teachers![16]

R. Johanan, when he came to the [following] verse, wept: And I will come near to you to judgment and I will be a swift witness against the sorcerers, and against the adulterers, and against false swearers, and against those that oppress the hireling in his wages.[17] A slave whose Master brings him near to judge him, and hastens to testify against him, is there any remedy for him?

Rabban Johanan b. Zakkai said: Woe unto us that Scripture weighs against us light like grave offences.[18]

Resh Lakish[19] said: Whoever wrests the judgment of the proselyte is as if he wrests the judgment of the All-High, for it is said:[20] And that turn aside the proselyte[21] from his right: the consonants [can be read]: And that turn Me aside.[22]

R. Hanina b. Papa said: Whoever does something [wrong] and repents of it, is forgiven at once,[23] for It is said: And [that] fear not Me.[24] But if they do fear Me, they are forgiven at once. R. Johanan, when he came to the [following] verse, wept: For God shall bring every work into the judgment concerning every hidden[25] thing.[26] A slave to whom his Master accounts errors[27] as wilful offences, is there any remedy for him? What is the meaning of, concerning every hidden thing? — Rab said: This refers to one who kills a louse in the presence of his neighbour, so that he feels disgust thereat. And Samuel said: This refers to one who spits in the presence of his neighbour so that he feels disgust thereat. What is the meaning of, whether it be- good or whether it be — evil?[28] — The School of R. Jannai said: This refers to one who gives alms to a poor person publicly,[29] like the story of R. Jannai. He [once] saw a man give a zuz[30] to a poor person publicly, so he said to him: It had been better that you had not given him, than now that you have given him publicly and put him to shame. The School of R. Shila said: This refers to one who gives alms to a woman secretly. for he brings her into suspicion. Raba said: This refers to one who is in the habit of sending his wife on the eve of the Sabbath meat that has not been cut up.[31] But Raba [himself] used to send! — The daughter of R. Hisda[32] is different, for he was sure of her that she was an expert![33]

R. Johanan, when he came to the [following] verse, wept: And it shall come to pass, when many evils and troubles are come upon them.[34] A slave whose Master brings many evils and troubles upon him, is there any remedy for him? What is the meaning of ‘evils and troubles’?[35] — Rab said: Evils which become antagonists[36] to each other, as for instance the [bites of] a wasp and a scorpion.[37] And Samuel said: This refers to one who furnishes money to the poor person [only] in the hour of his extreme distress.[38] Raba said: This is the meaning of the proverb, For [purchasing] provision a zuz is not to be found, for hanging up [in the basket][39] it can be found.

Then My anger shall be kindled against them in that day, and I will forsake them, and I will hide My face from them.[40] R. Bardela b. Tabyumi said that Rab said: To whomever ‘hiding of the face’ does not apply is not one of them;[41] to whomever [the words] and they shall be devoured[42] does not apply

---

(1) I.e., raked the fire in (Jast.); Rashi: raked it out.

(2) I.e., the Angel of death.

(3) I.e., the Angel of death and his messenger.

(4) Eccl. I, 4; implying that every generation is complete.

(5) Lit., ‘shepherd them’.

(6) I.e., the years allotted to them.

(7) Lit., ‘Silence’, the Angel in charge of the dead.

(8) I.e., the remaining years which she should have continued to live.

(9) Cf. the ref. to Hezekiah in Yeb. 49a-50a.

(10) Job II, 3.

(11) Lit., ‘allows himself to be incited’.

(12) Job XV, 15.

(13) I.e., the ripe ones.

(14) I.e., God fears that the righteous, like the ripe figs, may later lose their excellence; hence they die young. Cf. Aboth II, 4.

(15) I.e., if he had lived uprightly.

(16) Hence he could not have been one of the ‘holy ones’, and it was his sin that shortened his life. Cf. Kid. 33b on Eccl. XIII, 13.

(17) Mal. III, 5.

(18) In the verse quoted, the grave crimes of sorcery and adultery, for which the penalty is death, are mentioned side by side with the lighter offences of perjury and financial oppression.

(19) Abbrev. for R. Simon b. Lakish.

(20) Ibid.

(21) E.V. ‘stranger’.

(22) ומטי for ומטי

(23) Cf. Yoma 85b-86a; also Shebu. 12b.
(24) Ibid.
(25) I.e., unwitting errors.
(26) Eccl. XII, 14.
(27) I.e., even the slightest offence.
(28) Ibid. I.e., one is punished for the good as well as for the bad one does.
(29) An apparently good deed which is really bad.
(30) A silver coin, one fourth of a shekel, and equal to a denar (denarius). V. Glos.
(31) I.e., unporged meat, the forbidden fat, blood vessels etc. not having been removed. The nearness of the Sabbath makes it a busy time for the housewife, who in her hurry may forget to porge the meat.
(32) I.e., Raba's wife, always referred to as R. Hisda's daughter.
(33) And would see that it was properly porged before the Sabbath.
(34) Deut. XXXI, 21.
(35) I.e., are they not synonymous?
(36) The Heb., צרות, is the same as for ‘troubles’ above, and is used of the rival wives of one husband; cf. I Sam. I, 6.
(37) In A.Z. 28b we are told that hot water must be used for a wasp's bite and cold for a scorpion's; the reverse is dangerous. When, therefore, both occur together there is no remedy.
(38) According to Rashi, this refers to Eccl. XII, 14 and is an example of an apparently good deed which is really bad; for at an earlier stage the help rendered would have been of far greater and more enduring benefit. But according to Tosaf. this is an explanation of Deut. XXXI, 21 and is an instance of added trouble, illustrated in the following proverb. V. n. 9.
(39) תליתא. Rashi renders: ‘food which one brings in a basket’, that is in time of distress; cf. Pes. III b. Tosaf. translates: ‘when one is about to be hanged’, and explains thus: A man is threatened with execution unless he offers a ransom; being poor, a small ransom would be accepted. But now the arrangement of a mortgage is offered him; this serves only to aggravate his misfortune, for the ransom price is raised. A third explanation is given by Maharsha a.l.
(40) Deut. XXXI, 17.
(41) I.e., the Children of Israel.
(42) Ibid.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 5b

is not one of them. Said the Rabbis to Raba: To [our] master ‘the hiding of the face’ does not apply, and [the words] ‘And they shall be devoured’ do not apply! Said he to them: Do ye know then how much I send secretly to the Court of King Shapur?[1] Even so the Rabbis directed their eyes upon him.[2] Meanwhile the Court of King Shapur sent [men], who plundered him.[3] He [then] said: This is it that is taught: Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel said: Wherever the Rabbis direct their eyes there is either death or poverty.

And I will hide My face in that day.[4] Raba said: Although I hide My face from them, I shall speak to them[5] in a dream.[6] R. Joseph: said: His hand is stretched over us, as it is said: And I have covered thee in the shadow of My hand.[7]

R. Joshua b. Hanania was [once] at the court of Caesar.[8] A certain unbeliever[9] showed him [by gestures]: A people whose Lord has turned His face from them — He showed him [in reply]: His hand is stretched over us. Said Caesar to R. Joshua: What did he show thee?-A people whose Lord has turned His face from them. And I showed him: His hand is stretched over us.

They [then] said to the heretic:[10] What didst thou show him?A people whose Lord has turned His face from them. And what did he show thee? — I do not know. Said they: A man who does not understand what he is being shown by gesture should hold converse in signs before the king! They led him forth and slew him.

When the soul of R. Joshua b. Hanania was about to go to its rest, the Rabbis said to him: What will become of us at the hands of the unbelievers? He answered them: Counsel is perished from the children,[11] their wisdom is vanished.[12] So soon as counsel is perished from the children,[13] the wisdom of the peoples of the world is vanished.[14] Or I may derive it from here: And he said: Let us take our journey, and let us go, and I will go over against thee.[15]

R. Ila was once walking up the stairs of the house of Rabbi b. Shila, when he heard a child reading the verse: For, lo, He that formeth the mountains, and createth the wind, and declareth unto man what his conversation was.[16] He said: A slave Master declares to him his conversation, is there any remedy for him? — What is the meaning of [the expression] ‘What his conversation was’? — Rab said: Even the superfluous conversation[17] between a man and his wife is declared to a person in the hour of his death. But is it so? Now behold R. Kahana once lay down beneath the bed of Rab,[18] and he heard him converse and jest and perform his needs. [Thereupon] he said: The mouth of Rab is like that of one who has not tasted any food.[19] Said [Rab] to him: Kahana, get out, this is unseemly! — There is no contradiction: In the one case [it is] where he has to procure her favour, in the other, where he has no need to procure her favour.

But if ye will not hear it, My soul shall weep in secret for the pride.[20] R. Samuel b. Inia said in the name of Rab: The Holy One, blessed be He, has a place and its name is ‘Secret’. What is the meaning of [the expression] ‘for the pride’?-R. Samuel b. Isaac said: For the glory[21] that has been taken from them and given to the nations of the world. R. Samuel b. Nahmani said: For the glory of the Kingdom of Heaven.[22] But is there any weeping in the presence of the Holy One, blessed be He? For behold R. Papa said: There is no grief in the Presence[23] of the Holy One blessed be He; for it is said: Honour and majesty are before Him; strength and beauty are it[20] His sanctuary![24] — There is no contradiction; the one case [refers to] the inner chambers,[25] the other case [refers to] the outer chambers. But behold it is written: And in that day did the Lord, the God of Hosts, call to weeping and to lamentation, and to baldness, and to girding with sackcloth![26] — The destruction of the Temple is different, for even the angels of peace wept [over it]; for it is said: Behold for their altar[27] they cried without; the angels of peace wept bitterly.[28]

And mine eye shall drop tears and tears, and run down with tears, because the Lord's flock is carried away captive.[29] R. Eleazar said: Wherefore these three [expressions of] ‘tears’? One for the first Temple, and one for the second Temple, and one for Israel, who have become exiled from their place. But there are some who say: One for the neglect of [the study of] the Torah. This is all right according to the view that [one] is for Israel, who have become exiled from their place: this agrees with that which is written: ‘Because the Lord's flock is carried away captive’. But according to the view that it was for the neglect of [the study of] the Torah, how do you explain [the text], ‘Because the Lord's flock is carried away’? — Since Israel have become exiled from their place. you can have no greater neglect of [the study of] the Torah than this.

Our Rabbis taught: Over three the Holy One, blessed be He, weeps every day: over him who is able to occupy himself with [the study of] the Torah and does not; and over him who is unable to occupy himself with [the study of] the Torah and does; and over a leader who domineers over the community.

Rabbi was once holding the Book of Lamentations and reading therein: when he came to the verse, He hath cast down from heaven unto the earth,[30] it fell from his hands. He said: From a roof so high to a pit as deep![31]

Rabbi and R. Hiyya were once going on a journey. When they came to a certain town, they said: If there is a rabbinical scholar here, we shall go and pay him our respect. They were told: There is a rabbinical scholar here[32] and he is blind.[33] Said R. Hiyya to Rabbi: Stay [here]; thou must not lower thy princely dignity;[34] I shall go and visit him. But [Rabbi] took hold of him and went with him. When they were taking leave from him,[35] he said to them: Ye have visited one who is seen but does not see; may ye be granted to visit Him who sees but is not seen. Said [Rabbi to R. Hiyya]: If now [I had hearkened to you] you would have deprived me of this blessing. They [then] said to him: From whom didst thou hear this?[36] -I heard it at a discourse of R. Jacob's. For R. Jacob of Kefar Hitya,[37] used to visit his teacher every day. When he became old, the latter said to him: Let the master not trouble himself since he is unable. He replied: Is it a small thing that is written concerning the Rabbis? And he shall still live alway. he- shall not see the pit; when he seeth that wise man die.[38] Now if he who sees wise men at their death shall live, how much more so [he who sees them] in their life.

R. Idi, the father of R. Jacob b. Idi, used to spend three months on his journey and one day at the school;[39] and the Rabbis called him ‘One day scholar’. So he became dispirited, and applied to himself the verse: I am as one that is a laughing-stock to his neighbour etc.[40] Said to him R. Johanan: I beg of you. do not bring down punishment upon the Rabbis. R. Johanan then went forth to the College and delivered the [following] exposition: Yet they seek Me day by day, and delight to know My ways.[41] Do they then seek Him by day, and do not seek Him by might? It comes to tell you. therefore, that whoever studies the Torah even one day in the year, Scripture accounts it to him as though he had studied the whole year through. And similarly in the case of punishment, for it is written: After the number of the days in which you spied out the land.[42] Did they then sin forty years? Was it not forty days that they sinned? It must come to teach you, therefore, that whoever commits transgression even one day in the year, Scripture accounts it to him as though he had transgressed the whole year through.

WHO IS [IN THIS RESPECT DEEMED] A MINOR? WHOEVER IS UNABLE TO RIDE ON HIS FATHER'S SHOULDERS etc. R. Zera demurred thereto:

---

(1) Also Sapor or Shapur II, son of Hormuzd, King of Persia C.E. 310-379. His accession preceded his birth; he warred against Rome. V. Gibbon, CC. 18, 24, 25; cf. also Ber. 56a, B.B. 115b and Pes. 54a.

(2) I.e., in suspicion; elsewhere in anger. cf. Ber. 38a, Shab. 34b.

(3) I.e., seized his property.

(4) Deut. XXXI, 18.

(5) Lit., ‘to him’ as in Num. XII, 6.

(6) According to Rashi, the inference is drawn from ‘in that day’; but at night, in dreams, God would speak to them; cf. ibid. Maharsha prefers this explanation: God would deny them His ‘face’, I.e., the direct communion of Moses which was ‘mouth to mouth’, but He would still speak to them in dreams; cf. ibid. 6-7.

(7) Isa. LI, 16.

(8) I.e., Hadrian, v.J.E. vol. VII, pp. 290-292.

(9) אפיקורוס. Levy and others derive it from  Epicurus, an Epicurean; Maimonides and Jast. connect with Heb. הפקר from rt. פקר. A term applied to unbelievers generally, Jew or Gentile. MS.M.: ‘Min’ (v. next note), a Jewish sectary, probably a Judeo-Christian. V. J.E. vol. I, pp. 665-666 and Vol. VIII, pp. 594-595.

(10) מין, probably from meaning ‘species’, hence sectarian. V. preceding note

(11) Or ‘prudent’ (E.V.).

(12) Jer. XLIX, 7’ where it is a question.

(13) I.e.’ Children of Israel.

(14) I.e., the polemics of the unbelievers will cease. [A somewhat roundabout way of saying that the Jewish religion would never want a defender so long as it was attacked’] Herford op. cit, p. 266.

(15) Gen. XXXIII, 12. I.e., Esau (Gentiles and unbelievers generally) will keep abreast of Jacob (Israelites), but not gain advantage over him.

(16) Amos IV, 13. E.V. ‘thought’.

(17) The ‘jesting’ referred to in the following story.

(18) Not to spy. but to learn from the Master's conduct; v. Ber. 62a.

(19) I.e., he was ravenous in his desires like a newly-wed.
(20) Jer. XIII, 17.
(21) Lit., ‘pride’.
(22) Which suffers through Israel's downfall. Cf. Meg. 29 on Isa. II, 27, and Mekilta to Ex. XV, 2.
(23) Lit., ‘before’, a euphemism for ‘on the part of’.
(24) Ps. XCVI, 6.
(25) I.e.,in the innermost recesses called ‘Secret’ there is weeping, though outwardly (‘before him’ v. n. 4) there is no sign of grief, only ‘Honour etc.’
(26) Isa. XXII, 12. ‘Call’ denotes publicly; grief, therefore, is to be found in ‘the outer chambers’!
(27) אראלם (E.V. ‘their valiant ones cried without’) is here connected with אריאל (Isa. XXIX, 1), ‘the altar hearth’, Cf. Rashi to verse.
(28) Isa. XXXIII, 7.
(29) Jer. XIII, 17. E. V. ‘And mine eye shall weep sore and run down down etc.’
(30) Lam. II, 1.
(31) I.e., how great was Israel's downfall, for what could be higher than heaven and lower than earth!
(32) From root meaning ‘to learn’: lit., ‘one that has caught fire by associating with Rabbis’; cf. Aboth, II, 10 (Jastrow). Or from root meaning ‘to gather, establish’ sc. halachoth (Levy).
(33) Lit., ‘Light of the eyes’, a ‘euphemism.
(34) Rabbi was the Nasi (‘Prince’) i.e., the president of the Sanhedrin.
(35) I.e., the blind scholar.
(36) I.e., that to visit a scholar is so meritorious.
(37) Perhaps Hattin (Robinson, Bibl. Researches, iii, 34.) N.W. of Tiberias. V. also Neubauer, Geog. du Talmud, p. 207.
(38) Ps. XLIX, 10, 11.
(39) It took him six months to travel to the school and back; in order to be with his family for the festivals of Passover (essentially a home festival) and Tabernacles (cf. Deut. XVI, 14) he was able to remain at the school only one day.
(40) Job XII, 4.
(41) Isa. LVIII, 2.
(42) Num. XIV, 34. v. whole verse.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 6a

Who brought him thus far?[1] — Said Abaye to him: Thus far his mother brought him,[2] since she is bound to rejoice[3] [on the festival]; from here onward, if he is able to go up from Jerusalem to the Temple Mount holding his father's hand, he is obligated, and if not, he is exempt.

Rabbi objected on behalf of Beth Hillel to the view of Beth Shammai: But Hannah went not up; for she said unto her husband: Until the child be weaned, when I will bring him up.[4] Now Samuel was [already] able to ride on his father's shoulders![5] - — Said his father[6] to him: But according to thy own reasoning there is a difficulty: was not Hannah herself bound to rejoice [on the festival]?[7] The explanation, therefore, must be that Hannah saw that Samuel was exceptionally delicate, and she feared that the journey might unduly fatigue Samuel.[8] R. Simeon[9] asked: What [is the law], according to the view of Beth Shammai, respecting a minor who is lame,[10] and according to both views, respecting one who is blind?[11] — What is the case? Shall one say that it is a case of a lame child who will never be able to walk,[12] and of a blind child who will never be able to see? Now [in such cases] a major is exempt, can there be any question about a minor?[13] — No, [the question] is necessary with respect to a lame child who may [eventually] be able to walk[14] and with respect to a blind child who may [eventually] be able to see. What [is the law then]? — Abaye said: Wherever a major is obligated according to the law of the Torah, we also initiate a minor according to Rabbinic law; wherever a major is exempt according to the law of the Torah, a minor is also exempt according to Rabbinic law.

BETH SHAMMAI SAY: THE PILGRIMAGE-OFFERING MUST BE WORTH [AT LEAST]

TWO PIECES OF SILVER etc. Our Rabbis taught: Beth Shammai say: The pilgrimage-offering [must be worth at least] two pieces of silver and the festal-offering one ma'ah of silver, because the pilgrimage-offering is offered up entirely to God,[15] which is not the case with regard to the festal-offering;[16] furthermore, we find that for the Festival of Weeks[17] Scripture has enjoined more burnt-offerings than peace-offerings.[18] But Beth Hillel say: The pilgrimage-offerings [must be at least] one ma'ah of silver and the festal-offering two pieces of silver, because the festal-offering obtained prior to the Revelation,[19] which is not the case with regard to the pilgrimage-offering. Furthermore, we find that in the case of ‘the princes’,[20] Scripture enjoined more peace-offerings than burnt-offerings.

Now why do not Beth Hillel agree with Beth Shammai? — As for your saying that the pilgrimage-offering is more important because it is entirely offered up to God, on the contrary, the festal-offering is more important, because in it there are two meals.[21] And as for your saying that we should learn by analogy from the Feast of Weeks, [I contend that] we should form an analogy between the offering of an individual and the offering of an individual,[22] but we should not form an analogy between the offering of an individual and an offering of the community.[23] And why do not Beth Shammai agree with Beth Hillel? — As for your saying that the festal-offering is more important because it obtained prior to the Revelation, [I contend] that the pilgrimage-offering also obtained prior to the Revelation.[24] And as for your saying that we should learn by analogy from ‘the princes’. [I contend that] we have to form an analogy between something that applies to [future] generations[25] and something [else] that applies to [future] generations;[26] but we should not form an analogy between something that applies to [future] generations and something that does not apply to [future] generations.[27] Now according to Beth Hillel, why is the festal-offering singled out as obtaining prior to the Revelation? Because it is written: And they sacrificed sacrifices of peace-offerings.[28] Surely the pilgrimage-offerings must also [have been offered up then]; [for] behold, it is written: And they offered burnt-offerings![29] — Beth Hillel are of the opinion that the burnt-offering which the Israelites offered in the wilderness was the ‘continual burnt-offering’.[30] And Beth Shammai? — They are of the opinion that the burnt-offering that the Israelites offered in the wilderness was a pilgrimage-offering.[31]

Abaye said: Beth Shammai and R. Eleazar and R. Ishmael are all of the opinion that the burnt-offering which the Israelites offered in the wilderness was a pilgrimage-offering. And Beth Hillel and R. Akiba and R. Jose the Galilean are all of the opinion that the burnt-offering which the Israelites offered in the wilderness was the ‘continual burnt-offering’. ‘Beth Shammai’, as we have said [above]. ‘R. Ishmael’, for it is taught: R. Ishmael said: The general directions were given at Sinai,[32]

---

(1) I.e., from his house to Jerusalem. The fact that he could travel to Jerusalem shows that he is old enough to do without his mother; at that age he is also old enough to be able to go up from Jerusalem to the Temple Mount by holding his father's hand. What point, therefore, is there in defining a minor as one that is unable even with the aid of his father to go up from Jerusalem to the Temple Mount, when the prior journey to Jerusalem shows that he is old enough to do this and therefore no longer a minor?

(2) Thus the assumption that he was old enough to do without his mother is wrong.

(3) I.e., in order to fulfil the commandment to rejoice she must go to Jerusalem (cf. Deut. XIV, 26); but she is not subject to the commandment to appear before the Lord on the Temple Mount.

(4) I Sam. I, 22. According to the Talmud a child is weaned at the end of 24 months.

(5) According to Rashi a child can do that at the end of a year. The Shammaite view, therefore, must be wrong.

(6) The other reading, Abaye, is an anachronism; [unless we read ‘Said Abaye’ omitting ‘to him’.]

(7) She ought therefore to have gone up to the Sanctuary (then at Shiloh) and taken Samuel with her even before he was weaned.

(8) Thus the case of Samuel cannot be regarded as a support for the Hillelite view.

(9) I.e., R. Simeon b. Lakish, v. Pes. 119a.

(10) Beth Shammai require a child to go up to the Temple (as part of his initiation or religious training) as soon as he can do so by riding on his father's shoulders. Since the lame child could go up to the Temple Mount in this manner, is he bound to do this? But the question is not applicable to Beth Hillel, because they require the child to be able to walk.
(11) This question is applicable to Beth Hillel, too, because the blind child could go up the Temple Mount by holding his father's hand.
(12) Lit., ‘become straight’.
(13) His initiation would serve no purpose, for even on becoming of age he will be exempt.
(14) I.e., before he becomes of age. The question is: must we train him now because when he grows up he will be fit and therefore bound to ‘appear’, or shall we exempt him on account of his present defects?
(15) Lit., ‘the Most-High’.
(16) Which is partly burnt, and partly eaten by pilgrims and priests.
(17) This is the Talmudic sense of עצרת; but in the Bible it means (a) a general assemblage (e.g. Jer. IX, 1) (b) a sacred assembly (e.g. Isa. I, 13), but especially the last day of Passover (Deut. XVI, 8) or of Tabernacles (Lev. XXIII, 36, Num. XXIX, 35).
(18) V. Lev. XXIII, 18, 19: the festal offering (חגיגה) belonged to the class of peace-offerings (שלמים); v. supra n. 2.
(19) V. Ex. XXIV, 5, which is taken to refer to a time prior to the Revelation though it occurs after the Decalogue; cf. Shab. 88a, where the building of the altar and the offering of sacrifices thereon by ‘the young men of the children of Israel’, (taken by the Rabbis to be the firstborn) is said to have taken place on the fifth Sivan, a day before the Revelation.
(20) I.e., the heads of the tribes mentioned at the dedication of the altar in Tabernacles; v. Num. VII, 87,88.
(21) For the altar and for man.
(22) I.e., the pilgrimage and festal-offerings which were private offerings should be compared with the offerings of ‘the princes’, which were also private offerings.
(23) I.e., the offerings prescribed for the Feast of Weeks, which were provided from the Temple treasury.
(24) V. Ex. XXIV, 5.
(25) I.e., the pilgrimage and festal-offerings.
(26) I.e., the public offerings of the Feast of Weeks.
(27) I.e., the prince's offerings.
(28) Ibid.
(29) Ibid. The pilgrimage-offering was a burnt-offering.
(30) V. Num. XXVIII, 2-6: this was a daily public offering from which no inference could be drawn regarding the pilgrimage-offerings.
(31) Because the expression ‘they saw God’ (Ex. XXIV, 11) which, being similar to the expression ‘shall appear’ (Ex. XXIII, 17). is taken to imply that it was offered as a pilgrimage celebration.
(32) I.e., many precepts were left vague at Sinai, which were explained in full detail after the erection of the Tabernacle; cf., for example, Ex. XX, 24 with the detailed instructions concerning the sacrifices in Lev. I-VII.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 6b

and the details in the Tent of Meeting.[1] But R. Akiba said: The general directions and the details were given at Sinai[2] and repeated in the Tent of Meeting and enjoined a third time in the Plains of Moab.[3] Now if you suppose that the burnt-offering which the Israelites offered in the wilderness was the [statutory] continual burnt-offering[4] , is it possible for a sacrifice not to require flaying and dissection at first[5] and later to require flaying and dissection?[6]

‘R. Eleazar’, for it was taught: It is it continual burnt-offering, which was offered in Mount Sinai.[7] R. Eleazar said: The manner of its offering was enjoined at Sinai, but it was not actually offered up.[8] R. Akiba said: It was offered up and was never discontinued. But how am I to explain [the verse]: Did you bring unto Me sacrifices and offerings in the wilderness forty years, O house of Israel?[9] — The tribe of Levi, who were not guilty of idol worship.[10] offered them up.[11]

‘Beth Hillel’, as we have said [above]. ‘R. Akiba’, also, as we have said [above]. ‘R. Jose the Galilean’,for it is taught: R. Jose the Galilean said: Three precepts are enjoined upon Israel when they make their pilgrimage at a festival: the pilgrimage-offering and the festal-offering and the rejoicing.[12] The pilgrimage-offering has something that the other two have not;[13] and the festal-offering has something that the other two have not; and the rejoicing has something that the other two have not. The pilgrimage-offering has something that the other two have not, for the pilgrimage-offering is offered entirely to God, which is not the case with the other two. The festal-offering has something that the other two have not, for the festal-offering obtained prior to the Revelation,[14] which was not the case with the other two. The rejoicing has something which the other two have not, for the rejoicing applies to both men and women,[15] which is not the case with the other two.[16]

With reference to R. Ishmael, why do you represent him as agreeing with Beth Shammai?[17] [Because you argue]: If it were supposed that the burnt-offering which the Israelites offered in the wilderness was the continual burnt-offering, is it possible for a sacrifice not to require flaying and dissection at first and later to require flaying and dissection? But behold R. Jose the Galilean said [distinctly][18] that the burnt-offering which the Israelites offered in the wilderness was the continual burnt-offering; [and yet he held that] at first it did not require flaying and dissection, and later it did require flaying and dissection. For it is taught: R. Jose the Galilean said: The burnt-offering which the Israelites offered in the wilderness did not require flaying and dissection, because flaying and dissection came into force only from [the erection of] the Tent of Meeting onward![19] — Strike out R. Ishmael from here.[20]

R. Hisda asked: How is this verse to be understood: And he sent the young men of the children of Israel, who offered burnt-offerings [namely] lambs, and sacrificed peace-offerings of oxen unto the Lord?[21] Or Perhaps both were oxen?[22] What difference does it make? Mar Zutra said: In regard to the punctuation.[23] R. Abba, the son of Raba, said: In regard to one who says: I vow [to offer] a burnt-offering like the burnt-offering which Israel offered in the wilderness. What [must he offer]? Were they oxen or lambs? — It remains [undecided].

We have learnt elsewhere:[24] The following things

---

(1) Cf. Lev. I, 1.

(2) Though not mentioned in connection with the Revelation but in other parts of the Torah e.g.. Leviticus.

(3) Cf. Deut. I, 5f.

(4) Enjoined by God for all time, and not offered by individuals at their own discretion as pilgrimage-offerings.

(5) Since, according to R. Ishmael, the laws of flaying and dissection as details were laid down only at the Tent of Meeting.

(6) The burnt-offerings mentioned in Ex. XXIV, 5, before the Revelation at the Tent of Meeting, were offered up whole, whilst the continual burnt-offering. like all burnt-offerings, required flaying and dissection, v. Lev. I, 6; therefore it must be pilgrimage-offerings that are referred to in Ex. XXIV, which they offered on their own accord and which were consequently not subject to any of the detailed laws governing burnt-offerings (Rashi).

(7) Num. XXVIII, 6.

(8) Thus the burnt-offerings brought by the ‘young men’ (Ex. XXIV, 5) must have been pilgrimage-offerings.

(9) Amos V, 25. This implies, contrary to R. Akiba's view, that in the wilderness the regular public sacrifices were not offered, because Israel was under divine censure.

(10) Cf. Ex. XXXII, 26.

(11) I.e., they offered the continual burnt-offerings at their own expense (Rashi).

(12) The spirit of festive joy was expressed by a sacrificial feast; if the offerings brought in fulfillment of vows, as free-will gifts or as tithe, did not suffice for all, additional peace-offerings had to be brought as offerings of rejoicing.

(13) I.e., is superior in a certain respect to the other two.

(14) The peace-offerings which the ‘young men’ also offered at Sinai (Ex. XXIV,5) though not offered on a festival, are called festal-offerings (חגיגה) because they were the fulfilment of Ex. V, 1. As R. Jose holds that the pilgrimage-offerings were not prior to the Revelation, he is in agreement with Beth Hillel.

(15) V. Deut. XIV, 26. The Tosefta reading is: For the offerings of rejoicing can be offered during any of the seven days' שהשמחה יש לה תשלומין כל שבעה

(16) Which, being precepts not expressly enjoined upon women, and being dependent on a fixed time (v. p. 13, n. 4) are incumbent on men only.

(17) The question is against Abaye's statement above (p. 28): since the Hillelite view is the more authoritative, Abaye should avoid representing R. Ishmael as agreeing with Beth Shammai.

(18) I.e., it is clearly inferred from the Baraitha just quoted.

(19) Thus the reasoning which sought to make R. Ishmael agree with Beth Shammai is wrong.

(20) I.e., from the list of those who hold the Shammaite view.

(21) Ex. XXIV, 5.

(22) I.e., the burnt-offerings as well as the peace-offering.

(23) פיסוק טעמים. According to Rashi, the Neginoth or cantillation signs are referred to: the first interpretation would require the word עלות to have a disjunctive accent (e.g.. ethnahta, as in our texts), and the second would require a conjunctive accent (e.g.. Pashta or Rebia'). But actually the Neginoth are of Post-Talmudic origin; v. J.E. Vol. I p. 157, 6, prg. 7. For doubtful verse-division cf. also Yoma 5a-b. V. also Ned., Sonc. ed., p. 113, n. 5.

(24) Pe'ah. I, 1.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 7a

have no prescribed limit:[1] the [crop of the] corner of a field [to be left for the poor],[2] the first fruits,[3] the visiting of the Temple [Re'ayon],[4] deeds of loving-kindness,[5] and the study of the Torah. R. Johanan said: We were of the opinion that the visiting of the Temple [with an offering] had no maximum limit, but that it had a minimum limit,[6] till R. Oshaya Berabbi[7] came and taught that the visiting of the Temple [with an offering] has no maximum nor minimum limit.[8] But the Sages said: The pilgrimage-offering[9] must be worth [at least] one ma'ah of silver and the festal-offering two pieces of silver.

What is meant by Re'ayon? — R. Johanan says: [It means] appearing[10] in the Temple Court.[11] Resh Lakish says: [It means] appearing with a sacrifice.[12] Concerning the first day[13] of the Festival, all are agreed that the visit must be accompanied by an offering; they differ only with regard to the other days of the festival. [Further] if a man brings [an offering] every time that he comes, all are agreed that we are to accept it from him; they differ only with regard to a man who comes and does not bring [an offering]. R. Johanan is of the opinion that [Re'ayon means] appearing at the Temple Court; he need not therefore bring [an offering] whenever he comes. Resh Lakish says: [Re'ayon means] appearing with an offering; thus he must bring [an offering] whenever he comes.

Resh Lakish put an objection to R. Johanan. [It is written]: None shall appear before Me empty![14] — He replied to him: [This refers] to the first day of the Festival.[15]

He [again] put an objection to him: 'None shall appear before Me empty': [this means one must bring] animal sacrifices.[16] You say, animal sacrifices, but perhaps [it means] birds or meal-offerings? [Nay], you may deduce it by analogy. A festal-offering is prescribed for man[17] and a pilgrimage-offering is prescribed for God:[18] just as the festal-offering prescribed for man is an animal sacrifice,[19] so the pilgrimage-offering prescribed for God is an animal sacrifice. And what is meant by animal sacrifices? Burnt-offerings. You say burnt-offerings, but perhaps [it means] peace-offerings? [Nay], you may deduce it by analogy: a festal-offering is prescribed for man and a pilgrimage-offering is prescribed for God: just as the festal-offering which is prescribed for man is one that is fitting[20] for him, so the pilgrimage-offering which is prescribed for God must be one that is fitting[21] for Him. And so it is right, that your table should not be full and the table of the Master empty![22] — He replied: [This refers] to the first day of the festival.

[Again] he Put an objection to him: R. Jose son of R. Judah said: Three times in the year were the Israelites commanded to go on pilgrimage: on the Feast of Unleavened Bread, on the Feast of Weeks and on the Feast of Booths; and they must not appear in divisions,[23] for it is said: All thy males;[24] and they must not appear empty-handed for it is said: None shall appear before Me empty![25] — He replied: [This refers] to the first day of the festival.

R. Johanan put an objection to Resh Lakish: [It is written]: Yir'eh [He will see]. Yera'eh [He will be seen];[26] just as I [come] free,[27] so you [come] free! — All, therefore, must agree that if a person comes and does not bring [an offering] that he may enter [the Temple Court] and present himself and go out.[28] They differ only with regard to a person who comes and brings [an offering]. R. Johanan, who says [Re'ayon means] appearing in the Temple Court, [holds] that there is no limit to ‘appearing’, but that there is a limit to the offerings. And Resh Lakish says: [Re'ayon means] appearing with an offering; thus there is no limit to the offerings either. R. Johanan put an objection to him: [It is written]: Let thy foot be seldom in thy Friend's house![29] — There it refers to sin-offerings.[30] as R. Levi [taught]. For R. Levi pointed to a contradiction; it is written: ‘Let thy foot be seldom in thy Friend's house’, and it is written: I will come into Thy house with burnt-offerings![31] There is no contradiction: the one case refers to sin-offerings and trespass-offerings; the other case refers to burnt-offerings and peace-offerings. It has also been taught thus: ‘Let thy foot be seldom in thy Friend's house’: the verse speaks of sin-offerings and trespass-offerings. You say of sin-offerings and trespass-offerings, but perhaps it is of nought but burnt-offerings and peace-offerings? When it says: ‘I will come to Thy house with burnt-offerings, I will perform unto Thee my vows’, behold burnt-offerings and peace-offerings are mentioned; how now shall I explain [the verse]: ‘Let thy foot be seldom in thy Friend's house’? The verse speaks of sin-offerings and trespass-offerings.

‘And they must not appear in divisions etc.’ R. Joseph thought to explain it [thus]: If a man has ten sons, they should not make the pilgrimage five one day and five the next day.[32]

---

(1) I.e., fixed by Scripture.

(2) V. Lev. XIX, 9 and XXIII, 22; the Rabbis fixed the minimum at a sixtieth of the field.

(3) Deut. XXVI, 1-11.

(4) ראיון , ראיון or ראיון lit., appearing’ sc. at the Temple Court; secondarily, it means the sacrifice brought on the occasion of the Temple visit; cf. end of page, and p. 1, n. 1.

(5) It includes all deeds of kindness; but for almsgiving the Rabbis prescribed a limit, v. Keth. 50a.

(6) prescribed by Scripture i.e., the ma'ah or two ma'ahs mentioned in the Mishnah.

(7) ברבי: According to Rashi, ‘great in his generation, i.e., eminent; according to Levy and Jastrow, ‘belonging to a school of an eminent teacher’ (contra. of בי רבי); a title of scholars, most frequently applied to disciples of R. Judah ha-Nasi and his contemporaries, but also to some of his predecessors and sometimes to the first Amoraim; v. Naz., Sonc. ed., p. 64, n. 1.

(8) V. p. 31. n. 7.

(9) Heb. ראיה v. n. 5, and p. 31, n. 10.

(10) The different form of the word implies a different meaning from ראיה; the latter in this context would mean ‘the (cost of the) pilgrimage burnt-offering’; the former signifies ‘appearing’ in the Temple.

(11) I.e., there is no limit to the number of visits, but only one sacrifice need be brought.

(12) I.e., however many visits are made to the Temple Court a sacrifice must be brought every time.

(13) Lit., ‘the essential part’.

(14) Ex. XXIII, 15. Thus the visitor to the Temple must always bring an offering.

(15) But on all subsequent visits no offering need be brought.

(16) זבחים signifies sacrifices slaughtered with a knife, i.e., בהמות (‘beasts’) in contradistinction to עופות (‘birds’), for which מליקה (‘pinching the neck with finger nail’) is prescribed.

(17) הדיוט Grk.  a private man (as opposed to a priest, officer etc.), a commoner; ignoble, ignorant (Jast.). Here it means the pilgrim (as opposed to God), for whom the festal-offering was intended to provide the festive meal.

(18) Lit., ‘the Most High’. The words ‘before Me’ (in Ex. XXIII, 15) imply that the pilgrimage-offering was prescribed primarily as a sacrifice to God in contradistinction to the festal-offering which was to provide food for the worshipper.
(19) Cf. Ex. XXIII, 18 where חלב חגי (‘the fat of any festal-offering’) implies that it was an animal, for birds have no חלב, fat to be burnt on the altar.
(20) I.e., it provides him with meat for his feast.
(21) I.e., a burnt-offering.
(22) Thus an offering should be brought on each visit to the Temple, which refutes R. Johanan.
(23) Lit., ‘by halves’. Explained infra p. 34.
(24) Ex. XXIII, 17.
(25) This apparently supports Resh Lakish.
(26) V. p. 3, n. 3.
(27) I.e., without sacrifices.
(28) This new view of the controversy shows that the previous arguments between R. Johanan and Resh Lakish were not actually advanced by the Rabbis named but by later scholars, v. Tosaf. Bek. 4b, s.v. אלא,
(29) Prov. XXV, 17. I.e., one should not bring too many sacrifices to the House of God. There is possibly a play here on the word רגל which means ‘foot’ and also ‘pilgrimage-festival’. For the term ‘Friend’ understood of God, cf. the terms of endearment in Cant. which the Rabbis interpreted as expressing the loving relationship between Israel and God.
(30) I.e., the verse means: Avoid the necessity of bringing sin-offerings.
(31) Ps. LXVI, 13. Thus it is good to bring sacrifices.
(32) Taking לחצאין literally. i.e., ‘by halves’.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 7b

Said Abaye to him: This is obvious; which of them would you make transgressors and which of them would you make zealous?[1] What then is the purpose of the verse?[2] To intimate the teaching of ‘Others’.[3] For it is taught: ‘Others’ Say: The scraper, the copper-smith and the tanner are exempt from appearing [at the Temple]; for it is said, ‘All thy males’: he who is able to go on the pilgrimage with ‘all thy males’; these [then] are excluded, because they are unable to go up with all thy males.[4]

MISHNAH. BURNT-OFFERINGS DURING THE MID-FESTIVAL[5] ARE TO BE BROUGHT FROM [ANIMALS BOUGHT WITH] UNCONSECRATED MONEY,[6] AND PEACE-OFFERINGS,[7] [ALSO] FROM [ANIMALS BOUGHT WITH SECOND] TITHE MONEY.[8] ON THE FIRST FESTIVAL DAY OF PASSOVER, BETH SHAMMAI SAY: [THEY MUST BE BROUGHT] FROM [ANIMALS BOUGHT WITH] UNCONSECRATED MONEY; AND BETH HILLEL SAY: [THEY CAN BE BROUGHT ALSO] FROM [ANIMALS BOUGHT WITH SECOND] TITHE MONEY. ISRAELITES[9] MAY FULFIL THEIR OBLIGATION[10] WITH VOW-OFFERINGS, FREEWILL-OFFERINGS[11] AND TITHE OF CATTLE;[12] AND THE PRIESTS WITH SIN-OFFERINGS AND TRESPASS-OFFERINGS.[13] FIRSTLINGS,[14] THE BREAST AND THE SHOULDER,[15] BUT NOT WITH BIRD-OFFERINGS,[16] NOR MEAL-OFFERINGS.[17]

GEMARA. Accordingly, it is during the mid-festival only that burnt-offerings are brought from [animals bought with] unconsecrated money, but on the festival [they may be brought] also from [animals bought with Second] Tithe money. [But] why? It is obligatory, and everything that is obligatory must be brought from [animals bought with] unconsecrated money! And if you say: It comes to teach us this, [to wit,] that burnt-offerings can be brought during the mid-festival but not on the festival;[18] then this will be according to Beth Shammai![19] For we have learnt: Beth Shammai say. One may bring peace-offerings [on the festival][20] without laying the hands[21] upon them; but not burnt-offerings.[22] But Beth Hillel say, One may bring peace-offerings and burnt-offerings [on the festival] and lay the hands upon them![23] — [Our Mishnah] is defective, and it should read thus: Burnt-offerings, vow-offerings and freewill-offerings are brought during the mid-festival, but they may not be brought on the festival.[24] But the pilgrimage burnt-offering is brought even on the festival;[25] and when it is brought,[26] it must be brought only from [animals bought with] unconsecrated money; but the peace-offerings of rejoicing can be brought also from [animals bought with Second] Tithe money.[27] And regarding the festal-offering of the first festival day of Passover, Beth Shammai say: [It must be brought from animals bought with] unconsecrated money; and Beth Hillel say: [It can be brought] also from [animals bought with Second] Tithe money.[28] It has also been taught thus: Burnt-offerings, vow-offerings and freewill-offerings are brought during the mid-festival but not on the festival. But the pilgrimage burnt-offering is brought even on the festival; and when it is brought, it is brought only from [animals bought with] unconsecrated money; but the peace-offerings of rejoicing can be brought also from [animals bought with Second] Tithe money. And regarding the festal-offering of the first festival day of Passover,[29] Beth Shammai say: [It must be brought] from [animals bought with] unconsecrated money; but Beth Hillel say: [It can be brought] also from [animals bought with Second] Tithe money. Why is the festal-offering of the first festival day of Passover different?[30] — It comes to teach us this: Only the festival-offering of the fifteenth [of Nisan must be brought from animals bought with unconsecrated money] but not the festal-offering of the fourteenth [of Nisan].[31]

---

(1) All the ten are bound to visit the Temple on the first day; if, now, five at a time went up, the first group would be doing their duty scrupulously and the second five would be remiss.

(2) 'All thy males,' teaching that they must not appear in divisions.

(3) V. p. 14, n. 5.

(4) 'They must not appear in divisions' means, therefore, that all the Israelites must form one group; if the scraper etc. were to go on the pilgrimage they would have to form, because of their malodour, a separate group, which is forbidden.

(5) מועד lit., 'appointed time,' i.e., the intermediate days of Passover and Sukkoth as opposed to יום טוב, festival days (called in the Bible מקרא קדש'holy convocation'). In the Bible מועד includes both festival and intermediate days, cf. e.g. Lev. XXIII, 4.

(6) As opposed to animals bought with Second Tithe money (v. infra, n. 8). All obligatory offerings had to be brought from unconsecrated animals (cf. Men. 82a and infra p. 36).

(7) Brought to provide sufficient meat for the pilgrim and his family so that they might keep the festival with rejoicing (cf. Deut. XIV, 26).

(8) Cf. Deut. XIV, 22f. The tithe was separated in the first, second, fourth and fifth year of the seven year cycle, after terumah ('heave-offering') had been given to the Priest and First Tithe to the Levite. It was to be consumed in Jerusalem or the money with which it was redeemed spent there (v. Danby, P. 73, n. 6).

(9) As opposed to priests.

(10) I.e., of 'rejoicing' on the festival by offering peace-offerings wherewith to provide themselves with meat for the feast. Thus it is unnecessary to bring special sacrifices for this purpose, if the vow-offerings etc. provide sufficient for the family's needs.

(11) Cf. Mishnah Meg. I, 6.

(12) V. Lev. VII, 31-39.

(13) Brought by pilgrims and of which only the priests may eat; v. Num. XVIII, 9f.

(14) V. ibid. 17-19.

(15) V. Lev. VII, 29f.

(16) They were sin-offerings.

(17) V. Lev. II, 1. The bird and meal-offerings would not provide a feast suited to the occasion of rejoicing.

(18) I.e., it is forbidden to offer the pilgrimage burnt-offerings on the festival (when all manner of work is prohibited), even though it is an obligatory offering of the festival, because there is time to bring the offering the next day.

(19) Whose opinion is invalid against that of Beth Hillel.

(20) Because they supply the pilgrim with his feast.

(21) Cf. Lev. III, 2 and infra 16a. The act of laying on of the hands, which causes the pilgrim to support himself on the animal, is forbidden by the Rabbis on Festival and Sabbath on account of shebuth ('abstention, rest', v. Glos.) i.e., it is an action out of keeping with the restful character of the holy day. though it is not actually included in one of the thirty-nine categories of labour (v. Mishnah Shab. VII, 2) and cf. Mishnah Bez. V, 2.

(22) Exceptions were the continual burnt-offerings and the additional offerings, which were permitted to be offered because they had an appointed time (cf. Num. XXVIII, 2 במועדו); otherwise, Beth Shammai explained 'unto you' in Ex. XII, 16 to mean: for yourselves offer sacrifices but not entirely for God.

(23) Since it is permitted to bring them, the laying on of the hands is also permitted. V. Bez. 19b.

(24) Even according to Beth Hillel.

(25) Though it could be brought during the mid-festival, Lev. XXIII, 4 ('and ye shall keep it a feast') is taken by Beth Hillel to imply that it should be offered on the first day of the festival.

(26) [Wilna Gaon emends 'when they are brought' referring to all the mentioned offerings].

(27) V. p. 36, n. 1, and infra p. 39.

(28) Explained infra.

(29) As distinct from the festal-offering of the fourteenth of Nisan; v. next note.

(30) I.e., why is it specifically mentioned?

(31) If the paschal lamb did not suffice for the company a festal-offering could be sacrificed in addition (cf. Sifre to Deut. XVI, 2 and Pes. 69b). This festival-offering was not obligatory, hence even Beth Shammai would agree that it could be brought from the Second Tithe.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 8a

Thus he holds that the festal-offering of the fourteenth [of Nisan] is not enjoined by the Torah.

The Master said [above]: 'Beth Hillel say: [The festal-offering of the first day of the festival can be brought also] from [animals bought with Second] Tithe money'. Why? It is obligatory, and everything that is obligatory must be brought only from [animals bought with] unconsecrated money![1] — 'Ulla said: When he supplements [the unconsecrated by that of the Second Tithe].[2] Hezekiah said: One animal may be supplemented by another animal, but money may not be supplemented by money. And R. Johanan said: Money may be supplemented by money, but one animal may not be supplemented by another animal. There is a teaching agreeing with Hezekiah and there is a teaching agreeing with R. Johanan. There is a teaching agreeing with R. Johanan: [it is written]: After the tribute;[3] this teaches that a man must bring his obligatory offering from [animals bought with] unconsecrated money. And whence [do we know] that if he desires to mix he may mix?[4] The text teaches: According as the Lord, thy God, shall bless thee.[5] There is a teaching agreeing with Hezekiah: [The expression] 'after the tribute' teaches that a man may bring his obligatory offering from [animals bought with] unconsecrated money. Beth Shammai say: The first [festival] day from [animals bought with] unconsecrated money.[6] thenceforward[7] [also] from [animals bought with Second] Tithe money. Beth Hillel say: The first meal[8] from [animals bought with] unconsecrated money. thenceforward[9] from [animals bought with Second] Tithe money. And the remaining days of Passover, a man may fulfil his obligation[10] [also] with the tithe of cattle.[11] Why may he not [do so] on the festival?[12] — R. Ashi said: Lest he come to separate tithe on the festival; and it is impossible to separate tithe on the festival on account of the [marking with] red paint.[13] What evidence is there that the [word] 'tribute' indicates that which is unconsecrated? — Because it is written: And the King Ahasuerus laid tribute upon the land.[14]

ISRAELITES MAY FULFIL THEIR OBLIGATION WITH VOW-OFFERINGS AND FREEWILL-OFFERINGS. Our Rabbis taught: [It is written], And thou shalt rejoice in thy feast.[15] This includes all kinds of rejoicings as [festival] rejoicing.[16] Hence the Sages said: Israelites may fulfil their obligation with vow-offerings, freewill-offerings and tithe of cattle; and the priests with sin-offering and guilt-offering, and with firstlings, and with the breast and the shoulder; one might [think] also with bird-offerings and meal-offerings, [therefore] Scripture teaches: 'And thou shalt rejoice in thy feast'.

---

(1) Cf. p. 36.

(2) If he has a large company and the festival-offering from his unconsecrated means (חולין) will not suffice, he is permitted to add thereto from the Second Tithe: according to Hezekiah, it means that he may purchase other festival-offerings with Second Tithe money; according to R. Johanan, he may add Second Tithe money in order to purchase a larger animal. The former deems it better that one should satisfy one's obligation to bring the festival-offering from unconsecrated means by bringing therefrom a complete offering i.e., the first, though by itself inadequate for the company; the latter prefers that every morsel of the festival-offering should contain a percentage purchased with unconsecrated money (Rashi). Tosaf. explains that R. Johanan objects to ‘dividing one's obligation’ by spreading it over two animals.

(3) Deut. XVI, 10.

(4) The expression ‘mix’ supports R. Johanan, because it is applicable to money and not to animals.

(5) Ibid. I.e., with both unconsecrated and consecrated means.

(6) Because it is obligatory then.

(7) Though still termed festival-offerings, they are really peace-offerings of rejoicing.

(8) I.e., the first festal-offering.

(9) Even on the same day.

(10) ‘To rejoice’.

(11) And also of course with offerings bought with Second Tithe money.

(12) I.e., satisfy his obligation after the first meal with tithe cattle, just as he may buy an offering with Second Tithe money.

(13) Every tenth animal was designated as tithe by being marked with red paint (Bek. IX, 7); on a holy day painting, being regarded as work, is prohibited.

(14) Esth. X, 1. The word used here מס, and מסת in Deut. XVI, 10 are from the same root.

(15) Deut. XVI, 14, which refers to Sukkoth, but by analogy is applicable to each of the three pilgrim festivals.

(16) I.e., the precept to rejoice can be fulfilled only by having meat at the feast (cf. Pes. 119a), but the flesh of any kind of sacrifice will do.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 8b

only with those [offerings] from which the festal-offering can be brought;[1] these, then, are excluded Since the festal-offering cannot be brought from them. R. Ashi said: It is to be deduced from [the expression]. ‘And thou shalt rejoice’; these, then, are excluded because there is no [festive] joy in them. But what does R. Ashi do with [the expression]. ‘in thy feast’.[2] — To intimate what R. Daniel b. Kattina learnt. For R. Daniel b. Kattina said that Rab said: Whence [is it derived] that marriages[3] may not take place during the mid-festival? Because it is said: ‘And thou shalt rejoice in thy feast’, but not in thy wife.[4]

MISHNAH. HE THAT HAS MANY TO EAT [WITH HIM] AND FEW POSSESSIONS,[5] OFFERS MANY PEACE-OFFERINGS AND FEW BURNT-OFFERINGS,[6] [HE THAT HAS] MANY POSSESSIONS AND FEW TO EAT [WITH HIM] BRINGS MANY BURNT-OFFERINGS[7] AND FEW PEACE-OFFERINGS. [HE THAT HAS] FEW OF EITHER, FOR HIM IS PRESCRIBED:[8] ONE MA'AH OF SILVER’, ‘TWO PIECES OF SILVER’.[9] HE THAT HAS MANY OF BOTH, OF HIM IT IS SAID: EVERY MAN SHALL GIVE AS HE IS ABLE, ACCORDING TO THE BLESSING OF THE LORD THY GOD, WHICH HE HATH GIVEN THEE.[10]

GEMARA. Whence shall he bring many peace-offerings? Behold He has not! — Said R. Hisda: He may supplement [unconsecrated money with Second Tithe money] and bring a large bull.[11] Said R. Shesheth to him: Behold they said: One may supplement beast with beast! What did he mean? Should one say he meant this: Behold they said: One may supplement beast with beast, but not money with money; then he should say to him: One may not supplement money with money![12] — He must, therefore, have meant this: Behold they said: One may also supplement beast with beast![13] According to whom will this be? It will be neither according to Hezekiah nor according to R. Johanan.[14] And should you say: It is only the Amoraim[15] who differ [about it],[16] but the Baraithas[17] do not differ;[18] but behold it says: The first meal must come from unconsecrated money![19] — The first meal means that the amount of the value of a first meal[20] must be from unconsecrated money.[21]

‘Ulla said that Resh Lakish said: If a man set aside ten beasts for his festal-offering [and] he offered up five on the first day of the festival, he may offer up the other five on the second day of the festival;[22] R. Johanan said: Since he has interrupted [the offer- above) and not leave R. Hisda to infer what is prohibited from a statement of what is permitted. ings]. he cannot offer any more. R. Abba said: But they do not differ: the one speaks of an instance where he did not declare his intention, and the other speaks of an instance where he did declare his intention.[23] What is the case of the one who had not declared his intention?[24] — Should one say that there is no time left in the day to offer them, then the reason for his not offering them was because there is no time left in the day![25] [Should one say], therefore, that he had no [more] people to eat with him![25] - — No, it refers to a case where there was time left in the day [to offer] and he had people to eat with him; seeing that he did not offer them on the first day [of the festival] it proves that he left them over [intentionally].[26] And so it stands to reason;[27] for when Rabin came [from Palestine] he said that R. Johanan said: If a man set aside ten beasts for his festal-offering, [and] he offered five the first day of the festival, he may offer the other five on the second day of the festival. [Now the two statements of R. Johanan] contradict one another! Surely, therefore, you must learn from this that in the one case he does not declare his intention and in the other he does declare his intention. Proven.

It is also reported:[28] R. Shaman b. Abba said that R. Johanan said:

---

(1) V. p. 33, n. 3. Cf. also infra 10b.

(2) I.e., since Scripture has no redundant expressions, what teaching does he derive from it.

(3) Lit., ‘they may not take wives’.

(4) V. M.K. 8b.

(5) I.e., cattle (cf. Aramaic נכסין cattle, herd), which, in contradistinction to land (immovable property), originally constituted essential (movable) wealth. The root נכס means to slaughter; cf. Latin pecunia from pecus (Goldschmidt). Cf. also chattels from cattle. Jastrow offers a different explanation.

(6) Respectively for festal and pilgrimage sacrifices.

(7) In accordance with Deut. XVI, 17.

(8) By the Rabbis.

(9) V. p. 2, nn. 2, 4.

(10) Deut. XVI, 17.

(11) V. p. 38, the views of Hezekiah and R. Johanan.

(12) I.e., let R. Shesheth, who follows Hezekiah's view, say distinctly what is prohibited (exactly as Hezekiah does

(13) I.e., and not merely money with money.

(14) As neither of them permits the supplementing of both money with money and beast with beast.

(15) Lit., ‘speakers’: the Talmudic scholars who were active from the time of the conclusion of the Mishnah (C. 220 C.E.) to the end of the fifth century, and compiled almost the whole of the Gemara; v. Glos. s.v. Amora. Here Hezekiah and R. Johanan are referred to.

(16) I.e., regarding the permissibility of supplementing money with money and adding beast to beast.

(17) Lit., ‘extraneous (teachings)’: the generic term for Tannaitic teachings not included in the Mishnah, v. Glos.

(18) The Baraithas quoted above (pp. 38, 39) in support of Hezekiah and R. Johanan respectively do not contradict each other regarding the permissibility of adding money to money, only regarding the adding of beast to beast, which the first Baraitha prohibits and the second permits. Thus R. Shesheth will agree with the second Baraitha which permits the adding of beast to beast as well as money to money.

(19) This presumably means that the whole of the flesh of the first meal must come from unconsecrated money, which in turn shows that the Baraitha refers to the supplementing of beast with beast and not of money with money.

(20) [I.e..the amount required to constitute generally a first festal meal and not, as assumed, the whole of the first meal. The text is in slight disorder].

(21) Thus the Baraitha may refer both to animals and money.

(22) Rashi explains: One must not suppose that by offering the remaining beasts on the second day (i.e. , the first day of the mid-festival) he is transgressing the commandment to keep one day as a feast i.e., to offer his festal offerings on the first day (deduced infra p. 44 from Lev. XXIII, 41, ‘and ye shall keep it (only) a feast’), for the second day he is merely ‘compensating’ for the dues of the first. But according to R. Hananel (quoted in Tosaf’. ד"ה חוזר) יום טוב שני(‘the second day’) means, or should read, יום טוב אחרון (‘the last day of the festival’); and he explains that one should not think that since vow-offerings and freewill-offerings cannot be brought on a festival day, therefore the remaining beasts may not be offered then; for these sacrifices are to be regarded as festal-offerings not as vow- or freewill-offerings, since in the first place they were set aside for that purpose. This interpretation is supported by the J.T.

(23) I.e., he said explicitly I set all of them aside for the first day; if then he offers some on the second day, they are merely ‘compensation’ for the first day.

(24) That you rule that he cannot offer them any more.

(25) But his intention was to offer them on the first day.

(26) In order to provide a feast for the second day.

(27) I.e.. that R. Johanan would grant that if he declared his intention to offer them all on the first day, he may offer the remaining beasts on the second.

(28) This is an Amoraic (v. p. 41, n. 3) corroboration to the effect that where it is evident that the pilgrim did not intend in the first instance to hold over some of the offerings for the second day, R. Johanan would agree with Resh Lakish.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 9a

They taught this[1] only [of a case] when it had not ended, but if it had ended, he may offer the rest [on the second day]. What does ‘ended’ mean? Shall one say [it means]: he had ended[2] his sacrifices? What [in that case] should he offer? It must mean, therefore, that the day had not ended,[3] but if the day had ended,[4] he may offer the rest [on the second day].

MISHNAH. HE WHO DID NOT BRING HIS FESTAL-OFFERING ON THE FIRST FESTIVAL, DAY OF THE FEAST [OF TABERNACLES], MAY BRING IT DURING THE WHOLE OF THE FESTIVAL, EVEN ON THE LAST FESTIVAL DAY[5] OF THE FEAST [OF TABERNACLES]. IF THE FESTIVAL, PASSED AND HE DID NOT BRING THE FESTIVAL OFFERING, HE IS NOT BOUND TO MAKE IT GOOD. OF SUCH A PERSON IT IS SAID: HE THAT IS CROOKED CANNOT BE MADE STRAIGHT AND THAT WHICH IS WANTING CANNOT BE RECKONED.[6] R. SIMEON B. MENASYA SAID: WHO IS IT ‘THAT IS CROOKED’ WHO ‘CANNOT BE MADE STRAIGHT’? HE THAT HAS CONNECTION WITH A FORBIDDEN RELATION[7] AND BEGETS BY HER BASTARD ISSUE. SHOULD YOU SAY THAT IT APPLIES TO A THIEF OR ROBBER, BUT THEN HE IS ABLE TO MAKE RESTITUTION AND BE MADE STRAIGHT. R. SIMEON B. YOHAI SAID: ONLY HE CAN BE CALLED ‘CROOKED’ WHO WAS STRAIGHT AT FIRST AND BECAME CROOKED. AND WHO IS THIS? — A DISCIPLE OF THE SAGES WHO FORSAKES THE TORAH.

GEMARA. Whence do we know this?[8] — R. Johanan in the name of R. Ishmael said: [The expression] ‘Azereth [‘solemn assembly’] is used of the seventh day of Passover,[9] and [the expression] ‘Azereth is used of the eighth day of the Feast [of Tabernacles].[10] Just as there it[11] intimates that one can make good [thereon the festal-offering due on the first day] so here[12] it intimates that one can make good [thereon the festal-offering of the first day]. And it is free [for interpretation];[13] for were it not free one might object: whereas [this[14] applies] to the seventh day of Passover which is not differentiated from the preceding [days], can you say this of the eighth day of the Feast [of Tabernacles] which is differentiated from the preceding [days].[15] But it is not so;[16] it is quite free [for interpretation]. Consider, what does ‘Azereth mean? [Evidently it means], restrained [‘Azur][17] in respect of doing work. But behold it is written: Thou shalt do no work;[18] wherefore, then, has the Divine Law written ‘Azereth?[19] You must infer therefrom [that it is] in order to leave it free [for interpretation]. But the Tanna[20] [of the following Baraitha] deduces it from here. For it is taught: And ye shall keep it a feast unto the Lord seven days.[21] One might think that he must go on bringing festal-offerings the whole of the seven days. Scripture, therefore, says, ‘it’: on it [only] are you to offer festal-offerings, but you are not to offer festal-offerings on all the seven days. If so, why does it say, ‘seven’? To intimate that one may make good [the festal-offering during the seven days of the festival]. And whence [do we learn] that if he did not bring the festal-offering on the first festival day of the Feast [of Tabernacles] that he can go on bringing it during the course of the whole Festival, even on the last festival day? Scripture says: Ye shall keep it in the seventh month.[22] If, now, [it is to be kept] in the seventh month, one might think that one can go on bringing the festal-offering throughout the whole month, therefore Scripture says. ‘it’:[23] on ‘it’ [only] are you to offer festal-offerings, but you are not to offer festal-offerings outside it.

And what is the nature of this ‘making good’? — R. Johanan says: They[24] make up for the first day;[25] and R. Oshaiah says: They make up for one another.[26] What is the [practical] point at issue between them? — R. Zera said: [The case of] a man who was lame[27] on the first day [of the festival] and became well on the second day is the point of issue between them. R. Johanan says: They make up for the first day; since on the first day he was not qualified [to bring the festal-offering], he is not qualified on the second. And R. Oshaiah says: They make up for one another; although he was not qualified on the first day he is qualified on the second. But could R. Johanan have said this? For behold Hezekiah said: If [a Nazirite] became defiled during the day [of the eighth] he has to bring [a sacrifice], but during the night [preceding the eighth] he does not have to bring [a sacrifice].[28] But R. Johanan said: Also [if he was defiled] during the night, he must bring [a sacrifice]![29] — Said R. Jeremiah: The case of uncleanness is different,[30] because it can be made good [as is the case with the sacrifice] on the Second Passover.[31] R. Papa demurred to this: It is right according to the view that the Second Passover

---

(1) I.e., the Baraitha quoted infra pp. 44-45 which deduces from Lev. XXIII, 41 that the festal-offering is to be offered on the first day only.

(2) גמר (‘he ended’) is both transitive and intransitive.

(3) And he refrained from offering the remaining beasts.

(4) And he had no opportunity of offering all his sacrifices.

(5) Which is regarded as a separate festival, nevertheless one can make good thereon the festal-offering due on the first day of Tabernacles.

(6) Eccl. I, 15.

(7) V. Lev. XVIII, 6-18.

(8) I.e., that if the festal-offering was not brought earlier, it can still be offered up on the last day of Tabernacles.

(9) Deut. XVI, 8.

(10) Lev. XXIII, 36; Num. XXIX, 35.

(11) I.e., in the case of the seventh day of Passover which is essentially part of the Passover Festival.

(12) I.e., in the case of the eighth day of Tabernacles, even though it has the status of a separate festival; v. infra 17a.

(13) I.e., the word עצרת is redundant; this makes the inference by analogy irrefutable.

(14) That one can make good on the last day the festal-offering of the first.

(15) Cf. Yoma 3a.

(16) לאו לא הי לאיי ‘No’, ‘it is not so’.

(17) Cf. A.V. Marg. ‘restraint’ in Deut. XVI, 8; Lev. XXIII, 36.

(18) Deut. XVI, 8.

(19) V. p. 7, n. 8.

(20) An authority quoted in Mishnah and Baraitha in contradistinction to Amora such as R. Johanan above. V. Glos.

(21) Lev. XXIII, 41.

(22) Ibid. I.e., you can bring the festal-offering on every festival day in the month.

(23) The second ‘it’ of the verse.

(24) I.e., the days of the festival following the first.

(25) I.e.,the first day of the festival is the specific day for the festival-offering. If a man was liable to bring it on the first day but did not, he may make it good on a subsequent day of the festival; but if he was exempt on the first day, he is no longer bound to bring the offering.

(26) I.e.. each day makes up for the preceding in the sense that it puts a new liability on the pilgrim; thus on whichever day of the festival he becomes qualified, he is bound to bring his offerings.

(27) And therefore exempt; v. p. 1.

(28) If a Nazirite (v. Num. VI, 2f) becomes defiled, he must wait seven days, and bring a sacrifice on the eighth, before he again begins to observe the days of his Naziritehood. One sacrifice will suffice for several defilements if the lapse between any two is less than eight days. But if he became defiled on the eighth day, he must bring a sacrifice for the previous defilement, since it was already due, and also for the subsequent defilement, since it occurred in a new period of eight days. If, however, the second defilement occurred on the night preceding the eighth, a second sacrifice has not to be brought, since the first cannot be offered till the morning, (for sacrifices are offered only during the day), the obligation to bring a sacrifice cannot be said to have yet fallen due and consequently the question of making good does not in his view arise. Cf. Ker. II, 3.

(29) Because he has already been purified by ritual immersion (טבילה) on the seventh day, and the sun of that day has set (הערב שמש). Now this statement seems to show that R. Johanan holds that though one is not qualified to bring a sacrifice (e.g., the Nazirite on the night preceding the eighth day), one may make up for it later.

(30) I.e., a sacrifice which cannot be offered on account of uncleanness is exceptional.

(31) Which is offered to make good the nonobservance of the First Passover sacrifice owing to a disqualification of uncleanness. V. Num. 10f. Thus those who are unfit to bring the paschal lamb on the First Passover may bring it on the Second, and similarly in other cases of uncleanness; but in all other cases of disqualification, R. Johanan would hold that an offering which could not be brought on one day cannot be made good.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 9b

makes up for the First;[1] but what is to be said according to the view that the Second [Passover] is a separate festival?[2] — Therefore, said R. Papa, R. Johanan must be of the opinion that the night [before the day on which the sacrifice is due] is not regarded as belonging to the preceding period.[3] But how could R. Johanan have said this?[4] For behold R. Johanan said: If [a zab][5] had one emission in the night and two in the [following] day, he must bring [a second offering];[6] but [if he had] two in the night and one in the day, he has not to bring [a second offering].[7] Now if you imagine that R. Johanan is of the opinion that the night [before the day on which the sacrifice is due] is not regarded as belonging to the preceding period, then even [if he had] two [emissions] at night and one in the day he must bring [a second offering]! — R. Johanan said this only according to the view that the night [before] is regarded as belonging to the preceding period.[8] But according to this view it is surely obvious![9] — It is required for the case where there are two [emissions] in the day and one the [preceding] night. You might have thought [the decision] to be according to the objection of R. Shisha son of R. Idi, it therefore teaches us that it is according to R. Joseph.[10]

IF THE FESTIVAL PASSED AND HE DID NOT BRING THE FESTIVAL OFFERING, HE IS NOT BOUND TO MAKE IT GOOD. OF SUCH A PERSON IT IS SAID: HE THAT IS CROOKED CANNOT BE MADE STRAIGHT AND THAT WHICH IS WANTING CANNOT BE RESTORED. Bar He-He[11] said to Hillel: [Instead of] the [expression] ‘to be reckoned’ it ought to be ‘to be filled’![12] It must refer, therefore, to one whose fellows reckoned him[13] for [the performance of] a religious act, but he would not be reckoned with them. It has also been taught thus: ‘He that is crooked cannot be made straight’: this refers to one who neglected to read the morning Shema’ or the evening Shema’,[14] or he neglected the morning prayer[15] or the evening prayer. And that which is wanting cannot be reckoned’; this refers to one whose fellows resolved[16] on [the performance of] a religious act and he would not be reckoned with them.

Bar He-He said to Hillel: Then shall ye again discern between the righteous and the wicked, between him that serveth God and him that serveth Him not.[17] ‘The righteous’ is the same as ‘he that serveth God’; ‘the wicked’ is the same as ‘he that serveth Him not’! — He answered him: He that serveth Him and he that serveth Him not both refer to such as are perfectly righteous; but he that repeated his chapter a hundred times is not to be compared with him who repeated it a hundred and one times.[18] Said [Bar He-He] to him: And because of once he is called 'he that serveth Him not'? — He answered: Yes, go and learn from the mule-drivers market; ten parasangs for one zuz,[19] eleven parasangs for two zuz.

Elijah[20] said to Bar He-He, and others say, to R. Eleazar: What is the meaning of the verse: Behold I have refined thee but not as silver; I have tried thee in the furnace of affliction?[21] It teaches that the Holy One, blessed be He, went through all the good qualities in order to give [them] to Israel, and He found only poverty.[22] Samuel said, and others say. R. Joseph: This accords with the popular saying: Poverty befits Israel like a red trapping a white horse.[23] R. SIMEON B. MENASYA SAID: WHO IS IT 'THAT IS CROOKED' WHO 'CANNOT BE MADE STRAIGHT'? HE THAT HAS CONNECTION WITH A FORBIDDEN RELATION AND BEGETS BY HER BASTARD ISSUE etc. Only if he begets, but not if he does not beget. But behold it is taught: R. Simeon b. Menasya said: If a man steal, he can return the theft and [so] become straight; but he that has connection with a married woman and makes her prohibited unto her husband is banished from the world and passes away.[24] (R. Simeon b. Yohai said: One does not say: Examine the camel, examine the pig,[25] Only examine the lamb.[26] And who is this? A disciple of the wise who has forsaken the Torah. R. Judah b. Lakish said: Any disciple of the wise who has forsaken the Torah, of him Scripture says: As a bird that wandereth from her nest, so is a man that wandereth from his place.[27] And it further says : What unrighteousness have your fathers found in me, that they are gone far from me?)[28] — There is no contradiction: the one case refers to his unmarried sister,[29] the other refers to a married woman.[30] Or I might say: Both are cases of married women; but there is no contradiction: in the one case

---

(1) V. Pes. 93a.

(2) This excludes the explanation that a sacrifice, not offered in time owing to uncleanness, can be made good later.

(3) [Lit., 'is not (deemed as) wanting time'. I.e., the fact that one cannot bring an offering on the night preceding the day on which it is due, is not regarded as a disqualifying factor, and consequently in the case of a Nazirite the night preceding the eighth day completes the eight days' period, so that the sacrifice may be said to fall due thereon, though he is actually prevented from offering it because it is still night. For this reason the sacrifice which was not offered at night can be made good on the following morning, and should he in the meantime suffer a second defilement, he has to bring a second sacrifice, whereas in the case of the festival-offering where he was lame on the first day, there was no obligation whatsoever resting on him to bring a sacrifice and consequently this cannot be made good].

(4) I.e., that the night preceding the day on which a sacrifice is due is not regarded as belonging to the preceding period.

(5) זב, one who suffers from gonorrhoea (v. Lev. XV). After the first emission he is considered a בעל קרי and is unclean for the day; after the second, he is מטא, (unclean in the degree of zab), and has to count seven clean days, wash his garments, have ritual immersion and wait for sunset; after the third, he has, in addition, to bring sacrifices on the eighth day (cf. Ned. 43b). This zab had counted seven days and was to bring his offerings on the morrow, and in the meantime he saw further discharges.

(6) Because the first emission is counted with the two of the morning.

(7) Because the two nocturnal emissions make him unclean within the period of the first defilement, i.e., before the eighth day.

(8) But his own view is the reverse.

(9) As his own opinion the statement would have point in as much as it tells us his personal view; otherwise the teaching is an obvious corollary of the principle that the night before belongs to the preceding period.

(10) V. Ker. 8a, where R. Joseph seeks to prove R. Johanan's view that the first emission in the evening is counted with the two of the morning (cf. n. 1). and R. Shisha argues against the former's proof.

(11) V. Aboth, Sonc. ed, p. 77, n. 6. (Ch. V, 23).

(12) I.e., the expression 'that which is wanting' (חסרון) requires as its antonym 'to be filled' (להמלאות) not 'to be reckoned' להמנות lit., to be numbered'.

(13) I.e., asked him to join them.

(14) A biblical reading consisting of Deut. VI, 4-9 and an additional sentence; ibid. XI, 13-21; Num. XV, 37-41; the name is derived from its first word — שמע. V. P.B. pp. 40-42.

(15) The prayer par excellence, called also ‘Amidah (‘standing prayer’) and the ‘eighteen (really nineteen) blessings’. V. P.B. pp. 44f.

(16) Lit., ‘reckoned themselves’.

(17) Mal. III, 18.

(18) Possibly a pun is intended here: the initial letters of עבד אלהים לא,ר (‘he that serveth God and he’) = 101; and of לא עבדו (‘serveth Him not’) = 100. V. Marginal Gloss. in cur. edd.

(19) A silver coin, quarter of a shekel, and equal to a denar, v. Glos.

(20) For Elijah in Rabbinic literature v. J.E. vol. V, pp. 122f, espec. p. 124f. Cf. also supra pp. 17f. regarding the Angel of death.

(21) Isa. XLVIII, 10.

(22) The word for ‘affliction’ (עני) also means poverty.

(23) V. Lev. Rab. ss. 13 and 35 for parallel readings.

(24) I.e., the wrong they have done is irreparable. This statement of R. Simeon b. Menasya, which declares that connection with a prohibited relation, even if there be no issue, is irreparable, contradicts his statement in the Mishnah. The other dicta are quoted merely because they form part of the Baraitha (Tosef.).

(25) I.e., to see if they are without blemish and so fit for sacrifice, for they are unfit to start with. Likewise ‘made crooked’ can only refer to one who was originally worthy and later degenerated. V. R. Simeon b. Yohai's statement in Mishnah.

(26) Which is fit for sacrifice unless it becomes blemished.

(27) Prov. XXVII, 8.

(28) Jer. II, 5.

(29) The wrong then becomes irreparable only when there is issue.

(30) A stranger's connection with her, even if no issue results, makes her prohibited to her husband.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 10a

it was against her will,[1] in the other it was with her consent. Or you may say: in both cases it was against her will but there is no contradiction: the one case concerns a priest's wife[2] and the other an Israelite's wife.

Neither was there any peace to him that went out or came in,[3] Rab said: As soon as man goes forth from Halachic[4] to Scripture study he no longer has peace.[5] And Samuel said: It means one who leaves Talmud for Mishnah.[6] And R. Johanan said: Even [if he goes] from Talmud to Talmud.[7]

MISHNAH. [THE LAWS CONCERNING] THE DISSOLUTION OF VOWS[8] HOVER IN THE AIR AND HAVE NOUGHT TO REST ON.[9] THE LAWS CONCERNING THE SABBATH, FESTAL-OFFERINGS, ACTS OF TRESPASS[10] ARE AS MOUNTAINS HANGING BY A HAIR, FOR THEY HAVE SCANT SCRIPTURAL BASIS BUT MANY LAWS. [THE LAWS CONCERNING] CIVIL CASES AND [TEMPLE] SERVICES,[11] LEVITICAL CLEANNESS AND UNCLEANNESS, AND THE FORBIDDEN RELATIONS[12] HAVE WHAT TO REST ON,[13] AND IT IS THEY THAT ARE THE ESSENTIALS OF THE TORAH.

GEMARA. It is taught: R. Eliezer said: They[14] have something to rest on, for it is said: When one shall clearly utter[15] [a vow], when one shall clearly utter [a vow]:[15] one [intimates] an utterance to bind, and the other an utterance to dissolve. R. Joshua said: They have something to rest on, for it is said: Wherefore I swore in My wrath.[16] [It means,] I swore in My wrath,[17] but I retracted.[18] R. Isaac said: They have something to rest on, for it is said: Whosoever is of a willing heart.[19] Hanania, son of the brother of R. Joshua, said: They have something to rest on, for it is said: I have sworn, and I have confirmed it, to observe Thy righteous ordinances.[20] Rab Judah said that Samuel said: Had I been there I should have said to them: My [Scriptural proof] is better than yours, for it is said: He shall not break his word.[21] ‘He’ may not break it, but others may dissolve it for him. Raba said: To all these [proofs] objection can be made except to that of Samuel, against which no objection can be raised. For against R. Eliezer [it may be objected]: Perhaps [the verse is to be explained] according to R. Judah , who said it in the name of R. Tarfon. For it is taught: R. Judah said in the name of R. Tarfon: Indeed, neither of them becomes a Nazirite, because Naziriteship can be assumed only by clear utterance.[22] Against R. Joshua [it may be objected]: Perhaps this is the meaning of the verse: I swore in My wrath and did not retract'. Against R. Isaac [it may be objected]: Perhaps [the verse comes to] exclude the view of Samuel. For Samuel said: Though he determined in his heart,[23] he must still utter it with his lips.[24] And [the verse][25] teaches us that even though he did not utter it with his lips [it is binding]. Against Hanania, the son of the brother of R. Joshua [it may be objected]: Perhaps [the verse is to be explained] according to R. Giddal who said it in the name of Rab. For R. Giddal said that Rab said: Whence [is it to be deduced] that one may take an oath to fulfil a precept?[26] For it is said: ‘I have sworn, and I have confirmed it, to observe Thy righteous ordinances’.[27] But against Samuel's proof no objection can be raised. Raba, and some say, R. Nahman b. Isaac, said: This is the meaning of the popular saying: Better one grain of pungent pepper than a basketful of pumpkins.[28]

THE LAWS CONCERNING THE SABBATH. But they are written [in Scripture]![29] — No, it is necessary [to state this] for the teaching of R. Abba. For R. Abba said: He who digs a hole on the Sabbath and requires it only for the sake of its earth is not liable for it.[30] According to which authority [will this be]? According to R. Simeon, who said: one is not liable for work [performed on the Sabbath] which is not required for itself.[31] — You may even say that it is according to R. Judah:[32] there[33] one is improving.[34] here[35] one is spoiling.[36] But why does it say: AS MOUNTAINS HANGING BY A HAIR?[37]

---

(1) In this case she may continue to live with her husband.

(2) In this case even if it was against her will she may no longer live with her husband (cf. Keth. 51b).

(3) Zech. VIII, 10.

(4) V. Glos. s.v. Halachah.

(5) Because the Halachah provides the ultimate ruling for conduct; cf. Hershon, Talmudic Miscellany, Ch. XI, No. 33, and the lines in Longfellow's ‘Golden Legend’ beginning: The Kabbala and Talmud lore, etc. (quoted in Streane's Chagigah).

(6) Without the Talmudic explanation and discussion the Mishnah may be misleading.

(7) According to Rashi, from the Palestinian Talmud (or Jerusalmi) to the Babylonian Talmud which was more difficult; cf. Sanh. 24a and B.M. 85b. But according to Tosaf., from either to the other before the first is properly understood.

(8) By a Sage, to whom the person who makes the vow explains his original intention which did not include the special circumstances that now cause him to regret the vow; thus a פתח חרטה (‘a way of retraction’) is found whereby the vow can be annulled. V. Ned. 9a, 10b.

(9) I.e., in Biblical teaching, and depend only on oral tradition; but cf. Num. XXX, 8-9.

(10) The misappropriation of holy things to secular use. V. Lev. V, 14-16.

(11) I.e., the offering of sacrifices.

(12) V. Lev. XVIII, 6f.

(13) [MS.M.: ‘have on whom to rest’, i.e., have good authority. V. Zeitlin, JQR. (N.S.) VII, p. 500].

(14) I.e., the laws concerning the dissolution of vows.

(15) Twice: in Lev. XXVII, 2 and Num. VI, 2.

(16) Ps. XCV, R.

(17) I.e., hastily, but in calmer mood I regretted the oath and retracted. The verse refers to God, of course; but the inference is drawn from the anthropomorphism for ill-considered human vows.

(18) The ‘change of mind’ attributed here to God with regard to the generation of the wilderness must be explained by reference to Sanh. 110b where the view is expressed that they have a share in the world to come, i.e., they were not permitted to enter Canaan, their earthly possession, but it was granted them to enter their Heavenly heritage.

(19) Ex. XXXV, 5. But if the heart be no longer willing it is possible for the vow to be dissolved (cf. discussion in Shab. 26b).

(20) Ps. CXIX, 106. But where instead of confirmation there is retraction, the person may be released from his vow.
(21) Num. XXX, 3.
(22) If the assumption of the state of Nazir (v. Num. VI) was made the forfeit of a wager between two, R. Tarfon holds that neither loser nor winner is a Nazir, because Naziriteship must be explicitly vowed and cannot be assumed conditionally. This he deduces from one of the two verses cited by R. Eliezer (cf. Nazir 32b Mishnah and 34a top).
(23) To swear a certain oath.
(24) Otherwise it is no oath and he is not liable.
(25) Cited by R. Isaac.
(26) I.e., it is meritorious to do this that he may fulfil the precept with greater zeal.
(27) V. Ned. 7b.
(28) I.e., a sharp mind is better than mere learning.
(29) Why then does the Mishnah say that there is little Scriptural basis for them?
(30) But if he required the hole itself, he would be guilty of building on the Sabbath, v. Shab. 73b.
(31) E.g., a hole dug for the sake of its earth. R. Simeon stated this principle in connection with carrying out the dead on the Sabbath (v. Shab. 93a).
(32) Who holds that one may not carry a corpse out on the Sabbath for burial (v. ibid.).
(33) I.e. , in the case of the corpse.
(34) I.e., burying the corpse and achieving something desired.
(35) I.e., in the case of the digging of a hole.
(36) The hole does not improve the ground nor is it desired for itself.
(37) Implying that some kind of support is afforded by the Torah.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 10b

— Because the Torah prohibited [on the Sabbath] purposed work,[1] yet purposed work is not mentioned in Scripture.[2] [LAWS CONCERNING] FESTAL-OFFERINGS. But they are written [in Scripture]![3] — No, it is necessary in the light of what R. Papa said to Abaye: Whence [do we know] that [the verse]: And ye shall keep it a feast to the Lord[4] signifies sacrifice? Perhaps the Divine Law means: Celebrate a Festival![5] — If so, when it is written, That they may hold a feast unto Me in the wilderness,[6] would that also mean: Celebrate a festival! And should you say that it indeed means that, surely it is written: And Moses said: 'Thou must also give into our hand beasts of killing and burnt-offerings'![7] — Perhaps the Divine Law means this: Eat ye and drink and celebrate a festival before Me![8] — Do not think of this; for it is written: Neither shall the fat of My feast remain all night until the morning.[9] If now you suppose that it means a festival[10] [only], has a festival fat? — But perhaps the Divine Law means this: the fat that is offered during the course of the festival should not remain overnight![11] — If so, then [it would imply] that only during the festival the fat may not remain overnight, but throughout the year[12] it may remain overnight; [but behold] it is written: All night unto the morning![13] — [But] perhaps from this [verse alone] one would know it merely as a positive precept, therefore Scripture wrote the other [verse to enjoin it] as a prohibition![14] — [To enjoin it] as a prohibition there is another verse: Neither shall any of the flesh, which thou sacrificest the first day at even, remain all night until the morning[15] — [But] perhaps [this was required] in order to impose upon him two prohibitions and one positive precept! — Rather, it can be deduced from [the word] 'wilderness' which occurs in two passages. Here it is written: That they may hold a feast unto Me in the wilderness.[16] And elsewhere it is written: Did ye bring unto Me sacrifices and offerings in the wilderness?[17] Just as in the latter verse [it means] sacrifices, so in the former [it means] sacrifices. Why then does it say: AS MOUNTAINS HANGING BY A HAIR?[18] — [Because] no inference may be drawn concerning statements of the Torah from statements of the Prophets.[19]

ACTS OF SACRILEGE. But they are written [in Scripture]! Rami b. Hama said: It is required only for that which we have learnt. If the agent did his errand [committing thereby an act of sacrilege],[20] the householder[21] is guilty of sacrilege;[22] if he did not do his errand, the agent is guilty of sacrilege. But why should he[23] be guilty if he did his errand? Shall one man sin and another become liable![24] That is why [the Mishnah says]: AS MOUNTAINS HANGING BY A HAIR. Raba said: But what is the objection? Perhaps sacrilege is different, since we compare it with terumah[25] through the analogous expressions for 'sin' [which occur in connection with both laws]:[26] just as there[27] the agent of a person is like himself[28] , so here the agent of a person is like himself. Rather, said Raba, it must be required for the [following] teaching; If the householder remembered,[29] but the agent did not remember, the agent is guilty of sacrilege. What has the poor agent done![30] That is why [the Mishnah says]: AS MOUNTAINS HANGING BY A HAIR. R. Ashi said: What is the objection? Perhaps it is like [every other] case where one spent [in error] sacred money for secular purposes![31] Rather, said R. Ashi, it must be required for that which we have learnt. If a man took away a stone or a beam from Temple property, he is not guilty of sacrilege; but if he gave it to his fellow,[32] he himself is guilty, but his fellow is not guilty.[33] See now, he has taken it, what difference does it make whether he or his fellow [keeps it]! Therefore it says: LIKE MOUNTAINS HANGING BY A HAIR. But what is the objection? Perhaps it is [to be explained] according to Samuel. For Samuel said: Here

---

(1) Lit., 'work of thought' (cf, Ex. XXXV, 35 where it is rendered in E.V. 'skillful workmanship') i.e., work that achieves the purpose primarily intended; v. supra n. 9. The various kinds of work prohibited on the Sabbath are deduced from the different kinds of work involved in the Tabernacle; cf. Shab. 73a (Mishnah) Rashi a.l.

(2) It is only deduced from the juxtaposition of the section concerning the Sabbath and the section concerning the construction of the Tabernacle in Ex. XXXV.

(3) Ex. XII, 14; Lev. XXIII, 41.

(4) Ibid.

(5) I.e., without sacrifices. Tosaf. a.l. suggests: Celebrate it with dances, taking the rt. חוג to mean to dance'; cf. Ps. CVII, 27.

(6) Ex. V, 1.

(7) Ibid. X, 25.

(8) The 'beasts for killing' (Heb. זבחים, E.V. 'sacrifices') would thus not refer to sacrifices (i.e., 'peace-offerings) but to animals killed for meat only.

(9) But should be burnt on the altar before dawn. Ibid. XXIII, 18.

(10) Heb. חג, which can mean both festival and festal-offering; cf. חגיגה, the Rabbinic word for festal-offering, which is derived from the same root.

(11) But it does not follow that there is an obligation to bring a festal-offering.

(12) I.e., in the case of other sacrifices offered at non-festival times.

(13) Lev. VI, 2, which refers to all occasions, not just to festivals: it teaches us that the limbs and fat of sacrifices slaughtered during the day may be burnt on the altar all night but not thereafter.

(14) The neglect of an ordinary positive precept is not indictable; but the transgression of a prohibition entails the bringing of a sin-offering, if the offence was committed unwittingly, or the punishment of stripes (maximum thirty-nine), if the transgression was wittingly committed, unless a severer penalty is ordained by Scripture. Exceptions not involving stripes are (a) 'a prohibitive precept transformed into a mandatory law' i.e., when the transgression must be repaired by a succeeding act; (b) a prohibition the transgression of which involves no action. Hence, the prohibition here referred to does not involve stripes.

(15) Deut. XVI, 4.

(16) Ex. V,1.

(17) Amos V, 25.

(18) For deduction by analogy is considered support for a law.

(19) Heb. קבלה Lit., 'tradition', a designation for post-Pentateuchal books of the Bible, which are deemed of lesser authority than the Pentateuch or Torah. V. Bacher, Exeg. Term. I, 166, II, 185.

(20) E.g., sacred money was mixed with secular money, and not knowing of this, he asked the agent to buy a garment for him with the money.

(21) I.e.,the one who instructed the agent.

(22) I.e., he has to refund the value of the sacred property plus a fifth and bring a trespass-offering.

(23) I.e., the householder.

(24) It is a Talmudic principle that no one is considered an agent or messenger for the committal of sin, i.e., the transgressor is liable whether he commits the sin on his own behalf or for another.

(25) A portion of the produce, between a fortieth and a sixtieth, given to the priest. V. Glos.

(26) Lev. V, 15 (trespass), and Num. XVIII, 32 (terumah).

(27) I.e., in the case of terumah.

(28) Deduced from the words, ‘Ye also’, in Num. XVIII, 28.

(29) Before the agent committed sacrilege by spending the money for secular use.

(30) He did not know that he was misappropriating sacred money; why then should he be held responsible?

(31) Though a person committed sacrilege in error he is held responsible; so too here in the case of the agent.

(32) By this act he takes it out of the possession of the Temple.

(33) Derived from Lev. V, 16.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 11a

it refers to the treasurer [of the Sanctuary] to whom the building stones had been entrusted, so that wherever it is, it is in his possession![1] Rather [it can be explained] from the latter part [of the Mishnah]. If he built it into his house, he is not guilty of sacrilege until he dwells under it to the value of a perutah.[2] See now, he has effected a change therein,[3] what difference does it make whether he dwells [under it] or does not dwell [under it]![4] Therefore it says: LIke MOUNTAINS HANGING BY A HAIR. But what is the objection? Perhaps it is [to be explained] according to Rab. For Rab said: It refers to a case where he placed it over a roof-aperture,[5] [in which case] if he dwells in [the house] he is [guilty of sacrilege]. If he does not dwell in [the house] he is not [guilty]! — Therefore, it must be after all as Raba said: and as for your objection that the same applies to any person who spent [in error] sacred money for secular purposes, [one may answer]: There[6] he knew full well that he had sacred money, he should therefore have taken care; but here,[7] how could he know? Therefore [the Mishnah says]: AS MOUNTAINS HANGING BY A HAIR[8]

SCANT SCRIPTURAL BASIS BUT MANY LAWS. A Tanna taught: [The laws concerning defilement through] leprosy-signs[9] and tent-covering[10] have scant Scriptural basis and many laws. [You say] leprosy-signs have scant Scriptural basis? [On the contrary] leprosy-signs have considerable Scriptural basis! — R. Papa said: It means as follows: Leprosy-signs have considerable Scriptural basis and few laws, [defilement through] tent-covering has scant Scriptural basis and many laws. But what practical difference does it make? — If you are in doubt about anything concerning leprosy-signs search the Bible, but if you are in doubt about anything concerning [defilement through] tent-covering search the Mishnah.[11]

CIVIL CASES. But they are written [in Scripture]![12] — It is necessary only for the teaching of Rabbi. For it is taught: Rabbi said: Life for life[13] [means] monetary compensation. You say [it means] monetary compensation; but perhaps [it means] actual life? — ‘Giving’ is mentioned below,[14] and ‘giving’ is mentioned above:[15] just as in the latter case [it means] monetary compensation, so in the former case [it means] monetary compensation.

TEMPLE SERVICES. But they are written [in Scripture]! — It refers only to the carrying of the blood [to the altar]. For it is taught: And they shall present;[16] this [means] the receiving of the blood.[17] Now the Divine Law used for it an expression of ‘carrying’, as it is written: And the priest shall present[18] the whole and make it smoke upon the altar,[19] and the Master said: This [means] the carrying[20] of the pieces [of the offering] to the altar ramp.[21] This is to tell us that the ‘carrying’ [of the blood] is not to be excluded from the category of ‘receiving’ [the blood].[22]

[LAWS OF] LEVITICAL CLEANNESS. But they are written [in Scripture]! — It refers only to the measure of a ritual bath, which is not stated in Scripture. For it is taught: And he shall bathe in water,[23] [this means] in water of a ritual bath;[24] all his flesh: [this means in] water which covers all his body. And how much is this? A cubit[25] by a cubit to the height of three cubits; and the Sages fixed the measure of the ritual bath water at forty se'ahs.[26]

[LAWS CONCERNING LEVITICAL] UNCLEANNESS. But they are written [in Scripture]! — It refers only to [defilement caused by touching a part of a dead] creeping creature, which is the size of a lentil; this is not stated in Scripture. For it is taught: In them:[27] I might think [it means] all of them,[28] therefore Scripture teaches: ‘Of them’.[29] I might then think [it means] even a part of them;[30] therefore Scripture says: ‘in them’. How is this to be explained? [It means that he is not defiled] till he touches a part of one which is as the whole of one. The Sages fixed the measure at the size of a lentil, for a snail[31] is at first the size of a lentil. R. Jose b. R. Judah said: [It must be] the size of the tail of a lizard.[32]

FORBIDDEN RELATIONS. But they are written [in Scripture]!

---

(1) Thus he does not commit sacrilege till he gives it (i.e., the stone or beam) into the possession of his fellow.

(2) A small coin. V. Glos.

(3) E.g., by chiselling the beam or stone and fixing it into the house: through this alteration it becomes his own property.

(4) He has already misappropriated sacred property.

(5) ארובה (cf. Hos. XIII, 3; II Kings VII, 2), an aperture in the roof leading to the ground floor (answering to the Greek hypaithron, Roman compluvium), contrad. from חלון a garret-window in the wall projecting above the flat roof (Jast.); cf. also Levy s.v. By placing the beam over the aperture he in no way alters it and can always restore it, and is thus not guilty of sacrilege till he dwells in the house and enjoys the use of it.

(6) I.e., in the case quoted in the objection.

(7) I.e., in the case of the agent.

(8) For though the agent could hardly avoid the sacrilege, he is deemed to have committed sacrilege in error and is held responsible.

(9) V. Lev. XIII-XIV.

(10) V. Num. XIX, 14, from which it is inferred that men and utensils under the same ‘tent’ (i.e., overshadowed by the same covering) as a corpse suffer corpse-defilement.

(11) I.e., oral tradition.

(12) I.e., why then does the Mishnah say that they merely have something to rest on?

(13) Ex. XXI, 23.

(14) I.e., in our own case.

(15) Ex. XXI, 22 (the preceding verse).

(16) Lev. I, 5.

(17) It is inferred from the fact that this clause comes immediately after the injunction to slaughter the animal; therefore it is taken to refer to the ‘receiving’ of the blood, for the blood cannot be ‘carried’ till it is ‘received’.

(18) E.V. ‘offer’, though it is the same verb as in verse 5.

(19) Lev. I, 13.

(20) It cannot mean the burning of the pieces, for that is distinctly mentioned afterwards.

(21) I.e., the inclined plane leading to the altar. Cf. Mid. III, 3.

(22) I.e., though it is a part of the offering-service that can be omitted (e.g., if the animal is slaughtered close to the altar, so that the blood can be sprinkled forthwith), nevertheless if it is not omitted, it is an essential part of the service and is subject to all its conditions.

(23) Lev. XV, 16. This is evidently the verse intended. The words את בשרו (‘his flesh’), which really belong to Lev. Xlv, 9 must be deleted.

(24) Lit., ‘gathering’ of water, which must contain water directly from a river or a spring, or rain water led directly to it; but מים שאובין (lit., ‘drawn water i.e., water from a receptacle) if added to the ritual bath above a certain measure, invalidates it.

(25) A measure equal to the distance from the elbow to the tip of the middle finger (cf. Kel. XVII, 9.10).

(26) Measure of capacity, equal to six kabs; v. Pes. 109a.

(27) Lev. XI, 31 בהם; E. V. ‘(whosoever doth touch) them’.
(28) I.e., he becomes unclean when he touches the whole of the unclean animal.
(29) Ibid. v. 32.
(30) I. e., however small.
(31) חמט (cf. ibid. 30). Rashi renders, ‘snail’; Jast., ‘lizard (chameleon)’; Levy, ‘Bindschleiche’ (slowworm, blindworm), or ‘Eidechse’ (lizard); Goldschmidt, ‘Schnecke’ (snail), ‘skink’ or ‘Blindschleiche’; B.D.B., a kind of lizard. From Hul. 122a it seems to be a vertebrate. Danby translates it there ‘land crocodile’.
(32) הלטאה (cf. ibid.) Jast. regards the first ה, as part of the word, except in Mishnah, Tosefta and Sifra, where it is the definite article attached to לטאה. The tail of the הלטאה writhes after being cut off, thus showing independent life; hence it meets the requirements of the verse by being a part of an unclean animal and yet an entire life by itself, and is suitable as a measure for defilement. It is bigger than a lentil.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 11b

— This refers only to his daughter by a woman whom he had forced; this case is not written [in Scripture]. For Raba said: R. Isaac b. Abdimi told me, It is to be deduced by analogy from [the words] ‘they’, ‘they’,[1] and from [the words] ‘lewdness’, ‘lewdness’.[2]

IT IS THEY THAT ARE THE ESSENTIALS OF THE TORAH, These are and those are not![3] — Say, therefore, these and those are essentials of the Torah.

CHAPTER II

MISHNAH THE [SUBJECT OF] FORBIDDEN RELATIONS[4] MAY NOT BE EXPOUNDED IN THE PRESENCE OF THREE,[5] NOR THE WORK OF CREATION[6] IN THE PRESENCE OF TWO, NOR [THE WORK OF] THE CHARIOT[7] IN THE PRESENCE OF ONE, UNLESS HE IS A SAGE AND UNDERSTANDS OF HIS OWN KNOWLEDGE. WHOSOEVER SPECULATES UPON FOUR THINGS, A PITY[8] FOR HIM! HE IS AS THOUGH HE HAD NOT COME INTO THE WORLD, [TO WIT], WHAT IS ABOVE,[9] WHAT IS BENEATH,[10] WHAT BEFORE, WHAT AFTER.[11] AND WHOSOEVER TAKES NO THOUGHT FOR THE HONOUR OF HIS MAKER,[12] IT WERE A MERCY[13] IF HE HAD NOT COME INTO THE WORLD.

GEMARA. You say at first: NOR [THE WORK OF] THE CHARIOT IN THE PRESENCE OF ONE;[14] and then you say: UNLESS HE IS A SAGE AND UNDERSTANDS OF HIS OWN KNOWLEDGE! — This is the meaning: the forbidden relations may not be expounded to three,[15] nor the work of creation to two, nor [the work of] the chariot to one, unless he is a Sage and understands of his own knowledge.[16]

THE FORBIDDEN RELATIONS MAY NOT BE EXPOUNDED IN THE PRESENCE OF THREE. What is the reason? Shall one say, because it is written: Whosoever to any that is near of kin to him?[17] ‘Whosoever’[18] [implies] two, ‘near of kin to him’ [implies] one; and the Divine Law said: Ye shall not approach to uncover their nakedness.[19] But then since it is written: Whosoever curseth his God,[20] Whosoever giveth of his seed unto Molech,[21] are these [passages] also [to be interpreted] thus! — These, therefore, must be required to make Gentiles subject to the prohibition concerning blasphemy[22] and idolatry like the Israelites; then this [verse][23] is also required to make Gentiles subject to the prohibition concerning the forbidden relations like the Israelites![24] It must be inferred, therefore, from the verse: Therefore shall ye keep My charge.[25] ‘Ye shall keep’ [implies] two,[26] ‘My charge’ [implies] one; and the Divine Law said: That ye do not any of these abominable customs.[27] But then since it is written: Ye shall keep the Sabbath therefore,[28] And ye shall observe the feast of unleavened bread,[29] And ye shall keep the charge of the holy things,[30] are these [passages] also [to be interpreted] thus! — Therefore, said R. Ashi, THE FORBIDDEN RELATIONS MAY NOT BE EXPOUNDED IN THE PRESENCE OF THREE must mean: the secrets[31] of the forbidden relations may not be expounded to three.[32] What is the reason? It is a logical conclusion:[33] when two sit before their master, one engages in discussion with his master and the other inclines his ear to the instruction; but [when there are] three, one engages in discussion with his master, and the other two engage in discussion with one another and do not know what their master is saying, and may come to permit that which is prohibited in the matter of the forbidden relations. If so, [the rule should apply to] the whole Torah also![34] The [subject of] forbidden relations is different, for the master said:[35] Robbery and the forbidden relations, a man's soul covets and lusts for them. If so, [the rule should apply to] robbery also! [In the case of] the forbidden relations, whether [the opportunity] be before him or not before him, a man's inclination is strong; [in the case of] robbery, if [the opportunity] is before him, his inclination is strong, but if it is not before him, his inclination is not strong.

NOR THE WORK OF CREATION IN THE PRESENCE OF TWO. Whence [do we infer] this? — For the Rabbis taught: For ask thou now of the days past;[36] one may inquire,[37] but two may not inquire. One might have thought that one may inquire concerning the pre-creation period, therefore Scripture teaches: Since the day that God created man upon the earth.[38] One might have thought that one may [also] not inquire concerning the six days of creation,[39] therefore Scripture teaches: The days past[40] which were before thee.[41] One might have thought one may [also] inquire concerning what is above and what is below, what before and what after, therefore the text teaches: And from one end of heaven unto the other.[42] [Concerning the things that are] from one end of heaven unto the other thou mayest inquire, but thou mayest not inquire what is above, what is below, what before, what after.

---

(1) The word הנה ('they') occurs in Lev. XVIII, 17 in connection with a legitimate daughter, and ibid. v. 10 in connection with the grand-daughter of an illegitimate wife (v. Yeb. 97a). By analogy, we infer that an illegitimate daughter is also a forbidden relation.

(2) Having established an analogy between the legitimate and illegitimate daughter (v. n. 7), we go farther and say the word זמה ('lewdness'). which implies the penalty of burning (v. ibid. XX, 14) for connection with one's legitimate daughter, applies also to connection with one's illegitimate daughter; v. Yeb., Sonc. ed., p. 4, nn. 8-12.

(3) I.e., the laws explicitly stated in Scripture are essentials of the Torah, and those not so explicitly stated are not!

(4) V. p. 50, n. 8.

(5) I.e., it is forbidden to expound this subject in the presence of more than two.

(6) V. Gen. I, 1-3; J.E. vol. IV, pp. 280f,s. 'Cosmogony', and vol. VIII, p. 235. The term מעשה בראשית (Work of Creation) does not include the whole Talmudic cosmogony, only its esoteric aspects. The cosmogonic details mentioned infra in the Gemara (pp. 63f), such as the ten elements, the ten agencies etc., do not form part of the secret doctrine of Ma'aseh Bere'shith, for the Mishnah expressly forbids the teaching of the creation mysteries in public. The views recorded in the Talmud regarding the work of creation seem to belong chiefly to the realm of Aggadah. As regards their origin, they cannot with certainty be connected with the theosophic and cosmogonic doctrines of the Apocrypha and Pseudepigrapha, nor with Gnosticism; nor on the other hand can the mysticism of the Geonic period (e.g., as preserved in Sefer Yezirah with reference to the heavenly halls, angelology etc.) be regarded as a direct continuation of the Talmudic doctrines.

(7) V. Ezek. I, 4f, X, and Isa. VI; cf. Meg. IV, 10; and v. J.E. vol. VIII, p. 498. The mysteries of Creation and the Chariot were favourite themes with the mystics; for further information v. J.E. vol. III, p. 456f, s. 'Cabala'.

(8) Heb. רתוי or רתוי; but Mishnah ed., MS. M. and var. lec. in Aruch have ראוי ('he is looked upon as though'). Jastrow, who takes רתוי to mean 'relief, mercy, pity', renders as in text; Rashi translates: 'it were better for him', taking the root meaning to be 'mercy'; Levy translates: 'it were more advantageous for him'; Goldschmidt and Danby: 'it were better'.

(9) Sc., the sky stretching over the heads of the 'living creatures of the Chariot (Rashi).

(10) Sc., the 'living creatures'.

(11) I.e., beyond the sky eastward and westward (Rashi). This makes the reference spatial, and this explanation is supported by the use of the terms infra (p. 62); but from the Gemara 16a and the Tosef. it is clear that the terms have also a temporal significance. i.e., what happened before Creation and what will happen hereafter (Tosaf. a.l.).

(12) Explained infra 16a.

(13) V. p. 59, n. 5.

(14) This means, apparently, that a person is not permitted to study the mysteries of the Chariot even by himself, although the fact that he can study without the aid of a teacher shows that he is a Sage and understands of his own knowledge.

(15) I.e.,the number refers to the pupils and does not include the teacher.

(16) I.e., is able to speculate by himself. Such a disciple will not require to ask his teacher questions, for these mysteries may not be explained explicitly. D.S. omits the ‘and’; cf. p. 77.

(17) Lev. XVIII, 6.

(18) Heb. איש איש lit., ‘man man’, i.e., two men, as a minimum.

(19) Ibid. I.e., to reveal the reasons underlying the laws of the forbidden relations.

(20) Ibid. XXIV, 15.

(21) Ibid. XX, 2.

(22) Lit., ‘blessing of God’, a euphemism.

(23) Ibid. XVIII, 6.

(24) For the seven ‘Noachian Precepts’ which all humanity, Gentiles as well as Jews, must observe v. Sanh. 56a-b, (Sonc. ed. pp. 381-2 and nn. a.l.)

(25) Lev. XXIV v. 30.

(26) The plural (‘Ye’) implies at least two.

(27) Ibid. V. p. 60, n. 8.

(28) Ex. XXXI, 14.

(29) Ibid. XII, 17.

(30) Num. XVIII, 5.

(31) I.e., according to Rashi, such forbidden relations as are not explicitly mentioned in Scripture, but are inferred, e.g., a man's daughter by a woman he violated, the mother of his father-in-law, or the mother of his mother-in-law (v. Sanh. 75a); according to Maharsha, the secrets of the reasons for the prohibitions; according to Goldschmidt, the details and subtleties of the subject.

(32) לשלשה: this marginal correction is indubitably correct as against בשלשה (‘in the presence of three’), of cur. edd.

(33) I.e., it is founded on reason and not deduced from Scripture.

(34) I.e., that not more than two pupils may study with the master.

(35) Mak. 23b.

(36) Heb. lit., ‘the first days’, i.e., the days of creation; Deut. IV, 32.

(37) I.e., one pupil may study with the master.

(38) Ibid.

(39) I.e., up to the creation of man; for the verse quoted above permits inquiry only from the time of the creation of Adam, which occurred at the end of the sixth day.

(40) Heb. lit., ‘the first days’, i.e., even from the first day onward.

(41) Ibid.

(42) Ibid.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 12a

But now that this[1] is inferred from [the expression] ‘ From one end of heaven unto the other’,[2] wherefore do I need [the expression], ‘Since the day that God created man upon the earth’? — To intimate that which R. Eleazar taught. For R. Eleazar said: The first man [extended][3] from the earth to the firmament, as it is said: Since the day that God created man upon the earth;[4] but as soon as he sinned,[5] the Holy One, blessed be He, placed His hand upon him and diminished him,[6] for it is said: Thou hast fashioned me[7] after and before,[8] and laid Thine hand upon me.[9]

Rab Judah said that Rab said: The first man [extended][10] from one end of the world to the other,[11] for it is said: ‘Since the day that God created man upon the earth, and from one end of heaven to the other'; as soon as he sinned, the Holy One, blessed be He, placed His hand upon him and diminished him, for it is said: 'And laid Thine hand upon me'. If so, the verses[12] contradict one another! — They both [have] the same dimensions.[13]

Rab Judah further said that Rab said: Ten[14] things were created the first day, and they are as follows: heaven and earth, Tohu [chaos], Bohu [desolation],[15] light and darkness, wind and water, the measure of day and the measure of night.[16] Heaven and earth, for it is written: In the beginning God created heaven and earth.[17] Tohu and Bohu, for it is written: And the earth was Tohu and Bohu.[18] Light and darkness: darkness, for it is written: And darkness was upon the face of the deep;[18] light, for it is written: And God said, Let there be light.[19] Wind and water, for it is written: And the wind[20] of God hovered over the face of the waters.[21] The measure of day and the measure of night, for it is written: And there was evening and there was morning, one day.[22] It is taught: Tohu is a green line that encompasses the whole world, out of which darkness proceeds, for it is said: He made darkness His hiding-place round about Him.[23] Bohu, this means the slimy[24] stones that are sunk in the deep, out of which the waters proceed, for it is said: And he shall stretch over it the line of confusion [Tohu] and the plummet of emptiness [Bohu].[25]

But was the light created on the first day? For, behold, it is written: And God set them in the firmament of the heaven,[26] and it is [further] written: And there was evening and there was morning a fourth day[27] — This is [to be explained] according to R. Eleazar. For R. Eleazar said: The light which the Holy One, blessed be He, created on the first day, one could see thereby from one end of the world to the other; but as soon as the Holy One, blessed be He, beheld the generation of the Flood and the generation of the Dispersion,[28] and saw that their actions were corrupt, He arose and hid it from them, for it is said: But from the wicked their light is withholden.[29] And for whom did he reserve it? For the righteous in the time to come,[30] for it is said: And God saw the light, that it was good;[31] and 'good' means only the righteous, for it is said: Say ye of the righteous that he is good.[32] As soon as He saw the light that He had reserved for the righteous, He rejoiced, for it is said: He rejoiceth at the light of the righteous.[33] Now Tannaim [differ on the point]: The light which the Holy One, blessed be He, created on the first day one could see and look thereby from one end of the world to the other; this is the view of R. Jacob. But the Sages say: It[34] is identical with the luminaries;[35] for they were created on the first day, but they were not hung up [in the firmament] till the fourth day.[36]

R. Zulra b. Tobiah said that Rab said: by ten things[37] was the world created: By wisdom[38] and by understanding,[39] and by reason,[40] and by strength,[41] and by rebuke,[42] and by might,[43] by righteousness and by judgment,[44] by lovingkindness and by compassion.[45] By wisdom and understanding, for it is written: The Lord by wisdom founded the earth; and by understanding established the heavens.[46] By reason, for it is written: By His reason[47] the depths were broken up.[48] By strength and might, for it is written: Who by His strength setteth fast the mountains, Who is girded about with might.[49] By rebuke, for it is written: The pillars of heaven were trembling, but they became astonished at His, rebuke.[50] By righteousness and judgment, for it is written: Righteousness and judgment are the foundation of Thy throne.[51] By lovingkindness and compassion, for it is written: Remember, O Lord, Thy compassions and Thy mercies; for they have been from of old.[52] Rab Judah further said: At the time that the Holy One, blessed be He, created the world, it went on expanding like two clues[53] of warp, until the Holy One, blessed be He, rebuked it and brought it to a standstill, for it is said: 'The pillars of heaven were trembling, but they became astonished at His rebuke'. And that, too, is what Resh Lakish said: What is the meaning of the verse, I am God Almighty?[54] [It means], I am He that said to the world: Enough![55] Resh Lakish said: When the Holy One, blessed be He, created the sea, it went on expanding, until the Holy One, blessed be He, rebuked it and caused it to dry up, for it is said: He rebuketh the sea and maketh it dry, and drieth up all the rivers.[56]

Our Rabbis taught: Beth Shammai say: Heaven was created first and afterwards the earth was created, for it is said: In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth.[57] Beth Hillel say: Earth was created first and afterwards heaven, for it is said: In the day that the Lord God made earth and heaven.[58] Beth Hillel said to Beth Shammai: According to your view, a man builds the upper storey [first] and afterwards builds the house! For it is said: It is he that buildeth His upper chambers in the heaven,[59] and hath founded His vault upon the earth.[60] Said Beth Shammai to Beth Hillel: According to your view, a man makes the footstool [first], and afterwards he makes the throne![61] For it is said: Thus saith the Lord, The Heaven is My throne and the earth is My footstool.[62] But the Sages say: Both were created at the same time.[63] For it is said: Yea, Mine hand hath laid the foundation of the earth, and My right hand hath spread out the heavens: When I call unto them they stand up together.[64] And the others?[65] What is the meaning of ‘together’? — [It means] that they cannot be loosened from one another.[66] However, the verses contradict one another! — Resh Lakish answered: When they were created, He created heaven [first], and afterwards He created the earth; but when He stretched them forth He stretched forth the earth [first], and afterwards He stretched forth heaven.

What does ‘heaven’ [Shamayim] mean? R. Jose b. Hanina said: It means, ‘There is water’.[67] In a Baraitha it is taught: [It means], ‘fire and water[68] ;’ this teaches that the Holy One, blessed be He, brought them and mixed[69] them one with the other and made from them the firmament.

R. Ishmael questioned R. Akiba when they were going on a journey together, saying to him: Thou who hast waited[70] twenty-two years upon Nahum of Gimzo,[71] who used to explain the [particle] Eth[72] throughout the Torah, [tell me] what exposition did he give of [Eth] the heaven and [Eth] the earth?[73] Said [R. Akiba] to him: If it had said, ‘heaven and earth’, I could have said that Heaven and Earth[74] were names of the Holy One, blessed be He.[75] But now that it says: ‘[Eth] the heaven and [Eth] the earth’, heaven [means] the actual heaven, and earth [means] the actual earth.

---

(1) I.e., that inquiry may not go beyond the first day of creation.

(2) I.e., since one may not inquire beyond the extent of heaven, it follows that one may not inquire beyond the time of its existence, i.e., concerning what happened prior to the creation.

(3) I.e., in height: this is the usual explanation. But Goldschmidt suggests that the meaning might also be: his vision extended from earth to heaven. Cf. R. Eleazar's statement infra p. 63 and n. 2 a. l.

(4) The verse continues, (lit.,) ‘and unto the end of heaven’.

(5) Lit., ‘became of bad odour’.

(6) The Yalkut Shim'oni (S. 827, Deut. IV, 32) adds ‘and brought him down to one hundred cubits’. This is probably derived from the word כפכה ‘Thine hand’ in the verse that follows, the numerical value of כף (‘hand’) being a hundred. Cf. also B.B. 75a (and Rashbam a.l.) and Sanh. 100a (and Rashi a.l.).

(7) Heb., צרתני lit., (as E.V.) ‘Thou hast hemmed me in’. Here, however, it is taken to mean the same as יצרתני ‘fashioned, created’.

(8) I.e., there were, so to speak, two creations of man: the first when he extended to heaven, the second when his stature was reduced.

(9) Ps. CXXXIX, 5.

(10) V. p. 62, n. 10.

(11) I.e., lying down, he stretched from east to west, which is calculated to be a journey of five hundred years; v, Tosaf.

(12) I.e., the parts of Deut. IV, 32 quoted by R. Eleazar and Rab Judah respectively.

(13) The distance from east to west is the same as from the earth to heaven, v. infra 13a. But in Tam. 31b-32a (the Scholars of the South, i.e., of Alexandria) are reported to have said, in reply to a question put to them by Alexander the Great, that the distance from east to west is greater than that from earth to heaven.

(14) The older schools refer to a lesser number of elements viz., eight, six, four, three, or even two. Cf. Gen. Rab. X, 1; Pirke R. Eliezer III; Ex. Rab. XIII; Jellinek, B.H. ii, 23-29, Intro. Xlii; also infra, where Tahu and Bohu are the two primal elements whence the other two, darkness and water, emanate. V. further, Slavonic Book of Enoch (24-30).

(15) A.V. ‘without form, and void’; R. V., ‘waste and void’; American Jewish Version, ‘unformed and void’ (Gen. I, 2).

(16) I.e., night and day comprising together twenty-four hours. (Rashi, Jast.). Goldschmidt trans. ‘the nature of day etc.’;

cf. Ber. 11b.
(17) Gen. I, 1,
(18) Ibid., v. 2.
(19) Ibid:, v. 3.
(20) E.V. ‘spirit’.
(21) Ibid., v. 2.
(22) Ibid.,v. 5.
(23) Ps. XVIII, 12.
(24) Heb., מפולמות, which Jastrow renders, ‘smooth (chaotic) stones’. Levy: ‘stones sunken in the primal mire, chaos’; cf. also Targ. to Job XXVIII, 3; Zeb. 54a, Bez. 24a.
(25) Isa. XXXIV, 11.
(26) Gen. I, 17.
(27) Ibid., v. 19.
(28) I.e., the generation which built the Tower of Babel, and in consequence God confounded their language and scattered them over the earth. V. Gen. XI, 9.
(29) Job. XXXVIII, 15.
(30) I.e., the Messianic era; cf. Aboth II, 16.
(31) Gen. I, 4.
(32) Isa. III, 10. E.V. ‘that it shall be well with him.
(33) Prov. XIII, 9. E.V. ‘the light of the righteous rejoiceth.’
(34) I.e., the light created on the first day.
(35) V. Gen. I, 14f (E.V. ‘lights’).
(36) Cf. Gen. Rab. I, 14, and Rashi to Gen. I, 14.
(37) I.e., potencies or agencies. A lesser number is mentioned by the older school (cf. p. 63, n. 5). Cf. Ab. V, 1; also the ‘Ten Sefirot’ in J. E. vol. XI, p. 154f.
(38) I.e., the ability to understand what one learns.
(39) I.e., deductive power.
(40) I.e., deliberative contemplation.
(41) I.e., physical strength.
(42) I.e.,the application of restraint or limitation.
(43) I.e., moral power.
(44) I.e., the enforcement of justice.
(45) I.e., the feeling which prompts the action of lovingkindness.
(46) Prov. III, 19.
(47) E.V. ‘knowledge’.
(48) Ibid. v. 20.
(49) Ps. LXV, 7.
(50) Job XXVI, 11. I.e., at first the pillars of heaven were weak and shaky, till God rebuked them, when, like a person taken aback by astonishment, they stiffened and hardened (V. Rashi on verse). E.V. renders tremble and are astonished etc.’
(51) Ps. LXXXIX, 15.
(52) Ibid, XXV, 6.
(53) A clue of thread, of rope, etc. (Jast.).
(54) Gen. XVII, 1; XXXV, 11.
(55) שדי ‘Almighty’, is explained as a compound of ש ‘who (said)’,די ‘Enough’.
(56) Nah. I, 4.
(57) Gen. I, 1.
(58) Ibid. II, 4.
(59) Thus heaven was the upper storey.
(60) Amos IX, 6.
(61) The size of the footstool cannot be determined till the throne has been made.
(62) Isa, LXVI, 1.

(63) C. Taylor in ‘Sayings of the Jewish Fathers’, p. 107. n. 40, points out that ‘the three views’ (of the Schools of Shammai and Hillel, and of the Sages) may be taken as texts for three philosophies, viz., idealism, evolutionism and dualism (quoted by Streane).
(64) Ibid. XLVIII, 13. From the word ‘together’ the inference is drawn that heaven and earth are coeval.
(65) I.e., what reply have the Schools of Shammai and Hillel to the argument of the Sages?
(66) Thus ‘together’ refers to their physical structure and not to their time of origin.
(67) I.e., שמים is explained as a compound of שם (‘there’) and מים (‘water’).
(68) I.e., שמים is explained as a compound of אש (‘fire’) and מים (‘water’), the א of אש being omitted.
(69) Lit., ‘mixed by beating’.
(70) I.e., hast been his disciple. Cf. Ber. 47b: ‘Even if one has studied the Bible, and the Mishnah, but has failed to wait upon scholars, he is considered an ‘Am ha-arez (ignoramus); The ministration (of the disciples to the doctors) of the Law is greater than the direct teaching thereof’.
(71) In Judea (v. G. A. Smith's ‘The historical Geography of the Holy Land’, p. 202, n. 1). Heb. גם זו, always in two words, and explained (Ta'an. 21a, J. Shek. V, 15) as a sobriquet given to the scholar on account of his motto גם זו לטובה (‘This, too, will be for the best’), with which he explained his trust in the goodness of Providence even in the most trying circumstances (v. Ta'an 21a). He interpreted the whole Torah according to the rule of רבוי ומיעוט (‘amplification and limitation’, v. Shebu. 26a).
(72) Heb. את, which is either (a) the sign of the defined object as in Gen. I, 1, or (b) the preposition meaning with. Nahum of Gimzo explained every instance of the accusative particle as indicating the inclusion in the object of something besides that which is explicitly mentioned. For the sole exception (Deut. X, 20), v. Pes. 22b, where ‘Nehemiah the Imsoni’ is an error for ‘Nahum the Gimsoni’ or man of Gimzo (v. Graetz in MGWJ., 1870, p. 527). The interpretation of את given here is grammatical rather than Midrashic or homiletical. For the רבוי explanation of את in this verse, which includes the sun and moon etc., v. Gen. Rab. I, 14.
(73) Gen. I, 1.
(74) This is the reading of Bah and Maharsha: cur. edd. omit the words, ‘and the earth’.
(75) And the subject of ברא (‘He created’).

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 12b

But why do we have ‘[Eth] the earth’?[1] — To put heaven before earth.[2]

‘And the earth was unformed and void’.[3] Consider: [Scripture] began at first with heaven, why then does it proceed to relate [first] the work of the earth?[4] — The School of R. Ishmael taught: It is like a human king[5] who said to his servants: Come early to my door. He rose early and found women and men. Whom does he praise? The ones who are not accustomed to rise early but yet did rise early.[6]

It is taught: R. Jose says: Alas for people that they see but know not what they see, they stand but know not on what they stand. What does the earth rest on? On the pillars, for it is said: Who shaketh the earth out of her place, and the pillars thereof tremble.[7] The pillars upon the waters, for it is said: To Him that spread forth the earth above the waters.[8] The waters upon the mountains, for it is said: The waters stood above the mountains.[9] The mountains on the wind, for it is said: For, lo, He that formeth the mountains, and createth the wind.[10] The wind upon the storm, for it is said: The wind, the storm maketh its substance.[11] Storm is suspended on the arm of the Holy One, blessed be He, for it is said: And underneath[12] are the everlasting arms.[13] But the Sages say: [The world] rests on twelve pillars,[14] for it is said: He set the borders to the peoples according to the number [of the tribes] of the children of Israel.[15] And some say seven pillars, for it is said: She hath hewn out her seven piliars.[16] R. Eleazar b. Shammua’ says: [It rests] on one pillar, and its name is ‘Righteous’, for it is said: But ‘Righteous’ is the foundation of the world.[17]

R. Judah said: There are two firmaments, for it is said: Behold, unto the Lord thy God belongeth heaven, and the heaven of heavens.[18] Resh Lakish said: [There are] seven, namely, Wilon,[19] Rakia’,[20] Shehakim,[21] Zebul,[22] Ma'on,[23] Makon,[24] ‘Araboth.[25] Wilon serves no purpose except that it enters in the morning and goes forth in the evening[26] and renews every day the work of creation, for it is said: That stretcheth out the heavens as a curtain,[27] and spreadeth them out as a tent to dwell in.[28] Rakia’ is that in which sun and moon, stars and constellations are set, for it is said: And God set them[29] in the firmament [Rakia’] of the heaven.[30] Shehakim is that in which millstones stand and grind[31] manna for the righteous for it is said: And He commanded the skies [Shehakim] above, and opened the doors of heaven; and He caused manna to rain upon them for food etc.[32] Zebul is that in which [the heavenly] Jerusalem[33] and the Temple and the Altar are built, and Michael, the great Prince,[34] stands and offers up thereon an offering, for it is said: I have surely built Thee a house of habitation [Zebul], a place for Thee to dwell in for ever.[35] And whence do we derive that it is called heaven? For it is written: Look down from heaven, and see, even from Thy holy and glorious habitation.[36] Ma'on is that in which there are companies of Ministering Angels, who utter [divine] song by night, and are silent by day for the sake of Israel's glory,[37] for it is said: By day the Lord doth command His lovingkindness,[38] and in the night His song is with me.[39]

Resh Lakish said: Whoever occupies himself with [the study of] the Torah by night, the Holy One, blessed be He, draws over him a chord of lovingkindness[40] by day, for it is said: ‘By day the Lord doth command His lovingkindness’? Because ‘by night His song[41] is with me’. And there are some who say: Resh Lakish said: Whoever occupies himself with the study of the Torah in this world, which is like the night, the Holy One, blessed be He, draws over him a chord of lovingkindness in the world to come, which is like the day,[42] for it is said: ‘By day the Lord doth command His lovingkindness, for by night His song is with me’.

R. Levi said: Whoever leaves off the study of the Torah and occupies himself with idle talk, he is made to eat coals of broom,[43] for it is said: They pluck salt-wort through idle talk,[44] and the roots of the broom are their food.[45]

And whence do we derive that it[46] is called heaven? — For it is said: Look forth from Thy holy habitation [ma'on], from heaven.[47] Makon[48] is that in which there are the stores of snow[49] and stores of hail, and the loft of harmful dews and the loft of raindrops,[50] the chamber of the whirlwind and storm,[51] and the cave of vapour, and their doors are of fire, for it is said: The Lord will open unto thee His good treasure,[52] But are these to be found in the firmament? Surely, they are to be found on the earth, for it is written: Praise the Lord from the earth, ye sea-monsters, and all deeps; fire and hail, snow and vapour, stormy wind, fulfilling his word![53] — Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: David entreated concerning them, and caused them to come down to the earth. He said before Him: Lord of the universe, Thou art not a God that hath pleasure in wickedness; let not evil sojourn with Thee;[54] righteous art Thou, O Lord, let not evil sojourn in Thy abode.[55] And whence do we derive that it[56] is called heaven? For it is written: Then hear Thou in heaven, Thy dwelling place [Makon].[57]

‘Araboth is that in which there are Right and Judgment and Righteousness,[58] the treasures of life and the treasures of peace and the treasures of blessing, the souls of the righteous and the spirits and the souls[59] which are yet to be born, and dew wherewith the Holy One, blessed be He, will hereafter revive the dead. Right and Judgment, for it is written: Right[60] and judgment are the foundations of Thy throne.[61] Righteousness, for it is written: And He put on righteousness as a coat of mail.[62] The treasures of life, for it is written: For with Thee is the fountain of life.[63] And the treasures of peace, for it is written: And called it, ‘The Lord is peace’.[64] And the treasures of blessing, for it is written: he shall receive a blessing from the Lord.[65] The souls of the righteous, for it is written: Yet the soul of my lord shall be bound up in the bundle of life with the Lord thy God.[66] The spirits and the souls which are yet to be born, for it is written: For the spirit that enwrappeth itself is from Me, and the souls which I have made.[67] And the dew wherewith the Holy One, blessed be He, will hereafter revive the dead, for it is written: A bounteous rain didst Thou pour down, O God; when Thine inheritance was weary, Thou didst confirm it.[68] There [too] are the Ofanim[69] and the Seraphim,[70] and the Holy Living Creatures,[71] and the Ministering Angels,[72] and the Throne of God; and the King, the Living God, high and exalted, dwells over them in ‘Araboth, for it is said: Extol Him that rideth upon Araboth[73] whose name is the Lord.[74] And whence do we derive that it[75] is called heaven? From the word ‘riding’, which occurs in two Biblical passages. Here it is written: ‘Extol Him that rideth upon Araboth’. And elsewhere it is written: Who rideth upon the heaven as thy help.[76] And darkness and cloud and thick darkness surround Him, for it is said: He made darkness His hiding-place, His pavilion round about Him, darkness of waters, thick clouds of skies.[77] But is there any darkness before Heaven?[78] For behold it is written: He revealeth the deep and secret things; He knoweth, what is in the darkness, and the light dwelleth with Him.[79] — There is no contradiction: the one [verse][80]

---

(1) I,e., the first Eth in the verse has been explained; but what is the purpose of the second?

(2) I.e., to show that the creation of the heaven preceded that of the earth. Had this second Eth been omitted, I might have thought that heaven and earth were created at the same time.

(3) Gen. I, 2.

(4) I.e., its development from a state of dark chaos to light and ordered life.

(5) Lit., ‘a king of flesh and blood’.

(6) Rashi explains the application of the parable thus: Since heaven was summoned to appear first, the earth was in the position of one not accustomed to rise early; furthermore, all the work of the earth is slow, whilst the work of heaven is swift. Nevertheless, the earth appeared equally early with heaven, for they were created at the same time (according to the view of the Sages, v. p. 66), therefore Scripture begins to relate the work of the earth first. But Maharsha explains that the earth obeyed God's will first and came into being before heaven (according to the view of Beth Hillel, ibid.) just as the women in the parable actually came before the men.

(7) Job IX, 6.

(8) Ps. CXXXVI, 6.

(9) Ibid. CIV, 6.

(10) Amos IV, 13. The mention of the mountains and the wind in the same verse shows that the former were dependent or suspended upon the latter.

(11) So Rashi. E.V., ‘Stormy wind, fulfilling His word. Ps. CXLVIII, 8.

(12) Sc. all creation.

(13) Deut. XXXIII, 27.

(14) The pillars here refer to those mentioned by R. Jose (v. supra), who, however, did not give their number.

(15) Deut. XXXII, 8.

(16) Prov. IX, 1.

(17) Ibid. X, 25. E.V., ‘But the righteous is an everlasting foundation’. Maharsha compares this discussion of the number of the pillars with the discussion of the number of the precepts in Mak., Sonc. ed., pp. 169f.

(18) Deut. X, 14.

(19) I.e., ‘Curtain’, from Lat. Velum.

(20) I.e., ‘Expanse, firmament’.

(21) Lit., ‘Clouds’, from שחק, ‘dust’ (cf. Isa. XL, 15).

(22) B.D.B.: ‘Elevation, height, lofty abode’; N.H., ‘Temple’. Jastrow: ‘(place of offering or entertainment) residence, especially Temple’.

(23) I.e., ‘Dwelling, habitation’.

(24) I.e., ‘Fixed or established place, foundation, residence’.

(25) V. Ps, LXVIII, 5. Levy: Perhaps from ערב, ‘to be dark’ (cf. ערב evening) and syn. with ערפל: (thick darkness, heavy cloud, in which God dwells; cf. Ex. XX, 18).

(26) According to Rashi, Wilon (‘Curtain’) draws in every morning, and thus causes the light of day to become visible; in the evening it draws out and hides the daylight. This process constitutes the renewal of the work of creation. But Tosaf. explains that Wilon produces the light of day, and when it withdraws at night darkness prevails.

(27) Thus there is a curtain-like heaven.

(28) Isa. XL, 22.

(29) I.e., the heavenly luminaries.

(30) Gen. I, 17.

(31) There is probably a play here on the meaning of שחק (the root of shehakim), which means ‘to rub away, pulverize, grind’ (cf. Ex. XXX, 36 and Job, XIV, 19).

(32) Ps. LXXVIII, 23, 24.

(33) Cf. Ta'an. 5a: ‘The Holy One blessed be He, said: I shall not enter the Jerusalem which is above, until I enter the Jerusalem which is below’.

(34) Michael is Israel's Guardian Angel; cf. Dan. XII, 1 and Yoma 77a. Num. Rab. s. 2, Hul. 40a.

(35) I Kings VIII, 13; the earthly Temple corresponds to the heavenly Sanctuary.

(36) Isa. LXIII, 15.

(37) Because Israel utters God's praise by day.

(38) By silencing the angels by day. God shows lovingkindness to the children of Israel, who are thus permitted to win divine grace by their prayer. Cf. also A.Z. 3b on the same verse.

(39) Ps. XLII, 9. I.e., by night the song of the angels joins mine (says Israel), which I uttered by day (Rashi).

(40) I.e., of His protection.

(41) I.e., the Torah.

(42) Cf. Aboth IV, 16,17.

(43) This is the punishment for slander and a figurative expression for Gehinnom; cf. Yal. Shim. s. 120, Midr. Till. to Ps. CXX, and Gen. Rab. 98.

(44) Heb. שיח, which may represent two totally different words of identical spelling: one means ‘shrub’ (or, according to some, ‘wormwood’) which is the natural meaning here, the other means ‘complaint, musing, talk’, which is the sense in which it is homiletically understood by R. Levi.

(45) Job. XXX, 4.

(46) I.e., Ma'on: the explanation of the seven heavens is here resumed.

(47) Deut. XXVI, 15.

(48) According to Rashi, this heaven contains stores of punishments, the snow etc. being employed not for the world's benefit, but for retribution, Tosaf., however, holds that the contents of Ma'on are used for good as well as evil, and compares Ta'an. 3b and Isa. LV, 10.

(49) For these stores cf. Job XXXVIII, 22f also Isa. XXIX, 6.

(50) Rashi: to smite down the produce.

(51) Omitted by R. Elijah of Wilna,

(52) Deut, XXVIII, 12; implying also the existence of a bad store, i.e., of punishments; but the "Ein Jacob’ reads here Jer. L, 25.

(53) Ps. CXLVIII, 7, 8.

(54) Ibid. V, 5.

(55) Note how the Talmudic explanation of the verse transforms the negative description of God into a positive one, and changes (‘with Thee’ into ‘in thy abode’ to prevent any misconception about God's perfection.

(56) I.e., Makon.

(57) I Kings VIII, 39.

(58) Heb. צדקה, which implies righteous actions and is often used in the sense of charity.

(59) Rashi explains that either ‘spirits’ and ‘souls’ are synonymous, or else ‘spirit’ means the soul that has bodily form (ectoplasm?).

(60) E.V. ‘Righteousness’.

(61) Ps. LXXXIX, 15.

(62) Isa LIX, 17.

(63) Ps.XXXVI, 10.

(64) Judg. VI, 24. Rashi renders: He (the Lord) called it (peace) unto Him.

(65) Ps. XXIV, 5.

(66) 1 Sam. XXV, 29.

(67) Isa. LVII, 1.

(68) Ps. LXVIII, 10. The verse refers to the Revelation at Sinai, when, according to the Midrash, the souls of the children of Israel momentarily left their bodies, but God with His bounteous rain or dew of resurrection revived them.

Cf. Cant. Rab. to Cant. V, 6.

(69) Lit., 'Wheels', i.e., wheel-like angels; v. Ezek. I, 15f.

(70) V. Isa. VI, 2; in Rabbinic literature they are understood to be angels of fire, cf. Deut. Rab. s. 11. But v. B. D. B. s.v.

(71) V. Ezek. I, 5f.

(72) Apparently distinct from those dwelling in Ma'on (v. p. 70).

(73) A.V. 'upon the heavens'; R.V. 'through the deserts'.

(74) Ps. LXVIII, 5.

(75) I.e., Araboth.

(76) Deut. XXXIII, 26.

(77) Ps. XVIII, 12.

(78) I.e., God.

(79) Dan. II, 22.

(80) I.e., the latter.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 13a

refers to the inner chambers,[1] the other to the outer chambers. And R. Aha b. Jacob said: There is still another Heaven above the heads of the living creatures, for it is written: And over the heads of the living creatures there was a likeness of a firmament, like the colour of the terrible ice, stretched forth over their heads above.[2] Thus far you have permission to speak, thenceforward you have not permission to speak, for so it is written in the Book of Ben Sira:[3] Seek not things that are too hard for thee,[4] and search not things that are hidden from thee. The things that have been permitted[5] thee, think thereupon; thou hast no business with[6] the things that are secret.[7]

It is taught: R. Johanan b. Zakkai said: What answer did the Bath Kol[8] give to that wicked one,[9] when he said: I will ascend above the heights of the clouds; I will be like the Most High?[10] A Bath Kol went forth and said to him: O wicked man, son of a wicked man, grandson[11] of Nimrod, the wicked, who stirred the whole world to rebellion against Me[12] by his rule. How many are the years of man? Seventy, for it is said: The days of our years are threescore years and ten, or even by reason of strength fourscore years.[13] But the distance from the earth to the firmament is a journey of five hundred years, and the thickness of the firmament is a journey of five hundred years, and likewise [the distance] between one firmament and the other.[14] Above them[15] are the holy living creatures: the feet[16] of the living creatures are equal to all of them [together];[17] the ankles of the living creatures are equal to all of them; the legs of the living creatures are equal to all of them; the knees[18] of the living creatures are equal to all of them; the thighs of the living creatures are equal to all of them; the bodies of the living creatures are equal to all of them; the necks of the living creatures are equal to all of them; the heads of the living creatures are equal to all of them; the horns of the living creatures are equal to all of them. Above them is the throne of glory; the feet of the throne of glory are equal to all of them; the throne of glory is equal to all of them. The King, the Living and Eternal God, High and Exalted, dwelleth above them. Yet thou didst say, I will ascend above the heights of the clouds, I will be like the Most High! Nay[19] , thou shalt be brought down to the nether-world, to the uttermost parts of the pit.[20]

NOR [THE WORK OF] THE CHARIOT IN THE PRESENCE OF ONE. R. Hiyya taught: But the headings of chapters[21] may be transmitted to him. R. Zera said: The headings of chapters may be transmitted only to the head of a court[22] and to one whose heart is anxious within him.[23] Others say: Only if his heart is anxious within him.[24] R. Amimi said: The mysteries of the Torah may be transmitted only to one who possesses five attributes, [namely], The captain of fifty, and the man of rank, and the counsellor, and the cunning charmer, and the skillful enchanter.[25] R. Ammi further said: The teachings of the Torah are not to be transmitted to an idolater,[26] for it is said: He hath not dealt so with any nation; and as for His ordinances, they have not known them.[27]

R. Johanan said to R. Eleazar: Come, I will instruct you in the 'Work of the Chariot'.[28] He replied: I am not old enough.[29] When he was old enough, R. Johanan died.[30] R. Assi [then] said to him: Come, I will instruct you in the "Work of the Chariot'. He replied: Had I been worthy, I should have been instructed by R. Johanan, your master.

R. Joseph was studying the 'Work of the Chariot'; the elders of Pumbeditha[31] were studying the 'Work of Creation . The latter said to the former: Let the master teach us the 'Work of the Chariot'. He replied: Teach me the 'Work of Creation'. After they had taught him, they said to him: Let the master instruct us in the 'Work of the Chariot'. He replied: We have learnt concerning it: Honey and milk are under thy tongue.[32] The things that are sweeter than honey and milk should be under thy tongue.[33] R. Abbahu said: [It[34] is inferred] from this verse: The lambs [Ke-basim] will be for thy clothing.[35] The things which are the mystery [Kibshono] of the world should be under thy clothing.[36] They[37] [then] said to him: We have already studied therein as far as, And He said unto me: 'Son of man'.[38] He replied: This is the very [portion of the] 'Work of the Chariot'.[39]

An objection was raised: How far does [the portion of] the 'Work of the Chariot' extend? Rabbi said: As far as the second And I saw.[40] R. Isaac said: As far as Hashmal[41] — As far as 'I saw'[42] may be taught;[43] thenceforward, [only] the heads of chapters[44] may be transmitted. Some, however, say: As far as 'I saw', the heads of chapters may be transmitted; thenceforward, if he is a Sage able to speculate by himself, Yes; if not, No. But may one expound [the mysteries of] Hashmal? For behold there was once a child[45] who expounded [the mysteries of] Hashmal, and a fire went forth and consumed him! — [The case of] the child is different, for he had not reached the [fitting] age. Rab Judah said: That man be remembered for blessing,[46] namely, Hananiah b. Hezekiah: but for him, the Book of Ezekiel would have been withdrawn,[47] for its words contradict the words of the Torah.[48] What did he do? Three hundred garab[49] of oil were brought up to him, and he sat in an upper chamber and expounded it.

The Rabbis taught: There was once a child who was reading at his teacher's house the Book of Ezekiel, and he apprehended what Hashmal was,[50] whereupon a fire went forth from Hashmal and consumed him. So they[51] sought to suppress the Book of Ezekiel, but Hananiah b. Hezekiah said to them: If he was a Sage, all are Sages![52] What does [the word] Hashmal mean?-Rab Judah said:

---

(1) Cf. supra p. 23, n. 5.

(2) Ezek. I, 22.

(3) Cf. Ecclesiasticus III, 21, 22. The author, whose full name seems to have been Jesus b. Simeon b. Eleazar b. Sira, is the only writer of the Old Testament or Apocrypha who signed his work (v. ibid. L, 27). His date falls in the first third of the second century B.C.E. He wrote in Hebrew, the Greek translation being made by his grandson, of whom it is known that he went to Egypt in 132; the greater part of the Hebrew original has been recovered from the Cairo Genizah. According to Tosef. Yad. II, 13, the writings of Ben Sira do not defile the hands, i.e., are uncanonical, and so rank the works of 'Minim' or heretics. Eccl. Rab. XII, 11 forbids one to have Ben Sira's book in the house. R. Akiba (J. Sanh. 28a) includes the readers of uncanonical writings such as those of Ben Sira among those who have no share in the world to come; v. further the discussion in Sanh., Sonc. ed., p. 680f and nn. a.l. on R. Akiba's prohibition. The exclusion of Ecclesiasticus from the canon and the prohibitions with which it was surrounded were probably due to its epicurean and Sadducean tendencies. Notwithstanding, the book remained popular with Jews, and is frequently quoted in early Jewish literature as well as in the Talmud and Midrash. V. J.E. vol. XI, pp. 388f.

(4) E.V. 'that are above thy strength'.

(5) E.V. 'commanded'.

(6) E.V. 'no need of'.

(7) For a variant version of this quotation v. Gen. Rab. VIII, which contains two additional clauses.

(8) Lit., 'daughter of a voice'. According to Lampronti, Levy, Kohut (Aruch Completum) and Jast., it means an echo'; but L. Blau holds (J.E. vol. II, pp. 588f) that it means 'sound', 'resonance'. For its secular use, v. Ex. Rab. XXIX, end; bit in our passage and Rabbinic literature passim, it refers to a heavenly or divine voice.

(9) I.e., Nebuchadnezzar, who, in R. Johanan b. Zakkai's time, possibly suggested Titus.

(10) Isa. XIV, 14.

(11) As Tosaf. a.l. points out, this statement is not to be taken literally; Nebuchadnezzar is to be regarded as a spiritual descendant of Nimrod because of the similarity of their deeds (the latter persecuted Abraham — cf. Targ. pseudo-Jonathan to Gen. XIV, I; Gen. R. XLII, 5; Cant. R. VIII, 8 — and the former led into captivity Abraham's descendants) and of their place of origin (Babylon).

(12) Lit., ‘against himself’, an obvious emendation, dictated by a pious desire to avoid blasphemy, of ‘against Me’ i.e., God. In ‘Er. 53a the text has been ‘corrected’ as here; but in Pes. 94b, Gen. R. s. 26 etc., the original reading is preserved.

(13) Ps. XC, 10.

(14) V. p. 69.

(15) I.e., the seven heavens; v. n. 5.

(16) I.e., the thickness of the hooves.

(17) I.e., 15 (7 heavens and 8 interspaces) X 500 years. But in J. Ber. 13a the figure is given as 515, the numerical sum of ישרה, ‘upright’; cf. Ezek. I, 7 (Tosaf.).

(18) Properly, the knee and its surrounding parts; cf. Hul. 76a.

(19) E.V. ‘Yet’ etc.

(20) Isa. XIV, 14f.

(21) Probably, the leading words of each section or subject (cf. Rashi a.l. and Jast. s. פרק). Levy explains it as ‘the interpretations of single verses’. V. infra p. 77.

(22) Ab Beth din, lit., ‘Father of a Beth din’ (house of judgment). The Beth din consisted of three (according to another view, five) members for monetary cases, and of twenty-three for capital cases; whilst the Beth din ha-Gadol (‘High Court’), or Great Sanhedrin, was comprised of seventy elders and the Nasi, who acted as president. The Ab Beth din of the Sanhedrin was the vice-president and most important of the seventy members (cf. Sanh. I, 1-4, Sonc. ed. pp. 1-4; and J.E. vol. lii, pp. 114f).

(23) I.e., he is reverential and not given to levity.

(24) I.e., one must have both qualifications viz., be the head of a court and reverential.

(25) Isa. III, 3. For the explanation of these qualifications v. p. 85.

(26) This, and not Cuthean (substituted on account of the censorship), is undoubtedly the correct reading. Dicta of this kind were directed against heathens, and were inspired by the fear lest the knowledge of the Torah be unscrupulously used against Jews. Cf. the story of the Roman commissioners referred to in B.K., Sonc. ed., p. 215; also R. Johanan's statement in Sanh., Sonc. ed., p. 400 and Num. Rab. s. 13.

(27) Ps. CXLVII, 20,

(28) The ‘Work of the Chariot’ and the ‘Work of Creation’ mentioned in the next passage, were Baraithas (Rashi), which apparently, took the relevant passages of Genesis and Ezekiel as the basis of their expositions.

(29) Cf. p. 85, where the ‘captain of fifty’, mentioned supra as one of the qualifications of the man to whom the mysteries of the Torah may be transmitted, is explained as one who is fifty years of age.

(30) Lit., ‘R. Johanan's soul was at rest’ (cf. Isa. LVII, 2).

(31) Lit., ‘mouth of Beditha’ (a canal of the Euphrates). It was the seat of a great Jewish academy.

(32) Cant. IV, 11.

(33) I.e., the mysteries of the Chariot may not be taught, cf. our Mishnah (p. 59). The Rabbis considered the whole of Canticles as a figurative expression of the mystical relationship between God and Israel; thus the verse quoted, which the Bridegroom says to the Bride, is really the injunction of God to Israel.

(34) I.e.,the prohibition to teach the ‘Chariot’ mysteries.

(35) Prov. XXVII, 26.

(36) I.e., in thy bosom, a secret. The reading in MS.M. brings the Midrashic deduction out more clearly: Read not kebasim("lambs") but kebushim ("hidden things")things which are the mystery(kibshono) of the world must be kept under one's clothing’.

(37) I.e., the elders of Pumbeditha.

(38) Ezek. II, 1.

(39) I.e., if you have learnt thus far,you have learnt much , for this passage included the very verses(Ezek. I,27,28) the teaching of which the Rabbis prohibited.

(40) Ezek. I,27, excluding Hashmal;v. n. 12.
(41) Ibid.,including Hashmal(E.V. ‘electrum’). By Hashmal, the whole subject thereof, which is described in this verse, is meant, not merely the word itself, which already occurs in v. 4. The objection here raised is that the statements of Rabbi and R. Isaac apparently contradict the statement of R. Joseph above, which seemed to imply that the passage dealing with the ‘Work of the Chariot’ extended to Ezek. II, 1.
(42) I.e., ‘I saw’ according to Rabbi, or ‘Hashmal’ according to R. Isaac,
(43) I.e., Rabbi and R. Isaac indicated not how far the ‘Work of the Chariot extended, but how far therein it was permissible to teach.
(44) V. p. 75,n. 3.
(45) Aram. ינוקא, a term applicable to a boy from infancy to school age. Hot-tinger's view (De Incestu etc., p. 54, quoted by A. W. Streane) that not a child in years but in knowledge of Talmud is meant is unlikely. Cf. the frequent use of the term in the Zohar.
(46) Cf. Neh. V, 19.
(47) Heb.נגנז lit., ‘hidden, stored away’, i.e., declared un-canonical. The idea and name of the Greek ‘Apocrypha’ have often been traced to this technical significance of the verb גנז in the Talmud; but this is denied by G. F. Moore, v. J.E., vol. II, pp. 1-2 and 6.
(48) Cf. Ezek, XVIII, 4, 20 with Ex. XX, 5, XXIV, 7; Ezek. XLIV, 31 with Lev. XXII, 8; Ezek. XLIV, 22 with Lev. XXI, 14; also Ezek. XLV, 20, which mentions a sacrifice for the seventh day of the first month, entirely unknown from the Torah. V. Rashi to the above verses of Ezek., and Men. 45a, and Kid. 78a.
(49) ‘A bottle, keg’, as a ‘measure (Jast.); ‘an earthen jar’, (Levy). The oil was to provide light for study.
(50) Jast. translates: ‘speculated over the Hashmal’. Had the child drawn a picture of it? (V. J.E. vol. III, p. 148, s. 11).
(51) I.e., the Rabbis.
(52) I.e., the case of the child is exceptional: having a Sage's understanding of the mysteries of Hashmal, he endangered his life by his speculation; but ordinary readers of Ezekiel would not run any risk.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 13b

Living creatures speaking fire.[1] In a Baraitha it is taught: [Hashmal means], At times they are silent, at times they speak.[2] When the utterance goes forth from the mouth of the Holy One, blessed be He, they are silent, and when the utterance goes not forth from the mouth of the Holy One, blessed be He, they speak.

And the living creatures ran and returned as the appearance of a flash of lightning.[3] What is the meaning of ‘ran and returned’? — Rab Judah said: Like the flame that goes forth from the mouth of a furnace.[4] What is the meaning of ‘as the appearance of a flash of lightning’? — R. Jose b. Hanina said: Like the flame that goes forth from between the potsherds.[5]

And I looked, and, behold a stormy wind came out of the north, a great cloud with a fire flashing up, so that a brightness was round about it; and out of the midst thereof as the colour of electrum [Hashmal], out of the midst of the fire.[6] Whither did it[7] go? Rab Judah said that Rab said: It went to subdue the whole world under the wicked Nebuchadnezzar. And wherefore all this? — That the peoples of the world might not say: Into the hand of a low people the Holy One, blessed be he, delivered His children,[8] The Holy One, blessed be He, said: Who caused Me to be a servant to idol-worshippers? The iniquities of Israel, they caused Me.

Now as I beheld the living creatures, behold one wheel at the bottom hard by the living creatures.[9] R. Eleazar said: [It means] a certain angel, who stands on the earth and his head reaches unto the living creatures. In a Baraitha it is taught: His name is Sandalfon;[10] he is higher than his fellows by a [distance of] five hundred years’ journey, and he stands behind the Chariot and wreathes crowns[11] for his Maker. But is it so? Behold it is written: Blessed be the glory of the Lord from His place,’[12] accordingly, no one knows His place![13] — He[14] pronounces the [Divine] Name over the crown, and it goes and rests on His head.[15]

Raba said: All that Ezekiel saw Isaiah saw.[16] What does Ezekiel resemble? A villager who saw the king.[17] And what does Isaiah resemble? A townsman who saw the king.[18]

Resh Lakish said: What is the meaning of the verse: I will sing unto the Lord, for He is highly exalted?[19] [It means] a song to him who is exalted over the exalted ones.[20] For a Master said: The king of the wild animals is the lion; the king of the cattle is the ox; the king of the birds is the eagle; and man is exalted over them; and the Holy One, blessed be He, is exalted over all of then, and over the whole world.

One verse says: As for the likeness of their faces, they had the face of a man; and they four had the face of a lion on the right side,' and they four had the face of an ox on the left side etc.[21] And [elsewhere] it is written: And everyone had four, faces; the first face was the face of the cherub, and the second face was the face of a man, and the third the face of a lion, and the fourth the face of an eagle;[22] but the ox is not mentioned! — Resh Lakish said: Ezekiel entreated concerning it and changed it into a cherub. He said before Him:[23] Lord of the universe, shall an accuser[24] become an advocate![25] What is the meaning of cherub? — R. Abbahu said: Like a child [Rabia];[26] for so in Babylonia a child is called Rabia. R. Papa said to Abaye: But according to this, [what is the meaning of] the verse, 'The first face was the face of the cherub, and the second face was the face of a man, and the third the face of a lion, and the fourth the face of an eagle': are not the face of the cherub and the face of a man the same! — [The one is] a big face, and [the other is] a small face.[27]

One verse says: Each one had six wings;[28] and another verse says: And every one had four faces, and every one of them had four wings![29] — There is no contradiction: the one[30] refers to the time when the Temple was no longer standing,[31] [when] as it were,[32] the wings of the living creatures were diminished. Which of them were taken away? — R. Hananel said that Rab said: Those with which they utter song. [For] here[33] it is written: And with twain he did fly. And one called unto another and said;[34] and [elsewhere] it is written: Wilt thou set thine eyes upon it? It is gone.[35] But our Rabbis said: Those with which they cover their feet, for it is said: And their feet were straight feet,[36] and if [these wings] had not been taken away, whence could he have known![37] — Perhaps, [the feet] were exposed and he saw them. For if you do not say so, [then from the words], As for the likeness of their faces, they had the face of man,[38] [one might infer] likewise that [the wings covering them] were taken away! They[39] must therefore have been exposed, and he saw them; similarly here, they[40] were exposed, and he saw them. But how can they be compared? Granted that it is customary to expose one's face before one's master, but it is not customary to expose one's feet before one's master!

One verse says: Thousand thousands ministered unto Him, and ten thousand times ten thousand stood before Him;[41] and another verse says: Is there any number of His armies?[42] — There is no contradiction: the one[43] refers to a time when the Temple was standing, and the other refers to a time when the Temple was no longer standing; [when] as it were, the heavenly household[44] was diminished.

It is taught: Rabbi said in the name of Abba Jose b. Dosai: 'Thousand thousands ministered unto 'Him', — this is the number of one troop; but of His troops there is no number. But Jeremiah b. Aba said: 'Thousand thousand ministered unto Him' — at the fiery stream,[45] for it is said: A fiery stream issued and came forth from before Him; thousand thousands ministered unto Him and ten thousand times ten thousand stood before Him.[41] Whence does it come forth? — From the sweat of the 'living creatures', And whither does it pour forth? R. Zutra b. Tobiah said that Rab said: Upon the head of the wicked in Gehinnom,[46] for it is said: Behold, a storm of the Lord is gone forth in fury,[47] yea, a whirling storm; it shall whirl upon the head of the wicked.[48] But R. Aha b. Jacob said: Upon those who pressed forward,[49] for it is said: Who pressed forward[50] before their time, whose foundation was poured out as a stream.[51] It is taught: R. Simeon the Pious said: These are the nine hundred and seventy four generations who pressed themselves forward to be created[52]

---

(1) I.e. חשמל is explained as an abbreviation of חיות אש ממללות

(2) I.e., Hashmal is an abbreviation of חשות ממללות, ‘silent, speaking’.

(3) Ezek. 1,14.

(4) I.e., a brick-kiln.

(5) I.e., perforated earthen pieces used in smelting gold. בזק (E.V. ‘flash of lightning’) is here explained in its Aramaic sense of ‘a fragment, piece of pottery’.

(6) Ibid. v. 4.

(7) I.e., the stormy wind coming out of the north.

(8) Cf. for the thought Git. 56b=Sanh. 104b, (Sonc. ed., p. 710), ‘Whoever distresses Israel becomes a chief’.

(9) Ezek. I, 15.

(10) Perhaps from Grk.  == cobrother. Sandalfon is described as brother of Metatron; v. J.E. vol. XI, pp. 39-40; cf. also Longfellow's poem ‘Sandalphon’.

(11) I.e., offers up the prayers of the righteous.

(12) Ezek. III, 12.

(13) I.e., the vagueness of the expression ‘from His place’ indicates that God's place is unknown even to His angels.

(14) I.e., Sandalfon,

(15) [MS.M. ‘in its place : i.e., the prayer is effective.]

(16) V. Isa. VI, 1 ff: Despite the differences between the descriptions given by Isaiah and Ezekiel, they both saw identical visions of God's glory.

(17) According to Rashi, the point is that the rustic — to whom the sight of the king is a novelty — is naturally inclined to give his impressions at length. But Tosaf. explains that the villager has to give a detailed description of the royal splendour in order to convince his hearers that he actually saw the king. Likewise Ezekiel, to whom was granted the rare distinction, of prophecy outside Palestine, had to prove by a detailed account that he actually beheld the Divine Glory though he dwelt by the river Chebar.

(18) The townsman — to whom the king is a familiar sight is not inclined to indulge in any lengthy description (Rashi); nor does he have to go into details in order to convince his hearers of the truth of his statement (Tosaf.).

(19) Ex. XV, 1.

(20) This is an explanation of the words of the text, גאה גאה (E.V. ‘highly exalted’), which mean lit., ‘to be exalted he is exalted’.

(21) Ezek. I, 10.

(22) Ezek. X, 14.

(23) I.e., Ezekiel before God.

(24) The ox would be a reminder of Israel's sin in connection with the golden calf.

(25) Israel required the Divine Chariot to intercede for them. Cf. R.H. 26a.

(26) The word כרוב (‘Cherub’) is explained as composed of ,כ (‘like’) and רוב =רביא (‘a growing boy’). For modern suggestions regarding the root-meaning of the word v. B.D.B. s.v.

(27) I.e., the face of a man and the face of a boy.

(28) Isa. VI, 2.

(29) Ezek. I, 6. It is assumed that the ‘Seraphim’ of Isaiah and the ‘living creatures’ of Ezekiel had originally the same number of wings.

(30) I.e., Isa. VI, 2.

(31) I.e., the time for the destruction of the Temple had come. Ezekiel prophesied the event, and lived to learn of the fulfilment of his prophecy, as well as to foretell the rebuilding of the Sanctuary.

(32) Lit., ‘as though it were possible’, refers to an allegorical or anthropomorphous expression with reference to the Lord (Jast.), or, as here, to the celestial creatures.

(33) Ibid. vv. 2, 3.

(34) The juxtaposition of the two verses shows that with the wings with which they flew they also uttered God's praise.

(35) Lit., ‘cause to fly’; cf. also rest of verse, Prov. XXIII, 5. The occurrence of the word fly in the two passages shows that it is the wings with which the heavenly beings fly (i.e., utter their song to God) that are gone. This verse in Proverbs is understood by the Rabbis to refer to the neglect of the study of the Torah (cf. Rashi a. l., and Ber. 5a, Meg. 18a): the meaning would seem to be that when the Torah is neglected the divine song of the angels is silenced.

(36) Ezek. I, 7.

(37) l.e., that their feet were straight.

(38) Ibid. I, 10,

(39) I.e., their faces.

(40) I.e,, their feet.

(41) Dan. VII, 10.

(42) Job. XXV, 3.

(43) I.e., the verse in Job.

(44) Heb. פמליא from Lat. Familia.

(45) I.e, the verse gives the number only of those attending God at the fiery stream, but not of all His angels, which are innumerable.

(46) I.e., ‘place of punishment of the wicked in the hereafter, hell’ (Jast.). Cf. II Kings XXIII, 10; Jer. VII, 31, 32, etc.; II Chron. XXVIII, 3.

(47) Heb.חמה understood in the sense of חמה, ‘hot’, is taken as a reference to the fiery stream.

(48) Jer. XXIII, 19.

(49) So Jast. and Levy; v. infra n. 7. Goldschmidt trans., die verdrangt worden sind’ (who were suppressed or displaced); Rashi trans., ‘who were decreed (to be created)’, MS.M. adds here, ‘before their time’.

(50) E.V. ‘who were snatched away’.

(51) Job XXII, 16. The word ‘stream’ is the link between this verse and Dan. VII, 10.

(52) According to the Rabbinic interpretation of Ps. CV, 8, the Divine Plan originally envisaged the creation of a thousand generations prior to the giving of the Torah, but foreseeing their wickedness, God held back nine hundred and seventy-four generations, and gave the Torah at the end of twenty-six generations from Adam (cf. Gen. V, XI, Ex. VI, 16-20, and Seder ‘Olam Ch. 1). The translation here follows the text of MS. M. 2 (v. D.S. a.I. n. 20) viz. להיבראות עצמן (pi'el) שקימטו cur. edd.: להיבראות(pu'al) שקומטו

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 14a

before the world was created, but were not created: the Holy One, blessed be He, arose and planted them[1] in every generation, and it is they who are the insolent[2] of each generation. But R. Nahman b. Isaac said: The words, Asher Kummetu,[3] indicate blessing: these are the scholars who wrinkle themselves[4] over the words of the Torah in this world, [wherefore] the Holy One, blessed be He, shall reveal a secret to them in the world to come, for it is said: ‘To whom a secret[5] is poured out as a stream’. Samuel said to R. Hiyya b. Rab: O son of a great man,[6] come, I will tell thee something from those excellent things which thy father has said. Every day ministering angels are created from the fiery stream, and utter song, and cease to be,[7] for it is said: They are new every morning: great is Thy faithfulness.[8] Now he differs from R. Samuel b. Nahmani, for R. Samuel b. Nahmani said that R. Jonathan said: From every utterance that goes forth from the mouth of the Holy One, blessed be He, an angel is created,[9] for it is said: By the word of the Lord were the heavens made; and all the host of them by the breath of His mouth.[10]

One verse says: His raiment was as white as snow, and the hair of his head like pure wool;[11] and [elsewhere] it is written: His locks are curled and black as a raven![12] — There is no contradiction: one verse[13] [refers to God] in session,[14] and the other in war.[15] For a Master said: In session none is more fitting than an old man, and in war none is more fitting than a young man.

One passage says: His throne was fiery flames;[16] and another Passage says: Till thrones were places, and One that was ancient of days did sit![17] — There is no contradiction: one [throne] for Him, and one for David; this is the view of R. Akiba. Said R. Jose the Galilean to him: Akiba, how long wilt thou treat the Divine Presence as profane![18] Rather, [it must mean], one for justice and one for grace.[19] Did he accept [this explanation from him, or did he not accept it? — Come and hear:

One for justice and one for grace; this is the view of R. Akiba. Said R. Eleazar b. ‘Azariah to him: Akiba, what hast thou to do with Aggadah?[20] Cease thy talk, and turn[21] to [the laws concerning defilement through] leprosy-signs and tent-covering![22] Rather, [it must mean] one for a throne and one for a stool; the throne to sit upon, the stool for a footrest, for it is said: The heaven is My throne, and the earth is My foot-rest.[23]

When R. Dimi came,[24] he said: Eighteen curses did Isaiah pronounce upon Israel, yet he was not pacified[25] until he pronounced upon them this verse: The child shall behave insolently against the aged, and the base against the honourable.[26] Which are the eighteen curses? — It is written: For, behold, the Lord, the Lord of hosts, doth take away from Jerusalem and from Judah stay and staff every stay of bread, and every stay of water,’ the mighty man, and the man of war; the judge and the prophet, and the diviner, and the elder; the captain of fifty; and the man of rank, and the counsellor, and the wise charmer, and the skillful enchanter. And I will give children to be their princes, and babes shall rule over them.[27] ‘Stay’ — this means the masters of the Bible.[28] ‘Staff’ — this means the masters of the Mishnah, like R. Judah b. Tema and his colleagues. R. Papa and our Rabbis dispute therein: one says that there were[29] six hundred orders of the Mishnah, and the other that there were seven hundred orders of the Mishnah.[30] ‘Every stay of bread’ — this means the masters of Talmud,[31] for it is said: Come, eat of My bread, and drink of the wine which I have mingled.[32] ‘And every stay of water’ — this means the masters of Aggadah, who draw the heart of man like water by means of the Aggadah. ‘The ‘mighty man’ — this means the masters of traditions.[33] ‘And the man of war’ — this means one who knows how to dispute[34] in the warfare of the Torah. ‘The judge — this means a judge who passes judgment in strictest accord with truth — ‘The prophet’ — according to the literal meaning of the word. ‘The diviner’ — this means the King, for it is said: A divine sentence is in the lips of the King.[35] ‘The elder’ — this means one who is worthy to sit in session.[36] ‘The captain of fifty’: do not read ‘the captain of fifty’ but ‘the captain of the Pentateuch’;[37] it means one who knows how to argue in the five books of the Torah. Another explanation: ‘the captain of fifty’ — as R. Abbahu [taught]. For R. Abbahu said. From here [we learn] that a Methurgeman[38] may not be appointed over a congregation, who is less than fifty years of age. ‘And a man of rank’ — this means one for whose sake favour is shown to his [entire] generation, like R. Hanina b. Dosa,[39] for instance, on high;[40] [or] below,[41] like R. Abbahu at the court of Caesar.[42] ‘The counsellor’ — [this means] one who knows how to determine the intercalation of years[43] and the fixation of months.[44] ‘And the wise [man]’[45] -this means a disciple who makes his teachers wise. ‘Charmer’ — at the moment that he begins a Torah[46] — discourse, all become dumb. ‘And the skillful [‘man]’[47] — this means one who understands one thing from another.[48] ‘Enchanter’ — this means one who is worthy to have imparted to him the words of the Torah, which was given in a whisper.[49] ‘And I will give children to be their princes’: what is the meaning of [the words], ‘I will give children to be their princes’? R. Eleazar said: It means persons who are empty[50] of good deeds.[51] ‘And babes shall rule over them’. R. Aha[52] b. Jacob said: [It means] foxes sons of foxes.[53] ‘But he was not pacified[54] until he said to them: The child shall behave insolently against the aged’: — those persons who are empty of good deeds shall behave insolently against such as are filled with good deeds[55] as a pomegranate [with seeds]. ‘And the base against the honourable’: those to whom weighty [precepts] appear as light ones[56] will come and behave insolently against those to whom light [precepts] appear as weighty ones.[57]

R. Kattina said: Even at the time of Jerusalem's downfall honest men did not cease from among them, for it is said: For a man shall take hold of his brother of the house of his father: ‘Thou hast a mantle, be thou our ruler’![58] Matters on account of which men hide themselves as in a garment[59] thou hast ‘under thy hand’.[60] And this ruin:[61] what is the meaning of [the expression] ‘and this ruin’? — Matters which people do not grasp unless they stumble over them[62] are under thy hand’. In that day shall he take[63] [an oath], saying: I am not[64] a healer, for in my house is neither bread nor a mantle; ye shall not make me ruler of a people.[65] — Shall he take, ‘Take’ expresses an oath, for it is said: Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God [in vain].[66] I am not a healer:’ I was[67] not of those who are bound to the Schoolhouse.[68] For in my house is neither bread not a mantle, — for I possess no knowledge of Bible or Mishnah or Gemara, But perhaps that case[69] is different; for had he said to them, I have knowledge, they would have said to him, Tell us then! — He could have answered that he had learnt but had forgotten; why then does it say: ‘I am not a healer’? [It must mean], I am not a healer at all.[70] But is it so? Behold Raba said: Jerusalem was not destroyed until honest men ceased therefrom, for it is said: Run ye to and fro through the streets of Jerusalem, and see now, and know, and seek in the broad places thereof, if ye can find a man, if there be any that doeth justly, that seeketh truth;[71] and I will pardon him.[72] — There is no contradiction:

---

(1) I.e., distributed them over the later generations; cf. Yoma 38b, ‘The Holy One, blessed be He, saw that the righteous were few, so He arose and planted them in every generation’. Another reading has ‘banished them’, but the meaning remains unchanged (v. Tosaf. a.I.).

(2) Cf. Aboth V, 20, (Sonc. ed., p. 73f).

(3) Rendered above, ‘who pressed forward’.

(4) So Jast.: from the root meaning ‘to compress, curl’; hence it can be under-stood in the sense of ‘to wrinkle (the brow)’ as well as ‘to press forward’ (as above). Levy and Goldschmidt render by ‘sich zusammendrangen’ (press themselves together, limit themselves).

(5) יסודם, ‘their foundation’ is here taken to mean the same as סודם, ‘their secret

(6) Lit., ‘son of a lion’.

(7) Cf. the lines in Longfellow's Sandalphon (quoted by Streane): ‘The Angels of Wind and of Fire Chant only one hymn, and expire With the song's irresistible stress’,

(8) Lam. III, 23. I.e,, great is Thy praise on account of them (Rashi).

(9) But not from the fiery stream, as Rab holds.

(10) Ps. XXXIII, 6.

(11) Dan, VII, 9.

(12) Cant. V, 11.

(13) I.e., Dan. VII, 9.

(14) I.e., sitting in judgment; cf. ibid. v. 10.

(15) Canticles is interpreted by the Rabbis as referring in greater part to the Exodus (note that the book is read in the synagogue during Passover) when God appeared as a warrior (cf. Ex. XV, 3).

(16) Dan. VII, 9.

(17) Ibid., beginning of the verse. The plural implies two thrones, whereas the first passage speaks of only one.

(18) By asserting that David occupies a place next to God.

(19) Lit., ‘righteousness’, but used here, apparently, in the sense of ‘lovingkindness, grace’.

(20) For Haggadah v. Glos. s. Aggadah. R. Eleazar b. ‘Azariah regards even this explanation as dangerous, because it implies a duality of character on the part of God, and militates against the fundamental Jewish concept of God's perfect unity.

(21) The two verbs in the English are represented by one in the Hebrew viz.כלך which is really a combination of כלה ולך, ‘cease and go (elsewhere’).

(22) V. p. 56, nn. 5 and 6. R. Akiba's intellectual gifts were best suited to Halachah, not Haggadah. The laws relating to defilement by leprosy and tent-covering form two of the most difficult tractates of the Halachah.

(23) E. V. foot-stool’, Isa. LXVI, 1.

(24) I.e., from Palestine to Babylonia.

(25) Lit., ‘his mind was not cooled’.

(26) Ibid. III, 5.

(27) Ibid. vv. 1-4.

(28) The Bible being Israel's stay’. In this vein the Gemara explains the rest of the quotation.

(29) I.e., in the days of R Judah b. Tema and his colleagues.

(30) The Mishnah is now divided into six orders, V. J.E. vol, VIII, p, 615.

(31) This included the discussions ‘if the Amoraim added to the Mishnah. The decisions of the experts in Talmud could be relied upon, but those who gave decisions on the basis of the Mishnah only were called ‘destroyers of the world’ (Sot. 22a); cf. supra p. 50. Thus, the masters of the Talmud were, so to speak, as essential to Israel as bread itself.

(32) Prov. IX, 5.
(33) Lit., ‘things heard’ i.e., oral reports of a halachic character — legal decisions — which were carefully handed down by teacher to disciple. These tradents of legal traditions were veritable living ‘books of reference’.
(34) Lit., ‘to take up and give’. The expression is primarily a commercial term, denoting ‘buying and selling’ or any financial transaction. Here it is used in the transferred sense of being able to deal with the argumentation essential to the study of the Torah. A distinction is here drawn between the keen-minded debater (‘the man of war’) and the expert in traditions (‘the mighty man’): the latter is remarkable chiefly for his learning, the former is distinguished for his reasoning power and mental acumen.
(35) Ibid. XVI, 10.
(36) I.e., as counsellor.
(37) חמשים ‘fifty’, is explained as חומשים ‘fifths,, i.e.,the five books of the Pentateuch. V. Kid. 33a.
(38) Lit., ‘interpreter’, i.e.,the translator into Aramaic (or Greek) of the Biblical portion read at services, V. J.E. VIII, p. 521.
(39) Cf. Ta'an. 24b-25a: ‘Every day a Bath Kol goes forth and says: The whole world is fed for the sake of Hanina, my son; Yet is Hanina, my son, satisfied with a kab of carobs from Sabbath eve to Sabbath eve’. Cf. also Ber. V, 5.
(40) I.e., in heaven.
(41) I.e., on earth.
(42) I.e., the proconsular government. V. Sanh. 14a and Keth. 17a.
(43) The Jewish year consists ordinarily of twelve lunar months (v. n. 5). In order to prevent the festivals from falling in the wrong seasons, it was necessary periodically to adjust the lunar calendar to the solar year: this was achieved by introducing an intercalary month (Adar II) between Adar and Nisan. V., further, Sanh. 2a (Sonc. ed., p. 1) and 10a (p. 42f); also J.E. vol. III, p. 498f.
(44) I.e., determination of the beginning of a month by the first appearance of the new moon. As the moon revolves round the earth in approx. twenty-nine and a half days, the Jewish months consists, alternately, of twenty-nine or thirty days.
(45) The expression ‘wise (E. V. cunning") charmer’ is clearly intended in the verse to refer to one person; but the Gemara interprets ‘wise’ and ‘charmer’ as a composite phrase referring to two distinct types.
(46) Used here not in its restricted meaning of the Pentateuch, but in its wider connotation of Jewish teaching based on Scripture; cf. Aboth I, 1 (Sonc. ed., p. 1, n., 1).
(47) Here, as above (v. n. 6), Isaiah's description of one type of person is made to refer to two types.
(48) I.e., is able himself to draw conclusions on the basis of the knowledge imparted to him.
(49) On account of Satan (Aruch). But Jast. prefers the reading of MS.M.(cf. Rashi l.c.) which he renders: ‘that is he to whom are handed over the secrets of the Law which are communicated in a low voice’. Cf. p. 75 and nn. 4 and 5.
(50) The word נערים (‘children’) in the verse is explained as meaning מנוערים (‘empty’); literally, the latter means, shaken out, emptied’.
(51) Lit., ‘commandments’, precepts (of the Torah)’, hence religious or meritorious deeds.
(52) Var. lec.: but Bah reads R. Papa b. J.
(53) The word תעלולים (‘babes’) in the verse is explained as a derivative of תעלא (‘fox’), with the meaning, ‘double foxes i.e,, second generation of foxes.
(54) V. p. 84, n. 6.
(55) This is an explanation of the word זקן (aged) in the verse, which must necessarily have the opposite meaning of נער (‘child’ i.e., one empty of good deeds). Note also that zaken is explained elsewhere as one who is both learned (v. Sifra Kedoshim Par. 3’ Ch. VII, and Kid. 32b) and practised in the Torah and its precepts (v. Ber. 39a). Cf. also p. 109 (The Elder).
(56) The word נקלה (‘base’) in the verse is here explained as a derivative of קל(‘light’).
(57) There is a play here on the word נכבד (‘honourable’), the root of which also means, ‘heavy, weighty’.
(58) Isa. III, 6.
(59) I.e., feel ashamed in their ignorance of them — namely the teachings of the Torah — should be detected.
(60) I.e., knowest well; the expression is quoted from the end of v. 6 (ibid.).
(61) Lit., ‘and this stumbling’; ibid,
(62) I.e., which they learn only through their mistakes.
(63) E.V. ‘swear’.

(64) E.V. will not be'.

(65) Ibid. 7.

(66) Ex, XX, 7. The bracketed words are omitted in cur. edd. but not in the "Ein Jacob'.

(67) The Heb. verb in the verse, which, being in the imperfect form should ordinarily denote the future or at least the present tense, is here understood as having a past meaning, viz,, 'I used not to be',

(68) Lit., 'of those who bind (themselves) in the Schoolhouse'.

(69) I.e., the case referred to in Isaiah is no proof of real honesty, because (according to the argument which follows) falsehood could easily have been detected.

(70) I.e., I have never studied. This voluntary admission proves his honesty.

(71) Heb. אמונה which is only a slight variant of אמנה 'honesty'.

(72) Jer. V, 1.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 14b

the one [verse] refers to religious matters,[1] the other to business. In regard to religious matters, there were [honest men left]; in regard to business, there were no [honest men left].

Our Rabbis taught: Once R. Johanan b. Zakkai was riding on an ass when going on a journey, and R. Eleazar b. 'Arak was driving the ass from behind. [R. Eleazar] said to him: Master, teach me a chapter of the 'Work of the Chariot'.[2] He answered: Have I not taught you[3] thus: 'Nor [the work of] the chariot in the presence of one, unless he is a Sage and understands of his own knowledge'? [R. Eleazar] them said to him: Master, permit me to say before thee something which thou hast taught me.[4] He answered, Say on! Forthwith R. Johanan b. Zakkai dismounted from the ass, and wrapped himself up,[5] and sat upon a stone beneath an olive tree. Said [R. Eleazar] to him: Master, wherefore didst thou dismount from the ass? He answered: Is it proper that whilst thou art expounding the 'Work of the Chariot', and the Divine Presence is with us, and the ministering angels accompany us, I should ride on the ass! Forthwith, R. Eleazar b. 'Arak began his exposition of the 'work of the Chariot', and fire[6] came down from heaven and encompassed[7] all the trees in the field; [thereupon] they all began to utter [divine] song. What was the song they uttered? — Praise the Lord from the earth, ye sea-monsters, and all deeps . . . fruitful trees and all cedars . . . Hallelujah.[8] An angel[9] [then] answered[10] from the fire and said: This is the very 'Work of the Chariot'. [Thereupon] R. Johanan b. Zakkai rose and kissed him on his head and said: Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, Who hath given a son to Abraham our father, who knoweth to speculate upon, and to investigate, and to expound the 'Work of the Chariot' — There are some who preach well but do not act well, others act well but do not preach well, but thou dost preach well and act well. Happy art thou, O Abraham our father, that R. Eleazar b. 'Arak hath come forth from thy loins. Now when these things were told R. Joshua, he and R. Jose the priest[11] were going on a journey. They said: Let us also[12] expound the 'Work of the Chariot'; so R. Joshua began an exposition. Now that day was the summer solstice;[13] [nevertheless] the heavens became overcast with clouds and a kind of rainbow[14] appeared in the cloud, and the ministering angels assembled and came to listen like people who assemble and come to watch the entertainments[15] of a bridegroom and bride. [Thereupon] R. Jose the priest went and related what happened before R. Johanan b. Zakkai; and [the latter] said: Happy are ye, and happy is she that bore you;[16] happy are my eyes that have seen thus. Moreover, in my dream, I and ye were reclining[17] on Mount Sinai, when a Bath Kol[18] was sent to us,[19] [saying]: Ascend hither, ascend hither! [Here are] great banqueting chambers, and fine dining couches prepared for you; you and your disciples and your disciples' disciples are designated for the third class.[20] But is this so?[21] For behold it is taught: R. Jose b. R. Judah said: There were three discourses:[22] R. Joshua discoursed before R. Johanan b. Zakkai, R. Akiba discoursed before R. Joshua, Hanania b. Hakinai discoursed before R. Akiba; — whereas R. Eleazar b. 'Arak he does not count! — One who discoursed [himself], and others discoursed before him, he counts; one who discoursed [himself], but others did not discourse before him, he does not count. But behold there is Hanania b. Hakinai before whom others did not discourse, yet he counts him! — He at least discoursed before one who discoursed [before others].[23]

Our Rabbis taught: Four men entered the ‘Garden’,[24] namely, Ben ‘Azzai[25] and Ben Zoma,[26] Aher,[27] and R. Akiba. R. Akiba said to them: When ye arrive at the stones of pure marble,[28] say not, water, water![29] For it is said: He that speaketh falsehood shall not be established before mine eyes.[30] Ben ‘Azzai cast a look and died. Of him Scripture says: Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints.[31] Ben Zoma looked and became demented.[32] Of him Scripture says: Hast thou found honey? Eat so much as is sufficient for thee, lest thou be filled therewith, and vomit it.[33] Aher mutilated the shoots.[34] R. Akiba departed unhurt.

Ben Zoma was asked: Is it permitted to castrate a dog?[35] He replied: Neither shall ye do this in your land,[36] — [this means], to none that is in your land shall ye do thus.[37] Ben Zoma was [further] asked: May a high priest marry a maiden who has become pregnant?[38] Do we [in such a case] take into consideration Samuel's statement, for Samuel said,

---

(1) Lit., ‘words of.the Torah’.

(2) V. p. 59, n. 4.

(3) Plural, i.e. R. Eleazar and his fellow-students.

(4) The fact that R. Johanan b. Zakkai had in the past taught the ‘Chariot’ mysteries to R. Eleazar is difficult to reconcile with the former's present refusal to teach his disciple. It seems best to omit, with the J.T., the word rendered ‘which thou hast taught me’. For two suggested explanations, if this word is retained, v. Maharsha a.I.

(5) I.e., put round him his tallith. The latter was a four-cornered garment (similar to the Roman pallium’) adorned with fringes (in accordance with Num. XV, 38f), which was worn in Talmudic times by scholars, distinguished persons, and those who led in prayers. Its use at prayers is still preserved, and has given rise to its popular designation of ‘prayer-shawl’. By wrapping himself in his tallith, R. Johanan b. Zakkai showed his sense of the holiness of the occasion. V. further J.E., vol. Xl, pp’ 67f and Elbogen, Der Jud, Gottesdienst pp. 499f.

(6) Cf. p. 77, n. 9.

(7) Var. lec.: covered; intertwined; hedged in,.

(8) Ps. CXLVIII, 7, 9, 14. This reference to trees is the clue which points to these verses as the trees’ psalm. The Jerusalem Talmud reads instead I Chron. XVI, 33.

(9) Another reading has ‘angel of death’, which Tosaf. rejects.

(10) I.e., spoke with reference to R. Eleazar's exposition of the ‘Chariot’ mysteries.

(11) For R. Johanan b. Zakkai's opinion of these two disciples and R. Eleazer v. Aboth, II, 8, 9.

(12) Being only two, they would not be infringing the Mishnah law concerning the study of the ‘chariot’ mysteries.

(13) Lit., ‘the cycle of Tammuz’ (fourth month). On such a day the sky in Palestine should be cloudless.

(14) Cf. Ezek. I, 28.

(15) Heb. מזמוטי. Levy deriving the word from the Greek ‘smiling’, especially ‘friendly smiling’, translates it, ‘Belustigungen’ (entertainments, merrymakings), which agrees with Rashi's explanation and the variant reading of the Jerusalem Talmud viz., ‘rejoicing’. Jast. gives the word a Hebrew origin (v.s.v.) and explains it to mean, music, sweet melodies’; he renders our passage — ‘the musical entertainments at a wedding.

(16) I.e., your respective mothers; they were not brothers.

(17) I.e. as at a banquet, when the guests used to recline on couches (cf. Ex. Rab 25).

(18) V. p. 73, n. 12.

(19) Lit., ‘given upon us’.

(20) Of the seven classes (v. Midr. Till. to Ps. XI, 7) admitted (after death) into God's presence.

(21) I.e., that R. Eleazar b. ‘Arak discoursed on the ‘Chariot’ mysteries before his master.

(22) I.e., only in three instances did disciples discourse on the ‘Work of the Chariot’ before their teachers.

(23) Hanina b. Hakinai has to be mentioned on account of R. Akiba, to show that the latter not only discoursed himself but that also another discoursed before him; but R. Eleazar b. ‘Arak did not discourse before a teacher who in his turn discoursed before others, nor did any one discourse before him, hence he is not counted.

(24) Paradise, Heb. פרדס (cf. Cant. IV, 13, Eccl. II, 5, Neh. II, 8), ‘enclosure, preserve, garden, park’ (v. B. D. B. s.v.). L. Blau (Alitjudisches Zauberwesen, pp, 115f) seeks to prove that this account of the entry of the four Rabbis into Paradise is to be understood literally (v. also J.E. vol. V, p. 683). This view is shared, among others, by J. Levy and L.

Ginzberg (v. J.E. vol. V, pp. 138f). On the other hand, M. Jast. (Dictionary) and Goldschmidt consider ‘Pardes’ a figurative expression for the mystical realm of theosophy. Rashi explains that the four scholars ascended to heaven, and Tosaf. adds that it only appeared to them that they did so. Similarly, R. Hai Gaon, who discusses the whole Baraitha in a responsum (quoted by Ha-Kotheb in ‘Ein Jacob), and R. Hananel explain that the entry of the Rabbis into the ‘Garden’ was only a vision. Both these authorities refer to the comment on the passage contained in the mystical works ‘Hekaloth Rabbathi’ and ‘Hekaloth Zutarthi’ (v. J.E. vol. VI, pp. 332-3). V. further J.E. vol. IX, pp. 515f.
(25) V. Ab. IV, 2, (Sonc. ed., p. 44, n. 1).
(26) V. ibid. Mishnah I, (Sonc. ed., P 43, n. 1).
(27) Lit. ‘another’, by which tern, Elisha b. Abuyah is referred to after his apostasy. V. J.E. vol. V, pp. 138f, and Ab. IV, 20 (Sonc. ed., p. 55 n. 1, where instead of ‘disciple of R. Meir’, read ‘teacher of R. Meir’). Cf. also the term ‘Others’ supra p. 14.
(28) Giving the illusion of water.
(29) I.e., how can we proceed!
(30) Ps. CI, 7.
(31) Ibid. CXVI, 15.
(32) Lit., ‘stricken’.
(33) Prov. XXV, 16,
(34) I.e., apostatized. Scholars differ greatly regarding the nature of Aher's defection: he has been variously described as a Persian, Gnostic or Philonian dualist; as a Christian; as a Sadducee; and as a ‘victim of the inquisitor Akiba’, in J.E., V. 183 and bibliography.
(35) Castrated animals may not be offered as sacrifices (v. n. 12,); therefore castration is forbidden in the case of animals of the type that can be offered up. But a dog may not only not be offered itself, but even its price or equivalent may not be used for offerings (v. Tem. 30a-b). Hence the question whether the prohibition of castration applies even to a dog. Cf. also Shab. 111a.
(36) Lev. XXII, 24. The beginning of the verse reads: ‘That which hath its stones bruised . . . or cut, ye shalt not offer unto the Lord’.
(37) l.e., even an animal like the dog, which cannot be offered as a sacrifice, may not be mutilated.
(38) The high priest may marry a virgin only (v. Lev. XXI, 13). The question here is: If the girl claims that despite her pregnant condition she is still a virgin, may the high priest marry her? Or if he married her without knowing of her pregnancy and actually found her to have the signs of virginity, but subsequently learnt that she was pregnant before marriage, may she remain his wife?

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 15a

I can have repeated sexual connections without [causing] bleeding;[1] or is perhaps the case of Samuel rare?[2] He replied: the case of Samuel is rare, but we do consider [the possibility] that she may have conceived in a bath.[3] But behold Samuel said: A spermatic emission that does not shoot forth like an arrow cannot fructify! — In the first instance, it had also shot forth like an arrow.

Our Rabbis taught: Once R. Joshua b. Hanania was standing on a step on the Temple Mount, and Ben Zoma saw him and did not stand up before him.[4] So [R. Joshua] said to him: Whence and whither, Ben Zoma?[5] He replied: I was gazing between the upper and the lower waters,[6] and there is only a bare three fingers’ [breadth] between them, for it is said: And the spirit of God hovered over the face of the waters[7] — like a dove which hovers over her young without touching [them].[8] Thereupon R. Joshua said to his disciples: Ben Zoma is still outside.[9] See now, when was it that ‘the spirit of God hovered over the face of the water? On the first day [of Creation]; but the division took place on the second day, for it is written: And let it divide the waters from the waters!’ And how big [is the interval]? R. Aha b. Jacob said, As a hair's breadth; and the Rabbis said: As [between] the boards of a landing bridge. Mar Zutra, or according to others R. Assi, said: As [between] two cloaks spread one over the other; and others say, as [between] two cups tilted one over the other.[10]

Aher mutilated the shoots.[11] Of him Scripture says: Suffer not thy mouth to bring thy flesh into guilt.[12] What does it refer to? — He saw that permission was granted to Metatron[13] to sit and write down[14] the merits of Israel. Said he: It is taught as a tradition that on high[15] there is no sitting[16] and no emulation, and no back,[17] and no weariness.[18] Perhaps, — God forfend! — there are two divinities! [Thereupon] they led Metatron forth, and punished him with sixty fiery lashes,[19] saying to him: Why didst thou not rise before him when thou didst see him? Permission was [then] given to him to strike out the merits of Aher. A Bath Kol[20] went forth and said: Return, ye backsliding children[21] — except Aher.[22] [Thereupon] he said: Since I[23] have been driven forth from yonder world,[24] let me go forth and enjoy this world. So Aher went forth into evil courses.[25] He went forth, found a harlot and demanded her. She said to him: Art thou not Elisha b. Abuyah? [But] when he tore a radish[26] out of its bed on the Sabbath and gave it to her, she said: It is another [Aher].[27] After his apostasy, Aher asked R. Meir [a question], saying to him: What is the meaning of the verse: God hath made even the one as[28] well as the other?[29] He replied: It means that for everything that God created He created [also] its counterpart. He created mountains, and created hills; He created seas, and created rivers. Said [Aher] to him: R. Akiba, thy master, did not explain it thus, but [as follows]: He created righteous, and created wicked; He created the Garden of Eden,[30] and created Gehinnom.[31] Everyone has two portions, one in the Garden of Eden and one in Gehinnom. The righteous man, being meritorious,[32] takes his own portions and his fellow's portion in the Garden of Eden. The wicked man, being guilty,[33] takes his own portion and his fellow's portion in Gehinnom. R. Mesharsheya said: What is the Biblical proof for this? In the case of the righteous, it is written: Therefore in their land[34] they shall possess double.[35] In the case of the wicked it is written: And destroy them with double destruction.[36]

After his apostasy, Aher asked R. Meir: What is the meaning of the verse: Gold and glass cannot equal it; neither shall the exchange thereof be vessels of fine gold?[37] He answered: These are the words of the Torah, which are hard to acquire like vessels of fine gold, but are easily destroyed[38] like vessels of glass. Said [Aher] to him: R. Akiba, thy master, did not explain thus, but [as follows]: Just as vessels of gold and vessels of glass, though they be broken, have a remedy,[39] even so a scholar, though he has sinned, has a remedy.[40] [Thereupon, R. Meir] said to him: Then, thou, too, repent! He replied: I have already heard from behind the Veil:[41] Return ye backsliding children — except Aher.

Our Rabbis taught: Once Aher was riding on a horse on the Sabbath,[42] and R. Meir was walking behind him to learn Torah[43] at his mouth. Said [Aher] to him: Meir, turn back, for I have already measured by the paces of my horse that thus far extends the Sabbath limit.[44] He replied: Thou, too, go back! [Aher] answered: Have I not already told thee that I have already heard from behind the Veil: ‘Return ye backsliding children’ — except Aher. [R. Meir] prevailed upon him and took him, to a schoolhouse. [Aher] said to a child: Recite for me thy verse![45] [The child] answered: There is no peace, saith the Lord, unto the wicked.[46] He then took him to another schoolhouse.[47] [Aher] said to a child: Recite for me thy verse! He answered: For though thou wash thee with nitre, and take thee much soap, yet thine iniquity is marked before Me, saith the Lord God[48] . He took him to yet another schoolhouse, and [Aher] said

---

(1) I.e., without the woman losing her virginity.

(2) Exceptional cases are not taken into account; the marriage, therefore, would be illegal.

(3) Into which a male had discharged semen.

(4) He was so lost in thought that he failed to show the respect of disciple to master. Cf. the parallel passage, Gen. Rab. II, 4, which contains interesting variants.

(5) I.e., what is the trend of your thoughts? The parallel passage (in Gen. Rab.) has מאין הרגלים, ‘whence the feet’?

(6) V. Gen. I, 6-7.

(7) Ibid. v. 2.

(8) Cf. the parallel passage in J. Hag. II, 1, where B. Zoma quotes Deut. XXXII, 11; and v. Rashi to this verse.

(9) I.e., out of his mind (R. Hai Gaon). The reading in Gen. Rab. is ‘is gone’. (12) Gen. I, 6.

(10) [For an attempt to explain the passage v. Weinstein Zur Genesis der Agada, p. 199, Ben Zoma in his view was an adherent of the view that water was the primordial matter out of which the world was created, V. also Graetz, Gnosticismus, pp. 57, 97. We have, however, lost the key to enable us to explain with certainty the thought-forms underlying this and similar Talmudic passages.]

(11) V. supra p. 91, n. 10.

(12) Eccl. V, 5. (A.V. 6); v. rest of verse.

(13) The name of one of the highest angels. Various derivations of the word have been suggested. Cf. Levy and Jast. s.v. For an illuminating article on the character, activities and identity of Metatron, v. J.E. vol. VIII, p. 519.

(14) The sentence may also be rendered thus: ‘He saw M. to whom permission was given to be seated while writing down etc.’ (Jast.).

(15) I.e., in heaven.

(16) MS.M. (v. Rabb. D.S. a.I.) reads: ‘no standing and no sitting’ i.e., no effort and no rest. This reading, in reverse order, was known to Maim. (Comm. on Mishnah Sanhedrin, ch. 10); but Rashi deletes the words ‘no standing’.

(17) I.e., the angels have faces in all directions (Rashi), Jast. explains i.e., everything is in sight. Maim. (loc. cit.) renders: ‘no division’.

(18) Maim. ‘no junction’.

(19) I.e., he was beaten with ‘heated disks or rings strung on a lash’ (Jast.). The purpose of the punishment was to show that M. had no more power than others (Tosaf.).

(20) V. p. 73, n. 12.

(21) Jer. III, 22.

(22) According to our passage, Aher was guilty of the heresy of dualism. L. Ginzberg (J.E. vol. V, pp. 138-139) denies all historic worth to the story given here, which, on account of its reference to Metatron — which he declares to be a specifically Babylonian idea — and its lack of connection with the introductory words, he declares to be of late origin. Ginzberg prefers the parallel account in J. Hag. II, l, where it is related that when Elisha saw a scholar he slew him, that he enticed the young from studying the Torah, and that he informed against the Jews when they sought to perform the work they were ordered to do on the Sabbath in a manner not to break the Law, These events undoubtedly refer to the period of the Hadrianic persecutions. In the J.T. two reasons are mentioned for his apostasy: according to some, he saw one man break the precept of Deut. XXII, 7, without coming to harm, and another observe it and get killed; according to others, he saw the tongue of the great scholar R. Judah Nahtum in the mouth of a dog. The J.T. also gives a different version of the verses discussed by Elisha with R. Meir, and of what R. Meir said on his master's death (v. J.E. vol. VIII, p. 434).

(23) Lit., ‘that man’, a frequent euphemism for I or thou (to avoid ominous speech or curse).

(24) I.e. ‘ he would have no share in the world to come (cf. Sanh. 90a (Sonc. ed., p. 601).

(25) Lit,, ‘evil growth’, hence, ‘evil rearing, manners, ways’. The stories that follow show the expression to mean here moral depravity and apostasy.

(26) Strictly, the soft tuber of the radish; cf. ‘Er. 28b.

(27) ‘Aher’ is thus explained to mean ‘another person’. Ginzberg (op. cit.) takes the view that it is a euphemism for a vile thing (cf. דבר אחר). V. p. 91, n. 3.

(28) Lit., ‘corresponding to’, or ‘over against’.

(29) Eccl. VII, 14.

(30) I.e., Paradise, for the righteous in the life hereafter.

(31) V. p. 82, n. 1; cf. J.E. vol. V, pp. 582f. Whereas R. Meir explains the verse as referring to physical counterparts of nature R. Akiba understands it to speak of moral contrasts with their consequent reward and punishment. Cf. n. 6.

(32) Lit., ‘having been declared innocent, i.e., In the Heavenly Court,

(33) Lit., ‘having been declared guilty’.

(34) I. e., Paradise.

(35) lsa. LXI, 7.

(36) Jer. XVII, 18.

(37) Job. XXVIII, 17.

(38) I.e., forgotten.

(39) I.e., can be repaired.

(40) I.e., can repent.

(41) Heb. פרגוד, from Latin paraganda = a garment ornamented with a border (so called because of its phrygian origin). For other derivations v. Levy s.v. Here pargod denotes the ‘curtain of heaven’ and corresponds to Wilon (v. p. 69, n. 5). V. also p. 101.
(42) V. Bez. V, 2.
(43) V. Glos.
(44) I.e., two thousand cubits (in all directions) from the place where a person makes his abode for the Sabbath, beyond which it is forbidden to go on the day of rest; cf. Shab. XXIV, 5; ‘Er. IV, 3; V, 7.
(45) I.e., the verse which thou hast studied today. The answer thus obtained was considered to have the authority of an oracle.
(46) Isa, XLVIII, 22.
(47) The expression used here and in the rest of this passage is בי כנישתא, lit., ‘House of Assembly, Synagogue’. But above, ‘schoolhouse’ translated בי מדרשא, lit., ‘House of study’. For the use of the Synagogue as a school and for the exact signification of the Aramaic terms v. S. Krauss, TA. III, p. 204f.
(48) Jer. II, 22.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 15b

to a child: Recite for me thy verse! He answered: And thou, that art spoiled, what doest thou, that thou clothest thyself with scarlet, that thou deckest thee with ornaments of gold, that thou enlargest thine eyes with paint? In vain dost thou make thyself fair etc.[1] He took him to yet another schoolhouse until he took him to thirteen schools: all of them quoted in similar vein. When he said to the last one, Recite for my thy verse, he answered: But unto the wicked God saith: ‘What hast thou to do to declare My statutes etc.?[2] That child was a stutterer, so it sounded as though he answered: ‘But to Elisha[3] God saith’. Some say that [Aher] had a knife with him, and he cut him up and sent him to the thirteen schools: and some say that he said: Had I a knife in my hand I would have cut him up.

When Aher died,[4] they said:[5] Let him not be judged, nor let him enter the world to come. Let him not be judged, because he engaged in the study of the Torah; nor let him enter the world to come, because he sinned. R. Meir said: It were better that he should be judged and that he should enter the world to come. When I die I shall cause[6] smoke to rise from his grave.[7] When R. Meir died, smoke rose up from Aher's grave. R. Johanan said: [What] a mighty deed to burn his master! There was one amongst us, and we cannot save him;[8] if I were to take him by the hand, who would snatch him from me! [But] said he:[9] When I die, I shall extinguish the smoke from his grave.[10] When R. Johanan died, the smoke ceased from Aher's grave. The public mourner[11] began [his oration] concerning him[12] thus: Even the janitor[13] could not stand before thee, O master!

Aher's daughter [once] came before Rabbi and said to him: O master, support me! He asked her: ‘Whose daughter art thou?’ She replied: I am Aher's daughter. Said he: Are any of his children left in the world? Behold it is written: He shall have neither son nor son's son among his people, nor any remaining in his dwellings.[14] She answered: Remember his Torah[15] and not his deeds. Forthwith, a fire came down and enveloped Rabbi's bench.[16] [Thereupon] Rabbi wept and said: If it be so on account of those who dishonour her,[17] how much more so on account of those who honour her!

But how did R. Meir learn Torah at the mouth of Aher? Behold Rabbah b. Bar Hana said that R. Johanan said: What is the meaning of the verse, For the priest's lips should keep knowledge, and they should seek the Law at his mouth; for he is the messenger of the Lord of hosts?[18] [This means that] if the teacher is like an angel of the Lord of hosts, they should seek the Law at his mouth, but if not, they should not seek the Law at his mouth! — Resh Lakish answered: R. Meir found a verse and expounded it [as follows]: Incline thine ear, and hear the words of the wise, and apply thy heart unto my knowledge.[19] It does not say, ‘unto their knowledge’, but ‘unto my knowledge’.[20] R. Hanina said, [he decided it] from here: Hearken, O daughter, and consider, and incline thine ear; forget also thine own people, and thy father's house etc.[21] The verses contradict one another![22] There is no contradiction: in the one case Scripture refers to an adult,[23] in the other to a child. When R. Dimi came [to Babylon] he said: In the West,[24] they say: R. Meir ate the date and threw the kernel[25] away.

Raba expounded: What is the meaning of the verse: I went down to the garden of nuts, to look at the green plants of the valley etc.?[26] Why are the scholars likened to the nut? To tell you that just as [in the case of] the nut, though it be spoiled with mud and filth, yet are its contents not contemned, so [in the case of] a scholar, although he may have sinned, yet is his Torah not contemned.

Rabbah b. Shila [once] met Elijah.[27] He said to him: What is the Holy One, blessed be He, doing? He answered: He utters traditions in the name[28] of all the Rabbis, but in the name of R. Meir he does not utter. Rabbah asked him, Why? — Because he learnt traditions at the mouth of Aher. Said [Rabbah] to him: But why? R. Meir found a pomegranate; he ate [the fruit] within it, and the peel he threw away! He answered: Now[29] He says: Meir my son says: When a man suffers,[30] to what expression does the Shechinah give utterance? ‘My head is heavy, my arm is heavy’.[31] If the Holy One, blessed be He, is thus grieved over the blood of the wicked, how much more so over the blood of the righteous that is shed. Samuel found Rab Judah leaning on the door-bolt weeping. So he said to him: O, keen scholar,[32] wherefore dost thou weep? He replied: Is it a small thing that is written concerning the Rabbis?[33] Where is he that counted, where is he that weighed? Where is he that counted the towers?[34] ‘Where is he that counted?’ — for they counted all the letters in the Torah. ‘Where is he that weighed?’ — for they weighed the light and the heavy[35] in the Torah. ‘Where is he that counted the towers?’ — for they taught three hundred halachoth[36] concerning a ‘tower which flies in the air’.[37] And R. Ammi said: Three hundred questions[38] did Doeg[39] and Ahitophel[40] raise concerning a ‘tower which flies in the air’. Yet we have learnt: Three kings and four commoners[41] have no share in the world to come. What then shall become of us? Said [Samuel] to him. O, keen scholar, there was impurity[42] in their hearts. — But what of Aher?[43] — Greek song did not cease from his mouth.[44] It is told of Aher that when he used to rise [to go] from the schoolhouse,[45] many heretical books[46] used to fall from his lap.

Nimos the weaver[47] asked R. Meir: Does all wool that goes down into the [dyeing] kettle come up [properly dyed]?[48] He replied: All that was clean on its mother[49] comes up [properly dyed], all that was not clean on its mother does not come up [properly dyed].

R. Akiba went up unhurt and went down[50] unhurt; and of him Scripture says: Draw me, we will run after thee.[51] And R. Akiba too the ministering angels sought to thrust away; [but] the Holy One, blessed be He, said to them: Let this elder be, for he is worthy to avail himself of My glory.

---

(1) Ibid. IV, 30.

(2) Ps. L, 16.

(3) The child pronounced ולרשע (‘and unto the wicked’) like ולאלישע(‘and unto Elisha’). Note that א and ר are both gutturals.

(4) Lit,, ‘his soul rested’.

(5) I.e,, in heaven,

(6) By my prayer.

(7) I.e., as a sign that he was judged and punished for his sins.

(8) I.e., one scholar among us went astray, yet all of us together have not the power to save him!

(9) Var. lec. omit ‘said he’,

(10) I.e., as a sign that he was forgiven.

(11) V. S. Krauss, T.A. II, p. 68.

(12) I.e., R. Johanan.

(13) I.e., of hell.

(14) Job. XVIII, 19. The verse forms part of a description of the fate of the wicked; cf. v. 5. In the eyes of Bildad (v. I), Job was an infidel.

(15) I.e., his vast knowledge of the Torah. Though theory should not be divorced from practice, the study of the Torah is in itself a merit: cf. Ab. IV, 5.

(16) Cf. p. 89.

(17) I.e., the Torah.

(18) Mal. II, 7.

(19) Prov. XXII, 17.

(20) Since the heart may not be applied to their knowledge, it shows that the acts of the wise men referred to must be wicked. Nevertheless, their words may be listened to. Thus R. Meir could learn from Aher, provided he did not imitate the latter's deeds.

(21) Ps. XLV, 11. I.e., hearken to the words of the wise, but forget their actions, if they are wicked.

(22) I.e., the two verses contradict Mal. II,7 quoted above.

(23) An adult, unlike a child, can use discrimination, and avoid the teacher's wrongdoing; hence the last two verses permit him to learn even from a heretic.

(24) I.e., Palestine, which is west of Babylonia.

(25) So Rashi and Levy; Jast. trans., ‘peel’. V. D.5. a.I. n. 30.

(26) Cant. VI, 11.

(27) For Elijah in Rabbinic literature v. J.E. vol. V, pp. 122ff(especially p. 124).

(28) Lit., ‘from the mouth’.

(29) I.e., since you have pleaded for him,

(30) The passage refers to capital punishment, v. Sanh. 46a.

(31) Lit., ‘I am lighter than my head etc.’, a euphemistic expression for feeling heavy, giddy. weak; v. Sanh., Sonc. ed., pp. 304, 306. The anthropomorphism is intended to show how near God is to man and how real is His sorrow for him in the time of his trouble, even though he be a delinquent and fully deserve his punishment.

(32) Shinena, lit., ‘sharp one’; aliter ‘man with long (sharp) tooth’.

(33) I.e., about those who went astray into evil courses.

(34) Isa. XXXIII, 18.

(35) I.e., expounded the Torah according to the hermeneutical rule of קל (light, unimportant) וחומר (heavy, important) i.e., by arguing from minor to major and vice versa.

(36) I.e., fixed traditional laws, V. Glos.

(37) An obscure expression for which Rashi both here and Sanh. 106b (Sonc. ed., p. 727) offers several interpretations, The most likely explanations relate the ‘flying tower’ to the laws of defilement. It could then mean: (a) A portable turret-shaped conveyance, in which an Israelite entered heathen land, which is regarded as levitically unclean; v. Tosef. Oh. and Rashi to Sanh. l.c. ‘Flying’ will thus mean ‘moving’ i.e., being carried. (b) An open chest or cupboard containing a levitically unclean object, which stands in an open space; v, Oh. IV, If. In this case, it is best to read ‘open’, or, as in the Mishnah ‘standing’. The following are less plausible explanations: — (a) The upper stroke of the letter lamed, i.e., they taught three hundred traditions concerning so insignificant a matter. (b) The tower of Babel. (c) A tower suspended in mid-air by magic. Cf. Sanh. 68a (Sonc. ed., p. 462), concerning the planting of cucumbers by magic.

(38) An indication of their profound learning. V. the variant reading in Sanh, l.c.

(39) Cf. I Sam. XXI, 8 where ‘the chiefest of the herdmen’ is explained by Rashi as ‘the head of the Beth din’.

(40) Cf. II Sam. XVI, 23.

(41) The three kings are, Jeroboam, Ahab and Manasseh; the four commoners, Balaam, Doeg, Ahitophel and Gehazi, Thus their profound learning did not save Doeg and Ahitophel. V. Sanh. 90a, (Sonc. ed,, pp. 602f).

(42) Lit., ‘clay’, i.e., heathen sensuality (Jast.). Aliter: ‘gnawing worm’; ‘jealousy’, i.e., evil thoughts (Levy). Whatever the exact rendering, the meaning is: They were wickedly inclined from the beginning, hence their knowledge of the Torah could not protect them.

(43) I.e., why did not his study of the Torah save him?

(44) Rashi reads: ‘from his house’. Why Greek song should have been the cause of Aher's corruption is not clear. Rashi says that he transgressed the prohibition against music after the destruction of the Temple (v. Git. 7a; cf. Isa. XXIV, 9). Maharsha rightly objects that this does not explain the word Greek: the Gemara could have simply stated that song did not cease from his mouth. He suggests, therefore, that the Greek songs were tainted by heresy. Perhaps the simplest explanation is that Aher's devotion to Greek literature eventually led him to accept ideas which were contrary to Jewish teaching.

(45) I.e., before his apostasy.

(46) Lit., ‘books of Minim’ (v. Glos. s.v. Min).

(47) גרדי, Lat. gerdino. Cf. R. Isaac the Smith, R. Johanan the Sandalmaker etc. Being a weaver, the allegory employed by Nimos is appropriate. But Jast. holds that גדרי equals (by transposition) גדרי and means ‘of Gadara’. He also regards נימוס as a shortened form of אבנימוס (cf. Gen. Rab. s. 65), who, he thinks, is to be identified with the cynic philosopher Oenomaus.

(48) Rashi explains: does the study of the Torah serve to protect all students from sin? Jast.: i.e., does every student of mystic philosophy escape death or scepticism? (So too Aruch). Note Oenomaus was a cynic.

(49) I.e., when the sheep was sheared, i.e., all who begin the study of the Torah when they are free from sin; or (following Jast. and Aruch), all who engage in mystic speculation in perfect purity, like R. Akiba. Cf. Ab. III, 9 (Sonc. ed., p. 32).

(50) Cf. ‘entered . . . departed’ supra pp. 90-91.

(51) Cant. I, 4. I.e., R. Akiba was able to follow God right into Paradise, or (according to the other opinions) into the deepest mysteries of theosophy.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 16a

— By what Biblical exposition was he able to learn this?[1] Rabbah b. Bar Hanah said that R. Johanan said: And He came from the myriads holy[2] — He is the Sign[3] among His myriad. And R. Abbahu said: He is preeminent above ten thousand[4] — He is the Example[5] among His myriad. And Resh Lakish said: The Lord of hosts is His names[6] — He is the Lord among His host. — And R. Hiyya b. Abba said that R. Johanan said: But the Lord was not in the wind; and after the wind an earthquake; but the Lord was not in the earthquake; and after the earthquake a fire; but the Lord was ‘not in the fire; and after the fire a still small voice.[7] And behold, the Lord passed by.[8]

Our Rabbis taught: Six things are said concerning demons:[9] in regard to three, they are like the ministering angels; and in regard to three, like human beings. ‘In regard to three they are like the ministering angels’: they have wings like the ministering angels; and they fly from one end of the world to the other like the ministering angels; and they know what will happen like the ministering angels. [You say], ‘They know’ — you cannot mean that![10] — Rather, they hear from behind the Veil[11] like the ministering angels. ‘And in regard to three, they are like human beings’: they eat and drink like human beings; they propagate like human beings; and they die like human beings. Six things are said of human beings: in regard to three, they are like the ministering angels, and in regard to three, they are like beasts. ‘In regard to three, they are like the ministering angels’: they have understanding like the ministering angels; and they walk erect like the ministering angels; and they can talk in the holy tongue[12] like the ministering angels. ‘In regard to three, they are like beasts’: they eat and drink like beasts; and they propagate like beasts, and they relieve themselves like beasts.

WHOSOEVER SPECULATES UPON FOUR THINGS, IT WERE A MERCY IF[13] HE HAD NOT COME INTO THE WORLD etc. Granted as regards what is above, what is beneath,[14] what [will be] after,[15] that is well. But as regards what was before — what happened, happened![16] — Both R. Johanan and Resh Lakish say: It is like a human king who said to his servants: Build for me a great palace upon the dunghill.[17] They went and built it for him. It is not the king's wish [thenceforth] to have the name of the dunghill mentioned.

WHOSOEVER TAKES NO THOUGHT FOR THE HONOUR OF HIS MAKER, IT WERE A MERCY IF HE HAD NOT COME INTO THE WORLD. What does this mean? R. Abba said: It refers to one who looks at the rainbow. R. Joseph said: It refers to one who commits transgression in secret. ‘One who looks at a rainbow’, for it is written: As the appearance of the bow that is in the cloud in the day, so was the appearance of the brightness round about. This was the appearance of the likeness of the glory of the Lord.[18] R. Joseph said: ‘It refers to one who commits a transgression in secret', in accordance with R. Isaac's teaching. For R. Isaac said: When anyone commits a transgression in secret, it is as though he thrust aside the feet of the Divine Presence, for it is said: Thus saith the Lord: The heaven is My throne, and the earth is My footstool.[19] But is this so? For behold R. Elai the elder said: If a man sees that his [evil] inclination is prevailing upon him, let him go to a place where he is not known, and put on black garments,[20] and wrap himself up[21] in black garments, and let him do what his heart desires;[22] but let him not profane the Name of Heaven publicly! — There is no contradiction. The one case speaks of one who is able to overcome[23] his [evil] inclination; the other case of one who is not able to overcome his [evil] inclination.

R. Judah b. R. Nahmani, the speaker[24] of Resh Lakish expounded: Anyone who looks at three things, his eyes become dim; at the rainbow, and at the Prince,[25] and at the priests. At the rainbow, because it is written: As the appearance of the bow that is in the cloud in the day of rain . . . This was the appearance of the likeness of the glory of the Lord.[26] At the Prince, for it is written: And thou shalt put of thy honour upon him.[27] One who looks at the priests — at the time when the Temple existed, when they stood upon their platform[28] and blessed Israel with the Distinguished Name[29] [of God]. R. Judah son of R. Nahmani, the speaker of Resh Lakish expounded: What is the meaning of the verse: Trust ye not in a friend, put ye not confidence in a familiar friend.[30] If the evil inclination say to thee: Sin and the Holy One, blessed be He, will pardon, believe it not, for it is said: 'Trust ye not in a friend', and 'friend' [Rea'] means none other than one's evil inclination, for it is said: For the inclination[31] of man's heart is evil [Ra'].[32] And 'familiar friend' means none other than the Holy One, blessed be He, for it is said: Thou art the familiar friend of my youth.[33] Perhaps thou wilt say: Who testifies against me? The stones of a man's home and the beams of his house testify against him, for it is said: For the stone shall cry out of the wall, and the beam out of the timber shall answer it.[34] But the Sages say: A man's soul testifies against him, for it is said: Keep the doors of thy mouth from her that lieth in thy bosom.[30] What is it that lies in a man's bosom? You must say, it is the soul. R. Zerika said: Two ministering angels that accompany him testify against him, for it is said: For He will give His angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways.[35] But the Sages[36] say: A man's limbs testify against him, for it is said: Therefore ye are My witnesses,[37] saith the Lord, and I am God.[38]

MISHNAH. JOSE B. JO'EZER[39] SAYS THAT [ON A FESTIVAL-DAY] THE LAYING ON OF HANDS [ON THE HEAD OF A SACRIFICE][40] MAY NOT BE PERFORMED;[41] JOSEPH B. JOHANAN SAYS THAT IT MAY BE PERFORMED.[42] JOSHUA B. PERAHIA SAYS THAT IT MAY NOT RE PERFORMED; NITTAI THE ARBELITE[43] SAYS THAT IT MAY BE PERFORMED. JUDAH B. TARBAI SAYS THAT IT MAY NOT BE PERFORMED; SIMEON A. SHETAH SAYS THAT IT MAY BE PERFORMED. SHEMAIAH SAYS THAT IT MAY BE PERFORMED; ABTALION SAYS THAT IT MAY NOT BE PERFORMED.[44] HILLEL AND MENAHEM DID NOT DIFFER. MENAHEM WENT FORTH,[45] SHAMMAI ENTERED.[46] SHAMMAI SAYS THAT IT MAY NOT BE PERFORMED; HILLEL SAYS THAT IT MAY BE PERFORMED.

---

(1) Lit., 'what did he expound'? i.e., from which verse did R. Akiba learn to distinguish God's Presence so as to avoid Aher's error of dualism, or (according to another interpretation of Rashi) so as not to look in the direction of the Shechinah (Divine Presence)?

(2) Deut. XXXIII, 2.

(3) ואתה ('and He came') is explained as ואתה ('and His sign'). Jast. translates: 'He is the ensign among his myriad'. Goldschmidt: 'He is distinguished among his myriads'.

(4) Cant. V, 10.

(5) Heb. דוגמא. There is a play here on the text דגול מרבבה ('pre-eminent among the thousand') from which דוגמא is derived. The expositions of the different Rabbis have the common object of showing that God's Presence could be distinguished from his myriad attendants; fine shades of difference are not necessarily to be sought. But for the thought underlying this particular homiletical play, cf. Lev. XIX, 2. Jast. translates: 'He is exemplified by His myriad (of angels)’, i.e., the Divine nature is recognized indirectly from the nature of His ministering angels, v. Cant. Rab. to V, 9. But this seems hardly in keeping with the line of thought demanded by the context. Goldschmidt: ‘He is marked out among his myriads’.

(6) Isa. XLVIII, 2.

(7) 1 Kings XIX, 11, 12. Thus the Divine Presence could be distinguished from the rest of the theophany.

(8) .Ibid. v. 11; in the Bible this clause precedes the previous quotation.

(9) V. J.E. vol. IV, pp. 514f, and Nachmanides on Lev. XVII, 7.

(10) Prescience is a divine attribute,

(11) V. p. 95, n. 10.

(12) The power of learning to speak the Hebrew language is common to all men.

(13) The wording here is slightly different from the Mishnah text (s.v.), but does not alter the meaning.

(14) Cf. p. 59, n. 7 and Deut. XXXIII, 27.

(15) I.e., in the hereafter.

(16) I.e., it is no longer a secret.

(17) The dunghill here represents the primordial chaos; the palace, ordered creation.

(18) Ezek. I, 28. Since the rainbow was symbolic of the Divine Glory, it was irreverent to gaze at it.

(19) Isa. LXVI, 1. But he that sins in secret denies this, for he implies that God has no access to his hiding-place.

(20) In the hope that exile and mourning clothes (cf. Shab. 114a, Jannai's request) would cool his passion and cause him to abandon his wicked intention.

(21) To produce a serious frame of mind; cf p. 88, n. 9.

(22) I.e., should his passion remain unmastered, let him at least commit the sin in secret. But R. Hananel deprecates the thought that the Talmud permits sin even in such circumstances and interprets our passage thus: certainly the effect of exile and dark garments will be to conquer the man's evil inclination, so that he will then be able to do what his heart truly desires, i.e., serve God.

(23) Lit., ‘bend’.

(24) Methurgeman. Lit., ‘interpreter’, used here in the sense of Amora, ‘speaker’; v. J.E. vol. VIII, p. 521.

(25) Heb. Nasi; v. infra p. 105, n. 6.

(26) Ezek. I, 28.

(27) Num. XXVII, 20. Moses’ face could not be gazed at; v. Ex. XXXIV, 29-35. A part of Moses’ honour belonged not merely to Joshua but to every Jewish leader.

(28) V. J.E. vol. V, p. 9 (s.v. Dukan).

(29) I.e., pronounced the Shem ha-meforash, the Tetragrammaton (יהוה), instead of the usual substitute אדני when uttering the sacerdotal blessing. Num. VI, 24-26. cf. Sot. VII, 6; and Sanh. 90a (Sonc. ed., p. 602). The exact meaning of the term Shem ha-meforash is obscure: v. Levy and Jast and J.E. vol. XI, pp. 262f. Tosaf, (a.l.) points out that outside the Temple too, e.g., in the provinces, it was forbidden to look at the priests during the pronouncement of the sacerdotal blessing, the reason according to the J.T. being to prevent the distraction of the people's attention.

(30) Mic. VII, 5.

(31) E.V. ‘imagination’.

(32) Gen. VIII, 21, Only the vowels differentiate רע(friend) from רע(evil).

(33) Jer. III, 4.

(34) Hab. II, 11.

(35) Ps. XCI, 11.

(36) In Ta'an. the reading is, ‘Some say’ = R. Nathan (v. Hor. 13b; cf. p. 14, n. 5).

(37) I.e., ye yourselves (sc. your very bodies) testify to your own sins.

(38) Isa. XLIII, 12.

(39) In Tem. 16a: Joseph b. Jo'ezer. For the successive generations of scholars mentioned here v. Aboth I, 4-12 (Sonc. ed., pp. 3-8 and nn. a.l.).

(40) Cf. Lev, 1, 4.

(41) The same restrictions regarding work applied to Festival-days as to the Sabbath, except in respect of work essential to the preparation of food, which was permitted on the Festivals (v. Bez. V, 2). Now the ‘laying on of the hands’ had to be performed with all one's strength, so that the weight of the person was supported by the animal; and this was considered an infringement of the Sabbath rule not ‘to make use’ of an animal. The point of the controversy, therefore, is this: Had the laying on of the hands to be done immediately prior to the slaughter, and consequently could be regarded as essential to the preparation of food, i.e., the sacrificial meal; or could this be done on the preceding day, so that the profanation of the holyday by this act became unnecessary, although the slaughtering took place on the Festival day? V. Bez. II, 4 and Bertinoro a.l.

(42) In the J. Hag. II, 2 we are told: At first there was no controversy in Israel except over the laying on of the hands alone. But Shammai and Hillel arose and made them four (in Bab. Shab. 14b, only three points of dispute are mentioned; cf. Tosaf. to our passage). When the disciples of the School of Hillel increased, and they did not study sufficiently under their masters (lit., 'did not sufficiently minister to their masters'), the controversies in Israel increased, and they became divided into two companies, the one declaring unclean, the other declaring clean. And (the Torah) will not again return to its (uncontroversial) place until the son of David (i.e., the Messiah) will come. For the meaning and importance of this controversy v. further Weiss, Dor I, 103f; Frankel, Hodegetica in Mischnam pp. 43-44; Jacob Levi, in Ozar Nehmod III, Vienna 1860. [The controversy has also been ingeniously interpreted as referring to the question of 'acceptance of authority' and not the laying on of hands. V. Zeitlin, JQR, (N.S.) VII, pp. 499ff; Sidon A, Gedenkbuck Kaufmann, pp. 355ff and Bornstein, A. Hatekufah IV, p. 396.]

(43) I.e., of Arbel, on the borders of Lake Galilee. V. Ab. I, 6 (Sonc. ed., p. 5, n. 3.).

(44) This pair is exceptional in so far as the first Sage permits and the second prohibits.

(45) V. p. 108.

(46) I.e., in the former's place as Head of the Court.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 16b

THE FORMER [OF EACH] PAIR WERE PRINCES[1] AND THE LATTER WERE HEADS OF THE COURT.[2]

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: The three of the former pairs[3] who said that the laying on of the hands may not be performed, and the two of the latter pairs who said that it may be performed, were Princes, and the others were Heads of the Court — this is the view of R. Meir. But the Sages say: Judah b. Tabbai was Head of the Court, and Simeon b. Shetah was Prince. Who taught the following teaching of our Rabbis? R.[4] Judah b. Tabbai said: May I see consolation,[5] if I did not have a Zomem[6] -witness put to death as a demonstration[7] against the Sadducees[8] who said that Zomemim-witnesses were not to be put to death unless [through their false evidence] the accused had [already] been put to death. Said Simeon b. Shetah to him: May I see consolation, if thou didst not shed innocent blood. For the Sages said: Zomemim-witnesses are not put to death until both of them have been proved Zomemim; and they are not flogged[9] until both of them have been proved Zomemim; and they are not ordered to pay money [as damages][10] until both of them have been proved Zomemim. Forthwith Judah b. Tabbai undertook never to give a decision except in the presence of Simeon b. Shetah.[11] All his days Judah b. Tabbai prostrated himself on the grave of the executed man, and his voice used to be heard. The people believed that it was the voice of the executed man; [but] he said to them: 'It is my voice. Ye shall know this [by the fact that] on the morrow [when] I die my voice will not be heard'.[12] R. Aha the son of Raba said to R. Ashi: But perhaps he[13] appeased him, or [the deceased] summoned him to judgment![14] — According to whom will this[15] be? Granted, if you say [it is according to] R. Meir, who said that Simeon b. Shetah was Head of the Court [and] R. Judah b. Tabbai was Prince, that is why he decided points of law in the presence of Simeon b. Shetah; but if you say [it is according to] the Rabbis, who say that Judah b. Tabbai was Head of the Court [and] Simeon b. Shetah was Prince, how may the Head of the Court decide points of law in the presence of the Prince![16] — No,'he undertook' is to be understood with reference to association. [He said]: I will not even join [with other judges to give a decision, unless Simeon b. Shetah is present].[17] MENAHEM WENT FORTH AND SHAMMAI ENTERED etc. Whither did he go forth? Abaye said: He went forth into evil courses.[18] Raba said: He went forth to the King's service. Thus it is also taught: Menahem went forth to the King's service, and there went forth with him eighty pairs of disciples dressed in silk.

R. Shimon b. Abba said that R. Johanan said: Never let [the principle] of Shebuth[19] [Rest] be unimportant in thy eyes. For the laying on of the hands [on a Festival-day] is [prohibited] only on account of Shebuth, yet the great men of the age differed thereon.[20] But is this not already quite clear![21] — It is required on account of a precept [the fulfilment of which is prohibited] as Shebuth.[22] But is not that too quite clear![23] — [It is required] to contradict the view that they differ regarding the laying on of the hands itself: thus he teaches us that it is in regard to Shebuth that they differ.[24]

Rami b. Hama said: You can deduce from this[25] that the laying on of hands must be done with all one's strength; for if you suppose that one's whole strength is not required, what [work] does one do by laying on the hands?[26] An objection was raised: [It is written]: Speak unto the sons of Israel . . . and he shall lay his hands.[27] The sons of Israel lay on the hands but the daughters of Israel do not lay on the hands. R. Jose and R. Simeon[28] say: The daughters of Israel lay on the hands optionally.[29] R. Jose said: Abba Eleazar told me: Once we had a calf which was a peace-sacrifice, and we brought it to the Women's Court,[30] and women laid the hands on it — not that the laying on of the hands has to be done by women, but in order to gratify the women.[31] Now if you suppose that we require the laying on of the hands to be done with all one's strength, would we, for the sake of gratifying the women, permit work to be done with holy sacrifices![32] Is it to be inferred, therefore, that we do not require all one's strength? — Actually, I can answer you that we do require [it to be] with all one's strength, [but the women] were told to hold their hands lightly.[33] If so, [what need was there to say], ‘not that the laying on of the hands has to be done by women’? He could [more simply] have pointed out that it was no laying on of the hands at all! R. Ammi said: His argument runs: Firstly and secondly. Firstly, it was no laying on of the hands at all, and secondly, it was [done] In order to gratify the women.[34]

R. Papa said: One may conclude from this[35] that it is forbidden [on a holy day to make use of] the sides [of an animal].[36] For if you suppose that it is permitted [to make use of] the sides, let the hands be laid on the side.[37] It must be concluded, therefore, that it is forbidden to make use of the sides.[38]

---

(1) Heb. Nasi, i.e., President of the Sanhedrin. V. J.E. vol. IX, pp. 171-2; and Strack's Introduction to the Talmud and Midrash, p. 1072, n. 3.

(2) Heb. Ab beth din, Father of the Court; i.e., Vice-president of the Sanhedrin; cf. p. 75, n. 5.

(3) Heb. זוגות (Zugoth), Grk. . The term is applied only to the five pairs of leading teachers mentioned in our Mishnah (cf. Pe'ah II, 6); they were followed by the period of the Tannaim (v. Glos.). V. Ab. I, 4 (Sonc. ed., p. 3. n. 8); and supra p. 105, n. 6.

(4) [Var. lec. rightly omit: ‘R’].

(5) A euphemistic form of oath, meaning, ‘may I not live to see the consolation of Zion’. According to this explanation (given by Tosaf. and Jast.), Judah b. Tabbai and his colleague looked forward to fuller restoration of Israel's glory than was achieved in their day, v. Mak., Sonc. ed., p. 27, n. 7. Levy, however, trans: ‘May I not behold the eternal salvation (ewige Heil) etc.’; and Rashi (Mak. 5b, the alternative explanation), interprets thus: He swore by the life of his children; might he receive condolences on their passing (if etc.).

(6) Lit., ‘planning (evil)’. with reference to Deut. XIX, 19; hence the technical name for false witnesses whose evidence has been refuted by other witnesses testifying that the former were with them at another place at the time of the crime, v. Mak. 5a (Sonc. ed., p. 19f). If the Zomemim secure by their false testimony the conviction (but not the punishment) of an innocent person, the Rabbis held them to be amenable to the law of retaliation; v. Deut. XIX, 21 and Mak. 5b (Sonc. ed., p. 25).

(7) Lit., ‘in order to remove (the false opinion) from their heart’.

(8) V. the usual works of reference, and R. Leszynsky, Die Sadduzaer.

(9) V. Deut. XXV, 2-3 and Mak. 22af(Sonc. ed., p. 155f, and notes a.l).

(10) Each of the three punishments referred to is retaliatory, i.e., the Zomemim-witness had intended to secure a false conviction involving the said penalty. The flogging of Zomemim-witnesses, however, may not always represent the carrying out of the lex talionis: lashes were sometimes inflicted as a substitute penalty; cf. Mak. I, If.

(11) Who would correct him, if necessary.

(12) The text is idiomatically in the third person.

(13) I.e., Judah b. Tabbai.

(14) R. Aha's point is that the cessation of the voice on Judah b. Tabbai's death is no proof that it was his. For the phenomenon might be explained in this way: whilst Judah was alive, the wrongfully executed man cried out his protest from the grave; but when Judah b. Tabbai died he ceased to call either because he had been appeased by him, or because he had now been able to summon him before the Heavenly Tribunal.

(15) I.e., the Baraitha about Judah b. Tabbai.

(16) Cf. the principle invoked against the youthful Samuel in Ber. 31b (Whoever decides a point of law in the presence of his teacher deserves death). Cf. also J. Hag. II, 2 ed. 77d, where historical evidence is cited in favour of the view that Judah b. Tammai was Prince, and also in support of the opposite opinion (Tosaf.).

(17) So Rashi; but Tosaf. explains that he undertook never to join in voting against R. Simeon b. Shetah's opinion. According to either interpretation, the purpose of the answer is to show that Judah b. Tabbai could have been the Head of the Court, for his vow did not imply that he ever gave or proposed to give a decision in the presence of his superior, the Nasi.

(18) V. p. 94 n. 3

(19) שבות, lit., ‘rest, abstention from secular occupation’, hence, ‘an occupation, on the Sabbath and Festivals, forbidden by the Rabbis as being out of harmony with the celebrations of the day’ (Jast.) Cf. Ex. X, 3, 15.

(20) V. Bez. V, 2. By laying on the hands on an animal with pressure, one ‘makes use of it’, and therefore infringes the principle of Shebuth, just as much, as by riding on it, which is prohibited in the above Mishnah.

(21) I.e., Shebuth is clearly mentioned in the Mishnah; v. n. 3.

(22) Otherwise one might have thought that the importance of the religious act would override the prohibition of Shebuth.

(23) I.e., from the Mishnah; v. n.3

(24) V. Bez. 20a, where the opinion of R. Jose b. R. Judah is mentioned, viz., that the point of difference between Shammai and Hillel is whether obligatory peace-offerings require laying on of hands, the view of Shammai being that only freewill-offerings require it.

(25) Lit., ‘hear from it!’, i.e., from R. Johanan's statement, which makes Shebuth the ultimate point of dispute in the Mishnah.

(26) All should agree, therefore, to permit it on the holy day.

(27) Lev. I, 2-4.

(28) This, and not ‘R. Ishmael’, is the correct reading; cf. ‘Er. 96b, and R.H. 33a, etc.

(29) I.e., it is neither an obligatory precept (חובה) nor a meritorious religious act (מצוה), but a religiously indifferent act which women are permitted to perform for their own gratification.

(30) V. Mid. II,5.

(31) So that they should feel that they have had a share, like men, in the sacrificial rites of their offering.

(32) Laying on the hands with all one's strength is work (cf. p. 108, n. 3), which must not be performed with animals once they have been dedicated to the Temple. (Cf. Deut. XV, 19 and Bek. II, 2-3).

(33) Lit., ‘cause to float’.

(34) [MS. M.: ‘Thus he says not that the laying on of hands by women is deemed valid, since there was no laying on of hands at all, but (the object was) to gratify the women’. A reading which is preferable to that of cur. edd. V. D.S.]

(35) V. p. 108, n. 8.

(36) Similarly of the sides of a tree etc.; v. Shab. 154b-155a, and p. 108, n. 3.

(37) [Rashi reads simply: ‘Let the hands be laid on’, i.e., since the head on which the laying on of the hands is done is like the sides of the animal.]

(38) Actually, the laying on of the hands had to be performed on the side, i.e., of the head.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 17a

R. Ashi said: You may even say that it is permitted [to use] the sides,[1] but all that is connected with the back[2] is as the back.[3]

MISHNAH; BETH SHAMMAI SAY: PEACE-OFFERINGS[4] MAY BE BROUGHT [ON THE FESTIVAL-DAY],[5] AND THE HANDS NOT LAID THEREON;[6] BUT NOT BURNT-OFFERINGS![7] AND BETH HILLEL SAY: BOTH PEACE-OFFERINGS AND BURNT-OFFERINGS MAY BE BROUGHT,[8] AND THE HANDS LAID THEREON. IF THE FESTIVAL OF WEEKS[9] FELL ON A FRIDAY,[10] BETH SHAMMAI SAY: THE DAY FOR SLAUGHTER[11] , IS AFTER THE SABBATH. AND BETH HILLEL SAY: THE DAY FOR SLAUGHTER IS NOT AFTER THE SABBATH.[12] THEY AGREE, HOWEVER, THAT IF IT FALL ON THE SABBATH, THE DAY FOR SLAUGHTER IS AFTER THE SABBATH.[13] THE HIGH PRIEST DOES NOT [IN THAT CASE] PUT ON HIS [SPECIAL] ROBES,[14] AND MOURNING[15] AND FASTING[16] ARE PERMITTED, IN ORDER NOT TO CONFIRM THE VIEW OF THOSE WHO SAY THAT THE FESTIVAL OF WEEKS [INVARIABLY] FOLLOWS THE SABBATH.[17]

GEMARA. R. Eleazar said that R. Oshaia said: Whence is it to be deduced that [the offerings of] the Feast of Weeks can be made good throughout seven days? It is said: On the Feast of Unleavened Bread, and on the Feast of Weeks, and on the Feast of Tabernacles;[18] thus [Scripture] compares the Feast of Weeks with the Feast of Unleavened Bread: just as [the offerings of] the Feast of Unleavened Bread can be made good throughout seven days,[19] so too [the offerings of] the Feast of Weeks can be made good throughout seven days. But let me say that [Scripture] compares [the Feast of Weeks] to the Feast of Tabernacles; just as [the offerings of] the Feast of Tabernacles can be made good throughout eight days, so too [the offerings of] the Feast of Weeks can be made good throughout eight days! — The eighth day is a festival by itself.[20] [But] is not[21] the statement that the eighth is a festival true only in regard to[22] the Balloting [by the watches],[23] [the recital of the benediction of] the Season,[24] [the name of] the Festival,[25] [the prescribed number of] Sacrifices,[26] the [Temple] Song,[27] and the Blessing;[28] but regarding the making good [of the offerings] it makes good for the first [day of Tabernacles].[29] For we have learnt: He who did not bring his festal offering on the first festival day of the Feast, may bring it during the whole of the Festival even on the last festival day![30] If you take hold of much, you do not hold it; but if you take hold of a little, you hold it.[31] For what legal instruction, then, did the Divine Law write [again here] the Feast of Tabernacles?[32] — To compare it with the Feast of Unleavened Bread: just as the Feast of Unleavened Bread requires [the pilgrim] to stay the night [in Jerusalem], So too, the Feast of Tabernacles requires [the pilgrim] to stay the night.[33] And whence do we deduce it in the case of the former?

---

[1] As a matter of fact, R. Ashi holds the reverse view, i.e., he agrees with R. Papa (v. Shab. 155a); nevertheless he shows here that the conclusion cannot be drawn from R. Johanan's statement (Tosaf.).

[2] I.e.,is parallel with the back, like the head.

[3] Which may not be made use of on holy days.

[4] I.e., festal-offerings and offerings of rejoicings (v. pp. 2, n. 3 and 30. n. 1 and Pes. 119a).

[5] Because they are required for food (v. p. 104, n. 12). V. Bez. 19af; there Tosaf. points out, is the original and proper place of our passage, whereas here it is introduced only incidentally. The fuller discussion on the Mishnah found in Bez. further tends to show that the latter tractate was complete before Hag. (Tosaf.).

[6] V. p. 104 and nn. 11,12. Since Beth Shammai held that the slaughtering of the animal need not necessarily follow immediately upon the laying on of the hands, the latter rite could be performed on the eve of the Festival, and the former on the Festival-day itself.

[7] I.e., the pilgrimage burnt-offerings; v. p. 2, n. 1. By emphasizing the expression ‘unto you’ in Ex. XII, 16, it was deduced that only food for human needs could be prepared on the Festival, but not altar-food. Since burnt-offerings were wholly consumed on the altar and no part reserved for human consumption (as in the case of the sacrifices), they could not, according to the Shammaite view, be brought by individuals. The statutory public burnt-offerings, however, were permitted.

(8) For the reason v. Bez. 19a. The Hillelites agreed, however, that vow and freewill-offerings could not be offered up.

(9) Heb. עצרת, lit., '(sacred) assembly'; v. p. 27, n. 3.

(10) Lit., 'eve of Sabbath'.

(11) I.e., of the pilgrimage burnt-offerings, which, according to Beth Shammai, could not be offered up on the Festival day and a fortiori on the Sabbath; hence the offering was postponed till Sunday, for the Pentecost sacrifices could be offered throughout seven days in the same way as the Passover and Sukkoth offerings (v. pp. 111f and cf.pp.43f).

(12) But on the Festival day. Var. lec., 'it has no day for slaughter' (omitting the words, 'after the Sabbath'); v. p. 113, n. 6.

(13) No private offering, except the Passover sacrifice, could override the Sabbath.

(14) According to Rashi, this refers to his private festival garments worn by him at home and in the street; when people would see the High Priest in his ordinary clothes, they would realize that the day was not, as the Sadducees maintained (v. infra, n. 5) a holy day. But Tosaf. argues that the reference is to the High Priest's eight sacerdotal vestments, which he wore on Festivals when he would officiate at the Temple service (v. Yoma VII, 5)' and adduces the J.T. in support of this view.

(15) Heb. הספד: for its exact signification v. S. Krauss, T.A. II, p. 68; cf. also Jast. and Levy, s.v.

(16) Both mourning and fasting are prohibited on a festival-day.

(17) I.e., the Sadducees, who understood the word 'Sabbath' in Lev. XXIII, 11, 15 literally, and hence maintained that Pentecost must always fall on a Sunday, for it is written: 'And ye shalt count unto you from the morrow after the Sabbath . . . even unto the morrow after the seventh week shall ye number fifty days' (Lev. XXIII, 15-16). But the Pharisees explained the word 'Sabbath' to mean 'day of rest', i.e., 'holy day' (cf. Lev. XXIII, 32, 39; Ibn Ezra to v. 11 (ibid.) and Men. 65a), and referred it to the first festival day of Passover. This same controversy formed part of the dispute between the Rabbanites and the Karaites some eight hundred years later.

(18) Deut. XVI, 16.

(19) Cf. pp. 43f.

(20) I.e., it does not form part of the Feast of Sukkoth.

(21) Lit., 'say'.

(22) The following six points of difference are expressed in the original by the abbreviation פז"ר קש"ב, formed out of the initials of the Hebrew words; v. fol. nn.

(23) פיים; the ballot or allotment in regard to the Temple services decided by a show of fingers on the part of the priests present; cf. Yoma II, 1f. Throughout the seven days of Sukkoth, the public sacrifices were offered up by the priest-watches according to rota; but on the eighth day the offerings were allotted by ballot. (V. Suk. 55b).

(24) זמן (cf. Eccl. III, 1): the blessing at the end of the benediction recited on the entrance of a festival, which refers to the return of the festival season, viz., 'Blessed art Thou, O Lord our God, King of the Universe, Who hast kept us alive, sustained us, and enabled us to reach this season'. The recital of this blessing on the eighth day of Sukkoth distinguishes it as an independent festival from the other days of Tabernacles. On the last day of Passover, on the other hand, it is not said, because the seventh day is regarded as an integral part of the Feast of unleavened Bread. V. also n. 6.

(25) רגל 'pilgrimage-festival'. Three explanations of the meaning of the term have been suggested (v. Tosaf. a.I.). Rashi: It is a distinct festival in as much as it enjoys a special name, viz., Shemini 'Azereth and not Sukkoth. R. Tam: It is a separate festival in the sense that it requires the pilgrim to spend the night following its termination in Jerusalem (Suk. 47a). R. Hananel: It is a separate festival in regard to the thirty days of semi-mourning for the dead. If the period of mourning began on the eve of Sukkoth, it is able to annul seven days out of the thirty in addition to the fourteen cancelled by the end of the first seven days of Tabernacles (cf. M.K. 24a).

(26) קרבן V. Num. XXIX, 12-38.

(27) שיר: Tosaf. (s. v. פז"ר) suggests that Ps. XII (note the caption) was said (cf. Sof. XIX and J.T.); and whereas the Psalms allocated for the different weekdays of Tabernacles were not completed each day but spread over two days (v. Suk. 55a), on the eighth day the psalm was completed.

(28) ברכה: according to Rashi, the people blessed the king on the eighth day, as it is written I Kings VIII, 66; according to R. Tam (l.c.) this refers to the special mention of Shemini 'Azereth in the Grace after meals and in the 'Amidah (v. Glos.); cf. Suk. 47a.

(29) I.e., Shemini ‘Azereth is a continuation of Sukkoth, and if the private offerings due on the first could not be brought till the eighth day, they may still be offered up then.

(30) V. p. 43. Since in regard to making good the offerings the eighth day is an essential part of Sukkoth, then the question (p. 111). Why not compare Pentecost with Sukkoth instead of Passover, still stands.

(31) A popular proverb meaning that one can make sure of a little, but not of much, i.e., when one is confronted, as in our case, with two possibilities, one greater than the other, the smaller should be chosen for safety, for it is bound to be right in so far as it is included in the greater: thus we cannot go wrong by comparing Pentecost with the seven days of Passover, but we may err in comparing it with the eight of Tabernacles. For the proverb cf. ‘every one who adds, lessens’ (Talmud) and the French, ‘qui trop embrasse mal etreint’.

(32) If it is not to teach us about Pentecost, It seems superfluous, for it has already been mentioned elsewhere; and it is a rule that nothing in the Torah is redundant.

(33) I.e., of the weekday of the Festival.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 17b

— It is written: And thou shalt turn in the morning, and go into thy tents.[1]

We have learnt: IF THE FEAST OF WEEKS FALL ON A FRIDAY, BETH SHAMMAI SAY: THE DAY FOR SLAUGHTER IS AFTER THE SABBATH. AND BETH HILLEL SAY: IT HAS NO DAY FOR SLAUGHTER. Surely [this means] that it has no day for slaughter at all![2] — No, [it means] that it does not require a [special] day for slaughter.[3] But what then does it teach us, that we can offer up [the sacrifice] on its proper day?[4] Behold they already dispute thereon once; for we have learnt: Beth Shammai say: Peace-offerings may be brought [on the Festival-day] and the hands not laid thereon; but not burnt-offerings. And Beth Hillel say: Both peace-offerings and burnt-offerings may be brought, and the hands laid thereon![5] — [Both statements are] required. For if [the Mishnah] had taught us [only that they differ] in the [latter] case,[6] [I might have thought] in that case [only] Beth Shammai hold this view, because it is possible [to bring the offerings] on the following day: but in the [former] case,[7] I might have thought that they agreed with Beth Hillel.[8] And if [the Mishnah] had taught us [only that they differ] in the [former] case, [I might have thought] in this case [only] Beth Hillel hold this view, because it is not possible [to bring the offering] on the following day; but in the [latter] case, I might have thought that they agree with Beth Shammai.[9] [Therefore both statements are] required.

Come and hear: He who does not bring his festal-offering during the seven days of Passover, or the eight days of Tabernacles, or on the first[10] festival-day of the Feast of Weeks, can no longer bring his offering. This must surely mean on the festival-day [proper] of the Feast of Weeks![11] — No, [it means] on the day for the slaughter.[12] If so, let us conclude therefrom that there is [only] one day for slaughter![13] — Read, ‘on the days for slaughter’[14]

Come and hear: Rabbah b. Samuel learnt: Count the days,[15] and sanctify the New Moon Day;[16] Count the days,[17] and sanctity the Feast of Weeks.[18] Just as the New Moon Festival belongs to its class [of days] by which it is determined,[19] so the Feast of Weeks belongs to its class[20] by which it is determined. Surely [then the Feast of Weeks] is compared with the New Moon Festival because just as [the offerings of] the New Moon Festival [are to brought] on one day, so too [the offerings of] the Feast of Weeks [are to be brought] on one day![21] — Raba answered: How can you think so? Do we then count for the Feast of Weeks [only] the days and not the weeks? Behold Abaye said: It is a precept to count the days,[22] for it is written: Ye shall number fifty days;[23] and it is a precept to count the weeks,[24] for it is written: Seven weeks shalt thou number unto thee.[25] Furthermore, it is written: The Feast of Weeks.[26]

The School of R. Eleazar b. Jacob taught:[27] Scripture says: And ye shall make proclamation,[28] and And when ye reap.[29] Which is the Feast on which you proclaim and reap? You must say: It is the Feast of Weeks.[30] [Now] when? Should one say on the Festival-day [itself], is reaping then permitted on the Festival-day! It must refer, therefore, to [the period after the Feast] when the offerings can still be made good.[31]

Now although the statement of R. Eleazar in the name of R. Oshaia has been quoted,[32] [the teaching] of R. Eliezer b. Jacob is also required. For if we had [only] the statement of R. Eleazar in the name of R. Oshaia, I might say: Just as [in the period] during which the offering can be made good in the case of the Feast of Unleavened Bread, it is forbidden to do work,[33] so too [in the period] during which the offering can be made good in the case of the Feast of Weeks, it is forbidden to do work; therefore we are told the teaching of R. Eliezer b. Jacob. And if we had [only] the teaching of R. Eliezer b. Jacob

---

(1) Deut. XVI, 7. But the preceding night must be spent in Jerusalem.

(2) I.e.,if the sacrifice was not offered up on the festival-day. it cannot be made good later. This contradicts R. Oshaia's statement, p. 111.

(3) Since the offering can be brought on the festival-day; but actually the offering can be made good throughout seven days, as R. Oshaia taught.

(4) I.e., on the festival itself, that is, according to Beth Hillel.

(5) In view of this statement of the point at issue between Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel at the beginning of the Mishnah, why does the Mishnah teach us later that they differ in regard to Pentecost which fell on a Friday, if the point of dispute, according to the interpretation just given, is exactly the same?

(6) I.e., where a Festival does not fall on a Friday.

(7) I.e., where Pentecost falls on a Friday.

(8) Because, since the sacrifice could not be offered up the following day, which was the Sabbath, and consequently would have to be left over till the Sunday, there was the danger that the pilgrim might neglect to bring it altogether.

(9) Because it was possible to bring the offering the following day, and negligence, therefore, need not be feared.

(10) [Omitted in MS.M.]

(11) Thus the offerings of Pentecost cannot be made good after the festival, which refutes R. Oshaia.

(12) The festival sacrifices, therefore, can be made good on the day for slaughter; thus the objection against R. Oshaia's statement falls away.

(13) Whereas R. Oshaia argued that the Pentecost sacrifices could be made good throughout seven days.

(14) The plural could include seven days.

(15) The Torah nowhere actually enjoins the counting of the days of each month: the expression is an instance of Midrashic licence. The Hebrew months, being lunar, vary in length from twenty-nine to thirty days (v. J.E. s. Calendar).

(16) By the offering of ‘additional sacrifices’ (v. Num. XXVIII, 11-15).

(17) I.e., fifty, v. infra, n. 8.

(18) By offering the festival sacrifices.

(19) Lit., ‘belongs to its numbered ones, i.e., it is determined by numbering units of days, on one of which it falls.

(20) I.e., the period during which the festival sacrifices can be brought is equal to the class or unit by which it is determined. If the latter is a week, the sacrificial-period is a week; if it is a day, the offering-period is also a day; cf.R.H., Sonc.ed., p. 14, nn. 10 and 11.

(21) This would contradict the view that the Pentecost sacrifices can be made good the whole week.

(22) In order that we may sanctify the Feast of Weeks on the fiftieth day (Tosaf.).

(23) Lev. XXIII, 16.

(24) To teach us that the period in which the festival sacrifices may be made good is a full week.

(25) Deut. XVI, 9.

(26) Ibid. v. 10.

(27) I.e., derived the post-festal sacrificial period of the Feast of Weeks in the following way.

(28) Lev. XXIII, 21. I.e., proclaim a holy convocation or festival.

(29) Ibid, v. 22.

(30) To which the Biblical passage refers.

(31) Which supports R. Oshaia.

(32) V. p. 111.
(33) For the prohibition of work during the mid-festival period, v. infra and pp. 117f.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 18a

, I would not know how many [days];[1] therefore we are told the statement of R. Eleazar In the name of R. Oshaia.

Resh Lakish said: [It is written]: And the Feast of Harvest.[2] Which is the Feast on which you feast and harvest? You must say: It is the Feast of Weeks. [Now] when? Should one say on the festival-day [itself]? Is reaping then permitted on the festival-day? It must refer, therefore, to [the period after the Feast] when the offerings can still be made good. Said R. Johanan [to him]: Now accordingly, [since it is written], the Feast of Ingathering[3] [one can likewise argue thus]: ‘Which is the Feast on which there is ingathering? You must say: It is the Feast of Tabernacles. When? Should one say on the festival-day [itself]. is work then permitted on a festival-day! It must refer, therefore, to the mid-festival days’.[4] But is [work] then permitted on the mid-festival days? It must mean, therefore, the Feast that comes at the season of ingathering. Similarly here [it means] the Feast that comes at the season of reaping.[5]

It follows therefore that both[6] are of the opinion that on the mid-festival days it is forbidden to do work. Whence is this derived? — For our Rabbis taught: The Feast of Unleavened Bread shalt thou keep; seven days.[7] This teaches concerning the mid-festival days that work thereon is forbidden:[8] this is the view of R. Josiah. R. Jonathan says: This is unnecessary.[9] [It can be proved by] an argument a minore ad majus. If on the first and seventh days, which have no sanctity[10] before or after them, work is forbidden, how much more so is it right that work should be forbidden on the mid-festival days, which have sanctity before and after them. — But the six working days[11] disprove[12] [this argument] for they have sanctity[13] before them and after them, and yet work thereon is permitted! — [No], whereas [this applies] to the six working days which have no additional sacrifice, can you say [the same] of the mid-festival days which have an additional sacrifice?[14] — But the New Moon Day disproves this [argument]; for it has additional sacrifices, and yet work thereon is permitted! — [No], whereas [this applies] to the New Moon Day which is not called a ‘holy convocation’, can you say [the same] of the mid-festival days which are called ‘holy convocation’?[15] Since it is called ‘holy convocation’ it is only right that work thereon should be forbidden.

Another [Baraitha] taught: Ye shall do no matter of servile work[16] — this teaches that it is forbidden to do work on mid-festival days:[17] this is the view of R. Jose the Galilean. R. Akiba says: This is unnecessary. It is said: These are the appointed seasons of the Lord, etc.[18] Whereof does the verse speak? If of the first day, behold it has already been said: Solemn rest.[19] If of the seventh day,[20] behold, it has already been said: Solemn rest.[21] The verse, therefore, must speak only of the mid-festival days, to teach thee that it is forbidden to do work thereon.

Another [Baraitha] taught: Six days thou shalt eat unleavened bread; and on the seventh day shall be restraint [of work][22] unto to the Lord.[23] Just as the seventh day is under restraint [in respect of work],[24] so the six days are under restraint [in respect of work] — If [you should think that] just as the seventh day is under restraint in respect of all manner of work, so the six days are under restraint in respect of all manner of work; therefore Scripture teaches: ‘And on the seventh day shall be restraint [of work]’ — only the seventh day is under restraint in respect of all manner of work, but the six days are not under restraint in respect of all manner of work. Thus Scripture left it to the Sages[25] to tell you on which day [work] is forbidden, and on which day it is permitted;[26] which manner of work is forbidden, and which is permitted.[27]

AND MOURNING AND FASTING ARE PERMITTED, IN ORDER NOT TO CONFIRM THE VIEW OF THOSE WHO SAY THAT THE FESTIVAL OF WEEKS [INVARIABLY] FOLLOWS THE SABBATH: But behold it is taught:[28] It happened that Alexa[29] died at Lod, and all Israel assembled to mourn for him, but R. Tarfon did not permit them, because it was the festival-day of the Feast of Weeks. [Now] can you possibly suppose that it was [actually] the festival day? How could they come on the festival-day? You must say, therefore, because it was the day for slaughter![30] — There is no contradiction: in the one case,[31] the festival-day [of the Feast of Weeks] fell after the Sabbath;[32] in the other case,[33] the festival-day fell on the Sabbath.[34]

---

(1) Sc. are allowed for making good the offerings of the Feast of Weeks.

(2) Ex. XXIII, 16.

(3) Ibid. and XXXIV, 22.

(4) Lit., ‘the profane part of the festival’, i.e., the six half-festive days between the first day of Tabernacles, which is a festival-day proper, and the Eighth Day of Solemn Assembly, which is likewise a festival-day. The same term applies also to the five intermediate days of Passover. This period would correspond to that after the Feast of Weeks when the offerings can still be made good.

(5) And not, as Resh Lakish would have it, a festival time at which feasting and reaping are combined.

(6) Since Resh Lakish does not object to R. Johanan's statement regarding the prohibition of work on the mid-festival days, it follows that he must agree.

(7) Ex. XXIII, 15.

(8) ‘Keep’ is taken invariably to imply prohibition of work. By connecting the words ‘seven days’ with the verb ‘keep’, the prohibition is extended to the mid-festival days.

(9) I.e.,the verse is not needed for the proof.

(10) I.e., holy days.

(11) Lit., ‘six days of the beginning of (creation)’; cf Ex. XX, 9-11.

(12) Lit., ‘prove’ sc. the contrary.

(13) I.e., the Sabbath.

(14) V. Num. XXVIII, 19-24, and XXIX, 13-16.

(15) V. Lev. XXIII, and Num. XXVIII and XXIX. ‘Holy’ implies the prohibition of work.

(16) Lev. XXIII, 7.

(17) This teaching is deduced by connecting the end of v. 7 with the words ‘seven days’ in the following verse.

(18) Ibid. v. 4 and 37.

(19) Lev. XXIII, v. 39.

(20) V. next note. The reading should be emended to the ‘eighth day’ (v. R. Hananel a.I.), for nowhere is the term ‘solemn rest’ applied to the seventh day of a festival.

(21) Ibid.

(22) E.V. ‘a solemn assembly’!

(23) Deut. XVI, 8.

(24) For the verse concludes: ‘Thou shalt do no work therein’.

(25) I.e., since the verse indicates only that the prohibition of work does not apply uniformly to all the days of the festival, it must be the intention of Scripture to let the Sages decide how the prohibition did apply.

(26) I. e., which day is a festival day proper, and which only a mid-festival day. For the fixing of the calendar, V. J.E. vol. III, pp. 498f.

(27) I.e., on mid-festival days: work which could not be postponed without incurring irretrievable loss was permitted.

(28) This is the correct reading viz.,והתניא (‘it is taught’ by the Tannaim), not והאיתמר (‘it is stated’ by the Amoriam).

(29) Abbreviated form of the name Alexander. (12) Lydda in South Palestine (Roman name, Diospolis).

(30) Thus R. Tarfon forbade mourning on the slaughtering day, which contradicts the Mishnah.

(31) I.e., the case of Alexa.

(32) I.e., in the middle of the week, so that the slaughtering day was not on a Sunday. Mourning, therefore, was prohibited in accordance with regular Jewish law.

(33) I.e., that of the Mishnah.

(34) Consequently the slaughtering day was on a Sunday, and, therefore, as a demonstration against the erroneous view of the Sadducees, the ordinary rule prohibiting mourning on the slaughtering day was waived.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 18b

MISHNAH. THE HANDS HAVE TO BE RINSED[1] FOR [EATING] UNCONSECRATED [FOOD],[2] AND [SECOND] TITHE,[3] AND FOR TERUMAH [HEAVE-OFFERING];[4] BUT FOR HALLOWED THINGS[5] [THE HANDS] HAVE TO BE IMMERSED.[6] IN REGARD TO THE [WATER OF] PURIFICATION,[7] IF ONE'S HANDS BECAME DEFILED, ONE'S [WHOLE] BODY IS DEEMED DEFILED.[8] IF ONE BATHED[9] FOR UNCONSECRATED [FOOD], AND INTENDED TO BE RENDERED FIT SOLELY[10] FOR UNCONSECRATED [FOOD], ONE IS PROHIBITED FROM [PARTAKING OF SECOND] TITHE.[11] IF ONE BATHED FOR [SECOND] TITHE, AND INTENDED TO BE RENDERED FIT SOLELY FOR [SECOND] TITHE, ONE IS PROHIBITED FROM [PARTAKING OF] TERUMAH. IF ONE BATHED FOR TERUMAH, AND INTENDED TO BE RENDERED FIT SOLELY FOR TERUMAH, ONE IS PROHIBITED FROM [PARTAKING OF] HALLOWED THINGS. IF ONE BATHED FOR HALLOWED THINGS, AND INTENDED TO BE RENDERED FIT SOLELY FOR HALLOWED THINGS ONE IS PROHIBITED FROM [TOUCHING THE WATERS OF] PURIFICATION. IF ONE BATHED FOR SOMETHING POSSESSING A STRICTER [DEGREE OF SANCTITY], ONE IS PERMITTED [TO HAVE CONTACT WITH] SOMETHING POSSESSING A LIGHTER [DEGREE OF SANCTITY]. IF ONE BATHED BUT WITHOUT SPECIAL INTENTION,[12] IT IS AS THOUGH ONE HAD NOT BATHED. THE GARMENTS OF AN AM HA-AREZ[13] POSSESS MIDRAS[14] -UNCLEANNESS FOR PHARISEES;[15] THE GARMENTS OF PHARISEES POSSESS MIDRAS-UNCLEANNESS FOR THOSE WHO EAT TERUMAH; THE GARMENTS OF THOSE WHO EAT TERUMAH POSSESS MIDRAS-UNCLEANNESS FOR [THOSE WHO EAT] HALLOWED THINGS; THE GARMENTS OF [THOSE it yet does not render the person fit to eat food possessing any degree of sanctity. Similarly, in the cases that follow, intention for one degree of sanctity does not enable one to partake of food having a higher degree of sanctity. WHO EAT] HALLOWED THINGS POSSESS MIDRAS — UNCLEANNESS FOR [THOSE WHO OCCUPY THEMSELVES WITH THE WATERS OF] PURIFICATION. JOSE B. JO'EZER[16] WAS THE MOST PIOUS IN THE PRIESTHOOD, YET HIS APRON WAS [CONSIDERED TO POSSESS] MIDRAS-UNCLEANNESS FOR [THOSE WHO ATE] HALLOWED THINGS. JOHANAN B. GUDGADA USED ALL HIS LIFE TO EAT [UNCONSECRATED FOOD] IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE PURITY REQUIRED FOR HALLOWED THINGS, YET HIS APRON WAS [CONSIDERED TO POSSESS] MIDRAS-UNCLEANNESS FOR [THOSE WHO OCCUPIED THEMSELVES WITH THE WATER OF] PURIFICATION.

GEMARA. Do unconsecrated food and [Second] Tithe then require rinsing of the hands? Now we can show this to conflict with [the following Mishnah]: For terumah and first fruits[17] one may incur the penalty of death,[18] or [a fine of] an [added] fifth,[19] and they are prohibited to non-priests[20] and they are the property of the priest,[21] and are neutralized in one hundred and one [parts],[22] and require rinsing of the hands,[23] and sunset;[24] these [rules] apply to terumah and first fruits but not to [Second] Tithe.[25] How much less then to unconsecrated food. Thus there is a contradiction in regard to [Second] Tithe and a contradiction also in regard to unconsecrated food! Granted that in regard to [Second] Tithe [it can be shown that] there is no contradiction: the one [Mishnah][26] is according to R. Meir and the other is according to the Rabbis. For we have learnt: Whosoever requires immersion by enactment of the Scribes[27] defiles hallowed things[28] and invalidates terumah,[29] but is permitted[30] [to eat] unconsecrated food and [Second] Tithe — this is the view of R. Meir; but the Sages prohibit in the case of [Second] Tithe. In regard to unconsecrated food, however, there is a contradiction! — There is no contradiction: the one case[31] refers to eating [unconsecrated food] and the other to touching [it]. To this R. Shimi b. Ashi demurred: The Rabbis differ from R. Meir only in regard to the eating of [Second] Tithe, but in regard to the touching of [Second] Tithe and the eating of unconsecrated food they do not differ![32] — Both [Mishnahs], therefore, must refer to eating; but there is no contradiction: the one[33] refers to the eating of bread, the other[34] refers to the eating of fruit. For R. Nahman said: Whosoever rinses his hands for fruit belongs to the haughty of spirit.[35]

Our Rabbis taught: He who raises his hands, if he did so with intention;[36] his hands are [levitically] clean; but if he did so without intention, his hands are unclean. Similarly one who bathes[37] his hands, if he did so with intention, his hands are clean, but if he did so without intention his hands are unclean. — But behold it is taught: Whether he did it with intention or without intention, his hands are clean! — R. Nahman answered: There is no contradiction: the one [statement][38] refers to unconsecrated food,

---

(1) I.e., in the manner prescribed in Yad. I, 1. Lit., ‘take for the hands’, an elliptical phrase for ‘take water for the hands’.

(2) As opposed to tithe etc.; cf. p. 35, n. 6.

(3) V. p. 35, n. 8.

(4) V. Glos.

(5) I.e., such as are offered in the Temple, and if not wholly devoted to the altar, have to be eaten in the Temple Court.

(6) I.e., in a valid immersion pool (Mikweh) containing not less than forty se'ahs of undrawn water (cf. Trac. Mikwa'oth).

(7) V. Num. VIII, 7 (A.V. ‘purifying’; R.V. ‘expiation’) and ibid. XIX.

(8) In regard to lesser degrees of sanctity, it is possible for the hands only to become defiled e.g., by touching unclean food etc.; but in this case the whole body would require ritual immersion.

(9) V. n. 11.

(10) The clause, ‘and intended . . . solely’ translates only one Heb. word הוחזק , denom. of חזקה (v. Dictionaries) = lit., ‘presumed or considered himself (to have taken the ritual bath) etc.’

(11) Actually, unconsecrated food does not require ritual immersion, unless one desires to eat it in purity, and even so the immersion does not require intention’; but even if there is definite intention to eat ordinary food in purity,

(12) I.e., merely for the sake of physical cleanliness: such an immersion does not fit one for any sanctified food.

(13) Lit., ‘people of the land’, hence generally ‘illiterate, ignorant’, (opp. to Talmid Hakam1, ‘a disciple of the wise’). Here it is used in a technical sense, and refers to one who is ignorant of the Torah and fails to observe the laws of purity and impurity, and is not scrupulous in setting aside the tithes from his produce (opp. to Haber, ‘an associate’, who strictly observes the Law). V. Glos.

(14) Lit., ‘place of treading or pressure’, denotes levitical impurity arising in an object from contact with gonorrhoeist who sits, lies, rides upon or leans against it; in general= אב הטומאה, the first degree of impurity. V. Lev. XII, 2; XV, 2-25; and cf. Nid. VI, 3 with explan. ibid. 49b. The reason for this Rabbinic enactment is the fear that the wife of the Am ha-arez may have sat on the garments when she was in a menstruous condition. V. Hul. 35 (and infra 19b. Tosaf. s. בגדי).

(15) Those who strictly observe the Mosaic Law and the Rabbinic regulations, particularly in regard to tithing and purity. To their body belong also the Haberim (Associates); v. Mishnah Dem. II, 3, and Moore III, 26. For further information, v. J.E. vol. IX, pp. 661f, and R. T. Herford's ‘The Pharisees’.

(16) V. Aboth I, 4 (Sonc. ed., p. 3, nn. 4-6).

(17) Deut. XXVI, 1ff. For the analogy between terumah and first fruits v. Mak. 17a (Sonc. ed., pp. 121-2).

(18) I.e., if a non-priest eats thereof of set purpose; v. Lev. XXII, 9, 10, the context of which refers particularly to terumah. Cf. also Hul. I, 9.

(19) I.e., if a non-priest eats thereof in error he must not only pay the value of the amount consumed but must also add thereto a fifth of the value by way of fine; v. ibid. v. 14. This fifth is not analogous to the added fifth that must be paid in redeeming Second Tithe in order that the produce may be eaten outside Jerusalem and the redemption money spent in food and drink in Jerusalem: hence the Mishnah excludes Second Tithe from all these rules.

(20) I.e., by a prohibitory law of the Torah.

(21) I.e., he may sell them and purchase with the money whatever he desires, e.g., land, slaves, unclean animals etc.; or he may betroth a woman therewith.

(22) E.g., if one se'ah of terumah fell into one hundred se'ahs of unconsecrated produce making one hundred and one in all, any one se'ah may be taken out and given to a priest and the rest is permitted to a non-priest. But if there are not at least one hundred se'ahs of terumah the whole produce becomes prohibited to non-priests.
(23) The hands are considered, by Rabbinic enactment, to suffer levitical impurity in the second degree, and therefore, unless washed, can invalidate terumah by defiling it with impurity in the third degree.
(24) If a priest became unclean through some defilement mentioned in the Torah, he not only requires ritual immersion, but he must also wait till sunset before he may partake of terumah. V. Yeb. 74b.
(25) Here the Mishnah ends, excluding explicitly from the above rules, which include the rinsing of the hands, Second Tithe and also by obvious implication — as the Gemara goes on to point out — ordinary food.
(26) I.e., the latter.
(27) I.e., although ritually clean from the point of view of the Biblical law. This category includes those who eat or drink what is unclean; vessels that have touched unclean liquids; and the hands: these are all unclean in the second degree. V. Zab. V, 12 and Shab. 14b.
(28) Being impure in the second degree he is able to impart impurity to hallowed things in the third degree: in turn the hallowed things are capable of disqualifying in the fourth degree.
(29) The terumah becomes itself disqualified but cannot disqualify anything else.
(30) This positive expression (as opposed to the negative formula ‘but does not disqualify’) implies permission to eat as well as touch,
(31) I.e., our Mishnah, which requires rinsing of the hands for ordinary food.
(32) V. supra, n. 6; similarly the phrase, ‘but the Sages prohibit’, refers only to eating Second Tithe but not to touching it. But regarding unconsecrated food there is no dispute: even the Sages agree that it may be eaten without rinsing of the hands. The original question, therefore, remains: the Mishnahs contradict one another!
(33) Our own Mishnah, which requires rinsing of the hands for unconsecrated food.
(34) The second Mishnah quoted, which excepts Second Tithe (and consequently unconsecrated food) from rinsing of the hands and the other regulations applying to terumah and first fruits.
(35) I.e.,is affectedly or ostentatiously scrupulous.
(36) Cf. our Mishnah p. 120, n. 1.
(37) I.e., in a ritual bath containing at least forty se'ahs of water: this represents a higher degree of purification.
(38) I.e., the second Baraitha, which does not require intention.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 19a

the other to [Second] Tithe. — And whence do you infer that unconsecrated food does not require intention?[1] — For we have learnt: If a wave was sundered [from the sea] and contained forty se'ahs[2] and it fell upon a person or upon vessels [that were unclean], they become clean. Thus a person is likened to vessels: just as vessels have no intention[3] so too [the Mishnah] speaks of a person who had no intention. But why so? Perhaps we are dealing with a case where one was sitting and waiting for the wave to become sundered, and so vessels are likened to a person; just as a person is capable of intention, so too in the case of the vessels one had intention with regard to them! And should you say: If it is a case of one who sits and waits [for the wave to be sundered], what need is there to teach it?[4] [I will answer]: You might have thought it should be prohibited, as a preventive measure, [to bathe in a detached wave] lest one come to battle in a torrent of rainwater,[5] or that we ought to prohibit, as a preventive measure, [immersion in] the ends[6] [of the wave] on account of the crest,[7] therefore [the Mishnah] teaches us that we make no such prohibition. — (And whence do you infer that one may not immerse [vessels] in the crest [of the wave]? — For it is taught: One may immerse [vessels] in the ends [of the wave] but not in the crest, because one may not immerse in the air.)[8] — Rather [is it[9] to be inferred] from that which we have learnt: If produce fell into a channel of water, and one whose hands were unclean put out [his hands] and took it, his hands became clean[10] and [the law], if [water] be put on,[11] does not apply to the produce;[12] but if [he did so] in order that[13] his hands should be rinsed, his hands become clean, but [the law], ‘If [water] be put on’, applies to the produce.[14]

Rabbah[15] put an objection to R. Nahman: IF ONE BATHED FOR UNCONSECRATED [FOOD], AND INTENDED TO BE RENDERED FIT SOLELY FOR UNCONSECRATED [FOOD], ONE IS PROHIBITED FROM [PARTAKING OF SECOND] TITHE.[16] [Thus] if one intended to be rendered fit [therefor], One may [eat unconsecrated food], but if one did not intend to be rendered fit [therefor], one may not [eat unconsecrated food]![17] — This is the meaning: Even though one had intention for unconsecrated, one is still prohibited from [partaking of Second] Tithe.[18]

He put [another] objection to him: IF ONE BATHED, BUT WITHOUT SPECIAL INTENTION, IT IS AS THOUGH ONE HAD NOT BATHED. Surely it means that he is as though he had not bathed at all![19] — No, [it means that] he is as though he had not bathed for [Second] Tithe, but did bathe for unconsecrated food. He[20] thought [at first] that he[21] was merely putting him off,[22] [but] he went forth, examined [the matter] and found that it is taught: If one bathed, but without special intention, one is prohibited [from partaking of Second] Tithe, but one is permitted [to partake of] unconsecrated [food].

R. Eleazar said: If a man bathed and came up,[23] he may intend to be rendered fit for whatever he pleases. An objection was raised: If he still has one foot in the water, and he had intended to be rendered fit for something of lesser [sanctity], he may intend to be rendered fit for something of higher [sanctity]; but once he has come up he can no longer have intention. Surely [it means that] he can no longer have any intention at all![24] — No, [it means that] if he still [has one foot in the water] even though he intended to render himself fit [for a lesser degree of sanctity], he may still intend to render himself [fit for a higher degree of sanctity];[25] but once he has come up, if he had no intention to be rendered fit [for anything at all], he may now intend to be rendered fit, but if he had intention to be rendered fit [for any particular degree of sanctity] he may no longer intend to be rendered fit [for any higher degree of sanctity].[26] — Who is the author of the teaching: ‘If he still has one foot in the water etc.’?[27] R. Pedath said: It is according to R. Judah. For we have learnt: If an immersion pool was measured and found to contain exactly forty se'ahs [of water], and two persons went down and immersed themselves therein one after the other, the first person is clean, but the second is unclean.[28] R. Judah said: If the feet of the first person were [still] touching the water [when the second person immersed himself] the second person is also clean.[29] R. Nahman said that Rabbi b. Abbuha said: The dispute[30] concerns [only] the Rabbinical degrees [of purity],[31] but in a case of purification from [real] uncleanness,[32] all would agree that the second person remains unclean. This then is in agreement with the view of R. Pedath.[33] Another version is: R. Nahman said that Rabbi b. Abbuha said: The dispute concerns purification from [real] uncleanness, but in regard to the Rabbinical degrees [of purity], all would agree that the second person too becomes clean. Thus he differs from the view of R. Pedath.[34]

‘Ulla said: I asked R. Johanan: According to R. Judah, is it permissible to immerse needles and hooks in the [wet] head of the first [bather]?[35] Does R. Judah accept [only] the principle of connecting downward,[36] but not of connecting upward;[37] or, perhaps, R. Judah accepts the principle of connecting upward as well? — He replied: Ye have learnt it; If a wady has three depressions, one at the top, one at the bottom and one in the middle, the one at the top and the one at the bottom containing twenty se'ahs each and the middle one forty se'ahs, and a torrent of rainwater passes between them,[38] R. Judah says: Meir used to say: One may immerse in the top one.[39]

---

(1) On immersion.

(2) The minimum quantity required for ritual immersion. For se'ah, v. Glos.

(3) On being immersed.

(4) I.e., since the immersion was intentional, the case is ritually quite normal and requires no specific mention.

(5) Rashi gives two reasons for the unsuitability of a torrent of rainwater, containing forty se'ahs, for ritual immersion; (a) since the water flows down a steep incline, the forty se'ahs cannot be regarded as being in one place or connected (v. Toh. VIII, 9), and consequently the bather does not immerse himself in forty se'ahs of water at one and the same time;

(b) rain-water can be used for immersion only in the form of a stagnant pool but not when it forms a flowing current (v. Supra to Lev. XI, 36).

(6) Lit., ‘heads’ i.e., the lower part of the wave as it reaches the ground.

(7) Lit., ‘arches, bows’ i.e., caps of a wave, billow-crests, surf.

(8) Though the ends of the wave have touched the ground, the crest of the wave is regarded as still being suspended in the air, and consequently may not be used for immersion, for no immersion may take place in the air.

(9) That no intention is required for unconsecrated food.

(10) Though the person's intention was solely to take out the produce and not to purify the hands. Thus it is seen that unconsecrated food does not require intention.

(11) Lev. XI, 38.

(12) I.e., the produce does not become, through contact with the water, susceptible to defilement in accordance with law referred to in the verse. Only when the owner is pleased with the wetting of the produce does it become susceptible to defilement (v. Kid. 59b), which is not the case here. The Mishnah text (Maksh. IV, 7) reads ‘are clean’ for ‘the law, "If water be put on ",does not apply to the produce’.

(13) The Mishnah text reads: ‘he purposed, intended’ for ‘in order that’.

(14) Since he took the produce out of the water with the purpose of cleansing his hands, it is clear that he is pleased with the wetting of the produce, for he benefits by it; consequently, the produce becomes susceptible henceforward to defilement.

(15) Var. lec. Raba.

(16) The Hebrew here is identical with the Mishnayoth version, which differs very slightly from our own Mishnah reading.

(17) This shows, apparently, that intention is required even for unconsecrated food.

(18) But actually unconsecrated food does not require intention.

(19) I.e., he is not rendered fit even for unconsecrated food.

(20) I.e., Rabbah.

(21) I.e., R. Nahman.

(22) I.e., with casuistical arguments, which, in point of fact, were untrue.

(23) I.e., left the water completely. Some texts known to Tosaf. actually added the words, ‘and is still wet’; but in any case it has to be understood in this sense.

(24) I.e., no new intention of his is of any effect.

(25) I.e., he may now decide for which degree of sanctity he wishes the immersion to serve.

(26) For with the completion of immersion the first intention becomes effective.

(27) V. p. 125 (end).

(28) Inevitably some water clings to the body of the first bather; consequently the second bather immerses himself in less than the prescribed minimum of forty se'ahs of water.

(29) On the principle that the water connects downward’ (v. p. 127. n. 2), i.e., since the feet of the first bather are still in the immersion pool, the water on his body is regarded as forming part of the water in the pool, thus helping to restore the required volume of forty se'ahs.

(30) I.e., between R. Judah and the Rabbis.

(31) E.g., the specific degrees of purity discussed in our Mishnah.

(32) I.e., defilement according to the law of the Torah.

(33) Who explains the Baraitha, ‘If he still has one foot etc.’ to be according to R. Judah and not the Rabbis: thus he holds that the Rabbis reject the principle of ‘connecting downward’ even in regard to the Rabbinical degrees of purity, for the whole question of intention in regard to any specific degree of purity is based on Rabbinic enactment.

(34) For according to R. Nahman, the Baraitha ‘If he still has one foot etc.’, represents the view of the Rabbis as well as of R. Judah, for he holds that in regard to the Rabbinical degrees of purity, the Rabbis agree with R. Judah in accepting the principle of ‘connecting downward’.

(35) Whilst he is still in the water.

(36) Lit., ‘stretch, bring down’.

(37) I.e., does R. Judah accept the principle of connecting only in the downward direction, as in the case of the two bathers above, where the water on the body of the first bather is regarded as connected with the water in the pool; but not in the upward direction, so that the water in the pool should be considered as connected with the water on the bather's head, and thus enable needles etc. to be purified in the water clinging to the bather's head.

(38) Thus connecting them.

(39) And, of course, in the bottom one; for those who hold the principle of ‘connecting upward’, certainly accept the principle of ‘connecting downward’. Since R. Judah quoted R. Meir s view without contradicting it, the presumption is that he concurs in it. This explanation follows Rashi's text and interpretation. For a different reading and explanation v. Tosaf. s. רבי

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 19b

— But it is taught: R. Judah said: Meir used to say: One may immerse in the top one, but I say: [One may immerse only] in the bottom one, but not in the top one! He[1] replied: If it is [expressly] taught, it is taught.[2]

IF ONE BATHED FOR UNCONSECRATED [FOOD] AND INTENDED TO BE RENDERED FIT SOLELY FOR UNCONSECRATED [FOOD] etc. According to whom will our Mishnah be? — [Presumably] it is according to the Rabbis, who distinguish between unconsecrated [food] and [Second] Tithe.[3] — But [then] how will you understand the second part [of the Mishnah]? THE GARMENTS OF AN ‘AM HA-AREZ POSSESS MIDRAS-UNCLEANNESS FOR PHARISEES; THE GARMENTS OF PHARISEES POSSESS MIDRAS-UNCLEANNESS FOR THOSE WHO EAT TERUMAH:[4] this will be according to R. Meir, who said that unconsecrated [food] and [Second] Tithe are [in this respect] the same. Thus the first part [of the Mishnah] will be according to the Rabbis and the second part according to R. Meir! — Indeed, the first part [of the Mishnah] is according to the Rabbis and the second part according to R. Meir. R. Aha b. Adda teaches [also] in the second part [of the Mishnah] five degrees[5] and attributes it all to the Rabbis. R. Mari said: It follows that unconsecrated [food] which was prepared according to the purity of hallowed things[6] is like hallowed things. Whence [is this to be inferred]? —

---

(1) I.e., R. Johanan.

(2) I.e., I am prepared to retract.

(3) V. p. 122 (‘For we have learnt: Whosoever requires. . . Tithe’).

(4) But not Second Tithe, which shows that it belongs to the same category as unconsecrated food.

(5) I.e., he adds those who eat Second Tithe, as representing a separate degree of purity, in between the Pharisees and those who eat terumah.

(6) A person who is accustomed to eat hallowed things would make it a rule to eat even unconsecrated food according to the purity required by hallowed things, so that his household should be well-trained in the vigilance necessary for the higher degree of purity.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 20a

From the fact that [the Mishnah] does not teach it as a [special] degree [of purity].[1] — But perhaps the reason why [the Mishnah] does not teach it as a [special] degree of purity is because if it is like terumah, behold [the Mishnah] deals with terumah; and if it is like unconsecrated [food], behold [the Mishnah] deals with unconsecrated [food]![2] For it is taught:[3] Unconsecrated [food] which was prepared according to the purity of hallowed things is like unconsecrated [food]. R. Eleazar son of R. Zadok says: It is like terumah. — Rather [is it to be inferred] from the second part [of the Mishnah]. JOSE B. JO'EZER WAS THE MOST PIOUS IN THE PRIESTHOOD, YET HIS APRON WAS [CONSIDERED TO POSSESS] MIDRAS-UNCLEANNESS [FOR THOSE WHO ATE] HALLOWED THINGS. JOHANAN B. GUDGADA USED ALL HIS LIFE TO EAT [UNCONSECRATED FOOD] IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE PURITY REQUIRED FOR HAllowed THINGS, YET HIS APRON WAS [CONSIDERED TO POSSESS] MIDRAS-UNCLEANNESS FOR [THOSE WHO OCCUPIED THEMSELVES WITH THE WATER OF] PURIFICATION. [Only] for [those who occupied themselves with the water of] purification, but not for hallowed things; thus [the Mishnah] holds that unconsecrated [food] which was prepared according to the purity of hallowed things is like hallowed things.

R. Jonathan b. Eleazar said: If a man's wrap[4] fell from off him, and he said to his fellow,[5] ‘Give it to me’, and he gave it to him, it is unclean.[6] R. Jonathan b. Amram said: If by mistake a man put his Sabbath garments on instead of his weekday garments, they become unclean.[7] R. Eleazar b. Zadok said: Once two scholarly[8] women took one another's garments by mistake in the bathhouse, and the matter came before R. Akiba, and he declared them unclean. To this R. Oshaia demurred: If so, if a man stretched forth his hand to the basket with the intention of taking wheat bread and there came up in his hand barley bread, has it also become unclean? And should you say ‘It is so’; then behold it is taught: If one guards a jug on the assumption that it is [a jug] of wine, and it is found to be [a jug] of oil, it is clean so as not to defile! — But according to your reasoning, how do you understand the concluding clause [of the Baraitha]: But it may not be consumed? Why? — Said R. Jeremiah: It refers to a case where [the keeper] says: I guarded it against anything that might defile it,[9] but not against anything that might invalidate it.[10] But can anything be half-guarded? — Indeed; for it is taught: If a man stretched forth his hand into the basket, and the basket was on his shoulder and the shovel was in the basket, and his mind was on the basket but not on the shovel, the basket is clean and the shovel is unclean. [Now it says] ‘The basket is clean’? [Surely] the shovel should make the basket unclean! — One vessel does not make another unclean.[11] Then it should make the contents[12] of the basket unclean! — Rabina said: It refers to a case where [the keeper] says: I guarded it [the shovel] against anything that might defile it, but not against anything that might invalidate it.[13] In any case, there is a contradiction![14] And furthermore, Rabbah b. Abbuha raised an objection: Once a woman came before R. Ishmael and said to him: Master, I have woven this garment in purity,[15] but it was not in my mind to guard it in purity.[16] But as a result of the cross-examination to which R. Ishmael subjected her, she said to him: Master, a menstruous woman pulled the cord[17] with me. Said R. Ishmael: How great are the words of the Sages, who used to say: If one had the intention to guard a thing, it is clean; if one did not have the intention to guard it, it is unclean. There was another story of a woman who came before R. Ishmael. She said to him: Master, I wove this cloth in purity, but it was not in my mind to guard it. But as a result of the cross-examination to which R. Ishmael subjected her, she said to him: Master, a thread broke[18] and I tied it with my mouth.[19] Said R. Ishmael: How great are the words of the Sages who used to say: If it is in one's mind to guard a thing it is clean; if it is not in one's mind to guard it, it is unclean.[20]

Granted in regard to [the teaching of] R. Eleazar b. Zadok, [it can be explained that] each one [of the women] says [to herself]: ‘My companion is the wife of an ‘am ha-arez’; and [consequently] she takes her mind off it. In regard to [the teaching of] R. Jonathan b. Amram too [it can be explained that] since a man takes special care of Sabbath garments,[21] [it is as though] he took his mind off them. But in regard to [the teaching of] R. Jonathan b. Eleazar [it can be objected] that he could [still] guard it in the hand of his companion! — R. Johanan answered: It is a presumable certainty that one does not guard what is in the hand of his companion. — Indeed no?

---

(1) Viz. that the garments of Pharisees who eat unconsecrated food in ordinary purity possess midras-uncleanness for those who eat unconsecrated food according to the purity required by hallowed things. The omission of this category proves, according to R. Mari, that it belongs to the same degree of purity as hallowed things themselves, which are already mentioned in the Mishnah.

(2) I.e., the fact that unconsecrated food prepared according to the purity of hallowed things is not mentioned in the Mishnah as a separate degree of purity does not necessarily prove that it is like hallowed things. On the contrary, it may belong to one of the other degrees of purity specified in the Mishnah, such as ordinary unconsecrated food or terumah.

(3) I.e., we actually find Tannaim disputing as to whether it is like ordinary food or like terumah; but no one takes the view that it is like hallowed things.

(4) So Jast.; Levy, ‘Hulle’; Goldschmidt, ‘Kopftuch’. Cf. אפר (‘headband’) in I Kings XX, 38, 41, which belongs to the same root as our word מעפרת, with interchange of א and ע.

(5) I.e., one as observant of the laws of purity as himself (R. Hananel).

(6) Even though the person, who picked it up was clean, for we cannot assume that he took it upon himself to guard it from impurity whilst he handled it, since the owner did not inquire whether he was clean or not; nor can we say that the owner guarded it against defilement whilst it was not in his possession (v. R. Johanan's answer p. 131).

(7) This apparently teaches the principle that if a man guards something on the assumption that it is one thing and finds it to be another, it is unclean.

(8) Lit.,’associates i.e., knowing and observing the Laws of purity. V. p. 120, n. 4.

(9) I.e., so that in turn it could make other things unclean.

(10) I.e., from being used, but would not make it capable of imparting impurity. This shows that although the keeper may be mistaken regarding the identity of the object guarded, his guarding nevertheless remains effective for the purpose intended, which, in this case, was that the oil should not be defiled.

(11) Although a vessel can defile food.

(12) Figs (Rashi).

(13) From being used at the outset in connection with clean foodstuffs. The shovel, being ‘a utensil’, can only be invalidated by unclean liquids (Tosaf). Rashi suggests, alternatively, that ‘it’ may refer to the food adhering to the shovel. — This Baraitha thus shows that a thing can be guarded ‘by half’.

(14) I.e., the statement in the Baraitha that the oil remains clean supports R. Oshaia and contradicts the view that a mistake in regard to the identity of an object serves to make it unclean.

(15) I.e., I know, as a matter of fact, that from the moment three fingers by three of cloth — the minimum area susceptible to defilement — were woven it was not made unclean.

(16) I.e., I did not actually intend to guard it against defilement.

(17) So that uncleanness may have been communicated through her shaking the web.

(18) Before she commenced to weave: the rules of uncleanness did not yet apply then.

(19) She had not yet purified herself by immersion from the impurity of her menstruous condition, so that her saliva possessed uncleanness in the first degree (אב הטומאה). Thus although to begin with the moistened thread could not affect the purity of the cloth (hence she paid no attention to it), nevertheless if the thread remained wet when the web was three fingers by three it would defile the cloth, although the woman had since purified herself by immersion. So Rashi; for another explanation v. Tosaf. s. v. נימא.

(20) From all this, It is clear that the deciding factor in keeping an object clean is the intention to guard it against uncleanness; but it is not necessary to know the identity of the object guarded.

(21) Whereas he thought them to be his week-day clothes.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 20b

But behold it is taught: If a man's ass-drivers and workmen[1] were laden with [levitically] clean goods, even if he withdrew from them more than a mil[2] his clean goods[3] remain clean.[4] But if he said to them: Go ye, and I shall come after you, then as soon as they are hidden from his sight, his clean goods become unclean. — In what respect is the first case different from the second?[5] R. Isaac Nappaha[6] said: In the first case he purifies his ass-drivers and workmen for this purpose.[7] — If so, [it applies to] the second case too! — An ‘am ha-arez does not mind another's touching.[8] — If so, [it applies to] the first case too! — It is a case where [the master] can come upon them [suddenly] by a roundabout path.[9] — If so [it applies to] the second case too! — Since he said to them, ‘Go ye, and I shall come after you’, their minds are at ease.[10]

CHAPTER III

MISHNAH. GREATER STRINGENCY APPLIES TO HALLOWED THlngs[11] THAN TO TERUMAH:[12] FOR VESSELS WITHIN VESSELS[13] MAY BE IMMERSED [TOGETHER] FOR TERUMAH, BUT NOT FOR HALLOWED THINGS. THE OUTSIDE AND INSIDE AND HANDLE[14] [OF A VESSEL ARE REGARDED AS SEPARATE] FOR TERUMAH,[15] BUT NOT FOR HALLOWED THINGS.[16] HE THAT CARRIES ANYTHING POSSESSING MIDRAS-UNCLEANNESS[17] MAY CARRY [AT THE SAME TIME] TERUMAH,[18] BUT NOT

HALLOWED THINGS. THE GARMENTS OF THOSE WHO EAT TERUMAH POSSES[15] MIDRAS-UNCLEANNESS FOR [THOSE WHO EAT] HALLOWED THINGS.[19] THE RULE [FOR THE IMMERSION OF GARMENTS][20] FOR [THOSE WHO WOULD EAT OF] TERUMAH IS NOT LIKE THE RULE FOR [THOSE WHO WOULD EAT OF] HALLOWED THINGS: FOR IN THE CASE OF HALLOWED THINGS, HE MUST [FIRST] UNTIE [ANY KNOTS[21] IN THE UNCLEAN GARMENT], DRY IT[22] [IF IT IS WET, THEN] IMMERSE IT, AND AFTERWARDS RETIE IT; BUT IN CASE OF TERUMAH, IT MAY [FIRST] BE TIED AND AFTERWARDS IMMERSED. VESSELS THAT HAVE BEEN FINISHED IN PURITY[23] REQUIRE IMMERSION [BEFORE THEY ARE USED] FOR HALLOWED THINGS, BUT NOT [BEFORE THEY ARE USED] FOR TERUMAH. A VESSEL UNITES ALL ITS CONTENTS [FOR DEFILEMENT] IN THE CASE OF HALLOWED THINGS,[24] BUT NOT IN THE CASE OF TERUMAH.[25] HALLOWED THINGS BECOME INVALID[26] [BY UNCLEANNESS] AT THE FOURTH REMOVE, BUT TERUMAH [ONLY BY UNCLEANNESS] AT THE THIRD REMOVE.[27] IN THE CASE OF TERUMAH, IF ONE HAND OF A MAN BECAME UNCLEAN,[28] THE OTHER REMAINS CLEAN, BUT IN THE CASE OF HALLOWED THINGS, HE MUST IMMERSE BOTH [HANDS], BECAUSE THE ONE HAND DEFILES THE OTHER FOR HALLOWED THINGS BUT NOT FOR TERUMAH. DRY FOODSTUFFS[29] MAY BE EATEN WITH UNWASHED HANDS,[30] WITH TERUMAH, BUT NOT WITH HALLOWED THINGS.[31]

---

(1) Who belonged to the category of ‘am ha-arez.

(2) I.e., unbeknown, to them. A mil=two thousand cubits (Jast.).

(3) E.g., wine in earthenware jars.

(4) Because the men touch only the exterior of the vessels, which, being earthenware, are not defiled within by the contact of a defiling object on the outside (cf. Hul. 25a). The fear of their master who could arrive at any moment would deter the men from attempting to touch the contents of the vessels. This proves that, contrary to R. Johanan's statement, a man can guard what is in another's hand.

(5) Rashi prefers to delete this sentence. If it is retained, he interprets it as a continuation of the argument against R. Johanan, thus: — If you contend that a man cannot guard what is in another person's hand, then why is the first case decided differently from the second? Tosaf., however, explains it as a rejoinder in defence of R. Johanan's teaching: Granted that the first case of the Baraitha seems to contradict R. Johanan, but how can the second case be explained otherwise than as a support? One must answer, therefore, with R. Isaac Nappaha, that the first case too does not really contradict R. Johanan, because the men were specially purified for the purpose.

(6) I.e., the smith.

(7) Consequently the goods remain clean; for even if the men touch the goods they cannot defile then,. But if the men had not been specially purified, R. Johanan's principle that one cannot guard what is in another's hand would hold good.

(8) I.e., though the workmen, being clean, cannot defile the goods, they might allow them to be defiled by other people touching them.

(9) I.e., the fear that he might come upon them by surprise would deter them from permitting a stranger to touch the goods.

(10) That he will not surprise them, and thus whatever they do will not be observed by their master.

(11) I.e., sacrificial flesh, mealofferings and drink-offerings.

(12) In the eleven cases (according to Raba), or ten (according to R. Ela), that follow. For further differences, v. the Mishnah pp. 119-121. The latter are not included in our Mishnah because (according to Tosaf. s.v. חומר) they do not involve the risk of an eventual violation of the law of purity (דררא דטומאה).

(13) I.e., any articles susceptible to defilement. According to Rashi (a.l.), both the exterior and interior vessels are unclean; according to Tosaf. (22a, s.v. מאי) only the interior vessels re unclean.

(14) בית הצביטה ‘the place of holding’, v. infra p. 143, n. 13.

(15) I.e., if these parts can be used separately they are regarded, in the case of terumah, as distinct utensils, so that if one of them becomes defiled the others remain unaffected. This rule applies, as the Gemara explains, only in the case of Rabbinical degrees of uncleanness, v. Kel. XXV, 6f

(16) In the case of hallowed things, if one part becomes defied, the whole vessel is rendered unclean.

(17) E.g., if he wears the shoe of a gonorrhoeist. V. p. 120, n. 3.

(18) I.e., if the terumah is in an earthenware vessel, which he touches only from without. Cf. p. 132, nn. 1 and 2.

(19) V. p. 120, where the same statement is found.

(20) In respect of the law of חציצה ('Interposition, all intervening object'). Cf. 'Er. 4a.

(21) Because they resemble an intervening object.

(22) Here the moisture is deemed to resemble an intervening object.

(23) I.e., from the moment that they reached the stage when they could be termed vessels, and consequently became susceptible to defilement, they were carefully guarded from uncleanness.

(24) If an unclean person touched one portion of hallowed food in a vessel, all the other pieces, although not in contact with it, are rendered equally unclean by the unifying effect of the vessel.

(25) In the case of terumah, the portion to touched by the unclean person contracts uncleanness at the first remove (v. infra n. 7); if another portion touches it, the second contracts uncleanness at the second remove, and any portion touching the latter suffers uncleanness at the third remove; the rest remain clean.

(26) But cannot, In turn, render anything else invalid.

(27) If A is a 'Father of uncleanness' (i.e., suffers from primary uncleanness, which can convey uncleanness even to men and vessels; those that come in contact with it are termed 'offspring of uncleanness', and can convey uncleanness only to foodstuff and liquids) and touches B, and B to touches C, and C touches D, if D is a hallowed thing it becomes invalid; and if C is terumah it becomes invalid; but if D is terumah it does not become invalid (Danby, The Mishnah, p. 214. n. 9).

(28) I.e., contracted a Rabbinic (as opposed to Pentateuchal) grade of uncleanness, which defiles the hand without affecting the rest of the body.

(29) I.e., ordinary food which has never been rendered susceptible to uncleanness by coming in contact with water; v. p. 124, nn. 5-9.

(30) Lit., 'unclean hands'; though these suffer from levitical uncleanness, the food is not affected because it has never become susceptible to uncleanness.

(31) V. the explanation in the Gemara, pp. 154f(24b).

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 21a

A MOURNER [PRIOR TO THE BURIAL OF THE DECEASED],[1] AND ONE WHO NEEDS TO BRING HIS ATONEMENT SACRIFICE [IN ORDER TO COMPLETE HIS PURIFICATION][2] REQUIRE IMMERSION FOR HALLOWED THINGS,[3] BUT NOT FOR TERUMAH.[4] GEMARA. Why not in the case of hallowed things?[5] R. Ela said: Because the weight of the [inner] vessel forms an interposition.[6] — But since the latter clause [of the Mishnah] is based on [the rule of] interposition.[7] For it is taught in the latter clause: THE RULE [FOR THE IMMERSION OF GARMENTS] FOR [THOSE WHO WOULD EAT OF] TERUMAH IS NOT LIKE THE RULE FOR [THOSE WHO WOULD EAT OF] HALLOWED THINGS: FOR IN THE CASE OF HALLOWED THINGS, HE MUST [FIRST] UNTIE [ANY KNOTS IN THE UNCLEAN GARMENT], DRY IT [IF IT IS WET, THEN] IMMERSE IT, AND AFTERWARDS RETIE IT; BUT IN THE CASE OF TERUMAH, IT MAY [FIRST] BE TIED AND AFTERWARDS IMMERSED! — Both the former clause and the latter clause are based on [the rule of] interposition, and they are both required. For if [the Mishnah] taught us the former clause [only], I might have thought that the reason why it is not [permitted to immerse vessels within vessels] for hallowed things is because of the weight of the vessel [which interposes], but in the latter clause where there is no weight of a vessel [to interpose], I might have thought that it would not be deemed an interposition even for hallowed things; and if [the Mishnah] taught us the latter clause, I might have thought that the reason why it is not [permitted] in the case of hallowed things is because

---

(1) Heb. אונן , opposed to אבל , a mourner during the week following the burial. It is assumed here that the mourner had not become defiled by the corpse.

(2) E.g., a gonorrhoeist who, after duly immersing himself on the seventh day of his uncleanness, has awaited sunset on that day, and now has only to bring his sacrifice on the morrow in order to complete his purification.

(3) In the latter case after bringing the prescribed sacrifices.

(4) Which may be eaten not only without immersion, but even before the sacrifices marking the completion of purification have been brought.

(5) The question refers to the beginning of the Mishnah, i.e., why may not vessels within vessels be immersed for hallowed things just as for terumah?

(6) The weight of the inner vessel prevents the water from reaching every part of the vessels, thus invalidating the immersion both of the outer and inner vessels. V. infra p. 139.

(7) If the purpose of the two clauses is identical viz., to teach us that in the case of hallowed things even that which resembles interposition invalidates, but in the case of terumah only proper interposition, then the Mishnah should have contained one of the two clauses, not both.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 21b

a knot becomes tightened[1] in water, but in [the case of] the former clause, where the water causes the vessel to float, it would not be deemed an interposition; therefore [both clauses] are required.[2] R. Ela [in explaining the former clause to be based on the rule of interposition] is consistent in his view. For R. Ela said that R. Hanina b. Papa said: Ten distinctions [of hallowed things over terumah] are taught here.[3] The former five apply both to hallowed things and to unconsecrated [food] prepared according to the purity of hallowed things: the latter [five] apply to hallowed things, but not to unconsecrated [food] prepared according to the purity of hallowed things. What is the reason? — The former five, which involve the risk of eventual violation of the law of Impurity according to the Torah,[4] the Rabbis enacted both in regard to hallowed things and in regard to unconsecrated [food] prepared according to the purity of hallowed things. The latter [five], which do not involve the risk of the eventual violation of the law of purity according to the Torah, the Rabbis enacted in regard to hallowed things, but not in regard to unconsecrated [food] prepared according to the purity of hallowed things. Raba said: Since the latter clause is based on [the rule of] interposition, the former clause cannot be based on [the rule of] interposition; and as to the former clause, the reason is this: It is a Precautionary enactment so that one might not immerse needles and hooks in a vessel the mouth of which is not the size of the spout of a skin-bottle.[5] As we have learnt: The union of immersion pools [requires a connecting stream][6] the size of the spout of a skin-bottle in breadth

---

(1) Thus approximating to interposition.

(2) Actually the latter clause is required because it also contains the rule: ‘He must dry it (if it is wet)’. But this is not taken into account in our argument either because, (a) even if it were based on the principle of interposition it was held to follow from the first clause, or (b) it may be based not on the principle of interposition but on the fact that the original moisture could re-defile the garment and so render the Immersion useless.

(3) Since eleven points of difference are actually mentioned in the Mishnah, two, according to It. Ela, must be clue to the same reason and hence are counted as one.

(4) I.e., as opposed to Rabbinic degrees of purity. For an explanation of how this violation of the Torah law of purity can come about v. Rashi s.v. דררא ; for a discussion of the latter five distinctions v. Tosaf. s.v. בתרייתא .

(5) In which case the immersion would be invalid, because the water in the vessel would not be regarded as connected with the water in the immersion pool, for the minimum size of the connecting stream (as explained in the following Mishnah) must be equivalent to the area of the tube of a skin-bottle.

(6) I.e., two adjoining pools can be combined to make up the prescribed quantity of forty se'ahs of water if there is an aperture in between allowing a stream (of the size mentioned) to flow between them.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 22a

and in area, [namely, One in which] two fingers can make a complete revolution. Thus he [Raba] agrees with R. Nahman who said that Rabbah b. Abbuha said: Eleven distinctions are taught here: the former six apply both to hallowed things and to unconsecrated [food] which was prepared according to the purity of hallowed things; the latter [five] apply to the hallowed things, but not to unconsecrated [food] prepared according to the purity of hallowed things. What is [the practical difference] between [the explanations of] Raba and R. Ela? There is [a practical difference] between them [in the case of] a basket or a net[1] which was filled with vessels and immersed. According to the view that [the former clause] is based on [the rule of] interposition, it applies [here too]; according to the view that [the former clause] is a Precautionary enactment lest one immerse needles and hooks in a vessel the mouth of which is not the size of the spout of a skin-bottle, [it does not apply here, because] there is no basket or net the mouth of which is not the size of a skin-bottle. Now Raba is consistent in his view. For Raba said: If one filled a basket or net with vessels and immersed them, they become clean;[2] but if an immersion-pool be divided by a basket or net, then whoever immerses himself therein, his immersion is not effective,[3] for the earth is wholly perforated,[4] nevertheless we require that there should be forty se'ahs [of undrawn water] in one place. Now this applies only to a clean vessel,[5] but' [in the case of] an unclean vessel,[6] since the immersion is effective for the entire vessel itself,[7] it is effective also for the vessels which are in it. For we have learnt:[8] If one filled vessels with vessels and immersed them, these [interior vessels also] become clean.[9] But if he did not immerse [the outer vessel], then the water [in it] mingled [with the water of the immersion-pool] does not count as mingled unless [the water in the outer vessel and immersion-pool] are mingled [by a stream] the size of the spout of a skin-bottle.[10] What is the meaning of ‘But if he did not immerse [the outer vessel] etc.’? — This is the meaning: But if he did not require to immerse [the outer vessel],[11] then the water [in it] mingled [with the water of the immersion-pool] does not count as mingled unless [the water in the outer vessel and the immersion-pool] are mingled [by a stream] the size of the spout of a skin-bottle. Now the point of difference between Raba and R. Ela[12] is the subject of dispute between Tannaim. For it is taught: If a basket or net was filled with vessels and immersed, they become clear both for hallowed things and for terumah. Abba Saul says: For terumah, but not for hallowed things. If so, it should apply to terumah too![13] — For whom do we state this rule]?[14] For Associates.[15] Associates know [the rules of immersion] very well. If so, it should apply to hallowed things too![16] — An ‘am ha-arez may see it and go and immerse [likewise]. In the case of terumah too an ‘am ha-arez may see it, and go and immerse [likewise]![17] — We do not accept it from him.[18] Let us not accept hallowed things either from him! — He would bear animosity.[19] In the case of terumah too he will bear animosity! — [In the case of terumah], he does not mind, for he can go and give it to his fellow, a priest, who is an ‘am ha-arez. And who is the Tanna who takes account of animosity? — It is R. Jose. For it is taught: R. Jose said: Wherefore are all trusted throughout the year in regard to the cleanness of the wine and oil [they bring for Temple Else]?[20] It is in order that every one may not go and give and build a high place[21] for himself, and burn a red heifer[22] for himself. R. Papa said: According to whom is it that we accept nowadays the testimony of an ‘am ha-arez? According to whom? According to R. Jose.[23] But should we not apprehend [the contingency] of borrowing [by an Associate]?[24] For we have learnt:[25] An earthenware vessel protects everything [therein from contracting uncleanness from a corpse that is under the same roof]:[26] so Beth hillel. Beth Shammai say: It protects only foodstuffs and liquids and [other] earthenware vessels.[27] Said Beth Hillel to Beth Shammai: Wherefore? Beth Shammai answered: Because it is unclean on account of the ‘am ha arez,[28] and an unclean vessel cannot interpose. Said Beth Hillel to them: But have ye not declared the foodstuffs and liquids therein clean? Beth Shammai answered: When we declared the foodstuffs and liquids therein clean,

---

(1) A wicker or network in the wine or oil Press (Jast.), used for straining; cf. A.Z. 56b.

(2) Even for hallowed things.

(3) For the requisite forty se'ahs of water are to be found in neither division, and though, through the meshes of the network, the water flows from one part of the pool to the other, this is not considered a proper connection for the reason that follows.

(4) I.e., water flows through the hollows of the earth, and water appearing at any particular spot is bound to be connected underground to some big stream elsewhere, yet this connection is not valid, for we require (as the Gemara goes on to say) forty se'ahs of water in one place.

(5) I.e., the rule that the immersion of an article in a vessel with all aperture less than the size of the mouth of a skin-bottle is invalid applies only if the outer vessel is clean, and consequently does not itself require immersion.

(6) Which itself requires immersion.

(7) Even if the vessel's mouth is less than the prescribed size, its interior is nevertheless purified by the water of the immersion-pool, for we argue that in the same manner as it became defiled so it is also purified.

(8) Heb. דתנן i.e., we have learnt in a Mishnah viz., Mi!. VI, 2. But the Mishnah text differs somewhat from the quotation here, reading as follows: ‘If a bucket filled with vessels was in immersed, they (also) become clean; but if he did not immerse (the bucket), the water (in it) does not count as mingled unless etc.’. These var. lec. made R. Samson b. Abraham of Sens (in his commentary to Mik.) conclude that our quotation was not the actual Mishnah from Mik., but a Baraitha corresponding to it. Other var. lec. are ‘and immersed it’ for ‘and immersed them’, and ‘in the mingled water’ for ‘the mingled water’. Both R. Asher b. Jehiel and R. Abraham of Sens had the second reading, the latter referring the phrase specifically to the examples of ‘mingled waters’ enumerated in Mik. V, 6, the former explaining it more generally of all instances of reservoirs united by a connecting stream. The reacting ‘the water (in it) does not count as mingled’ is undoubtedly the smoothest.

(9) I.e.,irrespective of the size of the outer vessel's mouth. This immersion is valid for terumah only (v. the Mishnah p. 133).

(10) I.e., unless the outer vessel's mouth is that size.

(11) I.e., because it was levitically clean.

(12) I.e., Raba explains the first clause of the Mishnah to be based on the rule that the unification of immersion-pools requires a connecting stream at least the size of a skin-bottle spout in thickness, and consequently articles immersed in a basket or net, the mouth of which is invariably large, can be used even for hallowed things in accordance with the first view in the Baraitha. R. Ela explains the same clause with reference to the rule of interposition, and consequently articles immersed in a basket or net, just as those immersed in any other receptacle, may be used only for terumah in accordance with Abba Saul.

(13) I.e., the prohibition against immersing vessels within vessels, according to either explanation, should apply to terumah as well as hallowed things.

(14) Concerning the immersion of vessels within vessels.

(15) V. p. 120, n. 2. The ‘am ha-arez would not even wish to know the laws of immersion, let alone observe them.

(16) I.e.,if the Mishnah applies only to Associates, who observe all the laws meticulously, why are they not permitted to immerse vessels within vessels for hallowed things?

(17) And as he cannot be trusted to observe properly the rules of immersion, the hallowed contents of the vessels would become defiled!

(18) Terumah is accepted from an ‘am ha-arez only at the seasons of wine-presses and olive-vats (v.infra 24b, and Toh.IX, 4), when all purify their vessels Properly under associate supervision (according to Rashi). or when all are regarded for the time as Associates (according to Tosaf. s.v. לא; cf. infra 26a).

(19) For were they not Jews?

(20) Wine for libations, oil for the preparation of meal-offerings.

(21) When these were prohibited: v. J.E. vol. VI, pp. 387-389 (particularly the last section, p. 389, s. ‘Rabbinic attitude’).

(22) V. Num. XIX, 2ff; cf. also R. Judah's statement (quoted in Tosaf. a.l. s. שלא , as R. Jose's) in Tosef. Hagigah III, that all are to be trusted to look after the ashes of the red heifer.

(23) But not the other Rabbis; v. Pes. 42b.

(24) I.e., should we not prohibit the immersion of vessels within vessels for terumah even by Associates, lest the ‘am ha-arez see it and do likewise (but without observing all the prescribed laws). and an Associate go and borrow the vessels from him?

(25) I.e., that it is permitted to borrow vessels from an ‘am ha-arez.

(26) I.e., if its lid is fixed on; or if the corpse is in a room below and the earthen vessel covers the hatchway between the lower room and the upper room, it protects everything in the upper chamber. Cf. Num. XIX, 15, and Oh. V, 3.

(27) Kel. X, 1.

(28) Being the vessel of an ‘am ha-arez, it is unclean to begin with, before ever it is placed over the hatching or articles are put in it.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 22b

we declared them clean [only] for [the ‘am ha-arez]. himself;[1] but should we [therefore] declare [also] the vessel clean, which would make it clean for thee as well as for him?[2] It is taught: R. Joshua said: I am ashamed of your words, O Beth Shammai! Is it possible that if a woman [in the upper chamber] kneads [dough] in a trough,[3] the woman and the trough become unclean for seven days, but the dough remains clean; that if there is [in the upper room] a flask[4] full of liquid, the flask contracts seven-day uncleanness, but the liquid remains clean![5] [Thereupon] one of the disciples of Beth Shammai joined him [in debate] and said to him: I will tell thee the reason of Beth Shammai. He replied, Tell then! So he said to him: Does all unclean vessel bar [the penetration of uncleanness] or not? He replied: It does not bar it. — Are the vessels of an ‘am ha-arez clean or unclean? He replied: Unclean. — And if thou sayest to him [that they are] unclean, will he pay any heed to thee? Nay, more, if thou sayest to him [that they are] unclean, he will reply: Mine are clean and thine are unclean.[6] Now this is the reason of Beth Shammai. Forthwith, R. Joshua went and prostrated himself upon the graves of Beth Shammai. He said: I crave your pardon,[7] bones of Beth Shammai. If your unexplained teachings are so [excellent], how much more so the explained teachings. It is said that all his days his teeth were black by reason of his fasts. Now it says, ‘For thee as well as for him’;[8] accordingly we may borrow from them! — When we borrow [vessels] from them, we immerse them.[9] If so, Beth Hillel could have replied to Beth Shammai: When we borrow [vessels] from them, we immerse them! — That which is rendered unclean by a corpse requires sprinkling on the third and seventh day,[10] and people do not lend a vessel for seven days. — But are they not trusted in regard to immersion?[11] For behold it is taught: The ‘am ha-arez is trusted in regard to the purification by immersion of that which is rendered unclean by a corpse! Abaye answered: There is no contradiction: the one [teaching] refers to his body,[12] the other to his vessels. Raba answered: Both refer to his vessels; but there is no contradiction: the one refers to a case where he says: I have never immersed one vessel in another;[13] the other refers to a case where he says: I have immersed [one vessel in another], but I have not immersed in a vessel the mouth of which is not the size of the spout of a skin-bottle. For it is taught: An ‘am ha-arez is believed if he says: The produce has not been rendered susceptible [to uncleanness],[14] but he is not believed if he says: The produce has been rendered susceptible [to unclean ness], but it has not been made unclean.[15] — But is he trusted in regard to his body? For behold it is taught: If an Associate comes to receive sprinkling,[16] they at once sprinkle upon him; but if an ‘am ha-arez comes to receive sprinkling, they do not sprinkle upon him until he observes before us the third and seventh day! — Abaye answered: As a result of the stringency you impose upon him at the beginning,[17] you make it easier for him, at the end.[18] THE OUTSIDE AND THE INSIDE. What is meant by THE OUTSIDE AND THE INSIDE? — As we have learnt: If the outside of a vessel was rendered Unclean[19] by [unclean] liquid,[20] [only] its outside becomes unclean; but the inside, rim, hanger[21] and handles,[22] remain clean. But if the inside became unclean,[23] the whole is unclean. AND HANDLE. What is meant by the HANDLE? Rab Judah said that Samuel said: The part by which one hands[24] it; and thus it says: And they handed[25] her parched corn.[26] R. Assi said that R. Johanan said: The part where the fastidious hold[27] it. R. Bebai recited before R. Nahman: There is no differentiation [in the case of uncleanness] between the outside and the inside of any vessel,[28] be it [for] the hallowed things of the Sanctuary,[29] be it [for] the hallowed things of the provinces.[30] Said [the latter] to him: What is meant by ‘the hallowed things of the provinces’? Terumah. But we have learnt: THE OUTSIDE AND INSIDE AND HANDLE [ARE REGARDED AS SEPARATE] FOR TERUMAH! Perhaps you mean unconsecrated food prepared according to the purity of hallowed things. [Indeed], you have recalled something to my mind. For Rabbah b. Abbuha[31] said: Eleven distinctions are taught here [in our Mishnah]: the former six apply both to hallowed things and to unconsecrated [food] which was prepared according to the purity of hallowed things; the latter [five] apply to hallowed things, but not to unconsecrated [food] prepared according to the purity of hallowed things. HE THAT CARRIES ANYTHING POSSESSING MIDRAS-UNCLEANNESS MAY CARRY [AT THE SAME TIME] TERUMAH, BUT NOT HALLOWED THINGS. Why not hallowed things? — Because of a certain occurrence. For Rab Judah said that Samuel said: Once someone was conveying a jar of consecrated wine from one place to another

---

(1) The foodstuffs and liquids of an ‘am ha-arez are unclean; hence Associates would eschew them in any case.

(2) I.e., all Associate may borrow the vessel of an ‘am ha-arez. The Mishnah text differs from our own in several details. The most important var. lec. is: ‘But when thou declarest the vessel clean, thou declarest it so for thyself as well as for him,. The Mishnah then concludes: ‘Beth Hillel retracted and gave their ruling according to Beth Shammai

(3) And the hatchway leading from it to the lower room in which the corpse is lying was covered by an earthen vessel.

(4) Heb. לוגין = לגין (the usual and correct form) of the Mishnah and MS.M.; larger than a כוס (cup) and smaller than a כד (jug) — cf. Bez. 15b. Here, it would be made of metal or wood.

(5) In accordance with your view that an earthenware vessel affords no protection to anything apart from foodstuffs, liquids and earthenwares. Cf. Oh. V, 4.

(6) Because of the intransigence of the ‘am ha-arez in regard to things which cannot be purified, e.g.. foodstuffs and earthenware vessels (the latter have to be broken), therefore Beth Shammai declared them clean i.e.,for the ‘am ha-arez, only; but vessels (like the trough and the flask) which can be purified by immersion are declared unclean, for the ‘am ha-arez will in such instance, where there is a remedy pay heed to Rabbinic injunction, and purify the vessels: so Rashi. But Tosaf. (s.v. כלום), holding the view that the ‘am ha-ares never conforms to Rabbinic ruling, explains the passage in the following lines: An Associate may never use food or drinks belonging to an ‘am ha-arez, for the latter does not observe the laws of purity; hence there is no need, in our case, to declare them impure, for they do not affect Associates. But immersible vessels may be borrowed from an ‘am ha-arez, for they can be purified by immersion; hence, In our case, they have to be declared unclean so that Associates should not use them without first purifying them.

(7) Lit., ‘I humble myself to you’.

(8) V. p. 141, and cf. n. 2.

(9) Lest the ‘am ha-arez immersed them In a vessel, without observing the prescribed rules.

(10) V. Num. XIX, 18ff.

(11) For Associates we are told have to immerse any vessels borrowed from an ‘am ha-arez.

(12) For which he is trusted.

(13) In this case he is believed.

(14) I.e., by being wetted; v. p. 124, nn. 6-9.

(15) This shows that he could not be relied on in a matter which required scrupulous care, and similarly in regard to the regulation relating to the size of the mouth of the immersing vessel.

(16) Declaring that he has duly waited the first three days. Sprinkling takes place on the third and seventh day after defilement by a corpse.

(17) By not believing that he waited three days.

(18) I.e., he is trusted in regard to the immersion following the sprinklings; for this he carries out with due care, as he is anxious to complete his purification.

(19) Only in the case of vessels made of wood or metal can the outside be defiled: earthen vessels are rendered unclean only from the inside (v. Lev. XI, 33).

(20) According to the laws of the Torah only ‘a father of uncleanness’ (v. p. 134, n. 7) can defile vessels; but the Rabbis enacted that all unclean liquids should defile vessels on account of fluid issuing from a gonorrhoeist, which is a ‘father of uncleanness’ (v. Nid. 7a). In order, however, to prevent terumah or hallowed things from being burnt in consequence of contact with vessels defiled by liquids, a distinction was made to mark the Rabbinic (as opposed to Torah) character of the defilement viz. that if the outside of a vessel became thus defiled, the inside etc. should remain clean (v. Bek. 38a).

(21) Lit., ‘ear’ i.e., ear-shaped handle.

(22) Lit., ‘its hands’ = ‘place of holding’ in our Mishnah, v. p. 133, n. 4. The different parts of the vessel enumerated here have a distinct use; hence they are treated as separate utensils, and remain clean, if the outside only of the vessel be defiled.

(23) Even according to Rabbinic law only.

(24) I.e., holds it and reaches it to another.

(25) E.V. ‘reached’.

(26) Ruth II, 14.

(27) I.e., the handle. Heb. (in edd.) צובעין, prob. denominative from אצבע , ‘finger’ (cf. Aramaic צבעא) i.e., grip with fingers (v. Levy s.v.). J.T. has בית הצביעא in the Mishnah instead of our בית הצביטה ; undoubtedly, R. Johanan, the editor of the Pal. Talmud, was explaining the J.T., rather than the Babylonian reading.

According to Rashi, צובעין = מטבילין i.e., dip the food: he explains that a cavity was made in the bottom (under the rim?) of the vessel where mustard or vinegar was placed, and the food dipped there. The MS.M. reading is צובטין ; the J.T. III,1 has, ‘By which the cleanly take hold of it’; Aruch: ‘. . . drink’; v. D.S. a.I.

(28) Lit., ‘all vessels have no outside’, i.e., if the outside became defiled, the whole vessel is rendered unclean.

(29) I.e., sacrifices.

(30) I.e., sacred gifts, like terumah, which can be eaten in any part of Palestine.

(31) R. Nahman's teacher.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 23a

, when the thong of his sandal[1] broke, and he took it and placed it on the mouth of the jar, and It fell into the hollow[2] of the jar, which was thus rendered unclean. At that time they enjoined: He that carries anything possessing midras-uncleanness may carry [at the same time] terumah, but not hallowed things. — If so, [it should be forbidden to carry] terumah too! — This is according to R. Hananiah b. Akabia who said: They Prohibited it only on the Jordan and in a ship and according to [the circumstances of] the occurrence.[3] What is this? — It is taught: A man shall not take water of purification or ashes of purification,[4] and convey them over the Jordan in a ship, nor stand on one side [of a river] and throw them to the other side, nor float them over the water, nor ride upon all animal or his fellow, unless his feet touch the ground;[5] but one may unhesitatingly convey them over a bridge, be it across the Jordan or any other river. R. Hananiah b. Akabia says: They prohibited it only on the Jordan and in a ship and according to [the circumstances of] the occurrence. What was the occurrence? — Rab Judah said that Rab said: Once someone was conveying water of purification on the Jordan in a ship, and a [piece of a] corpse the size of an olive was found stuck in the bottom of the ship.[6] At that time they enjoined: A man shall not take water of purification and ashes of purification and convey them over the Jordan in a ship. A question was raised: [It happened with] all unclean sandal; what of a clean sandal?[7] [It happened with] all open jar, what of a closed jar?[8] How is it if a man transgressed and carried [them thus]? — R. Ela said: If he transgressed and carried [them thus], they are unclean. R. Zera said: If he transgressed and carried [them thus] they are clean. VESSELS THAT HAVE BEEN FINISHED IN PURITY etc. Who finished them? Should one say that an Associate finished them, then why do they require immersion? If, on the other hand, an ‘am ha-arez, finished them, can they be called ‘finished in purity’? — Rabbah b. Shilah said that R. Mattenah said that Samuel said: Actually, [one can say] that an Associate finished them, yet [the vessel requires immersion] lest the spittle of an ‘am ha-arez[9] [fell upon it].[10] — When could it have fallen [upon it]? Should one say, before he finished it, then it is not yet a vessel![11] If, on the other hand, after he had finished it, then he would surely take good care of them! — Actually, [one can say that it fell upon it] before he finished it, but perhaps at the time when he finished it, it was still moist.[12] [It states:] It requires [only] immersion, but not sunset;[13] our Mishnah, therefore, is not according to R. Eliezer. For we have learnt: If a [reed] pipe[14] was cut[15] for [putting therein ashes of] purification, R. Eliezer says: It must be immersed forthwith; R. Joshua says: It must [first] be rendered unclean, and then immersed.[16] Now we raised the point: Who could have cut it? Should one say that an Associate cut it, then why is immersion required?[17] If, on the other hand, an ‘am ha-arez cut it, how can R. Joshua, in such a case, say: It must [first] be rendered unclean, and then immersed? Behold,it is already unclean! Now Rabbah b. Shila said that R. Mattenah said that Samuel said: Actually, [you can say] that an Associate cut it, yet [immersion is required] lest the spittle of an ‘am ha-arez [fell upon it]. — [Again] when could it have fallen [upon it]? Should one say before he cut it, then it is not yet a vessel! If, on the other hand, after he had cut it, he would surely take good care of it! Actually, [you can say that it fell on the vessel] before he cut it, but perhaps at the time that he cut it, it was still moist. Granted [then] according to R. Joshua, a distinction is thus made, [as a demonstration] against the Sadducees.[18] For we have learnt: They used to render the priest that was to burn the [red] heifer unclean,[19] as a demonstration against the view of the Sadducees,[20] who used to say:[21] It must be performed [only] by those on whom the sun had set.[22] But according to R. Eliezer, granted if you say that in an other cases we do require sunset,[23] a distinction is thus made [as a demonstration] against the Sadducees, but if you say that in other cases [too] we do not require sunset, what distinction is there, [as a demonstration] against the Sadducees?[24] — Rab answered:

---

(1) Which possessed midras-uncleanness. J.T.: 'his sandal got torn off' (v. Tosaf. s.v. ונפסקה).

(2) Lit., 'air'.

(3) I.e., R. Hananiah, taught that a Rabbinic decree consequent upon a certain incident was always restricted to the actual circumstances of the incident. In our case, the occurrence was in connection with hallowed things; therefore the Rabbinic prohibition affects only hallowed things.

(4) V. Num. XIX.

(5) Since a person travelling in a ship does not touch the ground with his feet, the Rabbis enacted that anyone carrying water or ashes of purification may not journey with his feet lifted off the ground.

(6) The moment the piece of corpse was overshadowed by a person or object, it caused all under the same covering or overshadowing to become unclean for seven days: v. Num. XIX, 14 and Oh. II, 1.

(7) I.e., does the prohibition referred to in our Mishnah extend also to a person wearing a clean sandal?

(8) Into which nothing could fall.

(9) Who, we are afraid, may be suffering from gonorrhoea, in 'which case any fluid coming from him is a 'father of uncleanness;' cf. p. 143, n.6.

(10) Unobserved by the Associate.

(11) And cannot, therefore, be defiled.

(12) In Nid. VII, I, we learn that spittle etc. convey uncleanness when wet, but not when dry.

(13) Otherwise it would be specifically mentioned. Cf p. 121, n. 9.

(14) Cf. Kel. XVIII, 7.

(15) I.e., from the ground, so that it was still clean.

(16) R. Eliezer and R. Joshua agree that being a vessel, and therefore subject to defilement, the reed pipe has to be immersed and then used for the ashes of the red heifer before sunset, the underlying motive being to demonstrate against the Sadducees, who held that any thing or person to be employed in connection with the red heifer must, if unclean, first be completely purified, i.e., must wait for sunset after immersion; whereas the Rabbis held that immersion without sunset was sufficient; and although the Sadducean view in this case was stricter than the Pharisaic, the Rabbis nevertheless demonstrated against the Sadducees in order to uphold the authority of the Oral Law, which the latter repudiated. The only difference between R. Eliezer and R. Joshua is as to whether the vessel should first be defiled (and thus rendered unclean according to the Law of the Torah, which the Sadducees also recognized), or immersed forthwith (being regarded as unclean by Rabbinic enactment only). Cf. the defilement of the priest referred to on p. 147, and another demonstration against the Sadducees mentioned on p. 111.

(17) Seeing that the reed pipe is actually clean, the fact that we require its immersion without the awaiting of sunset cannot be regarded as a demonstration against the Sadducees, who postulate sunset only for the unclean; the immersion, therefore, would be pointless.

(18) For Once the reed pipe is defiled, the Sadducees require sunset In addition to Immersion.

(19) Either (according to Tosaf. who quotes the Tosef. in support) by his fellow priests laying their hands on him (for compared with him all were unclean; v. p. 121), or (according to Rashi and Maimonides) he was defiled by means of a (dead) reptile or an equivalent source of uncleanness.

(20) Lit., 'to bring forth (the false opinion) from the heart of the Sadducces'. The Mishnah, Par. III, 7' from which this passage is quoted, has simply, 'because of the Sadducees'.

(21) The Mishnah text has, 'that they should not say', and our reading as a var. lec.

(22) V. p. 146, n. 8.

(23) I.e., that an vessels finished in purity (in circumstances as described by Rabbah b. Shila) require sunset In addition to immersion before being used for hallowed things, and that only for the ashes of the red heifer is immersion alone sufficient.

(24) We must conclude, therefore, as suggested above, that our Mishnah is not according to R. Eliezer.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 23b

They rendered it as though defiled by a [dead] reptile.[1] — If so. it should not render a person unclean;[2] why then is it taught: He who cuts it and immerses it requires immersion? — [You must say], therefore, They rendered it as though defiled by a corpse.If so, it should require sprinkling on the third and seventh day; why then is it taught: He who cuts it and immerses it requires immersion? [implying only] immersion, but not sprinkling on the third and seventh day! — [You must say], therefore, They rendered it as though in its seventh day after defilement by a corpse.[3] But surely it is taught: They never introduced any innovation in connection with the [red heifer![4] — Abaye answered: [It means] that they never said that a spade. [for instance]. should be rendered unclean as a seat [on which a gonorrhoeist sat].[5] As it is taught: And he that sitteth on any thing:[6] I might [have thought] that if [the gonorrhoeist] inverted a se'ah [measure] and sat upon it, [or] a Tarkab[7] [measure] and sat upon it, it should become un clean, therefore the text teaches us: And he that sitteth on any thing whereon, [he that hath the issue] Sat ... shall become unclean;[8] [meaning] that which is appointed for sitting;[9] but that is excluded In regard to which we can say, Stand up that we may do our work.[10] A VESSEL UNITES ALL ITS CONTENTS [FOR DEFILEMENT] IN THE CASE OF HALLOWED THINGS, BUT NOT IN THE CASE OF TERUMAH. Whence is this deduced? R. Hanin said: Scripture says: One golden pan of ten shekels, full of incense:[11] thus, the verse made an the contents of the pan one. R. Kahana raised an objection: [We have learnt], R. Akiba added[12] [with regard to] the fine flour[13] and the incense, the frankincense and the coals,[14] that if one who had taken an immersion that day [but had not yet awaited sunset][15] touched a part thereof, he renders the whole in valid.[16] Now this is [an enactment] of the Rabbis![17] Whence [is this proven]? — Since it teaches in the first clause: R. Simeon b. Bathyra testified concerning the ashes of purification that if an unclean person touched a part thereof, he rendered the whole unclean; and then it teaches: R. Akiba added:[18] — Resh Lakish answered in the name of Bar Kappara

---

(1) I.e., you can still say our Mishnah is according to R. Eliezer, even if he holds the view that in other cases too we do not require sunset for vessels finished in purity, for here the vessel is made to assume the uncleanness of an object defiled by a (dead) reptile (in respect of communicating defilement), which object in all other cases requires sunset. Thus a distinction is made, which clearly rejects the Sadducean view.

(2) Only a ‘father of uncleanness’ can defile a person; whereas a vessel defiled by a dead reptile would be an ‘offspring of uncleanness’.

(3) I.e., as though in its seventh day after the sprinkling: it would still require immersion and could defile a person.

(4) Whereas the actual defilement of the priest (v. p. 147) does not involve any change in the laws of levitical purity. the attribution of corpse-defilement to the reed cut in purity represents a complete Innovation.

(5) A gonorrhoeist defiles an object on which he sits, making it a ‘father of uncleanness’ provided (as the following Baraitha explains) it is an object appointed for sitting. Now the Rabbis never enacted a new law in connection with the red heifer, whereby an object on susceptible to a given type of uncleanness should become susceptible to it, e.g.. that a spade should become defiled as the seat of a gonorrhoeist: in this sense they introduced no innovations. But they did not refrain from attributing to a vessel the kind of uncleanness to which it was susceptible, even though it had not actually been defiled. Thus the reed pipe, though clean, could be regarded as though defiled by a corpse, since it could be subject to corpse-defilement.

(6) Lev. XV, 6.

(7) Grk. , terkab (for another derivation v. Jastrow s.v.) == three kabs or a half se'ah, a dry measure.

(8) Heb. יטמא ; in the verse וטמא (‘and shall be unclean’).

(9) This is deduced apparently from the word ישב (‘sat’), which, being vocalized as the imperfect instead of the perfect (ישב), can imply repeated action i.e., that it did not just happen on this one occasion that someone sat on it, but that it was customary to use it as a seat (v. Rashi here and to Lev. XV, 4). B. Epstein in Torah Temimah (ibid. N. 20) explains the deduction to be drawn from the world כלי (E.V. ‘thing but really ‘vessel, article’) i.e., an article appointed for sitting.

(10) I.e., it excludes any article which has its own specific use and was not intended as a seat.

(11) Num. VII, 14 et passim.

(12) I.e., to R. Simeon b. Bathiyra's statement (quoted infra; v. ‘Ed. VIII, 1 (Sonc. ed., p. 47).

(13) Used for a meal-offering; cf. Lev. II, 1ff.

(14) Carried by the High Priest into the Holy of Holies for the purpose of producing the cloud of incense (cf. Lev. XVI, 12); this rule of defilement did not apply to the coals gathered every day by ordinary priests. It should be noted that though frankincense and coal are ordinarily not susceptible to uncleanness, they are rendered so in this case on account of their sanctity.

(15) Which would I have completed his purification; thus, he is still partially unclean and renders invalid (though he does not defile) Terumah and hallowed things.

(16) Because the vessel unites an its contents. The point in R. Akiba's addition is either (a) that a vessel is able to unite its contents even for invalidation and not for defilement only (Bertinoro); or (b) that even flat vessels, not hollowed like a receptacle, can unite their contents (Maim. following our Gemara; v. p. 150).

(17) Whereas R. Hanin derived the rule from the Torah.

(18) R. Simeon b. Bathyra's testimony is definitely of Rabbinic origin, for from the verse quoted above one could only deduce that the rule applied to offerings on the altar, but not to the ashes of the red heifer. Since R. Akiba's statement is an addition to a Rabbinic rule, it follows that it must itself be a Rabbinic enactment.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 24a

: It[1] refers only to the remains of the meal-offering,[2] for according to the Torah that which requires the vessel,[3] the vessel unites, that which does not require the vessel,[4] the vessel does not unite; and the Rabbis came and decreed that even though it does not require the vessel, the vessel should unite it. Granted with regard to the fine flour, but how are the incense and the frankincense to be explained?[5] — R. Nahman answered that Rabbah b. Abbuha said: For instance, if he heaped them upon a leather spread: according to the Torah, that which has an inside[6] can unite [its contents], that which has no inside, cannot unite [them]; and the Rabbis came and enacted that even that which has no inside should unite [its contents]. Now R. Hanin's teaching win conflict with that of R. Hiyya b. Abba, for R. Hiyya b. Abba said that R. Johanan said: This Mishnah[7] was taught as a resent of R. Akiba's testimony.[8] HALLOWED THINGS BECOME INVALID [BY UNCLEANNESS] AT THE FOURTH REMOVE. It is taught: R. Jose said: Whence [is it deduced] that hallowed things become invalid [by uncleanness even] at the fourth remove? Now it is [to be deduced by] conclusion ad majus: if one who [only] needs to bring his atonement sacrifice [in order to complete his purification][9] is, whilst being permitted [to partake] of terumah, [nevertheless] disqualified for hallowed things,[10] how much more so should uncleanness at the third remove, which renders terumah invalid,[11] produce in the case of hallowed things uncleanness at the fourth remove.[12] Thus, we learn uncleanness at the third remove in respect of hallowed things from the Torah, and uncleanness at the fourth remove by means of an a fortiori argument. Whence [do we deduce] from the Torah uncleanness at the third remove in respect of hallowed things? It is written: And the flesh that toucheth a thing unclean thing shall not be eaten;[13] we are surely dealing [here with a case] where it may have touched something suffering from uncleanness [even] at the second remove,[14] yet the Divine Law says it ‘shall not be eaten ‘Uncleanness at the fourth remove by means of? an a fortiori argument’; as we have said [above]. IN THE CASE OF TERUMAH, IF [ONE HAND OF A MAN] BECAME etc. R. Shezbi said: They taught [this only] of a case where [the hands] are connected,[15] but not where they are not connect ed.[16] Abaye put an objection to him: [It is taught]: A dry [unclean] hand renders the other unclean so as to render hallowed things unclean,[17] but not terumah this is the view of Rabbi. R. Jose son of R. Judah says: so as to render invalid,[18] but not unclean. Now granted, if you say that [it refers also to] a case where [the hands] are not connected, [then the fact that the hand is] ‘dry’ is in that case remarkable; but if you say that [it refers only to] a case where [the hands] are connected, but not where they are not connected, what is there remarkable about [the hand being] ‘dry’?[19] It is also[20] taught: Resh Lakish said: They taught [this only] of his [own hand], but not of the hand of his fellow.[21]

---

(1) I.e., R. Akiba's testimony.

(2) I.e.,the rule to which R. Akiba testified is certainly of Rabbinic origin; but this does not conflict with the view of R. Hanin who derives our Mishnah teaching from the Bible, for R. Akiba refers only to the remains of the meal eaten by the Priests (v. Lev. II, 3 et passim) to which the Biblical law (as the Gemara goes on to explain) does not apply.

(3) For the service in connection therewith, e.g., the incense; v. Num. VII, 14 quoted on p. 149.

(4) E.g., the remains of the meal-offering which are eaten by the priests.

(5) Since they require the vessel, the vessel unites them according to the law of the Torah: why then are they included in R. Akiba's testimony, which refers only to Rabbinical enactments?

(6) I.e., is hollowed like a receptacle.

(7) I.e., our Mishnah.

(8) I.e., it is of Rabbinic, not of Torah origin.

(9) V. p. 135, n. 4.

(10) V. Yeb. 74b (Sonc. ed., pp. 502-3).

(11) V. Sot. 29a (Sonc. ed., p. 143).

(12) Thus rendering the hallowed things invalid. For this method of argument cf. B.K. 24bff (Sonc. ed., p. 125ff). The principle of דיו לבא מן הדין להיות כנדון ('It is quite sufficient that the law in respect of the thing inferred should be equivalent to that from which it is derived') discussed ibid., does not apply here, for otherwise the 'a fortiori' argument becomes valueless, for we know from Scripture that uncleanness at the third remove invalidates hallowed things; and those, too, who hold the principle of 'Dayyo' even where the purpose of the 'a fortiori' argument is defeated, would nevertheless not apply it here, since we are dealing only with Rabbinical not Torah degrees of impurity.

(13) With reference to the flesh of peace-offerings; Lev. VII, 19.

(14) So that the hallowed flesh (of the peace-offering) is made to suffer uncleanness at the third remove. The Gemara assumes here that the term 'unclean thing,' can include something suffering from second-grade uncleanness, because we find that an object possessing uncleanness at the second remove is termed 'unclean' by Scripture; v. Lev. XI, 33, where the vessel possesses uncleanness at the first remove and its contents, therefore, uncleanness at the second remove.

(15) I.e., the rule in the Mishnah that one hand defiles the other for hallowed things applies only (according to Rashi) to a case where the unclean hand is actually touching the clean hand at the time when the latter is in contact with hallowed things, the reason for this Rabbinic enactment being the fear lest the unclean hand touch the hallowed things. But Tosaf. (s.v. בתי בורין) explains the case to be one where the clean hand is touching the unclean hand whilst the latter is in contact with a defiling object (e.g., a sacred Scroll), and we are afraid that the clean hand may also touch the defiling object.

(16) I.e., (according to Rash), if, after the unclean hand had been removed from the clean, the latter to touched hallowed things. these would remain clean, for one hand cannot convey to the other uncleanness even at the third remove so as to render, in turn, hallowed things invalid.

(17) I.e., at the third remove: third-grade uncleanness can, in turn, produce in hallowed things fourth grade uncleanness. Unwashed hands are generally regarded as possessing uncleanness at the second remove.

(18) I.e., the second hand can convey at the third remove to hallowed things a fourth-grade uncleanness, which disqualifies them but does not enable them to defile.

(19) If the case is one in which the hands are not connected, then the fact that the clean hand, through having been previously in contact with the dry unclean hand, is able to defile hallowed things constitutes a new point of Rabbinic law, viz., that one hand possessing uncleanness at the second remove can convey to the other hand, without the help of moisture, uncleanness of the same grade; were the unclean hand wet this would not, of course, be remarkable, for since second-grade uncleanness renders liquids, by Rabbinic enactment, unclean at the first remove, the moisture on the unclean hand would in turn convey to the other hand uncleanness at the second remove. But if the Mishnah refers only to a case where the hands are connected, the fact that the hand is dry is pointless. for the defilement of the hallowed things would in that in-stance perforce have to be accounted for as a preventive prohibition lest the unclean hand touch the hallowed things (v. p. 151, n. 6). and in that case it would make no difference whether the unclean hand were wet or dry, for since it possesses second-grade uncleanness, it can defile hallowed things with uncleanness at the third remove.

(20) [MS.M. omits 'also' which in fact is difficult to explain.]

(21) I.e., if he touched with his unclean hand another person's hand, the latter's hand is not defiled.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 24b

But R. Johanan said: Be it his [own] hand or the hand of his fellow; [and] with that[1] hand he can [defile the other hand][2] so as to render [hallowed things] invalid but not unclean.[3] Whence [is this deduced]? — From the fact that [the Mishnah] teaches in the second clause that the one hand defiles the other for hallowed things but not for terumah. Why am I told this again? Behold it has already been taught in the first clause![4] You must surely infer from this that it comes to include the hand of his fellow. And Resh Lakish, too, retracted; for R. Jonah said that R. Ammi said that Resh Lakish said: Be it his own hand or the hand of his fellow, with that hand [he can defile the other] so as to render [hallowed things] invalid but not unclean. Now [whether the second hand] renders [hallowed things] invalid but not unclean is [disputed by] Tannaim. For we have learnt: Whatsoever renders terumah invalid[5] defiles the hands with uncleanness at the second remove, and one hand renders the other unclean: this is the view of R. Joshua. But the Sages say: the hands possess uncleanness at the second remove, and that which possesses uncleanness at the second remove cannot convey uncleanness at the second remove to anything else.[6] Surely, [the meaning is], it cannot convey uncleanness at the second remove, but it can convey uncleanness at the third remove![7] — Perhaps, it does not convey uncleanness either at the second or the third remove![8] --Rather [is it disputed by] the following Tannaim. For it is taught: A dry [unclean] hand renders the other unclean so as to render unclean in the case of hallowed things, but not in the case of terumah: this is the view of Rabbi. R. Jose son of R. Judah says: That hand [can defile another] so as to render [hallowed things] invalid but not unclean. DRY FOODSTUFFS MAY BE EATEN WITH UNWASHED HANDS etc. It is taught: R. Hanina b. Antigonos said: Is there [a distinction in favour of] dryness in regard to hallowed things?[9] Does not then the honour[10] in which hallowed things are held render them fit [for uncleanness]?[11] It refers only to a case where his companion[12] inserted [the consecrated food] into his mouth,[13] or he himself picked it up with a spindle[14] or whorl,[15] and he wanted to eat unconsecrated horseradish or onion with it,[16] then in the case of hallowed things the Rabbis prohibited it,[17] in the case of terumah the Rabbis did not prohibit it.[18] A MOURNER [PRIOR TO THE BURIAL OF THE DECEASED] AND ONE WHO NEEDS TO BRING HIS ATONEMENT SACRIFICE [IN ORDER TO COMPLETE HIS PURIFICATION] etc. What is the reason? — Since up till now they were prohibited [from partaking of hallowed things],[19] the Rabbis required them to take an immersion. MISHNAH. GREATER STRINGENCY APPLIES TO TERUMAH [THAN TO HALLOWED THINGS], FOR IN JUDEA[20] THEY[21] ARE TRUSTED IN REGARD TO THE PURITY OF [HALLOWED] WINE AND OIL THROUGHOUT THE YEAR;[22] AND ONLY AT THE SEASON OF THE WINE-PRESSES AND OLIVE-VATS[23] IN REGARD TO TERUMAH. IF [THE SEASON OF] THE WINE-PRESSES AND OLIVE-VATS WAS PASSED, AND ONE[24] BROUGHT TO HIM[25] A JAR OF WINE OF TERUMAH, THE LATTER MAY NOT ACCEPT IT FROM HIM. HOWEVER, [THE ‘AM HA-AREZ] MAY LEAVE IT FOR THE COMING [SEASON] OF THE WINE-PRESS.[26] BUT IF HE SAID TO HIM,[27] ‘I HAVE SET APART THEREIN A QUARTER LOG[28] AS A HALLOWED THING’,[29] HE IS TRUSTED [IN REGARD TO THE PURITY OF THE WHOLE].[30] IN REGARD TO JUGS OF WINE AND JUGS OF OIL

---

(1) I.e., the first hand.

(2) [So Rash. Tosaf. (s.v. אחד fol. 24a) on the basis of another reading refers it to the hand of his fellow: ‘Be it his own hand or the hand of his fellow (that hand can defile) so as to render invalid etc.’]

(3) Resh Lakish on the other hand, holds, it appears, that the hallowed things are rendered unclean; cf. his retraction ‘Infra (v. Tosaf. ibid.).

(4) I.e., that In the case of hallowed things he must immerse both hands.

(5) I.e., any-thing suffering from second-grade uncleanness; cf. Zab. V, 12.

(6) I.e., one hand cannot convey the same grade of uncleanness to the other; this shows that R. Joshua holds the opposite view. The text in the Mishnah, apart from minor differences, omits the words ‘the hands possess uncleanness at the second remove’.

(7) Thus enabling it to invalidate terumah.

(8) I.e., the Sages may hold that since, as they observe, the hand possesses second-grade uncleanness, it cannot defile the other hand at an, so that, unlike our own mishnah, they would not accept any distinction in this respect between terumah and hallowed things. In other words, possibly the Tannaim do not differ as to whether the second hand invalidates or defiles hallowed things, but as to whether the second hand does or does not become defiled at all; on the view however that it does, an may agree with R. Joshua that it is rendered unclean at the second remove.

(9) This distinction obtains only in the case of unconsecrated food, which does not become susceptible to uncleanness till it has been once wetted (cf. p. 124, nn. 6f). R. Hanina b. Antigonos assumes that the Mishnah refers to consecrated foods and that their ‘dryness’ means that they have not yet been fitted for uncleanness.

(10) Lit., ‘love’.

(11) Following is the Tosefta reading, which differs in several respects from our passage: ‘R. H b. A. said: Is there (a distinction in favour of) dry things in regard to hallowed things? (It must refer to a case), therefore, where he picks up the cake with a spindle or a chip of wood and he eats with it an (unconsecrated) olive or onion; (it is permitted) in the case of terumah but not in the case of hallowed things’. The version of the Tosefta quoted by Tosaf. (s.v. לא) corresponds more nearly to our own, but likewise omits the sentence, ‘Does not then the honour in which hallowed things are held render them fit for (uncleanness)?’, and makes the answer appear to be part of R. H. b. A.’s statement instead of a reply by others to his question.

(12) Whose hands were leviticany clean.

(13) Because the eater's hands were not clean.

(14) Jast.: reed, especially reed used as spindle (v. Ar. s.v.); also as fork.

(15) Heb. כרכר ; Levy reads, כרכד from Grk.  ==  (shuttle). The spindle and whorl, being small flat pieces of wood, do not come within the category of ‘Kelim’ (vessels or articles), and consequently are not susceptible to defilement.

(16) For the hands, which possess second-grade uncleanness, do not defile dry unconsecrated foods, since the latter are not susceptible to uncleanness at the third remove (V. p. 155, n. 2).

(17) Lest his hands touch the consecrated food in his mouth, or defile it indirectly by rendering the saliva unclean.

(18) Though unclean hands can invalidate terumah, the Rabbis relied on the eaters of terumah taking due care, and imposed no prohibition in this case. According to the Gemara's explanation, therefore, the Mishnah does not refer to consecrated but to unconsecrated food; and ‘dry’ does not mean that the food had not become susceptible to uncleanness, but simply that it was dry at the moment for were it wet, then the hands would convey to the liquid uncleanness at the first remove (cf. P. 152, n. 4), which would render the unconsecrated food unclean at the second remove, and the latter in turn would disqualify the terumah by conveying to it uncleanness at the third remove (so Rashi here). Another view (refuted by Rashi here, although accepted by him apparently in his note to the Mishnah) takes ‘dry’ to mean that the unconsecrated food had not yet been fitted for uncleanness.

(19) And also of Second time, but lot of terumah, v. Yeb. 68b (Sonc. ed., p. 458).

(20) V. infra p. 156.

(21) The ‘amme ha-arez.

(22) If an ‘am ha-arez set aside wine and oil for Temple use (for libations and meal-offerings respectively) during the seasons of the winepresses and olive-vats, he may be trusted in regard to their purity throughout the year (for another explanation v. Tosaf. s.v. שביהודה). For though an ‘am ha-arez, could not be trusted in respect to terumah, he could be relied up on strictly to observe the laws of purity in respect to hallowed things.

(23) When everyone can be trusted to purify his vessels: cf. Toh. IX, .

(24) V. n. 5; lit., ‘they’.

(25) I.e.,an Associate priest.

(26) And then give it to the priest.

(27) I.e., the ‘am ha-arez owner to the priest.

(28) A log == six eggs.

(29) I.e., he had put a quarter log of wine in a vessel to be used as a drink-offering.

(30) For since he is trusted in regard to the hallowed things, i.e., the drink-offering, he is also trusted in regard to the terumah.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 25a

THAT ARE MIXED UP,[1] THEY ARE TRUSTED DURING THE SEASON OF THE WINE-PRESSES AND THE OLIVE-VATS AND PRIOR TO [THE SEASON OF] THE WINE-PRESSES SEVENTY DAYS.[2] GEMARA. In Judea but not In Galilee: what is the reason? Resh Lakish said: Because a strip of [land inhabited by] Cutheans[3] separates them.[4] — Let it be brought then in a box, chest or turret![5] — This is according to Rabbi, who said: A tent in motion is not to be considered a tent.[6] For it is taught: One who enters Gentile territory in a box, chest or turret, Rabbi declares to be unclean, and R. Jose b. Judah to be clean.[7] — But let it be brought in an earthenware vessel fitted with a close-bound covering![8] R. Eliezer[9] said: They teach:[10] Hallowed things are not protected[11] by a close-bound covering. — But it is taught: The [water of] purification is not protected by a close-bound covering. Surely this implies that hallowed things are protected! — No, it implies that water which is not yet sanctified[12] is protected by a close-bound covering.[13] — But ‘Ulla said: The Associates prepare [their hallowed things][14] in purity in Galilee![15] — They let them remain; and when Elijah comes[16] he win purify them.[17] AND ONLY AT THE SEASON OF THE WINE-PRESSES AND OLIVE VATS IN REGARD TO TERUMAH. Now we shall point to a contradiction. He[18] who finished [gathering] his olives, let him leave[19] one basket [for terumah] and give it to a poor priest![20] — R. Nahman said: There is no contradiction: the one [Mishnah][21] refers to early-ripening [olives],[22] and the other refers to later ripening [olives].[23] Said R. Adda b. Ahaba to him: Which [are caned late-ripening]? Like those of your fathers. R. Joseph said: They taught this of Galilee.[24] Abaye put an objection to him: Transjordania and Galilee are like Judea: they are trusted [there] In regard to the wine during the wine-season, and in regard to the oil during the oil-season; but not in regard to the wine during the oil-season, and not in regard to the oil during the wine-season? — The best [explanation],[25] therefore, is that which was given at first.[26] IF [THE SEASON OF] THE WINE-PRESSES AND OLIVE-VATS WAS PASSED, AND ONE BROUGHT TO HIM A JAR OF WINE OF TERUMAH, THE LATTER MAY NOT ACCEPT IT FROM HIM. HOWEVER, [THE ‘AM HA-AREZ,] MAY LEAVE IT FOR THE COMING [SEASON] OF THE WINE-PRESS. R. Shesheth was asked: If [the priest] transgressed and accepted It, may he leave it for the next [season of the] winepress?-He answered them: Ye have learnt it:

---

(1) Explained in Gemara (p. 161) to mean that unconsecrated wine terumah and drink-offering are mixed together, though, as a rule, the expression is a technical term for the admixture of secular produce with terumah in proportions sufficient to make the whole prohibited to non-priests. המדומעות In (‘mixed up’) is f. pl. part. pu'al, from (pi'el), denom. of דמע == ‘(sacred) fruit’, from rt דמע == ‘flow, weep’; cf. Ex. XXII, 28.

(2) When it is customary to begin purifying the vessels for the wine. Though normally the ‘am ha-ares is not trusted in regard to his jugs even during the vat-season, in this case he is trusted, because he is believed in regard to the drink-offering therein; v. p. 161, n. 1.

(3) I.e., Samari-tans; v. II Kings XVII, 24, 29, and J.E. vol. IV, p. 398. For the Talmudic attitude to Samaritans, v. /.E. vol. X, p. 672f (s. Religion). For censorial influence on word, v. last, s.v. כותי .

(4) The Sages declared heathen territory to be unclean, for fear of defilement by an undiscovered grave; v. Shab. 14b-15a. Thus even Associates could not bring sacred things (e.g., libations) from Galilee to the Temple, which was in Judah.

(5) I.e., a kind of chest or case. These receptacles, it is held, could protect their contents against defilement.

(6) I.e., such a receptacle. technically termed a tent, does not protect its contents from defilement.

(7) V. Naz. 55a (Sonc. ed., p. 204 notes).

(8) V. Nun,. XIX, 15.

(9) Read with MS.M.: R. Eleazar.

(10) Heb. שונין an unusual expression for a Baraitha teaching, for which the most common formula is תניא (it is taught).

(11) Lit., ‘delivered’, . sc. from defilement.

(12) I.e., the ashes of the red heifer had not yet been put in.

(13) And may afterwards be used with the ashes for sprinkling.

(14) I.e., their wine and oil for Temple use (Rashi).

(15) Which, Implies that there is a way of transporting them in purity to the Temple.

(16) Rashi reads, ‘Maybe Elijah win come’. For the concept of Elijah as the solver of an religious controversies and legal disputes v. Men. 45b; Ab. R. N. xxxiv; Num. l lab. III, near the end. For the general Rabbinic concept of Elijah v. J.E. pp. 122-127.

(17) I.e., reveal a path by ‘which the hallowed things can be brought, which does not lead through heathen territory. [The

Associates, accordingly, who lived during the Temple times and who were anxious to express their devotion, to it, would prepare their wine and oil in purity in the expectation that Elijah might come and direct them, through a clean path enabling them to bring these to the Temple. Rashi, Nid. 6b, refers this to the period after the Destruction of the Temple, when the Associates would follow this practice in the expectation that the Temple might be rebuilt in their days.]

(18) I.e., an ‘am ha-arez.

(19) Var. lec., ‘and left’.

(20) Heb. לעני (ה)כהן (this reading is supported by Maimonides) i.e., the ‘am ha-arez, must give the olives to the priest before they become susceptible to uncleanness, so that the priest may prepare the olive-oil himself in purity. A poor priest is mentioned, because a rich one would not accept such terumah, as he would not wash to bother himself with the pressing of a small quantity of olives. But ‘Aruk and Tosaf and so apparently Rashi (v. Tosaf.) read, לעיני הכהן , ‘in the presence of the priest , I.e., so that the priest may be sure that the olives have not been rendered susceptible to uncleanness. According to either reading this Mishnah snows that the ‘am ha-arez is not to be trusted even during the season, and thus contradicts our own Mishnah.

(21) l.e., our own.

(22) Which are gathered at the normal season: consequently the ‘am ha-arez is trusted.

(23) Since these are gathered after the normal season, the ‘am ha-ares is no longer trusted in regard to terumah.

(24) The second Mishnah (Toh. IX, 4), according to which the ‘an ha-arez not to be trusted at all, refers to Galilee, whereas our own Mishnah according to which the ‘am ha-ares is to be trusted during the proper season, expressly refers to Judah. Tosaf. a.I. explains that the Galileans were rich and produced so much olive oil that their season continued much later.

(25) Lit., ‘the white (explanation)’.

(26) I.e., R. Nahman's.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 25b

If an Associate and an ‘am ha-arez inherited [jointly] from their father, who was an ‘am ha-arez, [the Associate] may say to the other: ‘Take thou the wheat that is in one place, and I [shall take] the wheat that is In the other place; [or] take thou the wine that is in the one place, and I [shall take] the wine that is in the other’. But he may not say to him: ‘Take thou the liquid [produce] and I [shall take] the dry;[1] [or] take thou the wheat and I [shall take] the barley’,[2] And it is taught with , regard to this: That Associate burns the liquid [produce][3] and leaves the dry. Why now? Let him leave it for the coming [season of the] wine-press! — [It refers] to something which has no pressing [season].[4] — Let him leave it then for the [next] Festival![5] — [It refers] to something which cannot be kept till the Festival. BUT IF HE SAID TO HIM, I HAVE SET APART THEREIN A QUARTER LOG AS A HALLOWED THING’, HE IS TRUSTED [IN REGARD TO THE PURITY OF THE WHOLE]. We have learnt there: Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel agree that for the purpose of preparing the Passover sacrifice one may investigate [a field containing a ploughed grave],[6] but not for the purpose of eating terumah.[7] What is meant by ‘investigate’? — Rab Judah said that Samuel said: A man blows [on the ground][8] of a Beth ha-Peras[9] [grave area] and proceeds. But R. Hiyya b. Abbah in the name of ‘Ulla said: A Beth ha-peras which has been trodden is clean.[10] In the case of those who go to prepare the Passover sacrifice, [the Sages] did not maintain their enactment[11] where kareth [extinction][12] was involved; in the case of those who go to eat terumah, they maintained their enactment where death [at the hands of Heaven] was involved.[13] A question was asked: If one investigated [a Beth Peras] for his Passover sacrifice, may he [also] eat his terumah? Rabbah b. ‘Una said: If one investigated [a Beth Peras] for his Passover sacrifice, he may not [also] eat his terumah. Said an old [scholar] to him: Do not dispute with ‘Ulla, for we have learnt according to his view: BUT IF HE SAID TO HIM, ‘I HAVE SET APART THEREIN A QUARTER-LOG AS A HALLOWED THING’, HE IS TRUSTED [IN REGARD TO THE PURITY OF THE WHOLE]. Thus, since he is trusted in regard to hallowed things, he is trusted also in regard to terumah.[14] Likewise In our case, since he is credited [to be clean] in regard to the Passover sacrifice, he is credited [to be clean] also in regard to terumah. IN. REGARD TO JUGS OF WINE AND JUGS OF OIL etc. A Tannna taught: They are not trusted either in regard to the casks or in regard to the terumah. Casks of what? If they are casks of hallowed things, then since they are trusted in regard to the hallowed things, they are to be trusted also in regard to the casks! If, on the other hand, they are casks of terumah, this is obvious? For if they are not trusted in regard to terumah, are they to be trusted in regard to the casks! it must refer, therefore, to empty [casks] of hallowed things[15] at any time of the year,[16] or to full [casks] of terumah at the time of the vats.[17] We have learnt: IN REGARD TO JUGS OF WINE AND JUGS OF OIL THAT ARE MIXED UP: surely [it means] mixed up with, terumah![18] — The School of R. Hiyya said: [It means] mixed up with hallowed things. — But does 'mixing up' obtain in the case of hallowed things?[19] The School of R. Ila'i said: It is a case where he prepares his untithed produce[20] in purity in order to take therefrom drink-offerings.[21] PRIOR TO [THE SEASON OF] THE WINE-PRESSES SEVENTY DAYS. Abaye said: From this is to be deduced that it is obligatory on the aris [tenant][22] to see to the provision of the jugs seventy days before the pressing-season.

MISHNAH. FROM MODI'IM[23] INWARDS[24] [THE POTTERS] ARE TRUSTED IN REGARD TO EARTHENWARE VESSELS; FROM MODI'IM OUTWARDS THEY ARE NOT TRUSTED.[25] FOR INSTANCE: IF THE POTTER WHO SELLS THE POTS ENTERED[26] INWARDS OF MODI'IM, THEN THE SAME POTTER[27] IN REGARD TO THE SAME POTS[28] AND IN REGARD TO THE SAME BUYERS[29] IS TRUSTED. BUT IF HE WENT OUT [FROM MODl'IM OUTWARDS] HE IS NOT TRUSTED.

GEMARA. A Tanna taught: Modi'im [itself] is sometimes [considered] as inwards, sometimes as outwards. For instance: If the potter is going Out and the Associate is coming in,[30] it is [considered] as inwards.[31] If both are coming in

---

(1) The former being susceptible to uncleanness, but not the latter.

(2) In regard to each kind of produce, the Associate may chose for himself the produce that has not been rendered susceptible to uncleanness, or which he knows still to be clean. But he is not entitled to exchange one kind of produce for another11 the heritage, and by so doing he would transgress Lev. XIX, 14, ('nor put a stumbling-block before the blind'). The principle (as Rashi explains) on which this Mishnah is based is that of ברירה (retrospective selection or designation; v. last. s.v.), which applies to different parts of the same produce, but not to different kinds of produce, because on the father's death a share in each kind of produce comprising the heritage falls in each heir.

(3) I.e., if he is a priest and inherits oil which is terumah, he nay use it for kindling his lamp.

(4) I.e., no special manufacturing season, e.g., beer or meat. According to this explanation, 'burn' means 'destroy'.

(5) When the produce of the 'am ha-arez, is considered clean: v. pp, 165-6.

(6) I.e., if a man who is going to prepare his Passover sacrifice must traverse a field containing a ploughed grave, he may walk through the field provided he investigates his path so as to avoid defilement by contact with splintered bones; for bones from the size of a barley grain (unless they comprise a quarter-kab of the larger bones or the greater number of the bones, when they defile in accordance with the law of tent-covering'; v. p , 56, n. 6 and Oh. II, 1) defile only when touched or carried.

(7) Investigation cannot be relied upon; v. p, 160, n. 5.

(8) In order to blow away from his path any bone-splinters large enough to de-file by contact (v. supra, n. 6): the bigger bones he would see and avoid.

(9) פרס == 'half' sc. furrow (cf Tosef. Neg. VII, 10, where Peras == 'half a loaf'. בית פרס (the area of, i.e., a square, Peras) is a technical term for a field, the area of fifty square cubits (a square halffurrow) rendered unclean on account of crushed bones carried over it from a ploughed grave; v. M.K. 5b and D.S. a.l. note; Oh. XVII, 1 where ten cubits represents the size of the full furrow; and Nid. 57a. The above explanation of Beth Peras follows Jastrow's view (v. Dict. s. פרס) and adopts the reading חצי מענה ('half a furrow') instead of the usual reading מלא מענה ('a full furrow') In M.K. 5b. I Rashi (to Nid. 57a) explains Peras from rt. meaning 'to break' i.e., an area of crushed bones; Maim. (to Oh. XVII) from rt. meaning 'to extend' i.e., area of extension; v. also Levy s.v.

(10) It should be investigated then by seeing whether it has been trodden or not.

(11) The uncleanness of a Beth Peras is a Rabbinic law.

(12) כרת = הכרת (Niph. infin.), 'to be cut off'; cf. the recurrent Pentateuchal formula, 'that soul shall be cut off from among his people'. It is a term for divine punishment (opp. to מיתה capital punishment) incurred for thirty-six kinds of transgression (v. Ker. I, 1), including neglect to offer the Passover sacrifice at the proper time; v. Num. IX, 13. The nature of the punishment is variously explained: (a) childlessness (Rashi to Shab. 25a, s. ונכרת); (b) premature death (M .K. 28a); (c) extinction of soul (Sanh. 64b). Maim. (Teshubah Ch. VIII) holds that kureth means that the soul perishes completely; but this view is controverted by Nahmanides (Comm. to Pentateuch end of אחרי).

(13) E.g., for wittingly eating terumah when he was unclean. Kureith is the severer penalty; nevertheless the Rabbis waived their enactment regarding a Beth Peras in the case of the Passover sacrifice, because it has a fixed time. But in the case of terumah, for the eating of which there is no fixed time, the priest must either avoid the Beth Peras by taking a longer route, or else if he traverses it, he must purify himself in accordance with the law of corpse-defilement, before partaking of the terumah (cf. our passage in Pes. 92b with Rashi and Tosaf. a.l.).

(14) For it would be unseemly that part of the wine should be offered as a libation, whilst another part, intended as terumah, should be considered unclean.

(15) Once the hallowed contents have been emptied out, the 'am ha-arez cannot be relied upon in regard to the purity of his vessels. —

(16) In regard to hallowed things, there is no distinction between the vat-seasons and the rest of the year.

(17) Though the 'am ha-ares was trusted at the appropriate pressing-season in regard to the terumah, in order that the Associate priests might not be deprived of the greater part of their dues, he was not trusted in regard to the vessels (cf. p. 163, 'And do not wonder, etc.'). Thus the priest could not accept the terumah in the original vessels, but had to empty it into his own.

(18) And yet he is trusted, the Mishnah tells us, in regard to the vessels! V. p. 156, n. 6.

(19) 'Mixing up' necessarily obtains in the case of terumah, because an untithed produce contains a part which must event many be set apart as terumah; but not so hallowed things, which have not perforce to be separated from the untithed produce. V. next note.

(20) Heb. tebel i.e., produces in that stage in which the separation of levitical and priestly shares respectively is required before one may partake of them; eatables forbidden pending the separation of sacred gifts. tebel, however, is not subject to tithes until it is brought home (Jast. s.v. טבל).

(21) I.e., unconsecrated produce, hallowed produce, and terumah are all mixed together; and since he is trusted in regard to the hallowed produce, he is also trusted in regard to both the terumah and the vessels on the principle explained on p. 161, n. 1.

(22) A sub-farmer who tills the owner's ground for a given share in the produce.

(23) In Mishnah edd., Modi'ith; also occurs as Moda'ith and Modi'im. V. I Macc. II,1. Described in pes. 93fi (q.v.) as fifteen mil — each of two thousand cubits or three thousand five hundred feet — from Jerusalem. Perhaps it is to be identified with the modern Amdiyeh, seventeen miles north-west of Jerusalem.

(24) I.e., towards Jerusalem.

(25) l.e., potters, who are 'amme ha-arez are trusted within this radius from Jerusalem in regard to small, essential earthenware vessels like pots and cups, because no furnaces, whether for pottery or lime, were permitted in Jerusalem on account of the smoke.

(26) Note the var. lec. in the Gemara quotation (v. p. 163, n. 4).

(27) I.e., who brought the vessels inwards of Modi'im; but should be transfer them to another potter (who is an 'am ha-ares) they may not be purchased.

(28) I.e., which the potter himself bought; but he is not trusted in regard to vessels he may have acquired from a local potter.

(29) I.e., only if the Associate buyers themselves saw the potter bring the vessels in, may they buy them from him.

(30) I.e.,if the potter enters Modi'im from inwards and the Associate from out-wards.

(31) As the potter is leaving the inward area, the Associate is permitted to buy from him, in order that he should not be left without vessels.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 26a

or both are going Out [it is considered] as outwards.[1] Abaye said: We have also learnt [accordingly]: IF THE POTTER WHO SOLD THE POTS ENTERED INWARDS OF MODI'IM.[2] Thus, it is only because it is inwards of Modi'im [that he is trusted], but in Modi'im itself he is not trusted. Consider now the latter part [of the Mishnah]: IF HE WENT OUT, HE IS NOT TRUSTED. THUS, IN MODI'IM ITSELF HE IS TO BE TRUSTED! It is clearly, then, to be deduced from this, that, in the one case,[3] the potter is going out and the Associate is coming in; In the other case, both are going out or both are coming in. Proven. A Tanna taught: They are trusted [only] in regard to small earthenware vessels for hallowed things.[4] Resh Lakish said: only if they can be taken in one hand. But R. Johanan said: Even if they cannot be taken in one hand. Resh rakish said: They taught this Only of empty [vessels], but not of fun ones. But R. Johanan said: Even of fun ones, and even if his head-covering[5] is in it. Raba said: But R. Johanan admits that the liquid itself is unclean.[6] And do not wonder at the [anomaly] for in the case of a jar full of liquid, the jar is unclean for seven days, but the liquid is clean.[7] MISHNAH. IF TAX-COLLECTORS ENTERED A HOUSE,[8] AND SIMILARLY IF THIEVES RESTORED [STOLEN] VESSELS[9] THEY ARE BELIEVED IF THEY SAY: WE HAVE NOT TOUCHED [ANYTHING]'.[10] AND IN JERUSALEM THEY[11] ARE TRUSTED IN REGARD TO HALLOWED THINGS,[12] AND DURING A FESTIVAL[13] ALSO IN REGARD TO TERUMAH.

GEMARA. Now we shall point to a contradiction: If tax collectors entered a house, the whole house is rendered unclean![14] — There is no contradiction: In the one case, a Gentile was with them;[15] in the other case, there was no Gentile with them. For we have learnt: If a Gentile is with them, they are believed if they say, ‘We have not entered [at all]’; but they are not believed if they say, ‘We entered but we did not touch [anything]’. — What difference does it make if a Gentile be with them? R. Johanan and R. Eleazar [explain it]: one says, They are afraid of the Gentile;[16] the other says. They are afraid of the Government.[17] What is the practical difference between then? — There is [a practical difference] between them when the Gentile is not of high standing.[18] AND SIMILARLY IF THIEVES RESTORED [STOLEN] VESSELS. Now we shall point to a contradiction: If thieves entered a house, It is not rendered unclean, except for the place where the feet of the thieves have trodden![19] — R. Phinehas said in the name of Rab:[20] [The Mishnah speaks of a case] when they have repented.[21] It is moreover to be deduced, for [the Mishnah] teaches: [If the thieves] restore the vessels.[22] Proven. AND IN JERUSALEM, THEY ARE TRUSTED IN REGARD TO HALLOWED THINGS. A Tanna taught: They are trusted in regard to large earthenware vessels for hallowed things.[23] Why an this?[24] — Because no furnaces were erected in Jerusalem.[25] AND DURING A FESTIVAL ALSO IN REGARD TO TERUMAH. Whence is this deduced? — R. Joshua b. Levi said: Scripture Says: So all the men of Israel were gathered against the city, associated[26] as one man:[27] thus the verse made them an Associates.[28] MISHNAH. IF [AN ASSOCIATE] OPENED HIS JAR [OF WINE] OR BROKE INTO HIS DOUGH [TO SELL THEM] ON ACCOUNT OF THE FESTIVAL,[29] R. JUDAH SAYS,[30] HE MAY FINISH [SELLING THEM AFTER THE FESTIVAL];[31] BUT THE SAGES SAY, HE MAY NOT FINISH.[32] GEMARA. R. Ammi and R. Isaac Nappaha[33] sat in the anteroom[34] of R. Isaac Nappaha. One began and said: May he leave it for another Festival?[35] — Said the other to him: The hands of an touch it, and you say, Leave it for another Festival! Said the former: Did not, till now, the bands of an touch it?[36] — [The other] replied to him: What a comparison! It is alright up to now, because the Divine Law purified the uncleanness of the ‘am ha-arez a during the Festival, but now it is unclean [retrospectively].[37] Shall we say that Tannaim differ thereon?[38] For one [Baraitha] taught: He may leave it for another Festival; and another [Baraitha] taught: He may not leave it for another Festival. Sure]y, Tannaim differ thereon! — No; the one [Baraitha], which teaches that he may leave it, is according to R. Judah; the other which teaches that he may not leave it, is according to the Rabbis. But can you possibly think so! Behold, R. Judah said: He may finish [selling them]![39] — Rather, [the Baraitha] which teaches that he may not leave it is according to R. Judah, and the one that teaches that he may leave it is according to the Rabbis:[40] and ‘he may not leave it’ means that there is no need for him to leave it.

MISHNAH. AS SOON AS THE FESTIVAL WAS OVER, THEY CLEARED UP[41] FOR THE PURIFICATION OF THE TEMPLE COURT, IF THE FESTIVAL TERMINATED ON FRIDAY, THEY DID NOT CLEAR UP ON ACCOUNT OF THE HONOUR DUE TO THE SABBATH.[42] R. JUDAH SAID: NEITHER ON THURSDAY,[43] FOR THE PRIESTS WERE NOT [YET] FREE.[44] GEMARA. A Tanna taught: For the priests were not [yet] free from [the prior duty of] removing the ashes.[45] MISHNAH. HOW DID THEY CLEAR UP FOR THE PURIFICATION OF THE TEMPLE COURT? THEY IMMERSED THE VESSELS WHICH WERE IN THE TEMPLE, AND THEY USED TO SAY TO THEM:[46] ‘TAKE HEED

---

(1) In the first case, the Associate must wait till the potter comes inwards of Modi'im; in the second case, since the Associate did not avail himself of the opportunity of buying before he reached the city, he may no longer do so. It follows, a foriori, that if the Associate is going outward and the potter coming inward, that the former must return and buy his vessels in the inward area.

(2) V. supra p. 162, n. 5.

(3) I.e., the latter.

(4) I.e.,the statement in the Mishnah that from Modi'im inwards the potters are trusted in regard to earthenware vessels, refers only to small vessels for hallowed things, which are essential to the pilgrims, but not to large vessels like wine jars, which may be bought only in Jerusalem itself (v. p. 165).

(5) אפיקרסותו ; also אפקרסותו אפקרסין ; cf. Peshita to Judg. XIV, 2 for Heb. סדינים , Goldschmidt trails: ‘Kopfhulle’; Levy, ‘Hulle’; Jast., ‘underwear’. Rashi annotates: Even if they are fun of his own liquid, which is not hallowed! Whatever the exact signification of the word, the general meaning is clear: even if his profane things are in it, the vessel is considered clean; (v. however, D.S. II. 40). MS.M. has: ‘Even if his head-covering fell therein

(6) Though the containing vessel is clean.

(7) V. p. 141, nn. 4-5.

(8) I.e., if Jewish tax-collectors, acting on behalf of a non-Jewish government. entered a Jewish house in order to seize pledges for the taxes due. Cf. Toh. VII, 6.

(9) Or simply ‘articles’.

(10) I.e., they are trusted in regard to hallowed things but not terumah; so Rashi, who regards the whole of our Mishnah as a further exemplification of leniency in regard to hallowed things as compared with terumah (v. p. 155f); the Tosef., that he quotes in support of his view, corresponds to the reading in our edd. Tosaf. (s.v. הגבאין), on the other hand, refers the Mishnah to terumah as well and quotes in support a different version of the same Tosef. statement.

(11) I. e., the ‘amme ha-arez.

(12) V. Gemara infra p. 165.

(13) When an are considered to be clean; cf. p. 165, n. 11 and p. 166.

(14) I.e., an the utensils are to be regarded as unclean, for it is to be presumed that the tax-collectors touched them.

(15) I.e., in the latter case, the tax-collectors are not believed if they say that they have not to touched, because they are bound, in the presence of the Gentile, to have searched everything.

(16) Lest he punish them.

(17) Lest the Gentile inform against them.

(18) In which case he himself has not the power to punish them, but he is able to inform against them.

(19) Now if the place on which they stood is unclean, then certainly the vessels they took and are now returning must be unclean!

(20) In Yeb. 22b, R. Papa; in B.M. 62a, Raba; in B.K. 94b and Sanh. 85a simply: As R. Phinehas said.

(21) I.e., only if, in consequence of their repentance, they restored the stolen vessels, are they believed, in accordance with our Mishnah, if they say that they have not been touched.

(22) Showing their repentance.

(23) And, a fortiori, in regard to small vessels. The J.T. distinctly states that they are trusted in regard to the purity of an vessels for hallowed things.

(24) The question refers also to the regulations regarding small vessels contained in the preceding Mishnah (p. 162).

(25) For making either small or large vessels. Consequently, permission was granted to buy vessels from the ‘am ha-arcs. In the case of small vessels, which were in greater demand, the permission was extended to a fifteen mile radius round Jerusalem; in the case of large vessels, purchase was permitted only in Jerusalem.

(26) E.V. ‘knit together’.

(27) Judg. XX, 11.

(28) Similarly, at Festivals when all the men of Israel were gathered', they were to be regarded as Associates.

(29) Although the goods are touched by 'amme ha-ares, they remain clean throughout the Festival (cf. p. 164, n. 6).

(30) The order of the disputants is reversed in Rashi.

(31) Otherwise the vendors win be discouraged from sending their goods, and the pilgrims will not have sufficient food; v. Bez. 11b.

(32) I.e., he may not send the goods, because they are considered unclean retrospectively (v. infra n. 8 and cf. next Mishnah).

(33) I.e., 'smith'.

(34) Lit., 'curtain'; 'curtained enclosure'.

(35) The question refers to the view of the Sages in the Mishnah, i.e., may the goods be kept till the following Festival, when again an are regarded as clean?

(36) I.e., during the Festival so many amme ha-arez touched it, and yet it is considered clean throughout the festive period.

(37) An Associate may never sell unclean goods; and although throughout the Festival the goods were held to be clean, immediately after the Festival the concession ceases, and the goods become retrospectively unclean, because they were touched by 'amme ha-arez.

(38) I.e., on the question raised above as to whether the wine etc. may be left for another Festival.

(39) After the Festival and need not leave them over for the next Festival.

(40) Rashi reverses the order of the disputants; cf. p. 165, n. 12.

(41) Lit., 'removed', sc. the utensils, which, having been touched during the Festival by 'amme ha-arez, now become retrospectively unclean.

(42) Every priest had to make preparations for the Sabbath, in his own home.

(43) But waited tin after the Sabbath.

(44) V. Gemara.

(45) Which, were piled up during the whole of the Festival in the centre of the altar, called Tappuah (Apple); v. Tam. II, 2.

(46) I.e., to the 'amme ha-arez priests who went to prostrate themselves in the Hekal (i.e., the Holy Hall where the golden altar etc. stood). Ordinary Israelites, on the other hand, were not permitted to pass even between the Entrance Hall and the altar.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 26b

THAT YE TOUCH NOT THE TABLE [AND THUS RENDER IT UNCLEAN]'.[1] ALL THE VESSELS THAT WERE IN THE TEMPLE HAD SECOND AND THIRD SETS, SO THAT IF THE FIRST WERE RENDERED UNCLEAN, THEY MIGHT BRING A SECOND SET IN ITS PLACE. ALL THE VESSELS THAT WERE IN THE TEMPLE REQUIRED IMMERSION,[2] EXCEPT THE ALTAR OF GOLD[3] AND THE ALTAR OF BRONZE,[4] FOR THEY WERE ACCOUNTED AS THE GROUND:[5] THIS IS THE VIEW OF R. ELIEZER. BUT THE SAGES SAY: BECAUSE THEY WERE OVERLAID [WITH METAL].[6]

GEMARA. A Tanna taught: 'Take heed lest ye touch the Table or the Candlestick'. — Why does not our Tanna mention the Candlestick? — In connection with the Table, there is written [the word] 'Tamid' [perpetual];[7] in connection with the Candlestick, there is not written [the word] 'Tamid'.[8] And the other [Tanna]?[9] — Since it is written: And the Candlestick over against the Table,[10] it is as though [the word] 'Tamid' were written in connection there-with.[11] And the other [Tanna]?[12] -That [verse] comes merely to fix its place. But I can, [on the contrary,] deduce it[13] from the fact that [the Table] is a wooden utensil made for resting [things on it],[14] and any wooden utensil made for resting [things on it] is not subject to uncleanness! — What is the reason? — We require it to be like a sack:[15] Just as a sack is movable both fun and empty, so everything that is movable both full and empty [is susceptible to uncleanness].[16] This, too, is movable both fun and empty. As Resh Lakish [said]: for Resh Lakish said: What is the meaning of the verse, Upon the clean, table?[17] , The inference is that it is susceptible to uncleanness. But why? It is a wooden utensil made for resting [things on it], and cannot, therefore, contract unclean ness! It teaches, therefore, that they used to lift it and show thereon to the Festival pilgrims the showbread, and to say to them: Behold the love in which you are held by the Omnipresent; it is taken away as [fresh as] it is set down. For R. Joshua b. Levi said: A great miracle was Performed in regard to the showbread: As [fresh as] It was when set down, so was it taken away. For it is said: To put hot bread it the day when it was taken away.[18] But I can deduce this[19] from the fact that it is overlaid![20] For behold we have learnt: If a table or a side-table[21] was damaged,[22] or was overlaid with marble,[23] but room was left[24] for setting cups thereon,it remains susceptible to uncleanness.[25] R. Judah said: There must be room [also] for Setting Portions [of food thereon].[26] And should you say, Acacia wood[27] is valuable and is not nullified [by the plating], this would be quite right according to Resh Lakish, who said: They taught this[28] only of utensils of common wood,[29] which come from overseas, but utensils of polished wood[30] are not nullified But what can one say according to R. Johanan, who said: Even vessels of polished wood become nullified [by the plating]? And should you say: The one [Mishnah] refers to a fixed[31] covering, the other to a covering that is not fixed,[32] behold Resh Lakish asked R. Johanan: [Does it[33] apply only] to a fixed covering, or [also] to a covering that is not fixed? [Only] to overlaid rims, or [also] if the rims are not overlaid? And he answered him: It makes no difference whether the covering is fixed or the covering is not fixed; whether the rims are overlaid or the rims are not overlaid! Rather, [must you say], the Table is different

---

(1) I.e., the table of the showbread, which could not be removed for immersion since the showbread was to he on it continually, v. Gemara. Some texts add: ‘And the Candlestick’; but v. p. 168.

(2) On account of the uncleanness contracted during the Festival.

(3) V. Ex. XXX, 1ff.

(4) V. Ex. XXVII, 1ff and I Kings VIII,64.

(5) Utensils of earth are not susceptible to uncleanness;.v. pp. 170- 171 and cf. Sheb. X, 7; Uk, III, 10.

(6) Explained infra 27a; cf. Kel. XI, 2, 4, 6.

(7) V. Ex. XXV, 30 (‘always’).

(8) Actually, the word ‘Tamid’ is used of the Temple lamp (cf. Ex. XXVII, 20, ‘to cause a lamp to burn continually’); but, as Rashi points out, it has not the same meaning when applied to the Candlestick as when applied to the Table. In the case of the latter, ‘perpetual’ means ‘day and night’, for the showbread remained on the Table from Sabbath to Sabbath. In the case of the former, it merely means ‘every night’, as the expression from evening unto morning’ (ibid. XXVII, 21) indicates (v. Men. 89a); thus, the Candle-stick could be removed during the day. For a similar use of the word ‘Tamid’ cf. Ex. XXIX, 38 and Lev. VI, 13. For the difficulty raised by the statement in Tam. 30b that the western lamp of the Candlestick burned an day, v. Tosaf. a.I. (s.v.מנורה).

(9) I.e., why does the Tanna of the Baraitha include the Candlestick?

(10) Ex. XXVI, 35.

(11) I.e., the meaning of the verse is — so.long as the Table is there so long must the Candlestick be over against it.

(12) I.e., why does the Tanna of our Mishnah exclude the Candlestick?

(13) I.e., the insusceptibility of the Table to uncleanness.

(14) So Jast. and Levy; But Rashi explains: a wooden utensil intended to rest in one place; and Goldschmidt translates: ‘Ein ruhendes Holzger_t’.

(15) I.e., in order to be susceptible to uncleanness, we require a wooden utensil to be like a sack, for they are mentioned together in one verse (Lev. XI, 32) in respect of defilement.

(16) This would exclude wooden vessels not intended to be moved at all or such as cannot be moved when fun because of their liability to break i.e., a vessel containing forty se'ahs of liquid or two kors of dry goods.

(17) Lev. XXIV, 6.

(18) I Sam. XXI, 7. I.e., it was still ‘hot breath in the day when it was taken away’.

(19) I.e., that the Table was susceptible to uncleanness even though intended for resting things on it (or to rest in one place).

(20) With gold; since metal utensils are not likened to a sack, they are susceptible to defilement even if they are not intended to be moved.

(21) דולפקי (delphica, sub. mensa) a three-legged table used as a toilet table or a water, contrad. from שלחן (eating table); (last.).

(22) If it is so damaged as to be useless for its original purpose, it becomes insusceptible to uncleanness.

(23) Stone vessels are not susceptible to uncleanness.

(24) I.e., part of the table was left undamaged or uncovered with marble.

(25) Because it is still useful for its original purpose.

(26) Otherwise, it does not serve the purpose of a table, and consequently becomes insusceptible to uncleanness. For a fuller explanation of the principles involved, v. תפארת ישראל to the Mishnah, Kel. XXII, 1. According to either view, however, it is evident that an object's insusceptibility to uncleanness is dependent on the covering: if the marble can render a table unsusceptible to defilement, then a fortiori, the gold plating renders the Sanctuary Table susceptible to defilement.

(27) Of which the Table was made: v. Ex. XXV, 23.

(28) I .e., that the covering is an-important and nullifies the wood.

(29) Or foresters' apparel (i.e.,leather covers), Jast. Aliter (on basis of other reading): camping apparel', Jast.; Levy: eingewirkte Kleidungst_cke.

(30) Probably coral-wood (so Jast.). Levy 'Kostbare Holzart' (s.v. מסימם).

(31) Lit., 'standing', i.e., fixed e.g., with nails.

(32) The covering of the Temple Table (of which our Mishnah speaks) was not fixed.

(33) I.e., the Mishnah of the table and side-table, which teaches that the susceptibility of the table to uncleanness depends on the covering.

Talmud - Mas. Chagigah 27a

for the Divine Law cans it Wood.[1] For it is written: The altar, three cubits high, and the length thereof two cubits, was of food, and so the corners; the length thereof and the walls thereof, were also of wood; and he said unto me: 'This is the table that is before the Lord'.[2] — [The verse] begins with the altar and ends with the table! R. Johanan and Resh Lakish both explain: At the time when the Temple stood, the altar used to make atonement for a person; now a person's table makes atonement for him.[3] ALL THE VESSELS IN THE TEMPLE HAD SECOND SETS ETC. THE ALTAR OF BRONZE'[4] for it is written: An altar of earth[5] thou shalt make unto Me.[6] 'THE ALTAR OF GOLD', for it is written: The candlestick and the altars;[7] thus, the altars are likened one to another. BUT THE SAGES SAY: BECAUSE THEY WERE OVERLAID [WITH METAL]. On the contrary, since they were overlaid, they were susceptible to uncleanness![8] — Read: 'But the Sages declared them Unclean because they were overlaid'. Or, alternatively, I can explain: The Rabbis say it to R. Eliezer: What have you in mind?[9] The fact that they were overlaid?[10] But their Plating was quite nullified in regard to them.[11] R. Abbahu said that R. Eleazar said: The fire of Gehinnom[12] has no power over the Scholars. It is an ad majus conclusion [to be drawn] from the salamander.[13] If now [in the case of] the salamander, which is [only] an offspring of fire, he who anoints himself with its blood is not affected by fire, how much more so the Scholars, whose whole body is fire, for it is written: Is not My word like as fire? saith the Lord.[14] Resh Lakish said. The fire of Gehinnom has no power over the transgressors of Israel. It is an ad majus conclusion [to be drawn] from the altar of gold. If the altar of gold, on which there is only a denar thickness of gold,[15] is not affected through so many years by the fire, how much less so the transgressors of Israel, who are full of good deeds[16] as a pomegranate [is of seeds]; for it is written, Thy temples are like a pomegranate split open.[17] Read not 'thy temples' [rakkathek] but 'thy worthless ones' [rekanim shebak].[18]

---

(1) Even when overlaid. Hence, it has to be regarded as a wooden utensil made for resting things on it, and, but for the fact that it used to be lifted to exhibit the showbread on it, would not be susceptible to uncleanness.

(2) Ezek. XLI, 22.

(3) Through the hospitality shown to poor guests. Cf. R. Johanan's statements about 'a mouthful of food' at the end of San. 103b (Sonc. ed., p. 705).

(4) Sc. is accounted as the ground.

(5) Understood here to refer to the altar of bronze; but v. Tosaf s.v. מזבח.

(6) Ex. XX, 24.
(7) Num. III, 31.
(8) For were they not overlaid with metal, they would belong to the category of wooden utensils made for resting things on them which are insusceptible to uncleanness (v. p. 168).
(9) I.e., what is your reason for declaring the altars to be insusceptible to uncleanness solely on the ground that Scripture terms them earth, but not because they are utensils made for resting things on them?
(10) And are consequently to be regarded as metal vessels, which are susceptible to uncleanness.
(11) Because Scripture terms them ‘wood’ (Ezek. XLI, 22; cf. p. 170).
(12) V. p. 82, n. 1.
(13) A fabulous animal generated in fire which, according to the Midrash, must burn incessantly for seven days and nights; but Rashi here postulates seven years, and the Aruch (s.v.) seventy years. For a fun account of the legend, v. J. E. vol. X, pp. 646-7.
(14) Jer. XXIII, 29.
(15) Denarius, v. Glos. For Moses wonder at the miracle, v. Tosaf. s.v. ושאין .
(16) Lit., ‘precepts’.
(17) Cant. IV, 3.
(18) Lit., ‘thy empty ones’. The thought is the reverse of Eccl. VII, 20; there is none in Israel that sinneth, and yet doeth not good, for even the transgressors, devoid of merit as they may seem, still have innumerable good deeds to their credit.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 2a

C H A P T E R I

MISHNAH. FIFTEEN [CATEGORIES OF] WOMEN EXEMPT THEIR RIVALS[1] AND THE RIVALS OF THEIR RIVALS[2] AND SO ON, AD INFINITUM,[3] FROM THE HALIZAH[4] AND FROM THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE;[5] AND THESE ARE THEY: HIS DAUGHTER,[6] THE DAUGHTER OF HIS DAUGHTER[7] AND THE DAUGHTER OF HIS SON;[7] THE DAUGHTER OF HIS WIFE,[8] THE DAUGHTER OF HER SON AND THE DAUGHTER OF HER DAUGHTER; HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW,[9] HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW'S MOTHER,[10] AND HIS FATHER-IN-LAW'S MOTHER;[10] HIS MATERNAL SISTER,[11] HIS MOTHER'S SISTER,[11] HIS WIFE'S SISTER AND HIS MATERNAL BROTHER'S WIFE;[12]

---

(1) Heb., zarah, צרה ‘rival’. Where a husband has move than one wife, each woman is a zarah in relation to the other. The term is derived from צרר which signifies oppression, hence ‘rival’, ‘adversary’, as in I Sam. I, 6 (cf. Kimhi a.l.). or ‘to tie up’, ‘to bind’, hence ‘associate’, ‘co-wife’.

(2) The co-wives of a rival through a second marriage.

(3) עד סוף העולם lit., ‘to the end of the world’.

(4) חלצה (rt. חלץ, ‘to take off’ or ‘to loosen’), the ceremony of drawing off the shoe of the brother of her husband who died without issue. According to Biblical law (v. Deut. XXV, 5-9) the brother-in-law must either marry the widow (v. following note) or be subjected to halizah.

(5) יבום, rt. יבם ‘to marry the levir’. Any woman coming under the fifteen categories enumerated below is not only herself exempt from halizah and yibbum but exempts also her own rivals as well as the rivals of her rivals, ad infinitum, as explained anon.

(6) Who had been married to his brother who subsequently died childless. Since he is forbidden to marry his daughter he is thereby also forbidden to marry any of her rivals, the widows of his deceased childless brother. ‘HIS DAUGHTER’ includes even one born to him as a result of outrage, v. infra.

(7) Cf. previous note. All the fifteen categories enumerated are among the near relatives whom a man is forbidden to marry in accordance with the explicit and implicit prohibitions in Lev. XVIII, 6ff.

(8) From a former husband.

(9) Who, after the death of her husband, had married his brother who subsequently died childless.

(10) The prohibition to marry in this case is derived in Sanhedrin 75a from Lev. XVIII, 17.

(11) Who was married to his paternal brother. The laws of the levirate marriage and halizah are applicable to a paternal, but not to a maternal brother.

(12) Who, after the death of her husband, had married his paternal brother.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 2b

THE WIFE OF HIS BROTHER WHO WAS NOT HIS CONTEMPORARY,[1] AND HIS DAUGHTER-IN-LAW.[2] ALL THESE EXEMPT THEIR RIVALS AND THE RIVALS OF THEIR RIVALS, AND SO ON, AD INFINITUM, FROM THE HALIZAH AND FROM THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE. IF, HOWEVER, ANY AMONG THESE[3] DIED,[4] OR MADE A DECLARATION OF REFUSAL,[5] OR WERE DIVORCED, OR WERE FOUND INCAPABLE OF PROCREATION, THEIR RIVALS ARE PERMITTED;[6] THOUGH, OF COURSE, ONE CANNOT SAY OF A MAN'S MOTHER-IN-LAW, OF THE MOTHER OF HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW AND OF THE MOTHER OF HIS FATHER-IN-LAW THAT THEY WERE FOUND INCAPABLE OF PROCREATION OR THAT THEY MADE A DECLARATION OF REFUSAL.[7]

HOW IS THE EXEMPTION OF THEIR RIVALS [BY THE WOMEN MENTIONED], TO BE UNDERSTOOD? IF A MAN'S DAUGHTER OR ANY OTHER OF THESE FORBIDDEN RELATIVES WAS MARRIED TO HIS BROTHER WHO HAD ALSO ANOTHER WIFE [AT THE TIME] WHEN HE DIED, THEN AS HIS DAUGHTER IS EXEMPT SO IS HER RIVAL

EXEMPT. IF HIS DAUGHTER'S RIVAL WENT AND MARRIED A SECOND BROTHER OF HIS,[8] WHO ALSO HAD YET ANOTHER WIFE WHEN HE DIED, THEN AS THE RIVAL OF HIS DAUGHTER IS EXEMPT SO IS ALSO HIS DAUGHTER'S RIVAL'S RIVAL EXEMPT, EVEN IF THERE WERE A HUNDRED [BROTHERS].[9]

HOW [IS ONE TO UNDERSTAND THE STATEMENT THAT] IF THEY HAD DIED, THEIR RIVALS ARE PERMITTED?[10] IF A MAN'S DAUGHTER OR ANY OTHER OF THESE FORBIDDEN RELATIVES WAS MARRIED TO HIS BROTHER WHO HAD ALSO ANOTHER WIFE, THEN, IF HIS DAUGHTER DIED OR WAS DIVORCED, AND HIS BROTHER DIED SUBSEQUENTLY, HER RIVAL IS PERMITTED.[10]

THE RIVAL OF ANY ONE WHO IS ENTITLED TO MAKE A DECLARATION OF REFUSAL[11] BUT DID NOT EXERCISE HER RIGHT, MUST PERFORM HALIZAH [IF HER HUSBAND DIED CHILDLESS], AND MAY NOT CONTRACT LEVIRATE MARRIAGE.[12]

GEMARA. Consider: All these[13] are deduced from the [exemption of] a wife's sister.[14] Why then was not HIS WIFE'S SISTER mentioned[15] first?[16] And if it be replied that the Tanna enumerated[17] [the forbidden relatives] in the order of the degrees of their respective severity,[18] and that it [our Mishnah] represents the view of R. Simeon who regards burning[19] as the severest,[20] [it may be retorted that], if that is the case,[21] HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW should have been mentioned[16] first, since [Scripture] enunciated the principle of burning in the case of a mother-in-law.[22] And, furthermore, HIS DAUGHTER-IN-LAW should have come[15] immediately after HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW, since, next to burning, stoning[23] is the severest penalty! — But [this in fact is the proper reply]: Since [the prohibition of intercourse with] ‘HIS DAUGHTER’[24] has been arrived at by exposition[25] it is given preference.[26]

---

(1) Lit., ‘in his world’, i.e., who died before he was born. Such a brother's widow and her rivals etc. are exempt. If, for instance, C was born after his brother A had died childless, so that his widow, N married (in accordance with the laws of the levirate marriage) a contemporary brother of his, B, who had another wife, or wives, and B also died childless, all B's widows are exempt from halizah and yibbum as far as C is concerned on account of N who is forbidden to him.

(2) Who married his brother after the death of his son. The marriage of a daughter-in-law is forbidden for ever, even after the death of one's son.

(3) Lit., ‘(in the case of) all of them’.

(4) Prior to the death of her husband who subsequently died childless.

(5) Such a declaration, mi'un מיאון, may be made against her husband (without any further necessity for a divorce) by a wife, while she is a minor, or as soon as she becomes of age, prior to cohabitation, in cases where she was betrothed either (a) as an orphan, by her mother or brothers or (b) even in the lifetime of her father (v. infra 109a) if she was once divorced (after her father had contracted for her a betrothal) and was betrothed again while still a minor.

(6) I.e., levirate marriage may be contracted, or halizah must be performed.

(7) For, having given birth they must be of age.

(8) Whenever one of the surviving brothers is not related to either of the widows, but another brother is, it is his duty to perform the levirate marriage or to submit to halizah.

(9) Everyone of whom had also another wife or wives and the rival's rival married them in turn, ad infinitum.

(10) V. p. 2, n. 7.

(11) A minor (V. supra, p. 2, n. 6).

(12) V. Gemara infra.

(13) Exemptions enumerated in our Mishnah.

(14) V. infra.

(15) Lit., ‘let him teach’.

(16) In the list.

(17) Lit., ‘took’.

(18) The degree of the severity of the penalty incurred by sexual intercourse with one of these relatives.

(19) The death penalty incurred for sexual intercourse with one of the first eight categories enumerated in our Mishnah. V. Sanh. 75a.
(20) Of the four death penalties. V. Sanh. 49b.
(21) Lit., 'if so'.
(22) Lev. XX, 14.
(23) The penalty for intercourse with one's daughter-in-law. V. Sanh. 53a.
(24) I.e., born as a result of outrage. V. supra p. 1, n. 6.
(25) V. infra.
(26) Lit., 'beloved to him'.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 3a

[The law, surely,] concerning all the others also was arrived at[1] by exposition![2] — Granted that in respect of [exemption from] the levirate marriage [the law in relation to them] was arrived at by exposition, the principle of prohibition [of sexual intercourse] with them has been explicitly enunciated in Scripture, [while as regards] his daughter[3] the very principle underlying the prohibition [of intercourse with her] has been arrived at by exposition; for Raba[4] stated: R. Isaac b. Abdimi told me, 'Hennah[5] is derived from hennah[6] and zimmah[7] is derived from zimmah'.[8]

Now that it has been stated that preference is given to whatever is arrived at by exposition, the Tanna should have placed[9] HIS WIFE'S SISTER last![10] — As he was dealing with a prohibition due to sisterhood[11] he mentioned also HIS WIFE'S SISTER. Then let him relegate[9] the entire passage[12] to the end![13] — But [this is really the explanation]: The Tanna follows the order of the respective degrees of kinship. He, therefore, mentions [first] HIS DAUGHTER, THE DAUGHTER OF HIS DAUGHTER AND THE DAUGHTER OF HIS SON because they are his own next of kin; and since he enumerated three generations of his relatives in descending order he enumerated also three generations of her[14] relatives in descending order. Having enumerated three generations of her[14] relatives in descending order he proceeded to enumerate also three generations of her relatives in ascending order. He then mentions HIS SISTER and HIS MOTHER'S SISTER who are his blood[15] relatives;[16] and while dealing with prohibitions due to brotherhood he also mentions HIS WIFE'S SISTER. And it would indeed have been proper that HIS DAUGHTER-IN-LAW should be placed before THE WIFE OF HIS BROTHER WHO WAS NOT HIS CONTEMPORARY, since it is not on account of kinship[17] that the latter is forbidden, but as he was dealing with a prohibition due to brotherhood he mentioned also THE WIFE OF HIS BROTHER WHO WAS NOT HIS CONTEMPORARY and then mentioned HIS DAUGHTER-IN-LAW.

What argument can be advanced for using[18] the expression EXEMPT[19] and not that of[20] 'prohibit'?[21] — If 'prohibit' had been used it might have been assumed that the levirate marriage only was forbidden but that halizah[22] must nevertheless be performed,[23] hence it was taught[24] [that halizah also need not be performed]. Let it then be stated,[25] 'She is forbidden to perform halizah![26] — No harm, surely, is thereby done.[27] But why indeed should not [the expression of prohibition be applicable to halizah]? If you were to say that halizah is permissible, [one might say that] levirate marriage is also permitted![28] — As a rival[29] is forbidden only where the commandment [of the levirate marriage] is applicable but is permitted where the commandment is not applicable,[30] it was therefore necessary to use the expression, EXEMPT.[31]

What justification is there for stating, FROM THE HALIZAH AND FROM THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE when it would have been sufficient to state[32] FROM THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE only?[33] — If FROM THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE only had been stated it might have been assumed that she must perform halizah[34] though she is exempt from the levirate marriage, hence it was taught[35] that whoever is subject[36] to the obligation of levirate marriage is also subject to halizah and whosoever is not subject to the obligation of the levirate marriage is not subject to halizah.

Let it [first] be stated,[37] FROM THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE [and then] FROM THE HALIZAH,[38] or else only FROM THE HALIZAH?[39] — This Mishnah represents the view of Abba Saul who maintains that the commandment of halizah takes precedence over that of levirate marriage.[40]

What [was intended] to be excluded [by the] numeral at the beginning[41] and what [again was intended] to be excluded [by the] numeral at the end?[42]

---

(1) In respect to their exemption from the levirate marriage.

(2) By deduction from the law of a wife's sister.

(3) V. n. 2.

(4) Others, ‘Rab’, who was a disciple of R. Isaac b. Abdimi, v. Tosaf. s.v. דאמר a.l.

(5) הנה (‘they’ or ‘theirs’) in Lev. XVIII, 10 which deals according to Talmudic interpretation with the daughter of his son, or of his daughter that was born from an outraged woman, but not with the daughter herself.

(6) Ibid. v. 17 which places a daughter on the same footing as a son's and a daughter's daughter. By this analogy the inference is arrived at that intercourse even with a daughter from an outraged woman is forbidden.

(7) זמה (‘lewdness’ or ‘wickedness’), ibid. where the penalty of burning is not mentioned.

(8) Ibid. XX, 14 where the penalty of burning with fire is explicitly stated. Thus it is shown that the very foundation of the prohibition of sexual intercourse with a daughter from an outraged woman, as well as the death penalty of burning which the crime involves, are entirely dependent on inferences arrived at by exposition, v. Sanh. 51a.

(9) Lit., ‘let him teach’.

(10) In the list in our Mishnah; since, as will be shewn infra, the exemption from levirate marriage in respect of all the others is derived by exposition from ‘his wife's sister’.

(11) ‘His mother's sister’, v. our Mishnah.

(12) Which deals with the prohibitions through sisterhood.

(13) Of the list.

(14) His wife's.

(15) Lit., ‘his own’.

(16) While a daughter-in-law is not consanguineous.

(17) A daughter-in-law should, consequently, receive priority.

(18) In our Mishnah.

(19) Which might imply that the levirate marriage in these cases is not obligatory but optional.

(20) v. supra p. 4, n. 13.

(21) Since, in fact, no marriage with a deceased brother's widow is permitted whenever the obligation of the levirate marriage does not exist.

(22) V. Glos.

(23) Since a prohibition could not very well apply to halizah which is a harmless act, the expression of ‘prohibit’ in respect of halizah would have been interpreted as a ‘prohibition to be married to anyone before halizah had been performed’.

(24) By the use of the expression, ‘exempt’.

(25) In our Mishnah.

(26) And, consequently, the expression ‘prohibit’ which is preferable to that of ‘exempt’ (v. supra notes 6 and 8) could well be used for the levirate marriage.

(27) Lit., ‘what does he do’, i.e., there is no reason why halizah should be forbidden. Hence the expression of ‘prohibit’ could not properly be used.

(28) The expression of ‘prohibit’ in relation to halizah could, consequently, properly have been used. Why then was ‘exempt’ preferred to ‘prohibit’?

(29) Of one's daughter, for instance.

(30) If his daughter, e.g., had married one who was not his near of kin, her rival, on the death of her husband, is not forbidden to marry the father; v. infra 13a.

(31) ‘Prohibit’ might have implied that a daughter, e.g., always causes her rival to be prohibited to her father whether the precept of the levirate marriage is applicable or not.

(32) Lit., ‘let him teach’.

(33) It is obvious that if one is exempt from the levirate marriage there could be no question of being subject to halizah which is only the result of a refusal to contract the prescribed marriage.

(34) In order that the law of the levirate marriage be not entirely abrogated.

(35) By the use of the expression, exempt’.

(36) Lit., ‘goes up’ sc. to the gate, i.e., the court (cf. Deut. XXV, 7.)

(37) In our Mishnah.

(38) The marriage surely is of greater importance than the halizah, the latter being only an alternative of the former. V. Deut. XXV. 7.

(39) The exemption from the marriage being then self-evident.

(40) Infra 39b, 109a. And if only FROM THE HALIZAH had been stated, there would be no basis for this inference.

(41) Of our Mishnah, ‘FIFTEEN’.

(42) Of the list; ‘ALL THESE’, implying the ‘FIFTEEN’ mentioned. If nothing were to be excluded, there would be no need for the addition of a cardinal at the beginning, or of a reference to it at the end of a list which presumably enumerated all possible cases.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 3b

— [They were intended] to exclude the respective rulings of Rab and R. Assi.[1] What, [however, do the numerals] exclude according to Rab and R. Assi? — If they share each other's views, one numeral would serve to exclude the rival of one who made a declaration of refusal,[2] and the other to exclude the rival of a wife whom [her husband] remarried after having divorced her.[3] If they do not share the views of each other, [each would regard] one [numeral as serving] to exclude the ruling of his colleague;[4] and the other numeral, as serving to exclude either the rival of one who made a declaration of refusal[2] or the rival of a wife whom [her husband] remarried after having divorced her.[3]

According to Rab and R. Assi these[5] should have been enumerated in our Mishnah! — [This could not be done] because the law of the rival's rival[6] is not applicable [to these cases].[7]

Whence is this law[8] derived?[9] — [From] what our Rabbis taught: And thou shalt not take a woman to her sister, to be a rival to her, to uncover her nakedness, ‘aleha [beside her] in her lifetime,[10] what need was there for the expression ‘‘aleha’?[11] Because it was stated, Her husband's brother shall go in ‘aleha [unto her],[12] it might have been imagined[13] that Scripture[14] speaks even of any of all the forbidden relatives enumerated in the Torah. Hence it was here[10] stated, ‘‘aleha’[15] and elsewhere[12] it was also stated ‘‘aleha’.[16] Just as elsewhere it is in the case of a precept[17] so here also it is in the case of a precept;[17] and yet did not the All Merciful say, Thou shalt not take.[18] We are thus in a position to know the law concerning herself;[19] whence do we derive the law concerning her rival? — From the Scriptural expression, To be a rival to her.[10] We have so far deduced the law concerning her rival only. Whence do we arrive at the law concerning her rival's rival? — From the fact that Scripture uses the expression li-zeror[20] and not that of la-zor.[21] Thus we have deduced the law concerning a wife's sister, whence is the law concerning the other forbidden relatives to be inferred? — It can be answered: As a wife's sister is singled out in that she is a forbidden relative, the penalty for presumptuous intercourse with her is kareth[22] and for unwitting intercourse a sin-offering, and she is forbidden to the levir, so also any woman who is a forbidden relative, and the penalty for presumptuous intercourse with whom is kareth[22] and for unwitting intercourse a sin-offering, is forbidden to the levir. Now we know the law concerning themselves only;[23] whence is the law con cerning their rivals deduced? — It may be answered: As a wife's sister is singled out in that she is a forbidden relative, kareth is incurred by presumptuous intercourse with her and a sin-offering for unwitting intercourse, and she is forbidden to the levir, and her rival is forbidden, so also in the case of any woman who is a forbidden relative, and for presumptuous intercourse with whom is incurred the penalty of kareth and for unwitting intercourse a sin-offering, and who is forbidden to the levir, her rival is forbidden. Hence have the Sages said: FIFTEEN [CATEGORIES OF] WOMEN EXEMPT THEIR RIVALS AND THEIR RIVALS' RIVALS, AND SO ON, AD INFINITUM, FROM THE HALIZAH AND FROM THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE. One might assume that the six more rigidly forbidden relatives[24] are also included in the ruling,[25] so that their rivals also[26] are forbidden,[27] hence it must be stated:[28] As a wife's sister is singled out in that she is a forbidden relative, kareth is incurred for presumptuous intercourse with her and a sin-offering for unwitting intercourse, she may be married to the other brothers, but is forbidden to the levir, and her rival is forbidden, so also in the case of any woman who is a forbidden relative, for presumptuous intercourse with whom is incurred the penalty of kareth and for unwitting intercourse a sin-offering, who may marry one of the other brothers, but is forbidden to the levir, her rival also is forbidden; excluded, however, are the six more rigidly forbidden relatives. Since they may not be married to the other brothers, their rivals are permitted; for [the law of] 'rival'[29] is applicable only [to widows] of a brother.[30]

Thus we have deduced the prohibition. Whence, however, is the penalty inferred? — Scripture said, For whosoever shall do any of these abominations etc. [shall be cut off from among their people.][31]

The reason,[32] then, is because the All Merciful has written, ''aleha',[33] otherwise it would have been said that levirate marriage may be contracted with the wife's sister; what is the reason? Is it because we assume that a positive precept,[34] supersedes a negative precept?[35] Surely, it is possible that[36] the rule that a positive precept supersedes a negative precept applies only where the latter is a mere prohibition; does it, however, supersede a prohibition involving the penalty of kareth?[35] Furthermore, whence is it derived that it may supersede even a mere prohibition?

---

(1) Infra 11a and 12a.

(2) A minor who was one of the wives of a deceased childless brother, on declaring her refusal to marry the levir, exempts thereby her rivals from the levirate marriage but not from halizah.

(3) If one of the widows of a deceased brother was divorced once, and then remarried to him after she had married another man, she causes the exemption of her rivals from the levirate marriage, v. infra 11b. The halizah, however, must be performed.

(4) According to Rab that of R. Assi, and vice versa.

(5) The subjects of their respective rulings, i.e., the sotah (v. Glos.) and the barren wife, who, they maintain, infra 11a, 11b, exempt their rivals both from the levirate marriage and from halizah.

(6) V. our Mishnah.

(7) Since neither a sotah nor a barren woman may marry any one of the brothers.

(8) Of our Mishnah, that forbidden relatives as well as their rivals and rivals' rivals, ad infinitum, are exempt from the levirate marriage and from halizah.

(9) Lit., 'whence these words'.

(10) Lev. XVIII, 18.

(11) Which does not add any point to the law enunciated.

(12) Deut. XXV, 5.

(13) Lit., 'I hear'.

(14) Since it drew no distinction between a brother's wife who was a forbidden relative and one that was not forbidden.

(15) I.e. , 'beside her'.

(16) I.e., 'unto her'. In both cases the respective terms 'beside her' and 'unto her' are expressed by the same Heb. word עליה.

(17) That of levirate marriage.

(18) Two sisters, Lev. XVIII, 18. The verse in Lev. thus means that the prohibition of marrying the wife's sister is in force even where she is his dead brother's widow, in regard to whom the precept, 'her husband's brother shall go in unto her', might apply.

(19) Lit., ‘there is not to me but she’, sc. the forbidden relative herself.
(20) לרור ‘to be a rival’,
(21) לצר ‘to oppress’, the longer form li-zeror implies many rivals, i.e., rivals of the rivals. The last question and answer are deleted by R. Tam and Nahmanides. Cf. הגהות הגר א
(22) V. Glos.
(23) The forbidden relatives.
(24) Enumerated infra 13a.
(25) Relating to the other forbidden relatives.
(26) If they and their rivals were married to a stranger.
(27) To marry the man whom the forbidden relatives themselves are not allowed to marry.
(28) Lit., ‘say’.
(29) I.e., the rival's exemption from the levirate marriage and halizah.
(30) Where one of the widows is a forbidden relative of one of the surviving brothers and no forbidden relative of the deceased. As the relative is forbidden to marry the brother, her rival also is forbidden to him as ‘his brother's wife’. Where the relative, however, is married to a stranger, her rival is permitted to those to whom the relative herself is forbidden.
(31) Lev. XVIII, 29.
(32) Why a wife's sister is forbidden the levirate marriage.
(33) V. the texts from Lev. and Deut. and the analogy supra.
(34) The commandment of the levirate marriage.
(35) The prohibition to marry one's wife's sister.
(36) Lit., ‘say’.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 4a

— Because[1] it is written, Thou shalt not wear a mingled stuff . . .[2] Thou shalt make thee twisted cords,[3] and R. Eleazar said,[4] ‘Whence is the rule of proximity [of texts] derived from the Torah?[5] As it is said, They are established[6] for ever and ever, they are done in truth and uprightness.’[7] Furthermore, R. Shesheth stated[8] in the name of R. Eleazar who stated it in the name of R. Eleazar b. Azariah: Whence is it proved that a sister-in-law, who falls to the lot of a levir who is afflicted with boils, is not muzzled?[9] From the Biblical text, Thou shalt not muzzle the ox when he treadeth out the corn,[10] and in close proximity to it is written If brethren dwell together.[11] Furthermore R. Joseph said: Even he who does not base interpretations on the proximity [of Biblical texts] anywhere else does base them [on the texts] in Deuteronomy,[12] for R. Judah who does not elsewhere base any interpretations [on textual proximity], bases such interpretations on the Deuteronomic text.[13] And whence is it proved that elsewhere he[14] does not advance such interpretation?[15] — From what has been taught: Ben ‘Azzai said, It was stated, Thou shall not suffer a sorceress to live,[16] and it is also stated, Whosoever lieth with a beast shall surely be put to death;[17] one subject was placed near the other to indicate that as the man who lies with a beast is to suffer the death penalty of stoning so also is a sorceress to suffer the death penalty of stoning. Said R. Judah to him: Shall we, because one subject was placed in close proximity to the other, lead out a person[18] to be stoned? In truth[19] [the penalty of the sorceress is derived from the following]: The necromancer and the charmer were included among the sorcerers; why then were they mentioned separately?[20] In order that the others may be compared to them, and to tell you that as the necromancer and the charmer are subject to the death penalty of stoning,[20] so is a sorceress also subject to the penalty of stoning.

And whence is it proved that in Deuteronomy he[21] does advance such interpretation?[15] — From what we learned: A man may marry a woman who has been outraged or seduced by his father or his son. R. Judah prohibits in the case of a woman outraged or seduced by one's father.[22] And in connection with this, R. Giddal said in the name of Rab: What is R. Judah's reason? Because it is written, A man shall not take his father's wife, and shall not uncover his father's skirt,[23] the ‘skirt’ which his father saw he shall not uncover. And whence is it inferred that this is written with reference to an outraged woman? — From the preceding section of the text where it is written, Then the man that lay with her shall give unto the damsel's father fifty shekels of silver[24] near which it is stated, A man shall not take etc.[25] And the Rabbis?[26] — If one text had occurred in close proximity to the other the exposition would have been justified;[27] now, however, that it does not occur in close proximity[28] [it must be concluded that] the context speaks of a woman who is awaiting the decision of the levir[29] and that, [in marrying such a woman, a son][30] transgresses two negative precepts.[31]

And what is the reason why [R. Judah] derives laws [from the proximity of texts] in Deuteronomy? — If you wish I might say: Because [there the deduction][32] is obvious; and if you prefer I might say: Because [there the text] is superfluous.[33] 'If you prefer I might say: Because [there the deduction] is obvious' , for, otherwise,[34] the All Merciful should have written the prohibition in the section of forbidden relatives. 'And if you prefer I might say: Because [there the text] is superfluous', for otherwise[35] the All Merciful should have written, A man shall not take his father's wife.[25] what need was there for adding,[36] And shall not uncover his father's skirt?[25]

---

(1) This is an answer to the second question. The first is answered infra 5b.

(2) Deut. XXII, 11.

(3) Ibid. 12.

(4) V. Ber. 10a.

(5) Heb. Semukim סמוכים (rt. סמך'to join'); i.e., the exegetical principle that we deduce laws from the proximity of Biblical texts.

(6) 'Semukim'.

(7) Ps. CXI, 8. The proximity of the two texts (Deut. XXII, 11 and 12) may consequently be taken to indicate that though the wearing of mingled stuff (linen and wool) is forbidden in ordinary cases (Deut. XXII, 11) it is nevertheless permitted in the case of the performance of a positive precept such as that of the making of 'twisted cords' or zizith (v. Glos.) on the four corners of a garment (ibid. v. 12).

(8) Mak. 23a.

(9) I.e., she is not prevented from objecting to the levirate marriage, and is entitled to halizah. 'Muzzled' (rt.חסם) is taken from Deut. XXV, 4 from which this law is derived.

(10) Deut. XXV, 4.

(11) Ibid. v. 5, forming the introduction to the law of halizah. Thus it has been shewn that a law may be based on the proximity of Biblical texts, and this confirms the conclusion in respect of 'mingled stuff' in zizith (v. Deut. XXII, 11).

(12) Where the texts of 'mingled stuff' and zizith occur.

(13) Ber. 21b. Cf. Pes. 67b.

(14) R. Judah.

(15) Interpretations based on semukim or proximity of texts.

(16) Ex. XXII, 17.

(17) Ibid. 18.

(18) Lit., 'this' sc. the sorceress.

(19) Lit., 'but'.

(20) V. Lev. XX, 27.

(21) R. Judah.

(22) Ber. 21a, infra 97a.

(23) Deut. XXIII, 1.

(24) Deut. XXII, 29.

(25) Deut. XXIII, 1.

(26) Represented by the view of the first Tanna who differs from R. Judah. How do they, in view of R. Judah's exposition, allow the marriage of a woman outraged or seduced by one's father?

(27) Lit., 'as you said'.

(28) Cur. edd. contain within parentheses: 'Since the text, A man shall not take his father's wife is written between them'.

(29) Whether he will marry her or consent to halizah.

[30] Of the levir for whose decision the woman is waiting.

[31] Infra 97a. One is that of marrying a woman who is virtually his father's wife being subject still to the levirate marriage, and the other is that of marrying an aunt, the wife of his father's deceased brother.

[32] From the proximity of the texts.

[33] Lit., 'free', 'disengaged'. i.e., unnecessary for the contexts and consequently free for interpretation and exposition.

[34] Lit., 'if so', i.e., if the text was meant to convey its plain meaning only.

[35] Cf. previous note.

[36] Lit., 'wherefore to me'.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 4b

Hence it must be concluded that the text was meant to provide a superfluous text.[1]

Similarly in the case of zizith,[2] if you wish I might reply:[3] Because [there[4] the deduction] is obvious. And if you prefer I might reply:[5] Because [there[6] the text] is superfluous.[7] 'If you prefer I might say: Because [there the deduction] is obvious', for otherwise,[8] the All Merciful should have written [the precept] in the section of zizith;[9] with what other practical rule in view has he written it here?[10] 'And if you prefer, I might reply: Because [there the text] is superfluous', for observe: It is written, Neither shall there come upon thee a garment of two kinds of stuff mingled together.[11] What need then was there for stating, Thou shalt not wear a mingled stuff?[12] Hence it must be concluded that the object was to provide a superfluous text.[13]

But [surely] both these texts[14] are required? For if the All Merciful had only written, Neither shall there come upon thee[15] it might have been assumed that all kinds of 'putting on' were forbidden by the All Merciful, even that of clothes dealers,[16] hence the All Merciful, has written, Thou shalt not wear a mingled stuff,[17] [shewing that the 'putting on' must be] of the same nature as that of wearing for personal comfort. And if the All Merciful had only written, Thou shalt not wear[18] it might have been assumed that only wear [is forbidden] because the pleasure derived therefrom is great, but not mere 'putting on', hence the All Merciful has written, Neither shall there come upon thee![19] — If so,[20] the All Merciful should have written, 'Thou shalt not wear a mingled stuff' what need was there for adding, 'Wool and linen'? For[21] observe: It is written, Neither shall there come upon thee a garment of two kinds of stuff mingled together,[15] and in connection with this a Tanna of the School of R. Ishmael taught: Whereas garments generally[22] were mentioned in the Torah, and in one particular case[23] Scripture specified wool and linen,[23] all must consequently be understood as having been made of wool and linen, what need, then, was there for the All Merciful's specific mention of wool and linen? Consequently it must be concluded that its object was to provide a superfluous text.[24]

But the text[25] is still required [for another purpose]! For it might have been assumed [that the limitation[26] applies] only to 'putting on', where the benefit is not great, but that in respect of wear, the benefit from which is great, any two kinds were forbidden by the All Merciful, hence has the All Merciful written, 'wool and linen'![27] — If so, Scripture should have omitted it altogether[28] and [the law[29] would have been] deduced [by analogy between] 'mingled stuff'[30] and 'mingled stuff'[31] [the latter of which occurs in connection with the law] of 'putting on'.[32]

As to the Tanna of the School of R. Ishmael, is the reason [why 'mingled stuff' is permitted in zizith] because the All Merciful has written 'wool and linen', but if He had not done so, would it have been assumed that the All Merciful had forbidden two kinds of stuff in the zizith? But, surely. it is written, And they shall make them fringes in the corners of their garments[33] and a Tanna of the School of R. Ishmael [taught]: Wherever 'garment' [is written] such as is made of wool or flax [is meant], and yet the All Merciful said that in them 'purple' shall be inserted, and purple, surely, is wool. And whence is it deduced that purple is wool? Since linen[34] is flax, purple must be wool.[35] —

[The text] was necessary; for it might have been assumed [that the interpretation is] according to Raba. For Raba pointed out a contradiction: It is written, the corner,[36] [which implies that the fringes must be of the same] kind of [material as that of the] corner,[37] but then it is also written, wool and linen.[38] How then [are these texts to be reconciled?] Wool and linen discharge [the obligation to provide fringes] both for a garment of the same, as well as of a different kind of material, while other kinds [of material][39] discharge [the obligation for a garment made] of the same kind [of material] but not for one made of a different kind [of material].[40]

But the Tanna of the School of R. Ishmael,[41] surely, does not hold the same view as Raba![42] — [The text][43] is still necessary; for it might have been assumed that Raba's line of argument[44] should be followed: ‘The corner’ [implies that the fringes must be made of the same] kind of [material as the] corner, and that what the All Merciful meant was this: ‘Make wool [fringes] for wool [garments] and linen ones for linen; only when you make wool fringes for wool garments you must dye them’; but no wool fringes may be made for linen or linen fringes for wool, hence the All Merciful has written ‘wool and linen’ [to indicate] that even wool fringes [may be] made for linen garments or linen fringes for woollen garments.[45]

---

(1) V. supra note 10.

(2) V. Glos.

(3) To the question why R. Judah expounds semukim in Deuteronomy.

(4) In Deuteronomy.

(5) To the question why R. Judah expounds semukim in Deuteronomy.

(6) In Deuteronomy.

(7) V. p. 12, n. 10.

(8) Lit., ‘if so’, i.e., if the text was meant to convey its plain meaning only.

(9) V. Glos.

(10) None. Consequently it must have been intended for a deduction on the basis of semukim.

(11) Lev. XIX, 19.

(12) Deut. XXII, 11.

(13) V. p. 12, n. 10.

(14) Lev. XIX, 19 and Deut. XXII, 11.

(15) Lev. XIX, 19.

(16) Who put on garments for mere business display or transport and not for bodily comfort or protection.

(17) Deut. XXII, 11, emphasis on wear.

(18) Ibid.

(19) Since both texts, then, are required for the purpose mentioned, how could they be employed for the deduction of a new law?

(20) That the texts were required only for the purpose mentioned.

(21) Should it be suggested that the text was required to indicate that the ‘mingled stuff’ forbidden was that of wool and linen.

(22) Without specifying the material they are made of.

(23) With reference to plagues in garments, Lev. XIII, 47, 48.

(24) V. p. 12, n. 10, supra.

(25) ‘Wool and linen’ (Deut. XXII, 11).

(26) Of the materials to wool and linen.

(27) How, then, could this text which is required for another purpose be expounded on the basis of semukim?

(28) Lit., ‘kept silence from it’.

(29) Which has just been enunciated, i.e., that only wool and linen are forbidden.

(30) Deut. XXII, 11.

(31) Lev. XIX, 19.

(32) As the latter applies to wool and linen only, so also the former.

(33) Num. XV, 38.

(34) In the description of the materials of the High Priests’ garments (Ex. XXXIX, 1ff).

(35) As the garments were either of wool or flax, and linen (flax) was specified in the case of one, all the others must have been wool. Now since it has been shewn that purple is wool, it obviously follows that woollen zizith or fringes are permissible in a garment of flax. What was the need, then, for a specific text to prove the permissibility of mingling wool and flax in zizith?

(36) Num. XV, 38.

(37) I.e., if the material of the corner is wool the fringes must be wool; if of flax the fringes must be of flax.

(38) Cf. Deut. XXII, 11f: Mingled stuff, wool and linen thou shalt make the twisted cords, which shews that the fringes may be made either of wool or of flax whatever the material of the corner might be.

(39) Silk for instance.

(40) So also according to the Tanna of R. Ishmael's school, (as will be explained in the Gemara anon) if Scripture had not specified ‘wool and linen’ it might have been assumed that in a woollen garment the fringes must be made of wool while in a garment of flax they must be made of flax, hence wool and linen were specified to shew on the basis of semukim that mingled stuffs also are allowed in zizith.

(41) At the moment it is assumed that the suggestion is that he is in agreement with Raba's argument in all respects.

(42) For, according to him, since ‘garment’ denotes only such as is made of wool and linen, garments made of other materials require no fringes (zizith). What need, then, was there for the expression of wool and linen to differentiate these from other materials?

(43) Wool and linen.

(44) Though not his view, applying his method of reasoning only in regard to a garment made of wool or linen.

(45) I.e., that mingled stuffs are permissible in the performance of the precept of zizith.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 5a

This[1] is satisfactory according to the view of the Tanna of the School of R. Ishmael;[2] as to the Rabbis,[3] however, how do they arrive at the deduction?[4] — They derive it from his head;[5] for it was taught: [Scripture stated], ‘His head’;[5] what need was there for it?[6] — Whereas it has been stated, Ye shall not round the corners of your head,[7] one might infer that [this law[8] applies to] a leper also, hence it was explicitly stated, his head;[9] and this Tanna is of the opinion that rounding all the head is also regarded as ‘rounding’.[10] This [conclusion, however,] may be refuted: The reason why the prohibition of[11] ‘rounding’ [may be superseded is] because it is not applicable to everybody![12] — But [the inference] is derived from his beard;[13] as it was taught: ‘His beard’;[13] what need was there for stating it?[14] — Whereas it was said, Neither shall they shave off the corners of their beard,[15] one might infer that this prohibition applies also to a leprous priest,[16] hence it was explicitly stated, ‘his beard’.[17] And since there is no object in applying it to a prohibition which is not incumbent upon everybody,[18] let it be applied to a prohibition which is incumbent upon all.[19] But this[20] is still required [for its own context]! For since it might have been assumed that as priests are different from [other people]. Scripture having imposed upon them additional commandments, and so even a prohibition which does not apply to everybody is not superseded in their case; [therefore] it was necessary to teach us that it does supersede.[21] — In truth the inference comes from ‘his head’ [in the manner deduced by] the following[22] Tanna. For It was taught: His head:[23] what need was there for mentioning it?[24] Whereas Scripture had stated, There shall no razor come upon his head,[25] one might infer that the same prohibition is applicable to a leprous nazirite[26] also, hence it was explicitly stated, ‘his head’.[27] This,[28] however, may be refuted: The reason why a [leprous] nazirite [may shave his head] is because he is also in a position to obtain absolution.[29] For, were not this the reason,[30] what then of the accepted rule,[31] that no positive precept may supersede a negative and positive precept combined; why not deduce the contrary from the law[32] of the [leprous] nazirite?[33] Consequently, [it must be conceded that] the reason why no deduction may be made [from the law of the nazirite is] because it may be refuted [on the grounds] that in his case absolution is possible; so here also the refutation may be advanced, ‘Since in his case absolution is possible’![34] — The deduction, in fact, is made

---

(1) The deduction from semukim that a positive precept supersedes a negative one.

(2) Since on the lines of his interpretation the text, ‘wool and linen’ is superfluous and consequently free for the deduction mentioned.

(3) Who do not interpret ‘garment’ as denoting such as is of wool and flax.

(4) The text, ‘wool and linen’, being required for the completion of the plain meaning of the text, there remains no superfluous expression for the deduction. V. supra n. 2.

(5) Lev. XIV, 9, dealing with the purification of the leper.

(6) It was previously stated, and shave off all his hair (Lev. XIV, 8) which obviously includes that of the head.

(7) Lev. XIX. 27.

(8) The prohibition to round the corners of the head.

(9) Indicating that, despite the general prohibition, it is the leper's duty to round his head.

(10) Though the text speaks of rounding the corners. Such a rounding then, though generally forbidden, is in the case of a leper, permitted, because Scripture explicitly stated ‘shave all the hair of his head’ (Lev. XIV, 9). Thus it has been proved that the positive precept of the shaving of the leper supersedes the prohibition of rounding off one's head. Similarly, in the case of the levirate marriage, it might have been assumed that the positive precept of marrying the deceased brother's widow supersedes the prohibition of marrying a wife's sister; hence the necessity for a special text (v. supra 3b end and p. 10, n. 7) to prove that it does not.

(11) Lit., ‘what as to the negative (command)’.

(12) Lit., ‘equal in all’; women being exempt. (V. Kid. 35b). The prohibition of the marriage of a wife's sister, however, is applicable to the man and to the woman, the brother-in-law as well as the sister-in-law.

(13) Which also occurs in the regulations for the purification of the leper. (V. Lev. XIV, 9).

(14) Seeing that it was previously mentioned (Lev. XIV, 8) that the leper must ‘shave off all his hair’, which obviously includes that of his beard.

(15) Lev. XXI, 5.

(16) The prohibition of shaving the corners of one's head having been addressed to the priests. V. Lev. XXI, 1ff.

(17) Indicating that in the case of a leprous priest the precept of shaving supersedes the prohibition of ‘shaving’.

(18) That such a prohibition is superseded by a positive precept having been deduced supra from ‘his head’.

(19) Thus it has been proved that a positive precept supersedes any prohibition even if the latter is generally applicable. Marriage between a levir and his deceased brother's widow who is his wife's sister might, consequently, have been assumed to be permitted had not an explicit text pointed to its prohibition.

(20) The text, ‘his beard’.

(21) How, then, can the same text which is required for the purpose mentioned also be used for a general deduction.

(22) Lit., ‘(manner) of that’.

(23) Lev. XIV, 9.

(24) Cf. supra, p. 16, n. 7.

(25) Num. VI, 5 dealing with the laws of the nazirite.

(26) So Rashal. Cur. edd. read, ‘leper and nazirite’.

(27) Thus it is proved that a positive precept supersedes a prohibition. Cf. supra, note 7.

(28) The deduction from the nazirite.

(29) Heb. she'elah שאלה ‘request’, i.e., the nazirite may request a qualified person to disallow his vow and thus avoid the prohibition of shaving.

(30) Lit., ‘if you will not say so’.

(31) Lit., ‘that which is established for us’.

(32) Lit., ‘let it be deduced’.

(33) The shaving of a nazirite's head is forbidden (a) by the precept that he must grow his hair long and (b) by the prohibition of allowing a razor to come upon his head.

(34) Whence, then, is it proved that a positive precept supersedes a prohibition?

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 5b

from the first cited text:[1] Since[2] Scripture could have used the expression, Thou shalt make thee fringes,[3] what need was there for that of ‘twisted cords’? Consequently it must have been intended for the purpose of allowing that text to be used for the deduction.[4] But this[5] is required for the determination of the number [of threads, thus]:[6] ‘Twisted cord’ implies two threads,[7] [and so] ‘twisted cords’[8] implies four threads, therefore,[9] one twisted cord is to be made [of the four] and from the middle of it separate threads[10] are to hang down![11] — If so,[12] Scripture should have stated, Thou shalt not wear a mingled stuff wool and linen:[13] what need was there to add ‘together’?[13] Consequently it must have been intended for the purpose of allowing a free text for the deduction.[14] But this text too[15] is required for the deduction that two stitches[16] form a combination[17] and that one stitch does not! — If so, the All Merciful should have written, Thou shalt not wear wool and linen together; what need was there for inserting ‘mingled stuff’? Hence it must be concluded that the purpose was to allow a free text for deduction.[18] But is not this text[19] still required [for the deduction that ‘mingled stuff’[20] is not forbidden] unless it was hackled, spun and twisted?[21] — But [the fact is that] all this is deduced from the expression of ‘mingled stuff’.[22]

So far it has been shewn that a positive precept supersedes a mere prohibition;[23] where, however, do we find that it supersedes also a prohibition involving kareth,[24] and that in consequence [the explicit expression] ‘’aleha’[25] should be required to forbid it?[26] And if it be replied that this[26] might be deduced from circumcision,[27] [it may be retorted]: Circumcision stands in a different category,[28] for concerning it thirteen covenants[29] were made![30] From the paschal lamb?[31] — The paschal lamb also stands in a different category[32] since it too involves kareth![30] From the daily offering?[31] — The daily offering also stands in a different category[33] since it is also a regular [offering]![30] [Now though] it[34] cannot be derived from one[35] it might be derived from two. From which shall it be derived? [If the reply is]: Let it be derived from circumcision and the paschal lamb, [it may be retorted]: These also involve kareth.[36] From the paschal lamb and the daily offering? — Both are also intended for the Most High.[37] From circumcision and the daily offering? — Both were also in force before the giving of the law,[38] this being according to the view of him who holds that the burnt-offering which Israel offered in the wilderness was the daily burnt-offering.[39] Nor [can the derivation be made] from all of them, since they were all in force before the giving of the law.[40]

But [this is the reason for] the need of a special text:[41] It might have been assumed[42] that this[43] should be derived from the precept of honouring one's father and mother; for it was taught: Since one might have assumed that the honouring of one's father and mother should supersede the Sabbath, it was explicitly stated, Ye shall fear every man his mother and his father, and ye shall keep My Sabbaths,[44] it is the duty of all of you[45] to honour Me. Now is not the case in point one where the parent said to him, ‘Slaughter for me’,[46] or ‘Cook for me’;[46] and the reason [why the parent must not be obeyed is] because the All Merciful has written, ‘Ye shall keep my Sabbaths’,[44] but had that not been so[47] it[48] would have superseded?[49] — No;

---

(1) ‘Mingled stuff’ in the case of zizith. (V. Deut. XXII, 11, 12 and supra p. 15, n. 3).

(2) Lit., ‘if so’, i.e., if according to the Rabbis the expression, ‘wool and linen’, is required for its own context and that text, therefore, is not available for deduction.

(3) The expression used in Num. XV, 38 in the section dealing with the precept of the fringes.

(4) That a positive precept supersedes a prohibition. Cf. supra, p. 10, n. 13.

(5) The expression of ‘twisted cords’, גדילים, Deut. XXII, 12.

(6) In the fringes.

(7) The twisted cord cannot be made of less than two threads.

(8) The plural, i.e., twice two.

(9) To harmonize this text (Deut. XXII, 12) which implies twisted cords, with that of Num. XV, 38, and that they put with the fringe of each corner a thread of blue, which implies only twisted threads.

(10) The four threads are inserted into the corner of the garment and, having been folded to form a fringe of eight threads, they are joined (by winding one of the threads round the others) into one twisted cord which extends over a section of length and is then separated again into eight separate threads.

(11) Men. 39b. Now, since the expression, ‘twisted cords’, is required for the determination of the number of the threads, how could the Rabbis deduce from it the law of ‘mingled stuff’ in the fringes?

(12) That the law of ‘mingled stuff’ in the fringes was not to be deduced from the text cited.

(13) Deut. XXII, 11.

(14) Cf. supra p. 18, n. 10.

(15) Together, in Deut. XXII, II.

(16) Combining a material made of wool with one made of flax.

(17) Of ‘mingled stuff’ which is forbidden.

(18) Cf. supra p. 18, n. 10.

(19) Mingled stuff, Deut. XXII, 11.

(20) Of wool and flax.

(21) An etymological explanation of, or a play upon, the words ‘mingled stuff’ שעטנז, in Deut. XXII, 11. שעטנז is assumed to be an abbreviation of שוע טוי ונוז.

(22) The use of the peculiar expression, שעטנז, and not the usual כלאים, implies both (a) the deduction mentioned, (v. previous note) and (b) the deduction that a positive precept supersedes a prohibition (v. supra p. 10, n. 13).

(23) Cf. 3b end and p. 10, n. 7.

(24) V. Glos.

(25) Lev. XVIII, 18.

(26) The marriage by the levir of the widow of his deceased childless brother, when she happens to be a forbidden relative. V. p. 8, n. 9.

(27) Which must be performed on the eighth day of the child's birth even though that day happens to be a Sabbath when manual work is forbidden under the penalty of kareth.

(28) Lit., ‘what in respect of circum-cision’.

(29) The expression ‘covenant’ (in various grammatical forms) occurs thirteen times in Gen. XVII, the section dealing with the precept of circumcision, v. Ned. 31b.

(30) Hence it may also supersede the Sabbath. It supplies, however, no proof that a positive precept which is not so stringent (such as the marriage with the levir) also supersedes a prohibition involving kareth.

(31) The slaughtering of which (a positive precept) supersedes the Sabbath though slaughtering is manual work which is forbidden on the Sabbath under the penalty of kareth.

(32) Lit., ‘what in respect of the paschal lamb’.

(33) Lit., ‘what in respect of the daily offering’.

(34) V. p. 19, n. 16.

(35) Circumcision, the paschal lamb, or the daily offering alone.

(36) Cf. supra n. 1.

(37) They are offered on the altar. Cf. supra n. 1.

(38) On Mount Sinai. Lit., ‘speech’ i.e., of the Deity. ‘revelation’, and as such are deemed of greater stringency.

(39) V. Ex. XXIV, 5 and Hag. 6a. Circumcision was ordained in the time of Abraham. V. Gen. XVII.

(40) V. supra nn. 9 and 10. The law of the paschal lamb also was given in Egypt prior to the date of the Revelation. V. Ex. XII.

(41) Beside her (Lev. XVIII, 18), to indicate that levirate marriage is forbidden when the widow of the deceased brother is the surviving brother's forbidden relative.

(42) Had not that text (in Lev. XVIII, 18; v. previous note) been written.

(43) That a positive precept supersedes a prohibition involving kareth and that consequently a levir may marry his deceased childless brother's widow even if she happens to be a forbidden relative of his.

(44) Lev. XIX, 3.

(45) Parents and children.

(46) I.e., to desecrate the Sabbath by an action the penalty for which is kareth.

(47) Had no such text been available.

(48) A parent's order, (the positive precept of honouring one's parents.)

(49) The prohibition of work on the Sabbath, though it is one involving kareth. Similarly in the case of the levirate marriage. Cf. supra p. 20, n. 14.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 6a

this is a case[1] of ass driving.[2] And [you say that] it does not supersede[3] even in such a case?[4] But then what of the generally accepted rule that a positive precept supersedes a prohibition. Should it not be inferred from this case that it does not supersede![5] And if it be replied that the prohibitions of the Sabbath are different[6] because they are more stringent,[7] surely the following Tanna, [it may be pointed out,] speaks of prohibitions generally[8] yet no one advances any objection.[9] For it was taught: Since it might have been assumed that if his father had said to him,[10] 'Defile yourself',[11] or if he said to him, 'Do not restore,'[12] he must obey him, it was explicitly stated, Ye shall fear every man his mother, and his father, and ye shall keep my Sabbaths,[13] it is the duty of all of you to honour Me![14] — The real reason[15] is because this objection may be advanced: Those[16] are in a different category[17] since they are also essentials in the execution of the precept.[18]

But [the reason[19] is because] it might have been assumed that this[20] should be derived from the precept of the building of the Sanctuary. For it was taught: Since it might have been assumed that the building of the Sanctuary should supersede the Sabbath, it was explicitly stated, Ye shall keep My Sabbaths, and reverence My Sanctuary;[21] it is the duty of all of you to honour Me. Now is not the case in point one of [a father's order to his son to] build or to demolish,[22] and yet the reason [why it does not supersede the Sabbath is] because the All Merciful has written, 'Ye shall keep My Sabbaths',[23] but had that not been written it would have superseded?[24] — No; the case in point is one of ass driving.[25]

And [you say] that it[26] does not supersede a prohibition even in such a case?[27] But what of the generally accepted rule that a positive precept supersedes a prohibition? Should we not infer from this case that it does not supersede! And if it be replied that the prohibitions of the Sabbath are different[28] because they are of a more stringent nature,[29] surely the following Tanna [it may be pointed out] speaks of prohibitions generally[30] yet no one advances any refutation.[31] For it was taught: Since it might have been assumed that if his father had said to him,[32] 'Defile yourself',[33] or if he said to him, 'Do not restore,'[34] he must obey him, hence it was explicitly stated, Ye shall fear every man his mother, and his father etc.,[35] it is the duty of all of you to honour Me![36] — The true reason[37] is because this objection may be advanced: Those[38] are in a different category[39] since they are also essentials in the execution of the precept.[40] [But the law relating to] essentials in the execution of a precept could be derived from the previously cited text![41] — That is so indeed. What need, then, was there for the text, Ye shall keep My Sabbaths, and reverence My Sanctuary?[23] — It is required for the following deduction:[42] As it might have been imagined that a man should reverence the Sanctuary, it was explicitly stated in the Scriptures, Ye shall keep My Sabbaths, and reverence My Sanctuary;[23] the expression of 'keeping' was used in relation to the Sabbath and [in the same verse] that of 'reverence' in relation to the Sanctuary [in order that the following comparison may be made]: As in the case of 'keeping' used in relation to the Sabbath

---

(1) Lit., 'negative precept'.

(2) I.e, where a father ordered his son to desecrate the Sabbath by driving an ass; a prohibition which, unlike slaughtering or cooking, does not involve the penalty of kareth. V. Shab. 154a.

(3) Lit., 'and even thus', sc. even the mere prohibition of ass driving.

(4) A mere prohibition not involving the penalty of kareth.

(5) Even a mere prohibition which does not involve the penalty of kareth.

(6) From other prohibitions.

(7) Since the infringement of any one of the laws of the Sabbath is regarded as the sin of idolatry (v. 'Er. 69b), even a mere prohibition which does not involve kareth, cannot be superseded by a positive precept.

(8) Lit., 'stands in the world', i.e., he compares with the prohibitions of the Sabbath others which have no connection with it.

(9) That the prohibitions of the Sabbath being more stringent than others should not be compared with them.

(10) His son who was a priest.
(11) For the dead, which is forbidden to a priest. V. Lev. XXI, 1ff.
(12) A lost animal. V. Deut. XXII, 1.
(13) Lev. XIX, 3.
(14) Thus it has been shewn that prohibitions generally may be compared with those of the Sabbath. The suggestion, therefore, that the parents' order supra concerned the performance of the act of ass driving is untenable. If, consequently, the order must have consisted of a request to perform an act involving the penalty of kareth, that case well supplies a satisfactory answer to the question (supra 5b) as to what need was there for the text, ‘’aleha’, in Lev. XVIII, 18.
(15) Why no satisfactory reply to the question, what need is there for the text ‘’aleha’, may be obtained from the precept of honouring one's parents.
(16) A father's orders to his son to slaughter or to cook on the Sabbath.
(17) From such a precept as the levirate marriage.
(18) Lit., ‘it is a preparation of the precept’. The precept of honouring a father cannot possibly be performed by the son unless he actually executes the act of slaughtering or of cooking, which he has been ordered by his father to do, so that the fulfilment of the positive precept (honouring one's parents) is entirely dependent on its superseding the prohibition (that, e.g., of cooking). Hence it was necessary to have an explicit text to indicate that, even in such a case, a positive precept does not supersede a prohibition. In the case of the levirate marriage, however, the infringement of the prohibition is not absolutely essential to the fulfilment of the precept, since, instead of the marriage, halizah may be arranged, and the question remains, what need is there of the verse ‘’aleha’.
(19) Why the text, ‘’aleha’ (Lev. XVIII, 18) was needed to indicate that wherever the deceased childless brother's widow was the living brother's forbidden relative no levirate marriage must take place.
(20) That a positive precept supersedes a prohibition involving kareth and consequently that the levirate marriage may take place even in such a case (v. previous note).
(21) Lev. XIX, 30.
(22) Actions which are among the principal classes of labour that are forbidden on the Sabbath under the penalty of kareth.
(23) Lev. XIX, 30.
(24) Thus it follows that a positive precept does supersede a prohibition even though the latter involves kareth.
(25) Which does not involve kareth.
(26) A positive precept.
(27) Which does not involve kareth.
(28) From other prohibitions.
(29) Cf. supra p. 21, n. 13.
(30) Cf. supra p. 21, n. 14.
(31) Cf. supra p. 21, n. 15.
(32) His son who was a priest.
(33) Cf. supra p. 21, n. 17.
(34) Cf. supra p. 21, n. 18.
(35) Lev.XIX, 3.
(36) Cf. supra p. 22, n. 2.
(37) Cf. supra p. 22, n. 3.
(38) Cf.supra p. 22, n. 4,
(39) Cf.supra p. 22, n. 5.
(40) Cf. supra p. 22, n. 6.
(41) Lit., ‘from there’, from Lev. XIX, 3, and this superfluous text serves to extend the principle of a positive precept superseding a negative precept involving kareth to a case such as levirate marriage. Hence the need of the text ‘’aleha’.
(42) Lit., ‘for as it was taught’.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 6b

one does not reverence the Sabbath but Him who ordered the observance of the Sabbath, so in the case of ‘reverence’ used in relation to the Sanctuary, one is not to reverence the Sanctuary but Him who gave the commandment concerning the Sanctuary. And what is regarded as the ‘reverence of the Sanctuary’? — A man shall not enter the Temple mount[1] with his stick, shoes or money bag[2] or with dust upon his feet, nor may he use it for making a short cut;[3] and spitting [is there forbidden] by inference a minori ad majus.[4] This, however, might apply[5] only to the time when the Sanctuary was in existence; whence is it deduced that the same holds good of the time when the Sanctuary no longer exists? It was expressly stated in Scripture, Ye shall keep My Sabbaths, and reverence My Sanctuary;[6] as the ‘keeping’ that was used in relation to the Sabbath holds good forever, so also the ‘reverence’ used in relation to the Sanctuary must hold good forever.[7]

Really [the reason[8] is because] it might have been assumed that this[9] should be derived from the prohibition of kindling a fire [on the Sabbath]. For a Tanna of the School of R. Ishmael taught: Wherefore was it stated, Ye shall kindle no fire throughout your habitations?[10] ‘Wherefore ‘was it stated’![11] Surely if one is to follow R. Jose, it was to intimate that [kindling a fire on the Sabbath is] a prohibition only;[12] and, if one is to follow R. Nathan, it was to intimate that even a single transgression involves one in the prescribed penalties;[13] for it was taught: ‘The prohibition of kindling a fire [on the Sabbath] was mentioned separately[14] in order to [indicate that its transgression is] a prohibition only;[15] so R. Jose, while R. Nathan maintains that the intention was to intimate that even a single transgression involves the offender in the prescribed penalties’![13] And Raba explained that the Tanna[16] found difficult the expression of habitations,[17] [arguing thus]: What need was there for Scripture to state ‘habitations’? [Is not this[18] obvious?] For consider: The observance of the Sabbath is a personal obligation, and any personal obligation is valid both in the Land [of Israel] and outside the land;[19] what need, then, was there for the All Merciful to write it[20] in connection with the Sabbath? This was explained by a disciple in the name of R. Ishmael: Whereas it was stated in the Scriptures, And if a man have committed a sin worthy of death, and he be put to death,[21] one might infer [that the death penalty may be executed] both on week-days and on the Sabbath and, as regards the application of the text, Everyone that profaneth it[22] shall surely be put to death,[23] this might be said to refer to the several kinds of labour other than the execution of a judicial death sentence; or again it might be inferred[24] that it[25] refers even to a judicial execution of a death sentence and, as regards the application of He shall surely be put to death[23] [this might be said to refer] to week-days but not to the Sabbath; or again it might be thought[26] to apply also to the Sabbath; hence it was expressly stated, Ye shall kindle no fire throughout your habitations,[27] and further on it is stated, And these things shall be for a statute of judgment unto you throughout your generations in all your habitations;[28] as the expression of ‘habitations’ mentioned below[28] refers to the Beth din, so the expression ‘habitations’ mentioned here[27] refers also to the Beth din, and concerning this the All Merciful said, ‘Ye shall kindle no fire’.[29] Now, are we not to assume this statement to be in agreement with the view[30] of R. Nathan who holds that the object was to intimate that even a single transgression involves the offender in the prescribed penalties,[31] and the reason[32] is because the All Merciful has written, Ye shall kindle no fire,[27] but had that not been the case it would have superseded the [Sabbath]![33] — No; this may be according to R. Jose.[34]

Granted, however, [that it is according to the view of] R. Jose, might it not be suggested that R. Jose said that ‘kindling a fire [on the Sabbath] is mentioned separately in order to indicate that it is a mere prohibition’ [in the case only of] ordinary burning; the burning by the Beth din,[35] [however, is surely a case of] boiling of the metal bar[36] concerning which R. Shesheth said that there is no difference between the boiling of a metal bar and the boiling of dyes?[37] — R. Shimi b. Ashi replied: This Tanna[38] [requires Scriptural texts] not because elsewhere he holds that a positive precept supersedes a prohibition, but because this[39] might have been obtained by inference a minori ad majus; and it is this that he meant to say: ‘As regards the application of the text, Every one that profaneth it[40] shall surely be put to death,[41] it might have been said to apply to the several kinds of labour other than that of the execution of a judicial death sentence, but that a judicial death sentence does supersede the Sabbath, by inference a minori ad majus:

---

(1) On which the Sanctuary stood.
(2) פונדה, Lat. funda. Others, ‘a hollow girdle in which money is kept’.
(3) קפנדריא, cf. compendiaria.
(4) Bet. 54a. For an explanation of the inference, v. ibid. 62b.
(5) Lit., ‘it is not (known) to me’.
(6) Lev. XIX, 30.
(7) And since there is no superfluous verse to extend the principle in such a case as levirate marriage, the question remains, what need was there for the text ‘’aleha’.
(8) Cf. supra p. 22, n. 7.
(9) Cf. supra p. 22, n. 8.
(10) Ex. XXXV, 3.
(11) The prohibition of kindling a fire, surely, is included in the general prohibition of labour on Sabbath.
(12) I.e., only a negative commandment the transgression of which does not, like the other Sabbath offences, involve the penalties of stoning or kareth. The former, if the offender was warned beforehand of the consequence of his offence, the latter, where no such warning had been given.
(13) Lit., ‘to divide’, i.e., one of the thirty-nine kinds of labour that are forbidden on the Sabbath was singly specified in order to indicate that to incur the prescribed penalties it is not necessary to commit all the thirty-nine transgressions (as the one general, all-embracing prohibition of about might have seemed to imply). The mention of one prohibition (kindling of fire) separately breaks up, so to speak, (divides), all the others into single units, indicating that, as in its own case, so in that of all the others first mentioned together with it, every single transgression involves the penalty of stoning, kareth, or a sin-offering.
(14) Lit., ‘went out’.
(15) V. p. 24, n. 12.
(16) Who asked, supra, ‘wherefore was it stated?’
(17) Ex. XXXV, 3.
(18) That the prohibition is in force in all ‘habitations’.
(19) I.e., throughout all habitations.
(20) The phrase, ‘throughout your habitations’, Ex. XXXV, 3.
(21) Deut. XXI, 22.
(22) The Sabbath.
(23) Ex. XXXI, 14 which prohibits all kinds of about on the Sabbath.
(24) Lit., ‘or it is not but’.
(25) The prohibition of labour.
(26) Lit., ‘or it is not but’.
(27) Ex. XXXV, 3.
(28) Num. XXXV, 29, referring to the death penalties of murderers.
(29) I.e., execute no death penalty of burning on the Sabbath. The death penalty of ‘burning’ was executed by pouring molten lead through the condemned man's mouth into his body, thus burning his internal organs.
(30) Lit., ‘what, (is it) not?’
(31) Of death or kareth. V. supra p. 25, n. 1.
(32) Why the death penalty of burning — a kind of work — which according to R. Nathan would involve kareth must not be executed on the Sabbath.
(33) Though the penalties involved include that of kareth. Thus it follows that a positive precept may supersede even such a prohibition. So also in the case of the levirate marriage it might have been assumed that the precept of marrying one's deceased childless brother's widow supersedes the prohibition of marrying a consanguineous relative despite the fact that such a transgression involves elsewhere the penalty of kareth; hence it was necessary for Scripture to add, ‘’aleha’ (Lev. XVIII, 18), to indicate that even a levirate marriage is in such a case forbidden. (V. supra 3b and 5b).
(34) V. supra p. 24, n. 12.
(35) The death penalty of burning.
(36) Cf. supra note 4.
(37) Lit., ‘what (difference is it) to me’, Shab. 106a. The dyes were boiled in connection with the construction of the Tabernacle that was made by Moses, and any kind of labour that was there performed is included among the thirty-nine principal kinds of labour which are forbidden on the Sabbath (v. Shab. 73a) and involve the penalty of kareth. Cf. supra p. 26, n. 8.

(38) Who deduced from Scriptural texts that a judicial death sentence may not be executed on the Sabbath.

(39) The assumption that the execution of a judicial death sentence might supersede the Sabbath.

(40) The Sabbath.

(41) Ex. XXXI, 14.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 7a

If the Temple service which is of high importance and supersedes the Sabbath[1] is itself superseded by [a death sentence for] murder, as it is said, Thou shalt take him from Mine altar, that he may die,[2] how much more reasonable is it that the Sabbath which is superseded by the Temple service should be superseded by [a death sentence for] murder'. How, then, could it be said, 'Or it might rather [etc.]'?[3] — He means this: The burial of a meth mizwah[4] might prove [the contrary], since it supersedes the Temple service[5] and does not nevertheless supersede the Sabbath.[6] Then[7] he argued: It might be inferred a minori ad majus that the burial of a meth mizwah should supersede the Sabbath, [thus]: If the Temple service which super sedes the Sabbath is superseded by the burial of a meth mizwah, by deduction from Or for his sister,[8] how much more should the Sabbath which is superseded by the Temple service be superseded by the burial of a meth mizwah; hence it was explicitly stated, Ye shall kindle no fire.[9] [etc].[10]

According to our previous assumption, however, that a positive precept supersedes a prohibition, what is meant by, 'Or it might rather [etc.]'?[11] — It is this that was meant: 'As regards the application of the text, Every one that profaneth it[12] shall surely be put to death,[13] it might have been said to apply to the several kinds of labour other than the execution of a judicial death sentence, but that a judicial death sentence does supersede the Sabbath, for a positive precept[14] supersedes the prohibition. Then[15] he argued: It might be suggested that a positive precept supersedes a prohibition in the case of a mere prohibition only; has it, however, been heard to supersede a prohibition which involves kareth? Then he concluded: 'Even where[16] a positive precept supersedes a prohibition, is not the prohibition of a more serious nature than the precept?[17] And yet the positive precept comes and supersedes the prohibited; on what grounds, then, should a distinction be made between a minor and a major prohibition?[18] Hence it was explicitly stated, Ye shall kindle no fire[9] [etc.].'[19]

But[20] [this is the reason why a specific text] was needed:[21] It might have been assumed that this [case of a] brother's wife should be regarded as a subject which was included in a general proposition[22] and was subsequently singled out in order to predicate another law,[23] the predication of which is not intended to apply to itself alone but to the whole of the general proposition. For it was taught: 'A subject which was included in a general proposition and was subsequently singled out, etc. How [is this to be understood]? But the soul that eateth of the flesh of the sacrifice of peace-offerings [that pertain unto the Lord], having his uncleanness upon him;[24] were not peace-offerings included among the other holy things?[25] Why, then, were they subsequently singled out? In order that [the others] may be compared to them, and in order to tell you that as peace-offerings are distinguished by being consecrated objects of the altar so must also all other things[26] be consecrated objects of the altar, the objects consecrated for Temple repair only being excluded.'[27] Similarly here it might have been argued:[28] Since a brother's wife was included among all the other forbidden relatives, why was she singled out? In order that [the others] may be compared to her, and in order to tell you that as a brother's wife is permitted[29] so also are all the other forbidden relatives permitted.[30]

Are these, however, similar? There,[31] both the general proposition[32] and the particular specification[24] relate to a prohibition, but here[33] the general proposition relates to a prohibition while the particular specification relates to something which is permitted![34] This, surely, is rather to be compared to an object that was included in a general proposition and was subsequently singled out in order to be made the subject of a fresh statement, which you cannot restore to the restrictions of the general proposition unless Scripture specifically restores it; for it was taught: Anything which was included in a general proposition and was subsequently excluded in order to be made the subject of a fresh statement, cannot be restored to the restrictions of the general proposition unless Scripture has explicitly restored it.[35] How[36] [may this principle be illustrated]? And he shall kill the he-lamb in the place where they kill the sin-offering and the burnt-offering in the place of the Sanctuary; for as the sin-offering is the priest's so is the guilt-offering.[37] Now since there was no need to state, ‘As the sin-offering so is the guilt-offering.’[38] why did Scripture explicitly state. As the sin-offering so the guilt-offering? Because seeing that the guilt-offering of the leper was singled out[39] in order to impart a new law concerning the thumb of the right hand and the great toe of the right foot,[40] it might have been assumed that it required no application of blood to, and no burning of the prescribed portions of the sacrifice upon the altar;

---

(1) Labour prohibited on the Sabbath may be performed in connection with the service of the Temple.

(2) Ex. XXI, 14. This is taken to mean that he may he removed from the altar even if he has to perform service thereon.

(3) Supra 6b. Since the inference was made a minori ad majus how could anyone dispute it?

(4) V. Glos.

(5) A priest may defile himself by the burial of a meth mizwah though he thereby becomes disqualified from performing the Temple service. V. Meg. 3b.

(6) Burial is forbidden on the Sabbath. So also, it could be argued, the execution of a death sentence, though it supersedes the Temple service, need not necessarily supersede the Sabbath.

(7) Saying again, ‘Or it might rather etc.’, supra 6b.

(8) Num. VI, 7; v. Meg. 3b.

(9) Ex. XXXV, 3.

(10) For the continuation, v. supra 6b.

(11) Cf. supra p. 27, n. 8. How, in view of this assumption, could any other conclusion be arrived at?

(12) The Sabbath.

(13) Ex. XXXI, 14.

(14) That the man worthy of death be put to death (v. Deut. XXI, 22).

(15) By saying again, ‘Or it might rather’, supra 6b.

(16) Cf. Bah, a.l.

(17) A transgression of the prohibition involves the serious penalty of flogging, while the non-performance of the precept is no punishable offence.

(18) As a positive precept supersedes an ordinary prohibition so it should also supersede one which involves kareth.

(19) V. supra note 3.

(20) Now that it is concluded that the need of the Scriptural text prohibiting the execution of a death sentence on Sabbath is because otherwise the permissibility thereof might have been argued a minori, and not on the ground of the principle that a positive command supersedes a prohibition, there is no proof available for the assumption that a positive precept supersedes a prohibition which involves kareth, and thus the original question again arises: What need was there for the specific text of Lev. XVIII, 18, ‘’aleha’ (supra p. 8), to indicate the obvious? (i.e., that the positive precept of the levirate marriage does not supersede the prohibition of marrying a consanguineous relative).

(21) V. previous note.

(22) The prohibition of incest, Lev. XVIII, 29.

(23) The marriage of the widow of a deceased childless brother.

(24) Lev. VII, 20.

(25) Lev. XXII, 3, where the penalty of kareth is pronounced for eating consecrated things during one's uncleanness.

(26) For the eating of which during one's uncleanness the penalty of kareth is incurred.

(27) Ker. 2b. If these were eaten by one in a state of uncleanness no obligation is incurred.

(28) Reading with Bah ה א (הוה אצינא). Cur. edd. retain הא with no sign of abbreviation.

(29) To be married to the levir if her husband died childless.

(30) Cf. previous note. A text was consequently needed to intimate that the law was not so,

(31) The case of consecrated objects.

(32) Lev. XXII, 3.

(33) Levirate marriage and forbidden relatives.

(34) How, then, could the two be compared?

(35) Now, as the case of a brother's wife has not been restored to the general proposition, what need was there for the specific text of Lev. XVIII, 18?

(36) This is the continuation of the quotation.

(37) Lev. XIV, 13, dealing with the leper's guilt-offering.

(38) Since the place of killing was indicated at the beginning of the verse while the other regulations concerning this sacrifice are found in the laws of the guilt-offering in Lev. VII, 1ff.

(39) From the laws relating to other guilt-offerings.

(40) V. Lev. XIV, 14.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 7b

hence it was explicitly stated, ‘As the sin-offering so is the guilt-offering’: As the sin-offering[1] requires application of the blood to, and burning of the prescribed portions upon the altar, so does the guilt-offering also require application of the blood to, and burning of the prescribed portions upon the altar.[2] Had Scripture not restored it,[3] however, it would have been assumed that it was singled out only in respect of what was explicitly specified but not in any other respect;[4] so also here,[5] I would assume, only a brother's wife who was explicitly mentioned [can be said] to be permitted[6] but not any of the other forbidden relatives![7]

But[8] it might have been assumed that the law of a wife's sister[9] should be deduced from what has been found in the case of a brother's wife; as a levir may marry his brother's wife so he may also marry his wife's sister.[10]

Are, however, the two cases[11] similar? In the one case[12] there is only one prohibition; in the other[13] there are two prohibitions![14] — It might have been assumed that since she[15] was permitted[16] [in respect of one prohibition][17] she was also permitted [in the case of the other].[18] And whence is it derived that we assume that ‘since something was permitted [in one respect] it was also permitted [in the other]’? — From what was taught: In the case of a leper whose eighth day [of purification][19] fell on the Passover eve,[20] and who, having observed a discharge of semen on that day,[21] had taken a ritual bath, the Sages said: Although no other tebul yom[22] may enter [the Temple mount],[23] this one[24] may enter, for it is better that the positive precept,[25] the non-observance of which involves kareth, shall supersede a positive precept[26] the infringement of which involves no kareth.[27] And in connection with this R. Johanan said: According to the Torah, not even [the infringement of] a positive precept is involved,[28] for it is said, And Jehoshaphat stood in the congregation of Judah . . . before the new court.[29] What is meant by the new court? Rabbi[30] replied: That they enacted therein new laws, ordaining that a tebul yom[31] must not enter the camp of the Levites.[32] And ‘Ulla said: ‘What is the reason?’[33] Since he was given permission[34] in respect of his leprosy,[35] permission was also given to him in respect of his discharge of the semen.[36] But is this case[37] similar to that of ‘Ulla?

---

(1) Of a leper.

(2) Zeb. 49a.

(3) The leper's guilt-offering and brought it into line with other guilt-offerings.

(4) Lit., ‘to what it went out, it went out; and to what it did not go out, it did not go out’.

(5) The case of the levirate marriage.

(6) Lit., ‘that was permitted is permitted’.

(7) The question consequently arises again: What need was there for ‘’aleha’ in Lev. XVIII, 18. (Cf. supra p. 30, n. s).

(8) The reason why a superfluous text (v. previous note) was needed.

(9) For this reading v. Bah.
(10) Hence it was necessary to have the superfluous text, ‘’aleha’ (v. supra n. 4) to shew that the law was not so.
(11) Brother's wife and wife's sister.
(12) Lit., ‘there’, a brother's wife.
(13) Lit., ‘here’, a wife's sister.
(14) The prohibitions to marry (a) a brother's wife and (b) a wife's sister. How then could the one be deduced from the other?
(15) A brother's wife who is also one's wife's sister and whose husband died childless.
(16) By the positive precept of the levirate marriage.
(17) That of marrying a brother's wife.
(18) The prohibition of marrying one's wife's sister. Hence etc. V. supra note 7.
(19) On which he completes the days of his purification and brings the prescribed sacrifices, presenting himself (whither as a leper he was till that day forbidden to enter) on the Temple mount at the entrance to the Nikanor gate of the Sanctuary, from where he extends his thumb and great toe into the Sanctuary (whither he is not yet allowed to enter) for the priest to apply to them some of the sacrificial blood, v. Nazir, Sonc. ed. p. 165ff.
(20) When the paschal lamb is sacrificed to be eaten in the evening.
(21) Such a discharge ordinarily disqualifies a man from entering the Temple mount.
(22) טבול יום one who has had his ritual bath and is awaiting nightfall for the completion of his purification.
(23) Before nightfall.
(24) The leper in the circumstances mentioned.
(25) That of the paschal lamb.
(26) That a leper like certain other unclean persons must be sent out from the Levitical camp in which the Temple mount is included.
(27) If he were not allowed to enter the Temple mount his purification from leprosy could not have been completed (cf. supra p. 31, n. 16) and he would in consequence have been prevented from participating in the paschal lamb. By allowing him to enter he is enabled to complete his purification, while nightfall would also terminate the uncleanness due to the discharge, and thus he is in a position to participate in the evening in the paschal lamb which during the day is prepared for him by a deputy.
(28) In allowing the leper in the conditions mentioned to enter the Temple court.
(29) II Chron. XX, 5, referring to a day when Israel completed a period of purification.
(30) This is the reading also in Zeb. 32b. Cur. edd. enclose in parentheses ‘R. Johanan’.
(31) V. Glos.
(32) Which proves that the prohibition for a tebul yom to enter the Levitical camp was not of Pentateuchal origin, having been first enacted in the days of Jehoshaphat.
(33) Why was a leper in the circumstances mentioned permitted to extend his hands into the Sanctuary whither an unclean person, according to ‘Ulla, may not project even part of his body?
(34) To project his hands into the Sanctuary.
(35) Despite the prohibition for an unclean person, though the days of his purification have been duly observed, to enter the Sanctuary even partially, prior to the offering of the prescribed sacrifices.
(36) Thus it is proved that since something was permitted in one respect the permission remains in force even when another prohibition may be involved in another respect. The same argument might have also applied to a wife's sister or widow of a deceased brother. Hence the need of the text, ‘’aleha’.
(37) A brother's wife who is also one's wife's sister.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 8a

[The comparison] might well be justified where the deceased brother married [first][1] and the surviving brother married [his brother's wife's sister] afterwards,[2] for, in this case, since the prohibition of brother's wife was removed,[3] that of wife's sister[4] is also removed; but where the surviving brother had married [first] and the deceased brother had married subsequently, the prohibition of wife's sister was Surely in force first![5] Furthermore, even where the deceased had married [first], [the comparison] would be justified in the case where the deceased had married and died, and the surviving brother had married afterwards so that [the widow] was eligible in the interval;[6] where, however, the deceased had married, and before he died his wife's sister was married by his surviving brother, [his widow] was never for a moment eligible for his brother! Does not ‘Ulla admit that if the leper observed semen on the night preceding the eighth day[7] of his purification he must not project his hand into the Sanctuary on account of his thumb[8] because at the time he was eligible to bring the sacrifice [of the cleansed leper][9] he was not free from uncleanness?[10]

But [this is really the explanation]: If ‘'aleha’ was at all needed, [it was for such a case as] where the deceased brother had married [first] and died, and the surviving brother married [the widow's sister] subsequently.[11]

If you prefer I can say [that the reason[12] is because] it[13] might have been deduced by means of R. Jonah's analogy. For R. Jonah — others say, R. Huna son of R. Joshua — said: ‘Scripture stated: For whosoever shall do any of these abominations shall be cut off,[14] all forbidden relatives were compared to a brother's wife’;[15] [so in this case also it might have been said], as a brother's wife is permitted[16] so also are all other forbidden relatives permitted; hence the All Merciful has written, ‘'aleha’.[17]

Said R. Aha of Difti[18] to Rabina: Consider! All forbidden relatives[19] might be compared to a brother's wife[20] and might equally be compared to a wife's sister,[21] what reason do you see for comparing them to a wife's sister?[21] Compare them rather to a brother's wife![20] — If you wish I might say: When a comparison may be made for increasing as well as for decreasing restrictions, that for increasing restrictions must be preferred. If you prefer, however, I might say: In the former cases[22] there are two prohibitions in the one as well as in the other,[23] and a double prohibition may justly be inferred from a double prohibition; in the latter case, however,[24] only one prohibition is involved,[25] and a double prohibition may not be inferred from a single one.

Raba said: [That] a forbidden relative herself[26] [may not contract the levirate marriage] requires no Scriptural text to prove it, since no positive precept can supersede a prohibition which involves kareth; if a Scriptural text was at all needed it was for the purpose of forbidding a rival.

And in the case of a forbidden relative is no Scriptural text required [to prohibit her levirate marriage]? Surely it was taught, ‘Thus we are in a position to know the law concerning herself’![27] — On account of her rival.[28] Was it not taught, however, ‘Now we know the law concerning themselves’?[29] — On account of their rivals.[30]

Come and hear: Rabbi said: [Instead of] and take, [Scripture stated], and take her,[31] [and instead of] and perform the duty of a husband's brother [Scripture stated], and perform the duty of a husband's brother unto her,[31] in order to prohibit[32] [the levirate marriage of] forbidden relatives and their rivals![33] — Read, ‘To forbid [the levirate marriage of] the rivals of the forbidden relatives’. But two texts, surely, were mentioned;[34] was not one for the forbidden relative and the other for her rival? — No; both were for the rival, but one indicates prohibition[35] of a rival where the precept[35] is applicable, and the other indicates permission to marry the rival where the precept[35] is not applicable.[36] What is the reason? — [Because instead of] ‘And perform the duty of a husband's brother’ [Scripture stated] And perform the duty of a husband's brother UNTO HER, [which indicates that] only where levirate marriage is applicable is a rival forbidden[37] but where levirate marriage is not applicable[36] a rival is permitted.[37] R. Ashi said: [This[38] may] also be inferred from our Mishnah where it was stated, FIFTEEN [CATEGORIES OF] WOMEN EXEMPT THEIR RIVALS, but it was not stated, ‘are exempt[39] and exempt [their rivals]’. This proves it.

In what respect does the case of a forbidden relative differ[40] that it should require no text?[41] Obviously because no positive precept may supersede a prohibition which involves kareth. But then the case of a rival also should require no text,[41] since no positive precept may supersede a prohibition which involves kareth![42] — Said R. Aha b. Bebai Mar to Rabina, Thus it has been stated in the name of Raba: In the case of a rival also no Scriptural text[41] was needed; if a text was needed at all

---

(1) His wife thus becoming a forbidden relative to his brother as 'brother's wife'.

(2) Thus adding to the one prohibition (v. previous note) the other of 'wife's sister'.

(3) By the precept of the levirate marriage, owing to the childlessness of the deceased.

(4) Since it was added subsequently.

(5) And could not consequently be removed by the removal of a prohibition which took effect subsequent to it.

(6) Between the death of her husband and the marriage of her sister by his surviving brother. This case would be analogous to that of the leper who was eligible to bring his sacrifices on the eighth day of his purification during the interval between the beginning of the day and the hour on that day he contracted a new uncleanness by his discharge.

(7) The night is reckoned as the beginning of the day following it.

(8) V. supra p. 31, n. 16.

(9) The eighth day of his purification.

(10) Owing to the discharge of the semen which occurred in the night. As a sacrifice must be brought in the day time only, there was not a single moment during which he was eligible to bring the sacrifices as being clean in all respects. The prohibition consequently remains in force. So also in the case of a wife's sister as regards the levirate marriage. The question, therefore, arises again, what need was there for the superfluous text of Lev. XVIII, 18. V. supra p. 30, n. 2.

(11) So that there was an interval during which he was permitted to marry the widow. V. p. 33. n. 11.

(12) Why the superfluous ''aleha' in Lev. XVIII, 18 was required.

(13) The law that forbidden relatives may be married in the case of a levirate marriage.

(14) Lev. XVIII, 29.

(15) Having been grouped together in this text.

(16) In the case of a levirate marriage.

(17) Lev. XVIII, 18; to intimate that they are not permitted.

(18) Dibtha, below the Tigris, S.W. of Babylon.

(19) That were enumerated in our Mishnah.

(20) And levirate marriage with all of them would thus be permitted.

(21) With whom the levirate marriage is forbidden by the text ''aleha' (v. supra).

(22) Lit., 'here', (a) in that of a wife's sister and (b) all the other forbidden relatives (other than a brother's wife).

(23) Lit., 'and here two prohibitions', (a) forbidden relatives and (b) brother's wife.

(24) Lit., 'but here,' a brother's wife who is not a consanguineous relative.

(25) That of a brother's wife.

(26) So Bah.

(27) I.e., the forbidden relative, supra 3b.

(28) Whose case had to be proved, it was necessary to begin with this introduction.

(29) I.e., the forbidden relatives.

(30) Cf. supra n. 3.

(31) Deut. XXV, 5.

(32) By the use of 'her' and 'unto her' which implies 'but no other'.

(33) Which shews that a Scriptural text is required, even in the case of forbidden relatives themselves, to prove that levirate marriage is prohibited.

(34) Lit., 'he took.'

(35) Of the levirate marriage.

(36) As, for instance, in the case of a rival of a forbidden relative who married a stranger, v. infra 13a.

(37) To be married by the man to whom the relative herself is forbidden.

(38) Raba's statement that the prohibition to contract levirate marriage with a forbidden relative is so obvious that no Scriptural text is required to prove it.

(39) Which shews that the exemption of the forbidden relatives themselves from the levirate marriage (i.e., the prohibition ever to marry them) was taken in our Mishnah for granted.

(40) From the case of her rival.

(41) To prove its prohibition even in the case of the levirate marriage.

(42) Kareth being the penalty in both cases.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 8b

it was for the purpose of permitting a rival where the precept[1] is not applicable. What is the reason?[2] — Scripture stated, ‘’aleha’,[3] to indicate that only in the case of ‘unto her’[4] is she[5] forbidden,[6] where the other, however, may not, she is permitted.

Said Rami b. Hama to Raba: Might it not be suggested[7] that the forbidden relative[8] herself is permitted[9] where the precept[10] is not applicable? — Is not [such an argument contrary to the principle of inference] a minori ad majus? Being forbidden where the precept[10] is applicable, would she be permitted where the precept is not applicable? — [‘The case of a] rival’, the first replied, ‘could prove it, since she is forbidden[9] where the precept[10] is applicable, and is permitted[9] where the precept[10] is not applicable’. ‘It is for your sake,’ the other replied, ‘that Scripture states, In her life-time,[11] so long as she[12] lives’.[13] But is not the expression,[14] In her life-time,[11] required for the exclusion [of the prohibition of marriage] after her[12] death?[15] — This is deduced from the text, And a woman to her sister.[11] If [the deduction were only] from the text. ‘And a woman to her sister’,[11] it might have been said that if she[16] was divorced the sister would be permitted, hence it was expressly stated, ‘In her life-time.’[11] So long as she[16] is alive, even though she has been divorced, [her sister must] not [be married]![17] — But, said R. Huna b. Tahlifa in the name of Raba, two Scriptural texts are available; it is written, Thou shalt not take a woman to her sister, to be a rival to her[18] [implying two],[19] and it is also written, To uncover her nakedness,[20] which implies that only one is forbidden; how then [are the two texts to be reconciled]? Where the precept[21] is applicable both are forbidden;[22] where the precept[21] is not applicable she[23] is forbidden but her rival is permitted. Might not the deduction be reversed: Where the precept[21] is applicable she[23] is forbidden but her rival is permitted, but where the precept is not applicable both are forbidden![22] — If so, ‘’aleha’ should not have been stated.[24]

Said R. Ashi to R. Kahana: Whence is it derived that the expression ‘’aleha[25] indicates prohibition? Is it not possible that it implies permission, and that it is this that the All Merciful meant to imply: Thou shalt not take a woman to her sister, to be a rival to her,[25] neither herself nor her rival where ‘unto her’[26] is not applicable,[27] but where ‘unto her’[26] is applicable[28] both are permitted![29] — If so, how could the ‘uncovering of the nakedness’ of one[30] be possible? If in the case where the precept[31] is applicable, both are permitted;[32] and if where the precept is not applicable both are forbidden![33]

[Reverting to] the [above] text, Rabbi said: Instead of And take, Scripture stated, ‘And take her’ and instead of ‘And perform the duty of a husband's brother’, Scripture stated, ‘And perform the duty of a husband's brother unto her’,in order to prohibit [the levirate marriage of] forbidden relatives and their rivals. Are, then, rivals mentioned here at all? And, furthermore, the law of rivals has been derived from the expression To be her rival![34] — The expression To be her rival is employed by Rabbi for R. Simeon's deduction.[35] Where,[36] however, is the rival mentioned?[37] — What he meant is this: If so,[38] Scripture should have stated, And take; why then did it state, ‘And he shall take her’?[39] To indicate that wherever there are two to be taken,[40] he[41] having the choice of marrying whichever he prefers[42] both are permitted,[43] but if not,[44] both are forbidden; And perform the duty of a husband's brother unto her,[45] indicates that where levirate marriage is applicable there is the rival forbidden, where, however, levirate marriage is not applicable the rival is permitted.

As to the Rabbis,[46] to what do they apply the verse ‘And he shall take her’? — They require it for the deduction of R. Jose b. Hanina. For R. Jose b. Hanina said: ‘And he shall take her’[45] teaches that he[47] may divorce her with a letter of divorce[48] and that he may remarry her;[49] And he shall perform the duty of a husband's brother unto her, even against her will.[50] And Rabbi?[51] — The law of R. Jose b. Hanina is deduced from To a wife,[45] and that the marriage may take place against her will is deduced from Her husband's brother shall go in unto her.[45]

What does Rabbi do with [the expression], ‘’aleha’? — He requires it [for another deduction], as we learnt: The Beth din[52] are under no obligation[53] unless [they ruled] concerning a prohibition the punishment for which is kareth, if the transgression was wilful, and a sin-offering if the transgression was unwitting; and so it is with the anointed High priest.

---

(1) Of the levirate marriage.

(2) I.e., how is the permissibility deduced?

(3) Lev. XVIII, 18.

(4) Lit., ‘in the place of עליה with reference to the verse ‘Her husband's brother shall go in unto her’ (v. supra p. 8, n. 9) i.e., where the command of levirate marriage would otherwise apply.

(5) The rival.

(6) To be married, cf. supra p. 35, n. 12.

(7) On the lines of the argument just advanced.

(8) I.e., the wife's sister.

(9) To be married.

(10) Of the levirate marriage.

(11) Lev. XVIII, 18.

(12) One's wife.

(13) Her sister must not be married. (Other forbidden relatives, as has been shewn supra, are deduced from one's wife's sister).

(14) Lit., ‘that’.

(15) I.e., that the prohibition of a wife's sister which on the present assumption is limited to cases where the precept of levirate marriage is applicable, applies only during the lifetime of one's wife.

(16) The wife.

(17) But it can still be maintained that where no levirate marriage is applicable, there is no prohibition of marrying the wife's sister.

(18) Lev. XVIII, 18.

(19) I.e., that both the wife's sister and her rival are forbidden to be married. (This, as will be shewn infra, is deduced from the expression li-zeror.)

(20) Lev. XVIII, 18, emphasis on her (sing.).

(21) Of the levirate marriage.

(22) To be married.

(23) The forbidden relative herself.

(24) Since even without this additional phrase the two contradictory texts would have been naturally reconciled by applying the former (prohibition of both) to a case where the precept of the levirate marriage is inapplicable, and the latter (permission of the rival) to a case where it is applicable. The addition of the phrase must consequently have been intended to impart a new law, viz. that a rival is forbidden, like the forbidden relative herself, where the precept of the levirate marriage is applicable.

(25) Lev. XVIII, 18.

(26) V. supra p. 8, n. 9.

(27) I.e., where the law of the levirate marriage does not apply.

(28) Where levirate marriage does apply.

(29) The concluding part of the verse עליה בחייה meaning where he has to go ‘unto her’, the sister of his wife who is the widow of his brother, he may do so even in her (his wife's) life-time.

(30) V. Lev. XVIII, 18, implying, as explained supra, the prohibition of one only.

(31) Of the levirate marriage.

(32) So that there are two, not only one.

(33) And there is none.
(34) Heb. li-zeror (Lev. XVIII, 18), supra 3b. How then could it be said to be derived from a different text?
(35) V. infra 28b.
(36) V. Emden a.l. Cur. edd. read ‘here’.
(37) In Deut. XXV, 5, the text cited by Rabbi. Clearly, it was not mentioned at all; how then could Rabbi derive from the text a law concerning a subject of which no mention was made?
(38) That the text refers to the forbidden relative only and not to a rival.
(39) Deut. XXV, 5.
(40) Lit., ‘takings’, i.e., when the deceased childless brother is survived by two widows, and the levir has to decide which of them to marry.
(41) The levir.
(42) I.e., when neither of the two is a forbidden relative.
(43) The emphasis on ‘her’ in And take her implies that there is a choice between two, and the phrase ‘and take her’ is taken to imply that the levir is in a position to choose whichever he pleases, since either of them must be capable of having the phrase ‘and take her applied to her.
(44) If one cannot be married by him on account of her being his forbidden relative.
(45) Deut. XXV, 5.
(46) Who made the deduction from li-zeror.
(47) The levir.
(48) After he married her; and she requires no halizah.
(49) Though the precept of the levirate marriage has been fulfilled and she might have been assumed to be forbidden to him as a brother's wife. The text is interpreted as follows: And he takes her to him to wife, as soon as he has taken her, she is regarded henceforth in all respects as his wife, i.e., as if she had never been forbidden to him as a brother's wife.
(50) Emphasis on ‘unto her’ (v. Tosaf).
(51) Whence does he derive the law deduced by R. Jose b. Hanina?
(52) Who are guilty of an erroneous ruling.
(53) To bring the sacrifice prescribed in Lev. IV, 13ff.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 9a

Nor [are they liable] in respect of idolatry unless [they ruled] concerning a matter the punishment for which is kareth, if it was committed wilfully and a sin-offering if committed unwittingly;[1] and we also learnt: [For the unwitting transgression of any] commandment in the Torah the penalty for which, if committed wilfully, is kareth and, if committed unwittingly a sin-offering, the private individual brings a sin-offering of a lamb or a she-goat; the ruler brings a goat; and the anointed High Priest and the Beth din bring a bullock. In the case of idolatry the individual and the ruler and the anointed High Priest bring a she-goat while the Beth din[2] bring a bullock and a goat, the bullock for a burnt-offering and the goat for a sin-offering. Whence is this deduced? From the following. For our Rabbis taught: When the sin wherein they have sinned is known:[3] Rabbi said, here[4] we read ‘aleha[5] and further on[6] we also read ‘aleha;[7] as further on[6] the prohibition involves the penalty of kareth if the transgression was wilful and that of a sin-offering if it was unwitting, so here[8] also, [the ruling must be concerning] a prohibition which involves the penalty of kareth if the transgression was wilful and that of a sin-offering if it was unwitting.[9]

Proof has thus been adduced for the case of the congregation; whence for that of the anointed High Priest? — It is written in relation to the High Priest, So as to bring guilt upon the people;[10] this shews that the anointed High Priest is like the congregation. And for an individual and a ruler? — The inference is made by a comparison of Things[11] with Things.[12] ‘Nor [are they liable] in respect of idolatry unless [their ruling] concerned a matter the punishment for which is kareth if it was committed wilfully, and a sin-offering if committed unwittingly’. As regards the congregation in the matter of idolatry, deduction[13] is made by comparison between From the eyes[14] and From the eyes.[15] [The law[16] of] a private individual, a ruler and an anointed High Priest [is deduced] from, And if one soul[17] which implies that there is no distinction between a private individual, a ruler and an anointed High Priest, while the waw[18] connects them with the previous subject,[19] and consequently the latter[20] may be deduced from the former.[21]

Whence, however, do the Rabbis[22] arrive at this inference?[23] — They deduce it from the Biblical interpretation which R. Joshua b. Levi taught to his son: Ye shall have one law for him that doeth aught in error. But the soul that doeth aught with a high hand etc.,[24] all the Torah is compared to the prohibition of idolatry;[25] as in regard to idolatry [obligation is incurred only where] the offence involves the punishment of kareth[26] when it was committed wilfully and a sin-offering[27] when committed unwittingly, so also in the case of any other transgression [it must be such] as involves kareth when committed wilfully and a sin-offering when committed unwittingly.

Proof has thus been found for the case of a private individual, a ruler and an anointed High Priest[28] both in regard to idolatry and the rest of the commandments; whence, however, [is it proved that the same law applies also to] the congregation in the case of idolatry? — Scripture said, And if one soul,[29] and the former[30] may be deduced from the latter.[31] Whence, however, [is it deduced that the same law applies to] the congregation in the case of the other commandments? — Deduction is made by comparison between ‘From the eyes’ and ‘From the eyes’.[32]

And what does Rabbi do with the text of One law?[33] — He applies it to the following.[34] Whereas we find that Scripture made distinction between individuals and a group,[35] individuals being punished by stoning and their money, therefore, being spared, while a group are punished by the sword and their money is consequently destroyed, one might also assume that a distinction should be made in respect of their sacrifices; hence it was explicitly stated, Ye shall have one law.[33]

R. Hilkiah of Hagronia[36] demurred: Is the reason[37] because the All Merciful has written, Ye shall have one law,[33] so that had it not so been written it might have been thought that a distinction should be made [in respect of their sacrifices]? What, however, could they bring! Should they bring a bullock? The congregation,[38] surely, brings a bullock for the transgression of any one of all the other commandments![39] [Should they bring] a lamb? An individual, surely, brings a lamb if he transgressed any of the other commandments![40] A he-goat? A ruler brings one in the case of transgression of any of the other commandments![40] A bullock for a burnt-offering and a goat for a sin-offering? Such, surely, are brought by the congregation in the case of idolatry![40] Should they, then, bring a she-goat? This, surely, is also the sin-offering of a private individual![41] — [The text][42] was required, because it might have been suggested that whereas the congregation, in the case of an erroneous ruling, brings a bullock for a burnt-offering and a he-goat for a sin-offering, these[43] should also bring the same sacrifices, but] in the reverse order;[44] or [it might have been assumed to be] necessary[45] but that there was no remedy;[46] hence it was necessary to teach us.[47]

Said Levi to Rabbi: What ground is there for stating[48] FIFTEEN? Sixteen should have been stated! — The other replied: It seems to me that this man has no brains in his head. ‘Do you mean’, he continued, ‘a man's mother who had been outraged by his father?[49] The case of a man's mother who has been outraged by his father is a matter in dispute between R. Judah and the Rabbis,[50] and the author of our Mishnah does not deal with any controversial matter’. But does he not? Surely, the prohibition due to a Rabbinical ordinance and the prohibition due to the levir's sanctity,[51] concerning which R. Akiba and the Rabbis are in dispute,[52] are mentioned! — We mean, in our chapter. But, surely it was taught,[53] ‘Beth Shammai permit rivals to the other brothers and Beth Hillel prohibit them’![54] — The view of Beth Shammai where it is in contradiction to that of Beth Hillel is of no consequence.[55]

Is there not the case of the wife of a man's brother who was not his contemporary.[56]

---

(1) Hor. 8a.
(2) So in Hor. 9a. Cur. ed. ‘congregation’.
(3) Lev. IV, 14.
(4) Concerning an erroneous ruling of the Beth din.
(5) עליה, Lev. loc. cit. (‘wherein’).
(6) Concerning marrying two sisters.
(7) Ibid. XVIII, 18, E.V., ‘Beside the other’.
(8) Concerning an erroneous ruling of the Beth din.
(9) Thus it has been shewn that Rabbi requires the text Beside the other for another deduction.
(10) Lev. IV, 3.
(11) Heb. mizwoth מצות ‘commandments’.
(12) Lev. IV, 22 and IV, 13.
(13) That the transgression must be one which involves kareth if done wilfully, and a sin-offering if done unwittingly.
(14) Num. XV, 24, dealing with idolatry.
(15) Lev. IV, 13, referring to an erroneous ruling.
(16) V. note 12.
(17) Num. XV, 27.
(18) ‘And’, in we'im (ואם, and if).
(19) The congregation.
(20) Individual, ruler and High Priest.
(21) The congregation, concerning whom deduction has previously been made from the law relating to an erroneous ruling.
(22) Who, unlike Rabbi, require the expression ‘aleha (beside her) for deduction in connection with the laws of incest and rival wives, supra 3b.
(23) That obligation is incurred only where the prohibition involves kareth where it was transgressed wilfully and a sin-offering when transgressed unwittingly.
(24) Num. XV, 29, 30.
(25) The text, according to Rabbinical exposition, refers to idolatry and in relation to it the expression Law (Torah) is used.
(26) E.g., offering of a sacrifice.
(27) V. Num. XV, 30. Where wilful transgression involves kareth, unwitting transgression is atoned for by a sin-offering.
(28) By deduction from soul (nefesh, Num. XV, 27) which includes all ranks of individuals.
(29) Num. XV, 27, referring, as has just been pointed out, to individuals of all ranks.
(30) Congregation.
(31) Individuals.
(32) V. supra p. 40, n. 13 and p. 40, n. 14.
(33) Num. XV, 29.
(34) Lit., ‘requires it for as it was taught’.
(35) Lit., ‘many’, i.e., the inhabitants of a city condemned for idolatry (Deut. XIII, 13ff).
(36) A suburb of Nehardea.
(37) Why the sin-offerings of a group and of individuals are the same in the case of idolatry (v. previous note).
(38) I.e., a majority of all the tribes of Israel.
(39) What distinction, then, would there be between the sin-offerings of a ‘condemned city’ and those of the ‘congregation’? (V. previous note). If a distinction is to be made between the sacrifices of a ‘condemned city’ and those of individuals, how much more should such a distinction be made between the former and those of the ‘congregation’!
(40) Cf. n. 7, supra.
(41) Now, since no distinction in the sacrifice could possibly be made, what need was there for the text of Num. XV, 29?
(42) V. previous note.
(43) The men of a ‘condemned city’.
(44) A bullock for a sin-offering and a he-goat for a burnt-offering.
(45) For the men of a ‘condemned city’ to bring a special sin-offering.

(46) If the sin was committed unwittingly since an offering peculiar to themselves is an impossibility.

(47) That the sacrifices are the same (cf. supra p. 42, n. 5) as deduced from Num. XV, 27. For further notes v. Hor., Sonc. ed. pp. 53ff.

(48) In our Mishnah, supra 2a.

(49) I.e., that the Mishnah should have included as a sixteenth forbidden relative, a man's mother who was not the lawful wife of his father, and who, having been subsequently married by his paternal brother who died childless, is now subject to the levirate marriage or halizah of her own son, the brother of her second husband.

(50) Whether she may be married to his paternal brother, supra 4a.

(51) איסור מצוה a prohibition not included in the Biblical laws of incest, but ordained by the Rabbis. איסור קדושה a prohibition due to sanctity in the case, e.g., of a widow whose levir is a High Priest. (For this and an alternative explanation v. infra 20a).

(52) Infra loc. cit.

(53) In our very chapter, infra 13a.

(54) Which shews that even laws which are in dispute are recorded in the chapter.

(55) Lit., ‘is not a teaching’; the view of Beth Hillel is accepted as law, and can consequently be included in our chapter.

(56) Lit., ‘in his world’, i.e., who was born after the death of his childless brother.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 9b

concerning which R. Simeon and the Rabbis are in dispute,[1] and which is nevertheless mentioned? — R. Simeon does not dispute the case where the birth[2] was first, and the levirate marriage[3] later.[4] Did not R. Oshaia, however, say[1] that R. Simeon disputed the first case also?[5] — Surely. R. Oshaia's view was refuted.

Did not, however, Rab Judah state in the name of Rab, and R. Hiyya also taught: In the case of all these[6] it may happen that she who is forbidden to one brother may be permitted to the other[1] while she who is forbidden to the other brother may be permitted to the one, and that her sister who is her sister-in-law may be subject either to halizah or to the levirate marriage.[7] And Rab Judah interpreted [it[8] as referring to those][9] from one's MOTHER-IN-LAW onwards but not to the first six categories. What is the reason? Because in the case of a daughter this[10] is possible only [with one born] from a woman who had been outraged but not [with one born] from a legal marriage,[11] [and the author of our Mishnah] deals only with cases of legal matrimony and not with those of outraged women.[12] And Abaye interpreted it[8] [as referring] also to a daughter from a woman who had been out raged, because, since [the application of Rab's statement] is quite possible in her case, it matters not whether she was born from a woman who was legally married or from one that had been outraged; but not to the wife of a brother who was not his contemporary. What is the reason? Because [the application of Rab's statement in this case] is possible only according to the view of R. Simeon and not according to that of the Rabbis, [the author of our Mishnah] does not deal with any matter which is in dispute. And R. Safra interprets it[13] as referring also to the wife of a brother who was not his contemporary, and [in his opinion] it[13] is possible in the case of six brothers in accordance with the view of R. Simeon.[14]

---

(1) Infra 18b.

(2) Of a third brother. (V. infra n. 4).

(3) Between the second brother and the widow of the first brother who died without issue (V. following note).

(4) In such a case, R. Simeon agrees that the third brother must not marry the widow, because at the time when he was born the widow was forbidden to him as ‘the wife of his brother who was not his contemporary’. R. Simeon's disagreement with the Rabbis is limited to the case where the first brother, A, died childless and his widow was married to the second brother, B, prior to the birth of the third brother, C. If subsequently B died also childless, R. Simeon, contrary to the opinion of the Rabbis, allows the levirate marriage between the widow and C, because when C was born the widow was already the wife of B, and C's levirate marriage now is not due to A whose widow was a married woman when he was born, but to B whose contemporary he is.

(5) I.e., where C (v. note 4) was born before the levirate marriage between A's widow and B took place.
(6) The fifteen forbidden categories enumerated in our Mishnah, supra 2af.
(7) For full explanation of this statement V. infra 26a and 28b.
(8) Rab's statement.
(9) Forbidden categories.
(10) The full application of Rab's statement.
(11) Who would be forbidden to all the brothers.
(12) And since the case of a daughter could not be included, the other five cases also, bearing on a daughter, were excluded.
(13) Rab's statement.
(14) V. infra 28b for explanation.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 10a

And your mnemonic is, ‘Died, born, and performed the levirate marriage; died, born, and performed the levirate marriage’![1] — Rabbi[2] does not accept these rules.[3]

R. Adda Karhina stated before R. Kahana in the name of Raba: Rabbi, in fact, does accept these rules,[4] but it was this that he meant to say to [Levi]:[5] [The application of the statement[4] to] a woman outraged by one's father is possible only in one [of its parts]; it is impossible, however, to apply it in [both its parts], for if Jacob outraged his two sisters,[6] it is possible [to apply that part of the statement relating to] ‘her sister who is her sister-in-law’,[7] but not that of ‘she who is forbidden to one brother may be permitted to the other’;[8] and if be outraged two strangers,[9] it is possible [to apply the statement], ‘she who is forbidden to one brother may be permitted to the other’[10] but not that of ‘her sister who is her sister-in-law’.[11]

R. Ashi said: Rabbi, in fact, does not accept these rules[12] and [our Mishnah] does deal with matters in dispute, and as to the meaning[13] of ‘It seems to me that this man has no brains in his head’ which he[14] addressed to him,[15] what he meant was this: ‘Why did you not carefully consider our Mishnah? For our Mishnah represents the view of R. Judah who forbids the marriage of a woman that was outraged by one's father,[16] as it was taught: Six forbidden relatives come under greater restrictions,[17] since they are to be married to strangers only,[18] and their rivals are permitted.[19] [These are:] his mother, his father's wife and his father's sister [etc.].[20] Now, what is meant by "his mother"? If it be assumed to mean one who was legally married to his father, such a woman surely is "his father's wife".[21] Must it not consequently mean one who was outraged by his father? And yet it was stated, "since they are to be married to strangers only", implying "to strangers only but not to the brothers". Now, who has been heard to hold such an opinion? Surely it was R. Judah who forbids marriage with a woman who was outraged by one's father.[22] Hence[23] it was not included in our Mishnah.’[24]

Said Rabina to R. Ashi: [Such a levirate relationship][25] is possible even according to R. Judah if and when one had married[26] illegally![27] — The author of the Mishnah is not concerned with an ‘if’.[28] Said R. Ashi to R. Kahana: This[29] is also possible without the ‘if’,[30] where Jacob[31] outraged his daughter-in-law, begat from her a son, and then Reuben[32] died without issue, and she thus came into levirate relationship with her son;[33] and since she is forbidden to him,[34] her rival also is likewise forbidden![35] — The other replied: [The author of our Mishnah] deals only with lawful brotherhood but not with brotherhood which is due to a forbidden act.

Levi nevertheless[36] inserted it[37] in his Mishnah. For Levi taught: One's mother sometimes exempts her rival[38] and sometimes she does not exempt her. If his mother, for instance,[39] was lawfully married to his father, and then she was married[40] to his paternal brother[41] who subsequently died, such a mother does not exempt her rival.[42]

---

(1) Now, since in the case of ‘the wife of a brother who was not his contemporary’ the application of Rab's statement is only possible according to the view of R. Simeon but not according to that of the Rabbis, and since the statement is based on our Mishnah, it is obvious that our Mishnah deals also with a case which is in dispute.

(2) Cf. Bah. Cur. edd. insert, ‘but’.

(3) Of Rab and R. Hiyya. Our Mishnah consequently deals only with that case in which R. Simeon and the Rabbis are in agreement. (V. supra 9b top).

(4) Of Rab and R. Hiyya, supra 9b.

(5) Whom he addressed supra 9a.

(6) And after one of them had given birth to a child, C, and the other to one, D, the first was married by A and the second by B, two of Jacob's sons from another wife.

(7) For should A and B die childless their wives who are sisters as well as sisters-in-law come under the law of the levirate marriage in relation to C and D the brothers of A and B.

(8) Both being forbidden to C as well as to D. The mother of C is forbidden to C as mother and to D as mother's sister, and the mother of D is similarly forbidden to D and C.

(9) Cf.n.8.

(10) Since the women are strangers and the restrictions mentioned in note 10 do not apply.

(11) The women being sisters-in-law only but not sisters. Thus it has been shewn that the statement could not be applied in its entirety to the case of an outraged woman. Hence it was excluded from the enumeration in our Mishnah.

(12) Of Rab and Hiyya.

(13) Lit., ‘and what’.

(14) Rabbi.

(15) Levi, supra 9a.

(16) Hence it is impossible for a mother, whether legally married or outraged, ever to come into levirate relationship with her son. (Cf. supra p. 45, n. 8.)

(17) Than those relating to the fifteen enumerated in our Mishnah.

(18) No paternal brother of the person concerned may ever marry them.

(19) To marry the brother of their deceased husband who had been married to their rival (one of the six relatives) illegally (Maimonides). If the marriage was with a stranger the permissibility of marriage is obvious since the laws of rivals apply only to a brother's widow.

(20) Infra 13a.

(21) Who was specifically mentioned.

(22) So that it is impossible for one ever to be subject to levirate marriage with his brother's wife whose legitimate or illegitimate son he is.

(23) Since R. Judah holds such an opinion and the Mishnah represents his view.

(24) Lit., ‘he did not teach it’.

(25) Cf. supra p. 46, n. 13.

(26) The woman his father had outraged and who is also the mother of his brother.

(27) Infra 78a. In such a case it is surely possible for a mother to come into the levirate relationship with her son.

(28) Lit., ‘when if he does not teach’, i.e., he is not concerned with a levirate relationship that may arise out of a possible and unlikely breach of the law.

(29) Levitate relationship with a mother. Cf. supra p. 46, n. 13.

(30) I.e., even if the deceased brothers did not transgress the law.

(31) The father of the deceased.

(32) Her husband, Jacob's son.

(33) Lit., ‘and she fell before her son’, who is the paternal brother of her deceased husband, Reuben.

(34) As his mother.

(35) Why then was not this case included in our Mishnah?

(36) Despite Rabbi's abusive reply, supra 9a.

(37) בדקה lit., ‘examined it’, i.e., revised our Mishnah and added the case under discussion. [Levi drew up a collection of teachings like those of R. Hiyya and R. Oshaia, v. B.B., Sonc. ed. p. 216].

(38) From halizah and the levirate marriage.

(39) Lit., ‘how so?’.
(40) Unlawfully.
(41) Which is a marriage forbidden under the penalty of kareth and is, therefore, illegal and invalid.
(42) The marriage having been invalid, the woman is not regarded as his brother's wife.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 10b

If his mother, however, was a woman that had been outraged by his father and was then married to his paternal brother who subsequently died, such a mother does exempt her rival.[1] And though the Sages taught in our Mishnah FIFTEEN we must add a case like this as a sixteenth.

Resh Lakish said to R. Johanan: According to Levi who maintains that an ‘if’[2] is also included,[3] let our Mishnah also include[4] the case of a levir who gave halizah to his sister-in-law[5] and later betrothed[6] her and died without issue, for since [the widow of such a one] is forbidden,[7] her rival also is forbidden![8] — The other replied: Because in this case the law of the rival of the rival[9] cannot be applied.[10] But could he[11] not have answered[12] him[13] [that the brothers] are only subject to the penalties of a negative precept,[14] and that those who are subject to the penalties of a negative precept are[15] under the obligations of halizah and the levirate marriage?[16] — He[17] answered him[18] in accordance with the view he[18] holds. ‘According to my view,’ he[19] argued, [the brothers] are only subject to the penalties of a negative precept,[20] and those who are subject to the penalties of a negative precept are[21] under the obligations of halizah and the levirate marriage,[22] but even according to your view that they are subject to the penalty of kareth [the case could not have been included in our Mishnah] because the law of the rival's rival cannot be applied’.[23]

It has been stated: Where [a levir] had performed the ceremonial of halizah with his sister-in-law, and then betrothed her, Resh Lakish holds that he is not subject to the penalty of kareth for the haluzah,[24] but the other brothers are subject to kareth for the haluzah.[25] In the case of the rival,[26] both he[27] and the other brothers are subject to kareth for a rival.[28] R. Johanan, however, holds that neither he[27] nor the other brothers are subject to kareth either for the haluzah or for her rival.[29] What is the reason of Resh Lakish? — Scripture stated, That doth not build,[30] since he has not built he must never again build.[31] He himself is thus placed under the prohibition of building no more,[32] but his brothers remain in the same position in which they were before.[33] Furthermore, the prohibition to build no more applies only to herself,[34] her rival, however, remains under the same prohibition as before.[33] And R. Johanan?[35] — Is it inconceivable[36] that at first halizah should be allowed to be performed by any one of the brothers[37] and with either of the widows of the deceased brother[38] and that now one or other of these persons should[39] be involved in kareth![40] But [in point of fact] he[41] merely acts as agent for the brothers while she[42] acts as agent for her rival.[43]

R. Johanan pointed out to Resh Lakish the following objection: ‘If a levir who submitted to halizah from his sister-in-law, later betrothed her and died,[44] [the widow] requires halizah from the surviving brothers’. Now, according to me who maintains that [the surviving brothers][45] are subject to the penalties of a negative precept only, one can well understand why she requires halizah from the other brothers.[46] According to you, however, why should she require halizah?[47] — Explain, then, on the lines of your reasoning, the final clause, ‘If one of the brothers[48] actually[49] betrothed her, she has no claim upon him’![50] R. Shesheth replied: The final clause represents the opinion of R. Akiba who holds that a betrothal with those who are subject thereby to the penalties of a negative precept is of no validity.[51] Should it not then have been stated, ‘according to the view of R. Akiba she[52] has no claim upon him’![53]

---

(1) Since her marriage with the deceased brother was not unlawful, her rival (any other wife of her husband) is subject to the same laws as any other rival in the case of the fifteen relatives of our Mishnah.
(2) Cf. p. 47, n. 4, supra.

(3) By R. Judah who, as has been shewn supra, is the author of our Mishnah. Though he prohibits the marriage of a woman that was outraged by one's father, he nevertheless, according to Levi's recital, included the case in our Mishnah.

(4) Lit., ‘teach’.

(5) Whom he is in consequence forbidden to marry.

(6) Since the marriage in such a case is forbidden under a negative precept the transgression of which does not involve the penalty of kareth, the betrothal is legally valid.

(7) To the brothers of the levir who gave the halizah: this prohibition, according to Resh Lakish infra involving the penalty of kareth.

(8) To the brothers. Why then was not this case also added to the fifteen?

(9) V. our Mishnah.

(10) Her rival (as well as herself), being forbidden to all the other brothers (as brother's wife or as the haluzah of one of the brothers), can never have any of the wives of the brothers as her rival. In the case of the forbidden relatives in our Mishnah, they are forbidden to one of the brothers only, hence they or their rivals are not otherwise precluded from marrying one of the other brothers.

(11) R. Johanan.

(12) Lit., ‘and he should say’.

(13) Resh Lakish.

(14) If they married the haluzah, their deceased brother's widow, with whom halizah had been performed by one of them. According to R. Johanan, infra, contrary to the view of Resh Lakish, no penalty of kareth is involved in such a marriage, whether the transgressor be the brother who performed the halizah or any of the other brothers.

(15) Unlike those subject to the penalty of kareth who are exempt from halizah and from the levirate marriage.

(16) I.e., though the marriage with them is forbidden by a negative precept, they remain nevertheless under the obligations of the levirate relationship and must, therefore, undergo the ceremonial of halizah. Why, then, did not R. Johanan give Resh Lakish this reply which would well account for the omission from our Mishnah of the case he mentioned?

(17) R. Johanan.

(18) Resh Lakish.

(19) R. Johanan.

(20) V. p. 48, n. 13.

(21) V. p. 48, n. 14.

(22) Cf. previous note.

(23) Cf. supra p. 48, n. 9.

(24) V. Glos. I.e., for having intercourse with her. Consequently the betrothal is valid.

(25) Consequently should any of the other brothers betroth the haluzah, the betrothal is invalid.

(26) Of a haluzah (v. previous note). A rival is exempt from halizah and the levirate marriage by the action of the haluzah.

(27) The levir who participated in the halizah.

(28) V. infra 53a.

(29) Infra 40b and l.c.

(30) Deut. XXV, 9.

(31) The imperfect יבנה may be rendered as a present as well as a future.

(32) I.e., under a negative precept only which involves no kareth.

(33) I.e., under the prohibition to marry a brother's wife, which involves the penalty of kareth.

(34) The haluzah.

(35) What reason does he advance for his opinions?

(36) Lit., ‘is there (such) a thing’?

(37) Lit., ‘if he prefers, this one participates in the halizah and if he prefers etc.’

(38) Lit., ‘and if he prefers he performs the halizah with that one and if he prefers etc’.

(39) In case of a betrothal.

(40) Though the others are not.

(41) The brother who participated in the halizah.

(42) The widow who performed the halizah ceremonial.

(43) Hence all the brothers as well as all the rivals are in this respect in exactly the same position. As the brother and the widow who between them carried out the halizah ceremonial are in a case of subsequent marriage exempt from kareth and are subject only to the penalties of a negative precept, so also are all the others on whose behalf they acted.
(44) Without issue.
(45) In subsequently marrying the haluzah.
(46) Since the negative precept which bars them from the levirate marriage does not supersede halizah.
(47) Marriage with them would involve the penalty of kareth, and whenever such a penalty is involved the parties are not subject to the laws of halizah!
(48) Other than the one who participated in the halizah.
(49) Lit., 'stood'.
(50) I.e., the betrothal is invalid, she receives no kethubah, and no divorce is needed. This obviously proves that the penalty for such an ensuing marriage is kareth, as Resh Lakish maintains; for had it been, as R. Johanan asserts, that of a negative precept only, the betrothal should have been valid.
(51) Keth. 29b, Kid. 64a, 68a, Sot. 18b, infra 52b, 69a.
(52) So Bah, a.l. Cur. edd., 'he'.
(53) Since it is the general opinion that such a betrothal is valid.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 11a

— This is rather a difficulty.

R. Ashi holds the same opinion as Resh Lakish[1] and explains it[2] in accordance with the ruling of R. Simeon.[3] Rabina holds the same opinion as R. Johanan[4] and explains it[5] in accordance with the ruling of the Rabbis.[6] 'R. Ashi holds the same opinion as Resh Lakish and explains it in accordance with the ruling of R. Simeon', thus: If [a levir] who submitted to halizah from his sister-in-law had subsequently betrothed her, she[7] requires halizah from the brothers. Who are these brothers? Those born [subsequently].[8] According to whose view? According to that of R. Simeon.[9] If one of the previously born[10] brothers, however, betrothed her, she has no claim upon him.[11] According to whose view? According to that of Resh Lakish.[11]

'Rabina holds the same opinion as R. Johanan and explains it in accordance with the ruling of the Rabbis', thus: If [a levir] who submitted to halizah from his sister-in-law had subsequently betrothed her, she requires halizah from the brothers. Who are these brothers? Those born [prior to the halizah]. According to whom? According to R. Johanan.[12] If one of the subsequently[13] born brothers, however, betrothed her, she has no claim upon him. According to whose view? According to that of the Rabbis.[14]

It has been stated: In the case where [the Ievir] had intercourse with his sister-in-law[15] and one of the other brothers had intercourse with her rival, there is a difference of opinion between R. Aha and Rabina. One said: [It involves[16] a transgression subject] to kareth and the other said: [The transgression] of a positive precept.[17] He who said, '[A transgression subject] to kareth' follows Resh Lakish;[18] and he who said, '[The transgression] of a positive precept' follows R. Johanan.[19]

Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: The rival of a sotah[20] is for bidden.[21] What is the reason?[22] — Because uncleanness is ascribed to her[23] as to the cases of incest.[24] R. Hisda raised an objection:[25] R. Simeon[26] said, the intercourse[27] or halizah of the brother of the first husband exempts her rival![28] — Rab can answer you, 'I speak of a sotah that is Biblically forbidden,[29] and you talk of a sotah that is only Rabbinically forbidden'.[30]

But as to him who raised this objection, what did he imagine?[31] — He thought that Rabbinical provisions were given the same force as Biblical laws.[32]

R. Ashi raised an objection: If she[33] entered with the man into a private place and remained with him for a period sufficient for the consummation of defilement, she is forbidden to her house,[34] she may not eat of terumah,[35] and if he died she must undergo the ceremony of halizah

---

(1) That any brother, other than the one who submitted to the halizah, who married the widow after she had performed the halizah is subject to the penalty of kareth (v. supra 10b).

(2) The first clause of the statement cited in the discussion between R. Johanan and Resh Lakish, according to which halizah is required.

(3) Who maintains that a brother born after the levirate marriage of his elder brother is not subject, in relation to the deceased brother, to the restriction of a 'brother who was not his contemporary'. The first clause then, which requires halizah, may consequently refer to brothers born after both the halizah and the betrothal had taken place. The widow of the levir not being forbidden to them on account of her first deceased husband, is subject to halizah on account of the second. (The final clause which clearly agrees with the view of Resh Lakish requires of course no explanation).

(4) Who maintains that the brother who performed the halizah as well as all the other brothers are forbidden to marry the widow subsequent to the halizah, not under the penalty of kareth but under that of a negative precept. Hence the ruling in the first clause that halizah is required.

(5) The final clause. (Cf. n. 2 supra).

(6) Who hold that even a brother born after the levirate marriage (v. n. 3 supra) is subject to the restrictions of 'a brother who was not his contemporary'. The final clause may accordingly refer to such brothers to whom the widow is forbidden for this reason (not on account of the halizah that had been performed) and the marriage or betrothal with whom is consequently invalid. (The first clause obviously is in agreement with R. Johanan).

(7) In the case where the levir who betrothed her also died without issue.

(8) After the halizah and the betrothal. Having been born after the halizah they have never been subject to the levirate relationship on account of the first deceased brother and the halizah of the levir had, therefore, imposed no restrictions upon them in relation to the widow.

(9) V. supra n. 3. Hence it is the duty of one of these brothers to submit to halizah which is incumbent upon them as brothers of the levir who also died without issue.

(10) Prior to the performance of the halizah.

(11) Since according to Resh Lakish the performance of the halizah by one of the brothers had caused the prohibition of the widow upon all other contemporary brothers under the penalty of kareth, such a betrothal is invalid.

(12) V. supra p. 51, n. 4.

(13) After the performance of the halizah.

(14) V. supra p. 51, n. 6.

(15) The widow of his deceased childless brother.

(16) For the other brother.

(17) The precept is to perform one levirate marriage but not more than one, a transgression to which no penalty is attached.

(18) In whose view (supra 10b) the levir who marries, or participates in halizah with the widow, does not act as the agent of the other brothers. Hence, despite the fact that in the levir's own case the prohibition to marry the rival is regarded as having the force of a positive precept, in that of the other brothers the original prohibition to marry a brother's wife remains in force and marriage with her involves, therefore, the penalty of kareth.

(19) Who regards the levir as the agent of the brothers (supra 10b). Hence they are subject to the same prohibition. As in the levir's own case so in that of the other brothers the levirate obligations supersede the prohibition of marrying a brother's wife, and with it the original penalty of kareth.

(20) סוטה, a married woman suspected of adultery, who is subject to the ordeal prescribed in Num. V, 12ff. V. Glos.

(21) To the levir; in the case where there are witnesses that the sotah had committed the crime and her husband subsequently died childless. The rival and certainly the sotah herself are in such a case exempt from both the levirate marriage and the halizah.

(22) So Bah. Cur. edd. omit.

(23) She being defiled. Num. V, 13.

(24) Defile ye not yourselves. Lev. XVIII, 24. As the rival in the latter case is forbidden, so is she in the former.

(25) The following refers to a case where a woman married a second husband on the basis of a report by one witness that her first husband had died in a foreign country. If later it was discovered that her first husband was alive, she must be divorced by both. If both died childless prior to the divorce she requires halizah from a brother of each but may not, according to the Rabbis, marry either of them.

(26) Disagreeing with the Rabbis in one point.

(27) Her second marriage having been entered into through an innocent error, no penalty is incurred by her as far as her relationship with the levir from the first marriage is concerned. Hence, in the opinion of R. Simeon, either marriage or halizah is permitted, v. infra 87a.

(28) From this it follows that the rival of a married woman who had intercourse with another husband is permitted to the levir both according to R. Simeon and according to the Rabbis (the latter having only disputed the case of the married woman herself). Why, then, did Rab state that the rival of a sotah is forbidden?

(29) A woman that was faithless to her husband. (Num. V, 12ff).

(30) The woman who married a second husband under an honest misapprehension. Biblically she is permitted to live again with her husband since her second marriage was entered into on the basis of a report by a witness, on the strength of which she was by Biblical law fully permitted to contract the marriage.

(31) He must surely have known that the one was Biblical and the other only Rabbinical! ודקארי לה מאי קארי rt. ארי or ארא (cf. Gr. ) ‘to speak’, ‘enquire’, ‘argue’.

(32) Lit., ‘all that the Rabbis provided, like that of the Torah they provided’.

(33) A woman suspected by her husband who warned her not to seclude herself with a certain man.

(34) I.e., to her husband.

(35) V. Glos.; in the case where the husband is a priest.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 11b

though she may not marry the levir![1] — Rab can answer you. ‘I speak of a definite sotah, and you speak of a doubtful one’. But why should a definite sotah be different? Obviously because in relation to her the expression of ‘uncleanness’ is used;[2] is not, however, the expression of ‘uncleanness’ also used in relation to a doubtful sotah! For it was taught: R. Jose b. Kipper said in the name of R. Eleazar, The remarriage by a husband of his divorced wife is forbidden after marriage[3] and permitted after betrothal,[4] because it is stated in the Scriptures. After that she is defiled.[5] The Sages, however, say, the one as well as the other[6] is forbidden,[7] and the expression[8] ‘After that she is defiled’ implies the inclusion of a sotah who secluded herself with a man![9] — The underlying meaning of ‘secluded herself’ is ‘sexual intercourse’. Why then did he say ‘secluded herself’? — In order to employ a euphemism.[10] But in relation to sexual intercourse, [surely,] uncleanness was actually mentioned in the Scriptures. She being defiled secretly![11] — To subject the offence[12] to a negative precept.[13] And R. Jose b. Kipper?[14] — He does not hold the view that a negative precept is applicable to a sotah, even in the case where she had actually committed adultery. What is the reason? — [Because in reference to the remarriage of a divorced wife] Scripture uses the expression of[15] becoming[16] as well as that of matrimony.[17]

Rab Judah inquired of R. Shesheth: What is the law in regard to the rival of a woman whom her former husband remarried after her second marriage and died?[18] According to the view of R. Jose b. Kipper the question does not arise. For R. Jose b. Kipper having stated that ‘uncleanness’ is mentioned in the case of him who remarried his divorced wife, it follows that her rival is subject to the very same restrictions. And if [objection be raised] from the Scriptural text, She is an abomination,[19] [it may be replied that the implication is] that she is an abomination and not her children,[20] her rival, however, being an abomination. The question, however, arises on the view of the Rabbis: Does the Scriptural text,[21] despite the fact that the Rabbis had applied the expression ‘uncleanness’ to the sotah, also bear its ordinary meaning,[22] or since it[23] was once torn away [from its ordinary meaning] it must in all respects so remain?[24] Others say: According to the Rabbis no question arises, for since the text has once been torn away [from its ordinary meaning] it must in all respects so remain. The question, however, arises according to the view of R. Jose b. Kipper: What is the law? [Is it assumed that] although R. Jose b. Kipper stated that the expression of ‘uncleanness’ refers to the remarriage of a divorced wife, the All Merciful has written ‘She is an abomination’ to indicate that ‘she’ is an abomination but not her rival,[25] or is the implication, perhaps, that ‘she’ is an abomination, but her children are not; a rival, however, being an abomination?[26] — The other replied: You have learnt it, ‘If one of them[27] was a permitted wife and the other a forbidden one; if he[28] submit to halizah he must submit to that of the forbidden one;[29] and if he marries he marries the permitted one.’[29] Now what is meant by ‘permitted’ and ‘forbidden’? If it be suggested that ‘permitted’ means permitted for all the world,[30] and ‘forbidden’ means forbidden for all the world,[31] what practical difference, in view of the fact that she is In either case suitable for him,[32] could this make to him? Consequently ‘permitted’ must mean permitted to him, and ‘forbidden’, forbidden to him; and this may happen where[33] he[34] remarried his divorced wife;[35] and yet it was taught, ‘and if he marries he marries the permitted one’![36] — No; ‘permitted’ may still mean permitted to all the world[30] and ‘forbidden’, forbidden for all the world;[31] and as to your question, ‘what practical difference, in view of the fact that she is in either case suitable for him, could this make’, one must take into account the moral lesson[37] of R. Joseph. For R. Joseph stated: Here[38] Rabbi taught that a man shall not pour the water out of his cistern so long as others may require it.[39]

Come and hear: ‘Where a man remarried his divorced wife after she had been married,[40] she and her rival are to perform the halizah.’ Is it possible to say ‘she and her rival’?[41] Consequently it must mean, ‘Either she or her rival.’[42] Did you not, however, have recourse to an interpretation?[43] [You might as well] interpret thus: She is to perform halizah, while her rival may either perform halizah or be married by the levir.

R. Hiyya b. Abba said: R. Johanan inquired as to what is the law[44] in regard to a rival of a divorced woman whom her former husband remarried after her second marriage. Said R. Ammi to him: Enquire rather regarding herself![45] — Concerning herself I have no question since her case may be inferred a minori ad majus: If she is forbidden to him[46] to whom she was originally[47] permitted, how much more so to the man[48] to whom she was originally[47] forbidden![49] The question, however, remains concerning her rival: Is the inference a minori ad majus strong enough to exclude a rival[50] or not?

R. Nahman b. Isaac taught as follows: R. Hiyya b. Abba said, R. Johanan enquired as to what is the law[44] in regard to a divorced woman whom her husband remarried after her second marriage. Said R. Ammi to him: Enquire rather regarding her rival! — Concerning her rival I have no question, for an inference a minori ad majus[51] is not strong enough to exclude a rival;[50] the question, how ever, remains regarding herself. Is the inference a minori ad majus strong enough [to be acted upon] where a precept[52] is involved or not?

---

(1) If the sotah herself must go through the ceremony of halizah, much more so her rival; how then could Rab state that the rival of a sotah (and much more so the sotah herself, v. supra p. 53, n. 1) is exempt from halizah?

(2) Num. V, 13.

(3) With a second husband who subsequently died or divorced her.

(4) Where no marriage with the second man took place, and he died.

(5) Deut. XXIV, 4, referring, in the opinion of R. Eleazar, to a divorced woman who had married a second husband.

(6) Married or betrothed.

(7) This is deduced by the Sages from And goeth and becometh another man's wife (Deut. XXIV, 2) which, they maintain, implies betrothal as well as marriage.

(8) Lit., ‘but what do I establish’.

(9) That the husband must not take her back. This clearly shews that the expression of ‘uncleanness’ was also used concerning a doubtful sotah.

(10) Lit., ‘he took a nice (or superior) expression’.

(11) Num. V, 13; what need, then, was there for the implication of the text of Deut. XXIV, 4?

(12) Of remarrying a sotah.

(13) Lit., ‘to cause to stand concerning it in a negative (prohibition)’; the negative can only be derived from Deut. XXIV, 4: May not take her again to be his wife.

(14) Who applies the entire text to the remarriage of a divorced wife, whence does he derive the law concerning the sotah?

(15) Lit., ‘it is written concerning it’.

(16) Deut. XXIV, 2, And she departeth out of his house, and goeth and becometh (ותיתה) another man's wife.

(17) Ibid., Or if the latter husband (האיש) die, implying that the divorced woman's connection with the second man must be that of ‘husband and wife’, i.e., lawful matrimony. In the case of the sotah the intercourse was unlawful and cannot come, therefore, under the prohibition of Deut. XXIV, 4.

(18) Is the rival subject to the levirate marriage and halizah?

(19) Deut. XXIV, 4, dealing with a woman remarried after divorce. The text She is an abomination. תועכה היא might be taken to imply that the designation, and consequently the restrictions, refer to the woman only (היא= she) and not to her rival.

(20) I.e., the exclusion of היא may refer not to her rival but to her children who, unlike their mother who is regarded as an ‘abomination’, may marry into priestly families.

(21) Describing the woman (or the act of remarrying the first husband after divorce and second marriage) as ‘uncleanness’.

(22) I.e., its bearing on the woman remarried (v. previous note), with whose case the text in its ordinary meaning is concerned, and consequently on her rival also.

(23) The expression of uncleanness.

(24) Lit., ‘that it was uprooted it was uprooted’, i.e., since it was removed from its context and applied to the sotah, it can never be re-applied to its original case. Hence a rival would not come under the same restrictions as the sotah herself.

(25) To whom, consequently, the restrictions would not apply.

(26) And consequently subject to the same restrictions as the woman herself.

(27) Two widows of a brother who died without issue.

(28) The levir.

(29) Infra 44a, and thereby liberates also the other widow, her rival.

(30) I.e., even to priests.

(31) In case she was once, e.g., a divorced woman and is thus forbidden to marry a priest.

(32) He being an ordinary Israelite.

(33) Lit., ‘and what is it’.

(34) The deceased brother.

(35) In which case the woman who was remarried is forbidden to the levir as she was forbidden to his deceased brother who had married her unlawfully, while her rival, having been lawfully married, is permitted to the levir.

(36) Which clearly shews that the rival of a woman remarried by her former husband is subject to the levirate marriage.

(37) Lit., ‘because of’.

(38) In the Mishnah cited where it is stated that halizah is to be performed with the forbidden one.

(39) A man should not destroy anything which may be of use to others though it is of no use to him. In the case under discussion, the levir submits to halizah from the forbidden one and thus liberates the permitted one to marry even a priest to whom she would have been forbidden had the halizah been performed by her.

(40) To a second husband who divorced her or died.

(41) Halizah surely is performed by one of the widows only!

(42) Which supplies an answer to the enquiry addressed by Rab Judah to R. Shesheth.

(43) ‘He and her rival’ was interpreted as ‘Either etc.’

(44) In respect of the levirate marriage.

(45) The remarried woman.

(46) Her first husband.

(47) Before she married her second husband.

(48) The levir.

(49) As brother's wife.

(50) From the levirate marriage.

(51) V. previous paragraph.

(52) The levitate marriage.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 12a

— The other replied,[1] You have learned it: If one of them was a permitted wife and the other a forbidden one; if she submits to halizah he must submit to that of the forbidden one; and if he marries, he marries the permitted one. Now, what is meant by ‘permitted’ and ‘forbidden’? If it be suggested that ‘permitted’ means permitted to all the world and ‘forbidden’ means forbidden to all the world, what practical difference, in view of the fact that she is in either case suitable for him, could this make to him? Consequently ‘permitted’ must mean permitted to him, and ‘forbidden’, forbidden to him; and this may happen where he remarries his divorced wife; and yet it was taught. ‘If he marries he marries the permitted one’![2] — No; ‘permitted’ may still mean permitted to all the world, and ‘forbidden’, forbidden to all the world; and as to your question. ‘What practical difference, in view of the fact that she is in either case suitable for him, could this make’? One must take into account the moral lesson of R. Joseph. For R. Joseph said: Here, Rabbi taught that a man shall not pour the water out of his cistern so long as others may require it.[3]

Come and hear: ‘Where a man remarried his divorced wife after she had been married, she and her rival are to perform halizah.’ Is it possible to say ‘she and her rival’? Consequently it must mean, ‘either she or her rival.’[4] Did you not, however, have recourse to an interpretation? [You might as well] interpret thus: She is to perform halizah, while her rival may either perform halizah or be married by the levir.

R. Levi b. Memel said in the name of Mar ‘Ukba in the name of Samuel: The rival of a mema'eneth[5] is forbidden. To whom [is she forbidden]? If it be suggested, to the brothers,[6] [it may be retort ed], now that she herself[7] is permitted,[8] for Samuel said, ‘If she refused one brother she is permitted to marry the other’,[9] is there any question that her rival is permitted![8] Hence [it means] to himself.[10] Wherein, however, does the mema'eneth[11] differ[12] that she is in consequence permitted to the other brothers? Obviously, in that she had taken no action in relation to them;[13] but her rival also had taken no action in relation to them![14] — It is an enactment made to prevent marriage with the rival of one's daughter[15] who was a mema'eneth.[16]

Is, however, the rival of one's daughter who is a mema'eneth forbidden? Surely we learned, IF, HOWEVER, ANY AMONG THESE DIED, OR MADE A DECLARATION OF REFUSAL, OR WERE DIVORCED[17] [etc.] THEIR RIVALS ARE PERMITTED. Now, against whom was the declaration of refusal made? If it be suggested that she refused the husband, then this case is identical with that of a divorced woman.[18] Consequently it must refer to refusal of the levir![19] — No; it may, in fact, refer to the refusal of a husband, but there are two kinds of divorce.[20]

Wherein, however, does the refusal of a husband differ?[21] Obviously in that she thereby annuls the original marriage; but when she refused the levir she has also annulled the original marriage! — [It differs] in respect of what Rami b. Ezekiel had learnt. For Rami b. Ezekiel learnt: If she[22] declared her refusal against the husband she is permitted to marry his father;[23] if against the levir, she is forbidden to his father.[24] From this it clearly follows that from the moment she becomes subject to the levirate marriage[25] she is looked upon as his[26] daughter-in-law; similarly here also[27] she is looked upon as the rival of his daughter from the moment she[28] becomes subject to the levirate marriage.

Said R. Assi: The rival of a woman incapable of procreation is forbidden;[29] for it is said in the Scriptures, And it shall be that the firstborn that she beareth,[30] which excludes a woman incapable of procreation, since she does not bear.[31] R. Shesheth raised an objection: In the case where three brothers were married to three women who were strangers to one another, and one of them having died, the second brother addressed to her[32] a ma'amar[33] and died, behold these[34] must perform the halizah but may not marry the levir; for it is said, And one of them die [etc.] her husband's brother shall go in unto her,[35] only she[36] who is tied to one levir[37] but not she who is tied to two levirs;[38] and concerning this it was taught: R. Joseph said, ‘This is the rival of a paternal brother's wife whose prohibition[39] is due to her double subjection to the levirate marriage,[40] a case the like of which we do not find through out the Torah’.[41] Now, what does the expression ‘This is’ exclude? Does it not exclude the rival of a woman incapable of procreation, who is permitted![42] — No; it excludes the rival of a woman incapable of procreation who is forbidden. What, then, is meant by the expression, ‘This is’?[43] — It is that in this case, where the subjection to the levirate marriage has caused the prohibition, her rival requires halizah; in the case, however, of a woman incapable of procreation even halizah is not required. What is the reason? — The prohibition of the one[44] is Pentateuchal;[45] that of the other only Rabbinical.[46]

We learnt; IF, HOWEVER, ANY AMONG THESE DIED, OR MADE A DECLARATION OF REFUSAL, OR WERE DIVORCED, OR WERE FOUND INCAPABLE OF PROCREATION, THEIR RIVALS ARE PERMITTED![47] — This is no difficulty; the one[48] is a case where he[49] knew her defect[50] while the other[51] is a case where[52] he did not know of it.[53] The inference from our Mishnah also proves this; for it was stated WERE FOUND[54] and not ‘were’. This proves it.

Raba said:

---

(1) This reply applies to both versions of the inquiry.

(2) Which shews that for the rival levirate marriage is permitted while for the remarried woman herself it is forbidden. For further notes v. supra p. 56.

(3) For notes v. supra p. 56f.

(4) Which supplies answers to the enquiries raised by R. Johanan in both versions.

(5) A minor who declared her refusal to marry the levir. V. Glos. s.v. mi'un.

(6) Of the levir.

(7) The minor who refused to marry the levir.

(8) To marry the other brothers.

(9) Infra 107b.

(10) To the levir whom the minor had refused. The refusal removes the precept of the levirate marriage and in respect of the rival the prohibition of marrying a brother's wife comes again into force.

(11) V. p. 58, n. 6.

(12) From her rival.

(13) Her refusal having been confined to one of the brothers only.

(14) Not even against one of them. Why then is she forbidden to the levir?

(15) Who comes in the category of forbidden relatives whose rivals also are forbidden. On the possibility of mi'un during a father's lifetime, v. supra p. 2, n. 6.

(16) If the one were permitted the other also might erroneously be married.

(17) So Bah. Cur. edd. omit.

(18) Which was already mentioned.

(19) And yet, as our Mishnah shews, her rival is permitted in all cases enumerated, i.e., even in that of one's daughter.

(20) Actual divorce and one by mi'un.

(21) From that of the levir.

(22) A minor who was married to a stranger.

(23) Her declaration of refusal having completely annulled the original betrothal, she is no more his daughter-in-law.

(24) Her former marriage having once subjected her to levirate relationship, she must be regarded as the levir's father's daughter-in-law. V. infra 13a.

(25) Lit., ‘falling’.

(26) The levir's father's.

(27) In the case of the rival of one's daughter who made the declaration of refusal.

(28) The daughter.
(29) I.e., if one of the widows of the brother who died without issue is such the other also is forbidden.
(30) Deut. XXV, 6.
(31) Hence she herself is forbidden as a brother's wife, and her rival as the rival of a forbidden relative.
(32) The widow of the deceased.
(33) V. Glos.
(34) The widows of the two dead brothers.
(35) Deut. XXV, 5.
(36) May marry the levir.
(37) I.e., where the second brother had actually married her and has thus severed all her connections with the first. In such a case as in that of the usual levirate she would stand in relation to the third brother as the widow of one brother only.
(38) The formula of betrothal or ma'amar addressed to her by the second brother has only partially attached her to him and has not completely severed her connection with her husband, the first brother. She thus remains tied to the two, and consequently entirely forbidden the levirate marriage.
(39) Of the levirate marriage.
(40) Lit., ‘falling’. Her levirate relationship with the third brother being due to her partial connection with each of the two dead brothers.
(41) The widow not being one of the relatives forbidden by the Torah. The prohibition of the levirate marriage in her case is only Rabbinical, the Biblical text cited being a mere asmakta.
(42) How, then, could R. Assi state that a rival of one incapable of procreation is forbidden?
(43) Which seems to imply that only this case is forbidden but not the other.
(44) A woman incapable of procreation.
(45) The prohibition being derived from Deut. XXV, 6 supra.
(46) V. supra n. 1.
(47) V. supra n. 2.
(48) Lit., ‘here’, in R. Assi's statement.
(49) The husband now deceased.
(50) At the time their marriage took place. Having known her defect he was not in any way misled, and the marriage, therefore, is valid. Her rival is consequently the rival of a legally married wife who is incapable of procreation and is forbidden by the deduction from Deut. XXV, 6.
(51) Our Mishnah.
(52) The husband now deceased.
(53) At the time he married her. Since her defect was unknown to him the marriage which had taken place under a misapprehension is invalid. The woman, therefore, is not his lawful wife, and her rival cannot be regarded as a legal rival. Hence the statement in our Mishnah that such a rival is permitted.
(54) Implying discovery after the event, i.e., after the marriage.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 12b

The law is that the rival of a woman incapable of procreation is permitted, even though he[1] knew her defect,[2] and even the rival of one's own daughter who was incapable of procreation [is permitted].[3] But what about the expression WERE FOUND[4] in our Mishnah? — Read, ‘were’.

When Rabin came[5] he stated in the name of R. Johanan: The rival of a mema'eneth,[6] the rival of a woman incapable of procreation, as well as the rival of a divorced woman who had been remarried to her former husband,[7] are all permitted.

R. Bebai recited before R. Nahman: Three [categories of] women may[8] use an absorbent[9] in their marital intercourse:[10] A minor, a pregnant woman and a nursing woman. The minor,[11] because [otherwise] she might[12] become pregnant, and as a result[13] might die. A pregnant woman,[11] because [otherwise]. she might[12] cause her foetus to degenerate into a sandal.[13] A nursing woman,[11] because [otherwise] she might[12] have to wean her child prematurely[14] and this would result in his death. And what is the age of such a minor?[15] From the age of eleven years and one day until the age of twelve years and one day. One who is under,[16] or over this age[17] must carry on her marital intercourse in the usual manner. This is the opinion of R. Meir. The Sages, however, say: The one as well as the other carries on her marital intercourse in the usual manner, and mercy will be vouchsafed from heaven,[18] for it is said in the Scriptures. The Lord preserveth the simple.[19]

Since it has been stated, ‘because she might become pregnant and as a result might die’ it may be implied that it is possible for[20] a minor to be pregnant and not die. But, if so, one could imagine a case where[21] a mother-in-law should be in a position to make a declaration of refusal,[22] whereas we learned, ONE CANNOT SAY OF A MAN'S MOTHER-IN-LAW, THE MOTHER OF HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW AND THE MOTHER OF HIS FATHER-IN- LAW THAT THEY WERE FOUND INCAPABLE OF PROCREATION OR THAT THEY MADE A DECLARATION OF REFUSAL! — Read, ‘because she might become pregnant and die’;[23] for Rabbah b. Liwai said: She[24] is subject to an age limitation. Prior to that period[25] she does not conceive at all; during that period[25] she dies and her embryo dies; after that period[25] both she and her embryo survive. But is it really so? Surely, Rabbah b. Samuel recited: One cannot say of a man's mother-in-law, the mother of his mother-in-law and the mother of his father-in-law that they were found incapable of procreation or that they made a declaration of refusal, since they have already given birth to children![26] — But [the reading], in fact, is, ‘because she might become pregnant and as a result might die’. But, [then, the previously mentioned] difficulty remains![27] — R. Safra replied: Children are like marks of puberty.[28] Others Say: Children are more conclusive proof than the marks of puberty. What practical difference is there between the two statements? — [It is this: That] even he who follows R. Judah who stated, ‘[a girl may exercise the right of refusal] until the black[29] predominates’[30] admits in the case of children.[31]

---

(1) The deceased brother, at the time when he married.

(2) And nevertheless consented to the marriage, which is consequently valid, and the woman is his lawful wife.

(3) The rival of a forbidden relative is forbidden only where the latter would have been subject to the precept of the levirate marriage if she had been no relative. In the case of a wife incapable of procreation, however, since she is not subject to the levirate marriage even where she is no relative at all, her rival even where she (the wife) is a forbidden relative, is regarded as the rival of one in relation to whom the precept of levirate marriage is not applicable at all. Cf. הלכות גדולות quoted by Rashi.

(4) V. p. 61, n. 14.

(5) From Palestine to Babylon.

(6) V. Glos. s.v. mi'un. In this case it refers to one who refused the levir (V. Rashi a.l.).

(7) After she had been married by a second husband who divorced her or died.

(8) [So Rashi. R. Tam: Should use, v. Tosaf s.v. שלש.]

(9) מוך, hackled wool or flax.

(10) To prevent conception.

(11) May use the absorbent.

(12) Lit., ‘perhaps’.

(13) סנדל lit., ‘a flat fish’, i.e., a flat, fish-shaped abortion due to superfetation.

(14) Owing to her second conception.

(15) Who is capable of conception but exposed thereby to the danger of death.

(16) When no conception is possible.

(17) When pregnancy involves no fatal consequences.

(18) To save her from danger.

(19) Ps. CXVI, 6; those who are unable to protect themselves.

(20) Lit., ‘there is’.

(21) Lit., ‘we found’.

(22) In the case, for instance, where the minor gave birth to a child in her twelfth year and that child was betrothed before the year was over. The minor who thus becomes a mother-in-law is entitled to make a declaration of refusal before, and until she enters her thirteenth year.

(23) I.e., while conception is a matter of doubt, death is a certainty whenever conception happened to take place.

(24) A minor.

(25) The age of eleven years and one day to the age of twelve and one day.

(26) Rabbah does not state, ‘since they already grew up’ but ‘gave birth’, which proves that even a minor (not yet grown up) is capable of bearing living children.

(27) From here it appears that a minor can bear children while from our Mishnah it follows that she cannot.

(28) As soon, therefore, as she gave birth to a child the minor is assumed to have passed out of the age of minority into that of puberty. Hence it is impossible for a mother, whatever her age, ever to make a declaration of refusal to which a minor only is entitled.

(29) I.e., the pubic hair.

(30) The growth of two hairs which the Rabbis regard as a definite mark of puberty not being considered by R. Judah as conclusive proof. Keth. 36a, B.B. 156a, Nid. 52a.

(31) That they provide definite proof of puberty irrespective of the state of the hair.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 13a

R. Zebid, however, stated: No children are possible prior to the appearance of the marks of puberty.[1] Then let an examination be held![2] — There is the possibility that they might have fallen off.[3] This reply is perfectly satisfactory according to him who holds that such a possibility is taken into consideration;[4] what, however, can be said according to him who holds that no such contingency need be considered? — Even according to him who holds that no such contingency need be considered, the possibility must be taken into consideration in this case on account of the pains of birth.[5]

HOW IS THE EXEMPTION OF THEIR RIVALS [BY THE WOMEN MENTIONED] TO BE UNDERSTOOD? Etc. Whence is this law[6] deduced? — Rab Judah replied: [From] Scripture which stated, li-zeror,[7] [implying that] the Torah included many rivals.[8] R. Ashi replied. ‘It[9] is arrived at by reasoning: Why is a rival forbidden? Surely because she takes the place of the forbidden relative; the rival's rival also takes the place of the forbidden relative’.

HOW [IS ONE TO UNDERSTAND THE STATEMENT THAT] IF THEY HAD DIED etc. Even if he[10] married[11] first and then divorced?[12] This, then, would be contradictory [to the following Mishnah]: ‘[The case of] three brothers two of whom were married to two sisters and the third was married to a stranger, and one of the husbands of the sisters divorced his wife while the one who married the stranger died, and he who had divorced his wife then married the widow[13] and died, is one concerning which it has been said, that if they died or were divorced, their rivals are permitted’.[14] The reason, then,[15] is because the divorce[16] took place first and the marriage[17] was subsequent to it, but had the marriage[17] taken place first and the divorce[16] after it, [the rival would] not [have been permitted]![18] — R. Jeremiah replied: Break it up:[19] He who taught the one did not teach the other. The one Tanna[20] is of the opinion that it is the death[21] which subjects the widow to the levirate marriage[22] while the other[23] holds the opinion that it is the original marriage that subjects her to the levirate marriage.[24] Raba said: [Both statements] may, in fact, represent the views of [one Tanna,] it[25] being a case of ‘this; and there is no need to state that’.[26]

WHOSOEVER IS ENTITLED TO MAKE A DECLARATION OF REFUSAL [etc.]. Then let her[27] declare her refusal now[28] and thus enable [her rival] to be married to the levir![29] May it then[30] be suggested that this supports R. Oshaiah? For R. Oshaiah said: She[31] may annul [the levir's] ma'amar[32] by her declaration of refusal,[33] but may not sever by such a declaration the levirate bond![34] — No;[35] the case of the rival of a forbidden relative is different;[36] for Rami b. Ezekiel learnt: If a minor made a declaration of refusal against her husband she is permitted to marry his father.[37] If, however, she made her declaration of refusal against the levir[38] she is forbidden to marry his father.[39] From this it clearly follows that from the moment she becomes subject to the levirate marriage[40] she is looked upon as his[41] daughter-in-law; similarly here also[42] she is looked upon as the rival of his daughter from the moment she becomes subject to the levirate marriage.[43] MISHNAH. [IN THE CASE OF THE FOLLOWING] SIX RELATIVES, MARRIAGE WITH WHOM IS MORE RESTRICTED THAN WITH THESE,[44] IN THAT THEY MAY ONLY BE MARRIED TO STRANGERS,[45] MARRIAGE WITH THEIR RIVALS IS PERMITTED:[46] HIS MOTHER.[47] HIS FATHER'S WIFE,[48] HIS FATHER'S SISTER,[48] HIS PATERNAL SISTER.[48] HIS FATHER'S BROTHER'S WIFE[48] AND HIS PATERNAL BROTHER'S WIFE.[48]

BETH SHAMMAI PERMIT THE RIVALS[49] TO THE SURVIVING BROTHERS, AND BETH HILLEL PROHIBIT THEM.

---

(1) Should an apparent minor, whatever her age, ever give birth to a child it must be taken for granted that the marks of puberty had already appeared, and the age of minority had passed.

(2) Why should the existence of the marks be left to conjecture when an examination would definitely determine the facts?

(3) And the examination would prove nothing.

(4) This is a question in dispute in Nid. 46a.

(5) Which may have caused the falling off of the hair.

(6) Lit., ‘these words’. That a rival's rival is also exempt.

(7) Lev. XVIII, 18, to be a rival. V. supra 3b.

(8) For explanation, v. p. 12, n. 8.

(9) The exemption of a rival's rival.

(10) The brother now deceased.

(11) The rival.

(12) His first wife, the forbidden relative. In such a case, is the rival, though the two were rivals prior to the divorce, permitted to the levir wherever the forbidden relative was dead or divorced at the time their husband died and the question of the levirate marriage arose?

(13) Lit., ‘her’,

(14) Infra 30a.

(15) Why the rival in this case is permitted.

(16) Of one of the sisters.

(17) Of the widow.

(18) How, then, could this be reconciled with our Mishnah from which it has been inferred that ‘even if he married first and then divorced’ the rival is permitted?

(19) תרבא, rt. תבר, Heb. שבר ‘break’, ‘divide’.

(20) Of our Mishnah.

(21) Of the husband.

(22) And if at that time the women were no longer rivals it matters little whether marriage or divorce (cf. supra nn. 5 and 4) took place first.

(23) The Tanna of the Mishnah cited from 30a infra.

(24) Consequently, if the marriage of the second took place after the divorce of the first, levirate marriage is permitted since the two have never been real rivals. If, however, the marriage preceded the divorce, even if only by a fraction of time, the two have become rivals, and the rival of a forbidden relative is forbidden for ever, even after the rivalry had ceased.

(25) The statements and arrangement of our Mishnah and that cited from 30a infra

(26) זו ואין צריך לומר זו, one of the systems adopted in arranging legal statements. Our Mishnah permits ‘this’, the case of the rival whose marriage preceded the divorce of the forbidden relative, and consequently ‘there is no need to state that’, the case (infra 30a) of a rival whose marriage followed the divorce of the forbidden relative. (Cf. supra n. 12).

(27) The forbidden relative who is still a minor.

(28) And thus annul the original marriage.

(29) Since as a result of the annulment of the marriage the other would no more be the rival of a forbidden relative.

(30) As such a declaration is not allowed.

(31) A minor.

(32) V. Glos. Since the actual marriage had not yet taken place.

(33) She has only to perform the halizah; but there is no need for a divorce which would have been required had she been of age (v. infra 50b).

(34) I.e., she has no power to annul the original marriage in order to be exempt thereby from halizah also. Similarly here (v. note 4) the declaration of the minor has no force to annul the original marriage and thus (v. supra note 3) to enable her rival to marry the levir.

(35) The inference from our Mishnah provides no support for R. Oshaia.

(36) The prohibition of a minor's declaration in this case is not Biblical, but a Rabbinical enactment made in order to prevent laxity in the law of rivals of forbidden relatives (cf. infra n. 17).

(37) The refusal having completely annulled the marriage, the minor and her former father-in-law are now mere strangers.

(38) I.e,, after the death of her husband, when she became subject to the levirate marriage of his brother.

(39) Her former father-in-law who is also the father of the levir whom she refused.

(40) Lit., ‘falling’.

(41) The levir's father's.

(42) The case of a rival of one's daughter.

(43) Had the original marriage been allowed to be annulled by the daughter's present declaration, and had her rival in consequence been permitted to marry the minor's father, any rival of one's daughter might similarly be allowed and thus an important restriction against incest would be broken down. (V. supra n. 10 and cf. text and notes, supra 12a).

(44) The fifteen enumerated in the previous Mishnah, supra 2af.

(45) But never to one's paternal brothers.

(46) Though they themselves ate forbidden. Their husbands having been strangers, the law prohibiting the marriage of rivals, which is only applicable in connection with the levirate marriage, does not apply. Should one's brother unlawfully marry one of these six relatives his marriage would be regarded as null and void and the law relating to the rivals would still be inapplicable. (Cf. Maimonides, Commentary on the Mishnah a.l.).

(47) Who is also forbidden to his paternal brother as ‘his father's wife’.

(48) Who obviously stands in the same relationship to his paternal brother.

(49) In respect of the levirate marriage.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 13b

IF THEY[1] PERFORM THE HALIZAH,[2] BETH SHAMMAI DECLARE THEM INELIGIBLE TO MARRY A PRIEST,[3] AND BETH HILLEL DECLARE THEM TO BE ELIGIBLE.[4] IF THEY WERE MARRIED TO THE LEVIRS, BETH SHAMMAI DECLARE THEM ELIGIBLE [TO MARRY A PRIEST],[5] AND BETH HILLEL DECLARE THEM INELIGIBLE.[6] THOUGH THESE FORBADE WHAT THE OTHERS PERMITTED, AND THESE REGARDED AS INELIGIBLE WHAT THE OTHERS DECLARED ELIGIBLE, BETH SHAMMAI, NEVERTHELESS, DID NOT REFRAIN FROM MARRYING WOMEN FROM [THE FAMILIES OF] BETH HILLEL, NOR DID BETH HILLEL [REFRAIN FROM MARRYING WOMEN] FROM [THE FAMILIES OF] BETH SHAMMAI. [SIMILARLY, IN RESPECT OF] ALL [QUESTIONS OF RITUAL] CLEANNESS AND UNCLEANNESS, WHICH THESE DECLARED CLEAN WHERE THE OTHERS DECLARED UNCLEAN, NEITHER OF THEM ABSTAINED FROM USING THE UTENSILS OF THE OTHERS FOR THE PREPARATION OF FOOD THAT WAS RITUALLY CLEAN.[7]

GEMARA. R. Simeon b. Pazzi said: What is Beth Shammai's reason?[8] — Because it is written, The outside[9] wife of the dead shall not be married unto one not of his kin;[10] ‘outside’[11] implies that there is also an internal,[12] and the All Merciful said, She shall not marry [unto one not of his kin].[13]

And Beth Hillel?[14] — They require the text for the exposition which Rab Judah reported in the name of Rab. For Rab Judah stated in the name of Rab: Whence is it deduced that betrothal [by a stranger] is of no validity in the case of a sister-in-law?[15] For it is said in the Scriptures, The wife of the dead shall not be married[16] outside[17] unto one not of his kin;[18] there shall be no validity in any marriage of a stranger with her.[19] And Beth Shammai? — Is it written 'la-huz'?[20] Surely 'huzah'[21] was written. And Beth Hillel? — Since the expression used was huzah[22] it is just the same as if la-huz had been written; as it was taught: R. Nehemiah said, 'In the case of every word which requires a 'lamed' at the beginning[23] Scripture has placed a 'he'[24] at the end; and at the School of R. Ishmael the following examples were given:[25] Elim, Elimah;[26] Mahanayim, Mahanayimah;[27] Mizrayim, Mizraimah;[28] Dibelathaimah;[29] Yerushalaimah;[30] midbarah.[31]

Whence do Beth Shammai derive the deduction made by Rab Judah in the name of Rab? — It is derived from Unto one not of his kin.[32] Then let Beth Hillel also derive it from 'Unto one not of his kin'! — This is so indeed. What need, then, was there for 'huzah'? — To include one who was only betrothed.[33] And the others? — They derive it from the use of ha-huzah where huzah could have been used.[34] And the others? — A deduction from huzah ha-huzah does not appeal to them.

Raba said: Beth Shammai's reason[35] is that one prohibition[36] cannot take effect on another prohibition.[37] This explanation is satisfactory in the case where the deceased had married first and the surviving brother married[38] afterwards, since the prohibition of marrying a wife's sister[39] could not come and take effect on the prohibition of marrying a brother's wife;[40] where, however, the surviving brother had married first[41] and the deceased married later,[42] the prohibition of 'wife's sister' was, surely, first![43] — Since the prohibition of a 'brother's wife' cannot take effect on the prohibition of 'wife's sister', [any of the other widows] is the rival of a forbidden relative to whom[44] the precept of the levirate marriage is inapplicable, and is consequently permitted.[45]

IF THEY HAD PERFORMED THE HALIZAH, BETH SHAMMAI DECLARE THEM INELIGIBLE etc. Is not this obvious?[46] — [It had to be stated] in order to exclude [the instruction] of R. Johanan b. Nuri who said: Come and let us issue an ordinance that the rivals[47] perform the halizah but do not marry the levir.[48] Hence it was taught that Beth Hillel declare them eligible.[49]

IT THEY WERE MARRIED TO THE LEVIRS etc. BETH HILLEL DECLARE THEM INELIGIBLE. What need again was there for this? — Because it was taught, IF THEY PERFORM THE HALIZAH[50] it was also taught, IF THEY WERE MARRIED TO THE LEVIRS.[51]

We learned elsewhere: The Scroll of Esther[52] is read on the eleventh, the twelfth, the thirteenth, the fourteenth or the fifteenth [of Adar].[53] but not earlier[54] or later.[55] Said Resh Lakish to R. Johanan: Apply here the text of Lo tithgodedu,[56] you shall not form separate sects![57] (Is not Lo tithgodedu required for its own context, the All Merciful having said, 'You shall not inflict upon yourselves any bruise for the dead'?[58] — If so, Scripture should have said, Lo tithgodedu,[59] why did it say 'Lo tithgodedu'?[60] hence it must be inferred that its object was this.[61] Might it not then be suggested that the entire text refers to this only?[62] — If so, Scripture should have said, Lo thagodu;[63] why did it say 'Lo tithgodedu'? Hence the two deductions.)[64] — The former answered: Have you not yet learned,[65] 'Wherever it is customary to do manual labour on the Passover Eve until midday it may be done; wherever it is customary not to do any work it may not be done'?[66] The first said to him: I am speaking to you of a prohibition, for R. Shaman b. Abba said in the name of R. Johanan: 'Scripture having said, To confirm these days of Purim in their appointed times,[67] the Sages have ordained for them different times,[68] and you speak to me of a custom![69] But is there no prohibition there?[70] Surely we learned, 'Beth Shammai prohibit work during the night[71] and Beth Hillel permit it'![72] — The other said to him: In that case,[73] anyone seeing [a man abstaining from work] would suppose him to be out of work.[74] But do not BETH SHAMMAI PERMIT THE RIVALS TO THE OTHER BROTHERS AND BETH HILLEL FORBID THEM![75]

---

(1) The rivals.

(2) With the brothers.

(3) In the opinion of Beth Shammai the halizah is legal and any woman who performed legal halizah is, like one divorced, forbidden to marry a priest.

(4) In their opinion the halizah was unnecessary and may, therefore, be treated as if it had never taken place.

(5) When their husbands die.

(6) Because having married persons to whom they are forbidden they are regarded as harlots who are ineligible ever to marry a priest.

(7) Lit., ‘do clean things, these upon these’.

(8) For permitting the rivals to marry the other brothers.

(9) החוצה is rendered, ‘the one who is the outside one’, the word being regarded as an adjective fem. with the relative. E.V., ‘abroad’.

(10) Deut. XXV, 5.

(11) I.e., the one who is not otherwise related to the levir.

(12) Related to the levir.

(13) But only unto her husband's brother (Deut. XXV, 5), which shews that a rival is permitted to the other brothers.

(14) Who prohibit the rival to the brothers, how do they explain this text?

(15) Before halizah had been performed.

(16) Lit., ‘she shall not be’, לא תהיה (rt. היה).

(17) Cf. E.V. for החוצה, supra note 3.

(18) Deut. XXV, 5.

(19) Lit., ‘a stranger shall have no being (הויה of the root היה) in her’.

(20) לחוץ, lit., ‘to the outside’.

(21) החוצה, v. supra note 3.

(22) חוצה.

(23) To indicate direction.

(24) The he being the he local.

(25) Lit., ‘he recited’ or ‘taught’.

(26) ‘To אילם appears as אילמה (Ex. XV, 27) instead of לאילם.

(27) ‘To מחנים’ appears as מחמימה (II Sam. XVII, 24) instead of למחמים.

(28) ‘To מצרים’, מצרימה, Gen. XII, 10.

(29) ‘To דבלתים, דבלתימה (Num. XXXIII, 47).

(30) ‘To ירושלים’ (Jerusalem) ירושלימה (Ezek. VIII, 3).

(31) ‘To מדבר (wilderness or place-name) מדברב (I Chron. V, 9).

(32) Deut. XXV, 5.

(33) To the deceased brother. Such a widow also is subject to the levirate marriage as if she had been actually married. ‘Huzah’ implies (cf. supra p. 68, n. 3) ‘outside’, i.e., one who is not within the marriage bond.

(34) The addition of the ‘he’ in החוצה where חוצה would have conveyed the same meaning implies the inclusion of the betrothed. (V. n. 6.)

(35) V. p. 68, n. 2, supra.

(36) That, e.g., of marrying a brother's wife.

(37) That of marrying a forbidden relative (e.g., a daughter). Since the latter prohibition takes no effect in such a case, the forbidden relative whom the levirate bond does not consequently affect may be regarded as non-existent, so far as her levirate obligations are concerned. Her rivals, therefore, come under the category of complete strangers and are consequently permitted to the brothers.

(38) A sister of his brother's wife.

(39) Which arose later.

(40) As legally the widow is only ‘his brother's wife’ but not ‘his wife's sister’, her rivals may justly be regarded as strangers who are permitted.

(41) And his wife's sister has in consequence become forbidden to him.

(42) When the prohibition of a brother's wife arose.

(43) And consequently had taken effect; why then are her rivals permitted? This objection is based on the assumption that Raba, in stating the prohibition of marrying a forbidden relative cannot take effect owing to the prohibition of ‘brother's wife’, was referring only to such prohibitions as are due to a marriage contract, e.g., a wife's sister.
(44) Lit., ‘in the place’.
(45) V. supra p. 69, n. 10.
(46) What need then was there for stating it.
(47) Of forbidden relatives.
(48) And being subject to halizah, even though on account of a Rabbinical ordinance only, it might have been assumed that they are ineligible for marriage with a priest. (Cf. supra p. 67, n. 9.)
(49) Indicating that the rivals in such a case are not even Rabbinically subject to the halizah.
(50) For the reason given supra. V. previous note.
(51) Halizah and marriage usually being the only alternatives.
(52) מגילה ‘scroll’, always signifies in Rabbinical literature the Scroll of Esther, unless the context explicitly or implicitly points to any other scroll.
(53) According to whether the readers live in a village, a town, or a town that had been walled in the days of Joshua, and according to the day of the week on which the feast of Purim occurs.
(54) Than the eleventh.
(55) Than the fifteenth. Meg. 2a.
(56) לא תתגודדו (Deut. XIV, 1), rendered by E.V. Ye shall not cut yourselves, is here taken as a form of the root אגד, ‘to bind’, implying the formation of separate groups, sects, factions.
(57) Why, then, was the Scroll allowed to be read on different days by different classes of people?
(58) Cf. supra n. 13 for the rendering of E.V.
(59) Which would have implied the prohibition of cutting or bruising the body. (V. p. 70, n. 13.)
(60) The longer form, the Hithpael.
(61) Lit., ‘for this it came’, to imply both ‘cutting the body for the dead’, and ‘the formation of sects’.
(62) The formation of sects.
(63) Which would have been understood to refer to the undesirable formation of sects.
(64) It has thus been shewn that the formation of sects is undesirable; why then was it allowed to form separate groups to read the Scroll of Esther on different dates?
(65) Or ‘You should have replied’ (Rashi).
(66) Which shews that, despite the undesirability of forming separate groups, different customs are allowed.
(67) Esth. IX, 31, emphasis on ‘appointed times’, בזמניהם.
(68) I.e., a group who were ordained to read the Scroll on a particular date must not read it on any other date.
(69) Manual labour on the Passover Eve is universally permitted, and its prohibition in certain places is not a matter of law but merely a question of custom.
(70) In the case of work on the Passover Eve. (Both the day and the night preceding the Passover are designated ערב פסח Passover Eve).
(71) Preceding the first Passover night.
(72) Which shews, since some would be acting in accordance with the ruling of Beth Shammai while others would follow Beth Hillel, that even in the case of a prohibition the formation of sects is allowed.
(73) Lit., ‘there’, where some people do no work though permitted.
(74) The question of sects does not arise in such a case.
(75) A dispute which creates faction, some following the ruling of the one authority and others that of the other.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 14a

— Do you imagine that Beth Shammai acted in accordance with their views? Beth Shammai did not act in accordance with their views.

R. Johanan, however, said: They certainly acted [in accordance with their views]. Herein they[1] differ on the same point as do Rab and Samuel. For Rab maintains that Beth Shammai did not act in accordance with their views, while Samuel maintains that they certainly did act [in accordance with their views]. When?[2] If it be suggested, prior to the decision of the heavenly voice,[3] then what reason has he who maintains that they did not act [in accordance with their own view]? If, however, after the decision of the heavenly voice, what reason has he who maintains that they did act [in accordance with their views]? — If you wish I could say, prior to the decision of the heavenly voice; and if you prefer I could say, after the heavenly voice. ‘If you wish I could say, prior to the heavenly voice’, when, for instance, Beth Hillel were in the majority: One maintains[4] that they[5] did not act [according to their view] for the obvious reason that Beth Hillel were in the majority; while the other maintains[6] that they did act [according to their view, because] a majority is to be followed only where both sides are equally matched;[7] in this case, however, Beth Shammai were keener of intellect. ‘And if you prefer I could say, after the heavenly voice’; one maintains that they[5] did not act [according to their view] for the obvious reason that the heavenly voice had already gone forth;[8] while the other who maintains that they did act [according to their view] is [of the same opinion as] R. Joshua who declared that no regard need be paid to a heavenly voice.[9]

Now as to the other who ‘maintains that they did act [according to their views]’[10] — should not the warning, ‘Lo tithgodedu, you shall not form separate sects’[11] be applied? — Abaye replied: The warning against opposing sects is only applicable to such a case as that of two courts of law in the same town, one of whom rules in accordance with the views of Beth Shammai while the other rules in accordance with the views of Beth Hillel. In the case, however, of two courts of law in two different towns [the difference in practice] does not matter. Said Raba to him: Surely the case of Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel is like that of two courts of law in the same town! The fact, however, is, said Raba, that the warning against opposing sects is only applicable to such a case as that of one court of law in the same town, half of which rule in accordance with the views of Beth Shammai while the other half rule in accordance with the views of Beth Hillel. In the case, however, of two courts of law in the same town [the difference in practice] does not matter.

Come and hear: In the place of R. Eliezer, wood was cut on the Sabbath wherewith to produce charcoal on which to forge the iron.[12] In the place of R. Jose the Galilean the flesh of fowl was eaten with milk.[13] In the place of R. Eliezer only[14] but not in the place of R. Akiba; for we learnt: R. Akiba laid it down as a general rule that any labour which may be performed on the Sabbath Eve[15] does not supersede the Sabbath![16] — What an objection is this! The case, surely, is different [when the varied practices are respectively confined to] different localities. What then did he who raised this question imagine?[17] — It might have been assumed that owing to the great restrictions of the Sabbath [different localities are regarded] as one place, hence it was necessary to teach us [that the law was not so].

Come and hear: R. Abbahu, whenever he happened to be in the place of R. Joshua b. Levi, carried[18] a candle,[19] but when he happened to be in the place of R. Johanan[20] he did not carry a candle![21] — What question is this! Has it not been said that the case is different [when the varied practices are respectively confined to] varied localities? — This is the question:[22] How could R. Abbahu act in one place in one way and in another place in another way?[23] — R. Abbahu is of the same opinion as R. Joshua b. Levi,[24] but when he happened to be in R. Johanan's place he did not move a candle out of respect for R. Johanan. But his attendant,[25] surely was also there![26] — He gave his attendant the necessary instructions.

Come and hear: THOUGH THESE FORBADE WHAT THE OTHERS PERMITTED . . . BETH SHAMMAI, NEVERTHELESS, DID NOT REFRAIN FROM MARRYING WOMEN FROM THE FAMILIES OF BETH HILLEL, NOR DID BETH HILLEL [REFRAIN FROM MARRY ING WOMEN] FROM THE FAMILIES OF BETH SHAMMAI. Now, if it be said that they[27] did not act [in accordance with their own view] one can well understand why THEY DID NOT REFRAIN [from intermarrying with one another].[28] If, however, it be said that they[27] did act [in accordance with their own view], why did they not refrain? That Beth Shammai did not refrain from marrying women from the families of Beth Hillel may well be justified because such[29] are the children of persons guilty only of the infringement of a negative precept;[30] but why did not Beth Hillel refrain from [marrying women from the families of] Beth Shammai? Such,[31] surely, being children of persons who are guilty of an offence involving kareth, are bastards![32] And if it be suggested that Beth Hillel are of the opinion that the descendant of those who are guilty of an offence involving kareth is not a bastard,[33] surely, [it may be retorted], R. Eleazar said: Although Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel are in disagreement on the questions of rivals, they concede that a bastard is only he who is descended from a marriage which is forbidden as incest and punishable with kareth! Does not this then conclusively prove that they[27] did not act [in accordance with their own view]? — No; they[27] acted, indeed, [in accordance with their own view], but they[27] informed them[34] [of the existence of any such cases] and they[34] kept away.

This[35] may also be proved by logical inference; for in the final clause it was stated. [SIMILARLY IN RESPECT OF] ALL [THE QUESTIONS OF RITUAL] CLEANNESS AND UNCLEANNESS, WHICH THESE DECLARED CLEAN WHERE THE OTHERS DECLARED UNCLEAN, NEITHER OF THEM ABSTAINED FROM USING THE UTENSILS OF THE OTHERS FOR THE PREPARATION OF FOOD THAT WAS RITUALLY CLEAN.

---

(1) R. Johanan and R. Lakish.

(2) I.e., to what period does the dispute just mentioned refer?

(3) בת קול (v. Glos. s.v. Bath Kol), which decided that the law in practice was always to be in accordance with the rulings of Beth Hillel (v. ‘Er. 13a).

(4) Lit., ‘according to him who said’.

(5) Beth Shammai.

(6) Lit., ‘and he who said’.

(7) In qualifications and attainments.

(8) And decided the issue in favour of Beth Hillel.

(9) B.M. 59b, Ber. 52a, ‘Er. 7a, Pes. 114a.

(10) Even after the heavenly voice.

(11) Cf. supra p. 70, n. 13.

(12) The knife required for the performance of circumcision. The circumcision of a child, his health permitting, must take place on the eighth day of his birth (v. Gen. XVII, 12) even though it happened to fall on a Sabbath when manual labour is prohibited. And since the precept itself supersedes the Sabbath, all its requisites such as the wood and coals (for the preparation of warm water) and the knife may also be performed on the Sabbath.

(13) Though it is forbidden to eat meat, or any dishes made of meat, together with milk or any preparation of milk. R. Jose exempts the flesh of fowl from the general prohibition of the consumption of meat and milk. Shab. 130a, Hul. 116a.

(14) Lit., ‘yes’; only there was the preparation of the requisites of circumcision permitted on the Sabbath.

(15) Such as the cutting of wood, the production of coals and the forging of the knife.

(16) Now, in view of the undesirability of creating different sects, why were all these varied practices allowed?

(17) It should have been obvious to him that different localities may differ in their custom. (Cf. supra p. 53, n. 11.)

(18) Lit., ‘moved’.

(19) On the Sabbath. A candle, though it was burning when Sabbath set in may, according to R. Joshua who follows R. Simeon in permitting mukzeh (v. next note), be moved on the Sabbath after the flame has gone out.

(20) R. Johanan, following R. Judah, forbids the carrying or moving of a candle that had been burning when the Sabbath set in though it had subsequently gone out. As it was burning at the commencement of the Sabbath it was at that time fit for no other use and is regarded, therefore, as mukzeh, i.e., ‘something set aside’, that is not to be used for any other purpose. Anything that was mukzeh when the Sabbath began remains so until it ends.

(21) Is not the practice of carrying a candle in one place and not carrying it in another as undesirable as the formation of opposing sects?

(22) Lit., ‘we say thus’.

(23) Lit. , ‘how did he do here thus’ (bis).

(24) V. supra note 3.

(25) Who well knew that his master was of the same opinion as R. Joshua b. Levi. The שמעא was in many cases both an attendant on the master and also one of his learned disciples.

(26) And might move such a candle on the Sabbath even in R. Johanan's place.

(27) Beth Shammai.

(28) Since, in practice, both schools followed the same principles.

(29) The descendants from the marriages with strangers contracted by the rivals who, in accordance with the ruling of Beth Hillel, performed no halizah.

(30) Even Beth Shammai who require the rivals to perform the halizah regard such marriages as the infringement of a prohibition only (‘The wife of the dead shall not be married abroad’, Deut. XXV, 5), which does not involve kareth. The children of such marriages are consequently not deemed to be bastards.

(31) Descendants from marriages between rivals and brothers-in-law. Such marriages, which are permitted by Beth Shammai, are regarded by Beth Hillel as forbidden under the prohibition of marrying one's brother's wife, which involves the penalty of kareth.

(32) How, then, did they intermarry with families containing such members?

(33) A bastard being the descendant only of such marriages as are subject to one of the capital punishments that are carried out under the jurisdiction of a court.

(34) Beth Hillel.

(35) That Beth Shammai duly informed Beth Hillel of any families contracting marriages which according to the ruling of the latter were forbidden.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 14b

Now, if it be agreed that the required information was supplied[1] one well understands why they[2] did not abstain.[3] If, however, it be assumed that no such information was supplied, one can still understand why Beth Shammai did not abstain from using the utensils of Beth Hillel, since that which was regarded by Beth Hillel as ritually unclean was deemed by Beth Shammai to be ritually clean; but why did not Beth Hillel abstain from using the utensils of Beth Shammai when that which was deemed clean by Beth Shammai was regarded as unclean by Beth Hillel? Must it not, then, be concluded that they supplied them with the required information! Our point is thus proved.

In what respect is the one[4] more conclusive proof[5] than the other?[6] — It might have been thought that the case of a rival[7] receives due publicity,[8] hence it was necessary [for the inference from the final clause] to be cited.

[Reverting to] the previous text, ‘R. Eleazar said: Although Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel are in disagreement on the question of rivals they concede that a bastard is only he who is descended from a marriage forbidden as incest and punishable by kareth’. Who concedes? If it be said, Beth Shammai to Beth Hillel;[9] this, surely, is obvious, since the children of those who are guilty of the infringement of a negative precept[10] are deemed legitimate.[11] Must it not consequently be the case that Beth Hillel conceded to Beth Shammai;[12] but this very case is subject to the penalty of kareth! — The fact is that Beth Shammai conceded to Beth Hillel; and the purpose was to exclude the opinion of R. Akiba, who maintains that a descendant from persons guilty of the infringement of a negative precept is deemed a bastard.[13] Hence it was taught[14] that a descendant from persons guilty of the infringement of a negative precept is not deemed a bastard.

Come and hear: Although Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel are in disagreement on the questions of rivals, sisters,[15] an old bill of divorce,[16] a doubtfully married woman,[17] a woman whom her husband had divorced[18] and who stayed with him over the night in an inn,[19] money, valuables, a perutah and the value of a perutah,[20] Beth Shammai did not, nevertheless, abstain from marrying women of the families of Beth Hillel, nor did Beth Hillel refrain from marrying those of Beth Shammai. This is to teach you that they shewed love and friendship towards one another, thus putting into practice the Scriptural text, Love ye truth and peace.[21] R. Simeon said: They abstained [from marrying] in cases of certainty but did not abstain in doubtful cases.[22] Now, if you agree that they[23] acted [in accordance with their own views] one can well understand why they abstained. If, however, you assume that they did not so act, why did they abstain? — And how do you understand this? Even if it be granted that they did act (in accordance with their own views], one can only understand why Beth Hillel abstained from intermarrying with Beth Shammai, because the latter, in the opinion of Beth Hillel, were guilty of offences involving kareth and their descendants were consequently bastards; as to Beth Shammai, however, why did they abstain from intermarrying with Beth Hillel, when they were [even in the opinion of Beth Shammai] only guilty of the infringement of a negative precept and [their descendants] were consequently legitimate? — As R. Nahman said elsewhere that the statement was required only for the case of the rival herself, so here also the Statement is required for the case of the rival herself.[24]

Why is a doubtful case different from a case of a certainty? Obviously because it is forbidden. Is not a doubtful case also forbidden? — Do not read, ‘from a doubtful case’, but ‘from a case unknown’, since when they received the information they kept away.[25] And what does he teach us thereby? That they shewed love and friendship to one another? But this is exactly the same as the first clause![26] — He teaches us this: That the entire Mishnah represents the views of R. Simeon.

Come and hear: R. Johanan b. Nuri said: ‘How is this law[27] to be promulgated in Israel? Were we to act in accordance with the ruling of Beth Shammai,[28] the child would, in accordance with the ruling of Beth Hillel, be a bastard.[29] And were we to act in accordance with the ruling of Beth Hillel,[30] the child, according to the ruling of Beth Shammai, would be tainted;[31] come, then, and let us issue an ordinance that the rivals

---

(1) By Beth Shammai.

(2) Beth Hillel, who were the more rigorous in matters of ritual cleanness.

(3) From using the utensils of Beth Shammai. The fact that any vessel was not clean according to Beth Hillel would have been, they knew, duly communicated to them.

(4) The inference from the final clause of our Mishnah relating to ritual cleanness and uncleanness.

(5) That the required information was supplied.

(6) The first clause dealing with the marriages of rivals.

(7) Who married one of the brothers.

(8) And no special report on such a case is needed.

(9) Where a rival married a stranger without previously performing the halizah (v. our Mishnah).

(10) V. supra p. 75, n. 4.

(11) And the question of legitimacy does not at all arise in the dispute.

(12) In respect of a rival who married one of the brothers.

(13) Infra 49a.

(14) In our Mishnah.

(15) Who married their brothers; infra 26a.

(16) Git. 79b.

(17) I.e., where the validity of her marriage is in doubt. V. infra 107a.

(18) Lit., ‘and about him who divorced his wife’.

(19) Git. 81a.

(20) The last four deal with the question of what constitutes legal betrothal. Kid. 2a and 11a.

(21) Zech. VIII, 19.

(22) Tosef. Yeb. I.

(23) Beth Shammai.

(24) Whom Beth Shammai abstained from marrying before she performed the halizah.

(25) So long, therefore, as no report had been received the unknown case was assumed to belong to the pure families.

(26) Why then should there be a repetition of the same thing?

(27) Relating to the marriages of rivals.

(28) Who permit the rivals to marry the brothers.

(29) Having been born from a forbidden marriage (that of a brother's wife) which involves kareth.

(30) Permitting rivals to marry strangers without previous halizah.

(31) Though not actually a bastard, he would, were he a kohen, be disqualified from the priesthood.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 15a

perform the halizah[1] but do not marry any of the brothers'.[2] They had hardly time to conclude the matter before confusion set in. Said R. Simeon b. Gamaliel to them, 'What now could we do with previous rivals'![3] Now, if you assume that they[4] acted [in accordance with their own rulings] one can understand why he said, 'What shall we do'.[5] If, however, you assume that they did not so act, what is the meaning of 'What shall we do'?[6] — R. Nahman b. Isaac replied: This[7] was required only in the case of the rival herself;[8] and this is the meaning of the objection 'what shall we do': 'How shall we, according to Beth Shammai, proceed with those rivals [who married[9] in accordance with the rulings] of Beth Hillel? Should they be asked to perform the halizah, they would become despised by their husbands; and should you say, "Let them be despised", [it could be retorted]. Her ways are ways of pleasantness and all her paths are peace'.[10]

Come and hear: R. Tarfon[11] said: Would that the rival of [my] daughter[12] were to fall to my lot[13] so that I could marry her![14] — Read, 'that I could make her marry [another]'.[15] But he said, 'Would'![16] — It[17] implies objection to the ordinance[18] of R. Johanan b.Nuri.[19]

Come and hear: It happened that R. Gamaliel's daughter was married to his brother Abba who died without issue, and that R. Gamaliel married her rival![20] — But how do you understand this? Was R. Gamaliel[21] one of the disciples of Beth Shammai![22] But [this is the explanation]: R. Gamaliel's daughter was different because she was incapable of procreation.[23] Since, however, it was stated in the final clause, 'Others say that R. Gamaliel's daughter was incapable of procreation' it may be inferred that the first Tanna is of the opinion that she was not incapable of procreation! — The difference between them[24] is the question whether he[25] knew her[26] defect[27] or not.[28] And if you wish I might say that the difference between them[24] is the case where he[25] married [the rival] first and subsequently divorced [his wife].[29] And if you wish I might say that the difference between them[24] is whether a stipulation[30] in the case of matrimonial intercourse is valid.[31]

R. Mesharsheya raised an objection: It once happened that R. Akiba gathered the fruit of an ethrog[32] on the first of Shebat[33] and subjected it to two tithes,[34] one[35] in accordance with the ruling of Beth Shammai[36] and the other[37] in accordance with the ruling of Beth Hillel.[38] This proves that they[39] did act [in accordance with their rulings!] — R. Akiba was uncertain of his tradition, not knowing whether Beth Hillel said the first of Shebat[40] or the fifteenth of Shebat.[40]

Mar Zutra raised an objection: It once happened that Shammai the Elder's daughter-in-law was confined with child[41] and he[42] broke an opening through the concrete of the ceiling and covered it above the bed with the proper festival roofing[43] for the sake of the child.[44] Does not this prove that they[39] did act [in accordance with their rulings]?[45] — In that case, any onlooker might assume that it was done in order to increase the ventilation.[46]

Mar Zutra raised an objection: It once happened with Jehu's Trough in Jerusalem, which was connected by means of a hole with a ritual bathing pool,[47] and in which[48] all ritual cleansing in Jerusalem was performed, that Beth Shammai sent and had the hole widened; for Beth Shammai maintain that the greater part [of the intervening wall] must be broken through.[49] But we have also learned that the combination of bathing pools[50] may be effected by a connecting tube of the size of the mouth-piece of a leather bottle in diameter and circumference,[51] viz., a tube in which two fingers may conveniently be turned round.[52] Does not this prove that they[53] did act [in accordance with their rulings]?[54] — There

---

(1) So that any stranger might be permitted to marry them, even according to Beth Shammai.
(2) And thus prevent their children from being branded bastards according to Beth Hillel. (V. supra note 6).
(3) Tosef. Yeb, I; the rivals who, relying on Beth Shammai, married brothers-in-law, prior to the ordinance, whose children would, were the ordinance of R. Johanan b. Nuri to be accepted, become bastard.
(4) Beth Shammai.
(5) Since some may have married brothers-in-law. V. supra n. 1.
(6) No such marriage could possibly have taken place.
(7) R. Simeon b. Gamaliel's precaution.
(8) Who may have married a stranger without previous halizah, in accordance with the ruling of Beth Hillel. It has no reference at all to the children, who would not be regarded bastards even according to Beth Shammai.
(9) Strangers, previously performing the halizah.
(10) Prov. III, 17. The ways of the law must lead to no unpleasantness for the innocent.
(11) A disciple of Beth Shammai.
(12) Who was married to a brother of his.
(13) As levir.
(14) Which shews that Beth Shammai acted in accordance with their ruling that the rival of a forbidden relative is permitted to the brothers.
(15) Which is, of course, permitted according to Beth Hillel. The Heb. אשאנה ‘I will marry her’ (verb. neut. Kal) may be easily mistaken for אשיאנה’I will cause her to marry another’ (verb. act. Hif.).
(16) Which implies a desire to shew something novel. Marrying a stranger, in accordance with the ruling of Beth Hillel, is the usual practice.
(17) The expression ‘would’.
(18) Lit., ‘to bring out’, ‘to exclude (the view)’.
(19) Who desired to institute for rivals halizah to enable them to marry strangers, though prohibiting their marriage with the brothers
(20) Thus acting in accordance with the ruling of Beth Shammai. (V. p. 79, n. 12.)
(21) A descendant of the house of Hillel.
(22) Obviously not. How, then, could it he assumed that he acted in accordance with a ruling of Beth Shammai?
(23) And the rival of such a woman is permitted to the brothers. V. Mishnah supra 2b.
(24) The ‘Others’ and the first Tanna.
(25) The husband, R. Gamaliel's brother.
(26) R. Gamaliel's daughter's.
(27) At the time of their marriage.
(28) V. supra 12a. According to the first Tanna, the rival of R. Gamaliel's daughter was permitted only because her husband was unaware of her defect, and their marriage consequently took place under a misconception. Such a marriage being invalid, R. Gamaliel's daughter was not a legal wife, and her rival consequently was a mere stranger to her father. According to the ‘Others’, who use the expression ‘was incapable’ and not ‘was discovered to be incapable’, the rival was permitted to R. Gamaliel irrespective of whether his daughter's defect had or had not been known, to her husband.
(29) V. supra 13a. Such as was the case with R. Gamaliel's daughter. The first Tanna is of the opinion that the rival was permitted to R. Gamaliel because at the time his brother died she was no more his daughter's rival. The ‘Others’, however, maintain that so long as the two were rivals for any length of time (in this case, between the time of the marriage with the rival and the divorce of R. Gamaliel's daughter) they remain legally as rivals for all time, and the only reason why R. Gamaliel was allowed to marry the rival of his daughter was because his daughter had the defect of being incapable of procreation, and the rival of such a woman is permitted to the brothers. V. supra 2b.
(30) That the woman, e.g., suffers from no illness or that she is not afflicted with any infirmity.
(31) Such a stipulation was made by the husband in the case of R. Gamaliel's daughter. The first Tanna is of the opinion that the stipulation is valid, and since an infirmity was subsequently discovered, the marriage is null and void and the rival as a mere stranger is consequently permitted. The ‘Others’, however, regard a stipulation in connection with marital intercourse as invalid. R. Gamaliel's marriage with the rival was consequently permitted only because his daughter was incapable of procreation.

(32) V. Glos.

(33) The eleventh month in the Hebrew calendar, the first day of which is regarded by Beth Shammai as the New Year for trees. The period of the gathering was about the end of the second year of the septennial cycle and the beginning of the third.

(34) The ‘second tithe’ which is due in the second year of the septennial cycle, and the ‘tithe for the poor’ which is due in the third year of the cycle.

(35) The ‘tithe for the poor’.

(36) According to whom, the first of Shebat being regarded as the beginning of the New Year for trees, the third year of the cycle had already begun, and the tithe due is, therefore, that of the poor.

(37) The ‘second tithe’.

(38) Who, maintaining that the new year for trees does not begin until the fifteenth of Shebat, regard the first day of the month as still belonging to the concluding year, i.e., the second of the cycle in which the ‘second tithe’ is due. ‘Er. 7a, R.H. 14a.

(39) Beth Shammai.

(40) Was the new year. Cf. supra nn. 5-7.

(41) During the Festival of Tabernacles when it is obligatory upon all males to dwell in booths (Lev. XXIII, 42), the roof of which must consist of branches or leaves or any similar material which grows from the ground (v. Suk. 2aff).

(42) Shammai.

(43) V. supra n. 10.

(44) Who was a male and, in the opinion of Beth Shammai, a male child, though still dependent on his mother, is like any male adult subject to the obligation of dwelling in a booth during the festival. Suk. 28a.

(45) Since according to Beth Hillel the child, being dependent upon his mother, is exempt from the obligation.

(46) The action, therefore, did not in any way demonstrate a disregard for the ruling of Beth Hillel.

(47) מקוה ‘a gathering together’, applied to a bath or pool containing forty se'ah of water, which is the prescribed minimum for a ritual bath.

(48) The trough, though containing less than the required minimum, was rendered ritually fit through fusion with the larger pool by means of the connecting hole.

(49) Mik. IV, 5.

(50) Which renders the smaller one, containing less than the prescribed minimum, ritually fit.

(51) Lit., ‘like the tube of a leather bottle in its thickness and hollow space’.

(52) Hag. 21b, Mik. VI, 7; lit., ‘as two fingers returning to their place’.

(53) Beth Shammai.

(54) Since the original tube, according to Beth Hillel, was quite sufficient, and they had nevertheless ordered its extension.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 15b

the onlooker might assume that the extension was made in order to increase the volume of the water.[1]

Come and hear: R. Eleazar b. Zadok said: When I was learning Torah with R. Johanan the Horonite[2] I noticed that in the years of dearth he used to eat dry bread with salt. I went home and related it to my father, who said to me, ‘Take some olives to him’. When I brought these to him and he observed that they were moist[3] he said to me, ‘I eat no olives’.[4] I again went out and communicated the matter to my father, who said to me, ‘Go tell him that the jar was broached,[5] only the lees had blocked up the breach’;[6] and we learned: A jar containing pickled olives, Beth Shammai said, need not be broached;[7] but Beth Hillel say: It must be broached.[8] They admit, however, that where it had been broached and the lees had blocked up the holes, it is clean.[9] And though he[10] was a disciple of Shammai, he always conformed in practice[11] to the rulings of Beth Hillel. Now, if it be conceded that they[12] did act in accordance with their own rulings, one can well understand why his[10] action was worthy of note;[13] if, however, it were to be contended that they did not so act, in what respect was his conduct noteworthy![14]

Come and hear: R. Joshua was asked, ‘What is the law in relation to the rival of one's daughter’? He answered them, ‘It is a question in dispute between Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel’. — ‘But [he was asked] in accordance with whose ruling is the established law’? ‘Why should you,’ he said to them, ‘put my head between two great mountains, between two great groups of disputants, aye, between Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel? I fear they might crush my head! I may testify to you, however, concerning two great families who flourished in Jerusalem, namely, the family of Beth Zebo'im of Ben ‘Akmai and the family of Ben Kuppai of Ben Mekoshesh,[15] that they were descendants of rivals[16] and yet some of them were High Priests who ministered upon the altar’. Now, if it be conceded that they[17] acted [in accordance with their own rulings] it is quite intelligible why he said, ‘I fear’.[18] If, however, it be suggested that they[17] did not so act, why did he say, ‘I fear’![19] But even if it be granted that they did act [according to their rulings], what [cause had he for saying,] ‘I fear’? Surely R. Joshua said that a bastard was only he who was a descendant of one of those who are subject to capital punishments which are within the jurisdiction of the Beth din![20] — Granted that he[21] was not a bastard, he is nevertheless tainted;[22] as may be deduced by inference a minori ad majus from the case of the widow: If the son of a widow[23] who is not forbidden to all[24] is nevertheless tainted,[25] [how much more so the son of a rival][26] who is forbidden to all.[27]

They asked him concerning rivals and he answered them about the sons of the rivals! — They really asked him two questions: ‘What is the law concerning the rivals? And if some ground could be found in their case in favour of the ruling of Beth Hillel, what is the law according to Beth Shammai in regard to the sons of the rivals, [who married][28] in accordance with the ruling of Beth Hillel’?[29] What practical difference is there?[30] — That a solution may be found, according to Beth Hillel, for the question of the child[31] of a man who remarried his divorced wife.[32] Do we[33] apply the inference a minori ad majus, arguing thus: ‘If the son of a widow who was married to a High Priest, who is not forbidden to all,[34] is nevertheless tainted,[35] how much more so the son of her[36] who is forbidden to all’;[37] or is it possible to refute the argument, thus: ‘The case of the widow is different because she herself is profaned’?[38] And he said to them, ‘With reference to the rivals I am afraid;[39]

---

(1) V. note 2.

(2) [Cf. Hauran, mentioned in Ezek. XLVII, 18, south of Damascus, the Auranitis of the Graeco-Roman times.]

(3) Moisture renders fruit susceptible to Levitical uncleanness.

(4) He hesitated to eat them owing to the possibility (Rashi) or the certainty (Tosaf. a.l. s.v. אמר) that the earthen jar in which they were kept had been touched by an ‘am ha-arez and, being moist, received the uncleanness imparted to them by the jar which, by Rabbinical enactment, had become unclean by the touch of the ‘am ha-arez.

(5) Keeping olives in a broached container is clear evidence that the owner had no desire to retain the sap that exudes from the olives; and only liquids which are desired by the owner render the fruit susceptible to Levitical uncleanness.

(6) And thus the undesired ‘moisture remained on the olives. As such moisture does not render the fruit susceptible to uncleanness (v. previous note) the olives may safely be eaten even by the scrupulous.

(7) Because in their opinion the moisture that exudes from the olives is regarded as a fruit juice which does not render food susceptible to Levitical uncleanness.

(8) The moisture is regarded by them as actual oil which does render food susceptible to uncleanness. Broaching is consequently necessary in order to indicate thereby that the owner had no desire to preserve the liquid.

(9) I.e., the liquid, having clearly been shewn to be unwanted, does not render the olives susceptible to Levitical uncleanness. ‘Ed. IV, 6.

(10) R. Johanan the Horonite.

(11) Lit., ‘all his deeds he only did’.

(12) Beth Shammai.

(13) Lit., ‘that is his greatness’; i.e., his conduct was remarkable and worthy of note in that he acted according to the ruling of Beth Hillel despite the practice of his colleagues of acting in accordance with the rulings of their own School.

(14) Lit., ‘what was his greatness’; he only acted on the same lines as the other disciples of Beth Shammai. Consequently it must be concluded that Beth Shammai did act in accordance with their own rulings.

(15) [A locality in Judaea; on the identification of the other names, v. Klein MGWJ 1910, 25ff, and 1917, 135ff and Buchler Priester, p. 186.]
(16) Who, in accordance with the ruling of Beth Hillel, married strangers without previously performing halizah with the levirs.
(17) Beth Shammai.
(18) As the rivals, acting on the ruling of Beth Shammai, might have married the brothers, their children who, according to Beth Hillel, would thus be descendants of marriages forbidden under the penalty of kareth, would be deemed to be bastards. These would certainly resent R. Joshua's declaration in favour of Beth Hillel, and his life would thus be in danger.
(19) No one could possibly resent his decision since no one would be adversely affected by it. Cf. supra p. 83 , n. 10, final clause.
(20) Infra 49a. Now, even if he had decided in favour of Beth Hillel no one would have been degraded thereby to the level of a bastard. Why then was he afraid?
(21) A descendant from a marriage punishable by kareth.
(22) Though not actually a bastard, he would, were he a kohen, he disqualified from the priesthood.
(23) Born from her marriage with a High Priest.
(24) A widow is forbidden only to a High Priest. V. Lev. XXI, 14.
(25) V. note 8.
(26) Cur. edd., ‘etc.’
(27) A rival is forbidden to Israelites as well as priests.
(28) Strangers without previous halizah with the levirs.
(29) Are the children of such marriages, which are forbidden by a negative precept, disqualified from the priesthood?
(30) Since the halachah is according to Beth Hillel.
(31) A daughter.
(32) After she had been married to another man. Such remarriage is also forbidden (v. supra note 2) by a negative precept (V. Deut. XXIV, 1-4.)
(33) In this case according to Beth Hillel, as in the case of a rival's son according to Beth Shammai; both cases coming under the prohibition of a negative precept.
(34) V. p. 84, n. 10.
(35) V. p. 84, n. 8.
(36) A rival.
(37) A rival is forbidden to Israelites as well as to priests.
(38) On the death of the High Priest to whom she was unlawfully married she may not marry any more even an ordinary priest, and as she was a priest's daughter she is henceforth forbidden to eat terumah. On a woman, however, who was remarried after divorce no new restrictions are imposed.
(39) V. supra p. 84, n. 4.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 16a

as to the sons of the rivals[1] I may testify to you’.[2]

Come and hear: In the days of R. Dosa b. Harkinas the rival of a daughter was permitted to marry the brothers.[3] From this it may be inferred that [Beth Shammai] acted [in accordance with their own rulings].[4] This proves the point.

[To turn to] the main text. In the days of R. Dosa b. Harkinas, the rival of a daughter was permitted to marry the brothers. This ruling was very disturbing to the Sages, because he[5] was a great scholar[6] and his eyes were dim so that he was unable to come to the house of study.[7] When a discussion took place as to who should go and communicate with him, R. Joshua said to them, ‘I will go’. ‘And who after him?’ — ‘R. Eleazar b. Azariah.’ ‘And who after him?’ — ‘R. Akiba’. They went and stood at the entrance of his house. His maid entered and told him, ‘Master, the Sages of Israel are come to you’. ‘Let them enter’, he said to her; and they entered. Taking hold of R. Joshua he made him sit upon a golden couch. The latter said to him, ‘Master, will you ask your other disciple to sit down’? ‘Who is he?’ [the Master] enquired. — ‘R. Eleazar b. Azariah’. ‘Has our friend Azariah a son?’ [the Master] exclaimed, and applied to him this Scriptural text, I have been young and now I am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread;[8] and so took hold of him also and made him sit upon a golden couch. ‘Master’, said he,[9] ‘will you ask your next disciple also to sit down’? ‘And who is he?’ [the Master] asked. — ‘Akiba the son of Joseph’. ‘You are,’ [the Master] exclaimed, ‘Akiba son of Joseph whose name is known from one end of the world to the other! Sit down, my son, sit down. May men like you multiply in Israel’. Thereupon they began to address to him all sorts of questions on legal practice[10] until they reached that of the daughter's rival. ‘What is the halachah’, they asked him, ‘in the case of a daughter's rival?’ ‘This,’ he answered them, ‘is a question in dispute between Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel.’ ‘In accordance with whose ruling is the halachah?’ — ‘The halachah,’ he replied, is in accordance with the ruling of Beth Hillel’. ‘But, indeed,’ they said to him, ‘it was stated in your name that the halachah is in accordance with the ruling of Beth Shammai!’ He said to them: ‘Did you hear, "Dosa"[11] or "the son of Harkinas?"’[12] — ‘By the life of our Master.’ they replied. ‘We heard no son's name mentioned.’[13] ‘I have,’ he said to them, ‘a younger brother who is a dare-devil[14] and his name is Jonathan and he is one of the disciples of Shammai.[15] Take care that he does not overwhelm you on questions of established practice, because he has three hundred answers to prove that the daughter's rival is permitted. But I call heaven and earth to witness that upon this mortar[16] sat the prophet Haggai[17] and delivered the following three rulings: That a daughter's rival is forbidden, that in the lands of Ammon and Moab the tithe of the poor is to be given in the Seventh Year,[18] and that proselytes may be accepted from the Cordyenians and the Tarmodites.’[19]

A Tanna taught: When they came[20] they entered through one door; when they went out they issued through three different doors.[21] He came upon R. Akiba, submitted his objections to him and silenced him.[22] ‘Are you’, he called out, ‘Akiba whose name rings from one end of the world to the other? You are blessed indeed to have won fame while you have not yet attained the rank of oxherds.’ ‘Not even,’ replied R. Akiba, ‘that of shepherds.’

‘In the lands of Ammon and Moab the tithe of the poor is given in the Seventh Year,’ because a Master said: Those who came up from Egypt[23] had conquered many cities which those who came up from Babylon[24] did not conquer, and the first sanctification[23] was intended for that time only but not for the future.[25] Hence they were allowed [cultivation][26] in order that the poor[27] might find their support there in the Seventh Year.[28]

‘And that proselytes may be accepted from the Cordyenians and the Tarmodites’. But [the law, surely,] is not so! For Rami b. Ezekiel learnt: No proselyte may be accepted from the Cordyenians. — R. Ashi replied: The statement was Kartuenians,[29] as people, in fact, speak of ‘disqualified Kartuenians’.

Others say: Rami b. Ezekiel learnt, ‘No proselytes are to be accepted from the Kartuenians’. Are not Kartuenians the same as Cordyenians? — R. Ashi replied: No; Kartuenians are a class by themselves, and Cordyenians are a class by themselves, as people, in fact, speak of ‘disqualified Kartuenians’.[30]

Both R. Johanan and Sabya maintain that no proselytes may be accepted from the Tarmodites. Did R. Johanan. however, say such a thing? Surely we learned: All blood stains [on women's garments] that come from Rekem[31] are levitically clean,[32] and R. Judah declares them unclean because [the people there] were proselytes though misguided;[33] [those that come] from the heathens[34] are levitically clean.[35] And the difficult point was raised

---

(1) Whether they are tainted or not.

(2) V. supra 15b, which shews that they were not tainted, since they were permitted to occupy the highest office in the priesthood.

(3) Of the father of that daughter.

(4) Since the permission to marry was issued by a brother of R. Dosa (v. infra) who was a member of Beth Shammai.

(5) R. Dosa, who was thought to be the author of the ruling.

(6) And they did not venture to act against his decision without first consulting him.

(7) And was thus unaware that the general opinion at the College was against the ruling.

(8) Ps. XXXVII, 25.

(9) R. Joshua.

(10) Lit., ‘surrounded him with halachoth’.

(11) I.e., that Dosa permitted the rival.

(12) Without the mention of the name of the son.

(13) Lit., ‘not specifically’, ‘undefined’.

(14) בכור שטן lit., ‘the first-born of Satan’, first in obstinate dispute (Jast.); Satansjunge similar to Teufelskerl (Golds.); keen and obstinate (Rashi). Some suggest בחור שונן ‘keen — witted youth’. R. Dosa appears to have been playing upon the rhyme of ah katan, bekor satan, and Jonathan.

(15) And it must have been Jonathan who dared to issue a ruling in accordance with the views of his school against those of Beth Hillel.

(16) מדוכה or mortar-shaped seat.

(17) [That does not mean that he was a contemporary of Haggai the prophet, but that he had an incontrovertible tradition on the matter, Me'iri.]

(18) Of the septennial cycle. The countries of Ammon and Moab, though conquered by Moses and included in the boundary of the Land of Israel, were in the days of the Second Temple excluded. The laws of the Seventh or Sabbatical year, which apply to the Land of Israel, were consequently inapplicable to the lands of Ammon and Moab. Any Jews living in those countries, it was ordained by the Rabbis, were to be allowed to cultivate their fields in this year, but besides the ‘first tithe’ which is due in all other years, they were to give the tithe of the poor also.

(19) Despite the opinion of some Rabbis that they were to be regarded as bastards. Cordyene or Kardu was in Babylon; Tarmod or Tadmor, (Palmyra) lay in an oasis of the desert of Syria. [According to Obermeyer (p. 133) the question as to the legitimacy of the offering of the Kardu was on account of the possible intermarriage of the non-Jewish inhabitants with the Jewish converts, won over to Christianity by the Christian missions from Edessa in the first century.]

(20) To interview R. Dosa.

(21) Either in order not to attract Jonathan's attention, or, on the contrary, in the hope that one of them at least might meet him.

(22) Lit., ‘and made him stand’.

(23) In the days of Joshua.

(24) In the days of Ezra.

(25) Hag. 3b.

(26) In the Sabbatical year.

(27) Of the Land of Israel where no cultivation was permitted and where consequently no poor-tithe was given in that year.

(28) By obtaining employment in the fields or by receiving the tithes and the other gifts of the poor.

(29) Mountaineers of Media. The Gr.  natives of Karta are mentioned by Polybius and Strabo.

(30) The Cordyenians, however, are not tainted.

(31) Place on the borders of Palestine. Perhaps Petra or the Biblical Sela in Edom, v. Git., Sonc. ed. p. 1, n. 2.

(32) Only the menstrual blood of the daughters of Israel is levitically unclean; and no pure Israelites lived at Rekem.

(33) Though they no longer observed the religious laws of Judaism they were once proselytes and as such their menstrual blood is levitically unclean as is the case with that of Israelites.

(34) I.e., from localities where no Israelites live.

(35) Nid. 56b, Bek. 38b.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 16b

that having stated categorically,[1] ‘[those that came] from the heathens’ [he must also imply,] ‘even those from Tarmod’![2] And R. Johanan replied: This proves that proselytes may be accepted from Tarmod.[3] And if it be replied [that R. Johanan only said], ‘This’,[4] but he himself does not hold this view,[5] surely R. Johanan said, ‘The halachah is in accordance with an anonymous Mishnah’![6] — It is a question in dispute between Amoraim as to what was actually the view of R. Johanan.

Why are no [proselytes to be accepted] from Tarmod? — R. Johanan and Sabya give different reasons. One says, ‘On account of the slaves of Solomon,’[7] and the other says, ‘On account of the daughters of Jerusalem.’[8]

According to him who Says. ‘On account of the slaves of Solomon,’ the reason is quite intelligible, because he may hold the opinion that the child of a heathen or a slave who had intercourse with a daughter in Israel is a bastard. According to him, however, who said, ‘On account of the daughters of Jerusalem’, what is the reason? — R. Joseph and the Rabbis dispute the point, and both of them in the name of Rabbah b. Bar Hana. One maintains that [the number was] twelve thousand [foot]men and six thousand archers, and the other maintains that there were twelve thousand men and, of these, six hundred archers. At the time when the heathens entered the Temple, everyone made for the gold and the silver, but they made for the daughters of Jerusalem; as it is said in the Scriptures. They have ravished the women in Zion, the maidens in the cities of Judah.[9]

R. Samuel b. Nahmani said in the name of R. Jonathan: The following verse was uttered by the Genius of the Universe:[10] I have been young and now I am old[11] For who else could have said it! If the Holy One, blessed be He, be suggested, is there any old age in his case? Then David must have said it? But was he so old? Consequently it must be concluded that the Genius of the Universe had said it.

R. Samuel b. Nahmani further said in the name of R. Jonathan: What is [the meaning of] the Scriptural text,[12] The adversary hath spread out his hand upon all her treasures?[13] — This [refers to] Ammon and Moab. At the time when the heathens entered the Temple all made for gold and silver, but they turned to the Scroll of the Law, saying, ‘That in which it is written, An Ammonite or a Moabite shall not enter into the assembly of the Lord,[14] shall be burned with fire.’

The Lord hath commanded concerning Jacob that they that are round about him should be his adversaries.[15] Rab said: As, for instance, Humania towards Pum Nahara.[16]

Rab Judah said in the name of R. Assi: If at the present time a heathen betroths [a daughter in Israel], note must be taken of such betrothal since it may be that he is of the ten tribes.[17] But, surely, anything separated [from a heterogeneous group] is re garded as having been separated from the majority![18] — [R. Assi's statement refers] to places where they have settled;[19] for R. Abba b. Kahana said: And he put them in Halah and in Habor, on the river of Gozan, and the cities of the Medes;[20] Halah is Halwan,[21] and Habor

---

(1) Lit., ‘he decides and teaches’.

(2) But can that be so in view of the doubtful character of the admixture of Jewish stock of its inhabitants?

(3) Nid. 56b. I.e., they are not regarded as an admixture of Jewish stock and tainted from birth and disqualified. How then could it be said supra that R. Johanan maintains that proselytes may not be accepted from the Tarmodites?

(4) ‘This proves etc.’ supra.

(5) I.e., he disagrees with the Mishnah.

(6) Which, as has been shewn, implies that proselytes may be accepted from Tarmod.

(7) Who married Jewish women.

(8) This is explained immediately.

(9) Lam. V, 11.

(10) Or ‘Prince of the world’; identified by some writers with Metatron ‘whose name is similar to that of his master’; v. Sanh., Sonc. ed. p. 245, nn. 11 and 12 and cf. op. cit. p. 246, n. 6. V. also ‘A.Z., Sonc. ed. p. 10, n. 6.
(11) Ps. XXXVII, 25, referred to by R. Dosa supra 16a.
(12) Lit., ‘what of that which was written?’
(13) Lam. I, 10.
(14) Deut. XXIII, 4.
(15) Lam. I, 17.
(16) Both were localities in Babylon. The former, inhabited by Greeks, was a constant source of annoyance to the latter the inhabitants of which were poor Israelites. Humania was below the city of Ctesifon and near it was Pum Nahara.
(17) Whom Shalmaneser had carried away into captivity (II Kings XVIII, 11) where they intermarried with the heathens. Children born from such marriages are bastards, and R. Assi holds that a bastard's betrothal is valid.
(18) I.e., if it is not known to which group or class a person or object that comes from a mixed multitude belongs, it is always assumed that the unit came from the majority. Now, since the ten tribes represent only a minority of the heathens, it should be assumed that the betrothal was not made by one of the ten tribes but by a heathen.
(19) And formed a majority of the inhabitants (Tosaf. s.v. בדוכתא a.l.). Rashi: A group which is in a settled condition, (kabu'a, v. Keth. 15a and Glos.), though it is a minority, is deemed to represent a half of the whole multitude.
(20) II Kings XVIII, 11.
(21) So Kid. 72b. Cur. edd., חלזון. Halwan is a locality in Assyria. V. Kid., Sonc. ed. p. 367, n. 4.

is Hadyab,[1] the river Gozan is Ginzak,[2] and the cities of the Medes are Hamdan[3] and its neighbouring towns; others say, Nihar[4] and its neighbouring towns. Which are its neighbouring towns? — Samuel replied: Karak,[5] Moshki,[6] Hidki[7] and Dumkia.[8] R. Johanan said: All these[9] [were enumerated] in order to declare them as being unfit.[10] When, however, I[11] mentioned the matter[12] in the presence of Samuel he said to me: Thy son,[13] implies that he who is descended from an Israelitish woman may be called thy son, but thy son who is descended from a heathen woman is not called thy son but her son.[14] But, surely, there were also daughters,[15] and Rabina had said, ‘From this it may be inferred that thy daughter's son born from [a union with] a heathen is called thy son’![16] — There is a tradition that the women of that generation were sterilized.[17]

Others read: When I mentioned the matter[18] in the presence of Samuel he said to me, ‘They did not move from there until they had declared them[19] to be perfect heathens; as it is said in the Scriptures, They have dealt treacherously against the Lord, for they have begotten strange children.’[20]

R. Joseph sat behind R. Kahana while R. Kahana sat before Rab Judah, and while sitting he made the following statement: ‘Israel will make a festival when Tarmod will have been destroyed’.[21] But, surely, it was destroyed! — That[22] was Tammod.[23]

R. Ashi said: Tarmod and Tammod are identical, but the city was rebuilt;[24] when it was destroyed on one side it was settled on the other side, and when the other side was destroyed it was settled on the first side.[25]

R. Hamnuna sat before ‘Ulla and was engaged in discussing a traditional law when the latter remarked,[26] ‘What a man! And how much more important would he have been[27] had not Harpania[28] been his [native] town’! As the other was embarrassed, he said to him, ‘Where do you pay poll tax’? — ‘To Pum Nahara’, the other replied. ‘If so’, ‘Ulla said, ‘You belong to Pum Nahara’. What [is the meaning of] Harpania? — R. Zera replied: A mountain whither everybody[29] turns.[30] In a Baraitha it was taught: Whosoever did not know his family and his tribe[31] made his way thither. Raba said: And it was deeper than the nether-world,[32] for in the Scripture it is said, I shall ransom them from the power of the nether-world; I shall redeem them from death,[33] but for the unfitness of these there is no remedy at all; the unfit of Harpania on account of the unfit of Meshan,[34] and the unfit of Meshan on account of the unfit of Tarmod,[35] and the unfit of Tarmod on account of the slaves of Solomon.[36] Thus it is that people say, ‘The small kab and the big kab[37] roll down to the nether-world, from the netherworld to Tarmod,[38] from Tarmod to Meshan, and from Meshan to Harpania.[39]

CHAPTER II

MISHNAH. HOW [IS THE EXEMPTION OF HER RIVAL BY] THE WIFE OF HIS BROTHER WHO WAS NOT HIS CONTEMPORARY’[40] [TO BE UNDERSTOOD]?- IF THERE WERE TWO BROTHERS ONE OF WHOM DIED, AND AFTER A THIRD[41] BROTHER WAS BORN[42] THE SECOND[43] TOOK IN LEVIRATE MARRIAGE HIS DECEASED BROTHERS WIFE AND THEN DIED HIMSELF, THE FIRST WOMAN[44] IS EXEMPT[45] AS ‘THE WIFE OF HIS BROTHER WHO WAS NOT HIS CONTEMPORARY’, AND THE SECOND[46] [IS EXEMPT][45] AS HER RIVAL. IF HE[47] ADDRESSED TO HER A MA'AMAR[48] AND DIED,[49] THE SECOND[50] , MUST PERFORM HALIZAH[51] BUT MAY NOT ENTER INTO THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE.[52]

GEMARA. R.Nahman said: He who uses the expression FIRST[53] commits no error and he who uses the expression SECOND[53] also commits no error. ‘He who uses the expression

---

(1) Adiabene, a region between the rivers Caprus and Lycus in Assyria.

(2) Ganzaka, identified with Shiz, S.E. of Urmia Lake, N.W. of Persia, v. ibid. n. 8.

(3) Hamadan, the capital of Media, otherwise known as Ekbatana. V. Schrader, Keilinschriften, p. 378.

(4) Nahawand, a town on the south of Ekbatana (v. previous note). V. ibid. n. 4.

(5) כרך, Others read, כרך (fort) in the construct, and connect it with the following nouns.

(6) Or Kerak Moshki, the Fort of Moshki. The land of the Moshki lay on the southern side of Colchis.

(7) A locality in Assyria, variously described as Hudki, Hirki, Hizki and Huski.

(8) Rumki, Ruthki, or the Fort of Rumki in Media. On all these localities v. Kid., Sonc. ed. pp. 365ff notes.

(9) Localities mentioned.

(10) Most of their inhabitants being deemed bastards, since the women had intermarried with the heathens, and their descendants, furthermore, married forbidden relatives.

(11) This is the continuation of Rab Judah's statement.

(12) R. Assi's ruling, supra 16b.

(13) V. Deut. VII, 4 and Kid. 68b.

(14) I.e., is regarded as a perfect heathen and his betrothal has no validity.

(15) Of the ten tribes who married heathens.

(16) V. infra 23a. The children of such unions, then, being deemed Israelites though unfit, should have the right of betrothal. How then could Samuel contend that they are deemed to be perfect heathens? (V. supra p. 91, n. 18).

(17) אצטרויי אצטרו (root, צרי or צרא. Ithpa., ‘to tear’, ‘split’. Lit., ‘they were split’, i.e., an operation for sterilization was performed on them.

(18) Of R. Assi's ruling supra 16b.

(19) The ten tribes.

(20) Hos. V, 7.

(21) Being of tainted birth they contaminated many pure families in Israel by their intermarriages.

(22) The destroyed city.

(23) [According to Obermeyer. p. 199, the district between Medina and Syria inhabited by the Arab tribe Thamod, mentioned by Plinius and which, according to the Koran (VII, 76) has been destroyed by earthquake.]

(24) Lit., ‘redoubled’.

(25) This explains the destruction and existence of the same city.

(26) Referring to R. Hamnuna.

(27) Lit., ‘his strength’ (Bah). Cur. edd., repeat ‘what a man’.

(28) Hipparenum, a wealthy industrial town in the Mesene district, inhabited by a Jewish community of tainted birth.

(29) Of spurious or tainted descent who cannot obtain a wife anywhere else.

(30) הר שהכול פונין בו a play upon the word הרפנחא, the Aleph in הרפניא taking the place of the waw in בו.

(31) V. n. 1.

(32) Sheol, Hell.

(33) Hos. XIII, 14.

(34) Mesene, the island territory lying between the Tigris, the Euphrates and the Royal Canal. Its inhabitants were of spurious descent (v. Kid. 71b) and Harpania was situated near it.

(35) [Palmyrean merchants would make with their caravans across the wilderness direct for Mesene and there intermarry with the inhabitants, v. Obermeyer, p. 198.]

(36) V. supra, 16b.

(37) I.e., both measures are false. This saying is a metaphor for all sorts of people who in a minor or major degree are of spurious descent.

(38) Tarmod being deeper and lower than Hell itself.

(39) Harpania lying in the lowest depths of immorality and tainted descent.

(40) V. Mishnah supra 2b top.

(41) Lit., ‘to them’.

(42) And thus found his deceased brother's widow subject to the marriage with his elder brother and forbidden to himself as ‘the wife of his brother who was not his contemporary’.

(43) Of the two elder brothers who was already a married man.

(44) The widow of the first deceased brother who is now also the widow of the second brother.
(45) From levirate marriage with the third brother.
(46) Her rival, the widow of the second brother, who in ordinary circumstances would have been subject to levirate marriage with the third brother since he was a contemporary of her husband.
(47) The second brother.
(48) I.e., said to her in the presence of witnesses, ‘Be thou betrothed unto me’.
(49) Prior to the consummation of the marriage.
(50) V. note 7.
(51) With the third brother. Since her husband's union with his deceased brother's widow was not consummated he never was her legal husband, and as she is consequently not her rival she cannot be exempt from the halizah.
(52) Because the ma'amar that the husband of the second addressed to the first widow has partially attached that woman to him, and the second has, in consequence, become the partial rival of a forbidden relative and is, therefore, Rabbinically forbidden to enter into the levirate marriage.
(53) In describing the widow of the first deceased brother.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 17b

FIRST commits no error’, since ‘first’ may signify[1] ‘first to be subject [to the levirate marriage]’; and ‘he who uses the expression SECOND also commits no error’, since ‘second’ may signify ‘second to marry’,[2] Does not our Mishnah, however, include also[3] the case of one who contracted the levirate marriage first and subsequently married his other wife?[4] What, then, is meant by ‘second’? Second in respect of her marriages.[5]

Where [in the Scriptures] is [the prohibition of marrying] ‘the wife of his brother who was not his contemporary’ written? — Rab Judah replied in the name of Rab: Scripture states, If brethren dwell together,[6] i.e., dwell in the world at the same time; the wife of one's brother who was not his contemporary is consequently excluded; ‘together’ implies who are together in respect of inheritance,[7] a maternal brother is, therefore, excluded.

Rabbah said: [That legal] brothers [are only those who are descended] from the same father is deduced by a comparison of this ‘brotherhood’[8] with the ‘brotherhood’ of the sons of Jacob;[9] as there [the brotherhood was derived] from the father[10] and not from the mother,[11] so here also [the brotherhood spoken of is that] from the father and not from the mother.[12]

Let him rather deduce this ‘brotherhood’[8] from the ‘brotherhood’ of forbidden relatives![13] — Brethren[8] may be deduced from brethren,[9] but not brethren[8] from thy brother.[14] What practical difference is there [between the two expression]? Surely the School of R. Ishmael taught: And the priest shall return,[15] and the priest shall come,[16] ‘returning’ and ‘coming’ are the same thing![17] — Such an analogy is drawn only[18] where there is no other identical word; when, however, there occurs another word which is identical, the analogy is made only with that which is identical.

Let him, then, deduce this ‘brotherhood’[19] from the ‘brotherhood’ in the case of Lot, since it is written in the Scriptures. For we are brethren![20] -It stands to reason that the deduction should be made from the sons of Jacob. because the [analogous expression] is available for the purpose;[21] for it could have been written, Thy servants are twelve sons of one man[22] and yet ‘brethren’ also was written. Hence it must be inferred that the word was made available for the deduction.[23]

It was necessary for Scripture to write brethren,[24] and it was also necessary to write together.[24] For had the All Merciful written ‘brethren’ only, it might have been suggested that this ‘brotherhood’ should be deduced from the ‘brotherhood’ in the case of Lot. And were you to reply that [the analogous word][25] , is not available for deduction,[21] your statement would be negatived,[26] [the analogous word] being indeed available; for whereas he could have written ‘friends’ and yet wrote ‘brethren’, the inference must be that the object was to render it available for analogous deduction; hence the All Merciful has written ‘together’, implying only those who are together in respect of inheritance.[27] If, [on the other hand,] the All Merciful had only written ‘together’, it might have been said to refer to such as have the same father and mother; [hence both expressions were] required.

But how could you have arrived at such an opinion?[28] The All Merciful has, surely, made[29] the levirate marriage dependent on inheritance,[30] and inheritance[31] is derived from the father and not from the mother![32] -It[33] was necessary. For it might have been assumed that whereas this[34] is an anomaly,[35] a forbidden relative[36] having been permitted, the brotherhood must, therefore, be both paternal and maternal; [hence it was] necessary [to teach us that the law was not so].

R. Huna said in the name of Rab: If a woman awaiting the decision of the levir![37] died, [the levir] is permitted to marry her mother. This obviously shews that he![38] is of the opinion that no levirate bond[39] exists[40] let him then say, the halachah is in accordance with the view of him who said no levirate bond exists![41] — If he had said so, it might have been suggested that this applied only to the case of two[42] but that in the case of one[43] a levirate bond does exist. Then let him say, ‘The halachah is in accordance with him who said no levirate bond exists even in the case of one levir’![44] — If he had said so it might have been assumed even where she[45] is alive;[46] hence he taught us that only after death and not when she is still alive, because it is forbidden to abolish the commandment of levirate marriages.

We learned, ‘If his deceased brother's wife died he may marry her sister’,[47] which implies that her sister only may be married but not her mother! — The same law applies even to her mother; only because he taught in the earlier clause ‘if his wife died he is permitted to marry her sister’ in which case only her sister is meant and not her mother, since the latter is Biblically prohibited, he also taught in the latter clause ‘he is permitted to marry her sister’.[48]

Rab Judah, however, said: If a woman awaiting the decision of the levir[49] died, the levir is still forbidden to marry her mother. This[50] obviously implies that he[51] is of the opinion that a levirate bond exists,[52] let him then say, the halachah is in accordance with the view of him who said a levirate bond exists![53] -If he had said so it might have been suggested that this applied only to the case of one,[54] but in the case of two[55] no levirate bond exists. But the dispute,[56] surely, centered round the question of two![57] — But [this is really the reply]: If he[51] had said so[58]

---

(1) Lit., ‘what is first?’

(2) The second brother who was already a married man when he contracted the levirate marriage with her. V. supra p 94. n. 4.

(3) Lit., ‘are we not engaged on’.

(4) In which case the widow was also the first to marry him.

(5) The first marriage with her husband and the second with the levir.

(6) Deut. xxv, 5.

(7) I.e., entitled to inherit from one another.

(8) The expression ‘brethren’ in Deut. xxv, 5’ in relation to the levirate marriage.

(9) the thy servants are twelve brethren (Gen. XLII, 13).

(10) Jacob.

(11) Since they were born from different mothers.

(12) B.B. 110b, infra 22a.

(13) The nakedness of thy brother's wife (Lev. XVIII, 26) which includes (v. infra 55a) the wife of a maternal brother.

(14) In the case of the levirate marriage (Deut. xxv, 5) as well as that of Jacob's sons (Gen. XLII, 13) the expression is אחים ‘brethren’; In that of Lev. XVIII, 16 it is אחיך ‘thy brother’.

(15) Lev. XIV, 39.

(16) Ibid. v. 44.

(17) And an analogy between them may be drawn. Though in that case the expressions ושב and ובא, are derived from different roots they are nevertheless, owing to their similarity in meaning. employed for the purposes of an analogy (‘Er. 51a, Yoma 2b, Naz. 5a, Mak. 13b, Hor. 8b et a.l.), how much more so should an analogy be justified between the same nouns which differ only (v. supra p. 95’ n. 14) in their suffixes!

(18) Lit., ‘these words’.

(19) The expression ‘brethren’ in Deut. xxv, 5 in relation to the levirate marriage.

(20) Gen. Xlii, 8. Lot having been Abraham's nephew the deduction would establish a novel law of marriage with a deceased uncle's or nephew's widow.

(21) Lit., ‘vacant’.

(22) Gen. XLII, 23. Cur. edd., read, in. stead of ‘one man’, ‘our father’, which occurs in v. 32. If the reference were to the latter verse ‘thy servants’ which does not occur there would have to be deleted here. Several MSS. support the reading here adopted.

(23) Lit., ‘to make it vacant.

(24) Deut. xxv, 5.

(25) In the case of Lot.

(26) לאיי (cf. Jast.) or לאיי (cf. Levy). Contract. of לא הי’not it’. Aruk: derivation is from לא + Gr.  ‘not so my son’.

(27) V. supra p. 95, n. 7.

(28) Lit., ‘and this, whence does it come’, i.e., how could any one have assumed that the levirate marriage should only apply to brothers from the same father and mother?

(29) Lit ‘hung’.

(30) [Infra 24a.

(31) Of one's brother.

(32) What need then was there for the expression ‘brethren’?

(33) The expression ‘brethren,.

(34) Levirate marriage.

(35) Lit., ‘something novel’.

(36) A brother's wife.

(37) שומרת יבם a woman during the period between the death of her husband and the levirate marriage or halizah.

(38) Rab.

(39) Zikah זיקה v. Glos.

(40) Between the widow of the deceased brother and the levir, prior to the levirate marriage. Had such a bond existed, her mother would have been forbidden to the levir as his mother-in. law.

(41) V. infra 41a.

(42) Brothers. Since it is not known which of them will actually marry her, the levirate bond is necessarily weak.

(43) Who alone is entitled to marry her,

(44) Infra 29b.

(45) The widow.

(46) Her mother is permitted to the levir. Consequently she would be exempted from halizah as ‘his wife's daughter’.

(47) Infra 49a.

(48) Her mother, however, is equally permitted.

(49) V. supra, p. 97’ n. 11.

(50) The prohibition to marry her mother prior to the levirate marriage as if she had already been his actual mother-in-law.

(51) Rab Judah.

(52) Between the widow of the deceased brother and the levir, before levirate marriage takes place.

(53) Infra 41a.

(54) Brother, who is the only one entitled to marry the widow, and may consequently be regarded as the actual husband.

(55) v. supra p. 97’ n. 16.

(56) Between R. Judah and the Rabbis, infra 41a.

(57) Brothers. How then could it possibly have been assumed that the halachah referred to the case of one brother only?

(58) That the halachah was in accordance with the view of him who said that a levirate bond exists between the widow and the levir prior to the levirate marriage.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 18a

it might have been assumed [that this holds good only] while she is alive but that after death the bond is broken,[1] hence it was taught that the levirate bond is not automatically[2] dissolved.

May it be suggested that the following supports his view: 'If his deceased brother's wife died, the Ievir is permitted to marry her sister', which implies her sister Only but not her mother?[3] — The same law may apply even to her mother; but because he taught in the earlier clause, 'if his wife died he is permitted to marry her sister', in which case her sister only is permitted and not her mother, the latter being forbidden Biblically, he also taught in the latter clause, 'he is permitted to marry her sister'.

R. Huna b. Hiyya raised an objection: IF HE ADDRESSED THE MA'AMAR TO HER AND DIED, THE SECOND MUST PERFORM HALIZAH BUT MAY NOT ENTER INTO THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE.[4] The reason then[5] is because he addressed to her[6] the ma' amar, but had he not addressed a ma'amar to her,[5] the second also would have been permitted to enter into the levirate marriage with him. Now, if it be maintained that the levirate bond does exist,[7] the second, owing to this bond, would be the rival of the 'wife of his brother who was not his contemporary'![8] — Rabbah replied: The same law, that the second must perform the halizah with, but may not be married to the levir, applies even to the case where no ma'amar was addressed to her;[6] and the ma'amar was mentioned only in order to exclude the view of Beth Shammai. Since they maintain that the ma'amar effects a perfect contract,[9] he teaches us [that it was not so].

Abaye pointed out the following objection to him:[10] In the case of two [contemporary] brothers one of whom died without Issue, and the second determined[11] to address a ma'amar to his deceased brother's wife[12] but before he managed to address a ma amar to her a third[13] brother was born and he himself died, the first[14] is exempt[15] as 'the wife of his brother who was not his contemporary' while the second[16] either performs the halizah or enters into the levirate marriage.[17] Now, if it be maintained that a levirate bond does exist,[18] the second, owing to this bond, would be the rival of 'the wife[19] of his brother who was not his contemporary'![20] Whose view is this? It is that of R. Meir, who holds that no levirate bond exists.

Does R. Meir, however, maintain that no Ievirate bond exists?[18] Surely we have learned: In the case of four brothers two of whom were married to two sisters, if those who were married to the sisters died, behold their widows perform the halizah but may not be taken in levirate marriage [by either of the levirs].[21] Now, if R. Meir is of the opinion that no levirate bond exists,[22] these would come from two different houses,[23] and one brother could marry the one while the other could marry the other! — The fact is that [R. Meir maintains that] no levirate bond exists; [but the levirate marriage is nevertheless forbidden] because he is of the opinion that it is forbidden to annul the precept of levirate marriages, it being possible that while one of the brothers married [one of the widowed sisters] the other brother would die,[24] and thus the precept of levirate marriages would be annulled.[25]

If, however, no Ievirate bond exists, let [also the precept of the levirate marriage] be annulled! For R. Gamaliel who holds that no levirate bond exists[26] also [maintains that] the precept of the levirate marriage may be annulled; as we learned; R. Gamaliel said, 'If she[27] made a declaration of refusal[28] well and good;[29] if she did not make a declaration of refusal let [the elder sister] wait until [the minor] grows up[30] and this one[31] is then exempt as his wife's sister'![32] -The other[33] said to him: Are you pointing out a contradiction between the opinion of R. Meir and that of R. Gamaliel?[34] No [replied Abaye]; we mean to say this: Does R. Meir provide even against a doubtful annulment[35] and R. Gamaliel does not provide even against a certainty![36] — It is quite possible that he who does not provide[37] makes no provision even against a certain annulment, while he who does provide[37] makes provision even against a doubtful annulment.[38]

Said Abaye to R. Joseph: Rab Judah's statement[39] is Samuel's;[40] for we learnt:

---

(1) Lit., 'burst', 'split'.

(2) Lit., 'by nothing', 'without formality', i.e., without the due performance of the halizah.

(3) Because she is presumably regarded as his mother-in-law.

(4) Supra 17a, q.v. for notes.

(5) Why the levirate marriage is forbidden to the second

(6) The first, the widow of the first deceased brother.

(7) Between the widow and the levir, from the moment her husband, the first brother, died.

(8) With whom levirate marriage is forbidden.

(9) Lit., 'acquires perfect possession', i.e., the widow is regarded as the legal wife of the second brother, and his own wife thus becomes her rival and is consequently exempt even from the halizah.

(10) To Rabbah.

(11) Lit., 'stood'.

(12) The widow of the first deceased brother.

(13) Lit., 'to him'.

(14) The widow of the first deceased brother.

(15) From the halizah and levirate marriage of the third brother.

(16) Her rival, the widow of the second deceased brother.

(17) With the third brother. Infra 19a.

(18) v. supra p. 99' n. 5.

(19) The bond being regarded to be just as binding as actual marriage.

(20) And she should be exempt.

(21) 'Ed. V, 5' infra 23b, 26a, 7b; because, obviously, both are bound by a levirate bond to both surviving brothers and each is the sister of a woman who is connected with either of the brothers by such a levirate bond.

(22) V. supra p. 99' n. 5.

(23) None of them standing in any marital relationship with either of the surviving brothers.

(24) And be prevented from marrying the other widow.

(25) Since the surviving brother would not be able to marry (or to participate in the halizah of) the second widow who is now his wife's sister.

(26) Infra 51a.

(27) A minor who was married to one brother while her sister had been married to another brother who died without issue.

(28) A minor may refuse to live with her husband and no divorce is needed in her case. V. Glos. s.v. m1 un.

(29) Lit., 'she refused'. By her declaration of refusal her marriage becomes null and void retrospectively. As she has thus never been the legal wife of the Ievir, her sister (being no more his 'wife's sister') may contract the levirate marriage with him.

(30) And becomes the legal wife of the surviving brother.

(31) l.e., the elder sister.

(32) Infra 79b, 109a; which shews that R. Gamaliel permits the annulment of the law of the levirate marriage. Similarly, if R. Meir maintains, like R. Gamaliel, that no levirate bond exists, he should also permit the annulment of the precept of the levirate marriage.

(33) Rabbah.

(34) Though they may agree on the question of the levirate bond, it does not necessarily follow that they agree also on the question of permission to annul the precept of the levirate marriage.

(35) Supra; the possibility that one of the brothers might die.

(36) It is a certainty that when the minor becomes of age the elder sister will be precluded from both marriage and halizah. This wide divergence of opinion is unlikely. Hence the fear of annulling the levirate marriage cannot be the reason for R. Meir's ruling in the above cited Mishnah; and consequently R. Meir cannot be of the opinion that no levirate bond exists.

(37) Against the annulment of the precept of the levirate marriage.

(38) So that R. Meir need not necessarily agree with R. Gamaliel on this point though he will agree with him on the question of the levirate bond.

(39) That if a woman awaiting the decision of the levir died, the levir is still forbidden to marry her mother (supra 17b end).

(40) Not Rab's who also was his teacher.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 18b

If the brother of the levir had betrothed the sister of the widow who was awaiting the levir's decision,[1] he is told, so it has been stated in the name of R. Judah b. Bathyra, ‘Wait[2] until your brother has taken action;’[3] and Samuel said, ‘The halachah is in accordance with the ruling of R. Judah b. Bathyra’.[4] The other[5] asked him: ‘What [objection could there be] if the statement[6] be attributed to Rab?[7] Is it the contradiction between the two statements of Rab?[8] Surely it is possible that these Amoraim[9] are in dispute as to what was the opinion of Rab!’ — Since this ruling was stated with certainty in the name of Samuel, while as to Rab's view [on the matter] Amoraim differ, we do not ignore[10] the statement attributing it with certainty to Samuel in favour of the one[11] which involves Amoraim In a dispute as to the opinion of Rab.

Said R. Kahana: I reported the statement[12] in the presence of R. Zebid of Nehardea, when he said: You teach it thus;[13] our version is explicit:[14] ‘Rab Judah stated in the name of Samuel, "If a woman awaiting the decision of the levir died, [the levir] is forbidden to marry her mother", from which it naturally follows that he is of the opinion that a levirate bond exists’.[15] Samuel is here consistent; for Samuel said, ‘The halachah is in accordance with the view of R. Judah b. Bathyra’.

Said [both statements[16] are] necessary. For had he only stated, ‘A levirate bond exists’, it might have been assumed to refer to the case of one levir only[17] but not to that of two,[18] hence we are taught[19] [that the Same law applies also to two]. And if it had only been stated, ‘The halachah is in accordance with the opinion of R. Judah b. Bathyra’,it might have been assumed [that the levirate bond is in force] while the widow[20] is alive but that after her death the bond is dissolved, hence we are taught[21] that the levirate bond Is not dissolved automatically.[22]

MISHNAH. IF THERE WERE TWO BROTHERS AND ONE OF THEM DIED,[23] AND THE SECOND PERFORMED THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE WITH HIS [DECEASED] BROTHER'S WIFE, AND AFTER A [THIRD] BROTHER WAS BORN THE SECOND DIED,[23] THE FIRST[24] IS EXEMPT[25] ON ACCOUNT OF HER BEING THE WIFE OF HIS BROTHER WHO WAS NOT HIS CONTEMPORARY’, WHILE THE SECOND IS EXEMPT AS HER RIVAL.[26] IF HE[27] ADDRESSED TO HER[28] A MA'AMAR AND DIED,[29] THE SECOND MUST PERFORM THE HALIZAH[30] BUT SHE MAY NOT BE TAKEN IN LEVIRATE MARRIAGE. R. SIMEON SAID:[31] HE[32] MAY EITHER TAKE IN LEVIRATE MARRIAGE WHICHEVER OF THEM HE DESIRES[33] OR HE MAY PARTICIPATE IN THE HALIZAH WITH WHICHEVER OF THEM HE DESIRES.[33]

GEMARA. R. Oshaia said: R. Simeon disputed the first case also’[24] Whence is this inferred?From the existence Cf a Super. fluous Mishnah. For in accordance with whose view was it necessary to teach the clause of the first [Mishnah]? If it be suggested, [according to that] of the Rabbis, [it may be retorted]: If when the levirate marriage had taken place first and the birth[34] occurred afterwards, in which case he,[35] found her[36] permitted,[37] the Rabbis nevertheless forbade her,[38] is there any need [for them to specify prohibition in the case where] the birth[34] occurred first and the marriage took place afterwards![39] Consequently[40] it must have been required [in connection with the view] of R. Simeon; and the first [Mishnah] was taught in order to point out to you how far R. Simeon[41] is prepared to go[42] while the last Mishnah was taught in order to show you how far the Rabbis[43] are prepared to go. It would, indeed, have been logical for R. Simeon to express his dissent in the first case, but he waited for the Rabbis to conclude their statement and then he expressed his dissent with their entire statement.[44]

How, in view of what has been said,[45] is it possible according to R. Simeon to find a case of ‘a wife of his brother who was not his contemporary’?[46] — In the case of one brother who died and a second brother was subsequently[47] born;[48] or also in the case of two brothers[49] where the second has neither taken the widow in the levirate marriage nor died.[50]

One can well understand [R. Simeon's reason][51] where the levirate marriage[52] took place first and the birth[53] afterwards, for in this case he found her permitted;[54] where, however, the birth occurred first and the levirate marriage took place afterwards,[55] what [reason [could be advanced]?[56] -He holds the opinion that a levirate bond exists[57] and that such a bond is like actual marriage.[58]

R. Joseph demurred: If R. Simeon is in doubt as to whether in the case of a ‘levirate bond’ and a ‘ma amar’ combined the widow should or should not be regarded as married, need there be any [doubt in the case of] a ‘levirate bond’ alone?[59] Whence is this known?[60] — We have learned: In the case where three brothers were married to three women who were strangers [to one another] and, one of the brothers having died, the second brother addressed to her[61] , a ma'amar and died, behold these[62] must perform halizah with, but may not marry the [surviving] levir; for it is said in the Scriptures, And one of then die [etc.], her husband's brother shall go in unto her,[63] only she[64] who is tied to one levir,[65] but not she who is tied to two levirs.[66] R. Simeon said: He[67] may take in levirate marriage whichever of them he pleases[68] and submits to the halizah of the other.[69] He must not take both widows in levirate marriage since it is possible that a levirate bond exists[70] and thus the two sisters-in-law[71] would be coming

---

(1) Her sister being forbidden to him as the sister of the woman connected with him by a Ievirate bond.

(2) With the consummation of the marriage.

(3) I.e., married the widow, when the Ievirate bond between her and the third brother will have been severed, and her sister will consequently be permitted to marry him.

(4) Infra 410. Meg. 18b. This shews that in the opinion of Samuel a levirate bond exists between a widow and the brothers-in-law whose decision she is awaiting. (V. previous note).

(5) R. Joseph.

(6) Cf. supra p.101, n.13.

(7) Cf. p.101, n. 14.

(8) Lit., ‘that of Rab upon Rab’, i.e., Rab's presumed statement reported by Rab Judah is contradictory to the statement made in his name by R. Huna, supra 17b.

(9) R. Huna and Rab Judah, both of whom were disciples of Rab.

(10) Lit., ‘leave aside’.

(11) Lit., ‘and establish it’.

(12) Rab Judah's.

(13) Attributing the ruling to Rab Judah without mentioning the authority from whom it originated.

(14) I.e., specifically indicating the reported authority.

(15) V. supra p. 99, n. 5.

(16) Of Samuel.

(17) Cf. supra p. 98, n. 8.

(18) Cf. supra . gin. 16.

(19) By the statement that the halachah is in accordance with R. Judah b. Bathyra.

(20) The sister.in.law awaiting the levir's decision.

(21) By the statement, ‘a levirate bond exists’.
(22) V. supra p. 98, n. 24.
(23) Without issue.
(24) The widow of the first deceased brother who is now also the widow of the second.
(25) From halizah and marriage with the third brother.
(26) Both having been the wives of the second brother.
(27) The second brother.
(28) The first brother's widow.
(29) Before marriage took place.
(30) With the third brother.
(31) With reference to the first case of our Mishnah.
(32) The third brother.
(33) And thereby exempt the other. (16) That mentioned in the previous Mishnah (supra 17a ad fin.). In his opinion the third brother may marry or submit to halizah from either of the two widows, even if he was born before the second brother had married the first brother's widow. (17) Lit., ‘that which was taught’.
(34) Of the third brother.
(35) The third brother on the date of his birth.
(36) The widow of the first brother.
(37) As an ordinary sister-in-law; she being no more the ‘wife of his brother who was not his contemporary’. Lit., ‘for when he found her he found her in a permitted state’.
(38) To marry the third brother.
(39) In which case the third brother's birth took place during the period when she was forbidden him as the ‘wife of his brother who was not his contemporary.
(40) Lit., ‘but not?’
(41) Who permits marriage with the third brother even where his birth occurred prior to the widow's marriage. v. supra note 6.
(42) Lit., ‘the strength of R. Simeon’.
(43) Who forbid the marriage even when the birth followed the marriage. Cf ‘pro note 4.
(44) Lit., ‘against them’.
(45) Lit., ‘but’; if R. Simeon permits marriage in both cases.
(46) To be forbidden the levirate marriage in accordance with the statement in the first Mishnah of the Tractate, supra 2b ab init.
(47) Lit., ‘to him’.
(48) The levirate relationship here is entirely due to the deceased brother who was not the surviving brother's contemporary; and marriage is. therefore, rightly forbidden.
(49) The first of whom died without issue.
(50) The third brother, who was born after the death of the first, is forbidden to marry the widow whose connection with the first brother has never been severed, since the second has neither married her nor submitted to her halizah.
(51) For permitting the third brother to marry either of the widows.
(52) With the second brother.
(53) Of the third brother.
(54) V. supra p. 104, on 2-4.
(55) v....supra p. 104, n. 6.
(56) For R. Simeon's permission of marriage.
(57) Between widow and living levir.
(58) The widow is consequently regarded as the wife of the second brother from the moment the first died. When the third brother is subsequently born the widow has no longer any connection with the deceased brother and cannot any more be regarded in relation to the third, as ‘the wife of his brother who was not his contemporary’.
(59) Obviously not. How then could it be said that R. Simeon definitely regards the ‘levirate bond’ alone as actual marriage?
(60) Lit., ‘what is it?’ where did R. Simeon express such doubt?
(61) The widow of the deceased brother.

(62) The widows of the two deceased brothers.
(63) Deut. XXV, 5.
(64) May be taken in levirate marriage.
(65) v. supra p. 98, n. 8.
(66) V. supra p' 97' n. 16.
(67) The levir.
(68) R. Simeon does not recognize a double bond. If the ma'amar addressed by the second brother was binding. the bond with the first brother, he maintains, was thereby severed, and there remains only the bond with the second; and if it was not binding then again only one bond exists, that with the first brother.
(69) Infra 31b. For the reason given anon.
(70) Between the levir (the second brother) and the first widow.
(71) The second brother's actual wife and the widow of the first to whom he addressed a ma'amar and who is his virtual wife.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 19a

from one house.[1] Nor must he take one In levirate marriage and thereby exempt the other, for it is possible that the levirate bond is not as binding as actual marriage, and the two sisters-in-law would thus be coming from two houses.[2] From this it clearly follows that he[3] is in doubt.[4] And should you reply that Biblically one of the widows may indeed be taken in levirate marriage and the other is thereby exempt, but that this procedure had Rabbinically been forbidden as a preventive measure against the possibility of the assumption that where two sisters-in-law came from two houses[5] one may be taken in levirate marriage and the other is thereby exempt without any further ceremonial;[6] surely [it may be pointed out] R. Simeon's reason is because of his doubt as to the validity of the levir's ma'amar![7] For it was taught: R. Simeon said to the Sages, ‘If the ma'amar of the second brother is valid he[8] is marrying the wife of the second; and if the ma'amar of the second is invalid he is marrying the wife of the first’! — Said Abaye to him:[9] Do you not make any distinction between the levirate bond with one levir and the levirate bond with two levirs? It is quite possible that R. Simeon said the levirate bond is like actual marriage in the case of one levir only[10] but not in that of two levirs.[11]

Does R. Simeon, however, recognize such a distinction?[12] Surely it was taught: R. Simeon has laid down a general rule that wherever the birth[13] preceded the marriage[14] the widow is neither to perform halizah nor to be taken in levirate marriage. If the marriage[14] preceded the birth[13] she may either perform the halizah or be taken In levirate marriage. Does not this apply to one levir?[15] And yet It is stated ‘she is neither to perform halizah nor to be taken in levirate marriage’![16] — No; it applies to two levirs.[17] But in the case of one levir,[17] may she in such circumstances also[18] either perform halizah or contract levirate marriage? If so, instead of stating, ‘If the marriage preceded the birth she may either perform halizah or be taken in levirate marriage’ the distinction should have been drawn in this very case itself,[19] thus: ‘This applies only to the case of two brothers.in.law but with one brother-in-law she may either perform halizah or be taken in levirate marriage’! — The entire passage dealt with two brothers-in-law.[20]

What, then, is meant by the general rule?[21] And a further objection[22] was raised by R. Oshaia: If there were three brothers and two of them were married to two sisters, or to a woman and her daughter, or to a woman and her daughter's daughters or to a woman and her son's daughter, behold these[23] must[24] perform the halizah[25] but may not be taken in levirate marriage.[26] R. Simeon, however, exempts them.[27] Now, if it be assumed that R. Simeon is of the opinion that the ‘levirate bond’ has the same force as actual marriage, let [the third brother] take the first widow[28] In levirate marriage and let the other[29] be thereby exempt.[30] R. Amram replied: The meaning of ‘exempt’[31] is that he exempts the second widow,[32] But has it not been taught: R. Simeon exempts them both’?[33] -Raba replied: The second of the one pair and the second of the other pair.[34] Raba, however, was mistaken [in the interpretation] of the four pairs.[35] For, in the first instance, we have twice the word ‘or’,[36] and, furthermore, [if Raba's interpretation were the correct one][37] it should [have read], ‘R. Simeon exempts the four’.[38] Furthermore, it was taught: R. Simeon exempts both[39] from the halizah and from the levirate marriage, for it is said in the Scriptures, And thou shalt not take a woman to her sister, to he a rival to her,[40] when they become rivals to one another[41] you may not marry even one of them![42] But, said R. Ashi: If they[43] had become subject [to the levir] one after the other, the law would indeed have been so.[44] Here,[45] however, we are dealing with the case where both become subject to him at the same time; and R. Simeon shares the view of R. Jose the Galilean who stated, ‘It is possible to ascertain simultaneous occurrence’.[46]

R. Papa[47] said: R. Simeon differs[48] only where the levirate marriage[49] took place first, and the birth[50] afterwards; he does not differ, however, when the birth[50] occurred first, and the marriage[49] took place afterwards; and both these cases[51] are required on account of the Rabbis,[52] and[53] [a stronger case is given after a weaker] ‘not only this[54] but also that’.[55]

It was taught in agreement with R. papa[56] and in contradiction to R. Oshaia: If one of two contemporary brothers died without Issue, and the second intended to address a ma ‘amar to his deceased brother's wife but before he was able to do so a third brother was born and he himself died, the first widow is exempt[57] as ‘the wife of the brother who was not his contemporary’, and the second[58] may either perform the halizah or be taken in levirate marriage. If, however, he[59] addressed a ma'amar to the widow and subsequently a third brother was born, or if a third brother was born first and he[59] addressed the ma'amar to the widow subsequently, and died, the first widow is exempt[57] as ‘the wife of his brother who was not his contemporary’ while the second[58] must perform the halizah,[60] though she may not be taken in levirate marriage.

---

(1) One as actual, the other as virtual wife of the same husband, the second brother. The Torah required the levir ‘to build up his brother's house’ (Deut. XXV, 9) from which it is inferred that it is his duty to build up only a house but not houses, i.e., to marry his brother's one wife but not his two wives.

(2) Both of whom are subject to the levirate marriage. and one of whom cannot exempt the other.

(3) R. Simeon.

(4) As to whether a levirate bond exists. Cf. supra p. 105, n. 9.

(5) Where two brothers died simultaneously; when the one widow is as much tied to him as the other.

(6) Lit., ‘with nothing’.

(7) Lit., ‘saying and not saying’ or ‘ma'amar and not ma'amar’.

(8) The third brother.

(9) R. Joseph.

(10) As in our Mishnah where the first brother was survived by one brother only. The subsequent birth of a third brother does not affect the levirate any more than it can affect an actual marriage.

(11) Of which the cited Baraitha speaks. There, when the first brother died he was survived by two brothers.

(12) Between one levir and two.

(13) Of a third brother.

(14) Of the second brother with the widow of the first.

(15) Who survived the first deceased brother after whose death the third brother was born.

(16) Which proves that even in the case of one levir R. Simeon does not recognize the existence of a levirate bond.

(17) Cf. supra note 4.

(18) Where the birth of the third preceded the marriage of the second.

(19) Where birth preceded marriage.

(20) The Tanna preferred to draw a distinction between two sets of circumstances both of which relate to the brothers-in-law rather than to draw a distinction between one brother-in-law and two brothers-in-law in the same set of circumstances.

(21) According to which neither halizah nor levirate marriage is allowed whenever the birth preceded the marriage. Both, according to what has just been said, are permissible in the case of one levir.

(22) Against the statement that R. Simeon regards the levirate bond as actual marriage.
(23) The women enumerated.
(24) If their husbands, the two brothers, died without issue.
(25) With the third surviving brother.
(26) By that brother; since both are equally related to him by the same ‘levirate bond’ and each is forbidden to him as the consanguineous relative of the woman connected with him by such bond.
(27) Infra 28b; even from the halizah.
(28) I.e., the widow whose husband bad died first, and who, through the ‘levirate bond’,is regarded as the levir's virtual wife even before he married her.
(29) Her consanguineous relative, the widow of the second deceased brother.
(30) As a forbidden relative; being consanguineous with his virtual wife.
(31) In R. Simeon's statement.
(32) Whose husband died last. The first, however, is to be taken in levirate marriage.
(33) Infra 28b, Rid. 50b.
(34) ‘Both’ used by R. Simeon refers to the second of each pair. Raba assumed that the two brothers had married two sisters and also a mother and her daughter. One of the first is taken in levirate marriage and the others are thereby exempt either as ‘forbidden relatives’ or ‘rivals’.
(35) Enumerated in the cited Mishnah, assuming as he did that it meant marriage by the. two brothers of more than one pair (v. previous note).
(36) ‘Or’ occurs after the enumeration of each pair.
(37) Viz., that R. Simeon's exemption refers to the second of each pair.
(38) Since four pairs were enumerated.
(39) Widows of the first brother.
(40) Lev. XVIII, 18.
(41) As in the case cited, where each of the two brothers was married to one of each pair, and when the first brother died all his widows became subject to levirate marriage with the second brother and thus become rivals.
(42) Even the first widow. Consequently R. Simeon's exemption applies to all, which shews that he recognizes no distinction on the question of the levirate bond between one levir and two levirs!
(43) The widows.
(44) That the ‘levirate bond’ in the case of one levir being recognized even by R. Simeon as being as forcible as actual marriage. the levir (the third brother) marries the first while the other is exempt, though her husband (the second brother) died before he actually married the first.
(45) In the Mishnah cited by R. Oshaia in objection against the view attributing to R. Simeon a distinction between one levir and two levirs.
(46) I.e., to ascertain that two things occur exactly at one and the same moment, Bek. 17a. Hence it may happen that both brothers die simultaneously and both widows simultaneously become subject to the third brother and consequently, on the view of R. Simeon, both exempt from halizah and levirate marriage.
(47) Disagreeing with R. Oshaia, supra 18b.
(48) From the Rabbis of our Mishnah.
(49) With the second brother.
(50) Of the third brother.
(51) ‘Marriage before birth’ in our Mishnah and ‘birth before marriage’ in the previous one.
(52) To shew that they exempt not only in the one case but also in the other. Cf. infra notes 11-12
(53) As to the objection raised (supra 18b): Since they exempt in the second case, what need was there to mention the first which could have been inferred from it a minori ad majus?
(54) The case in the first Mishnah, the birth of the third brother before the marriage of the second, where the birth occurred while the widow was still under a prohibition to marry him.
(55) The case in the second Mishnah, where the birth of the third brother occurred when the widow was already permitted to him.
(56) That when the birth of the third brother occurred prior to the marriage of the second with the widow of the first, R. Simeon agrees with the Rabbis.
(57) From marriage and halizah with the third brother.

(58) The widow of the second brother.
(59) The second brother.
(60) The ma'amar addressed to the first widow not having ‘the same force as actual marriage to render the second brother's wife her rival to be exempt from halizah as well as from the levirate marriage with the third brother.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 19b

R. Simeon said: Intercourse or halizah with the one of them[1] exempts her rival.[2] If, however, he[3] participated in halizah with her to whom [the second brother had] addressed the ma'amar, her rival is not exempt.[4] If he[1] married her[5] and died, and a [third] brother was subsequently born, or if a [third] brother was born, and subsequently he married her[5] and died, both [widows] are exempt from the halizah and the levirate marriage. If he married her[5] and [after that a third] brother was born and then he himself died, both widows are exempt from the halizah and the levirate marriage; this is the opinion of R. Meir. R. Simeon, however, said: Since, when he[6] came [into the world] he found her[7] permitted to him,[8] and she was never forbidden to him even for one moment, he[6] may take in levirate marriage whichever of them he desires or he may participate in the halizah with whichever of them he desires. Now, in accordance with whose view was the case in the latter clause[9] taught?[10] If it be suggested that it was taught in accordance with the view of R. Meir,[11] it might be observed that, as R. Meir draws no distinction between marriage that was followed by birth and birth that was followed by marriage, all these cases should have been combined in one statement![12] Consequently it must have been in accordance with the view of R. Simeon who thus differs[13] only in the case where the levirate marriage was followed by birth’[14] but does not differ[13] where birth was followed by levirate marriage.[15] Our point is thus proved.

The Master said, ‘[If] the second intended to address a ma'amar to his deceased brother's wife but before he was able to do so, a third brother was born while he himself died, the first widow is exempt as "the wife of the brother who was not his contemporary and the second may either perform halizah or be taken in levirate marriage’. What is meant by ‘he intended’ and what by ‘he was not able’? If he did it, it is an accomplished fact;[16] and if he did not do it, it is not an accomplished fact![16] -In fact [this is the meaning:] ‘He intended’ with her consent and ‘he was not able’ with her consent but against her wish.[17]

This,[18] however, is not in agreement with the view of Rabbi. For it was taught: If a man addressed a ma'amar to his deceased brother's wife against her consent, Rabbi regards this as legal [betrothal].[19] But the Sages say, This is not a legal [betrothal]. What is Rabbi's reason?-He deduces [this form of betrothal] from the intercourse with the wife of a deceased brother; as the Intercourse with the wife of a deceased brother may be effected against her will[20] so may the betrothal of the wife of a deceased brother be effected against her will. And the Rabbis?-They deduce it from the usual form of betrothal;[21] as the usual betrothal can be effected with the woman's consent only so may the betrothal of a yebamah[22] be effected with her consent only. On what principle do they differ? — One Master[23] is of the opinion that matters relating to a yebamah should be inferred from matters relating to a yebamah and the Masters[24] are of the opinion that matters of betrothal should be inferred from matters of betrothal.[25]

‘If, however, he addressed a ma'amar to the widow, and subsequently a third brother was born, or if a third brother was born first and he[26] addressed the ma'amar to the widow subsequently and died, the first widow is exempt as "the wife of his brother who was not his contemporary" while the second must perform the halizah, though she may not be taken in levirate marriage. R. Simeon said: Intercourse or halizah with the one of them exempts her rival’.[27] What is R. Simeon referring to?[28] If it should be suggested, ‘To the case where the third brother was born first and he[26] addressed the ma'amar subsequently's surely it has been stated, that where birth preceded marriage R. Simeon does not differ from the Rabbis![29] — But [the reference is] to the case where the ma'amar was addressed first and the third brother was born subsequently. Hence, ‘if he participated in halizah with her to whom [the second brother had] addressed the ma amar, her rival is not exempt’, because[30] the [subjection of the] rival[31] is a certainty[32] while [the subjection of her] to whom the ma'amar had been addressed is doubtful,[33] and no doubt may over-ride[34] a certainty.

R. Manasseh b. Zebid sat in the presence of R. Huna, and in the course of the session he said: What is R. Simeon s reason?[35] — ‘What is R. Simeon's reason’! [Surely it is] as it has been stated: The reason is ‘because when he was born he found her permitted to him, and she was never forbidden him even for one moment’![36] But [the question rather is] what is the reason of the Rabbis?[37] -Scripture said, A/Id take her to him to wife, and perform the duty of a husband's brother unto her,[38] the former levirate attachment still remains with her.[39] But then what of the following[40] where we learned, ‘If he[41] married her[42] she is regarded as his wife in every respect’[43] and [in connection with this] R. Jose b. Hanina said, ‘This teaches

---

(1) I.e., the second widow.

(2) As will be explained infra this applies to the case where the ma'amar was addressed to the first widow and the third brother was born subsequently, R. Simeon being of the opinion that it is uncertain whether the ma'amar has the same force as actual marriage or not. The rival is in either case exempt: If the ma'amar was binding, then even the first widow is according to R. Simeon permitted to the third brother, since it is a case of ‘marriage prior to birth’, and the halizah with the second consequently exempts the first as her rival, both having been married to the same husband; and if the ma'amar was not binding, the first widow is forbidden to the third brother as the widow of ‘the brother who was not his contemporary’ while the second is not her rival and may be taken in levirate marriage or perform the halizah.

(3) The third brother.

(4) Since it is possible that the ma'amar is not binding and she is in consequence forbidden to him as ‘the wife of his brother who was not his contemporary’ and her halizah has no validity.

(5) The first widow.

(6) The third brother.

(7) The first widow.

(8) Having been born after her marriage with the second brother had entirely severed her connection with the first brother.

(9) Marriage between the second brother and the first widow, followed by the birth of the third brother, which again was followed by the death of the second.

(10) I.e., in accordance with whose view was it necessary to have the case of marriage prior to birth separated from that of marriage after birth?

(11) To indicate that even in such a case he forbids marriage.

(12) Lit., ‘let him mix them and teach them’; the third case, ‘if he married her and (after that a third) brother was born and then he himself died’ should not have been separated from the previous two cases, since according to R. Meir it matters little whether marriage of the second brother with the first widow preceded or followed the birth of the third brother.

(13) From the Rabbis.

(14) As R. Papa stated. V. supra note 7.

(15) Contrary to the opinion of R. Oshaia.

(16) And the intention is of no consequence.

(17) The object of the statement being that the ma'amar has not even partially the force of marriage if it was made against the woman's will. The second widow may, therefore, be taken in levirate marriage.

(18) That the ma'amar addressed to the wife of a deceased brother (Yebamah. v. Glos.) is invalid unless she consented to the betrothal.

(19) Lit., ‘he acquired’.

(20) V supra 8b.

(21) The betrothal of a stranger.

(22) The wife of a deceased brother.

(23) Rabbi.

(24) The Sages.
(25) Rid. 440.
(26) The second brother.
(27) Supra 19a-b, q.v. for notes.
(28) In differing from the Rabbis. Lit.,’on what does he stand’.
(29) But agrees that the first widow in relation to the third brother is to be regarded as ‘the wife of his brother who was not his contemporary’. Now, since it is possible that the ma'amar is as valid as actual marriage, how could R. Simeon have permitted the rival of a forbidden relative? Furthermore, the expression ‘she exempts her rival’ would be unsuitable, since her rival has all the time been exempt as the ‘wife of the brother who was not his contemporary’.
(30) Lit., ‘what is the reason’.
(31) To the third brother.
(32) If the ma'amar was valid both widows are subject to the third brother, since it is a case of marriage before birth; if the ma'amar is invalid, the second is still subjected to the levir since, no marriage having taken place, she is not the rival of a forbidden relative.
(33) It being possible that the ma'amar is not valid, and the first widow thus remains forbidden to the third brother as ‘the wife of his brother who was not his contemporary’. Halizah with her is, therefore, of no validity and cannot exempt the second widow.
(34) Lit., ‘puts out’.
(35) For permitting levirate marriage with the third brother in the case where the second brother had married the first widow prior to the birth of the third brother.
(36) Supra, q.v. for notes.
(37) Why do they forbid the levirate marriage between the first widow and the third brother, where the only relationship between them is through the second brother, the relationship through the first brother having ceased with the levirate marriage of the widow by the second brother prior to the birth of the third?
(38) Deut. XXV, 5.
(39) ולקחהץץץץויבמה ‘taking her to wife’, ולקחה, does not remove from her the designation of ‘brother's wife’ יבמה
(40) Lit., ‘but that’.
(41) A brother-in-law.
(42) The widow of his deceased childless brother.
(43) Infra 38a. Keth. 80b.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 20a

that he may divorce her with a letter of divorce and that he may remarry her’ ,[1] let it there also be said, ‘And perform the duty of a husband's brother unto her,[2] the former levirate attachment still remains with her’ and, consequently, she should require halizah [also]! — There the case is different; since Scripture stated, ‘And take her to him to wife’,[2] as soon as he married her she becomes his wife in every respect. If so, [the same deduction should be applied] here also! — Surely the All Merciful has written, ‘And perform the duty of a husband's brother unto her’.[2] And why the differentiation?[3] - It stands to reason that permission[4] should be applied to that which is [also otherwise] permitted,[5] and that prohibition[6] should be applied to that which is [also otherwise] prohibited.[7]

According to R. Simeon, however, who stated, ‘Because when he was born he found her permitted, and she was never forbidden to him even for one moment’,[8] a brother, if this reason is tenable,[9] should be allowed to take in levirate marriage his maternal sister whom his paternal brother had married prior to his birth, dying subsequently, since, when he was born, he found her permitted.[10] — Whither did the ‘prohibition of sister’ vanish?[11] — Here, also, whither did the prohibition of ‘the wife of the brother who was not his contemporary’ vanish! — The one[12] is a prohibition which can never be lifted; the other[13] is a prohibition which may be lifted.[14]

MISHNAH. A GENERAL RULE HAS BEEN LAID DOWN[15] IN RESPECT OF THE DECEASED BROTHER'S WIFE:[16] WHEREVER SHE IS PROHIBITED[17] AS A FORBIDDEN RELATIVE, SHE[18] MAY NEITHER PERFORM THE HALIZAH NOR BE TAKEN IN LEVIRATE MARRIAGE. IF SHE IS PROHIBITED BY VIRTUE OF A COMMANDMENT[19] OR BY VIRTUE OF HOLINESS,[20] SHE MUST PERFORM THE HALIZAH AND MAY NOT BE TAKEN IN LEVIRATE MARRIAGE. IF HER SISTER IS ALSO HER SISTER-IN-LAW,[21] SHE[22] MAY PERFORM THE HALIZAH OR MAY BE TAKEN IN LEVIRATE MARRIAGE.[23]

PROHIBITED BY VIRTUE OF A COMMANDMENT' [REFERS TO] THE SECONDARY DEGREES IN RELATIONSHIP FORBIDDEN BY THE RULING OF THE SCRIBES. 'PROHIBITED BY VIRTUE OF HOLINESS' [REFERS TO THE FOLLOWING FORBIDDEN CATEGORIES]: A WIDOW TO A HIGH PRIEST;[24] A DIVORCED WOMAN, OR ONE THAT HAD PERFORMED HALIZAH TO A COMMON PRIEST;[25] A FEMALE BASTARD OR A NETHINAH[26] TO AN ISRAELITE;[27] AND A DAUGHTER OF AN ISRAELITE,[27] TO A NATHIN[28] OR A BASTARD.

GEMARA. What was the GENERAL RULE meant to include?[29] — Rafram b. papa replied: TO include the rival of a woman who was incapable of procreation, In agreement with the view of R. Assi.[30]

Some there are who say:[31] 'Whenever her prohibition is that of a forbidden relative then only is her rival forbidden; when, however, her prohibition is not that of a forbidden relative, her rival is not forbidden'. What was this meant to exclude? — Rafram replied: To exclude the rival of one incapable of procreation, contrary to the view of R. Assi.[30]

IF HER SISTER IS ALSO HER SISTER-IN-LAW [etc.]. Whose sister? If the sister of her who is forbidden by Virtue of an ordinance of the Scribes be suggested, fit may be objected,] since, pentateuchally, she[32] is subject to the levir, he would[33] come in marital contact with the sister of her who is connected with him by the levirate bond! — It means the sister of her who is prohibited to him as a forbidden relative.

PROHIBITED BY VIRTUE OF A COMMANDMENT', [REFERS TO] THE SECONDARY DEGREES. Why are these designated, PROHIBITED BY VIRTUE OF A COMMANDMENT'?-Abaye replied: Because it is a commandment to obey the rulings of the Sages.

PROHIBITED BY VIRTUE OF HOLINESS'... A WIDOW TO A HIGH PRIEST; A DIVORCED WOMAN, OR ONE WHO HAD PERFORMED THE HALIZAH, TO A COMMON PRIEST. Why are these designated 'PROHIBITED BY VIRTUE OF HOLINESS'?-Because It is written in the Scriptures, They shall be holy onto their God.[34]

It was taught: R. Judah reverses the order: prohibited by virtue of a commandment [refers to the following prohibited categories:] a widow to a high priest; a divorced woman or one that had performed halizah, to a common priest. And why are these designated, prohibited by virtue of a commandment? — Because it is written in the Scriptures, These are the commandments.[35] prohibited by virtue of holiness [refers to] the secondary degrees of relationship forbidden by the rulings of the scribes. And why are these designated, prohibited by virtue of holiness?-Abaye replied: Because whosoever acts in accordance with the rulings of the Rabbis is called a holy man. Said Raba to him: Then he who does not act in accordance with the rulings of the Rabbis is not called a holy man; nor is he called a wicked man either?[36] — No, said Raba: 'Sanctify yourself by that which is permitted to you'.[37]

A WIDOW TO A HIGH PRIEST. An unqualified ruling is laid down making no distinction between a nissu'in[38] widow and an erusin[38] widow. Now, one can well understand the reason the case of a nissu'in widow [since marriage with her is forbidden by] a positive[39] and a negative precept ,[40] and no positive precept[41] may override both a negative and a positive precept. In the case, however, of an erusin widow [marriage with whom is forbidden by] a negative precept only,[42] let the positive precept[41] override the negative[40] one? — R. Giddal replied in the name of Rab: Scripture stated, Then his brother's wife shall go up to the ‘gate,[43] where there was no need to state his brother's wife;[44] why then was ‘his brother's wife’ specified? [To indicate that] there is a case of another[45] brother's wife who goes up for halizah but does not go up for levirate marriage.[46] And who is she? One of those prohibited[47] by a negative precept.[48]

Might it[49] not be said [to include also] such as are subject to the penalty of kareth?[50] — Scripture said, If the man like not to take,[51] if he likes, however, he may take her in levirate marriage, [hence it is to be inferred that] whosoever may go up to enter into levirate marriage may also go up to perform halizah and whosoever may not go up to enter into levirate marriage[52] may not go up to perform halizah either. If so, the same should apply also to those forbidden by a negative Precept! — But, surely, the All Merciful has included them [by the expression] ‘His brother's wife’. What ground is there for such differentiation?[53]

---

(1) Supra 8b, q.v. for notes, infra 39a.

(2) Deut. XXV, 5’

(3) Lit., ‘and what did you see’, i.e., why apply the first part of the text to one case and the second part of the same text to the other?

(4) To give ordinary divorce without submitting to halizah. and to remarry, which is derived from And take her to him to wife.

(5) Ordinary levirate.

(6) Implied in the words ‘And perform the duty of a husband's brother unto her’.

(7) I.e., ‘the wife of his brother who was not his contemporary’.

(8) Supra 19b, q.v. for notes.

(9) Lit., ‘but from now’.

(10) When he was born she was already his ‘brother's wife’.

(11) Lit., ‘whither did it go?’

(12) Prohibition of a sister.

(13) A brother's wife.

(14) Where the brother died without issue. When the first brother died childless the prohibition of ‘brother's wife’ was removed and thus the widow was permitted to the second brother. Her connection with the first thus having come to an end, the third brother, as her legitimate levir through the second brother, may consequently marry her.

(15) Lit., ‘they said’.

(16) Whose husband died without issue.

(17) To marry the levir.

(18) The rival, and much more so the forbidden relative herself.

(19) Or ‘an ordinance of the Scribes’. The term איסור מצוה is discussed infra.

(20) קדושה איסור v. infra.

(21) In the case where two sisters were married to two brothers who died childless, and both widows become subject to levirate marriage with a third brother towards whom one of them stood in any kind of forbidden relationship as, say. that of mother-in-law or daughter-in-law.

(22) The sister of the forbidden relative.

(23) Since the forbidden relative may never marry the levir, her sister does not come under the prohibition of ‘the sister of his zekukah’ i.e., of ‘the woman related to him by the levirate bond’.

(24) Whose holy status precludes him from marrying a widow. V. Lev. XXI, 13f.

(25) Where his brother unlawfully married such a woman and died without issue. The levir must not marry her on account of his holy status. v. Lev. XXI, 7.

(26) V. Glos.

(27) Who is forbidden on the ground of the sanctity of Israel to marry such types.
(28) V. Glos.
(29) In addition to the forbidden relatives actually enumerated.
(30) Who stated (supra 12a) that such a woman may neither perform halizah nor be taken in levirate marriage.
(31) In interpretation of our Mishnah.
(32) The woman forbidden by the ordinance of the Scribes.
(33) Should he marry her sister.
(34) Lev. XXI, 6.
(35) Lev. XXVII, 34 which refers to all the priestly commandments laid down in that book.
(36) Surely, a person disobeying the Rabbis is indeed a wicked man!
(37) I.e., marriages forbidden by the rulings of the scribes are designated as ‘prohibited by virtue of holiness’ because these restrictions are designed to promote self-sanctification and as a barrier and a safeguard against marriage with those who are Pentateuchally forbidden.
(38) V. Glos.
(39) Lev. XXI, 13. And he shall take a wife in her virginity.
(40) Ibid. v. 14, A widow... shall he not take.
(41) That of the levirate marriage.
(42) V. supra n. 6. The positive precept (v. n. 5) is not infringed since she is still a virgin.
(43) Deut. XXV, 7.
(44) Since the pronoun implied in ועלתה (then she shall go up) sufficiently indicates the subject which has been previously mentioned.
(45) Cf. Bah a.l. Cur. edd., ‘one’.
(46) I.e., a brother's wife not coming under the obligation of levirate marriage as the one spoken of previously in the text.
(47) Lit., ‘guilty of’.
(48) A widow to a High Priest. V supra p. 117, n. 6.
(49) The text, His brother's wife.
(50) And so subject them also to halizah.
(51) Deut. xxv, 7’
(52) Such as those who are subject to kareth.
(53) Lit., ‘what did you see’, i.e., why include the one and exclude the other?

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 20b

— This[1] stands to reason, since betrothal of those forbidden by a negative precept is valid while the betrothal of those subject to kareth is not valid.

Raba raised an objection: In the case of one forbidden by virtue of a commandment or by virtue of holiness, with whom the Ievir bad intercourse or participated in halizah, her rival is thereby exempt. Now, if one is to assume that those forbidden by a negative precept are Pentateuchally subject to halizah but not to the levirate marriage, why should her rival be exempt when he had intercourse with her? He raised the objection and he also supplied the answer: This is to be understood respectively;[2] ‘he had intercourse with her’ refers to one prohibited by virtue of a commandment,[3] ‘participated in halizah with her’ refers to the one forbidden by virtue of holiness.[4]

Raba raised an objection: He who is wounded in the stones or has his privy member cut off, a man-made saris,[5] and an old man, may either participate in halizah,ah or contract levirate marriage. How?[6] If these died and were survived by brothers and by wives, and those brothers arose and addressed a ma'amar to the widows, or gave them letters of divorce, or participated with them in halizah, their actions are legally valid;[7] if they had intercourse with them, the widows become their lawful wives.[8] If the brothers died and they[9] arose and addressed a ma'amar to their wives, or gave them divorce, or participated with them in halizah, their actions are valid,[7] and if they had intercourse with them, the widows become their lawful wives but they[10] may not retain them, because it is said in the Scriptures — He that is wounded in the stones or hath his privy member cut off shall not enter [into the assembly of the Lord] .[11] Now, if it could be assumed that those forbidden by a negative precept are Pentateuchally subject to halizah and not to levirate marriage, why should the widows become their lawful wives if they[12] had intercourse with them?[13]

But, said Raba, [say rather that] an erusin widow is forbidden[14] by both a positive and a negative precept, for it is written in the Scriptures, They shall be holy unto their God.[15] What, however, can be said in respect of a bastard or a nethinah?[16] — It is written, And sanctify yourselves.[17] If so,[18] all the [negative precepts of the] Torah should be regarded as positive and negative since it is written in the Scriptures, And sanctify yourselves![17] But, said Raba, [the fact is that][19] an erusin widow is forbidden[20] as a preventive measure against the marriage of a nissu'in widow.[21] What, however, can be replied in respect of a bastard and a nethinah?[22] — [The prohibition in] the case where a precept is applicable[23] is a preventive measure against [a marriage] where no precept is applicable. If so, let one's paternal brother's wife not be allowed levirate marriage as a preventive measure against marriage with the wife of his maternal brother! — ‘We All Merciful made levirate marriage dependent on inheritance[24] [and the relationship] is, therefore, well known.[25] A woman, then, who has no children should not be taken in levirate marriage as a preventive measure against the marriage of a woman who has children! — The All Merciful made levirate marriage dependent on [the absence of] children, [and the fact[26] would be] well known. The wife of one's contemporary brother should not be taken in levirate marriage as a preventive measure against marriage with the wife of one's brother who was not one's contemporary! — The All Merciful has made it[27] dependent on dwelling together[28] [and the fact][29] is well known. All women should not be taken in levirate marriage as a preventive measure against the marriage of a woman incapable of procreation! — This[30] is unusual.[31] A bastard and a nethinah also are unusual![32] — But, said Raba, [this is the reason]: The first act of Intercourse[33] is forbidden[34] as a preventive measure against a second act of intercourse.[35]

It has been taught likewise: If they[36] had intercourse [with any of the forbidden women] they acquire [her as wife] by the first act of intercourse, but may not keep her for a second act of intercourse.[37]

Subsequently Raba, others say R. Ashi, said: The statement I made[38] is valueless,[39] for Resh Lakish said, ‘Wherever you come upon a combination of a positive and a negative precept and[40] you are able to act in conformity with both, well and good; but if not, the positive precept must override the negative’.[41] Similarly here[42] it is possible to perform halizah, whereby one is enabled to keep the positive as well as the negative precept.

An objection was raised: If they[36] had intercourse [with any of the forbidden women] they acquire [her as wife]![43] — This is indeed a refutation.

It was stated: Concerning an act of intercourse between a High Priest and a widow[44] [there is a difference of opinion between] R. Johanan and R. Eleazar. One maintains that it does not exempt her rival,[45] and the other maintains that it does exempt her rival.[46])

---

(1) The inclusion of the one who is prohibited by a negative precept and the exclusion of those who are subject to kareth.

(2) Lit., ‘he taught to sides’.

(3) As defined in our Mishnah. I.e., a woman forbidden by Rabbinic ordinance but who is Pentateuchally permitted and subject to levirate marriage. Intercourse with her consequently exempts her rival.

(4) With whom marriage is forbidden, and her halizah only exempts her rival.

(5) Lit., ‘eunuch of man’, opp. to natural castration due to a disease etc. V. notes on the Mishnah, infra 79b.

(6) I.e.,in what circumstances is the law mentioned applicable.

(7) Lit., ‘what they have done is done’; a divorce is required in respect of the ma'amar; no marriage may take place after the divorce, though no ma'amar preceded it, and the halizah is valid.

(8) Lit., ‘they acquired’.

(9) I.e., the maimed persons mentioned, or the old man.

(10) I.e., those that are maimed. The old man is excluded. V. infra.

(11) Deut. XXIII, 2. V. Tosef. Yeb. XI, infra 79b.

(12) Who are crushed or maimed in their privy parts and who are, therefore, forbidden by a negative precept to marry an Israelite's daughter.

(13) This proves that those forbidden by negative precept are subject to levirate marriage no less than to halizah, and thus the question remains, why should an erusin widow be forbidden in levirate marriage to a High Priest?

(14) To a High Priest.

(15) Lev. XXI, 6. This text adds a positive precept to the negative one of ibid. 14, and for this reason an erusin widow is forbidden in levirate marriage to a High Priest.

(16) Marriage with whom is forbidden by a negative precept only and yet may not be superseded by the positive precept of the levirate.

(17) Lev.XI, 44cf. p. 119,n. II.

(18) That Lev. XI, 44 provides a text from which a positive precept may be deduced and added to the negative one.

(19) Raba's answer thus being rebutted, there remains the question, why should an erusin widow be forbidden in levirate marriage to a High Priest.

(20) To a High Priest.

(21) Not because those forbidden by a negative precept may not contract levirate marriage. Pentateuchally, in fact, they may; and this is the reason why marital intercourse with such consummates marriage, as stated supra.

(22) Why are these forbidden levirate marriage?

(23) Such as the precept of the levirate marriage.

(24) Supra 17b, infra 240.

(25) Everybody knows whether the brother is paternal or only maternal.

(26) That there are children, or that there are not. as the case may be.

(27) Levirate marriage.

(28) I.e., that the brothers must be contemporaries. v. supra.

(29) That the levir was, or was not ‘dwelling together with the deceased’.

(30) That a woman should be incapable of procreation.

(31) And there is no need to provide against rare cases.

(32) And yet they were forbidden as a preventive measure.

(33) In the levirate marriage, Pentateuchally permissible even in the case of one forbidden by a negative precept, the positive precept overriding the negative.

(34) In the case of an erusin widow.

(35) When only the prohibition under the negative precept remains, the positive precept of the levirate marriage having been fulfilled with the first act of intercourse.

(36) Those who are forbidden marriage by a negative precept.

(37) Sanh. 19a.

(38) That the first act of intercourse is Pentateuchally permitted.

(39) Lit., ‘it is nothing’.

(40) Lit., ‘if’.

(41) Shab. 133a, Naz. 41a, Men. 56a.

(42) The case of the erusin widow of a brother of a High Priest who died after betrothal and before marriage.

(43) Which shews that Pentateuchally the positive precept of levirate marriage does supersede the prohibition of marrying a widow. Had that not been the case, the levir's Pentateuchal illegitimate intercourse could not have constituted a legal bond of marriage.

(44) Whose deceased husband, the High Priest's brother, died without issue.

(45) From the levirate marriage or halizah.

(46) As well as herself, who would, as a result, require a divorce but no halizah.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 21a

In the case of a nissu'in widow they both agree[1] that it does not exempt, since no positive precept may override a combination of a positive and a negative precept.[2] They differ, however, in the case of an erusin widow. He who maintains that it[3] exempts [does so because] a positive precept supersedes a negative one; and he who maintains that it[3] does not exempt holds that the positive precept here does not supersede the negative one since [in this case] halizah is possible.[4]

An objection was raised: If they[5] had intercourse [with any of the forbidden women] they acquire [her as wife]![6] -This is indeed a refutation. May this[7] be assumed to provide a refutation of the view of Resh Lakish also?[8] -Resh Lakish can answer you: I said it only in the case where the precept is fulfilled; here, however, halizah as a substitute for the levirate marriage is not a fulfilment of the precept.[9]

Raba said: Where in the Torah may an allusion be found to [the prohibition of] relations in the second degree?[10] It is said, For all these abominations have the men of the land done;[11] the expression, these[12] implies grave abominations, from which it may be inferred that there are milder ones. And what are these? The cases of incest of the second degree. What proof is there that ‘these’[12] is an expression of gravity? — Because it is written in the Scriptures, And the mighty[13] of the land he took away.[14] May it be assumed that this view[15] differs from that of R. Levi? For R. Levi said: The punishments for [false] measures are more rigorous than those for [marrying] forbidden relatives; for in the latter case the word used is El,[12] but in the former Eleh.[16] — El implies rigour, but Eleh implies greater rigour than El.[17] Is not Eleh written also In connection with forbidden relatives?[18] -That [Eleh has been written] to exclude [the sin of false] measures from the penalty of kareth.[19] In what respect, then,[20] are they[21] more rigorous? — In the case of the former,[22] repentance is possible; in that of the latter[23] repentance is impossible.[24]

Rab Judah said: It[25] may be derived from the following: Yea he pondered, and sought out, and set in order many proverbs,[26] in relation to which ‘Ulla said in the name of R. Eleazar, ‘Before Solomon appeared, the Torah was like a basket without handles; when[27] Solomon came he affixed handles[28] to it.

R. Oshaia said: It[25] may be derived from the following: Avoid it, pass not by it; turn from it, and pass on.[29]

Said R. Ashi: R. Oshaia's interpretation may be represented by the simile[30] of a man who guards an orchard. If he guards it from without, all of it is protected. If, however, he guards it from within, only that, section in front of him is protected but that which is behind him is not protected. This statement of R. Ashi, however, is mere fiction.[31] There,[32] the section in front of him, at least, is protected; while here were it not for the prohibition of incest of the second degree, one would have encroached upon the very domain of incest.

R. Kahana said, it may be derived from here: Therefore shall ye keep My charge,[33] provide a charge to my charge.[34]

Said Abaye to R. Joseph: This,[35] surely, is Pentateuchal![36] — It is Pentateuchal’ but the Rabbis have expounded it.[37] All the Torah, surely- was expounded by the Rabbis![38] But [the fact is that the prohibition[39] is] Rabbinical, while the Scriptural text is [adduced as] a mere prop.[40]

Our Rabbis taught: Who are the forbidden relatives in the second degree?[41] — His mother's mother, his father's mother, his father's father's wife, his mother's fathers wife, the wife of his father's maternal brother, the wife of his mother's paternal brother, the daughter-in-law of his son daughter-in-law his daughter. A man is permitted to marry the wife of his father-in-law and the wife of his step-son but is forbidden to marry the daughter of his step-son. His step-son is permitted to marry his[42] wife and his[42] daughter. The wife of his step-son may say to him, ‘I am permitted to you though daughter is forbidden to you’.

Is not the daughter of, his step-son forbidden, it being written in the Scriptures, Her son's daughter or her daughters daughter?’[33] — As he wished to state in the latter clause, ‘The wife of his step-son may say to him, "I am permitted to you though my daughter is forbidden to you", and though my daughter is forbidden to you Pentateuchally the Rabbis did not forbid me as a preventive measure’, he stated in the previous clause also ‘the daughter of his step-son’. If so,[43] could not the wife of his father-In-law also say, ‘I am permitted to you and my daughter is forbidden to you’, since she is his wife's sister?[44] -The prohibition of the one[45] is permanent;[46] that of the other is not.[47]

Rab said: Four [categories of] women [forbidden in the second degree] are subject to a limitation.[48] Of these Rab knew[49] three: The wife of a mother's[50] paternal brother, the wife of a father's[51] maternal brother, and one's daughter-in-law.[52] Ze'iri, however, adds also the wife of his mother's father. Said R. Nahman b. Isaac: Your mnemonic sign is, ‘Above that of Rab’.[53] Why does not Rab include it?[54] — Because she[54] might be mistaken for the wife of one's father's father.[55] And Ze'iri?-Thither[56] one usually goes,[57] but hither[58] one does not usually go.[59]

Is not the prohibition of one's daughter-in-law

---

(1) Lit., ‘all the world do not differ’.

(2) The levirate marriage is consequently illegal.

(3) The act of intercourse.

(4) Which would not conflict with the negative precept, while the requirements of the positive one would also be complied with.

(5) V. supra p. 121, n. 5.

(6) V. supra p. 121 , n. 12.

(7) The Baraitha cited.

(8) Who stated (supra 20b) that whenever it is possible to observe the positive, as well as the negative precept, the rule of the abrogation of the one by the other is not to be applied.

(9) It is only a ritual to be observed where levirate marriage cannot take place. The precept of levirate marriage, however, is not thereby fulfilled.

(10) Lit., ‘whence an allusion to seconds from the Torah’.

(11) Lev. XVIII, 27, dealing with incest.

(12) האל

(13) אילי which is analogous to האל

(14) Ezek. XVII, 13. describing the serious and grave position of Judah

(15) Of Raba.

(16) אלה Deut. XXV, 16. This implies that the sin of incest is of a milder nature.

(17) El and Eleh have the same meaning, but the additional eh (הי) at the end of the latter is taken to imply additional punishment.

(18) Lev. XVIII, 26. האלה

(19) Since the expression of ‘abomination’ has been applied in the Pentateuchal text to both false measures and forbidden relations, it might have been assumed that the sin of the former is, like the latter, subject to kareth. Hence the need for the excluding word.

(20) If the penalty of kareth is inflicted for the sin of incest only and not for that of false measures.

(21) The punishments for false measures.

(22) Incest, so long as there was no Issue.

(23) False measures.

(24) V. B.B. 88b. One cannot by mere repentance make amends for robbing. The return of the things robbed must precede penitence. In the case of false measures it is practically impossible to trace all the individual members of the public that were defrauded.

(25) An allusion to the prohibition of relations in the second degree.
(26) Eccl. XII, 9.
(27) Lit., ‘until’.
(28) אזנים, sing. אזן, ‘ear’ or ‘handle’. The Heb. אזן (E.V. he pondered) is regarded as denominative of אזן, ‘he made handles’, i.e., he added restrictions to the commandments of the Torah, such as the prohibitions of incest of the second degree, which helped to preserve the original precepts of the Torah as handles are an aid to the preservation of the basket.
(29) Prov. IV, 15; an allusion to the Torah. One must add restrictions to its precepts, such as those of incest of the second degree, in order to keep away from any possible infringement of its original precepts.
(30) Lit., ‘the parable of R. Oshaia, to what may the thing be compared?’
(31) בדותא v.B.M., Sonc. ed. p.47, n.1.
(32) The orchard.
(33) Lev. XVIII, 30, dealing with incest.
(34) Or ‘make a keeping to my keeping’, a protection to my protection’, i.e., ‘add restrictive measures to safeguard my original precept’.
(35) R. Kahana's text.
(36) Why then is this class of incest described as of the ‘second’ degree?
(37) Hence it must come under the second degree.
(38) And yet no one would describe those laws as of the second degree!
(39) Of incest of the second degree.
(40) Heb., Asmakta, v. Glos.
(41) Of incest.
(42) The step-father's. (13) Lev. XVIII, 17. Why include it among incest of the second degree?
(43) [If this is the reason for including Pentateuchal prohibition in this list].
(44) [And thus let him also include the daughter of his mother-in-law.]
(45) Lit., that’, the daughter of his step-son.
(46) Lit., ‘it is definite to him’.
(47) The daughter of his mother-in-law is permitted to him after the death of her sister, his wife.
(48) Lit., ‘break’ i.e., only they themselves are forbidden but not their descendants or ancestors in the descending or ascending line. In the case of the other relatives in the second degree of incest the prohibition extends throughout all generations in the ascending. and descending lines.
(49) Lit., ‘held in his hand’.
(50) But not, e.g., of a mother's mother's.
(51) Not of a father's father's.
(52) This case is discussed infra.
(53) Ze'ri's addition to the limitations is one generation above that of Rab. While the latter stops at the second generation (that of father and mother) the former goes as far as the third (mother's father).
(54) Ze'ri's addition, a mother's father's wife.
(55) Who is Pentateuchally forbidden. Were a limit to be set in the case of the former, a similar limit would erroneously be set to the latter.
(56) To the family of one's father.
(57) I.e., there is frequent social intercourse between the members of the family on the paternal side.
(58) One's mother's family.
(59) No mistake, therefore, could occur between a mother's father and a father's father. Hence no preventive measure is necessary.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 21b

Pentateuchal, it being written in the Scriptures, Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy daughter-in-law?[1] — Read, ‘the daughter-in-law of his son’. But is there any limitation[2] for the daughter-in-law of one's son? Surely it was taught: His daughter-in-law is a forbidden relative, and the daughter-in-law of his son is a forbidden relative of the second degree; and the same principle is to be applied to one's son and son's son to the end of all generations![3] — But read, ‘the daughter-in-law of his daughter’ for R. Hisda said: I heard from a great man-And who is he? R Ammi- [the following statement]: ‘The daughter-in.law was forbidden only on account of the daughter-in-law’; and when the soothsayers[4] told me, ‘You will be a teacher’, I thought , ‘If I would be a great man[5] I would explain it[6] on my own; and should I be a Scripture teacher of little children I would ask the Rabbis who come to the school house.[7] Now I am in a position to explain it on my own: The daughter-in-law of one's daughter was forbidden only on account of the daughter-in-law of one's son.

Said Abaye to Raba: I can explain it to you: Take as an example a daughter-in-law of the house of Bar Zithai.[8] R. Papa said: As for example a daughter-in-law in the house of R. Papa b. Abba.[9] R. Ashi said: As for example a daughter-in-law of the house of Mari b.Isak.[9]

An inquiry was made: What [is the law in respect of] the wife of a mother's maternal brother? Did the Rabbis forbid as a preventive measure only the wife. of a father's maternal brother and the wife of a mother's paternal brother because in these cases there is a paternal strain,[10] but where there is no paternal strain[11] the Rabbis did not pass any preventive measure, or is there no difference?R. Safra replied: She herself[12] is forbidden as a preventive measure; shall we come and superimpose a preventive measure upon a preventive measure! Said Raba: Are not others[13] forbidden as a preventive measure to a preventive measure? His mother, e.g., Is a forbidden relative, his mother's mother is a forbidden relative of the second degree, and yet was his father's mother forbidden as a preventive measure against his mother's mother[13] And what is the reason? Because they are both called ‘grandmother’[14] His father's wife is a forbidden relative, his father's father's wife is a forbidden relative of the second degree, and yet was his mother's father's wife forbidden as a preventive measure against his father's father's wife! And what is the reason? Because they are both called ‘grandfather’.[15] The wife of his father's paternal brother is a forbidden relative, the wife of his father's maternal brother is a forbidden relative of the second degree, and yet was the wife of his mother's paternal brother forbidden as a preventive against the wife of his father's maternal brother! And what is the reason? Because they are both called uncle![15] What, then, is the law?[16] Come and hear: When R. Judah b. Shila came[17] he stated that In the West[18] the rule was laid down[19] that whenever a female[20] is a forbidden relative the wife of the male[21] is forbidden in the second degree as a preventive measure; and Raba remarked: ‘Is this a general rule? Surely one's mother-in-law is a forbidden relative and yet is one's father-in-law's wife permitted, the daughter of his mother-in-law is a forbidden relative and yet is the wife of the son of his mother-in-law permitted, his step-daughter is a forbidden relative and yet is the wife of his step-son permitted, the daughter of his step-daughter is a forbidden relative and yet is the wife of the son of his step-son permitted’; what, then, does R. Judah b. Shila's [reported rule] include? Does it not then include the case of the wife of a mother's maternal brother, since ‘wherever a female[22] as a forbidden relative[23] the wife of the male[24] is forbidden in the second degree as a preventive measure’![25]

What is the difference between those[26] and this?[27] — In this case[27] she becomes related to him by one act of betrothal;[28] in those cases[29] they do not become related to him until two acts of betrothal have taken place.[30]

R. Mesharsheya of Tusaneya[31] sent to R. Papi: Will our Master instruct us as to what is the law concerning the wife of the father's father's [paternal][32] brother, and a father's father's sister?[33] Seeing that the degree below is incest,[34] has a preventive measure been issued in respect also of the degree above,[35] or perhaps [not]. since the relationship has branched off?[36] Come and hear: Who are the forbidden relatives of the second degree [etc.];[37] and these[35] were not enumerated among them![38] — Some might have been mentioned and others omitted.[39] What other omissions were made such as to justify this omission also? — The forbidden relatives of the second degree, of the School of R.

Hiyya,[40] were also omitted.

Amemar permitted the wife of one's father's father's brother and one's father's father's sister. Said R. Hillel to R. Ashi:[41] 'I saw the [list of] forbidden relatives of the second degree of Mar the son of Rabana[42] and sixteen were written down as forbidden cases. Would they not be the eight of the Baraitha,[43] the six of the School of R. Hiyya,[44] and these two,[45] in all sixteen?-But according to your view there should be seventeen, since there is also the case of the wife of a mother's maternal brother, who in accordance with our decision is forbidden!' — 'This is no difficulty.

---

(1) Lev. XVIII, 15; why then did Rab include her among those of the second degree?
(2) V. supra p. 125, n. 6.
(3) Ker. 14b.
(4) כלדאי lit., 'Chaldeans', known for their extensive practice of divination and soothsaying.
(5) I.e., if 'teacher' implied a teacher of scholars at the academy.
(6) R. Ammi's vague statement.
(7) [Lit., 'House of Assembly', the synagogue to which was attached the school for children.]
(8) In that family there were both a daughter-in-law of Bar Zithai's son and a daughter-in-law of his daughter, and permission to marry the latter might easily have led to the erroneous conclusion that the former also was permitted.
(9) Cf. n. 7' mutatis mutandis.
(10) Lit., 'side of father'.
(11) As in the case of the wife of a mother's maternal brother, here under discussion.
(12) The wife of a mother's paternal brother.
(13) Lit., 'all of them'. v. Rashi, a.l.
(14) Lit., 'all of them call her of the house of grandmother'. Hence the necessity for a preventive measure.
(15) Cf. previous note mutatis mutandis. All of which shews that we do superimpose a Preventive measure upon a preventive measure.
(16) With respect to the wife of a mother's maternal brother.
(17) From Palestine to Babylon.
(18) Palestine.
(19) Lit., 'they said'.
(20) In any degree of relationship.
(21) In the same degree of relationship as the female.
(22) In any degree of relationship.
(23) Such as a mother's maternal sister.
(24) In the same degree of relationship as the female.
(25) Hence the wife of a mother's maternal brother must be forbidden as a relative in the second degree.
(26) The cases pointed out by Raba.
(27) The wife of a mother's maternal brother. v. n. 4.
(28) The betrothal of the woman by his mother's maternal brother.
(29) Pointed out by Raba.
(30) In the case of the wife of his father-in-law, for instance, her relationship to him is dependent on (a) his betrothal of his own wife whereby her father becomes his father-in-law, and (b) the betrothal by his father-in-law of his wife; and similarly in all the other cases pointed out by Raba.
(31) [Prob. for Astunia near Pumbeditha (Obermeyer p. 229. n' 1.); cf. Keth., Sonc. ed. p. 715, n. 4.
(32) Cf. Rashi a.l.
(33) Paternal or maternal.
(34) The wife of a father's paternal brother, and a father's paternal or maternal sister.
(35) The cases cited in the inquiry, which are a generation higher.
(36) Lit., 'divided' or 'removed'.
(37) Supra 21a.
(38) Which seems to prove that these were not forbidden.
(39) Lit. , 'he taught and left over'; though the others might be equally forbidden.

(40) Infra 22a.
(41) Who held the same opinion as Amemar. V. Tosaf. a.l. s.v. אמימר.
(42) Or Rabina.
(43) Supra 21a.
(44) Infra 22a.
(45) Those of Amemar, agreed to by R. Ashi. V. supra p. 128. n. 20.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 22a

Those two which resemble one another[1] are reckoned as one, and thus [the total is] sixteen.' 'But, after all, I saw that these were written down as forbidden!'[2] The other said to him: 'Granted that this is so, would you have relied upon that list, if the cases had been written down as permitted? "Has Mar the son of Rabana signed them?" [you would have argued]. Now then that they have been written down as forbidden, [you might also argue]. "Mar the son of Rabana has not signed them".

It was taught at the School of R. Hiyya: The third generation of his son,[3] of his daughter.[4] of the son of his wife[5] or of the daughter of his wife[6] [is forbidden as incest of the] second degree; the fourth generation[7] through his father-in-law[8] or his mother-in-law[9] [is forbidden as incest of the] second degree.

Said Rabina to R. Ashi: Why is the wife included in the ascending line[10] and not included in the descending line?[11] -In the case of the ascending line, where the prohibition is due to his wife, she is included; in the descending line, where the prohibition is not due to his wife,[12] she is not included. But, surely, there is the case of the son of his wife and the daughter of his wife whose prohibition is due to his wife who is, nevertheless, not included! — As he enumerated three generations in the descending line on his side[13] and did not include her, he also enumerated three generations in the descending line on her side[14] and did not include her.

Said R. Ashi to R. Kahana: Are the second degrees of incest of the School of R. Hiyya subject to the limitation[15] or not?Come and hear what Rab said: 'Four [categories of forbidden] women are subject to a limitation',[16] but no more. But is it not possible that Rab was only referring to that Baraitha![17]

Come and hear: 'The third' and 'the fourth' ,[18] which implies the third and fourth generations only but no further. But is it not possible [that this meant] from the third generation onwards[19] and from the fourth generation onwards![19]

Raba said to R. Nahman, 'Has the Master seen the young scholar who came from the West[20] and stated: The question was raised in the West whether the second degrees of incest were forbidden as a preventive measure among proselytes or not'? — The other replied: Seeing that even in respect of actual incest ' but for the fear that they might be said to have exchanged a [religion of] stricter for [one of] more easy-going sanctity, the Rabbis would not have imposed upon them any preventive measures,[21] is there any question [that they should have done so in respect of] the second degrees?

Said R. Nahman: As the subject of proselytes has come up,[22] let us say something about them: Maternal brothers may not tender evidence;[23] if, however, they did, their evidence is valid.[24] Paternal brothers may tender evidence without challenge.[25]

Amemar said: Even maternal brothers may tender evidence without challenge. And why is this case different from incest?[26] — Matters of incest lie in everybody's hands;[27] evidence is entrusted to Beth din, and [they know that] one who has become a proselyte is like a child newly born.[28]

MISHNAH. IF ONE HAS ANY KIND OF BROTHER,[29] [THAT BROTHER] IMPOSES UPON HIS BROTHER'S WIFE THE OBLIGATION OF THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE AND IS DEEMED TO BE HIS BROTHER IN EVERY RESPECT. FROM THIS IS EXCLUDED A BROTHER BORN FROM A SLAVE OR A HEATHEN.[30]

IF ONE HAS ANY KIND OF SON, [THAT SON] EXEMPTS HIS FATHER'S WIFE FROM THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE, IS LIABLE TO PUNISHMENT FOR STRIKING OR CURSING [HIS FATHER]. AND IS DEEMED TO BE HIS SON IN EVERY RESPECT. FROM THIS IS EXCLUDED THE SON OF A SLAVE OR A HEATHEN.[31] GEMARA. What does the expression ANY KIND include?Rab Judah said: It includes a bastard. Is not this obvious? Surely, he is his brother! — It might have been assumed that ‘brotherhood’[32] here should be deduced from ‘brotherhood’ in the case of the sons of Jacob;[33] as there they were all legitimate and untainted, so here also [the brothers must be] legitimate and untainted; hence we were taught [that it is not so]. [Might we still suggest that it is so?] — Since he[34] has at any rate the power to confer exemption from the levirate marriage[35]

---

(1) Amemar's cases, both of whom are related to one through one's father (paternal grandfather's brother's wife, and paternal grandfather's sister) and both are one degree above that of actual incest.

(2) While according to Amemar and R. Ashi (v. supra p. 128, n. 20) these are permitted! [The text is difficult. Read with MS.M.: But after all I saw (the list) and sixteen were written down as forbidden.]

(3) I.e. , his son's son's daughter, his son's daughter being forbidden as actual incest, v. Lev. XVIII, 10.

(4) His daughter's son's daughter; his daughter's daughter coming under the prohibition of actual incest. Cf. n. 7.

(5) Cf. note 7, mutatis mutandis.

(6) Cf. note 8, mutatis mutandis.

(7) From his wife.

(8) His father-in-law's mother's mother who Is the fourth generation from his wife. (A father-in-law's mother comes under the prohibition of actual incest).

(9) His mother-in-law's mother's mother. Cf. previous note.

(10) V. previous three notes.

(11) Regarding, for instance, his son's son's daughter as of the third generation and not of the fourth, as would have been the case had his wife (his son's mother) been included.

(12) Since, as has been explained supra 40, Lev. XVIII, 10 refers to a son born from a woman whom he had outraged.

(13) The third generation of his son or daughter born from a woman he had outraged.

(14) The third . generation of the son or daughter of his wife.

(15) V. supra P. 125, n. 6.

(16) Supra 21a.

(17) Which enumerated (supra 1.c.) eight cases only of the second degrees of incest, but none of those of the School of R. Hiyya.

(18) I.e., the School of R. Hiyya supra included in the second degree only the third generation in the descending, and the fourth generation in the ascending line.

(19) Are forbidden in the second degree of incest; but those of the nearer generations are forbidden as actual incest.

(20) Palestine.

(21) Biblically, the proselyte is regarded as a newborn child and all his previous family ties are severed. It is only Rabbinically that he was subjected to the laws of incest.

(22) Lit., ‘to our hand’.

(23) Since the family relationship in their case is a certainty, and a relative is ineligible as a witness.

(24) As, Biblically, the proselyte is deemed to be a newborn child without any relatives. V. supra p. 130, n. 10.

(25) Lit., ‘as from the start’, since in: their case no brotherly relationship is recognized, the heathens having been known to indulge in promiscuous Intercourse.

(26) Which is applicable to a proselyte also. If he married, for instance, his maternal sister he must divorce her (infra 98a).

(27) Marriages are not, as a rule, arranged with the aid of the Beth din, and, should a proselyte be permitted to live with his sister, some people might infer that such a marriage was permitted to an Israelite also. Hence the prohibition.

(28) The Beth din who know this law would not allow a brother of an Israelite to give evidence though this would be allowed to a brother of a proselyte.

(29) This is explained in the Gemara. Lit., ‘from any place’.

(30) Such children assume their mother's status of inferiority, and are not regarded as one's paternal brothers.

(31) Cf. n. 9.

(32) Brethren in the context of the levirate relationship, Deut. XXV, 5.

(33) Gen. XLII, 13, twelve brethren.

(34) A bastard.

(35) A woman whose husband died without leaving any issue from their union may. nevertheless, be exempt from the requirements of the levirate marriage if that husband had a bastard son.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 22b

he also has the power to impose the obligation of the levirate marriage.[1]

AND IS DEEMED TO BE HIS BROTHER IN EVERY RESPECT. In respect of what, in actual practice?-That he is to be his heir and that he[2] may defile himself for him. Is not this obvious, he being his brother! — Whereas it is written, Except for his kin, that is near unto him,[3] and a Master had said that ‘his kin’ refers to his wife, while [on the other hand] it is written, A husband among his people shall not defile himself, to profane himself,[4] [which verses taken together mean],[5] some kind of husband may defile himself and some kind of husband may not, and how [is this to be understood]? He may defile himself for his lawful wife but may not defile himself for his unlawful wife; and so here it might have been assumed that he may defile himself for a legitimate brother but may not defile himself for an illegitimate brother; hence it was taught [that it is hot so]. Might we still suggest that it is so?In that case she is liable at any moment to be sent away,[6] but here he is his brother.

FROM THIS IS EXCLUDED A BROTHER BORN FROM A SLAVE OR A HEATHEN. What is the reason? Scripture stated, The wife and her children shall be the master's.[7]

IF ONE HAS ANY KIND OF SON, [THAT SON] EXEMPTS etc. What does ANY KIND include?-Rab Judah said: It includes a bastard. What is the reason? — Because Scripture stated, And have no [en lo] child[8] which implies ‘hold an inquiry[9] concerning him.’[10]

AND IS LIABLE TO PUNISHMENT FOR STRIKING [HIM]. But why? One should apply here the Scriptural text , Nor curse a ruler of thy people.[11] only when he practises the deeds of thy people![12] — As R. Phinehas in the name of R. Papa said [elsewhere] ‘When he repented’, so here also it is a case where he repented. Is such a persona however, capable of penitence? Surely we learnt: Simeon b. Menasya said, That which is crooked cannot be made straight.[13] refers to him who had intercourse with a forbidden relative and begot from her a bastard! — Now, at any rate. he is practising ‘the deeds of thy people’.[14]

Our Rabbis taught : He who has intercourse with his sister who is also the daughter of his father's wife[15] is guilty[16] on account of both his sister and his father's wife's daughter. R. Jose son of R. Judah said: He is only guilty on account of his sister but not of the daughter of his father's wife.

What is the Rabbis’ reason? Observe, they would say, it is written, The nakedness of thy sister, the daughter of thy father, or the daughter of thy mother,[17] what need was there for The nakedness of thy father's wife's daughter, begotten of thy father, she is thy sister?[18] In order to intimate that he is guilty on account of both his sister and his father's wife's daughter. And R. Jose son of R. Judah? — Scripture stated, She is thy sister,[19] you can hold him guilty on account of his sister, but you cannot hold him guilty for his father's wife's daughter. And to what do the Rabbis apply the expression, ‘She is thy sister’?-They require it [for the deduction] that a man is guilty on account of his sister who is the daughter of his father and the daughter of his mother,[20] thus indicating that no prohibition[21] may be deduced by logical argument.[22] And R. Jose son of R. Judah?[23] -If so, the All Merciful should have written ‘thy sister’, what need was there for ‘she is’? To indicate that you may hold him guilty on account of ‘thy sister’ but you cannot hold him guilty on account of ‘his father's wife's daughter’. And the Rabbis? Although ‘thy sister’ was written, It was also necessary to write ‘she is’; in order that no one should suggest that elsewhere a prohibition may be deduced by logical argument and that the All Merciful has written here, ‘thy sister[24] because Scripture takes the trouble to write down any law that may be deduced a minori ad majus; hence did the All Merciful write ‘she is’.[25]

And R. Jose son of R. Judah?-If so, the All Merciful should have written [the expression], ‘She is ‘thy sister’ in the other verse.[26]

And to what does R. Jose son of R. Judah apply the phrase Thy father's wife's daughter?[27] — He requires it for [the deduction]: Only she with whom your father can enter Into marital relationship, but a sister born from a slave or a heathen[28] is excluded, since your father cannot enter with her into marital relationship.[29]

Might it not be said to exclude a sister born from one whom his father had outraged? — You cannot say this owing to Raba's statement. For Raba pointed out a contradiction: It is written In Scripture, The nakedness of thy son's daughter, or of thy daughter's daughter, even their nakedness thou shalt not uncover,[30] thus it follows that her[31] son's daughter and her daughter's daughter are permitted; but [below] it is written, Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of a woman and her daughter; [thou shalt not take] her son's daughter or her daughter's daughter.[32] How then [are these to be reconciled]? The one[33] refers to a case of outrage,[34] the other[32] to that of lawful marriage.

---

(1) Upon the wife of any son of his father. However, since he is debarred from marrying her, he frees her by halizah, v. supra 20a.

(2) Even if he is a priest. Cf. Lev. XXI, 1ff.

(3) Ibid. v. 2.

(4) Ibid. v. 4. The Talmudic rendering of the verse differs slightly from E.V. which render husband בעל as ‘chief’,

(5) In order to remove the apparent contradiction.

(6) The husband is not allowed to live with her. Hence she cannot be regarded as his wife.

(7) Ex. XXI, 4, referring to a slave. The case of the heathen is explained infra.

(8) Deut. XXV, 5. ובן אין לו.

(9) עין ‘examine’ , ‘search’, ‘investigate’ . The Aleph (א) of אין is interchangeable with the ‘Ayin (ע) of עין

(10) I.e., inquire whether he has been survived by ANY KIND OF SON. Cf. B.B. 115a, Sonc. ed.. p. 474 nn. 6ff.

(11) Ex. XXII. 27.

(12) This father, however, who is guilty of incest did not practise the deeds of his people! Why then should his son be punished for his action against such a man?

(13) Eccl. I, 15.

(14) Though he cannot clear his past he may turn over a new leaf.

(15) I.e., the offspring of a lawful marriage.

(16) V. infra p. 201, n.16. and Mak. 13a.

(17) Lev. XVIII, 9, referring to the offspring of an intercourse, whether as a result of marriage or outrage.

(18) Ibid. v. II. This, surely. is only are petition of one of the cases dealt with in v.9.

(19) Lev. XVIII, 11.

(20) Who was not his father's lawful wife; in the case, for instance, when he and his sister were born from one whom their father had outraged. This case could not be deduced from Lev. XVIII, 9, since the sister born as a result of outrage,’ spoken of there, is one who is the daughter of the father or of the mother, while the expression Thy father's wife's daughter refers to one born from a lawful marriage.

(21) Such, e.g.. as intercourse with a sister born from the same woman whom their father had outraged.

(22) If a sister who is the daughter of only one of his parents is forbidden, how much more so a sister who is the daughter of both his parents. V. Mak., Sonc. ed. pp. 18 and 26.

(23) How does he meet the argument of the Rabbis?

(24) Lit., ‘and if you would say what need was there for "thy sister" what the All Merciful has written’.

(25) Only she is, i.e., only in this case, where Scripture had explicitly stated it, is the prohibition in force; but elsewhere, where Scripture has not explicitly stated the prohibition, the inference a minori ad majus cannot bring a prohibition into force.

(26) In Lev. XVIII, 9’ which speaks of a sister born from a woman his father had outraged. Since, however, it was inserted in v.11 which speaks of a sister born from a marriage it must have been meant to imply. as R. Jose said supra, that one ‘is only guilty of incest with his sister but not with that of the daughter of his father's wife’.

(27) Lev. XVIII, II.

(28) The betrothal of either of whom is not considered valid.

(29) V. Kid. 68a.

(30) Lev. Xviii, 10.

(31) One's wife's.

(32) Lev. XVIII, 17.

(33) Lit., ‘here’; Lev. XVIII. 10.

(34) In which case a man may not marry the daughter of his own son or the daughter of his own daughter, and may marry the daughter of the son or the daughter of the daughter whom the outraged woman had from another husband; since he himself is not her lawful husband. As in the case of one's own son and one's own daughter, though the offspring of a woman he outraged, they are legally regarded as son and daughter. so is the sisterhood and brotherhood of such children regarded as legal.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 23a

Might it not be suggested that it excludes those who are subject to the penalties of negative precepts?[1] -R. Papa[2] replied: The betrothal of those forbidden under negative precept is valid,[3] for it is written in the Scriptures, If a man have two wives, the one beloved and the other hated;[4] can it be said that the Omnipresent loves the one[5] or hates the other?[6] But ‘beloved’ means beloved in her marriage;[7] ‘hated’ means hated in her marriage;[8] and yet the All Merciful has said if ... have.[9] Might it be taken to exclude those who are liable to kareth?[10] — Raba replied: Scripture said, The nakedness of thy sister, the daughter of thy father, or the daughter of thy mother, whether born at home, or born abroad,[11] whether your father is told, ‘You may keep her’ or whether your father is told, ‘Let her go’,[12] the All Merciful said, ‘She is thy sister’.

Will you suggest [that what is meant is]: Whether your father is told, ‘You may keep her’ or whether your father is told, ‘Let her go’. the All Merciful said, ‘She is thy sister’, to include his sister from a slave and a heathen! — Scripture stated, The father's wife's daughter,[13] only she with whom your father can enter into marital relationship, but a sister from a slave or a heathen is excluded.[14] And what ground is there for this?[15] — It is logical to include those subject to kareth since generally[16] their betrothal is valid.[17] On the contrary! A slave and a heathen should have been included since on embracing the Jewish faith, betrothal with himself is also valid! — When any of these adopts the Jewish faith she becomes a different person.[18]

Whence do the Rabbis deduce the exclusion of a slave and a heathen?-They deduce it from The wife and her children shall be her master's.[19] And R. Jose son of R. Judah?- One text refers to a slave and the other to a heathen. And both are required; for had we been informed [concerning the exclusion of the] slave, it might have been thought [that this was so in her case] because she has no recognized ancestry, but not in that of a heathen who has recognized ancestry. And had we been informed [of the exclusion of the] heathen,it might have been assumed [that this was so In her case] because she stands under no obligation In relationship to the observance of commandments,[20] but not In that of a slave who is [in some respects] attached to the observance of the commandments.[21] Hence both were required.

With reference to the Rabbis, we have discovered [the reason for the exclusion of a] slave; whence do they derive [the exclusion of the] heathen? And should you suggest that we might derive it by inference from the slave, those[22] were surely needed![23] R. Johanan replied in the name of R. Simeon b. Yohai: Scripture stated, For he will turn away thy son from following Me;[24] 'thy son born from an Israelitish woman is called thy son[25] but 'thy son who was born from a heathen is not called thy son[25] but her son.[26] Said Rabina: From this it follows[27] that the 'son of your daughter' who derives from a heathen is called 'thy son'.[28] Does this imply that Rabina is of the opinion that if a heathen or a slave had intercourse with a daughter of Israel the child is considered fit![29] -Though he is admittedly no bastard neither is he considered fit; he is rather regarded[30] as a tainted Israelite.[31]

But does not that text[32] occur in connection with the seven nations?[33] — For he will turn away[32] includes all who turn away. This is satisfactory if we follow R. Simeon who expounds[34] his own reasons for Scriptural precepts;[35] whence, however, do the Rabbis[36] derive it according to their view?[37] — Who is the Tanna[38] who disputes the opinion of R. Jose son of R. Judah? It is R. Simeon.

---

(1) If his father, e.g.. had married a bastard, who is forbidden by a negative Precept. the daughter from such a union should not be regarded as his legitimate sister.

(2) Aruch reads, 'Raba'.

(3) Hence the sisterhood must also be deemed legal.

(4) Deut. XXI, 15.

(5) Lit., 'is there a loved one before the Omnipresent'.

(6) I.e., the husband's love or hatred could not obviously influence a divine law; why then should his love or hatred be mentioned at all?

(7) l.e., permitted to marry him.

(8) I.e., forbidden to marry.

(9) תהיין (rt. היה 'to be'). i.e., the betrothal is Sc. remains valid.

(10) I.e., a daughter from such a marriage which is legally invalid should not be deemed one's legal sister.

(11) Lev. XVIII, 9.

(12) Whether he is permitted to live with her (בית at home) or not (חוץ abroad).

(13) Lev. XVIII, 11.

(14) Since betrothal or marriage with either is invalid.

(15) Lit., 'and what do you see', to apply the excluding text to a slave and a heathen. and the including one to those subject to kareth. Why not reverse the application?

(16) Lit., 'to the world', to those who are not forbidden relatives.

(17) The betrothal of a slave or a heathen, however, is always invalid.

(18) And is no longer regarded as a heathen or slave.

(19) Ex. XXI, 4.

(20) A heathen is under no obligation to observe the precepts of the Torah.

(21) A slave must observe certain commandments. V. Hag. 40.

(22) The texts speaking of the slave and the heathen, supra.

(23) In connection with their own context. They are not available for any deduction.

(24) Deut. VII, 4. The pronoun he in this clause must, according to Talmudic exposition, refer to the antecedent son in v. 3' thy daughter thou shalt not give unto his son, and not to son in the clause, nor his daughter shalt thou take unto thy son. Had the reference been to the latter the reading in v. 4 would have been, for SHE (i.e., the heathen woman) will turn away thy son. 'He' must consequently refer to the heathen husband of the Israelitish woman who would turn away the son of his Israelitish wife, the (grand)son of her father. The son of his son born from the heathen. however, is obviously not called his (grand)son since, 'For he will turn etc.' does not apply to him.

(25) בנך thy son or grandson.

(26) I.e., he is a heathen like his mother.

(27) Cf. supra n. 5.
(28) V. kid.. Sonc. ed. p. 345 nn. 5.6.
(29) This is a question in dispute, infra 450. [Cf. parallel passage in Kid. 68b where the reading is, the child is a mamzer, a reading to which Tosaf. (s.v. קסבר) gives preference.]
(30) Lit., ‘called’.
(31) For further notes, v. Kid., Sonc. ed. p. 345ff
(32) Deut. VII, 4, from which deduction has just been made.
(33) Enumerated in Deut. VII, I. How, then, could the same text be applied to other nations?
(34) Even where Scripture assigns no reason.
(35) V. B.M. 115a; the explicit reason, For he will turn etc. given here is consequently superfluous and may be used for the deduction mentioned.
(36) Who do not assign reasons for Biblical precepts t,unless Scripture itself supplies them.
(37) The text, For he will turn etc. being required as a reason for the precepts enunciated in that context itself.
(38) Designated supra as ‘the Rabbis’.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 23b

MISHNAH. IF A MAN BETROTHED ONE OF TWO SISTERS AND DOES NOT KNOW WHICH OF THEM HE HAS

BETROTHED, HE MUST GIVE A LETTER OF DIVORCE TO THE ONE AS WELL AS TO THE OTHER.[1] IF HE DIED,[2] LEAVING A BROTHER,[3] THE LATTER MUST PARTICIPATE IN THE HALIZAH WITH BOTH OF THEM.[4] IF HE HAD TWO BROTHERS,[3] ONE IS TO PARTICIPATE IN THE HALIZAH[5] AND THE OTHER MAY CONTRACT THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE.[6] IF THEY ANTICIPATED [THE BETH DIN] AND MARRIED THEM[7] THEY ARE NOT TO BE [PARTED FROM] THEM.[8]

IF TWO MEN BETROTHED TWO SISTERS AND THE ONE DOES NOT KNOW WHOM HE BETROTHED AND THE OTHER DOES NOT KNOW WHOM HE BETROTHED, THE ONE MUST GIVE TWO LETTERS OF DIVORCE AND THE OTHER MUST ALSO GIVE TWO LETTERS OF DIVORCE. IF THEY DIED AND THE ONE LEFT A BROTHER AND THE OTHER ALSO LEFT A BROTHER, THE ONE BROTHER MUST PARTICIPATE IN THE HALIZAH WITH THE TWO WIDOWS AND THE OTHER ALSO MUST PARTICIPATE IN THE HALIZAH WITH THE TWO WIDOWS.[9] IF ONE[10] LEFT ONE BROTHER AND THE OTHER LEFT TWO, THE ONE BROTHER MUST PARTICIPATE IN THE HALIZAH WITH THE TWO WIDOWS[11] AND [AS REGARDS] THE TWO, ONE PARTICIPATES IN THE

HALIZAH[12] AND THE OTHER MAY CONTRACT THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE.[13] IF THEY ANTICIPATED [THE BETH DIN] AND MARRIED THEM,[14] THEY ARE NOT TO BE DEPRIVED OF THEM.[15] IF ONE[10] LEFT TWO BROTHERS AND THE OTHER[13] ALSO LEFT TWO, ONE BROTHER OF THE ONE PARTICIPATES IN THE HALIZAH WITH ONE WIDOW AND ONE BROTHER OF THE SECOND PARTICIPATES IN THE HALIZAH WITH THE OTHER WIDOW, [AND THEN THE OTHER] BROTHER OF THE FIRST MAY CONTRACT LEVIRATE MARRIAGE WITH THE HALUZAH OF THE SECOND[16] AND [THE OTHER] BROTHER OF THE SECOND MAY CONTRACT THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE WITH THE HALUZAH OF THE FIRST. IF BOTH[17] ANTICIPATED [THE BETH DIN] AND PARTICIPATED IN THE HALIZAH,[18] THE [OTHER] TWO MUST NOT BOTH CONTRACT THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE,[19] BUT ONE MUST PARTICIPATE IN THE HALIZAH[20] AND THE OTHER MAY THEN CONTRACT THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE.[21] IF BOTH[22] ANTICIPATED [THE BETH DIN][23] AND MARRIED[24] THEY ARE NOT TO BE DEPRIVED OF THEM.[25]

GEMARA. Is it to be inferred from here that even betrothal which cannot culminate in connubial intercourse[26] is also valid?[27] — Here we are dealing with the case where they were known[28] but were later confused. This may also be proved by deduction, since it was stated, AND HE DOES NOT KNOW[29] and it was not stated 'and it was not known'[30] This proves it.

What, then, does our Mishnah teach us?[31] — The second clause was necessary:[32] IF HE DIED AND LEFT A BROTHER, THE LATTER MUST PARTICIPATE IN THE HALIZAH WITH BOTH OF THEM. IF HE HAD TWO BROTHERS, ONE IS TO PARTICIPATE IN THE HALIZAH AND THE OTHER MAY CONTRACT THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE, only halizah must be first and the levirate marriage afterwards, but not the levirate marriage first, since, thereby, he might infringe [the interdict against] the sister of her who is connected with him by the levirate bond.[33]

IF TWO MEN BETROTHED TWO SISTERS etc. Does this imply that a betrothal which cannot culminate in connubial intercourse is also valid?[34] — Here also it is a case where they were known.[35] but were subsequently confused. This may also be proved by deduction, since it was stated, AND THE ONE DOES NOT KNOW,[36] and it is not stated 'and it is not known'.[37] This proves it.

What, then, does our Mishnah teach us?[38] — It was necessary to have the latter clause,[39] IF THEY DIED ... AND ONE LEFT ONE BROTHER AND THE OTHER LEFT TWO, THE ONE BROTHER MUST PARTICIPATE IN THE HALIZAH WITH THE TWO WIDOWS AND, [As REGARDS] THE TWO, ONE PARTICIPATES IN THE HALIZAH AND THE OTHER MAY CONTRACT THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE.[40] Is not this obvious, being in the same case as the first clause?[41] -It might have been assumed that [levirate marriage should be forbidden in the case of] two brothers as a preventive measure against the case Of one, hence we were taught [that it was not so], and also that halizah must be first and the levirate marriage afterwards, but the .levirate marriage must not take place first, for thereby, one might infringe [the interdict against] a yebamah's marriage to a stranger.

IF ONE LEFT TWO BROTHERS AND THE OTHER ALSO LEFT TWO etc. What need was there again for this statement? It is, surely. the same![42] — It might have been assumed that [the marriage should be forbidden] as a preventive measure against marrying without previous (halizah,[43] hence we were taught [that no such measure Was enacted].[44] Wherein does this case differ from the following in which we learned: In the case of four brothers two of whom were married to two sisters, and those who were married to the sisters died, behold their widows may only perform the halizah but may not be taken in levirate marriage [by either of the levirs]?[45] -What a comparison![46]

---

(1) He is forbidden to live with either since each might be 'his wife's sister'.

(2) Without issue.

(3) Who survived him.

(4) Since it is not known which is his sister-in-law. He may not marry the one and submit to halizah from the other, because the sister of a haluzah (v. Glos.) is Rabbinically forbidden. Even prior to the halizah with the one he may not marry the other; for if she is not his sister-in-law she is still forbidden to him as the sister of his zekukah (v. Glos.)

(5) With one of the widows.

(6) With the other, subsequent to the halizah of the first. This procedure is safe in either ease; if the second widow is really his sister-in-law he is legally entitled to marry her. But even if she is not, she is no longer forbidden as the sister of the first who was his zekukah since the halizah has severed the bond.

(7) Each brother married one of the sisters.

(8) Since each of them is entitled to marry one of the widows either as his yebamah (v. Glos.) or as a stranger. The question of the forbidden marriage of the sister of a zekukah does not arise, since both are now married, and the marriage of the zekukah to the one brother has severed her levirate bond with the other.

(9) Neither may marry any of the widows since either might happen to be the sister of his zekukah.

(10) Of the deceased.

(11) For the reasons explained supra p. 138, n. 9.

(12) And thus, in case she is the actual yebamah, severs the levirate bond between her and the brothers. Her sister may then be married by the other brother in any ease: If she is the sister-in-law he may rightly marry her; and if not, she is no longer forbidden as the sister of a zekukah in view of the fact that the halizah of the other had severed that bond.

(13) V. previous note.

(14) Each brother married one of the sisters.

(15) V. p. 138. n. 13.

(16) This Procedure enables both widows to marry. because in the case of each it may be said: If she is his yebamah, he may marry her since his brother did not participate in the halizah with her but with her sister who was a Perfect stranger to him, and the halizah with her is of no legal value. If, on the other hand, she is not his yebamah, he may certainly marry her as a stranger. The question of the ‘sister of a zekukah’ does not arise, since that bond has in any case been severed by the halizah in which his brother had participated with her sister.

(17) Brothers of one of the deceased.

(18) With both widows.

(19) One brother with the one widow and the other with the other widow; because whichever widow any one of them would desire to marry might be the sister of his .zekukah.

(20) With one ‘of the widows.

(21) With the other sister. For the reason cf. supra p. 139, n. 4.

(22) The second two brothers.

(23) After halizah was performed with the first.

(24) Each one of them one of the sisters.

(25) Cf. supra p. 138. n. 13.

(26) It is now assumed that even at the time of the betrothal it was not known which of the sisters was betrothed; when, for instance, the man said ‘I betroth one of you’ and both appointed an agent to receive on their behalf the token of betrothal. In such a case the man may have no connubial intercourse with either of the women since each might be his wife's sister.

(27) Since our Mishnah requires him to give a letter of divorce to each. Why then did this question remain a matter in dispute between Abaye and Raba in Kid. 51a?

(28) At the time of the betrothal, as to which was, and which was not the betrothed one. Hence it was a betrothal which could culminate in connubial intercourse.

(29) I.e, now.

(30) Which would have implied that the identity of the betrothed was never known.

(31) If the betrothal was valid and the man does not know now whom he betrothed it is self-evident that both women must be divorced!

(32) And because of the second the first also had to be stated.

(33) His zekukah. V. supra . 138, n. 11,

(34) Cf.supra p. 140, n.11.

(35) V.p. 140. n.12.

(36) I.e., now,

(37) V. p.140, n. 14.

(38) V.p. 140, n. 15.

(39) And because of the second the first also had to be stated.

(40) This indicates that halizah must take place first.

(41) Where it was stated that if there were two brothers one submits to halizah first while the other may subsequently contract the levirate marriage. (10) Lit., ‘a yebamah for the street’. A yebamah who is subject to the levirate marriage may not be married by a stranger before the levir has submitted to halizah. For further notes on the whole passage v. Kid., Sonc. ed. pp. 26off.

(42) As the one already made earlier in our Mishnah: ONE PARTICIPATES IN THE HALIZAH AND THE OTHER MAY CONTRACT THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE. There it is a case of two brothers and here also of two groups of two, one of each participating in halizah and the other contracting levirate marriage.

(43) And each of the two brothers so marrying would infringe the prohibition against marriage of a doubtful yebamah and the sister of a zekukah.

(44) This could not have been inferred from the previous clause where only one marriage takes place. The fact that at least one of the sisters may not be married and must perform halizah only, would sufficiently indicate that in the case of the other also halizah by one brother must precede the marriage by the other. Where, however, as here, both sisters are married it might well have been considered likely that the law requiring previous halizah might be overlooked.

(45) 'Ed. V, 5, infra 26a. [According to Rashi (he question is from the concluding part of that Mishnah which reads, 'If they had forestalled (the Beth din) and married them, they must put them away', whereas in our Mishnah it is ruled that they are not to be parted. Aliter: In our Mishnah levirate marriage may take place after halizah had been performed, whereas in the other Mishnah no levirate marriage is allowed at all for fear it is contracted before halizah. v. Tosaf. ha-Rosh.]

(46) Lit., 'thus now'.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 24a

There,[1] if one is to follow the view of him who said that a levirate bond does exist,[2] a levirate bond exists;[3] and if one is to follow him who said[4] that it is forbidden to annul the precept of levirate marriage,[5] well, it is forbidden to annul the precept of levirate marriage. Here, however, it is possible to assume that every one will happen to get his own.[6]

IF BOTH ANTICIPATED [THE BETH DIN] AND MARRIED THEY ARE NOT TO BE PARTED FROM THEM etc. Shila recited:

Even if both were priests.[7] What is the reason?[8] — Because a haluzah is only Rabbinically forbidden,[9] and in the case of a doubtful haluzah[10] the Rabbis enacted no preventive measures.[11] But is a haluzah only Rabbinically forbidden? Surely it was taught: From Put away[12] one might only infer the prohibition concerning a divorced woman; whence that of a haluzah? Hence it was explicitly stated, And a woman![13] The prohibition is really Rabbinical, and the Scriptural text is a mere prop.[14] allowed to marry one of the widows he would not be able either to contract levirate marriage or to participate in halizah with the other widow (she being forbidden to him as 'his wife's sister'), should the other brother happen to die before he married that widow; and thus the entire precept of levirate marriage would in such a case be annulled. GEMARA. Our Rabbis learned: And it shall be, that the firstborn[15] implies[16] that the commandment of the levirate marriage devolves upon the [surviving elder brother];[17] that she beareth[15] excludes a woman who is incapable of procreation, since she cannot bear children: shall succeed in the name of his brother,[15] in respect of inheritance.[18] You say, 'in respect of inheritance';[19] perhaps it does not [mean that]. but, 'in respect of the name':[20] [If the deceased, for Instance, was called] Joseph [the child] shall be called Joseph; If Johanan he shall be called Johanan! — Here it is stated, shall succeed in the name of his brother[15] and elsewhere it is stated, They shall be called after the name of their brethren in their inheritance,[21] as the 'name' that was mentioned there [has reference to] inheritance, so the 'name' which was mentioned here [has also reference] to inheritance. That his name be not blotted out[15] excludes a eunuch[22] whose name is blotted out.

MISHNAH. THE COMMANDMENT OF THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE DEVOLVES UPON THE [SURVIVING ELDER BROTHER]. IF A YOUNGER BROTHER, HOWEVER, FORESTALLED HIM, HE IS ENTITLED TO ENJOY THE PRIVILEGE.

Said Raba: Although throughout the Torah no text[23] loses its ordinary meaning, here the :gezerah shawah[24] has come and entirely deprived the text of its ordinary meaning.[25]

But apart from the gezerah shawah, would it have been thought that 'name' actually signifies 'a name'? To whom, then, does the All Merciful address the instruction![26] If to the levir, the wording should have been. 'shall succeed in the name of thy brother'; if to the Beth din, the wording should have been, 'shall succeed in the name of his father's brother'![27] — It is possible that the All Merciful thus addressed the Beth din: Tell the levir, 'He[28] shall succeed to the name of his[29] brother'; but the gezerah shawah has come and deprived the text entirely [of its ordinary meaning].

Now that it has been stated that Scripture speaks of the elder brother only, why not assume that the firstborn must perform the duty of the levirate marriage and that any ordinary brother may not contract a levirate marriage at all![30] — If so, what need[31] was there for the All Merciful to have excluded the 'wife of his brother who was not his contemporary'?[32]

R. Aha objected: Might it not be suggested that the exclusion[33] had reference to a mother's firstborn son![34] -You could not possibly have assumed that,[35] since the All Merciful has made levirate marriage dependent on inheritance, and the right of inheritance derives from the father and not from the mother.[36] But might It not be suggested that where there is a firstborn the commandment of the levirate marriage shall be observed;[37] where, however, there is no firstborn the commandment of the levirate marriage shall not be observed?[38] Scripture stated, And one of them died;[39] does not this include also the case where the firstborn died,[40] and so the All Merciful has said that the younger shall perform the duty of the levirate marriage?

But perhaps[41] [the text speaks of a case] where the younger died, and the All Merciful says that the firstborn shall perform the duty of the levirate marriage?-Surely, the All Merciful has excluded the wife of his brother who was not his contemporary![42]

May it be suggested that where there is no firstborn the younger brother, if he forestalled [the Beth din],[43] is entitled to the privilege,[44] but that where there is a firstborn the younger brother, even if he forestalled him, is not entitled to the privilege? — Scrip. stated, If brethren dwell together,[45] the dwelling of one brother was compared to that of the other.[46] May it be suggested that where there is a firstborn one turns to the eldest[47] but where there is no firstborn one does not turn to the eldest?[48] Why, then, did Abaye the Elder teach that the commandment to perform the duty of the levirate marriage is incumbent Upon the elder brother; if he refuses, the younger brother is approached;[49] if he also refuses,[50] the elder is approached again![51] — [Scripture has designated him] as the firstborn;[52] as with the firstborn the cause is his birthright, so with the elder brother the cause is his Seniority. Might it be said that when the firstborn performs the duty of the levirate marriage he also takes the inheritance[53] but when an ordinary brother performs the duty of the levirate marriage, he[54] does not take the inheritance?[53] Scripture stated, Shall succeed in the name of his brother[55] and behold he has succeeded![56]

But since the All Merciful called him the firstborn;[57]

---

(1) Where both sisters are bound by the levirate tie.

(2) Between the levir and his deceased brother's widow from the moment death took place.

(3) Consequently both widows are forbidden in levirate marriage, each being in relation to the other a sister of one's zekukah. But such prohibition is never removed even when one of them subsequently performed the halizah with one of the brothers and has thus severed her levirate bond, for once a yebamah is prohibited to her deceased husband's brother for a single moment, she is in the same category as a widow of a brother who died with issue.

(4) The reason why none of the surviving brothers may marry one of the two widows.

(5) Were one brother to be

(6) Now, if the widow whom one of them bad married was really his yebamah. the other must be a total stranger to him and to the other brother; and since this might be said in the case of each pair of brothers where the marriage had already taken place. They are not, in the face of such a possibility. to be parted (Rashi). [According to the alternative interpretation (supra p. 142, n. 4.) in face of such a possibility the Rabbis saw no reason for enacting the preventive measure forbidding levirate marriage after halizah had been performed.]

(7) Who are forbidden to marry a haluzah.

(8) One of them, surely, must inevitably have married a haluzah since, In case she is not his yebamah, she is the betrothed of the stranger with whose brother (v. our Mishnah) she had performed halizah’

(9) To marry a Priest.

(10) As here where each brother can claim that the one he married was his yebamah.

(11) The prohibition consequently does not apply. Hence they may continue to live with the widows they had married.

(12) Lev. XXI, 7, speaking of priests.

(13) Ibid.. which proves that the prohibition is Pentateuchal.

(14) Asmakta, v. Glos.

(15) Deut. XXV, 6.

(16) Lit., ‘from here (it is deduced)’.

(17) The text of Deut. XXV, 6. being connected with v. 5 preceding it, thus: Her husband's brother shall ... take her to him to wife (v. 5) and he shall be the firstborn (ibid. v. 6). והיה in והיה הבכור may be rendered either, and it shall be (as E.V.) or and he (i.e., the levir) shall be as the Talmud here renders it.

(18) Only the brother who marries the widow, and no other brother, is entitled to the inheritance of the deceased.

(19) Taking the ‘brother’ who marries the widow as the subject of ‘shall succeed’. (Cf. supra n. 3)’

(20) The subject of ‘shall succeed’ being ‘the child’ that will be born from the levirate union.

(21) Gen. XLVIII, 6.

(22) Since he 15 Incapable of procreation. his wife is exempt alike from yibbum and halizah.

(23) Though it had been given a Midrashic interpretation.

(24) V. Glos. גזרה שוה the word analogy between the expression ‘name’ in the two cited texts.

(25) So that despite the ordinary meaning of the text, the child born from the levirate union need not be named after the deceased.

(26) About the name.

(27) Consequently. name in this text could not possibly have borne its ordinary meaning, but must have that given to it in the exposition supra. viz., that Beth din are instructed to hand over the inheritance Of the deceased to the levir who married his widow. An objection against Raba!

(28) The child that will be born.

(29) The levir's.

(30) Neither when there is, nor when there is not, a firstborn.

(31) Lit., ‘why to me’.

(32) He would in any case have been excluded since he was not the firstborn.

(33) Of the ‘wife of a brother who was not his contemporary’.

(34) Who was the paternal brother of the deceased.

(35) That a mother's firstborn should be regarded as the legal firstborn in respect of the levirate marriage.

(36) Hence there was no need to exclude him. The exclusion consequently indicates that by firstborn, in this context, any elder brother was meant.

(37) Either by the firstborn or by any other of the brothers, and that for this reason the exclusion of ‘a brother who was not his contemporary’ was necessary.

(38) At all; by any brother.

(39) Deut. XXV, 5, which refers to all cases, even to that where there were Only two brothers.

(40) Since the text does not specify any particular case.

(41) Lit., ‘and say’.

(42) Were it as suggested this exclusion would be unnecessary. Cf. supra p. 145, nn. 6 and 13.

(43) Married before the Beth din could prevent him.

(44) Of the levirate marriage.

(45) Deut. XXV. 5.

(46) All brothers must be equal in respect of the levirate marriage.

(47) If the other brothers refused to marry the widow it should be his duty to marry her.

(48) Not being the firstborn it is no more his duty to marry the widow than it is that of his brothers.

(49) I.e., all the brothers are approached in the order of seniority. V. Tosaf. s.v. ה ג, a.l., and cf. Rashi a.l.

(50) I.e., when the youngest of all has also refused to marry the widow.

(51) Now, since the brothers are approached. in the order of seniority. it is obvious that it is always the eldest, not necessarily the firstborn, upon whom the duty of the levirate marriage devolves!

(52) V. supra p. 144, n. 3.

(53) Of his deceased brother.

(54) The ordinary brother.

(55) Deut. XXV, 6.

(56) Hence any brother who marries the widow is entitled to the inheritance of the deceased.

(57) And not merely ‘the elder’ or ‘the eldest’.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 24b

what practical ruling was thereby intended?[1] — To impair his rights; As a firstborn does not take a double portion in his father's prospective property[2] in the same way as he does in that which is already In his possession,[3] so does this one[4] take no [double][5] portion In [his father's] prospective property[6] as he does in that which is already in his possession.[7]

MISHNAH. IF A MAN IS SUSPECTED OF [INTERCOURSE][8] WITH A SLAVE WHO WAS LATER EMANCIPATED, OR WITH A HEATHEN WHO SUBSEQUENTLY BECAME A PROSELYTE, LO, HE MUST NOT MARRY HER.[9] IF, HOWEVER, HE DID MARRY HER THEY NEED NOT BE PARTED.[10] IF A MAN IS SUSPECTED OF INTERCOURSE[8] WITH A MARRIED WOMAN[11] WHO, [IN CONSEQUENCE,] WAS TAKEN AWAY FROM HER HUSBAND,[12] HE MUST LET HER GO EVEN THOUGH HE HAD MARRIED HER.[13]

GEMARA. This implies that she may become a proper prose lyte![14] But against this a contradiction is raised. Both a man who became a proselyte for the sake of a woman and a woman who became a proselyte for the sake of a man, and, similarly, a man who became a proselyte for the sake of a royal board, or for the sake of joining Solomon's servants,[15] are no proper proselytes. These are the words of R. Nehemiah, for R. Nehemiah used to Say: Neither lion-proselytes,[16] nor dream-proselytes[17] nor the proselytes of Mordecai and Esther[18] are proper proselytes unless they become converted at the present time. How can it be said, ‘at the present time’?-Say ‘as at the present time’![19] -Surely concerning this it was stated that R. Isaac b. Samuel b. Martha said in the name of Rab: The halachah is in accordance with the opinion of him who maintained that they were all proper proselytes. If so, this[20] should have been permitted altogether![21] - On account of [the reason given by] R. Assi. For R. Assi said,[22] Put away from thee a froward mouth, and perverse lip's etc.[23]

Our Rabbis learnt: No proselytes will be accepted in the days of the Messiah.[24] In the same manner no proselytes were accepted in the days of David nor in the days of Solomon.[25] Said R. Eleazar: What Scriptural [support is there for this view]?-Behold he shall be a proselyte who is converted for my own sake,’[26] he who lives with you shall be settled among you,[27] he only who ‘lives with you’ in your poverty shall be settled among you; but no other.

IF A MAN IS SUSPECTED OF INTERCOURSE WITH A MARRIED WOMAN etc. Rab said: [This[28] must be confirmed] by witnesses.[29] Said R. Shesheth: It seems[30] that Rab made this statement while he was sleepy and about to doze off;[31] for it was taught: ‘If a man is suspected of intercourse with a married woman who, in consequences was taken away from her husband[32] and was subsequently divorced by another man,[33] he[34] need not part with her once he has married her’. Now, how is this to be understood? If it is a case where witnesses[35] are available, of what avail is it that another man stepped in and checked the rumour?[36] [Must we] not then [conclude that this is a case] where there were no witnesses;[35] and the reason[37] is because another man stepped in and checked the rumour, but had that not happened she would have been taken away from him?[38] — Rab can answer you: The same law, that where witnesses[35] are available she is taken away from him and that where no witnesses are available she is not taken away, applies also to the case where no other man stepped in and checked the rumour, but this it is that was meant: ‘Even if another man stepped in and checked the rumour it is not proper for him[39] to marry her’.[40]

An objection was raised: This[41] has been said in the case only where she had no children,[42] but if she has children[42] she must not be divorced.[43] If, however, witnesses to the seduction[44] presented themselves, she must go away from him[45] even if she had ever so many children![46] -Rab explains our Mishnah as dealing with the case where she has children and witnesses against her are available.

What, however, impels Rab to explain our Mishnah as dealing with a case where she has children and where witnesses against her are available, and to give as the reason why she is to be taken away, because witnesses are available, and [to imply that] if witnesses are not available she is not taken away; let him rather explain [our Mishnah as dealing with the case] where she has no children [and has to be taken away] even though no witnesses are available! Raba replied: Our Mishnah presented a difficulty to him. What point was there [he argued] for using the expression ‘WAS TAKEN AWAY’?[47] It should have been stated ‘he parted from her’;[48] but any such expression as ‘was taken away’ implies ‘by the Beth din’ and the Beth din take away Only where witnesses are available.[49]

If you prefer I may say that that Baraitha[50] represents the view of Rabbi;[51] for It was taught: When a pedlar[52] leaves a house and the woman within is fastening her sinnar,[53] since the thing is ugly she must, said Rabbi, go.[54] If spittle is found[55] on the upper part of the curtained bed, since the thing is ugly,[56] she must, said Rabbi, go.[54]

---

(1) For all practical purposes. as it has been shewn, the elder or eldest brother has the same privileges as the firstborn; why, then, was the expression בכור, (firstborn) used instead of גדול(elder or eldest) which would have included the firstborn?

(2) Property which was not in his father's possession at the time of his death.

(3) At the time he died.

(4) The levir who marries the widow and is given a double share (his and that of the deceased) in the inheritance of their father.

(5) Rashi. [Aliter: the levir inherits only such property of the deceased brother as had been in the latter's possession at the time of his death. Any property that fell into his possession subsequent thereto he shares equally with the other brothers. On this view the levir has no claim to the share which the deceased brother would have been entitled to in the property of their father had he survived the father, v. Nimmuke Joseph and Me'iri.]

(6) V. supra note 3.

(7) V. note 4.

(8) נטען lit., ‘spoken against’ ‘having to be a defendant’. Rt. טען ‘to plead’, ‘sue’.

(9) Since such a marriage might confirm the rumour.

(10) Lit., ‘they do not take out of his hand’.

(11) Lit., ‘the wife of a man’.

(12) Lit., ‘and they (i.e., Beth din) took her out from under his hand’. He was ordered to divorce her.

(13) Because the woman is Biblically forbidden to both husband and seducer. (V. Sot. 27b).

(14) Even though her conversion was solely due to her desire to contract the marriage.

(15) To enter the king's employ.

(16) גרי אריות’proselytes of lions’, those who, like the Samaritans (II Kings XVII, 25), were converted to Judaism by the fear of divine visitation.

(17) גרי חלומות ‘proselytes of dreams’, those who embraced Judaism in response to a dream or the advice of a dreamer.

(18) V. Esth. VIII, 17. Those who from similar motives of expediency adopt the Jewish faith.

(19) In the dire days after the Hadrianic Wars, when the proselyte 15 not actuated either by motives of fear or of gain. Now, how is this Baraitha to be reconciled with Our Mishnah?

(20) The marriage of the proselyte spoken of in our Mishnah.
(21) Lit., ‘even as at the start’. Why then was it stated, HE MUST NOT HARRY HER?
(22) In explaining the reason for the prohibition of marrying the proselyte. (Rashi); v. Keth., Sonc. ed. p. 123. n. 5’
(23) Prov. IV, 24. Owing to the rumour of Previous Intercourse one should not contract such a marriage. V. supra p. 147, n. 10.
(24) When Israel will be Prosperous and Prospective proselytes will be attracted by worldly considerations.
(25) During Israel's heyday. V. previous note.
(26) Or who is converted while I am not with you (v. Rashi, a.l.) i.e., while Israel is in exile and forsaken by God.
(27) Isa. LIV, 15, according to the Midrashic interpretation of R. Eleazar. The rt. גור which E.V. renders ‘to gather’ is here interpreted ‘to become a proselyte’, ‘to be converted’.
(28) The suspicion.
(29) Who were present during the misconduct.
(30) Lit., ‘I would say’.
(31) Lit., ‘dozing and lying’.
(32) V. supra p. 147. nn. 9’ 12 and 13.
(33) To whom she was married after her first husband had divorced her.
(34) The paramour.
(35) V. supra note 3.
(36) By his marriage. The testimony of the witnesses surely caused her to be permanently prohibited to the paramour.
(37) Why the paramour need not divorce her once he has married her.
(38) How then could Rab maintain that she is taken away Only where there are witnesses?
(39) The paramour.
(40) Only if he already married her may she in this case remain with him.
(41) That the paramour must divorce her.
(42) From the first husband.
(43) A divorce would be regarded as a confirmation of the suspicion, and the children would thereby be tainted as bastards.
(44) Lit., ‘uncleanness’.
(45) The paramour.
(46) Which shews, contrary to the Opinion of Rab, that when see has no children ‘she is to part from her paramour even where witnesses are not available.
(47) הוציאה lit., ‘they (i.e. Beth din) took her away’.
(48) הוציאה, lit., ‘he (i.e., the husband) brought her out’.
(49) No wife may be taken away from her husband because of a mere rumour or suspicion.
(50) Which requires a wife who had no children to leave her husband even where no witnesses are available.
(51) Who forbids a wife to her husband even on the grounds of a rumour or suspicion. According to the other Rabbis, however, who are the majority, the woman, as Rab said, need not be taken away where no witnesses are available, even if she has no children.
(52) רוכל Rashi explains rokel as dealer in women's perfumes.
(53) The סינר was a kind of breech-cloth or petticoat women wore as a matter of chastity (v. Rashi, a.l.).
(54) Even if there were no witnesses that misconduct took place.
(55) After the pedlar had left the house.
(56) Only the woman lying face upwards could have spat on that spot Intercourse may. therefore, be suspected.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 25a

if shoes[1] lie under the bed, since the thing is ugly,[2] she must, said Rabbi, go.[3] ‘Shoes’?[4] One can surely see whose they are! — Say rather the marks[5] of shoes.[6]

The law is in accordance with the view of Rab,[7] and the law is in accordance with the view of Rabbi.[8]

This, then, represents a contradiction between one law and the other! — There is no contradiction. One[9] refers to a rumour that had ceased;[10] the other, to a rumour that had not ceased. Where the rumour has not ceased, though no witnesses are available, [the law is] according to Rabbi; where the rumour has ceased but witnesses are available [the law is] according to Rab.

For how long [must a rumour continue in order to be regarded] as uninterrupted? Abaye replied: Mother[11] told me that a town rumour[12] [must remain uncontradicted for] a day and a half. This has been said Only in the case where It was not interrupted in the meantime. If, however, it was interrupted in the meantime, well, it was interrupted.[13] This, however, is only when the interruption was not due to intimidation, but if it was due to intimidation, well, it was due to intimidation.[14] This,[15] however, has been said only in the case where no enemies are about, but where enemies are about, well, it must have been the enemies who published the rumour.[13]

We learned elsewhere: If a man divorced his wife because of a bad name,[16] he must not remarry her; if on account of a vow he must not remarry her.[17] Rabbah son of R. Huna[18] sent to Rabbah son of R. Nahman: Will our Master Instruct us as to whether he[19] must part with her if he did remarry her? The other replied: We have learnt It: IF A MAN IS SUSPECTED OF INTERCOURSE WITH A MARRIED WOMAN WHO [IN CONSEQUENCE] WAS TAKEN AWAY FROM HER HUSBAND[20] HE MUST LET HER GO EVEN THOUGH HE HAS MARRIED HER![21] He said to him: Are these two cases at all alike? There[22] she was taken away;[23] here he[24] had let her go.[25]

And Rabbah son of R. Nahman?[26] — In our Mishnah also we learned, ‘He let her go’.[27] But even now, are they at all alike? Here[28] it is the husband;[29] there[30] it is the seducer![31] — The other replied: They are indeed alike.[32] For here[30] the Rabbis said, ‘he[33] must not marry her, and if he did marry he must let her go’ and there[27] also the Rabbis would Say, ‘he[34] must not remarry her and if he did remarry he must let her go’. This, however, is not [much of an argument]. There[30] he lends colour to the rumour,[35] while here it might well be assumed that he[34] investigated the rumour and found it to be groundless. MISHNAH. A MAN WHO BRINGS A LETTER OF DIVORCE FROM A COUNTRY BEYOND THE SEA[36] AND STATES, ‘IT WAS WRITTEN IN MY PRESENCE AND IT WAS SIGNED IN MY PRESENCE’, MUST NOT MARRY THE [DIVORCER'S] WIFE.[37] [SIMILARLY, IF HE STATES]. ‘HE DIED’, ‘I KILLED HIM’, OR ‘WE KILLED HIM’, HE MUST NOT MARRY HIS WIFE. R. JUDAH SAID:

[IF THE STATEMENT IS], ‘[36] KILLED HIM’, THE WOMAN MAY NOT MARRY [ANY ONE];[38] [IF, HOWEVER, IT IS], ‘WE KILLED HIM’,

THE WOMAN MAY MARRY AGAIN.[39]

GEMARA. The reason then[40] is because he came FROM A COUNTRY BEYOND THE SEA, in which case we have to entirely upon him;[41] but [had he come] from the Land of Israel, in which case we need not depend upon him,[42] would he have been allowed to marry the divorcer's wife? But, surely, when the Statement is, ‘HE DIED’, in which case we do not depend entirely upon him since a Master said, ‘a woman[43] makes careful inquiry before she marries’[44] and yet it was stated, HE MUST NOT MARRY HIS WIFE! — There,[45] no document exists, but here[46] a document[47] does exist. For thus we have learned: Wherein lies the difference between [the admissibility of] a letter of divorce and [that of evidence of] death?[48] In that the document[47] supplies the proof.[49]

[SIMILARLY, IF HE STATES], ‘HE DIED’, ‘I KILLED HIM’, OR ‘WE KILLED HIM’, HE MUST NOT MARRY HIS WIFE. Only he, then, must not marry his wife, she, however, may be married to another man? But, surely, R. Joseph said: [If a man stated], ‘So-and-so committed pederasty with me against my will’, he and any other witness may be combined[50] to procure his execution; [if, however, he said], ‘with my consent’,[51] he is a wicked man concerning whom the Torah said, Put not thy hand with the wicked to be an unrighteous witness![52] And were you to reply that matrimonial evidence[53] is different because the Rabbis have relaxed the law in its case,[54] surely, [it may be pointed out], R. Manasseh stated:

---

(1) So MSS. Cur. edd. add. ‘overturned’.

(2) The shoes indicating the presence of an unknown stranger on the bed.

(3) Even if there were no witnesses that misconduct took place.

(4) So MSS. Cur. edd. add. ‘overturned’.

(5) Lit., ‘place of’, i.e., the shoes have left marks on the floor.

(6) Cur. edd. contain the following addition. ‘Overturned under the bed, said Rabbi, since the thing is ugly she shall go’. All this with the exception of the first word is enclosed in parentheses. Cf. Rashal.

(7) That no rumour or suspicion is to be relied upon in forbidding a wife to her husband. Only the evidence of witnesses may be acted upon.

(8) Cf. supra p. 150, n. 7.

(9) The law according to Rab.

(10) I.e., when a contradictory rumour obtained currency.

(11) His foster-mother. V. Kid. 31b.

(12) דומי, ‘suspicion’ or ‘gossip’.

(13) And it cannot any more be regarded as ‘an uninterrupted rumour’.

(14) The force of the rumour is not thereby impaired.

(15) That an uninterrupted rumour is relied upon.

(16) Suspected immorality.

(17) V. Git., Sonc. ed. pp. 200ff, q.v. notes.

(18) So Emden. Cur. edd: Omit ‘R’.

(19) Who divorced his wife ‘because of a bad name’.

(20) [So MS.M. in conformity with the text of our Mishnah. Cur. edd.: and he had let her go.]

(21) So also in the case under discussion, though he married her, he must part from her.

(22) In our Mishnah.

(23) By the Beth din acting on the evidence of witnesses.

(24) Her husband at his own discretion.

(25) And the prohibition to remarry her is only Rabbinical. Hence it is possible that once he has remarried her he need not part from her.

(26) How can he draw a comparison between two dissimilar cases?

(27) Though there were no witnesses. Consequently, the woman is forbidden to her paramour Rabbinically only on the ground of suspicion (cf. supra p. 148. n. 10) and yet it was stated that he must part with her, which proves that even where the prohibition to marry is Rabbinical only (cf. supra note 9) the woman must be parted from the man.

(28) Rabbah b. R. Huna's enquiry.

(29) Whose remarriage of his former wife is obviously not suggestive of any immorality.

(30) Our Mishnah.

(31) Whose marriage with the woman undoubtedly lends colour to the rumoured suspicion. In such circumstances it is quite reasonable to order their separation. How can this, however, be used as an example for the case in the enquiry? (Cf. supra n. 13).

(32) Since the prohibition in both cases is only Rabbinical.

(33) Her paramour.

(34) The woman's former husband.

(35) Lit., ‘he enforces the rumour’. Cf. supra n. 15.

(36) מדינת הים, lit., ‘country of the sea’, a term applied to all countries of the world exclusive of Palestine and Babylonia.

(37) Since the validity of the divorce 15 entirely dependent on his word (v. infra n. 6) he may be suspected of giving false evidence with a view to marrying the woman himself. As, however, a woman 15 permitted to marry even if only a single witness had testified to the death of he husband, she is allowed to marry any other man.

(38) Having admitted murder he cannot any longer be regarded as a reliable witness.

(39) This is explained infra.
(40) Why the man who brings the letter of divorce may not marry the divorcer's wife.
(41) The divorce not being valid unless the carrier of the letter of divorce can testify that it was written and signed in his presence. (V. Git. 20).
(42) Reliance being placed on the qualified scribes of Palestine, there is no need for the carrier of a letter of divorce to declare that he witnessed the writing and the signing of it.
(43) Ab death of whose husband is attested by one witness Only.
(44) And for this reason is allowed to remarry. Infra 53 b, 115a. 116b.
(45) In the case of evidence of death.
(46) Divorce.
(47) The letter of divorce.
(48) I.e., why are certain relatives accepted as legally qualified. carriers of a letter of divorce but not as witnesses to the death of a husband?
(49) V. Git. 23b, infra 117a.
(50) The two together forming a pair of witnesses, the minimum required for bringing about a man's condemnation by a court of law.
(51) Was the crime committed.
(52) Ex. XXIII, which shews that a man who admitted a criminal offence may not act as a witness at all!
(53) In allowing a woman to marry on the evidence of the death of her husband.
(54) In other cases two witnesses are required and in this case one is sufficient.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 25b

‘One who is Rabbinically regarded as a robber[1] is eligible to be a witness in matrimonial matters;[2] one, however, who is Biblically regarded as a robber is ineligible to act as witness in matrimonial matters;[3] would it then be necessary to assume that R. Manasseh holds the same opinion as R. Judah?[4] - R. Manasseh can answer you: My statement may be reconciled even with the view of the Rabbis, but the reason of the Rabbis[5] here is the same as that of Raba. For Raba said, ‘A man is his own relative and consequently[6] no man may declare himself wicked’.

Must it then be assumed that R. Joseph[7] is of the same opinion as R. Judah?[8] — R. Joseph can answer you: ‘My Statement may be in agreement even with the view of the Rabbis, but matrimonial evidence[9] is different, since the Rabbis relaxed the law in its case;[10] and it is R. Manasseh who adopted the view of R. Judah’.

‘I KILLED HIM’ etc., ‘WE KILLED HIM ... MAY MARRY etc. What is the practical difference between ‘I killed him’ and ‘we killed him’?[11] — Rab Judah said: [Our Mishnah speaks of the case] where he said, ‘I was present together with his murderers’ —[12] Has it not, however, been taught: They said to R. Judah, ‘It once happened that a robber when led out to his execution in the Cappadocian Pass[13] said to those present,[14] "Go and tell the wife of Simeon b. Kohen that I killed her husband when I entered Lud" [others Say: When he entered Lud], and his wife was permitted to marry again’![15] He answered them: Is there any proof from there? [It was a case] where he said, ‘I was present together with his murderers’.[12] But it was stated, ‘a robber’! — He was apprehended on account of robbery.[16] But it was stated, ‘led out to his execution’! — [He was sentenced by] a heathen court of law who executed without due investigation.[17]

MISHNAH. A SAGE WHO HAS PRONOUNCED A WOMAN FORBIDDEN TO HER HUSBAND BECAUSE OF A VOW[18] MUST NOT MARRY HER HIMSELF.[19] IF, HOWEVER, A WOMAN MADE A DECLARATION OF REFUSAL[20] OR PERFORMED HALIZAH IN HIS PRESENCE, HE MAY MARRY HER, SINCE HE [WAS BUT ONE OF THE] BETH DIN.[21]

GEMARA. This implies that if he had disallowed her vow, be would have been permitted to marry her![22] What then are the circumstances?[23] If [he acted] alone, could one disallow a vow? Surely[24] R. Hiyya b. Abin said in the name of R. Amram that it was taught: The disallowance of vows is to be carried out by three! If, however, three were Present, would they be suspected? Surely we learned, IF, HOWEVER, A WOMAN MADE A DECLARATION OF REFUSAL OR PERFORMED HALIZAH IN HIS PRESENCE, HE MAY MARRY HER, SINCE HE [WAS BUT ONE OF THE] BETH DIN!-The fact is that [he acted] alone, and[25] as R.

Hisda said in the name of R. Johanan, 'By a fully qualified individual',[26] so here also it is a case of one fully qualified individual.[26]

IF A WOMAN MADE A DECLARATION OF REFUSAL, OR PERFORMED HALIZAH etc. The reason, then,[27] is because [he was one of a] Beth din,[28] but had he been one of a group of two only. would he not [have been permitted]? Wherein, then, does this case differ from the following concerning which it was taught:[29] If witnesses signed on [a document relating to] a purchased field or on a letter of divorce, the Rabbis do not apprehend such collusion![30] — It is this very thing that he taught us,[31] viz., that the opinion of him who said that a declaration of refusal may be made in the presence of two is to be rejected and that one is to infer[32] that a declaration of refusal must be made in the presence of three.[33]

The question was raised: If he[34] married her[35] must he part from her? R. Kahana said: Though he married, he must part from her. R. Ashi said: Once he has married, he need not part from her.

R. Zuti at the School of R. Papa recited [a teaching] in accordance with the opinion of him who said that if he[34] married her[35] he need not part from her. Said the Rabbis to R. Ashi: Is this[36] a tradition or a matter of opinion? He answered them: It is a Mishnah: If a man is suspected of intercourse with a slave who was subsequently emancipated, or with a heathen who subsequently became a proselyte, lo, he must not marry her; if, however, he did marry her the marriage need not be dissolved. Which proves

---

(1) A gambler, for instance, who is not Biblically forbidden to act as a witness. V. R.H. 220.

(2) V. note 4.

(3) Which proves that even in matrimonial matters a murderer (a man Biblically regarded as wicked) is not eligible as a witness.

(4) Who in our Mishnah rejected the evidence of the man who admitted murder. The halachah being according to the Rabbis who are the majority, would R. Manasseh ignore the majority in favour of a minority?

(5) For admitting the evidence of a man who announced himself as a murderer.

(6) As no relative is admitted as witness.

(7) Who does not admit the evidence of the man who declared himself a murderer, (supra 25a).

(8) V.p. 154, n. 9.

(9) V. p. 154, n. 4.

(10) V. supra p. 154, n. 5. Hence they also admitted the evidence of one who declared himself to be a murderer.

(11) In either case he admitted murder.

(12) But did not himself participate in the crime.

(13) Or 'ford'.

(14) Lit., 'to them'.

(15) Tosef. Yeb. IV; which proves that the evidence of a murderer is accepted.

(16) V. n. 10. He was Only present during the robbery.

(17) The condemned man, however, was not a murderer.

(18) Which the woman made. If she vowed, for instance, to derive no benefit from her husband, and he did not annul her vow; and on consulting the Sage and finding no ground for the remission of her vow (v. Ned. 22b), her vow was not disallowed and her husband was consequently forbidden to her.

(19) To avoid the suspicion that his motive in forbidding the woman was to marry her himself.

(20) V. Glos. s.v. mi'un.

(21) Declarations of refusal and the performance of halizah, unlike the disallowance or confirmation of vows, must always take place in the presence of a court of three; and a court of three would not be suspected.

(22) If her husband subsequently divorced her or died.

(23) Lit., 'in what are we engaged'.

(24) Cur. edd. add in parentheses. 'Rab said'.

(25) As to the difficulty of the implication that one individual should be in a position to disallow vows.

(26) A mumhe (v. Glos.) who, like a lay court of three, is empowered to disallow vows by himself. Ned. 78b, B.B. 120b, 121a.

(27) Why the Sage may marry the woman in question.

(28) Which consists of no less than three members.

(29) Cur. edd., we learned'.

(30) Lit., 'this thing'. They do not, as a precaution against collusion, forbid the witnesses the subsequent purchase of the field from the buyer. or the marriage with the woman n whose divorce they assisted. This obviously shews that even a group of two is not to be suspected!

(31) By mentioning Beth din which implies three members.

(32) From the mention of Beth din in our Mishnah.

(33) And not, as has been assumed, that only three are not to be suspected. Two also are above suspicion.

(34) The Sage referred to in our Mishnah (Rashb. and Asheri). The Sage or the man who delivered a letter of divorce mentioned in the previous Mishnah (Rashi and Maimonides). V. Wilna Gaon, Glosses, a.l.

(35) The woman who was forbidden to her husband or the one divorced (v. previous note).

(36) The statement R. Ashi made.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 26a

that [once a woman was married she] is not taken away because of a mere rumour; and so here also [the woman married] is not to be taken away because of a rumour.

MISHNAH. IF ALL THESE[1] HAD WIVES[2] WHO [SUBSEQUENTLY] DIED, [THE OTHER WOMEN][3] ARE PERMITTED TO MARRY THEM.[4] IF THEY[3] WERE MARRIED TO OTHERS[5] AND WERE [SUBSEQUENTLY] DIVORCED,[6] OR WIDOWED, THEY MAY BE MARRIED TO THESE.[7] THESE[8] ARE ALSO PERMITTED TO THEIR[6] SONS OR BROTHERS.[9]

GEMARA. Only if they[10] died[11] but not if they were divorced.[12] Said R. Hillel to R. Ashi: Surely, it was taught: Even if they were divorced! — This is no difficulty: The one[13] refers to the case where they led[14] a quarrelsome life;[15] the other,[16] where they[17] had no quarrels.[18] If you prefer I might say that the one as well as the other [refers to the case] where there were no quarrels, and yet there is no difficulty: The former[16] is a case where the husband had led on [to the divorce];[19] in the latter,[20] she led on to the divorce.

IF THEY WERE MARRIED etc. It was now assumed that death[21] has reference to the case of death,[22] and divorce[23] to that of divorce.[24] Must it then be said that our Mishnah[25] is in disagreement the delivery of the letter of divorce by the messenger, or the evidence of the man who testified to their husbands' deaths. with the view of Rabbi? For had it been in agreement with Rabbi, [a third marriage would not have been allowed], for he said that two occurrences constitute a hazakah.[26] — No;[27] death[28] [has reference] to divorce,[29] and divorce[28] to death.[30]

THESE ARE ALSO PERMITTED TO THEIR SONS OR BROTHERS. Wherein is this different from the following where it was taught:[31] A man who is suspected of intercourse with a woman is forbidden to marry her mother, her daughter and her sister.[32] -It is the usual thing for women to pay frequent visits to other women;[33] it is not usual, however, for men to pay frequent visits to other men.[34] Or [this] also:[35] Women who do not cause one another to be forbidden by their cohabitation[36] do not particularly mind one another;[37] men, however, who do cause one another to be forbidden by their cohabitation[38] do mind one another.[34] If so,[39] [the same law[40] should] also [apply to] one's father![41] -The meaning is, ‘There is no need’,[42] [thus]: There is no need [to state that the law[40] is applicable to] one's father before whom a son is shy;[43] but [in the case of] one's son[44] before whom a father[44] is not shy it might have been assumed [that this law was] not [to be applied], hence we were informed [that the same law was applicable to a son also].

CHAPTER III

MISHNAH. [IN THE CASE OF] FOUR BROTHERS, TWO OF WHOM WERE MARRIED TO TWO SISTERS, IF THOSE WHO WERE MARRIED TO THE SISTERS DIED, BEHOLD. THESE[45] MUST PERFORM HALIZAH BUT MAY NOT BE TAKEN IN LEVIRATE MARRIAGE [BY THE BROTHERS].[46] IF THEY HAD ALREADY[47] MARRIED THEM, THEY MUST DISMISS THEM. R. ELIEZER SAID: BETH SHAMMAI HOLD THAT THEY MAY RETAIN THEM, AND BETH HILLEL HOLD THAT THEY MUST DISMISS THEM.

IF ONE OF THE SISTERS[48] WAS FORBIDDEN TO ONE [OF THE BROTHERS] UNDER THE PROHIBITION OF INCEST,[49] HE IS FORBIDDEN TO MARRY HER BUT MAY MARRY HER SISTER,[50] WHILE TO THE SECOND BROTHER BOTH ARE FORBIDDEN.

[IF ONE SISTER,][48] WAS FORBIDDEN BY VIRTUE OF A COMMANDMENT[51] OR BY VIRTUE OF HOLINESS[51] SHE MUST PERFORM THE HALIZAH BUT MAY NOT BE TAKEN IN LEVIRATE MARRIAGE.

IF ONE OF THE SISTERS[48] WAS FORBIDDEN TO ONE BROTHER UNDER THE LAW OF INCEST AND THE OTHER SISTER WAS FORBIDDEN TO THE OTHER UNDER THE LAW OF INCEST, SHE WHO IS FORBIDDEN TO THE ONE IS PERMITTED TO THE OTHER AND SHE WHO IS FORBIDDEN TO THE OTHER IS PERMITTED TO THE FIRST. THIS IS THE CASE CONCERNING WHICH IT HAS BEEN SAID: WHEN HER SISTER IS HER SISTER-IN-LAW[52] SHE MAY EITHER PERFORM HALIZAH OR BE TAKEN IN LEVIRATE MARRIAGE.[53]

GEMARA. This then[54] implies that a levirate bond exists;[55] for if no levirate bond exists, observe this point: These widows come from two different houses,[56] let one brother take in levirate marriage the one and the other brother the other![57] — As a matter of fact it may still be assumed that no levirate bond exists[55] [but the levirate marriage is nevertheless forbidden] because he[58] is of the opinion that it is forbidden to annul the precept of levirate marriage, it being possible that while one of the brothers married [one of the widowed sisters] the other brother would die,[59] and the precept of levirate marriage would be annulled.[60] If so,[61] [the same applies to] three [brothers] also![62] — This may be regarded as the case of ‘There is no need etc.’;[63] thus: There is no need to state three,[64] since the precept of levirate marriage would inevitably have to be annulled;[65] but [in the case of] four[66] [it might have been assumed that] one need not take precautions against [possible] death,[67] hence we were informed [that even in such a case levirate marriage is forbidden].[68] If so,[69]

---

(1) Lit., ‘and all of them’. The Sage, the messenger who brought a letter of divorce and the man who testified to the death of a husband. (V. previous two Mishnahs, supra 250, 25b).

(2) At the time of their action which resulted in enabling the women there mentioned to marry.

(3) I.e. the women concerned in their respective actions. V. previous note.

(4) Having had their own wives at the time they were engaged in the other women's affairs they are not to be suspected of any ulterior motives. Cf. supra p. 153, n. 2 and p. 155. n. 12.

(5) After the decision of the Sage,

(6) By their second husbands.

(7) Cf. supra p. 157, n. 6.
(8) V. p. 157, n. 8.
(9) The prohibition being limited to themselves.
(10) The wives of the Sage, messenger and witness (cf. supra p. 157, n. 6).
(11) Lit., ‘they died, yes’; only then is it permissible for the husbands to marry the women whom they had helped to obtain permission to marry.
(12) It being possible that their action in favour of the women and the subsequent divorces were dictated by the same ulterior motive.
(13) The Baraitha quoted by R. Hillel.
(14) Before their respective husbands had acted in favour of the other women.
(15) With their husbands. It is consequently obvious that the divorces were due to the domestic differences, and that the husband's subsequent actions were not dictated by ulterior motives.
(16) That implied in our Mishnah.
(17) V. supra note 5.
(18) As husbands and wives lived in peace until the former had met the other women, there is good reason to suspect that the divorces were due to these meetings.
(19) Hence there is cause for suspicion.
(20) V. supra note 8.
(21) Of the second husbands with whom marriage had taken place In the meanwhile.
(22) In the second clause of the Previous Mishnah but one (supra 25a), where evidence was given that the woman's first husband had died or was killed.
(23) Cf. supra n. 16.
(24) Where a letter of divorce was brought by a messenger, (v. the first clause of the Mishnah supra 25a).
(25) Which allows a woman to marry a third husband though her first two husbands had died or divorced her.
(26) V. Glos. An established characteristic or defect in the woman, physical or moral, which confirms her as the cause of the death of her husbands or as the cause of the divorces. Hence, she should not have been permitted ever to marry again.
(27) Our Mishnah does not differ from Rabbi.
(28) V. p. 158, n.16. .
(29) V. p.158,n.19.
(30) V. supra p. 158. n. 17. Hence no two husbands died or divorced the same woman, and no hazakah could, therefore, have been constituted.
(31) Cur. edd., ‘we learned’.
(32) Because there is reason to suspect that the marriage was planned by the man as a mere means of bringing him into closer association and intimacy with his paramour. Why, then, is this suspicion disregarded in the case of our Mishnah?
(33) Misconduct may, therefore, occur and suspicion (v. previous note) is justified.
(34) And suspicion that any intimate intercourse might take place would, therefore, be groundless.
(35) May be said in reply.
(36) With one another's husbands. The husband is not forbidden to his wife if cohabitation occurred between him and another woman.
(37) V. note 8.
(38) With one another's wives. The wife of one with whom the other cohabited is forbidden to her husband.
(39) That men are watchful of one another, and that consequently there is no ground for suspicion.
(40) Permitting the marriage of any of the women in question.
(41) Why, then, does our Mishnah mention sons and brothers only?
(42) Lit., ‘it is not required he said’.
(43) And would not venture to be too intimate with his wife.
(44) Or brother.
(45) The sisters.
(46) The reason is explained in the Gemara, infra.
(47) Lit., ‘anticipated’ (the ruling of the court).
(48) In the case mentioned in the first paragraph of our Mishnah.
(49) E.g., as a mother-in-law.

(50) Who is not forbidden on account of her rival since the latter is biblically forbidden to the levir and cannot be regarded as his zekukah (v. Glos.).
(51) The term is used in the Mishnah supra 20a and discussed in the Gemara loc. cit.
(52) The wife of her husband's brother.
(53) V. supra 20a. Cf. supra p. 162, n. 6.
(54) The first clause of our Mishnah.
(55) Between the widow of a deceased childless brother and his surviving brothers, in consequence of which each widow being a zekukah (v. Glos.), is forbidden as the sister of a zekukah.
(56) They are the widows of two different husbands and neither of them stands in any marital relationship with any of the surviving brothers (v. previous note).
(57) A levirate bond then obviously does exist. That being so, why has the question of the existence of a levirate bond remained a matter of dispute in Ned. 742 and supra 17b?
(58) The author of our Mishnah.
(59) And thus be prevented from marrying the other widow.
(60) Because the surviving brother would then not be able either to marry, or to participate in the halizah with the second widow who by that time will have become his wife's sister. If, however, halizah only is performed with one brother and the death of the other should occur before the second widow had performed halizah with him, no difficulty would arise, since the first brother may then participate in the halizah of the second also.
(61) That the reason for the prohibition of the levirate marriage with the widowed sisters is not the existence of a levirate bond but the endeavour to prevent the annulment of the precept of levirate marriage.
(62) If two of them died childless and both their widows become subject to the levirate marriage or halizah of the third. In this case too the third brother must only participate in halizah; for, should he marry one of the sisters, the other would be forbidden, as the sister of his wife, either to marry him or to perform halizah with him.
(63) Lit., ‘it is not required, do we say’.
(64) That where one of three brothers survived, no levirate marriage must take place.
(65) Were he to marry one of the widows. Cf. supra p. 162, n. 8.
(66) Brothers, two of whom survived.
(67) And that consequently one brother should marry one of the widows and the other brother the other.
(68) Because provision must always be made against possible death.
(69) v. previous note.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 26b

the same applies to five brothers also![1] -The possibility that two might die[2] need not be taken into consideration.

Rabbah[3] son of R. Huna said in the name of Rab:If three sisters who are sisters-in-law fell to the lot of two brothers who are their brothers-in-law, one of the brothers participates in her halizah with one, and the other brother participates in the halizah with the other, but the third,[4] requires halizah from both. Said Rabbah to him: Since you say that the third widow requires submission to halizah by both brothers, you must be holding the opinion that a Ievirate bond exists[5] and that the halizah is of an impaired character,[6] and that as an impaired halizah it must go the round of all the brothers;[7] but if so, [the same should apply to] the first [two sisters] also![8] — If they[9] had become subject [to the levirs] at the same time the law would indeed have been so;[10] [the statement of our Mishnah, however,] was required only in the case where they become subject [to the Ievirs] one after another. When the first sister became subject to the obligation of the levirate marriage. Reuben[11] participated in her halizah;[12] when the second came Under the obligation. Simeon[13] participated in her halizah;[14] when the third came under the obligation.[15] if the one brother participated in her halizah he removed his own levirate bond,[16] and when the other participated in the halizah he likewise removed his own levirate bond. But, surely. Rab said that no levirate bond exists![17] — This statement[18] he made in accordance with the opinion of him who maintains that a levirate bond does exist.

Samuel, however, stated that one brother participates in the halizah with all of them. But consider: We have heard Samuel say that a proper halizah is required for Samuel said:

---

(1) Two of whom who were married to two sisters died and three survived. In this case also, if provision is to be made against the possibility of death, no levirate marriage should be allowed to any of the three survivors, since it might happen that two of the survivors would also die and the last and only surviving brother would be precluded from levirate marriage and halizah because the widows would then be his wife's sisters.

(2) Lit., 'for the death of two'.

(3) So Emden. Cur. edd., 'Raba'.

(4) Lit., 'the middle one'.

(5) V. supra p. 162, n. 3'

(6) Since each brother may only participate in halizah with the widow but may not, as she is the sister of his haluzah (v. Glos.). marry her. Such a halizah is not of the same validity as one which is the alternative of a permitted levirate marriage.

(7) The levirate bond between the widow and the other brothers cannot be dissolved by such a halizah with one of them. [Me'iri seems to have had a shorter and smoother text: . . . that a levirate bond exists and that an impaired halizah must go the round of all the brothers'.]

(8) Since they, like the third, are subject to the Ievirate bond, and with them also only halizah, but not levirate marriage may take place, and their halizah also is consequently of an impaired character.

(9) All the three sisters.

(10) Halizah would have had to be performed by every one of them with every brother.

(11) I.e., the first brother. Reuben was Jacob's first son (Gen. XXIX, 32).

(12) This was a proper halizah since at that time he could have married her if he wished.

(13) I.e., the second brother. Simeon was the second son of Jacob. (Cf. Gen. XXIX, 33)'

(14) This also was a proper halizah since he could marry her if he wished. She is no longer the sister of his zekukah (v. Glos.) since the first brother had already performed with that zekukah proper halizah and had thereby severed the levirate bond between her and Simeon as well as between her and himself.

(15) Levirate marriage is no more possible since, in the case of each brother, she is the sister of his haluzah, while exemption from !halizah cannot be granted because the prohibition to marry the sister of one's haluzah is only Rabbinical and cannot supersede the Biblical precept which requires halizah where no levirate marriage takes place.

(16) Which otherwise could not have been severed. V. previous note.

(17) Supra 17b.

(18) Reported supra by Rabbah b. R. Huna.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 27a

if he[1] participated in the halizah with the sisters, the rivals are not exempt;[2] how then should Reuben,[3] where the halizah of Simeon[4] has the force of a valid halizah,[5] participate in an impaired halizah?[6] — By saying. 'One brother participates in the halizah with all of them' he also meant 'the third widow'.[7] But surely, 'All of them' was stated![8] -As the majority is on his side[9] it may be described as 'All of them'. If you prefer I might say: Only in respect of exempting one's rival[10] did Samuel say that proper halizah was required; as regards exempting herself, however, [any halizah][11] sets her free.[12]

[To turn to] the main text ,[13] Samuel said: If he[14] participated in the halizah with the sisters, the rivals are not exempt;[15] ff with the rivals. the sisters are exempt.[16] If he[17] participated in the halizah with the one[18] who had been divorced,[19] her rival is not thereby exempt;[20] if with the rival[21] the divorced woman is exempt —[22] If he[17] participated in the halizah with one[18] to whom he addressed a ma'amar, her rival is not thereby exempt;[23] if with the rival,[24] the widow to whom the ma'amar had been addressed is exempt.[25]

In what respect are the sisters different that [by their halizah] the rivals should not be exempted?

Apparently because [each one of them] is ‘his wife's sister’ through the levirate bond;[26] [but for this very reason] the sisters also, if he participated in the halizah with their rivals, should not be exempt, since those are the rivals of ‘his wife's sister’ through the levirate bond![27] — Samuel holds the opinion that no levirate bond exists. But, surely, Samuel said that a levirate bond did exist![28] -He was here speaking in accordance with the view of him who maintains that a levirate bond does not exist. If so,[29] why are not the rivals exempt when he participated In the halizah with the sisters? One can well understand why Rachel's[30] rival is not exempt; for, as he had already participated in the halizah of Leah[31] and only subsequently participated in the halizah of Rachel, Rachel's halizah is a defective one;[32] but Leah's rival should be exempt![33] -When he[34] said that ‘The rivals are not exempt’, he meant indeed the rival of Rachel. But, surely, he used the expression ‘rivals’![35] -Rivals generally. If so,[36] how could the sisters be exempt if he participated in the halizah with their rivals? Is Rachel exempt by the halizah of her rival![37] Surely we learned: A man is forbidden to marry the rival of the relative of his halizah[38] — Samuel also [is of the same opinion] but draws a distinction according to the manner In which[39] one began or did not begin: If one began with the sisters[40] he must not finish with the rivals,[41] for we learned, ‘A man is forbidden to marry the rival of the relative of his haluzah’;[42] but if he began with the rivals[43] he may finish even with the sisters,[44] for we learned, ‘A man is permitted to marry the relative of the rival of his haluzah’.[45]

R. Ashi said: Your former assumption[46] may still be upheld, and [yet no difficulty[47] arises] because the levirate bond is not strong enough to make the rival equal to the forbidden relative herself.[48]

It was taught in agreement with the view of R. Ashi: If the levir participated in the halizah with the sisters, their rivals are not thereby exempt; but if with the rivals, the sisters are thereby exempt. What is the reason? Obviously[49] because he is of the opinion that a levirate bond exists and that that bond is not strong enough to make the rival equal to the forbidden relative herself.

R. Abba b. Memel said: Who is the author of this?[50] Beth Shammai; for we learned: Beth Shammai permit the rivals to the [surviving] brothers.[51] If so,[52] let them[53] be taken in levirate marriage also![54] [This is] in agreement with R. Johanan b. Nuri who said: Come, let us issue an ordinance that the rivals perform the halizah but do not marry the levir.[55] But did not a Master say that they had hardly time to conclude the matter before confusion set in?[56] — R. Nahman b. Isaac replied: After him[57] they re-ordained it.

The question was raised:

---

(1) A levir whose two deceased childless brothers were survived by two widows who were sisters, each of whom had also a rival.

(2) Because the halizah with the sisters is defective, the levir not being in a position to marry either of them. Cf. supra p. 263, n. 11,

(3) Cf. supra note 2,

(4) cf. note 4.

(5) Simeon, having participated in no halizah, the second sister is not the sister of his haluzah.

(6) In the case of Reuben who had already participated in the halizah of one sister, the halizah with the second is a halizah performed by the sister of his haluzah, which is not a completely valid operation.

